OLD TOWN BURYING GROUND.

View from the corner of South and Liberty Streets—1898.

The Historical Society of Newburgh Bay and the Highlands, desirous of preserving the inscriptions in the Old Town Burying Ground, appointed the following committee to procure and publish the same in permanent form. To the cordial co-operation of the President of the Society, Rev. Rufus Emery, who has made a complete record of the inscriptions, and to Mr. E. M. Ruttenber, who has added valuable annotations, the Committee and Society are greatly indebted.

Plan of the Old Town Burying Ground by Sections.

A RECORD
OF THE INSCRIPTIONS
IN THE
OF
NEWBURGH, N. Y.

PUBLISHED BY THE
HISTORICAL SOCIETY OF
NEWBURGH BAY AND THE HIGHLANDS.

NEWBURGH, N. Y.,
1898.

The enumeration of inscriptions in this Record has been made according to the following plan: The ground is divided naturally into five Sections, which are named the North, the Middle North, the Middle South, the South and the West Sections. For convenience of indexing, the North Section is called No. I; the Middle North, No. II; the Middle South, No. III; the South, No. IV; the West, No. V.

It was contemplated arranging the inscriptions according to family lots, but on careful examination it was found that the bounds of a large number of lots were too defective for accurate description; consequently the enumeration has been made in each Section following the rows of stones, beginning at the West numbering them as they stand, from North to South in each Section. The index of names will show the location of family burials.

The figures enclosed in brackets refer to the annotation in the appendix.

North Section, or No. I.

He hath gone to the place of his rest,
He is safe in the home of his God.
And we who have lov'd, forsaken, oppressed,
Submissive bow to the rod.
Though his accents can cheer us no more, his Love yet may speak from the grave, and
Then on the broad wing of faith, may we
Soar to the one who is mighty to save.

Like a watchman and weary sentinel.
To put his armour off and rest in Heaven.

148.

JANE, wife of William HOYLE, died Dec. 1st, 1847, in the 70th year of her age.

Farewell, no more I tread your ground,
No more to need the gospel sound;
My feet have reached the heavenly shore.
I know no imperfection more.
Let friends no more my sufferings mourn,
Nor view my relicks with concern,
Or cause to drop the pitying tear,
I've got beyond the reach of fear.
Through tribulation sharp and long,
I'm brought to join the sinless throng.
Glory to God for every woe,
For every pain I felt below.

STEPHEN, son of William and Jane HOYLE, born May 21, 1816, died March 7, 1849.

JANE HOYLE, daughter of William and Jane Hoyle, born Jan. 18, 1800, in the town of Lancaster, England, and died the 8 Sept., 1835, at Newburgh.

Jesus, Saviour of my soul,
Let me to thy bosom fly,
While the waves of trouble roll,
While the tempest still is high;
Hide me, O my Saviour, hide,
Till the storms of life are past,
Safe into thy bosom guide;
O receive my soul at last.

Here lies a Husband and his wife,
Who lived a pious Christian life.
Natives of Scotland both they were,
And now they rest from grief & care.
They fell together and together lie,
Forgot without posterity.
Yet we hope with joy they'll rise,
To meet their Saviour in the skies.

275.

The grave of JOHN CURRIE, a native of Scotland, who emigrated to this Country, A. D., 1791, and entered into his rest July, 1838, aged 75 years. 277.

In memory of HUGH WALSH, who died on the 15th of Nov., A. D., 1817, aged 72 years.

Among the first inhabitants of the village of Newburgh, he took an early and decided stand on the side of truth and religion. His example and influence contributed in no small degree to its present state of religious improvement and gospel privileges. In him private excellence of character was associated with public usefulness and liberality. As a man, a citizen, a friend, a parent, and a christian, his record is on high, and it is not doubted by those who knew him, that it gives his memory rank among the excellent of the earth. Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord: they rest from their labor and their works do follow them.

This day the dying youth complies
With his Creator's will;
How vain the world, how vain he cries,
When we must take farewell.
It must be vain, since all its wealth,
However fools admire,
Cannot procure a moment's health,
Though rich, we must expire.

294.

416.

Lord, what is life? t'is like a flower
That blossoms and is gone;
We see it flourish for an hour,
With all its beauties on;
But death comes like a wintry day,
And cuts the lovely flower away.

Thus was cut down in the prime of life, and in the enjoyment of all those blessings, which make life happy,

MARY, Wife of Azel S. ROE, and daughter of Jas. and Ann WALKER, of New York. She died at New Burgh on the 27th day of August, 1821, aged 25 years, 8 months and 9 days.

Her benevolent heart, directed by an intelligent mind and sustained by the Grace of God, had already begun to distinguish her path and afford rich promise of things in fulness, when God, in his infinite wisdom, did call her away and lay the fond hopes of Friends and Relatives in the silent tomb.

417.

In memory of JANE, wife of Azel S. ROE, and daughter of James and Ann WALKER, of New York. She died on the 22d Dec., 1826, aged 21 years, 7 m's & 25 days.

Leaving to surviving friends the blessed hope, that her sufferings ended with her parting breath, & her spirit dwelt with that Saviour whom in life she loved.

Rest, youthful sufferer, sweetly rest,
 Low in your quiet bed;
 Tho' once with pain & fears distressed,
 Now pain & fears are fled.
 Life & its pleasing dreams are gone,
 Vanished the vision bright,
 Like summer gentle cloud it shone,
 Then melted from your sight.
 In vain affections tender care,
 To ward the fatal blow.
 Death had his charge & could not spare,
 And laid our fond hopes low.

418.

So Jesus Slept: God's dying son
Passed through the grave & blest the tomb.
Rest here, sweet babe, till from his throne,
The morning break and pierce the gloom;
Then cease, fond nature, cease the tears,
T'is the Redeemer points on high,
There everlasting spring appears,
And joys celestial never die.

Hear what the voice from heaven proclaims,
 For all the pious dead:
 Sweet is the memory of their names
 And soft their sleeping bed.
 They die in Jesus and are bless'd,
 How kind their slumbers are;
 From suffering and from sin redeem'd,
 And freed from every snare.
 Far from the world of toil and strife,
 They're present with the Lord,
 The labors of their life
 Ends in a large reward.

Beneath this stone in sweet repose
Is laid a mother's dearest pride,
A flower that scarce waked to life
And light and beauty ere it died.
God, in his wisdom has recalled,
The precious boon his love had given,
And though the casket moulders here,
The gem is sparkling now in Heaven.

See the gentle Shepherd stand
With all engaging charms,
Hark! how he calls the tender lambs
And folds them in his arms.
Permit them to approach, he cries,
Nor scorn their humble name.
For t'was to bless such as these
The Lord of angels came.

Though o'er thy fragil form the dust is thrown,
 Thy image live enshrined within our hearts,
 And those true virtues, which so brightly shone,
 In sweet remembrance still some light imparts;
 But, ah, 'tis all thou hast, Oh! death to claim,
 The spirit hast escaped thy chilling power;
 Thrown off its weight of earthliness to gain
 A crown of life, and dwell in heaven's own bower.

Be still and know that i am God,
 And humbly bow beneath His rod,
 And saying, with faith in Jesus blood,
 "Thy will be done."
 Though clouds and darkness round thee lower,
 Remember his Almighty power,
 And say in sorrow's trying hour,
 "Thy will be done."
 And when on earth our days are o'er,
 We'll meet the "Loved Ones" gone before:
 Wherever on that peaceful shore
 His will is done.

How blest the righteous when he dies,
 When sinks a weary soul to rest,
 How mildly beams the closing eyes,
 How gently heaves the expiring breast.
 A holy quiet reigns around,
 A calm which life nor death destroys,
 Nothing disturbs that peace profound,
 Which his unfettered soul enjoys.

Also, SUSIE L., Only daughter of William and Martha MAXWELL, died August 7, 1868, aged 1 year, 9 mo's & 23 days.

Alas, how changed that lovely flower,
 Which bloomed and cheered our hearts;
 Fair, fleeting comfort of an hour,
 How soon we're called to part.

He was a firm friend to his country in her darkest times, a zealous supporter of American liberty, A kind and affectionate husband, a tender and indulgent father. For about two years before his death he became a bright example of real piety, and died in the faith of the Lord Jesus Christ.

A flower, a vapor, a shade, a span,
Serve to illustrate the frail life of man;
And they who longest live survive to see
The certainty of death, of life the vanity.

How loved, how valued once avails thee not,
To whom related or by whom begot;
A heap of dust alone remains of thee,
'Tis all thou art and the proud shall be.
Time was like thee I life possessed,
And Time shall be when thou shalt rest,
For when this fleeting life is o'er,
Man dies to live and lives to die no more.

“And I heard a voice saying unto me, Blessed are the dead that die in the Lord, for they shall rest from their labors and their works shall follow them.” Rev. 11: 5.

Is there a man of knowledge clear,
Could others teach the course to steer,
Yet run himself life's mad career,
Wild as the wave.
Then pause & with a starting tear,
Survey this grave.
The poor inhabitant below,
Was quick to learn & wise to know;
He keenly felt life's social glow,
And sacred flame.
Yet thoughtless follies laid him low,
And stained his name.

Sleep, little sisters, side by side,
No chance, no change can now divide,
Together in the dust you lie,
Together tread the courts on high.
If once the eye of faith could see,
Your full complete felicity,
Then would our sad repinings cease,
And all our sighs be hushed in peace.

122.

Here was deposited all that was mortal of ABIGAIL FOSTER, wife of Luther HALSEY. She died Nov. 26th, 1821, aged 57 years. [121]

When cares and woes around us were arrayed,
A Wife she lent her sympathy and aid.
When round our youthful feet were spread life's snares,
She gave a Mother's guiding word and prayers.
A cov'nant interest in the Lord, her trust,
Her fair example & her precious dust,
Are all she's left—'tis much; when life declines,
Mother and Wife, such legacy be thine.

123.

Sacred to the memory of ISAAC W. HALSEY, who was killed by the fall from a tree, 6th July, 1820, aged 14 years, 9 months and 15 days.

My coffin echoes! there's a footstep nigh,
Stranger, I crave a thought & not a sigh.
Health beamed with cheerful lustre in my eye.
My turn was come, no friendly warning given.
Snatch'd quick as thought to meet the Judge on high
I went. How near art thou to hell or heaven?

124.

126.

In Memory of ROBERT, Son of Alexander and Eliza Ann GILCRIST, who died June 10th, 1822, Aged 2 years & 3 months.

The rose is nipt just in its bloom,
And now hath found an early tomb.
That tenth of June we lost our boy,
And certainly his parent's joy.
Five weeks he lay in anguish sore,
And inflammation did endure;
His spirit then went to his God,
And left him here a breathless clod.

127.

Erected in the memory of ELIZA ANN, wife of Alex. GILCRIST, who died June 7th, 1840, in the 44th year of her age. Also, her four children, ROBERT, NANCY, ANN & WILLIAM. [122]

Appendix.

Annotations.

(1.) Alexander Falls was grandson of Alexander Falls, a native of Ireland, who settled in Little Britain, Orange Co., 1729-30. He was a merchant in Newburgh for many years, in which connection his name is met in 1799. He was thrice married. By his wife Margaret he had sons: George, whose monument is noted, and who died unmarried; Edward; the late Hiram and Alexander, who were merchants in Newburgh and died without issue, and William H. His third wife was Fanny Belknap, who died in Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 1st, 1877, and was buried in Goodwill Cemetery, Montgomery. William H. Falls removed to New York, where he was President of the Tradesman's Bank. He left issue, two sons and two daughters.

(2.) Matthew Duke, husband of the deceased, born April 10, 1791, died August 30, 1861, is buried by her side.

(3.) Michael Nestell was a son of Michael Nestell, an officer of the army of the Revolution, who settled in Newburgh after the war, and against whom action was brought to test the rights of the Episcopal Church in and to the Glebe, 1806. Esther S., Susan (ages unknown) and Eliza, aged 64 yrs. 5 mo. 8 d's., Harriet Underhill, aged 56 years, daughters of Michael and Elizabeth Nestell, are buried near their father, Michael Nestell. Lucretia, their eldest daughter, is buried by the side of David M. Dubois in Section III, No. 343.

(4.) William Lisle was Chief Engineer of the Newburgh Fire Department.

(5.) Members of the family, or connected therewith by marriage, of the late Adam Lilburn, of Haverstraw.

(6.) Rev. George Phippen was Pastor of the First Baptist Church.

(7.) Capt. Samuel Johnson of the steamers "Highlander" and "Thomas Powell"

(8.) Joseph Simpson was for a number of years a bookseller and stationer in Newburgh. Two daughters survive, Mrs. A. Y. Weller and Mrs. M. J. Scott.

(9.) A brother of the late Senator Edward M. Madden.

(10.) William S. and Cornelius O. Madden were brothers of the late Senator Edward M. Madden of Middletown. William S. was a painter, and Cornelius O. was a printer, and a young man of excellent character.

(11.) Father of Asa and Robert Sterling, the latter Mayor of the city at the time of his death. He was a merchant-tailor and dealer in clothing.

(12.) Mother of Mrs. Samuel E. Dimmick and a most excellent woman.

(13.) J. M. Krebs was a distinguished minister of the Presbyterian Church, graduate of Dickenson College and Princeton Theological Seminary, Pastor of the Rutgers Street Presbyterian Church, N. Y. City, from 1829, to the time of his death; President of Princeton Seminary from 1865 to his death; author of various sermons and religious works. (R. E.)

(14.) Mr. Buckingham was an active resident of Newburgh and Chief Engineer of the Fire Department.

(15.) Edward Hubbard, a Hudson river pilot, serving on the Thomas Powell and other steamers, rests by the side of his wife, his grave being unmarked.

(16.) John Quaid was the founder of the present families of that name in Newburgh. He was for many years a grocer, and a man of honorable reputation.

(17.) Elijah L. Woolsey was for many years Captain of the sloop "Illinois."

(18.) Gershom Halstead was the father of Asa, Whitehead, James and Charles Halstead, the latter for many years connected with the freighting business, in later years as a member of the firm of B. Carpenter & Co., serving as captain of the steamer "James Madison," and barge "Minisink." His monument will be met later. Asa Halstead was captain of packet sloops "Belinda," "Cashier," "Improvement," and "Illinois," and Whitehead Halstead of the sloops "Franklin," "Republican," "David Porter," and "Favorite." He disappeared from record after 1819. James Halstead was proprietor of the West Newburgh Flouring Mills. The several names recall interesting periods in the commercial history of Newburgh. The families have no surviving residents in Newburgh.

(19.) Henry B. Myer was, for many years, dealer in clocks, watches and jewelry, on the corner of Water and Second Streets. His son, General Albert J. Myer, the eminent Meteorologist, was born in Newburgh in 1828, died at Buffalo, N. Y., 1880. He was the founder of the Signal Service Bureau.

(20.) Victor M. Watkins, son of David and Julia Watkins, was born in Goshen, N. Y. He came to Newburgh about 1832, and was employed as a teacher in the Newburgh High School about seven years. In 1839 he accepted a position as teller in the Bank of Newburgh, and held that position at the time of his death. He was also a Notary Public, and for a few years the Librarian of the Newburgh Library Association. He possessed the happy faculty of securing and retaining the friendship and esteem of all who knew him. (C. E.)

Julia Egbert, his wife, born April 29, 1810, died December 23, 1888, buried by the side of her husband.

(21.) Rev. Jos. McCarrell was Pastor of the Associate Reformed Church from 1822 to his death in 1864, a period of 42 years.

(22.) Son of Jacob Carpenter and brother of Mrs. John W. Wells. He was the founder in 1822 of the first iron and brass foundry in this city.

(23.) Mr. Wells was for several years engaged in the iron and brass foundry business, as the successor of his brother-in-law, Henry B. Carpenter, and later in other business ventures. He was a man esteemed by his cotemporaries.

(24.) He was a brother of Doctor Chichester Brown, and the successor with his brother, James S., of his father in the hardware trade on Water Street. He had no children.

(25.) Chichester Brown was one of the best physicians of Newburgh. He was a native of Ireland and son of John Brown, a refugee from the rebellion of 1798. His wife was daughter of Dr. Graham of Shawangunk.

(26.) He was a school teacher nearly all his life. He was son of Dr. Chichester Brown.

(27.) William and John Thayer were successful merchants on the corner of Water and Carpenter Streets. The wife of William Thayer was sister of Benjamin Carpenter.

(28.) Wife and children of James Hamilton.

(29.) B. H. Mace, active in politics and in law, Postmaster, Justice of the Peace, etc. He lies on the north side of his wife unmarked by monument. He was the stepson of Stephen Belknap. He died Nov. 19, 1878, in the 77th year of his age.

(30.) Commissioned Captain of the 3d N. Y. V. June 18, 1813.

(31.) Son of Francis and Eunice Watkins Crawford and brother of David Crawford. His widow married John Farnum.

(32.) Lydia, daughter of Jonathan Belknap, second wife of Francis Crawford, died without issue.

(33.) Mr. Lewis was a bookseller and binder. In association with one Crowell, he published in Newburgh in 1812 a Federal or anti-war paper, called "The Orange County Patriot and Spirit of '76."

(34.) The memory of the Donnally's will remain for many years through the published "Recollections of James, son of Peter."

(35.) Associate of David Crawford in commercial business, now represented by his sons, Wm. O. and John D. Mailler. He was an excellent citizen.

(36.) George Gordon was a dealer in watches and clocks in Newburgh for a quarter of a century, with place of business on the S. W. corner of Water and Second Streets. He was a native of Ireland and the first (1800) in his line of business in the town.

(37.) John MacCauley, the father of these children, was an active merchant, trader and hotel keeper in Newburgh after the war of the Revolution. [See Eager's Hist. Orange Co., p. 178.]

(37a.) Son of Moses Kimball by his second wife.

(38.) Father of Moses, Thomas and other children who have honorable record in the history of the town. He was a carpenter and builder.

(39.) James C. Clark was the first professional barber, haircutter, wig-maker, etc., in Newburgh. He was noted for his excentric character, but was not the less an honorable and successful man in his business. His son Theodore, named above, was a compositor; his son George died at Rhinebeck, was a printer and editor. His daughter Eliza married and died elsewhere.

(40.) Rev. Samuel Fowler was a native of Newburgh and one of the earliest converts here to Methodism. He entered the ministry in 1793, and in 1820 was the first stationed pastor of the First M. E. Church, now Trinity.

(41.) Samuel Fowler and Charlotte Purdy Fowler were father and mother of Rev. Samuel Fowler. It was at their residence in Middlehope that Methodism was cradled in Newburgh.

(42.) A notice in the Political Index of Jan. 7, 1824, states that Mrs. Collins was a native of New Jersey, but for many years a resident of Newburgh and among its first settlers; that her relations were very extensive, "she having arrived at the title of great-great-grandparent." She was deprived of sight and hearing for several years before her death.

(43.) In 1795, John Da Sylva came to Marlborough with Mr. John Joseph Alexis Robert, a French gentleman, who had for some years resided in the island of San Domingo, and at the outbreak of the insurrection of the slaves, fled to New York with his household slaves. Robert and Da Sylva opened a store at Marlborough, where they carried on business in such merchandise as was at that day commonly kept in country stores. The firm was dissolved by the death of Mr. Da Sylva in March, 1806. Mr. Robert remained in this country until the year 1814, when he returned with his family to France. (J. W. F.)

(44.) A descendant of William Bradford, second Governor of Plymouth Colony and signer of the Mayflower compact.

(45.) David W. Bate—place of burial uncertain—died March 17, 1859, at 72, but presumed to have been in the plot marked by the gravestones of Sarah Isaacs Rogers. He was a native of Shawangunk, Ulster County, and son of James Bate, A. D. Q., of the army of the Revolution. He was brigadier-major in the war of 1812, and was severely wounded in action Oct. 27, 1813. He was admitted to the bar of Orange County in 1811, entered in partnership with William Ross, and later was senior member of the firm of Bate & McKissock. He was supervisor for several terms, and was elected County Judge in 1847, serving with great credit to himself and his profession. His first wife was Harriet M. Isaacs, who was (presumably) buried in the same plot. His second wife was a Mrs. Poishamus. He left no children.

(46.) Evidently a child of Mary and Peter C. DeWint.

(47.) Harry Caldwell was postmaster at Newburgh 1799-1802.

(48.) William Hoyle was a tailor and clothier; father of Mark C. and Raphael Hoyle and Mrs. D. G. Leonard. He was a substantial member of St. George's Church.

(49.) Raphael Hoyle was a landscape and portrait painter of no little talent. Some of his paintings survive, among other a favorite view of Newburgh.

(50.) The sign of the cross or the letters I. H. S. on this and many other monuments indicates a member of the R. C. Church, which had no burial ground here at the time.

(51.) An early settler at Middlehope, who gave to the town several useful and honorable descendants, among others Gilbert Holmes.

(52.) David Miller was son of Johannes Miller of Montgomery. James too was son of David, and Mrs. Decker was his sister. The family is now represented in Newburgh by Hon. James W. Miller.

(53.) A very respectable family of whom no representatives remain in Newburgh. Derric Ammerman was Quatermaster in the Revolution for many years, later was master of the packet sloop Siren, sailing between Newburgh and New York. His wife was a Belknap.

(54.) Capt. Charles Halstead died on board the barge Minisink, of which he was master, from disease of the heart.

(55.) Father of William G. Gillespie, noted later.

(56.) A refugee from Ireland for participating in the rebellion of 1798; founder of the Universal store, later conducted by his sons, John and James S. Brown.

(57.) One of the principal projectors of the Newburgh and Cohecton turnpike, and to which he gave his life by disease contracted in its construction.

(58.) John Lawson, of the firm of Wear & Lawson, dealers in hardware, whose children lie by his side, of whom John Knox Lawson was a young man of especial activity in public affairs and in the Fire Department, of which he was Chief Engineer 1855-6. Joseph Lawson died in service in the 165th Regiment.

(59.) Robert Gardner followed several occupations at different times—clerk, storekeeper, captain of a sloop, painter, etc.; was connected with the Fire Department, captain of a company in the war of 1812, and altogether a respected and useful man. Dr. James M. Gardner, Cicero and Lewis W. were his sons.

(60.) Sybel Burr, second wife of Robert Gardner.

(61.) Dr. Hedges was noted in the religious discussions of his day. It is erroneously asserted of him that he died of visitation of God for participation in the administration of the Holy Sacrament to a dog. His death was from a nervous fit, to which he was subject.

(62.) Few men whose resting place is marked in the cemetery have a more worthy life record than Matthew du Bois, grandson of the Huguenot immigrant at New Paltz; was engaged in sloop freighting in New Windsor; was in Col. McClaughry's Regiment in action at Fort Montgomery Oct. 6, 1777; gave two sons to the Revolutionary army; member of the Legislature, and filled several local official trusts.

(63.) Daughter of Peter Welling of New Windsor.

(64.) Mother and son. Mr. Sleight was a lawyer and respected for many virtues.

(102.) Robert Lawson was a grocer and for many terms member of the Board of Trustees of the village. Herman, Robert and George Lawson were sons. No surviving descendants remain here. Near this grave are buried the bodies of Samuel Parmenter, who died June 29, 1841, aged 50 years; his wife, Eliza Crane, who died Sept. 14, 1849. Charles J., their son, who died in 1826, aged about three years, and Susan E. C., their daughter, who died in 1856, aged 26 years. Mr. Parmenter was a school teacher, editor of the Newburgh Gazette, mathematician, statistician and surveyor. Brigadier-General Stephen C. Parmenter was his son.

(103.) To the south of this stone is buried the body of Flora Delzel, wife of John Watson, born in Scotland, died in Newburgh, 1830. To the north of this stone are buried Eliza, aged 5 mo.; Ada, aged 8 years, 2 mo., and George William, aged 2 mo.; children of John and Eliza Proudfoot. Also, Ann Houseman, wife of John Houseman, died 1871, and Mary Jane Houseman, died March, 1876, aged 61 years.

(104.) An active man in his day and generation, and a man of ability. He was a member of the Board of Trustees of the village and its President. He has no descendants residing here.

(105.) Thomas Phillips, Jr., was a builder. The late Mrs. John H. Sanxay, who married second, John R. Gorham, was a daughter. Seely was the name of Mrs. Phillips second husband. She was a Gardner.

(106.) Son of William Belknap, who was a brother of Capt. Samuel Belknap, noted later. He was a Lieutenant in Col. Livingston's 4th N. Y. Continental Regiment; served during the war, and is still represented in the Society of the Cincinnati, of which he was a member.

(106a.) Mrs. Riggs was sister of Capt. Samuel Belknap.

(107.) The part of the inscription enclosed in brackets has become illegible. It is restored from a copy made some years ago. Deceased was brother of Lieut. William Belknap, Isaac and James Belknap, who removed from Woburn, Mass., and located in Newburgh in 1749. The late Gen. William Goldsmith Belknap, U. S. A., and his son, the late William Belknap, Secty. of War, are among his descendants. For the military services of Samuel Belknap, see "Mass. Soldiers and Sailors of the Revolutionary War," Vol. II, p. 907.

(108.) The Merritts, Purdys and Fowlers were allied families and settlers, on the Harrison Patent (now Marlborough), prior to the war of the Revolution. The founders of the Newburgh branch of the Merritts was George, whose eldest was George, No. 19.

(109.) The Gidneys were descendants of the founders of the settlement still bearing the name of Gidneytown.

(111.) Leonard and Jacob Carpenter were the owners of the Newburgh and Fishkill Ferry (1802), and of the dock property occupied by the Ramsdell Estate. Their store was a low frame building on the site now occupied by the United States Hotel.

(112.) Edmund and Chancy Griswold were masters of sloops engaged in the transportation of freight and passengers between Newburgh and New York. Edmund was especially conspicuous in the organization of the Newburgh Fire Department in 1797.

(113.) Progenitors of the Newburgh families of Gibb. Eleanor, David and Samuel were dealers in clothing, corner of Smith and Fourth Streets in 1838.

(114.) Jonathan and Jane (Linderman) Carter were the father and mother of the late Enoch Carter.

(115.) Mary, wife of Adolph De Grove, was sister of Enoch Carter, whose son Jonathan was the father of Enoch Carter of more recent years. Noting her death the Political Index remarks, "Few persons have sustained a long life so carefully and unreprouchably. Mrs. De Grove was almost the last of that class of exalted females which adorned the society of our village in former years." Mr. De Grove was an active "son of liberty" in N. Y. City in the early years of the Revolution, and on its occupation by the British forces was compelled to find safety in removal, leaving his property there to be confiscated by the enemies of the cause he had espoused.

(116.) David, Phineas, Silas and Edward Howell were descendants of Edward Howell, an immigrant from England (1639), who settled at Southampton, L. I. They came to Newburgh during or soon after the war of the Revolution. Little is known of them beyond the fact that they were active and honorable citizens. Phineas was the first tanner in the then village, and was one of the Trustees of the Fire Department in 1797, also one of the Trustees of the Glebe (1794), and Treasurer of that body in the erection of the Newburgh Academy. He disappears from record in 1797. David was a merchant and trader; kept a store on the N. W. corner of Water and Second Streets. He was the father of Benoni H. Howell, noted later.

(117.) Mrs. Bowman was a lady of marked character. Her husband, Phineas Bowman, whose remains are said to be interred beside her, was a Major in the Mass. Line in the war of the Revolution; a lawyer of distinguished ability, and as a member of the Legislature secured the passage of the Act organizing the present county of Orange, 1797-8. For services in Mass. see Mass. soldiers and sailors in the Revolutionary war. Vol. II, p. 352.

(119.) Mr. Cooley was a lawyer and a Justice of the Peace.

(120.) Mark McIntyre, the father, was buried beside his daughter. He died Aug. 11, 1831. The Newburgh Telegraph of Aug. 25, 1831, says, "He was a worthy and estimable man."

(121.) Luther Halsey, Sr., was Principal of the Newburgh Academy in 1813, and served until 1820, when he was succeeded by his son, John T. Halsey. Rev. Luther Halsey, Jr., was Pastor of the Blooming-Grove Church 1815-25, and left there to accept a Professorship in Nassau Hall. He died at Pittsburgh, Pa., in 1880.

(122.) Alex. Gilchrist was a pump and block maker at the corner of Ann and Liberty Streets, and a very worthy man.

(123.) Levi P. Dodge was son of William P. Dodge, who was son of Reuben Dodge, a Lieutenant in the Mass. Line in the army of the Revolution. John P. and William Foster Dodge were sons of Levi P. and Sarah Jane Foster Dodge, the latter, daughter of Elnathan Foster and his wife, Ruth Tarbell. William Foster Dodge was in service in the war of the Rebellion. His brother John P. was killed at Fredericksburgh. There were other branches of the family, notably Levi Dodge, a Lieutenant in the New Hampshire Line, who with his brother William settled here after the war of the Revolution. He was a large holder of real estate, President of the Bank of Newburgh, etc. He is said to have been buried in this cemetery without monument, at his own request.

(124.) Mrs. Carter and her mother died the same day of yellow fever, said to have been the first and only cases of that disease that ever occurred in Newburgh. John Anderson, the husband and father, was a merchant and forwarder, with dock and store on the southwest corner of what is now Third and Front Street, and sailed the sloop "Eliza." During the war of the Revolution he was an enlisted "boatman" on the Hudson, and engaged with his sloop in the transportation of continental stores, etc. His children by his wife Mary Smith were Elizabeth (Mrs. Carter), John, Jr., and Benjamin. John, Jr., married Mary Woodward, and Benjamin married Mary, daughter of Phineas Bowman. John, Jr., married (second) Charity Woodward and had several children. He was a man of standing and reputation, and was President of the Village in 1802. He removed to Hoboken in 1803-4, and died in New York Feb. 10, 1840, aged "78 years 9 months and 8 days." Frederick Roostback Anderson, of New York, was son by his second wife. The late Hiram Anderson, dealer in carpets, 99 Bowery, was grandson—son of his son, John Anderson, Jr. Several pages could be written about John Anderson without telling in full the incidents in his long and useful life.

(125.) Son of Benj. Smith, who was the son of James Smith, who purchased in 1749 the farm now covered by the City of Newburgh between First and South Streets, whereon he laid out the township of Washington. It was at the house of the father that Steuben Lodge of F. & A. M. held its communications.

(126.) Second wife of Jonathan Carter. She left issue, one child, Elizabeth, who became the wife of Ward M. Gazlay.

(127.) This the fourth Mrs. Foster was Ruth Tarbell. Mr. Foster was a native of L. I. It was at his house that the first "class" of the M. E. Church was organized in Newburgh in 1789.

(128.) Nathaniel P. Emmet was a baker. Lieutenant in the Village Guards.

(129.) Son of Daniel Niven, as distinguished from Daniel Niven, Jr., the latter the father of Thornton M. Niven and nephew of Daniel Niven. George was the grandfather of the late Mrs. Chancey Depew of N. Y. He was a lawyer.

(130.) Daniel Niven was a native of Scotland. He served in the army of the Revolution as Captain of Engineers, and became a member of the "Society of the Cincinnati." He located in Newburgh after the disbandment of the army and engaged in milling at West Newburgh, and in farming. He had sons, George W. and Charles. The former noted above and the latter at one time Sheriff of the County.

(131.) Jason Rogers came from New London, Conn., in 1785 or '86, and engaged in ship building. The first horse-boat on the Newburgh Ferry, the Moses Rogers, was built by him in 1816. Lieut.-Col. Jason Rogers, of Louisville, Ky., was his oldest son, and was in service in the war with Mexico. Capt. James Rogers was in the U. S. Navy. The entire family was remarkable for solidity of character and patriotic citizenship, the father himself being a soldier in the ranks at Fort Trumbull when New London was sacked by the British forces under Benedict Arnold. The family has no representative now living in Newburgh.

(132.) Mother of the late Thomas McAlles.

(133.) Gen. John McLean lived in what is now sometimes called "the Wyckoff place," junction of Montgomery and Water Streets. His father was an early settler in what is now Blooming-Grove. His daughter married William Ross, the noted lawyer and politician of Newburgh in the early part of the current century.

(134.) A descendant of Richard Albertson, who was one of the number to whom the second charter of the Glebe was issued in 1752.

(135.) Henry Veltman was a mason. The mason work of the old First M. E. Church on Second Street was executed by him.

(136.) Son of Capt. Samuel Belknap, already noted. He was at one time engaged in the freighting business.

(137.) John E. Parmalee was a merchant in Water Street. His wife was daughter of William H. Smith. Mrs. Jed Horton is a daughter. Remains removed since above was written; now in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

(138.) Daniel Smith was engaged in the freighting business from Balmville from 1804-1820.

(139.) Daughter of Philip Freneau, a poet of the Revolutionary era.

(140.) At one time cashier of the Bank of Newburgh. His son, Peter Freneau Hunn, was a lawyer, surveyor, Justice of the Peace, etc.
