FIRST ENG. LUTHERAN CHURCH.

INTRODUCTION.

The necessity of an English Lutheran Church in this city was deeply felt for some years before the first was actually established. It was a subject of anxious thought and deliberation among many friends of the cause, and on the 27th of October, 1823, the first regular meeting for business was held at the house of David Bixler in Howard St. This meeting was attended by David Bixler, John Reese, Thomas Henning, Michael Klinefelter, George Stonebraker, Joshua Medtart, Jacob Deems, and Frederick Seyler, only one of whom is living at the present time. They came together with a determined will to carry out their purpose, and in their laudable enterprise they had the sympathies and prayers of not a few energetic ladies. A subscription paper was drawn up and two days after, another meeting for further consultation was held, and a resolution passed to inform the Synod of the project in contemplation, at the same time requesting that body to appoint ministers to preach in succession. A committee to collect funds was appointed as well as to address a letter to the vestry of the German Lutheran Church, soliciting aid in the erection of a house of worship.

It does not appear that any minister visited them until August, 1824, when the Rev. Mr. Krauth, then of Martinsburg, Va., complied with their urgent request and spent several days among them. At a meeting held, August 30, 1824, which Mr. Krauth attended, measures towards a permanent organization were taken, and a committee was appointed to rent a room in which to hold religious service. Day now began to dawn. A room was soon secured, and though it was an humble place, hope revived in the hearts of these devoted children of the church. This room, which was occupied by a school during the week, was situated on the East side of Howard Street, near the corner, north of Pratt. About the same time, measures were taken to secure a lot on which to erect a permanent house of worship. During this time, for a period of seven or eight months, the little flock enjoyed the pastoral services of the Rev. Jacob Medtart.

INTRODUCTION.

In the mean time, the lot on which the church stands was secured, and active preparations were made to build. In the fall of 1825, the cornerstone was laid, on which occasion the sermon was delivered by the Rev. D. F. Schæffer of Fredericktown, who was assisted in the other solemnities by several other ministers.

After Mr. Medtart resigned, various clergymen from other places, and from the city were invited to preach.

On the 28th of May, 1826, the new house of worship was consecrated. The sermon was preached by the Rev Dr. Endress of Lancaster. It was a day of pious rejoicing and thanksgiving, and the people said with Solomon, 1. Kings, 8. 13, "We have built thee an house to dwell in—a settled place for thee to abide in for ever."

On the 16th of July, 1826, the Rev. William

Jenkins, a licentiate of the Synod of North Carolina, was elected pastor, but difficulties occurred which prevented his acceptance of the call. This created new perplexity, and for awhile the people were disheartened. They looked around and lighted on their present minister, who was then a young student at Gettysburg, without experience or knowledge of the world. With fear and trembling, and only on the advice and urgent persuasion of older brethren, he accepted the invitation to preach, and on Sunday, December 17, 1826, he preached his first sermon as a visiting minister. On Thursday night after, he preached again, and at a meeting of the congregation held after service, he was elected pastor. After much deliberation, he accepted the call, and on Sunday, February 3, 1827, he preached his first sermon as pastor of the church, from the words, Acts x: 29. "I ask therefore for what intent ye have sent for me?" On the 3d of June of the same year, the first celebration of the Lord's Supper was held, and as it may be a matter of interest to some, the names of the Communicants are here given.

Andrew Walter, David Bixler, John Reese, Anthony Groverman, Erasmus Uhler, Frederick Seyler, John Brown, Joseph Clark, David Martin, William Ross, John Schriver, Abel D. Chase, T. Sederborg, Jesse Reifsnyder, John S. Bridges, Augustus Hack, William Hack, Garrett Altvater, Magdalena Bixler, Elizabeth Wehrly, Catharine Uhler, Ellen Brown, Catharine Martin, Rochena Utz, Ann Wampler, Margaret Bauer, Rachel Waltemeyer, Elizabeth Miller, Elizabeth Bruner, Mrs. Moal, Mrs. Deems, Miss Elizabeth Brien, Mary Deems, Mary Bixler, Ann Simpson, Isabella Altvater.

A Sunday-school was organized soon after the settlement of the minister, and various other church societies were formed. The congregation gradually increased, and we were greatly encouraged.

In 1830, the first organ for the church was purchased, and in the same year the parsonage was built.

In 1832, it was found necessary to enlarge the church, and nearly $1000 were subscribed for the erection of galleries, but at a subsequent meeting, June 25th, it was resolved to extend the building towards the street, which was accomplished at considerable expense, and forty pews were added to the capacity of the building. At the same time, the present Lecture-room was excavated and furnished. Before that, we held our weekly Lectures and Sunday-school in the church and afterwards, until the present room was finished, the Sunday-school and other extra meetings were held in the room immediately behind the church, which was erected for that special purpose.

These improvements greatly increased the debt of the church. Money was borrowed to meet present liabilities, and effectual measures were adopted to pay the amount.

One measure pursued was the establishment of a Sinking Fund, which was vigorously conducted by the young men, which produced the first year $976,02; the second year $969, and in two years and a half they raised $2580. This, of course, did not include the larger subscriptions of the members. In addition to all, $325 were realized from a concert of sacred music given in the church.

About this time also, the council with the advice of a majority of the congregation raised the price of the pews excepting in the case of widows, who retained their pews at the old prices.

The efforts of the ladies in raising funds for the church should not be overlooked. They on several occasions, relieved the treasury by timely contributions, and besides this, displayed their interest in the church, by the purchase of lamps and furnishing the pulpit.

Most of the additional pews were rented as soon as the house was finished, and have continued to be occupied, for the most part, to the present day.

Gas was introduced into the church in 1838.

In 1839, an unusual religious interest was felt in many churches of this city, and during that year eighty persons joined our communion. Some have removed—some belong to other Lutheran churches in this city—some have not remained faithful to their vows—some have died—and some continue with us to this day.

Nothing of special religious interest occurred for several years, though the services were well attended, and the number of communicants gradually increasing.

A considerable degree of anxiety was beginning to be felt from another quarter. Notwithstanding the liberal contributions of the church for the preceding five or six years, the actual debt was increasing. Besides the annual ground-rent of $300, the debt now amounted to nearly $9,000. In 1845 a congregational meeting was called, the gratifying result of which was that before the expiration of two years, the larger portion of this debt was paid. So great was the relief extended, that the council passed a resolution of thanks to the congregation for their liberality.

In 1848, the church was frescoed, and a part newly painted at an expense of over $600. New chandeliers were also purchased.

In 1850, a debt of $2,053,75 was paid by subscription, which was another instance of the liberality of the congregation.

In 1851, the Lecture-room was furnished with new settees, and the aisles were carpeted.

In 1854, the ladies of the congregation undertook to raise funds for the purpose of improving the front of the church, and a committee of gentlemen was appointed to co-operate with them, which work was satisfactorily accomplished during the year; the church was closed for several months whilst these repairs were going on, but divine service was held nearly all the time in the Lecture-room.

In February, 1857, on the 30th anniversary of the Pastor's settlement, a subscription of $1500 was made towards putting a new roof on the church, and for other necessary repairs.

In 1858, the new organ was purchased at the price of $1500, which amount was raised by the laudable energy of several of our young men.

Two legacies have been left to the church, one of $500 by the late William Wehrly in 1849, which has been properly appropriated, and another of $1000 by the late Frederick Seyler in 1857, which is not yet due.

Including the cost of the original building, the alterations and repairs, the erection of the parsonage, ground-rents, subscriptions, donations to benevolent societies, and general support of public worship, it is estimated that $75,000 have been expended by this congregation since its organization 32 years ago.

The pastor has baptized 1204 infants and adults. Confirmed 458; buried 217 infants and 270 adults; administered the Lord's Supper publicly 128 times; married 508 couples; delivered over 4000 sermons. During 32 years service, he has not been prevented from preaching by sickness in a single instance.
