PREFACE

There are few who do not feel more or less interested in knowing something of their own family history. The past history of a family may afford its descendants many a useful lesson, as for instance the mental and physical qualities of their ancestors, their chief pursuits and accomplishments. It is also useful in tracing legal kinship, and establishing the right to join certain societies. Of course we know that the family traits are considerably diluted, and often strengthened, by the long line of marriages, and we know that records do not bring down to us all of the hangings or jail sentences; nevertheless we like to read of the good deeds of our ancestors. Even Elder William Brewster's term in jail was in a good cause.

This is an informal and unskillful attempt to trace back the family lines of "Eight Brewster Cousins" who grew up together in or near Chagrin Falls, Ohio, in the nineties. It is hoped that this compilation will enable their children and grandchildren to trace their connection to the line of Brewsters listed herein, and to learn something of their forefathers and their pioneer efforts. There are many spaces for data to be filled in, and no doubt many mistakes have crept in, which we hope each one will complete or correct according to his own information, and send the items to the writer.

If each grandchild will fill in the record with the passing years, the volume will be worth handing down in the family through many generations to come.

The "Eight Brewster Cousins" are of the Tenth Generation:

Earl Henri Brewster, Res., Snow View Estate, Almora, U.P., India.

Ralph Brewster Stillwell, Res., Pompey's Pillar, Montana.

Winnifred Stillwell Stevenson, Last res., Willoughby, Ohio.

William Roy Brewster, Res., 1660 Santa Maria Ave., Glendale, California.

Jessie Brewster Lauritzen, Res., 56 S. Forge St.,
Akron, Ohio.

Carl Milton Brewster, Res., 1721 Maple Ave., Pullman, Washington.

Minnie Brewster Stroud, Res., 95 Franklin Ave.,
Chagrin Falls, Ohio.

Mabel Valentine Rogers, Res.

"O Cottage 'neath the maples,
have you seen those girls and boys
That but a little while ago
made, oh! such pleasant noise?
O trees and hills and brooks and lanes
and meadows, do you know
Where I shall find my little friends
of forty years ago?
You see I'm old and weary,
and I've traveled long and far;
I am looking for my playmates - -
I wonder where they are!"

- Eugene Field.

- - - - -

In an effort to indicate the line of descent, we have underlined the name of the member of the family which is carried forward. We have repeated the list of forebears, the small numeral following the name indicates the generation and the small letter, the order of birth in that family. Thus, Seth Brewster<sup>7d</sup>, indicates that Seth Brewster is of the seventh generation, and that he was the fourth child in the family.

The data relating to early generations of the Brewsters was obtained from the following books:

- "The Brewster Genealogy," by Emma C. Brewster Jones; The Grafton Press, 1908.
- "The Elder William Brewster," by L. W. Brewster, 1908.
- "Notable Families of America," by Watson, 1898.
- "History of Duxbury," by Winsor, 1849.
- "The Romantic Story of the Mayflower Pilgrims," by Addison, 1909.

Later facts were obtained from the "Brewster Cousins," from an article on "The Brewsters" by Lucy Shackson, and from correspondence with members of the families concerned.

THE BREWSTERS IN ENGLAND

It is not definitely known from which of the many famous lines of the family in England the first emigrants of the name to America were descended.

The name is an old one, and is said to have been derived from the occupation of its first bearers as brewers. It is found in the English records in the various forms of Brustere, Breuster, Bruster, Breustar, Breustere, Brewester, Brewstere, Brewster, and others, of which the last form is the only one known in America today.

Elder William Brewster's father, William Brewster, was appointed by Archbishop Sandys, in January, 1575-76, "receiver of the town of Scrooby and bailiff of the manor house in that place belonging to the Archbishop, to have life-tenure of both offices."

The William Brewster who later came to America was for many years postmaster at Scrooby, a little village on the great North road about fifty miles from London. Nowadays a postmaster has mainly to do with letters and parcels and money orders, but three hundred years ago he had to do almost entirely with horses. Letters then posted were mainly governmental correspondence, sent by members of the Court. He did not live in a little house on a side street, but had a grand mansion called Scrooby Manor with a large brick stable and his duty was to supply horses to all travelers who desired to hire them. He was appointed by the government and had what 300 years ago was considered a handsome salary, namely 2 shillings a day, besides what travelers used to pay him if they stayed for a night or so at Scrooby Manor on their journey. He was also responsible for the relays of horses on the post road. He held the position of postmaster from 1590 to 1607.

About 1602 his neighbors began to assemble at the Manor House for worship, where Brewster "did much good in promoting and furthering religion." He was opposed to the laxness and excesses of the clergy, and favored greater strictness of morals and doctrine. He and his friends organized a branch of the Separatists, or those who preferred the congregational system, whereby each charge would be responsible to itself alone. In the face of persecution, in 1607 he with his friends chartered a Dutch boat to take them to Holland, but through the treachery of the Captain they were seized and imprisoned for a time. A year later they reached The Hague, where Brewster spent most of his means in providing for his family. At Leyden, in 1609, he was chosen ruling Elder of the Congregation. He remained in Holland twelve years, supporting himself by teaching English and by the use of the printing press. He was engaged in printing secretly religious books proscribed by the English government. In 1619 their types were seized, and his partner was arrested. Brewster, however, escaped and in the same year with Robert Cushman obtained in London on behalf of his associates a land patent from the Virginia Company. In 1620 he was selected to accompany the advance guard to the New World.

ELDER WILLIAM BREWSTER IN AMERICA

The Pilgrims sailed from Delftshaven late in July, 1620, from Southampton on the 5th of August, and from Plymouth on the 6th of September, 1620. After a stormy voyage of ten weeks, they anchored in Plymouth Harbor, Nov. 21, 1620, and "there in the cabin of the MAYFLOWER, Elder William Brewster drafted the first written Constitution in the history of the world,--a marvel of clearness, brevity, and strength."

At Plymouth he bore an important part in establishing the Pilgrim Republic, not shrinking from the severest manual labor, and "when the church had no other minister, he taught twice every sabbath, both powerfully and profitably, to ye great contentment of ye hearers." He took a prominent part in the affairs of the colony, and served in the Indian Wars under Captain Myles Standish.

Nearly every ship which came from England brought books to Brewster, and at his death his library inventoried 400 volumes, 62 of which were in Latin. There were 98 commentaries or translations of the Bible.

"He possessed that happy attitude of mind which could accustom itself to all circumstances; destitute of meat, of fish and bread, even with his single meal of clams would return thanks to the Lord that he could suck of the abundance of the seas and the treasures hid in the sands."

He was accompanied by his wife Mary, and two sons, Love and Wrestling; also, a boy called Richard More. The rest of his children came over afterward. (The Pilgrims purposely chose such names as peace, love, patience, for their children, to emphasize their separation from the established church, which perpetuated the saints of the church calendar in naming children.) During their first winter in America, the Pilgrims buried half their number, leveling the graves and sowing grain over them in the Spring, in order to conceal their misfortunes from the Indians.

THE FIRST GENERATION

William Brewster<sup>1</sup> was born in 1566, probably in Scrooby, England. He enjoyed a healthy old age and was sick but one day, when he died on the 10th of April, 1644, 78 years of age. His wife, Mary,

THE ELEVENTH GENERATION

It is rather discouraging to find that there are so many blanks remaining to be filled out in the data for this generation and those following. It is suggested that each member report the data for any of the blanks that he or she can fill, and later these will be collected and a supplementary page sent to each, so that the latest information may be entered by all interested. Please send the data to C. M. Brewster, Pullman, Washington.

LARGE NUMBERS OF ANCESTORS

According to an Associated Press dispatch dated September 27, 1937, and quoting Dr. J. O. Hertzler of the Sociology Department of the University of Nebraska, "Anyone now 40 years old would have a possible 18 adult ancestors at the time of the American Revolution; 512 at the time of the Mayflower voyage; 524,288 at the time of King John and the Magna Charta. Those who find an ancestor among the followers of William the Conqueror, 25 generations ago, must distinguish their relative from a possible 8,388,608 predecessors in that generation.

MY MOTHER'S CROCHET

They often said she wasted time,
My mother with her crochet-hook,
That she could cultivate her mind
By studying some learned book.
But now I'm older I can see
Just what her handwork did for me.

We were too poor for many things;
Rich paintings, books and antique lace,
Fine furniture that round it flings
A subtle air of ease and grace;
The loveliness that money buys
Was thus withheld from our young eyes.

And yet our lives were not denied
The gentle influence of art,
And in its warm smile hate and pride
Were melted from each childish heart;
We could do nothing mean or base
When looking on exquisite lace.

Bold figures in Venetian wrought
Suggested strength; and day by day
Before our childish eyes was brought
The dignity of rare filet.
An easy manner, poise and grace
Were taught us by her Cluny lace.

Hungarian, Irish, gros-filet,
Each helped our characters to school;
While sturdiness in work or play
We learned from garments made of wool.
Self-sacrificing love was hymned
In tiny clothes all crochet-trimmed.

O mother-love and thought and care
That planned so wisely how was best
To give our budding lives their share
Of Beauty, I shall meet life's test
More honest, strong, courageous, gay,
For knowing you and your crochet.

- Olive Burt.

WHICH KIND ARE YOU?

There are two kinds of people
On earth today,
Just two kinds of people;
No more, I say.

Not the good and the bad,
For 'tis well understood
The good are half-bad
And the bad are half-good.

Not the happy and sad,
For the swift-flying years
Bring each man his laughter
And each man his tears.

Not the rich and the poor,
For to count a man's wealth
You must first know the state
Of his conscience and health.

Not the humble and proud,
For in life's busy span
Who puts on vain airs
Is not counted a man.

No! the two kinds of people
On earth I mean
Are the people who lift,
And the people who lean.
