FOREWORD

Augustus C. Golding, who compiled the genealogical facts in this volume, was born in Greenwich, Connecticut, in 1833. He was the son of Ephraim and Caroline (Morehouse) Golding, who, prior to their marriage, were residents of Fairfield, Connecticut. They were descendants of the earliest families of Connecticut and Long Island.

After the Civil War, in which he served three years, Mr. Golding came to Norwalk, and in 1869, married Jeannette Hanford, a daughter of Joseph Platt and Jane (Collins) Hanford.

For considerably over two centuries, the official and social life of Norwalk was closely identified with that of the Hanford family and those other early families of the town with which it became affiliated by marriage. Mr. Golding, through his marriage, and in the several public offices which he held, naturally acquainted himself with Norwalk's history. Genealogical research became his hobby.

Search of records and wide correspondence over a period of years, which lasted until shortly before his death in 1915, enabled him to collect data in some cases to the ninth and tenth generations. He made no effort to learn from whence Thomas Hanford came in England, nor to connect his forebears with the Hanford family of Wollas Hall near Pershore in Worcestershire.

Mr. Golding once remarked that, while it would be interesting to establish relationship with that family, his primary purpose was to compile a genealogy of the Hanford family in America. The facts presented are as gathered and arranged by him. He was most careful in these matters, and it is believed any errors will be those of inadvertence.

To fulfill his ambition that the result of his efforts be perpetuated, and in grateful memory of her parents, this volume is published by one of the daughters of Augustus C. and Jeannette Hanford Golding.

OLD AND NEW STYLE CALENDAR

During the greater part of the American Colonial period, the year began March 25th and ended March 24th, and so remained until 1752, when it was abolished by an act of the Parliament of Great Britain. Other European countries had ceased to adhere to the Julian or old style calendar at an earlier date.

From 1607 to 1752 double dating was a common practice between January 1st and March 24th, which caused some confusion.

REFERENCES

Reference has not always been made to a particular authority in confirmation of a statement.

METHOD OF ENUMERATION

The number immediately after the name (1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7) indicates the generation. Other numbers, before or after the name, identify the individual.

The record of the birth of the individual appears under the heading of his generation; his marriage and children are given under the heading of the succeeding generation.

For illustration: the birth of Thomas Hanford, son of Rev. Thomas, appears thus under the Heading SECOND GENERATION "6. Thomas 2 born July 18, 1668". In the THIRD GENERATION, he appears under a sub-heading "Thomas Hanford 2 (6) m. Hannah Burwell", and the list of his children follows.

TOWNS AND LOCALITIES

When a locality is mentioned, but not the town, the author refers to the town of Norwalk, Connecticut.

When a town is mentioned, but no reference is made to the State, the reader will understand the town is in Connecticut.

FIRST GENERATION

The immigrant ancestor, Thomas Hanford, is known to have come to New England as early as 1643. His name stands next to that of Mr. Charles Chauncey of Scituate that year in the "List of all who are able to bear arms in the New Plymouth Colony", and in the same year he witnessed the will of his brother-in-law, Edward Foster. It is believed he completed his studies with the Rev. Charles Chauncey, afterwards second President of Harvard.

Cotton Mather, in his "Magnalia" mentions him as of that class of "Young Scholars, whose education for their designed Ministry, not being finished, yet came over from England with their Friends, and had their education perfected in this Country before the College was come into Maturity enough to bestow its Laurels." Persecution of Puritan clergymen and their adherents during this period, forced many to embark secretly from their native England. Thomas Hanford may well have been one of these, for there is no record of the ship in which he came, nor of the date. He probably landed at Boston.

The mother of Thomas Hanford, was Eglin Hatherly,* a sister of the venerable Timothy Hatherly of Barnstable, in Devonshire, England, and a London merchant.

The various enterprises of Timothy Hatherly are elsewhere recorded in the history of Scituate, Massachusetts, of which he was a founder. His will mentions Thomas Hanford.

Eglin Hanford, widow, aged forty-six, and her two daughters, Margaret, sixteen years, and Elizabeth, fourteen years, embarked, April 10, 1635, on the "Planter", Mr. Trarice, Master, bound for New England.

*Found among the notes of the author and given here for the benefit of those who may be interested:

The New England Genealogical Register for Jan. 1898, makes it almost certain that Elinor Mortimer, alias Tanner, widow of William of Fremington, Devonshire (3 mi. West of Barnstable) was, by a former husband, the mother of Timothy Hatherly and Eglin Hanford.

The will of Ellinor Mortimore, alias Tanner, was proved at Barnstable (Barnstable) 30 Aug. 1637. In the will she makes bequests to "son Tymothy Hatherly" and "Daughter Eglin Hanver" (Hanford).

Hanford is a name widely distributed in Devonshire. The Widow Eglin Downe and Jeffrey Hanford were married 31 March, 1611 at Fremington.

Descendants of Rev. Thomas Hanford

Timothy Hatherly deeded to his sister, Eglin Hanford, "5 acres of land in Scituate on the North side of Stoney Brook, the 3 lot from the Brook, bounded on the East with the common path which leads from the Brook to the harbor mouth, on the South by land of Richard Sillis, west with common drift path, North by land of Gavin White".

The widow Eglin Hanford married, Dec. 15, 1637, Deacon Richard Sealis of Scituate, who mentions in his will, Eglin Hanford, the daughter of his wife.

Margaret Hanford married Isaac Robinson, son of Rev. John Robinson of Leyden. Isaac Robinson was made freeman in 1633 and removed to Barnstable, Massachusetts in 1639.

Elizabeth (Lettice?) Hanford married Edward Foster.

In the year 1650, Thomas Hanford was made freeman in Massachusetts, and prior to that, is known to have been a teacher in Roxbury, Massachusetts.

The following from the Proprietors' Records of New Haven, 1649-1662, will account for his occupation several months before he came to Norwalk:

Oct. 29, 1651: "The secretary was desired to speak with Mr. Good-year to use some means to bring the school-master hither, who, they hear, is coming, but wants transportation."

Nov. 14, 1651: "the governor acquainted the court that now the school-master is come, and some course must be taken to provide for his lodging and diet; and to repair the school-house; and consider what the town will allow him a year; and what his work shall be; therefore it is necessary a committee should be chosen to treat with him. The court considered of the motion, and chose the ruling elder, the four deputies, and the treasurer, as a committee to treat with him and provide for him; and declared that they are willing to allow him £30 a year out of the treasury or any greater sum as they can agree, not exceeding £40, and that his work should be to perfect male children in the English after they can read in their Testament or Bible, and to learn them to write, and to bring them on to Latin as they are capable, and desire to proceed therein."

Nov. 17, 1651: "The committee appointed at the last court to treat and agree with the school-master, acquainted the court with what they had done, viz., that he propounded to have £20 a year and the town to pay for his chamber and diet (which they have agreed with Mr. Atwater for, for five shillings per week); that the town pay toward his charges for coming hither thirty shillings; that he have liberty once a year to go to see his friends, which we propounded to be in harvest time; that his pay be good, and some of it such as wherewith he may buy books and defray charges in his travel; that if he be called away (not to the same work, but to some other employment which may be for the honor of Christ) he may have liberty. And for this he will teach the children of this town (having the benefit of strangers to himself) after they are entered and can read in the Testament; to perfect them in English; and teach them their Latin tongue as they are capable; and to write. After consideration the town voted to accept the terms propounded."

When Mr. Hanford had taught about four months:—"The governor acquainted the court that he hears the school-master is somewhat discouraged, because he hath so many English scholars which he must learn to spell, which was never the town's mind, as appeared in the order which was now read. And it was now ordered that the school-master shall send back such scholars as he sees does not answer the first agreement with him, and that parents of such children were desired not to send them."

June 17, 1652: "The Governor informed the court that one of Norwalk had been with him to desire liberty for Mr. Hanford's remove to be helpful to that plantation in the work of the ministry: also Mr. Hanford himself, who saith he finds his body unable, and that it will not stand with his health to go on in his work of teaching school, and therefore desires liberty to take his opportunity, which liberty he did reserve when he agreed with the town; the record of which agreement being read, it so appeared. Therefore, if his mind was so set, they could not hinder him, but a convenient time of warning was desired, which he granted, if it was a month or two."

From the foregoing it should not be understood that Mr. Hanford was in feeble health. The population of New Haven at that time was some eight hundred people, and teaching their children of all ages was undoubtedly arduous. His successor complained that he was troubled with so many children sent to him to learn their letters and to spell, that others, for whom the school was chiefly intended as Latin scholars, were neglected.

It is probable that Thomas Hanford came to Norwalk in the Summer of 1652, and at once commenced the work of the ministry in the church gathered in that year. The table of grants of homelots to the first settlers in 1652, shows there was set to "Mr. Thomas Hanford, 4 acres, Bounded East by Town's highway, west by John Bowten's home-lot, North by Town's highway, south by John Ruscoe's home-lot."

On December the 18th, 1653 it was agreed by the Townsmen about Mstr. Hanford's house, which was to be twenty-six feet in length and sixteen feet in breadth, but upon further consideration, the frame was to be thirty-one feet in length and eighteen feet in breadth.

In the following year, 1654, he was ordained, and at a Court of Election held at Hartford, on the 18th day of May, 1654, among the names of those who were "Mayde free" was that of "Thom: Hanford" of "Norwack".

At a meeting of the inhabitants of Norwalk, (1656), his rate was fixed "for the ensuing year at three score pounds to be paid 30 pounds in wheat and pease and barley, at 4 shillings per bushel for wheat and barley, and for pease 3 shillings per bushel, 22 pounds in beefe, and porke at the common current price which it brings when due, and the other 8 pounds in"

On the 3rd of January, 1659, the inhabitants voted to build a meeting house thirty feet by eighteen feet, to be set on posts in the ground twelve feet in length, and at a town meeting held November 17th, 1670, it was voted and agreed "that there shall be a man or men hired to make a comely and convenient cover over Mr. Hanford's desk in the meeting house at the town's charge."

This first meeting house served for twenty years and then was built a structure forty feet by forty feet; sixteen feet between joists, the roof to be built after the manner of the Fairfield meeting house.

In the Colonial Records, it appears that a session of the General Assembly at Hartford, held October 8th, 1663, appointed Mr. Jones, Mr. Hanford and Mr. Wakeman, to have a hearing of the difference between the Church of Christ at Stratford and one John Thompson, "and to advise them to the best means for an issue thereof."

First Generation

The town had been settled for twenty-eight years before there is mention of a school or a teacher. A generation had grown up in that time and probably some had children old enough to attend school. We will not suppose that they had grown up in ignorance, for many of them were afterward prominent in the town and State. It is believed that Mr. Hanford taught the children in his own or some other house till his age incapacitated him. It is to be regretted that the church records in his hand and of his two successors were later lost or destroyed.

On October 8, 1674, the General Court at Hartford, granted Thomas Hanford two hundred acres of land. Several grants were made by the town to the inhabitants from 1670-1690. Each individual's grants are found recorded together; for instance, after the record of Mr. Hanford's homelot, appear several parcels granted to him, and to illustrate the quaint designations of that day their description follows:

"Acres	Roods
10	2	at Pine Hill and Soakatuck Plaine
6	0	in the Neck
5	1	Neck and Fruitful Spring
4	2	Coast Division
1	0	Planting Field
1	0	Meadow
2	2	Meadow Field
2	1	Other side of the River
5	0	Meadow at Barren Marsh
4	2	Upland Plain of the Meadows
0	0	Outmeadow
6	0	Neck Planting Field
35	0	Saukatuck Hill
6	3	Indian Field
4	0	Rayle Hill;"

In 1686 Mr. Hanford was mentioned as a patentee in the Patent taken by the Township of Norwalk for its various grants of land, pursuant to an order of the General Court at Hartford.

A deed of Winnipauk, Indian Sagamore of Norwalk, wherein he freely gives to his beloved friend, Thomas Hanford, senior, Minister of Norwalk, his island of land lying against Rowerton, etc., is recorded in the Norwalk Land Records, Vol. VII, page

313 and signifies that Thomas Hanford was held in regard by the Indian inhabitants.

Words which reveal veneration and even affection for an aging leader by a people of a race and of a generation little given to praise, are found in the records of the town of Norwalk under date of March 25, 1686/7 wherein "the towne by vote, manifest and declare that they doe desire Mr. Hanford to proceed in the worke of the ministry, and therein to continue in the sayd work untill the Lord by his providence shall dispose of him otherwise;—promising to indeavor to our ability to give him due incouragement."

Thus in dwelling house and two meeting houses, Thomas Hanford filled his office of spiritual guide to the people of Norwalk, from 1652 till his death, which probably took place in December, 1693.

The place of his burial is believed to be beneath the brownstone parallelogram in the ancient burying ground in East Norwalk, but all inscription has been effaced by the lapse of time.

His descendants have identified themselves with the development of the United States, and their names may be found from coast to coast. Some loyal to England in the American Revolution, went to Canada, where they and their descendants have preserved a degree of integrity and attainment, not less than their cousins the other side of the border.

SECOND GENERATION

Thomas Hanford (1) married, 1652, Hanna Newberry, dau. of Thomas of Dorchester, Mass. No children are heard of.

He married 2nd at New Haven, October 22, 1661, Mary Ince, widow of Jonathan Ince and dau. of Richard Miles.

The Rev. Thomas Hanford probably died in December, 1693. The heirs applied for administration on the estate Jan. 23, 1693/4. Administrators:—widow, Eleazor and son-in-law, John Edwards. Inventory filed March 13, 1693, £685-7s-5d, widow and Eleazor administrators. They were discharged from the trust Dec. 6, 1710. Additional inventory presented April 4, 1711 by Thomas Hanford. In the distribution of the estate the second son, Thomas, received as the eldest son a double portion: Theophilus is said to have gone to parts unknown.

According to the manuscripts of the Rev. Moses Dickenson (vide Trumbull's History of Connecticut, Mrs. Mary Hanford, widow of Rev. Thomas Hanford, died Sept. 12, 1730, aged one hundred years. The last mention of Mrs. Hanford on the records is at a Town Meeting held June 3, 1723. After appointing a committee to seat the new Meeting House, they voted Mrs. Hanford into the pew with Mrs. Buckingham.

In book 6, page 10, land records of Norwalk, is recorded the distribution of the dower of Mrs. Hanford and there is nothing said of her consent being given or that she was alive at that time—January 26, 1722-23. The above was left for record November 19, 1725.

THIRD GENERATION

THEOPHILUS HANFORD 2 (2)

He bought the home lot of Judah Gregory of Paquiage (Danbury) Dec. 27, 1684 with the houses and fences. The Rev. C. M. Selleck now lives on this lot (1896). Theophilus left Norwalk before the death of his father. On the Probate Records, it says "whether living or dead, not known." His estate was distributed in 1705, the inventory being filed June 29, 1705, amount £204-0s-0d. Thomas had the homestead and probably lived there until his death.

Richard Hanford was a captain and vessel owner on the Hudson River. He came from Connecticut and settled in Lansingburgh, N. Y., at a time when it was one of the important places on the river for country produce of all descriptions requiring the employment of a large number of vessels in the freighting business in this and the lumber trade. He embarked, owning two of the largest vessels on the river, the Royal Oak and the Hope, one of which he commanded and he continued in this line till the advent of canals and railroads turned the business in other directions. He then sold out and engaged in mercantile business.

He lived greatly respected by all that knew him. He died June 5, 1844; his widow died April 11, 1857.

The compiler of this remembers the Royal Oak. She was fitted up for passengers and had a brick fireplace in the cabin,—the only one he ever saw or heard of. She was broken up at Cos Cob, Conn., in the Winter of 1845-6.
