PRELIMINARY EGOTISM.

It seems to be the conventional and approved method of procedure, when one has written a book, to write a preface, either by way of apology for having written it, or as a raison d'être for the book itself. I confess that I know of no particular excuse which might serve as a palliation for what I have done, or left undone, and the book must show its own reason for existence.

I expect it will meet with adverse criticism, both deserved and undeserved, for no one can appreciate more fully than myself how much there is in it—and out of it—to furnish a fair mark for the critic. It is a truism that, “when a man makes a feast he more certainly invites his critics than his friends.”

So far as I am cognizant, I am the pioneer in this field of research—the first to blaze a pathway along the hitherto unexplored lines of the subject-matter of this work; and no one, who has never undertaken a similar task, can appreciate the magnitude of the labor involved in collecting and compiling the matter contained in even so brief a volume as the one which follows.

I shall esteem it a personal favor if my readers will supply me with any information in their possession, relating to the subject of the work, which may have escaped my research; or correct any inaccuracies which may appear in the work itself; and, some time, perhaps, Deo volente, I may issue a “second revised edition, greatly enlarged and improved,” as the prospectuses say.

In conclusion, I venture to express the hope that my little book may fall into the hands of indulgent friends rather than of captious critics; and so, without further explanation or apology, I place it before you.

THE NAME AND RACE.

Years ago I was treated to an explanation of the genesis of the race and patronymic of the Barkers by a gentleman—himself a member of the family—who, calling upon me in the pursuit of knowledge anent the subject of our ancestry, in the course of our conversation, regaled me with the following anecdote:

Many years ago, long before the era of railroads, steamboats, telegraphs or trolleys; before Washington had immortalized himself by telling the truth, or Columbus had ventured his frail caravels upon an unknown sea; before the Wars of the Roses had plunged a nation into fratricidal strife, or Magna Charter had been wrung from the reluctant hand of a tyrant king, a gentleman of ancient and aristocratic lineage, whose patrimony extended over one of the fairest portions of England, was aroused one night from his slumbers by the violent barking of his dogs. Objurgations addressed to the canine race in general and his own yelping pack in particular, proving ineffectual to quell the pow-wow, and the sedative and nocturnal boot-jack proving powerless to induce them to retire to their kennel and meditate in solitude and silence upon the theory of a man in the moon, he sent his servant to ascertain the cause of the disturbance. The menial soon returned, bearing in his hands a basket, in which peacefully reposed—a babe, the unconscious object of the dogs' aversion. Struck with the beauty of the child, and moved to pity at the sight of its helpless innocence, the nobleman—having no children of his own—decided to adopt the little waif, which he immediately did; and, in memory of the canine racket which had first brought it to his attention, he named it "Barker."

I give the foregoing story without in any manner avouch-

ing its historical accuracy. If the reader chooses to accept it as truth, he must do so upon his own responsibility. As a judicial historian and veracious chronicler I must confess that I am tempted to relegate it to the company of George Washington's little hatchet, and Jack and the Bean Stalk, and all the other myths and legends which used to delight our childhood hours, before the skepticism of maturer years had stolen upon us, like a thief in the night, to ravish away our holiest and most cherished beliefs.

A more probable—if less romantic—explanation of the origin of the name is to be found in the custom which obtained centuries ago in most of the nations which to-day are called “civilized,” of men taking their names from the nature of their vocations, the locality of their habitations, historical events, or incidents of a personal nature. “Barker,” in the early English vernacular, signified a tanner, and it was, doubtless, this honest, if odoriferous, occupation, which furnished a name to our ancestors of blessed memory. A character in one of Beaumont and Fletcher's comedies, in reply to a query from his Lord, as to his calling, replies:

“I am a barker, sir, by trade.”

Both the name and the race are English, and have been since a time when the memory of man runneth not to the contrary; and a baronetcy, which had lapsed, through want of heirs, awaits the enterprising young American Barker who can prove, as well as read, “his title clear.”

I have often heard expression given to the sentiment—thoughtlessly, of course—that “all the Barkers must be related to each other;” and that a common ancestor would be found by “going back far enough.” A moment's reflection will serve to show the fallacy of this idea—unless, indeed, we choose to go back to the common ancestor of mankind—for tanners or barkers, in different parts of the country, would adopt the name of their vocation without reference to others in the same trade; and consanguinity could no more be predicated upon the similarity of name than upon the similarity of occupation.

While in no sense of a martial nature, the Barkers have ever been found in the front rank of the country's defenders, when foreign levy or domestic treason has threatened the stability of our institutions. Every war of the Republic has found numbers of them among its defenders, and none has ever yet brought discredit upon the name he bore.

In the more peaceful paths of civil life the race has been characterized by simplicity of habits, sturdy manhood, and rugged honesty. In every calling the name has been a synonym for sobriety, industry and integrity.

In peace or war, like the Chevalier Bayard, they have ever been sans peur et sans reproche.

THE LINE OF EPHRAIM BARKER,

BARKER, EPHRAIM, came to this country with his brother Richard, at some date prior to 1752. Richard, it appears, "went West," and all trace of him has been lost. Ephraim married Hannah <sup>Grove</sup>~~Grove~~, February 27, 1752. Their children were: William, born November 18, 1753; Hannah, born September 15, 1754; John, born December 18, 1756; Ephraim, born February 28, 1759; Nathan, born June 8, 1761. There were also two other children—Calvin and Dolly, who, there is some reason to believe, were children by a second wife; but the evidence of this is not conclusive.

BARKER, WILLIAM, eldest son of Ephraim and Hannah (Grove) Barker, born Pomfret, Conn., November 18, 1753; died in Madison county, N. Y., where there is evidence a son of his, Ephraim by name, died in the fall of 1887, leaving a daughter, whose married name was Hazzard, residing at Earlville (?) in that county. Patient and persistent research, however, has failed to disclose any further clue to his descendants. He was a soldier in the War of the Revolution, and was in the battles of Lexington and Bunker Hill.

BARKER, HANNAH, daughter of Ephraim and Hannah

(Grove) Barker, born Pomfret, Conn., September 15, 1754. I have no record of her death, marriage or descendants.

BARKER, JOHN, son of Ephraim and Hannah (Grove) Barker, born Pomfret, Conn., December 18, 1756; died Stoddard, N. H., March 15, 1834; married Esther Richardson (born Leominster, Mass., died Stoddard, N. H., July 17, 1806), at Leominster, Mass., July 9, 1786. Their children were: John, born January 24, 1787; William, born October 20, 1788; Franklin, born Leominster, Mass., July 12, 1790, died Stoddard, N. H., April 12, 1799; Sally, born May 23, 1792; Cephas and Cicero, born December 7, 1793; Betsy, born July 4, 1795; Albemarle, born June 13, 1797; Lerenzy and Louise, born Stoddard, N. H., January 16, 1799; Louise died at birth; Lerenzy died at Newton, Mass., July 20, 1845, unmarried; Ephraim, born February 10, 1801; Franklin, born April 11, 1803; Almira, born December 8, 1804; Nathan, born Stoddard, N. H., June 25, 1806; died at the same place July 21, 1806. The second wife of this subject was Mrs. Sally Warren (nee Guild). They were married at Stoddard, N. H., December 2, 1806. Their children were: Samuel Guild, born October 16, 1807; Luman, born July 8, 1809; Mary, born December 2, 1811; Harriet Newell, born January 7, 1819. John Barker served through the War of the Revolution in the Continental army, as private and Orderly Sergeant; he was at the battles of Lexington and Bunker Hill; at Saratoga, when Burgoyne surrendered; he accompanied Benedict Arnold on his expedition to Quebec; he was with General Sullivan in his Indian campaign, and with Colonel Alden, at Cherry Valley, when the latter fell. He lived to see the nation he had helped to create and sustain, rich and prosperous at home, honored and respected abroad, and great in all the elements which constitute the grandeur of nations.

BARKER, EPHRAIM, third son of Ephraim and Hannah (Grove) Barker, born Pomfret, Conn., February 28, 1759. He had a son, Silas G., who was the father of the late Dr. Ephraim Barker, of Londonderry, Vt. This branch of the family is nearly extinct—Mrs. Abbie S. Farnsworth, of Chester Depot,

Vt., a daughter of Dr. Barker, and an only brother, being, I believe, the only surviving representatives. Mrs. Farnsworth writes: "There are but few of our branch now; only one male, who bears the family name, and this is my brother."

BARKER, NATHAN, fourth son of Ephraim and Hannah (Grove) Barker, born Pomfret, Conn., June 8, 1761; married Lydia Barker, November 27, 1783. Their children were: James, born March 5, 1785, died May 6, 1788; Elisha, born December 13, 1786, died unmarried; Calvin, born January 24, 1789; Dolly, born December 3, 1790, died March 29, 1812, unmarried; Roxanna, born December 26, 1792; Nathan, born April 14, 1795; Sitnah, born February 25, 1797; Gilbert, born March 13, 1799; Cyrus Grove, born May 13, 1801; Lydia, born May 2, 1803; William Sedgwick, born June 6, 1807. Nathan was, like his brothers, a soldier in the War for Independence, and the stone which marks his final earthly bivouac bears this inscription:

"A Soldier of the Revolution."

A sublime epitaph. I have not the record of his death nor that of his wife.

BARKER, CALVIN and DOLLY, son and daughter, respectively, of Ephraim and Hannah (Grove) Barker. I have no records bearing upon them. They seem to have been children of a second marriage, but this is not certain. They both married and settled—there is some evidence—in Troy, N. Y., her married name being Mack.

BARKER, JOHN, eldest son of John and Esther (Richardson) Barker, born Leominster, Mass., January 24, 1787; died Stoddard, N. H., March 15, 1834; married Susan Bigelow (born December 17, 1792, died May 14, 1860), of Leominster, Mass., in West Boylston, Mass., January 1, 1815. They had six children, all born in Leominster, Mass., as follows: Mary Jane, born October 6, 1815; George Washington, born March 30, 1817; Dolly Miranda, born February 9, 1819, died Leominster, Mass., December 10, 1841; Julia Ann, born June 12, 1821, died Chelsea, Mass., September, 1872; Frances Louise, born February 11, 1824, married Worcester, Mass., June 1861, died West Boylston, Mass., March, 1867; John Quincy Adams, born September 4, 1826.

BARKER, WILLIAM, son of John and Esther (Richardson) Barker, born Leominster, Mass., October 20, 1788; died Syracuse, N. Y., April 30, 1854; married Phebe Rose, of Onondaga, N. Y. Their children were: William, born Onondaga, N. Y., August, 17, 1814, died Onondaga, January 22, 1815; John William, born March 11, 1816; Cephus Cicero, born January 28, 1818. Phebe Rose died at Onondaga, N. Y. The second wife of this subject was Esther Riggs Orton, of Litchfield, Conn. (born 1797, second daughter of Arunah and Lois (Gibbs) Orton, granddaughter of Samuel Orton and Remembrance Gibbs, and great-granddaughter of Zebulon Gibbs), married Dewitt, N. Y. Their children were: James Morris, born Manlius, N. Y., August 19, 1820; killed in the great gunpowder explosion at Syracuse, N. Y., on the twenty-first anniversary of his birth, August 19, 1841; Phebe Ann, born Manlius, N. Y., August 12, 1823; Lucy Maria, born November 9, 1824; Rachel Hall, born December 16, 1825; Esther Almira, born January 25, 1828; Henry Martyn, born September 23, 1829; Mary, born November 26, 1830; Elizabeth, born September 11, 1835; Adnah, born February 21, 1837; Daniel Webster, born January 14, 1839. Mr. Barker was a man of character and dignity, and prominent in public affairs; the purity of his private life was spotless, and his public life was without blemish. He was a large contractor, and constructed, in whole or in part, many great public works—among them the Erie Canal, of which he built portions. Shortly before his death he took a passive part in the rescue of "Jerry," a fugitive slave, from the United States authorities, who held him under the provisions of the infamous Fugitive Slave Law. The record of this rescue forms the most thrilling chapter in the local history of Syracuse. It was conceived and carried out by the "first citizens" of the city, and their descendants to this day refer with pride to the participation of their fathers in this lawless (?)

proceeding. Mrs. Barker survived her husband many years, dying at Syracuse, N. Y., February 1, 1881, in the eighty-fifth year of her age.

BARKER, CEPHAS, son of John and Esther (Richardson) Barker, born Leominster, Mass., December 7, 1793; died August 10, 1857; married Mary Jewett, of Berkshire, Tioga county, N. Y. (died Berkshire, February 16, 1864), at that place, February 20, 1821. Their children were: George William, born September 11, 1824, died September 13, 1826; Sarah Ann, born July 14, 1826; Almira Jane, born January 30, 1829; George William, born July 5, 1831; Charles Henry, born July 25, 1833.

BARKER, CICERO, son of John and Esther (Richardson) Barker, and twin brother of the preceding subject, born Leominster, Mass., December 7, 1793; died Onondaga East Hill, N. Y., June 22, 1870; married Mary Satterly, of New Windsor, Orange county, N. Y. (born February 20, 1790), near Jamesville, Onondaga county, N. Y., August 19, 1817. Their children were: John Satterly, born November 5, 1818; Esther Louisa, born February 20, 1821; Hannah Nancy, born Berkshire, N. Y., January 16, 1823, died same place September 4, 1826; Mary Ann, born Berkshire, N. Y., October 26, 1825, died same place September 7, 1826; De Witt Clinton, born Berkshire, N. Y., October 27, 1827, died same place March 5, 1828; Benjamin Franklin, born May 10, 1829; William Henry, born July 17, 1831; Mary Ann, born Onondaga, East Hill, N. Y., August 7, 1833, died same place September 9, 1834. Cicero was one of the pioneers of Onondaga county, N. Y. Locating there on his arrival in Central New York, within a year after his marriage he removed to Berkshire, Tioga county, N. Y., where he remained until 1833, when he returned to Onondaga and purchased the farm on East Hill, which is still held by some of his descendants. "He was Captain of Militia while in Berkshire; also, held the offices of Supervisor and Assessor in Onondaga; was a member of the M. E. Church for about fifty years before his death." His widow survived his death many years, dying at the advanced age of ninety-six years.

TYLER, BETSY, daughter of John and Esther (Richardson) Barker, born Leominster, Mass., July 4, 1795; died May 30, 1877; married Moody Tyler. Her descendants are scattered throughout the Western States. Some years ago she had a daughter, Jane Tyler, living in Boise City, Idaho.

BARKER, ALBEMARLE, son of John and Esther (Richardson) Barker, born Stoddard, N. H., June 13, 1797; died Newton Upper Falls, Mass., April 18, 1848; married Abigail A. Francis, of Marblehead, Mass. (born July 17, 1800). Their children were: Albemarle, William Francis, Horace Rice, Abigail Ann, Adelia Sarah, Ellen Amanda, John Francis, Mary Louise.

BARKER, EPHRAIM, son of John and Esther (Richardson) Barker, born Stoddard, N. H., February 10, 1801; died Walpole, N. H., September 13, 1875; married Lydia Vinton (born Granby, Mass., August 27, 1805; died Walpole, N. H., March 17, 1871), September 15, 1825. Their children, all born in Granby, were: Catherine, born January 12, 1827; John Vinton, born July 23, 1828; Ann, born July 19, 1830, died Granby, September, 1834; Sophia Dwight, born February 11, 1833; William Abbot, born January 31, 1835; Horace Rice, born May 6, 1837; Ann Ursula, born March 17, 1840; Ephraim Wilder, born August 6, 1844; Susan Roxanna, born March 28, 1847.

BARKER, FRANKLIN, son of John and Esther (Richardson) Barker, born Stoddard, N. H., April 11, 1803; died Onondaga, N. Y., July 13, 1858; married April 15, 1826, Betsey, daughter of Levi and Polly (Whipple) Blood (born Stoddard, N. H., November 16, 1808; died Lyons, Ia., February 28, 1894). Their children were: Omera M., born January 27, 1827, died June, 1887; William R., born May 20, 1828; Sarah A., born June 16, 1830; Eckford E., born May 30, 1832; died Lyons, Ia., May 1, 1887; Cornelius T., born June 15, 1834; Emeline J., born April 30, 1840, died September 5, 1889; George W., born April 29, 1843; Charles H., born December 31, 1847; Mary E., born February 11, 1851.

RUSSELL, ALMIRA, daughter of John and Esther (Richardson) Barker, born Stoddard, N. H., December 8, 1804; died February 3, 1885; married Daniel Russell (died October 10, 1856) at Leominster, Mass., May 21, 1834. Their children, all born at Newton Lower Falls, Mass., were: Almira B.; born April 6, 1835; Harriet A., born September 19, 1839; Emily C., born August 23, 1841.

BARKER, SAMUEL GUILD, son of John and Sally (Guild-Warren) Barker, born Stoddard, N. H., October 6, 1807; married Sarah Towne, of Marlowe, N. H. (died Onondaga, N. Y., June 9, 1864), at that place, May 18, 1837. Their children were: Samuel (deceased); Ann; Cynthia S. (deceased); Granville; Helen M. The second wife of this subject was Phebe Sears (nee Myers), of South Granby, Oswego county, N. Y., at which place they were married November 29, 1865. Mr. Barker, when I first made his acquaintance, was an octogenarian, but strong and active, in the enjoyment of rugged health and in possession of all his faculties. It is to the excellence of his memory, extending over a period of more than three-quarters of a century, that I am indebted for a vast amount of data, and miscellaneous information on the subject of this work, and it is with pleasure that I take the opportunity of making acknowledgment of the debt I owe to him. He died at Onondaga, N. Y., a few years ago.

BARKER, LUMAN, son of John and Sally (Guild-Warren) Barker, born Stoddard N. H., July 8, 1809. He left home in early life and went to St. Lawrence county, N. Y., where he married and had four children. He afterward moved to Wisconsin, where he again married, and had two children. He was instantly killed at a house-raising at Port Eulo, Wis., April 18, 1859. Since his death all trace of his family has been lost.

FOX, MARY, daughter of John and Sally (Guild-Warren) Barker, born Stoddard, N. H., December 2, 1811; married Eliphelut Fox, of Stoddard, at that place, April 18, 1837. Their children were: Sarah J., born March 9, 1840; George D., born March 26, 1843, died at the battle of Antietam, 1862; Samuel

B., born July 29, 1846; Marianna, born July 19, 1852. Mrs. Fox resides at Southampton, Mass.

WORCESTER, HARRIET NEWELL, daughter of John and Sally (Guild-Warren) Barker, born Stoddard, N. H., January 7, 1819; married — Worcester. Resides Marlborough Depot, Mass.

BARKER, CALVIN, son of Nathan and Lydia (Baker) Barker, born Pomfret, Conn., January 24, 1789; died January 5, 1853; married Lucy Washburn Woodward (died November 6, 1833), November 29, 1825. Their children were: Lucy Ann, born January 10, 1832; Calvin Woodward, born October 21, 1833. The second wife of this subject was Lucy Bliss (died March 3, 1888), of Springfield, Mass.; married April 3, 1836.

RINDGE, ROXANNA, daughter of Nathan and Lydia (Baker) Barker, born December 26, 1792; died June 17, 1884; married Royal Rindge (died February 12, 1878), May 12, 1818. Their children were: Lucius, born November 14, 1826; Henry Alfred, born April 9, 1832.

BARKER, NATHAN, son of Nathan and Lydia (Baker) Barker, born Stafford, Conn., April 14, 1795; died November 18, 1865; married Eunace Austin, of Longmeadow, Mass. (died May 18, 1865), August 1, 1818. Their children were: Maria, born May 3, 1819; Austin, born February 6, 1821; Emily, born June 11, 1823; Adolphus, born June 28, 1827; George Lafayette, born November 30, 1834.

BURR, SITNAH BARKER, daughter of Nathan and Lydia (Baker) Barker, born Pomfret, Conn., February 25, 1797; died July 8, 1870; married Alanson Burr (died November 25, 1823), November 23, 1820. Her second husband was Elisha Burr (died January 16, 1863); married October 9, 1825. Their children were: Harriet Cornelia, born July 3, 1826; Ellen Matilda, born September 8, 1828; George Mallory, born January 20, 1834.

BARKER, GILBERT, son of Nathan and Lydia (Baker) Barker, born Pomfret, Conn., March 13, 1799; died October 2, 1883; married Persis King, of Palmer, Mass. (died June 30, 1887), November 16, 1824. Their children were: John King, born September 26, 1825; George Franklin, born April 12, 1830; Sarah Jane, born May 9, 1832; Maria M., born November 22, 1837.

BARKER, CYRUS GROVE, son of Nathan and Lydia (Baker) Barker, born May 13, 1801; married Eliza King, of Ludlow, Mass., February 2, 1826. Their children were: Mary Jenette, born July 13, 1828; Calvin Fayette, born August 22, 1831, died April 16, 1832; Lydia Jane, born June 13, 1833; John Nathan, born November 11, 1836; died August 27, 1838; Judson Cyrus, born February 17, 1839; George Jerome, born November 6, 1842. The wives of Cyrus G. and the preceding Gilbert were sisters.

HILLS, LYDIA, daughter of Nathan and Lydia (Baker) Barker, born Ashford, Conn., May 2, 1803; died May 23, 1884; married Sylvester Hills, of Palmer, Mass. (died May 26, 1830), August 28, 1828. They had one son—Lyman Sylvester, born May 29, 1829.

BARKER, WILLIAM SEDGWICK, son of Nathan and Lydia (Baker) Barker, born June 6, 1807; died Towanda, Kan., April 5, 1885; married Hersey Knowlton, of Wilbraham, Mass. (died Towanda, Kan., October 12, 1868), March 4, 1830. Their children were: Lybenah, who in early girlhood adopted the name of Lillie, by which she was thenceforth known, born April 18, 1834; Loisetie, born June 13, 1838; died June 26, 1864; William and Wesley E., born August 5, 1842; Sherrod, born September 10, 1844; Delbert Leroy, born February 1, 1846.

BUTLER, MARY JANE, daughter of John and Susan (Bigelow) Barker, born Leominster, Mass., October 6, 1815; died September, 1896.

BARKER, GEORGE WASHINGTON, son of John and Susan (Bigelow) Barker, born Leominster, Mass., March 30, 1817; resides West Boylston, Mass.

BARKER, JOHN QUINCY ADAMS, son of John and Susan (Bigelow) Barker, born September 4, 1826; married Sophia Dwight Barker (q. v.), in Granby, Mass., November 25, 1852. Their children are: Lizzie Sophia, born October 28, 1853; died Fitchburg, Mass., March 5, 1876; Edward Adams, born August 4, 1856; John Ephraim, born June 7, 1861; George Henry, born July 24, 1863; died December 19, 1863. Mr. and Mrs. Barker reside at South Framingham, Mass., and the editor herewith extends to them his thanks for much valuable information rendered to him in the preparation of this work.

BARKER, JOHN WILLIAM, son of William and Phebe (Rose) Barker, born Onondaga, N. Y., March 11, 1816; died Syracuse, N. Y., May 20, 1892; married Elizabeth Jane Filkins, of Syracuse, N. Y., July 20, 1843. She died at Oneida, N. Y., September 20, 1848. His second wife was Mary Caroline Munger, daughter of the late Judge Munger, of Owego, N. Y.; married January 16, 1851. Their children were: Frederick William, born December 3, 1851; Caroline Munger (deceased); Philip Alanson, born March 15, 1857; Gertrude Elizabeth, born March 30, 1860; John Guy, born March 10, 1862; Catherine Townsend, born August 21, 1864; Thomas Rose (deceased); Mary Adelaide, born July 4, 1869. The subject of this sketch was for many years one of the foremost citizens of Syracuse. He served on the Board of Aldermen, in the Board of Supervisors, and as School Commissioner. He was considered one of the most sagacious, as he was one of the most successful business men in the city. No man engaged in the salt industry at Syracuse ever had a larger experience in its manufacture than he. He was considered an authority with reference to it; and on various occasions was called before committees of the Legislature and of Congress to give expert testimony relating to it.

BARKER, CEPHAS CICERO, son of William and Phebe (Rose) Barker, born Onondaga, N. Y., January 28, 1818; died Sault de Ste. Marie, Mich., August 7, 1886; married Mary Elizabeth Crocker, of West Stockbridge, Mass., February 1, 1843. Their children were: Charles Smith, Elizabeth Sophia. He was a prominent contractor and builder in his life time, and constructed many government works of vast magnitude; among those on which he was engaged for many years being the great

BARKER, RACHEL HALL, daughter of William and Esther (Orton) Barker, born Manlius, N. Y., December 16, 1825. Of an affectionate nature and generous to a fault, "Aunt Date," as she was always known, enjoyed the friendship and esteem of all whose privilege it was to know her. Stricken with blindness in the closing years of her life, and afflicted with a painful and incurable malady, she yet bore her afflictions with heroic fortitude to the end. She died at Syracuse, N. Y., April 18, 1882. In this connection it may not be out of place to reproduce from the "Syracuse Evening Journal," of April 20, 1882, the following poem, which was the spontaneous tribute of affection of a lady of the neighborhood in which she lived:

"AUNT DATE."

Did you know her, did you love her?

A strong soul for any fate!

Such a warm and steadfast lover

Of her friends, was dear Aunt Date.

Hear the little children whisper

'Mid the quiet tears they shed:—

"Oh, mamma dear, did you know it;

Did you know Aunt Date was dead?"

All these weary months of suffering
They have asked so tenderly
Of her closest, nearest, dearest—
“Will you tell me, how is she?”

Better, dear ones, ever better,
In the world to which she fled,
Where her loved ones are not dying,
Where no tears will e'er be shed.

Busy hands enforced to quiet,
Loving heart, its care laid down;
Miss thee, yea, but Heaven's fiat
Bade thee come and take thy crown.

Ministers of loving kindness.
Sweet home service deftly wrought,
E'en when stricken down with blindness
Yet she strove with tender thought.

Wise to bear life's heavy crosses,
Patient all the way to tread.
Ye who all the road went with her,
Dare ye grieve that she is dead?

Give her lips a last caressing,
The dear hands that lack their skill;
Thank God for her life of blessing
And her memory with ye still.

Miss Rachel H. Barker, who died April 18, 1882, was almost universally known in our neighborhood as “Aunt Date,” and as universally respected and loved. These lines are the affectionate tribute of an old friend. A. C. M.
