THE BARRY COAT - OF - ARMS

The Coat-of-Arms used by the several branches of our Barry Family is described as follows:

Arms: Argent, three bars gemelles, gules.

Crest: On a wreath, a castle, argent, from the top whereof issues a wolf's head, sable.

Supporters: Two wolves, sable, their ducal collars and chains, or.

Motto: BOU-TEZ EN AVANT.

This Coat-of-Arms was used by all branches of the Family, each adding the distinctive marks appropriate to that branch. The above picture shows the ducal crown added by the Earl of Barrymore.

MANORBIER CASTLE, ANCIENT SEAT OF THE BARRYS

Let me now praise distinguished men
Our fathers, before us.
They are a great glory to the Lord who created them,
They show His majesty from of old;
Men who exercised authority in their reigns
And were renowned for their might.

They gave us counsel with understanding,
And brought men tidings through their prophecy;
Leaders of the people in deliberation and understanding,
Men of learning for the people,
Wise in their words of instruction;
Composers of musical airs,
Authors of poems in writing,
Rich men, endowed with strength
Who lived in peace upon their lands; -

All these were honored in their generation,
And were a glory in their day.
There are some of them who have left a name,
So that men declare their praise;
And there are some who have no memorial,
And have perished as though they had not been,
With their children after them.

Yet these were merciful men
And their uprightness has not been forgotten.
With their descendants it will remain
A good inheritance for their posterity.

- Ecclesiasticus, 44: 1 - 11.

PREVIOUS ACCOUNTS OF THE BARRYS IN AMERICA

Many members of our Barry Family have interested themselves in its history and several accounts have been written, giving such information as was then available to their writers. My maternal grandfather, Rev. John Stetson Barry, author of "THE HISTORY OF HANOVER, MASSACHUSETTS", "THE HISTORY OF MASSACHUSETTS" (in 3 volumes), and "THE GENEALOGY OF THE STETSON FAMILY" (his mother's) was eager to prepare a similar account of his father's family and assembled all the data he could find. His elder brother, Rev. William Barry, Jr., author of "THE HISTORY OF FRAMINGHAM, MASSACHUSETTS", and Founder of the CHICAGO HISTORICAL SOCIETY, also gathered material. In 1906, Herbert Barry, Esq., of New York City, published a booklet entitled "THE DESCENDANTS OF CHARLES BARRY, A RECORD OF FIVE GENERATIONS" - Compiled from "NOTES AND MEMORANDA OF JOHN LINCOLN BARRY". And in 1907, my mother's sister, Esther Stetson Barry, published her book WILLIAM AND ESTHER BARRY AND THEIR DESCENDANTS. It was at her express wish that I undertook this present effort to bring up to date the record of CAPTAIN CHARLES BARRY'S DESCENDANTS.

Recently two investigators, Col. Michael Henry Barry, U. S. A. Ret. (now deceased), and William Crocker Barry, of Glendale, Calif., made careful study of the Barrys in France and Britain, and their findings, recorded in typewritten form, have been of inestimable value in preparing the following pages. To William Crocker Barry, especially, is due a very large measure of credit.

OUR CONNECTION WITH THE BARRYS OF BRITAIN

Until recently, the connection between the Barrys of the British Isles and our immigrant ancestors was indicated only by a widely held tradition that "three brothers, William, James and Charles Barry" came to America between the years 1720 and 1732, William settling in Williamsburg, Va. and Charles in Boston where he became part-owner in, and Captain of, a ship that was eventually lost with all on board; that his only child, John, born posthumously, was brought up by the Virginia relatives but that he finally returned to Boston where his subsequent marriage, the births of his eleven children, and his own service in the Revolutionary War, are matters of public record.

This "family tradition" is recorded in the above-mentioned "Notes" made by Rev. John Stetson Barry and by his brother Rev. William Barry, Jr.; and also in letters written by Dr. Wm. Taylor Barry and by Mr. H. T. Barry (both being descendants of William, brother of Charles) showing that the above-quoted "tradition" was handed on among the members of both the Charles and the William Barry immigrant branches of the family. It is repeated by Mr. Herbert Barry in his "Record of Five Generations of the Descendants of Charles Barry" in which he also gives many quotations from public records showing the prominence, in the history of Great Britain and Ireland, of individuals bearing the Barry name, among them being SIR ROBERT BARRY who was in possession of Dongourney Castle, A. D. 1415, and who was ancestor of COLONEL CHARLES BARRY, born May 10, 1660 at Santry in Ireland. Colonel Charles Barry had six sons and three daughters, their names being JOHN, JAMES, WILLIAM, THOMAS, CHARLES, RICHARD, ELIZABETH, ELEANOR and MARGARET. Mr. Herbert Barry goes on to say: "The identity of the fifth son of Col. Charles Barry with the Charles who emigrated to America is indicated by tradition and by circumstantial evidence, although direct documentary evidence is probably not extant." This statement was made in 1906.

DISCOVERY OF THE NEEDED "DOCUMENTARY EVIDENCE"

In the Summer of 1933, while my wife and I were on our first trip to California, we called on Col. Michael H. Barry who had just completed his researches into the family's history. In the course of conversation, he gave us the address of Mr. David O. Barry, a realtor in Los Angeles, saying that he, too, was interested in our family background. Calling at the given address, we found that Mr. David O. Barry was a descendant of James, the second son of Colonel Charles Barry, and that he had the Bible Record made by his ancestor (who had followed his brothers to America) - - a record which fully substantiates the "family tradition" stated above.

THE JAMES BARRY BIBLE RECORD

The pertinent entries in this Bible Record are here given, together with explanatory comments:

THE RECORD	EXPLANATORY COMMENT
1 January 1727 James Barry and Mary James records his own marriage, the Buckner married this day.	customary "first entry".
20 February, A. D. 1728. Born to us a son, whose name is James Barry.	Record of birth of James' first (and only) child.
---- The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away. Mary has departed from us.	Record of the early death of James' wife, Mary (Buckner) Barry.
Father died A.D. 1730 is sent by Captain Charles Barry. Colonel Charles Barry was born May 10, A.D. 1660; he was a brave soldier and served his Country well.	The all-important record which shows that the emigrant brothers' "father" was Col. Chas. Barry, born May 10, 1660 as stated above.

In this year of Our Lord 1732, I shall go to Virginia. There is liberty there. James decides to follow his brothers William and Charles.

The children of William Barry are three sons: John, born in Ireland, A.D. 1719; and now lives in Pennsylvania; Charles Barry, born in Virginia A. D. 1722; and Richard Barry, born A.D. 1726 in Virginia. This shows that his brother William left Ireland between 1719 and 1722. (The exact date was March, 1720 as shown on page 20 of this volume).

19 December A.D. 1734. Word rec'd from Lloyds of the loss of the vessel of Capt. Charles Barry and Matthew Blair. Lloyds, international Insurance Company, sends notice of the death of his brother, Capt. Charles Barry.

The son of Charles Barry was born in Boston 16 June A. D. 1735. Record of the posthumous birth of his nephew, only child of his deceased brother.

--- nephew John baptized this day. John is the son of Captain Charles Barry. This entry verifies the "family tradition" that the boy John was sent to Virginia.

Thus this Bible Record not only confirms the oft-repeated "family tradition" regarding the coming to America of the three brothers WILLIAM, JAMES and CHARLES BARRY, but also definitely places them as sons of COL. CHARLES BARRY, born May 10, 1660, at Goldings Freehold in Santry, Ireland, whose ancestors came from France with the Norman Army of William the Conqueror in A. D. 1066, and established themselves at Manorbier Castle on the Coast of Wales, their descendants going into Ireland, England, America and Australia.

Hence the quotations from the Encyclopaedia Britannica and other sources, made by Mr. Herbert Barry and his predecessors, may now be fitted accurately into our Family History. All this material has been critically examined by Mr. William Crocker Barry and his conclusions are followed in the present volume which is devoted to the direct ancestry of COLONEL CHARLES BARRY, and to the descendants of his fifth son, CAPTAIN CHARLES BARRY. It is hoped that subsequent volumes may similarly trace the descendants of his brother WILLIAM BARRY who accompanied CHARLES to America in 1720, and those of their brother, JAMES BARRY, who followed them in 1732. A cousin of these brothers, REV. JOSEPH BARRY, with his sister MARY, also came to America as stated in a letter written by him in 1740 from Charleston, South Carolina, long in the possession of Miss Agnes Culver Barry of Berkeley, California, and recently placed by her in my keeping. All these Barrys, widely scattered in the several English-speaking countries, are proper subjects for future issues of these BARRY FAMILY RECORDS.

The present Volume is essentially a continuation of Mr. Herbert Barry's RECORD OF FIVE GENERATIONS of the DESCENDANTS OF CHARLES BARRY which was published in 1906, and is an effort to bring this account up to the present. To Mr. Barry's widow, Mrs. Ethel Dawson Barry, and to all who have cooperated in making possible this undertaking, I extend my thanks. Every effort has been made to obtain accurate and complete information, but errors and omissions are unavoidable in any such work, and corrections and additions will be welcomed by the Editor.

THE NORMAN ORIGIN OF THE FAMILY AND ITS ENTRANCE INTO BRITAIN WITH WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR

During the last quarter of the 9th Century of our era, bands of Scandinavian sea-rovers, led by Rollo of Norway, landed on the coast of France and made themselves masters of a large area at the mouth of the River Seine, - the region thereafter known as "Normandy"-the "land of the Northmen."

Adopting the language and customs of the older inhabitants with whom they intermarried, these fierce warriors came under the influence of the culture previously implanted during the Roman control of Gaul, and by the 11th Century, the Dukedom of Normandy had attained great power and influence.

Even before the Norman Conquest of England, many Normans had taken up residence in England, just across the Channel. The mother of King Edward the Confessor was daughter of Duke Richard of Normandy, and Edward himself received his education at the Norman Court. Becoming King of England A.D. 1042, he had appointed many of his Norman friends to positions of trust. As early as A.D. 1051, his cousin William, Duke of Normandy, had visited England and obtained from the too complaisant Edward (who was childless) a promise that he should succeed to the English Crown. (See Walker's English History, Page 83.) But upon Edward's death in 1065, the English Witan elected Harold, a Saxon nobleman, to the vacant kingship. Thereupon Duke William commanded his feudal followers to gather their retainers for an invasion of Britain.

Among the Norman Barons who responded to this summons, came our DE BARRI ancestor whose surname was derived (as were so many "place names" used in those days to distinguish individuals) from LA BARRE in Normandy, according to the conclusions of Sir John Wolfe Barry, K.C.B., F.R.S., who has given this matter long and critical study. (See "Notes on Barry Genealogy" by Sir John Wolfe Barry, K.C.B., F.R.S. page 18).

Crossing the English Channel A.D. 1066, the Normans attacked the Saxons near the seaside town of Hastings. In the long and furious battle which ensued, the Barry battle-cry: "BOUTEZ EN AVANT" ("Press Forward") was heard again and again as the De Barri forces plied their swords against the Saxon yeomen. The battle did not end until Harold, the Saxon King, was struck down by a Norman arrow. His followers fled, leaving the Normans masters of the field.

Twenty-eight years later, A. D. 1094, a church was erected at Hastings to commemorate this victory. In its Treasury was preserved, for several centuries, a list of the principal Norman Barons who participated, with their retainers, in this Battle. The name BARRE is prominent among the leaders listed on this "Roll of Battle Abbey."

After the Battle of Hastings, the Normans had little difficulty in taking possession of London and the eastern parts of Britain, but four years later, when they reached the borders of Wales, they were met with strong resistance which continued, at different points, for more than twenty years. Between 1088 and 1090, a Norman force subdued Pembrokeshire and one of the leaders, ODO DE BARRI, received lands bordering the coast and including a large island, long known as "Barry Island. On the mainland, crowning a hill that commanded a fine view of the water, ODO DE BARRI (or his son) built MANORBIER CASTLE. This Castle was the home of the Barry Family for more than two hundred years. It is still in a fair state of preservation as shown in the Frontispiece of this Volume, which is from an engraving furnished by the New York Historical Society.

Chapter II.

MANORBIER CASTLE IN SOUTH WALES, "THE ANCIENT SEAT OF THE BARRYS"

Before continuing with our genealogical tables, the following description of MANORBIER CASTLE, "The Ancient Seat of the Barrys," deserve place in these Records.

In his book on "Castles", published in 1926, Charles Oman, K.B.S., Professor of History at Oxford University, says of Manorbier: "Far larger than Upton and vying with Carew, is the large Castle of Manorbier, close to the sea-shore and half-way between Tenby and Pembroke. This was the home for two centuries of the De Barrys, the family from which sprang that learned cleric, Gerald De Barri, alias Geraldus Cambrensis, to whose facile pen we owe so much information, not only about Wales, but also about Ireland, in the 12th Century."

Black's "Guide To Wales" (page 325) thus describes Manorbier: "The walls are lofty and embattled, with circular towers at the angles and a larger tower and watch-turret at the entrance. All the windows open into an inner court-yard, and it is evident that, in its construction, strength and security were chiefly considered. . . . It was the birthplace, in the 12th Century, of Geraldus Cambrensis of the princely family of De Barri, the renowned topographer and historian of Wales."

Similarly, Roscoe, in his "Wanderings through South Wales" (pages 145-6) writes: "The Castle, or rather stronghold, is seen beetling high over the sea, its many walls remaining yet almost entire. . . . In the old feudal style, the chief entrance was by a noble gateway protected by a semi-circular court with a large barbican and strongly flanked with bastions. Its ponderous towers, and the extent of its site, show its by-gone days of power and splendor. . . . Its size and position are truly grand; from whatever spot it is viewed, the observer cannot fail to be struck with its stately magnitude and air of dignity. It may not be uninteresting here to repeat an observation of Dr. Samuel Johnson, (narrated by the biographer of that celebrated lexicographer) who says in reference to the formidable appearance of these edifices: 'One of the Castles in Wales would contain all he had seen in Scotland'".

In "South Wales, the Country of Castles" (pages 53-55) the author calls this Castle "the turreted pride of Manorbier", and continues "When you pass through the drawbridge and under the portcullis, what a beautiful picture presents itself - a lovely lawn like that of an Oxford Quadrangle; walls grey with age, half-covered with ivy; battlements and towers from whose nooks and crannies peep ferns and flowers. At the Southeast is the Chapel; then the Banqueting Hall; the Kitchen with a fireplace where an ox could be roasted whole; the prisoners' quarters; the well thirty feet deep; and even apparatus for melting lead. From the walls of Manorbier you see the valley falling to the little bay where the white line of waves breaks on the sand; to the West, the stream flowing through marshy land (once beautiful ponds stocked with fish); and looking back you have the Gate Tower on which the evening sun falls; and the curtain walls with the corner tower, in which Giraldus was born."

GERALD DE BARRI himself (the Geraldus Cambrensis above-mentioned) writing in 1180, gave a glowing description of his boyhood home in the following words: "The Castle called Maynaurpir (now spelled 'Manorbier') is about three miles distant from the castle of Pembroke. It is conspicuous for its turrets and battlements, and stands on the top of a hill stretching from the west to the seaport. On the north side, close to the walls, is an excellent fish pond, remarkable for its extent and the depth of its water. On the same side there is a beautiful orchard, enclosed on one side by a park, on the other by a grove famous for the wildness of its rocks and the height of its hazel-trees. On the right hand of the promontory, between the castle and the church, close by the pond and at the side of a mill, a rivulet of never-failing water makes its way into a valley, made sandy by the violence of the winds. To the west, and at some distance from the castle, the river Severn, in a winding angle, enters the Irish Sea. From this point you may see the ships driven from Britain by the winds towards Ireland. The land is productive of wheat and is well-stored with sea-fish, and better than all, from its nearness to Ireland, it enjoys a salubrious climate. Of all the lands of the whole of Wales, Demetia, consisting of seven cantreds (i.e. "baronies") is the fairest and the choicest; and of Demetia, Pembroke; and of Pembroke, the aforesaid land. It remains, therefore, that of all Wales this place is the most pleasant. Therefore it would have been not wonderful, not unpardonable, had the writer extolled his native soil, the land of his birth, with more profuse titles of praise." (From "Itinerarium Cambriae," Lib.I, Cap.xii, Rolls Edition, page 92).

Our final description was written in 1924 by Mr. David Barry of Los Angeles, Calif., (now deceased) telling how the Castle appeared to him, his wife and daughter, when they visited it some seven hundred years later. Mr. Barry's account follows:

"MANORBIER CASTLE is an imposing pile, as seen from the east, west or south. It stands around four sides of a large courtyard, with a water-well in the center, safe from the enemy. Green lawns and ivy on rugged, gray stone walls; green-brown pasture lands rolling in the distance; and a flashing, blue sea, made a charming scene and, perhaps, some apology for the hyperbole of Gerald de Barri, the Welsh author and historian, youngest son of the first William de Barri, asleep for seven hundred years under his effigy tomb in Manorbier Castle Church.

"In the northeast corner of the castle remain several turret rooms which, with their concrete floors and stone stairs, are still in good condition. In the south end is the dungeon, with rusting remnants of an anchored iron ring to which prisoners are said to have been shackled. To the southeast is the kitchen, its big chimney still standing, and the chapel. Along the inner walls, here and there, are indications of quarters for men-at-arms and family apartments. Inside and about four or five feet below the tops of the outer walls, runs a stone shelf, three to five feet wide, where men could stand to repel an attack. . . . There are holes in the wall, at the feet of the defenders, through which they might throw burning oil on the besiegers. Manorbier Castle, however, seems to have escaped the ravages of war. Even the old stone mill a little northeast of the castle is in a fair state of preservation."

Editor's Note:

Regarding BARRY ISLAND, visible from the Castle, Gerald de Barri wrote: "which island the neighbors call Barri, from the name of St. Barruch, formerly an inhabitant of that same place. . . . Moreover, from the name of this island those noblemen of the maritime parts of South Wales who were wont to rule this island together with the nearest lands, are denominated, taking from Barri the name 'De Barri', first as a surname and afterwards as a family name." (Itinerarium Cambriae, Rolls Edition, Lib. I, Cap. xii, page 66). This origin of the Barry name has been accepted by several writers, but it is far more likely that the island took its name from its owner, rather than that the owner took his name from the island. The similarity in "Barri" and "Barruch" might easily account for this local tradition. Sir John Wolfe Barry, who has given careful study to this matter, is convinced that our family name was derived from LA BARRE, a town in Normandy, about 40 miles west of Paris, (See Map) where our forebears were located at the time of the Norman Conquest of England, as stated in the preceding Chapter.

"Barry Island" is now part of the mainland, and there is a "Town of Barry" - a coal-mining center - located there.

Chapter III.

THE BARRYS OF MANORBIER CASTLE AND THEIR DESCENDANTS IN WALES AND IRELAND

It was to Manorbier Castle that WILLIAM DE BARRI, born A.D. 1110, son (or grandson) of ODO DE BARRI, brought his bride, ANGARETH DE WINDSOR, grand-daughter of King RHYS AP TEWDER (Tudor) "the last independent prince of South Wales," who was slain A.D. 1091 while fighting the Normans. Angareth was daughter of the PRINCESS NESTA, wife of GERALD FITZ WALTER DE WINDSOR. William De Barri and Angareth were the progenitors of the several lines of Barrys subsequently prominent in Great Britain and Ireland, including the BARRYMORES (i. e. "The Great Barrys"), the BARRYROES ("The Red Barrys"), the VISCOUNTS BUTTEVANT, and others. These lines have been carefully traced in the many pages of Mr. William Crocker Barry's typewritten account. In the present Volume it is possible to include only brief mention of the four sons of William and Angareth, and of their Uncles, Maurice Fitz Gerald de Windsor and Robert Fitz Stephen, through whom the Barrys received their lands in Ireland. From that point we can give only the direct line to COLONEL CHARLES BARRY (born May 10, 1660), the father of the Emigrants to America in 1720-32. (Roman Numerals will be used to designate this direct ancestral line.)

I. WILLIAM DE BARRI, born A.D. 1110; died about 1168; married about 1136, ANGARETH DE WINDSOR, daughter of GERALD FITZ WALTER DE WINDSOR by his wife, THE PRINCESS NESTA, daughter of KING RHYS AP TEWDER (Ap means "son of"), "the last independent Prince of South Wales." William and Angareth had four sons:

PHILIP DE BARRI, b. 1137, who succeeded his father at Manorbier Castle.

ROBERT DE BARRI, who accompanied his Uncle, Robert Fitz Stephen, in the Invasion of Ireland, A.D. 1169. He was the first to be wounded in the assault on Wexford and was conspicuous for bravery at Ossory and Limerick. He is mentioned in records dated 1188 and probably lived beyond that date.

EDMOND DE BARRI, mentioned in the Gaelic pedigrees of Richard Fitz David, second Earl of Barrymore.

GERALD DE BARRI, celebrated as GERALDUS CAMBRENSIS ("Gerald of Wales"), author, historian and ecclesiastic. Born A. D. 1146, he completed his studies in Paris, A. D. 1172; became Archdeacon of Brecknock in 1175 and the next year was nominated Bishop of St. David's (the chief Cathedral in Wales) but his election was disallowed by King Henry II who feared that a man of his immense spirit and energy and a descendant of the ancient kings of Wales, might "cause damage to the crown of England" if placed in a position of authority in that as yet only partially-subdued principality. Thereupon Gerald returned to Paris where he lectured with success on Canon Law. In 1180 he returned to Wales as "administrator" to the new Bishop of St. David's. He made extensive journeys about the country, recording his observations in his "Itinerarium Cambriae" ("Travels in Wales") from which his description of Manorbier Castle, his boyhood home, has already been quoted. He accompanied his uncles to Ireland and wrote a description of that country. "He fought all his life to make St. David's independent of Canterbury, but without success, and after a long and brilliant career was buried in its cathedral church, A.D. 1220. For his outspokenness and his personal intimacy with the great men of his day, his historical works will remain of the utmost value to those studying the history of his time." (From "Life of Gerald de Barri", by Henry Owen).

ANGARETH'S mother, the PRINCESS NESTA, whose ancestral lines are traced, by the Welsh Bards and Historians, to the earliest monarchs of Wales and Ireland, in the 2nd Century, A. D., (see chart on page 110) was noted as "the most beautiful woman of her time." She married GERALD FITZ WALTER DE WINDSOR ("Fitz" means "son of") who had secured the region about Pembroke and occupied Pembroke Castle - (about three miles from Manorbier). His father, WALTER FITZ OTHO DE WINDSOR, was son of LORD OTHO, a Norman baron described in "Domesday Book" (the census, made at King William's order, listing all the inhabitants and property in England at the time of the Norman Conquest) as owning lordships in Surrey, Bucks, Berks and other shires. His ancestry is traced to COMUS "great Duke of Tuscany" who "passed from Italy into Normandy" (see chart on page 120). When Duke William was crowned King of England, A. D. 1066, he appointed Lord Otho's son, WALTER FITZ OTHO, as "Castellan" (i.e. "Governor") of Windsor Castle. Walter then added "De Windsor" to his name.

Walter Fitz Otho's son, GERALD FITZ WALTER DE WINDSOR, by his wife, the PRINCESS NESTA, had three sons, of whom the second, MAURICE FITZ GERARD DE WINDSOR, and the latter's half-brother, ROBERT FITZ STEPHEN (a son of Princess Nesta by later marriage to the Norman Baron, Stephen De Marisco, Castellan of Cardigan Castle) were leaders in the Norman Invasion of Ireland, A.D. 1169. To his nephew, PHILIP DE BARRI, (eldest son of WILLIAM DE BARRI and ANGARETH) Robert Fitz Stephen gave several cantreds ("baronies") in the conquered Kingdom of Cork. These were Olethan, north of Cork (later known as "Barrymore"); Muscheri-on-Dunnegan; and Killde. In 1183, PHILIP DE BARRI, "with a powerful body of men," crossed over from Wales to Ireland to assist his uncle and to protect his land of Olethan which had been wrongfully taken from him by Fitz Stephen's son Ralph. After the latter's defeat and death, Philip de Barri returned to his Welsh Castle, Manorbier, where he "devoted himself to hospitality indiscriminately to rich and poor like." (Geraldus Cambrensis, Rolls Ed., pp 350-51.)

II. PHILIP DE BARRI, son of William, born A. D. 1137, at Manorbier

Castle, married a daughter of RICHARD FITZ TANGRED, Castellan of Haverford West and Chief among the Flemings of Ros. He died in 1199 or 1200 and was buried in the Church at Manorbier. He had three sons:

ROBERT FITZ PHILIP DE BARRI, b. 1160; slain at Lismore, apparently without issue.

WILLIAM FITZ PHILIP DE BARRI, b. 1170; succeeded to the estates in both Wales and Ireland as oldest surviving son.

GERALD FITZ PHILIP DE BARRI, b. 1173; succeeded his uncle, Geraldus Cambrensis, in the Archdeaconry of Brecknock upon the latter's resignation of that position.

III. SIR WILLIAM FITZ PHILIP DE BARRI, son of Philip (II), b. in 1170, inherited his father's estates, their possession being confirmed to him by King John in a document signed A.D. 1207, in which he is designated as "Lord Olethan." In 1237 he founded a Priory at Ballibeg, near Buttevant in County Cork, for the Regular Canons of St. Augustine. (This town of "Buttevant" derived its name from the Barry battle-cry "Boutez-en-avant" which rallied the Barry followers in a victory over the Irish near that place.) The Priory at Ballibeg was later enlarged and endowed by William's son, SIR DAVID FITZ WILLIAM DE BARRI, 2nd Lord Olethan, who was called by the Irish BARRACH MOR ("The Great Barry"). This name, transformed into "Barrymore", became a popular designation of his successors. Sir David met his death in the Battle of Callan, A.D. 1261, and the title and estates went to his brother:

IV. SIR JOHN FITZ WILLIAM DE BARRI, 3d Lord Olethan. (A younger brother, PHILIP FITZ WILLIAM DE BARRI, was ancestor of the LORDS BARRY OGE ("Oge" means "younger") of Kinallea. He obtained from King Henry a grant of the lands of Inishoran). Sir John de Barri had issue:

V. SIR DAVID FITZ JOHN DE BARRI, 4th Lord Olethan, who was appointed in 1267 Lord Justice of Ireland and created LORD BUTTEVANT, September 10, 1273, being designated as "a rich and noble baron." He was buried in 1278 at Buttevant where his tomb still remains (in the Choir opposite the Altar). Historians have frequently confused him with his uncle, The Barrach Mor, because of the similarity of their Christian names. His eldest son, SIR JOHN FITZ DAVID DE BARRI, 5th Lord Olethan and 2nd Lord Buttevant, held Olethan from 1278 to 1284 but as he had no sons the title and estates came to his brother -

VI. SIR DAVID OGE DE BARRI, 6th Lord Olethan and 3rd Lord Buttevant. He was Lord Justice of Ireland and was created VISCOUNT BUTTEVANT, being the first in Ireland to be raised to that rank. His eldest son, SIR JOHN FITZ DAVID OGE DE BARRI, 4th Lord Buttevant, died in 1331 without male issue and was succeeded by the second son -

VII. SIR DAVID FITZ DAVID FITZ DAVID DE BARRI, 8th Lord Olethan and 5th Lord Buttevant. In 1332 a Royal Writ directed him to "assist the Lord Justice against the King's Irish enemies and English rebels." Two years later, while obeying this order, he was taken prisoner (after 100 of his men had been slain) and was subsequently set free by the King's forces. His wife was MAUD BOLTON of Wales. They had two sons of whom the younger:

VIII. SIR WILLIAM MOYLE BARRY, Lord of Ibane, married MARGARET, daughter of LORD COURBON, and became the ancestor of the BARRYROES, (the "Red Barrys") from whom the EARLS OF BARRYMORE trace descent. (The Lords Barrymore and the Earls of Barrymore were two distinct houses, the latter descending from the former. Both titles are now extinct, but there are numerous descendants of each." - William Crocker Barry.) The Records in the Record Office at Dublin show that Sir William Moyle Barry had three sons, the two younger being JAMES, (ancestor of the McJames families of Oriri) and LAURENCE, the first LORD BARRYROE. The eldest son:

IX. SIR ROBERT BARRY was known as RIOCHI (Gaelic, "THE ROCK") and hence was called "Of The Rock" by his contemporaries. He was in possession of Dongourney Castle in 1416. He had two sons, of whom the elder, who received his father's name, died without issue. The younger son:

X. SIR PHILIP BARRY, inherited Dongourney Castle and was father of

XI. SIR JOHN BARRY who married ELENOR, daughter of JOHN (or JAMES) FITZGERALD, Knight of Kerry. They had two sons. The elder, SIR DAVID BARRY, succeeded to the Dongourney Castle and the property; and the younger:

XII. SIR JAMES BARRY, of Dongourney, was father of:

XIII. PATRICK BARRY, who was named Constable of the Castle of Arklow by Decree in Chancery dated Feb. 10, 1584. He married JANE FOULS and had two sons, THOMAS (a merchant in Dublin who apparently died without issue) and

XIV. JAMES BARRY, who became High Sheriff of Dublin in 1577 and was afterwards Alderman of that City. By his wife CATHERINE, daughter of EDMUND BURN, Alderman of Dublin, he had six sons and five daughters. The first-born, NICHOLAS, died young; the second, RICHARD, was the grandfather of Colonel Charles Barry; the next three sons died without issue; the sixth son, NICHOLAS (named for his eldest brother) was the ancestor of the Barrys of Newtonbarry (Commodore JOHN BARRY, "Father of the American Navy" was of this branch of the Family). The daughters ELENOR, ROSE, JOAN and MARY married and one daughter d. in childhood.

XV. RICHARD BARRY, second son of JAMES BARRY, merchant of Dublin, was appointed Sheriff in 1604; Alderman in 1607; Mayor in 1610; and was a member of Parliament in 1613, 1634 and 1639. In correspondence between Lord Deputy Wentworth and Secretary Coke in 1634, he is mentioned with respect as "a good Protestant". He was granted, in 1627, "the titles, great and small, of the towns and lands of Little Killearne in the County of Meath, with diverse houses and tenements in Dublin." His will is dated Sept. 14, 1648. He was buried in St. Mary's Chapel, Christ Church, Dublin. His wife was ANN, daughter of JAMES CUSAK by whom he had six sons and three daughters. The eldest son, SIR JAMES BARRY, Chief Justice of the Kings Bench, was knighted and created BARON SANTRY, Dec. 18, 1660. He died Feb. 9, 1672. The second son, EDWARD, married the daughter of Alderman Charles Foster of Dublin. The third son, REV. WILLIAM BARRY, lived at Goldings Freehold in Santry, and was father of COLONEL CHARLES BARRY. The other sons were THOMAS (died Dec. 31, 1632); HUMPHREY and RICHARD.

XVI. REV. WILLIAM BARRY, son of Richard, became Rector of Killuken and received from his father the estate known as Goldings Freehold in Santry (a parish 4 miles north of Dublin). His grandson, Rev. Joseph Barry, in a letter dated Aug. 28, 1740, states that he accepted, at the urgent wish of the King, the Anglican Archbishopric of Dublin, which he held for the space of two years. He married (1) Jan. 1, 1634, MARGERY, daughter of Rev. EDMUND DONELLAN, M.A., F.T.C.D. She died Nov. 25, 1645. He married (2) Nov. 23, 1648, ELIZABETH, daughter of KEDAGE KELLY, Esq. Rev. William Barry died Aug. 30, 1695. His children by his first wife were:

RICHARD BARRY, born Oct. 8, 1636, became a barrister-at-law.
EDMUND BARRY, born Apr. 17, 1639, married Catherine, daughter of James Spranger. Their grandson, SPRANGER BARRY, was the noted Irish Actor.

REV. JAMES BARRY born Nov. 1, 1641, became a non-conformist minister and suffered much persecution as described in the letter of his son, REV. JOSEPH BARRY, who came to Charleston, S. Car., about 1735, with his sister Mary.

John Barry, born Oct. 21, 1645; died April 11, 1653.

MARY BARRY, born Oct. 22, 1635.

ANN BARRY, born Dec. 1, 1637.

MARGARET BARRY, born Jan. 28, 1638.

Frances Barry, born. Jan. 26, 1642; died in infancy.

ELIZABETH BARRY, born Aug. 3, 1644.

By his second wife, Rev. William Barry had:

MARGEY BARRY, born Dec. 31, 1649.

FRANCES BARRY, born Sept. 23, 1651.

Cicely Barry, born Dec. 31, 1652 and died May 4, 1653.

Catherine Barry, born Apr. 27, 1654; died in infancy.

DOROTHY BARRY, born Dec. 7, 1655.

LETTICE BARRY, born Jan. 23, 1656.

CHARLES BARRY, born May 10, 1660, father of James, William and Charles, emigrants to America.

ABIGAIL BARRY, born Oct. 1, 1683.

ROSE BARRY, born Aug. 21, 1667.

XVII. COL. CHARLES BARRY, son of Rev. William Barry, was born at Goldings Freehold, Santry, Ireland, May 10, 1660. In 1690, at the age of thirty, he was Captain of Dragoons in the English Army of William of Orange (King William III of England) and fought valiantly at the Battle of the Boyne River, in northern Ireland, where William's victory frustrated James II's attempt to regain the English Crown. He continued his service in William's campaigns on the Continent, was wounded in Flanders and promoted in rank. He died in 1730 at the age of 70 years. "He was a brave soldier and served his country well" is the testimony of his son James (see page 2). He married (1) Jan. 16, 1683, MARY SIMON, a Huguenot, whose brother was an officer in his regiment. She died, and he married (2) ELIZABETH, daughter of JOHN and ELIZABETH (CUFFE) KELLY of Kellycount, County Kilkenny. Settling in Newton, County Lough, they had six sons and three daughters:

John Barry who apparently died young;

JAMES BARRY who followed his brother to America in 1732, and had one son, JAMES SUCKNER BARRY;

WILLIAM BARRY who went to America in 1720, and had three sons, JOHN, CHARLES and RICHARD, the last-named being one of the signers of the Mecklenberg Declaration of Independence.

THOMAS BARRY, listed as a fellow passenger of William and Charles when they came to America in 1720.

XVIII. CHARLES BARRY, who went to America in 1720, and became ancestor of the Barrys recorded in this Volume.

RICHARD BARRY, whose son went to London and became ancestor of the Barrys of Westminster and from whom numerous families in Australia descend.

Also daughters ELIZABETH, ELEANOR and MARGARET BARRY.

Chapter IV.

CAPTAIN CHARLES BARRY AND HIS ONLY SON, JOHN BARRY

In 1877, Rev. William Barry, Jr., great-grandson of Charles Barry, wrote about him: "The tradition is that my great-grandfather Barry, with a brother, came from Ireland to America in 1720, the brother going to Williamsburg, Va., and my great-grandfather settling in Boston, Massachusetts; that he was a tailor, partner of Alexander Hodgden's father; that he died young; that his widow Mary later married Captain Matthew Blair, who 'followed the seas' and died at sea; that Mary then married John Whitney as her third husband and that after his death she became housekeeper for Samuel Adams (afterwards Governor of Massachusetts) who had two children who were quite young when their mother died. Widow Whitney died Oct. 2, 1764, aged 51, it is said at the house of Samuel Adams. In 1845 my Uncle Thomas Barry, then 75 years old, told me that his father had an 'Aunt Vose' at Milton, Mass."

Using the clue contained in the last sentence of the above quotation, Mr. Herbert Barry ascertained that Charles Barry's wife MARY was the eldest daughter of JOHN ROGERS of Dorchester; that she was born in 1713 and had two sisters, Abigail and Rachael. Abigail Rogers married Edward Vose of Milton, Mass. Rachael was born in 1716. There was a brother, James Rogers, who was a seafaring man. Concerning this Rogers family, recent research (reported by Mr. William Crocker Barry) has disclosed that John Rogers' grandfather was GILES ROGERS (1643-1731) who was born in England, the eldest of twelve children, and that he was related to THOMAS ROGERS and the latter's son JOSEPH, who came together in the MAYFLOWER on her first voyage to Plymouth, 1620. GILES ROGERS came to Virginia in 1670, patented 400 acres in the Parish of Stratton Major (in Kent County) and then went back to England, returning in 1680 with his wife and family. She was RACHAEL EASTMAN whom he had married in England. They had six children: GILES Jr. born in England, 1673; Lucy, born 1675 (married Wm. Wilson); John born in England, 1680; also Peter, Rachael and Mary Anne.

GILES ROGERS, JR. (born in England, 1673) came with his parents to Virginia and later removed to Bertie Precinct, North Carolina. One of his children was JOHN ROGERS, born 1694, who owned and commanded a ship engaged in coastwise trade. Removing to Dorchester, Massachusetts, he was married on Dec. 12, 1712 (Vital Records of Salem, Mass.) to HANNAH BERRY, who was born at Wenham, Mass., in 1696. They made their home in Dorchester, but Hannah accompanied her husband on his voyages and their children were all born at sea. (Hannah's parents were really a "Barry" family, their ancestor having settled in what is now Chelsea, Mass., prior to 1672).

The date of Charles Barry's birth in Ireland is given as 1704, which would make him sixteen in 1720, when he came to Boston. When Mr.

Herbert Barry published his "Record of Five Generations" of the descendants of Charles Barry, it was not known by what ship Charles made his passage. Subsequent research has brought to light the Passenger List of the ship WILLIAM ABRAHAM of Liverpool, on a trip to the Colonies which began in March 1720, and ended at Boston two or three months later. Among the many passengers listed are the names of:

DAVID BLAIR and his entire family, namely: the sons MATTHEW BLAIR (who is also listed as First Mate for the voyage), JOHN BLAIR (who married his wife, Ann Pepper, during the trip), JAMES, ROBERT, JOSEPH and DAVID BLAIR (apparently younger sons), also SARAH, DOLLY, MARY and BETSEY BLAIR. WILLIAM BARRY, CHARLES and THOMAS BARRY.*

The above information was gathered by Mrs. E. B. Wall, of Los Angeles, California, (now deceased), herself a descendant of Matthew Blair. Her notes on the BLAIR FAMILY (compiled over a period of fifty years) are now preserved in the Los Angeles Public Library. Mr. William Crocker Barry of Glendale, California, who was personally acquainted with Mrs. Wall, makes the following comment on the above records, which Mrs. Wall had gathered many years prior to his meeting her. Mr. Barry writes:

"While there is no proof that WILLIAM, CHARLES and THOMAS BARRY (included in the list of the passengers on the WILLIAM ABRAHAM) were brothers, or that they are the Barrys who concern us, nevertheless ... it would seem more than a coincidence that three Barrys were aboard a vessel bound for America in 1720 and that the First Mate of this vessel was MATTHEW BLAIR who later became co-owner of a ship with CHARLES BARRY (as shown in the Bible Record made by James Barry, quoted on page 3 of this volume) and that he married Charles Barry's widow after her first husband was lost at sea."

Having thus been closely associated with the Blairs during and subsequent to his voyage to America, and later marrying into a family so thoroughly imbued with love of the sea as was the family of JOHN ROGERS, it is not surprising that CHARLES BARRY gave up his business of tailoring and "took to the sea." By the year 1730 (judging from the James Barry Bible records) he must have been in command of THE MARY - the ship jointly owned by himself and Matthew Blair. Charles was then 26 years old. His marriage with MARY ROGERS had taken place in 1729. (The Boston Public Records, under date of October, 6, 1729, show the Marriage Intentions of Charles Barry and "Rachael Rogers." As the name of Charles Barry's wife was certainly "Mary", it would seem that this entry was a clerical error, which might easily have oc-occurred if Mary's sister Rachael, three years younger, accompanied Mary and Charles to the Town Clerk's Office, and the latter - not clearly understanding which of the girls was "Mary" and which "Rachael" - entered the name of the sister, an error unnoticed at the time). MARY ROGERS was then sixteen years old. Herself "born at sea", it is possible that she accompanied her husband on some of his voyages, thus following the example set by her mother. We have no knowledge of any child born to the couple except the boy JOHN, born posthumously, June 16, 1735, his father's ship, with all on board, having been lost at sea previous to December 19, 1734. It is possible that Charles and Mary may have had other children (perhaps born at sea) who did not live and are not recorded. However that may be, the labors of many researchers combine to give the basis for the following summary of the life of our Immigrant Ancestor:

C-1 CAPTAIN CHARLES BARRY, born in Ireland, A.D. 1704, fifth son of COL. CHARLES BARRY, came to Massachusetts in 1720 on the ship WILLIAM ABRAHAM in company with his brothers William and Thomas; settled in Boston, Massachusetts; and for a few years worked as a tailor (the business to which he had been apprenticed in Ireland) in partnership with Alexander Hodgden's father; subsequently became Captain of THE MARY, a ship jointly owned by himself and Captain Matthew Blair, which was lost at sea, with all on board, in the late Autumn of 1734. He had married, in 1729 (Marriage Intentions dated at Boston, Oct. 6, 1729) MARY ROGERS, born at sea in 1713, dau. of JOHN & HANNAH (Berry) ROGERS of Dorchester, Mass. She subsequently married (2) Captain MATTHEW BLAIR, co-owner of THE MARY, and after his death (at sea) she married (3) JOHN WHITNEY whom she survived. She died Oct. 4, 1764, aged 51.

JOHN BARRY
ONLY SON OF CAPTAIN CHARLES BARRY

C-2 JOHN BARRY (only son of Captain Charles) was born June 16, 1735, in Boston; died there Dec. 5, 1784, in his 50th year. His remains were placed in the Barry Tomb on Boston Common, this tomb being #42 in the "Central Burying Ground" at the corner of Tremont and Boylston Streets. (This tomb is still maintained by the family). In his early childhood, he was cared for by his uncle in Virginia, but he subsequently returned to Boston and was apprenticed to Alexander Hodgden, tailor, son of John's father's early partner. As a tailor his work was in great demand. He married, Apr. 14, 1757, MARY BLAKE, b. Apr. 3, 1732; d. May 29, 1801; dau. of JONATHAN & MARY (Bennett) BLAKE of Boston. (She was gt.-gt. granddaughter of WILLIAM BLAKE, of Pitsminster, England, whose ancestry is traced to Robert de Blakeland who is recorded, in 1286, as "a gentleman of large estates" near Salisbury. William Blake settled in Dorchester, Mass. in 1636, where he was Selectman and Town Clerk.) JOHN BARRY resided on East Street and later on Purchase Street, Boston, being neighbor to Samuel Adams. In 1775, when the British troops occupied the City, he moved his family to Milton Lower Mills where they occupied "the first house beyond the bridge", then owned by the Vose Family, relatives of his wife. It was in this house that the "Suffolk Resolves" (a precursor of The Declaration of Independence) had been voted by representatives of the Towns of Suffolk County. (A good picture of this house, which has a tablet commemorating this event, is on page 425 of Teele's "History of Milton"). The Barrys continued to reside there until 1782 or '83, and it was there that the youngest of their eleven children, WILLIAM, was born in September, 1776.

John Barry's grandson, Rev. William Barry, Jr., in his account of the Family, wrote of his grandfather: "John was short of stature, as was his eldest son, John, Jr. He was grave, quiet and dignified in presence, and warmly esteemed and loved by all who knew him for his amiable, sterling qualities. He was a superior singer and so skilled as a teacher of singing that the famous Billings, author of the "Billings and Holden Collection," received from him his first regular instruction. He was a member of the choir of the New South Church, Boston, among whom he led the tenor, and Samuel Adams was another member. (See "William and Esther Barry", pages 64-65). In the War of the American Revolution, John Barry served for portions of the years 1776 and 1778 as a private in the Companies of Capt. Josiah Vose and Capt. Stoddard, the last-named Company being a component of Col. Joseph Vose's Regiment. (See History of Milton, Mass. mentioned above. The name given as "John Barry" unquestionably means "John Barry" as "Barry" and "Berry" were frequently used interchangeably at that period.)

Children, (all except the last were born in Boston):

- 3 *JOHN BARRY, JR. b. Feb. 20, 1758; (m. Susdan Cudworth).
- Samuel Blake Barry, b. Oct. 21, 1759; d. Aug. 29, 1760.
- 4 *SAMUEL, b. June 25, 1761. (m. twice).
- Charles Barry, b. Feb. 13, 1763; d. the same day.
- 5 *CHARLES BARRY, b. May 28, 1764; (m. in New York State).
- 6 *MARY BARRY, b. Mar. 16, 1766; (m. Charles Lincoln).
- 7 *JAMES BARRY, b. June 12, 1768; (m. Mehitable Crane).
- 8 *THOMAS BARRY, b. Apr. 5, 1770; (m. twice)
- 9 *ELIZABETH BARRY, b. Mar. 27, 1772; (m. Elijah Leavitt).
- 10 *WILLIAM BARRY, b. Sept. 22, 1776; (m. Esther Stetson).

Explanatory Note: In this and other lists of children, an asterisk is placed before the name of each child about whom more information will be given, further on, under the same number preceded by the letter "C" which stands for "Charles". This letter is applied to all his descendants although omitted except where a name is repeated. Thus the descendants of CHARLES BARRY may be distinguished from those of his brothers JAMES and WILLIAM if (as is hoped) their descendants may be traced in later volumes of these RECORDS, using "j" to designate the descendants of "James" and "w" those of "William" Barry.

Chapter V.

DESCENDANTS OF JOHN BARRY, JUNIOR

C-3 JOHN BARRY, JUNIOR, eldest son of John and Mary (Blake) Barry, was born in Boston, Massachusetts, Feb. 20, 1758; and died Dec. 26, 1831. He was a tailor (having probably served an apprenticeship with his father) and he associated his younger brother Charles in the business until the latter removed from Boston about 1797. In his later years he had a home with his brother William, and spent one winter in the family of his brother Thomas, whose son, John Lincoln Barry, remembered him as "a bright, happy old gentleman, fond of joking." His wife was SUSAN CUDWORTH of Scituate, Massachusetts.

Children, all born in Boston:

- Benjamin C. Barry, b. Apr. 27, 1784; (died in infancy).

Chapter VI.

THE DESCENDANTS OF SAMUEL BARRY

C-4 SAMUEL BARRY, second son of John and Mary (Blake) Barry, was born in Boston, June 25, 1761, and lived there until 1775 when the family moved to Milton Lower Mills during the occupation of Boston by the British troops. Samuel was then in his 14th year and probably had already been "apprenticed" to learn the manufacture of the "Beaver" hats then so universally worn.

By 1784, the year of his father's death, Samuel was well established in business, with a factory in Watertown, Mass., and a store in Boston. He married ANN SWIFT, and as they had no children, they took into their home his young brother, William, then eight years old. There William grew to manhood, learning the hatters business which he followed so successfully in later life. (See Chapter XI). Ann Swift Barry died Sept. 23, 1800 and two years later, on Nov. 3, 1802, Samuel married REBECCA MARSHALL, dau. of William Marshall of Brookline, who had been a soldier in the Revolution. He was great-grandson of Samuel Marshall who was in Boston prior to 1681. Rebecca's mother was a descendant of Robert Sharpe of Islington, who came to Boston on the ship "Abigail" in 1635. His son and grandson fought and lost their lives in the Colonial Wars.

In 1941, Col. Herbert Barry, gt. grandson of Samuel, published a monograph bringing to that date the "Descendants of Samuel Barry" through the thirty-five years that had elapsed since the "Record of Five Generations" in 1906. (See pages 1 and 4). Hence this chapter is a summary of the 1941 publication, supplemented by later items supplied by his widow, Mrs. Ethel Dawson Barry. In this monograph, Colonel Barry thus recounts the latter years of his gt. grandfather's life:

"At the age of thirty, Samuel Barry had become a prosperous man, as evidenced by his purchase of 1500 acres of land in Roxbury, and had made his home there. He later lived in Brookline for some years. Ultimately he became a victim of one of the unfortunate practices of that era by endorsing for a friend who failed to meet the obligation, and the sequel was that Samuel lost most of his property. He then moved to Watertown where his factory was established. The shock of this financial disaster and of the realization of misplaced confidence resulted in a stroke and shattered health and he died Jan. 20, 1835. His wife Rebecca died Nov. 9th of the same year. Both are buried in the family tomb on Boston Common."

Chapter VII.

THE DESCENDANTS OF MARY BARRY

C-6 MARY BARRY, the elder of the two daughters of John Barry (C-2) and granddaughter of Captain Charles Barry (C-1), was born in Boston, Mar. 16, 1766, and died there Dec. 17, 1831. She married, May 6, 1789, CHARLES LINCOLN, who was born in Boston, July 29, 1765, son of Jonathan (Samuel, Samuel, Samuel) & Susanna (Lincoln) Lincoln of Hingham, Mass. He died in Boston, Oct. 17, 1862. A man of unusual intelligence, he took an active interest in the welfare of the town, was Inspector in the Boston Custom House from 1810 to 1830, and Representative in the State Legislature from 1830 to 1838. Socially he was very popular; his character was of the highest type; his integrity irreproachable and his word as good as his bond. He was a member and regular attendant at the New North Church, Boston. He first saw his future wife, Mary Barry, when she sat in the singers' seats of the Church on Church Green. (History of the Lincoln Family, page 152).

Mary Barry was remembered as "a very beautiful woman, both physically and mentally," by her nephew, John Lincoln Barry, to whose "Notes" reference has already been made. They lived at first on Fort Hill, Boston; removed to Hingham in 1799, but returned to Boston in 1810, occupying the house in which Major Pitcairn died following the Battle of Bunker Hill. Later they lived in a "rough-cast" house on the site of the present Cushman School, where he died Oct. 17, 1862. After the death of his wife Mary in 1831, he had married (2) his cousin Deborah, widow of Jonathan Thaxter, who survived him.

Chapter VIII.

THE DESCENDANTS OF JAMES BARRY

C-7 JAMES BARRY, seventh child of JOHN BARRY (C-2) and grandson of Captain CHARLES (C-1) was born in Boston June 12, 1768. He married on March 22, 1791, MEHITABLE CRANE who was born Oct. 9, 1773 and died July 26, 1838, outliving her husband who deceased Feb. 14, 1834. They resided on Washington Street, left side, above Dover Street, in a house later designated as No. 1250. (Notes of his nephew John L. Barry).

When a boy, he was apprenticed to Arthur Langford, a cooper, and continued in that occupation until appointed by the Town as Deputy Inspector of Beef and Pork under Stephen Bruce, the first Inspector of these articles under the Laws of Massachusetts. Later, he succeeded Henry Purkett as Inspector General of Fish. The Annals of the Massachusetts Charitable Mechanics Association for 1834 contain this tribute: "No State was ever more fortunate than Massachusetts in obtaining two men of such sound judgement and incorruptible honesty. They raised the reputation of Massachusetts fish to its highest point in the commercial markets of Europe. Such as these were the 'solid men of Boston'. . . . He was admitted to the Association in 1807."

Physically, he was a very large man, as remembered by his nephew, John L. Barry, and had built for himself a chaise of extra width, now the prized possession of his gt-grandson, Charles O. Richardson, who also has his gt-grandfather's Bible and an excellent oil portrait of him. He was a member of the Hollis Street Church in Boston.

Chapter IX.

THE DESCENDANTS OF THOMAS BARRY

C-8 THOMAS BARRY, son of John (C-2) and grandson of Captain Charles Barry (C-1), was born Apr. 5, 1770, at the family home on Purchase St., Boston. He served his apprenticeship in carpentering with a Mr. Tileston and later worked with Joel Cushing whose daughter, SARAH CUSHING he married on Mar. 17, 1793. "He and Mr. Cushing built the houses, corner Essex & Lincoln Sts., Boston, where their families resided until the death of the parents. (These houses were taken down in 1891.) He worked as a carpenter for many years and helped build the State House on Beacon Hill. Opposite his house he built the wharf which extended, on the east side of the present Lincoln St., from Essex Street about to Beach Street. In 1813 he bought the sloop 'Friendship', using her for freighting purposes until she was destroyed by fire of her cargo of lime in Boston Harbor, December 1827.

"He served as Representative in the Massachusetts Legislature, 1812-13, and from 1823 to 1842 was Surveyor of Lumber. After the death of his first wife, he married Mrs. MARY (KINGMAN) GEYER, a widow with children, and by her had three children. His and her children were twenty in number and his house was the popular resort of uncles, aunts, cousins and other relatives. He was a member of the Old South Church and is remembered as a good husband, a good father, a good citizen and an exemplary Christian. He d. Jan. 9, 1847. This is the 'Uncle Thomas' who is mentioned in the account of Rev. William Barry, Jr." (From "William & Esther Barry" pp 71-72). Mary Kingman, Thomas Barry's 2nd wife, was dau. of John Kingman (soldier in the Revolution) and his wife Anna. Their graves are in Copp's Hill Burial Ground, Boston.

Chapter XI.

THE DESCENDANTS OF WILLIAM BARRY

C-10 WILLIAM BARRY, eleventh child and youngest son of John Barry, (C-2), was born at Milton, Mass., Sept. 22, 1778, in the house (still standing) "just across the bridge" at Milton Lower Mills. This house is celebrated as the scene of the meeting of delegates from all the surrounding towns who adopted, Sept. 9, 1774, the "Suffolk Resolves" which were forwarded to Philadelphia and influenced the Continental Congress in framing the Declaration of Independence, nearly two years later. A tablet on his house commemorates this event (see page 19). The John Barrys occupied this house (which was the property of the Voses, their relatives) from 1775 to 1783, returning to Boston shortly before the decease of William's father in 1784.

Upon his father's death, William, then eight years old, was taken into the home of his eldest brother, Samuel (C-4) (see page 28) where he learned the Hatters business in which his brother was successfully engaged. Upon attaining his majority, William established a flourishing business of his own. From 1807 to 1830, his store was in that portion of the Old State House which faces on Washington Street, Boston. In 1830 the entire building was required for occupancy by the City, and "The Boston Hat Store" was obliged to remove to No. 94 Washington Street and, later, to No. 58 on the same street, William's last location before his retirement.

During all these years he was active in civic affairs, also, being a Justice of the Peace, an officer in the local military establishment, Adjutant of the 1st Regt., 2nd Brig., 14th Division in the War of 1812; Assistant Assessor of Boston the last year it was a Town, and a member of the City Council the first year (1822) it was a City. He served in the City Council during the years 1826, 1827 and 1828 also. In 1825 he was Representative in the State Legislature, and assisted in the reception given to the Marquis de Lafayette when the latter paid a visit to Boston in that year.

He was an active member of The Hatters Association, the Massachusetts Charitable Mechanics Association, and St. Andrews Royal Arch Lodge of the Masons. He was deeply interested in religious matters and embraced the Universalist Faith, attending the Church on Hanover Street of which the celebrated John Murray was pastor. Later, he joined in founding "The Second Society of Universalists in the Town of Boston," whose first church was on School Street, and its first pastor the Rev. Hosea Ballou. He served this (and the older Society) for forty years as Deacon and a Memorial Window in the 2nd Society's later Church on Columbus Avenue, named him among the eight deacons thus especially honored.

Although his early schooling was limited, he had an intense love for learning, rising regularly at 4:00 A. M. to study and thus gained acquaintance with literary and scientific subjects and mastered the French and Greek languages. He was especially fond of Natural History and took his children on long walks into the country, engendering in them a similar enthusiasm for Nature and the Natural Scienees. The books he used are cherished by his descendants.

He married, Sept. 5, 1802, ESTHER STETSON, (born July 23, 1874) daughter of John and Rachael (Paine) Stetson of Randolph, Mass., who survived him by nearly four years, passing on March 24, 1859. William died Aug. 11, 1855, his funeral being conducted by Rev. A. A. Miner, D.D., his friend and pastor, at the Columbus Ave. Church. He and his wife are buried in Forest Hills Cemetery. (This account is summarized from the book "William and Esther Barry" pp 5-13, by Esther Stetson Barry, their granddaughter).

Nov. 10, 1835, ELIZABETH CHADWICK WILLARD, dau. of Deacon Cephas Willard of Petersham, Mass. She d. at Chicago, Sept. 25, 1883. He was educated at Derby Academy, Brown University (A.B. 1822), Cambridge (Mass.) Divinity School, and the Universities of Gottingen (A.M. degree) and Paris. He entered the Unitarian Ministry in 1830, preaching at Lowell, Mass. From 1835 to 1845 he was pastor at Framingham, Mass., and while there wrote the highly-valued "History" of that town. Resigning because of ill-health, he travelled in Europe, and on his return became pastor of a newly-formed Church in Lowell, called "The Church of the Pilgrims." Here he continued until 1853, beloved by his parishioners and often exchanging pulpits with Ralph Waldo Emerson, and other preachers of the day. His health again failing, he went abroad, travelling in Syria and the Holy Land. Upon his return, he made Chicago his home, devoting himself to objects of charity and culture. He was the Founder, and for many years the Secretary, of the Chicago Historical Society. He was in Chicago at the time of the Great Fire (1871) and it was long supposed that the Family Bible was then destroyed, but this has proved to be untrue, for that highly-prized book, with its nine pages of family records, was recently sent by Agnes G. Culver, his great-granddaughter, to the editor of the present volume, and its data are embodied in these pages.

Jan. 15, 1837, RICHARD FLAGG (son of Samuel Flagg, a prominent Attorney of Worcester, Mass.) with whom she had become acquainted while a student at Worcester Academy, one of the noted scholastic institutions of the time. They started at once for Alton, Illinois, where their prospective brother-in-law, Mark Pierson, had been in business for five years and had sent back glowing accounts of the opportunities then being opened "in the West". Sarah's brothers George, Charles and John had already responded and when Sarah and Richard made their trip, her sister Rebecca, affianced to Mark Pierson, accompanied them and was married in Alton the following April. (George, Charles and John subsequently returned to Massachusetts but their younger brothers, Amasa and Benjamin, went out later and remained, as did Sarah and Rebecca.)

In Alton, Richard Flagg took an active part in the business and the firm of MARK PIERSON & CO. became a leading concern in the handling of dry-goods. Sarah died at the early age of forty-seven.

Like his brothers, John went to Alton, Illinois, at an early age, but while there decided to prepare for the Christian Ministry. He returned to Boston and studied under Rev. Hosea Ballou, there being at that time no Universalist College. He held pastorates at West Newbury (now Merrimac), Weymouth, West Scituate (now Assinippi), Needham, East Boston, and Arlington in Massachusetts, and was for a short time in Pawtucket, R.I. When the Universalist Publishing House was organized in 1862, he was Clerk of the original meeting and one of the first Board of Directors. He also gave lectures on biological and geological topics. By compiling the STETSON GENEALOGY, he furnished a basis for the Organization of THE STETSON KINDRED which holds annual reunions on the original Stetson property in what is now the Town of Norwell, Mass. His HISTORY OF HANOVER, MASS., and his 3-volume HISTORY OF MASSACHUSETTS are authoritative for the periods they cover. His researches in preparation for these volumes led to the discovery of the long-lost BRADFORD MSS. of "Plymouth Plantation" which was eventually returned from its place of deposit in England and is now preserved in the State House at Boston. His early death (at the age of 53) occurred while on a visit to his married daughter in St. Louis, Mo.

She d. at Chicago, Ill., Sept. 9, 1895. At the age of 16, Amasa left Boston for Alton, Ill., where he entered his brothers' store as a clerk. His aptitude for business was so great that before he reached his majority, he was proprietor of a store of his own. In 1868 he transferred this store to his eldest son and thereafter identified himself with Fire Insurance Companies as Adjuster and Treasurer during his later years, some of which were spent in Chicago, where, after the Great Fire of 1871, he helped close the business of the Illinois Mutual Company.

He was prominent in the civic and religious life of Alton, was one of the organizers of the Unitarian Society, and was very active in the Order of Odd Fellows, holding the office of Treasurer of the Grand Lodge for 15 years. His wife also took much interest in public affairs and was instrumental in starting the Public Library. She took up wood-carving as a pastime and carved the frames for the portraits of William Barry and Esther Stetson Barry which are now (1950) the precious possession of their great-granddaughter, Mildred Barry Kimball, at Glendale, Calif.

PARKER, b. at Roxbury, Mass., June 6, 1850, son of John & Rebecca (Young) Parker. Frustrated in his boyhood ambition of being allowed to prepare for a nomination to the U. S. Military Academy at West Point, Horace Parker joined the Massachusetts Volunteer Militia (which later became the Mass. Contingent in the Nat'l Guard) and from the age of 16 until his death at 88 he was connected with the State Troops, serving as Adjutant of the 1st Reg., Mass. Heavy Art'y, during the War with Spain. In 1916, he was with the Massachusetts Troops at the Mexican Border, and from that date until his death in 1938 continued in the State's Paymaster Dept., with his office in the State House at Boston. He was a Charter Member of the Massachusetts Commandery of The Naval & Military Order of the Spanish-American War and for the 14 years preceding his death was Executive of the National Commandery of that Order, beloved by all its members. In the early years of his business life, he was prominent in the Wholesale Boot & Shoe trade on Federal Street, Boston, where he organized the firm of Parker, Holmes & Co., and, later, that of Parker, Sampson & Adams Co. He was also active in civic affairs, introducing Electric Lighting and Electric Street Railways in the City of Newton which was his residence for many years. He was Treasurer of the Newtonville Universalist Church, in which his wife was President of the Ladies Circle. She was devoted to Church and family interests, a loyal wife and faithful mother.

C-645 WILLIAM CALVIN BARRY (Amasa Stetson Barry, William, John, Captain Charles) was born Mar. 19, 1847 at Alton, Ill. When he reached his majority, his father transferred to him the drug business he had previously established in Alton where he had come, as a young man, from Boston. But, like his father, William felt the "urge of the open spaces of the West." His uncle, Josiah Riley, while fighting under Gen. Kearney in the Mexican War (1846) had become familiar with what is now the southwestern part of the United States, and after the Civil War (in which he participated) he went west to engage in mining in Arizona and Utah and no doubt induced his nephew to follow him about 1870.

Together they located what is now the famous Arroyo Verde Copper Mines which they sold for the "high price" of $6,000 (later worth several million). About 1872 William Barry located at the Salt Marsh in Millard County, Utah, on the Utah-Nevada line. Here he harvested salt, hauling it in wagon-trains of two or three wagons (pulled by 10 or 12 horses) to the silver smelters in Nevada, where it was used in processing silver from the ore. When the smelters later turned to new methods of processing, his business dwindled and he became engaged in sheep-raising at the same place, continuing this occupation until about 1892 when he removed to Salt Lake City, remaining there until the fall of 1899 when he and his family moved to San Francisco and, in 1904, to Los Angeles, where he remained until his death, May 29, 1918, at Glendale, California.

He married in Clover Valley, Nevada, Apr. 6, 1882, MARY ALICE
 CROCKER, b. at Coloma, Calif., Aug. 5, 1860, dau. of John & Catherine Almira (Van Gelder) Crocker of Clover Valley, Nev., pioneers of "The Days of '49" when the "Golden West" was young. She passed on June 19, 1931, at Glendale, Calif.

GERALD FITZ WALTER DE WINDSOR, husband of PRINCESS NESTA

COSMUS, An Italian Baron of the GHERARGINI Family, went from Florence into Normandy, and thence into England about the time (probably) of King Canute's marriage with Emma, daughter of Richard, third Duke of Normandy, and widow of King Ethelred who died A. D. 1016.

WALTER FITZ OTHD DE WINDSOR is mentioned in DOOMESDAY BOOK as in possession of his father's estates. He was castellan (governor) of Windsor during the whole reign of William the Conqueror and from this office took the name "de Windsor." He was Warden of the royal forests of Berks in 1080. He married GWLADUS, daughter of RHIWALLON and widow successively of BLEDDIN, King of Powis, and RHYS AP TEWDWR, the last of the independent Princes of South Wales. They had three sons:

who was Lord of Carew and hence was thereafter surnamed CAREW. He was Steward of the Castle and Governor of the County of Pembroke, and in A. D. 1092 withstood a seige by the Welsh and took over all other castles of Demetia and Cardigan except one. "To root himself deeper in these territories, he married NESTA, daughter of RES AP TEWDWR, last King of South Wales, and by her raised an egregious progeny by whom the maritime parts of the South Wales were retained for the English, later, the Walls of Ireland were stormed." (Giraldus Cambrensis, Vol. VI, page 91.

Editor's Note:

The successive marriages of GWLADUS, (mother of Princess NESTA) are typical of the methods by which powers and properties were acquired in feudal times. Thus GERALD FITZ WALTER DE WINDSOR, in his effort to win the allegiance of the native Welsh, married NESTA (his half-sister) who represented, in her person, the ancient line of Welsh rulers. It was by similar marriages that the Norman Kings of England extended their control. That NESTA transmitted to her sons the vigor of her ancestors, is attested to by their leadership in subsequent conquest of Ireland.

LETTER OF JOSEPH BARRY

Editor's Note: This letter (mentioned earlier in this Volume) is too long to be reproduced in its entirety, but as it contains interesting facts about the writer's father, Rev. James Barry, and the latter's father, Rev. William Barry, the following passages are here given. The letter was addressed to the Rev. Mr. Colman, Pastor of the Brattle Street Church, Boston, Mass. It is dated from Charleston, S.C., Aug. 26, 1740.

Rev. Sir:

Forasmuch as the lives of great men (especially those of the Sacred order) ought to be had in remembrance, for their works sake, I do therefore crave leave to Congratulate you, on account of some worthy Exhortations that fell from your accurate pen and which I have perus'd with Satisfaction, & likewise to Intreat the favor of your Opinion, in two important matters which I shall offer before the close of this letter, Presented from the only surviving son of the Rev. Mr. James Barry, Deceased, who was well known and greatly Esteem'd by the Learned Mr. Samuel and Mr. Nathaniel Mather who (I suppose) were brothers to the pious Dr. Increase Mather, so well known unto you.

The first reasonable request is concerning the Rev'd Mr. George Whitefield, that hath been so much Applauded by many, and by others most Shamefully treated, on Acc't of the Sound Doctrine he Preaches, Agreeable to the Same that our forefathers Taught, which now (in this sleepy age) will not go down in carnal minds. For my own part, I must say, that I believe him to be a true and faithful Servant of Jesus Christ whose blessed Kingdom he hath so much at Heart, and were he not supported by a Supernatural Power he could never proceed in the manner as he doeth; I should therefore be very glad to know your Sentiments of him.

My Second request, is concerning the Singing Psalms in the worship of God, which many persons both Free and Bound, some for the want of books and others who cannot read, are utterly deprived of, by means of the new invented way that hath been Promoted in our places of Public worship, whereas if the Psalms were read out line by line it would Encourage all Persons that are so inclined, to joyn in that Glorious part of Worship, but for some to be singing out of their books whilst many others sit dumb for the reasons already mentioned, cannot be agreeable to the Exhortation of the Great Apostle, who Exhorts that all things be done Decently and in order, and as the old method was utterly thrown out of our congregation (to the great discontent of myself and others) I therefore opposed the late Admir'd way and drew out my objections with many Quotations, and sent them to Rev. Mr. Josiah Smith, our present minister, who soon after came to my house and Told me that he would Willingly fall into the former practice of singing, by having every line read out first, but that most of his people would not admit of it. Now, as several of his congregation are Natives of New England, I do Humbly crave your Opinion in this important matter, to the end, that your grave Sentiments being Read to them, the old forsaken way (by that means) may come to be Introduc'd again (at least one half of the day) in the worship of God, for the comfort of many poor souls who are hindered from singing, for the reasons already mention'd.

I am (almost) of the Opinion that this new Method is one of those Novelties, which I have heard my Old Experienc'd Father say (with tears in his eyes) were crept into the Purest Churches on Earth in no ways Agreeable to his own words, mentioned in a Small tract of his, where he saith, that the Inward Worship and the outward form (in all its parts) ought always to go together, and that God will not be savingly found, but in those Ways which is most agreeable to His Divine Will. ... It's on this Aect (I doubt not) that the singing of Psalms is read out line by line, whenever we are favored with the Zealous Preaching of the Reverend Mr. George Whitefield who so much admires the works of my father, who fought so long under the Banner of Christ, some account of whom (I trust it will not be Burthensome, but rather pleasing to you) I crave leave to Present as followeth, viz:

His life that was wrote by himself at the Earnest Importunity of Rev. Mr. Samuel and Mr. Nathaniel Mather and other Divines, gives a wonderful account of God's Delivering him from many Eminent Dangers when a child, and a most surprising revelation of God's dealing with him under the spirit of Bondage, an account of which, when related to his dear Acquaintances and the said Rev. Mr. Nathaniel Mather, the Rev. Mr. Timothy Taylor and others, they Unanimously Declar'd that they never heard or read of any Person that came so near the Great Apostle Paul, in the manner and way of God's dealing with him in his Conversion, as he did, which Plainly show'd that he was design'd for some Extraordinary Work in the World, that afterwards came to pass, for as he was Disinherited by my Grandfather, the learned Dr. Wm. Barry, on account of his Leaving the Church of England, he was afterwards Persuaded by Several Goodly Divines to take on him the great charge of the Ministry, which he afterwards did to the great comfort, Conversion, and satisfaction of many, and prov'd a Notable Scourge to the Popist Interests, in the Reign of King James the Second, when Popery and Quakerism were coming in like a Floud, and he had been forsaken by his Bretherin in the Sacred Office, none stepping in to help or encourage him against those Adversaries of God's Religion. But He that stood by Paul (when all other preachers in his day Forsook him) stood by this Spiritual Champion and emboldened him, against their Threats and Malice, in his Native City of Dublin, where His Majesty then was, at the Castle, from whence he sent Orders that he should Preach no more, and therefore caused the Doors of his Meeting House to be nailed up. But my said Father, (nothing dismay'd) Resolved to Preach at all hazards, and for that end caused some Partitions in his Dwelling House to be beaten down, and there Preached most Zealously, to the great surprise of many, about which time a Person was sent by the Government to hear him, in order to catch him in his words, but the Powerful Sermon had such an effect over him, that he became truly Sensible of his error and desired to Joyn in full Communion, &c.

Some short time after this, one Lord's day, came the great Earl of Terconnel, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, with some of his Train, on the Same Accounts, but before the close of the Sermon my Father, (knowing his Design) told His Excellency, that the Popists were a Spawn of the Jesuites and the Jesuites a Spawn of the Devil, with some other Expressions and an Exhortation, but no sooner were they Uter'd but Swords and Pistols were Immediately drawn at which Some Gentleman presently open'd a Door at the bak of the Pulpit, Intreating him to come forth or he was a dead man, but he, extremely willing to die there, in defence of the Truth, refused, so that they were oblig'd to pull him out by main force, while others Appeas'd the Prime & General Governour in the meeting, until the next Day when his Lordship waited on the King with an information of what he had heard from the mouth of such a bold Preacher. His Majesty (with Anger and Amazement) said that he did not think he had such a bold Subject in his Kingdom and forthwith Ord'r'd all his substance to be Seiz'd and issued a warrant (with a Considerable reward) for his head, to be brought in (Dead or alive) after he had related the cause to his father, one of his great favorites, whom he prest on, to Accept the Arch Bishop of Dublin, but my grandfather (after most Humble Thanks returned for that kind offer) told His Majesty that as he was advanced in years and had a good estate of his own besides large Livings from the Church, he humbly prayed the King to bestow the Preferment on some more Worthier Person than he was, but His Majesty (still urgent) told him, that he did not know a more Worthier man in The Kingdom than he was, and therefore he should comply with his desire, and I think that after holding that See about two years he laid it down at the coming of the Renowned King William.

The Warrant, as aforesaid, being put into the hand of an officer my Father (by many tears and Entreaty's) was at last Perswaded to take his flight by going into a coach for his more speedy and private conveyance to the Ship, then bound for England; but it so happened, that the said coach was met by the Pursuers who immediately Commanded the driver to come down and open the door of the Coach, which being done, the Officer seeing his Prize, eagerly endeavored to step in, but not being able to enter, he forthwith step'd back making his obeysance and walked off. Thus was this servant of Christ preserved and got safe on Board the ship, which landed him in Cornwall, where he met with great opposition from the papists, as also other great Struggles he was forc'd to beat his way through, in London and other parts of England, for Christ and the Gospel's sake; an Account whereof I here Omitt, fearing I should Trespass on your Patience.

He was no less Eminent for his great Humility and self-denial, in his being Crucified to the World and the World to him, who made it plainly appear in Dispising the Hons. of this Transitory life which indeed is very rare to find in Persons Nobly Descended. Therefore to render his Charact'r the more Conspicuous (with your leave) I will here mention something of his Ancient Stock and Name, which is derived from the Island of Barry in Wales and by the female line from a great Brittain and a Prince of South Wales, whose grandson (to the best of my remembrance) was that Learned Antiquary David Barry# whom King Henry the Second stil'd Cambrensis, making him his Secretary, Tutor to his son John and afterwards Arch Deacon of Brecknock. The Renowned Robt. Barry (so much Commended by Historians) was very servicable in the Conquest of Ireland and was the first man that was wounded in that Expedition for which he was (by he said Henry ye 2nd) Created Earl of Carlingford; but the extenction of that Title caus'd his descendants to be forgotten for some Time, until they were Enobl'd again, in three branches, viz., That of France, where there is one of the first Dukes and Peer of that Kingdom; two are in Ireland, which is the Earl of Barrymore and the Lord Santry. All these considerations of Flesh and Blood he utterly dispis'd for after he had forsaken the Church of England, several of his relations endeavored to bring him back again by their great offers; One of which was his uncle, my grandfather's eldest brother, the Right Hon'ble James, Lord Baron of Santry and Lord Chief Justice of the King's bench, who Expostulated with him in Tears, endeavoring to bring him home to the forsaken Church of which his ancestors had been such Noted and Eminent Members, adding withall, the fair prospect there was of his being advanced to worldly greatness; telling him likewise, that for his part, he would procure him any church that he would name in the City of Dublin, besides allowing him 300 (pounds) per Annum. out of his own estates, which, with the other offers and his Father's large Interests after his decease, would have been a great yearly Income, but all to no purpose, for he told them (with thanks) that he could not answer to God and his conscience, the complying with their kind proposals, &c.

Your abovesaid Brother in Christ likewise shared with you in the great Comfort of having hopeful and Promising Children, five of which are still living. His Third Daughter, Margey (one of the Beautys of Ireland) who was very dear to him, Died suddenly of a bleeding of the Nose in the Nineteenth year of her age, she being well in the Morning when my Father went abroad, & at his return in the Afternoon, he found her dead. This (together with the Prosecution of King James, which happen'd a little after) was a great Tryal to him, whose seventh Daughter, named Mary, he married a little before his death to an Ingenious (seemingly) good man who, some short time after (by taking to evil courses) prov'd one of the greatest Villians in London, for he would not only Abuse his Comoly, deserving wife, but (in his drunken frolicks) would likewise be making away with all She had or got; so that She was forced to fly for Safety from her most cruel Husband to me, here in So. Carolina, where I buried her about five years ago. She was a woman of Extraordinary parts & wrote in as Handsome a Stile and proper English, as any of her Sex I ever See, which Agreed with the Sentiments of the Rt. Hon'ble Thomas, Earl of Macclesfield, Lord High Chancel'r of Great Britain, who used to say that he saw more in her than in many Women.

Thus have I been Troublesome in offering this long Digression which I hope yr. Reverence will Pardon in him who begs to Subscribe (with great Respect)

Worthy Sir,
Yr. most Obedient Humble Servant

THE ANCESTRY OF HANNAH BERRY, WIFE OF JOHN ROGERS

The following notes on the Ancestry of John Rogers' wife are from information gathered by Mr. William Crocker Barry of California.

On June 12, 1672, Samuel Bennett of Rumney Marsh (now Lynn, Massachusetts) sold 30 acres of land in the section now known as Chelsea, to "TEAGUE -A- BARROW". Nine years later, in 1681, the purchaser's name appears as "TEAGO AP BARRO" ("Ap" is Welsh for "son of") and in 1687 it is given as TEAGO BARRY. The following year (1688) it appears as TEAGO BARRY and in 1695 the records show THADDEUS BARRY as holding lands for his father, TEAGO BARRY, the administration of which was granted by Thaddeus to his son THOMAS BARRY who resided at Rumney Marsh. This son Thomas had a daughter Elizabeth who married Captain John Jenks. The latter's grandson, Alonzo Lewis, in a letter dated Jan. 8, 1844, (printed in N.E.Hist. & Gen.Register, Vol.9, pp 201-209) states that she was of a family in Chelsea calling themselves "Berry" but her family name was, in fact "Barry" and that her father's grandfather came from Ireland. Apparently Thaddeus and his family allowed their Puritan neighbors to address them as "Berry" - a name common in England at that period.

THOMAS JONATHAN BERRY, a grandson of the aforesaid Thomas Berry, removed to Rockingham, Vt., where he became known as JONATHAN BARRY and one of his descendants was JOHN STEWART BARRY who was three times elected Governor of Michigan.

Among other children, Thaddeus Berry (Barry) had a son JOHN BERRY who was living in Lynn, Mass. during the winter of 1688-89 when he bought land in Wenham, Mass. to which he removed in 1695. In 1722 he purchased a house and land on the Ipswich River in that part of Salem which was incorporated, six years later, as "Middleton." He was a husbandman and married RACHEL _____ before 1695. He was one of the original members of the Middleton Church and was living in 1734. Among his many descendants was HANNAH BERRY, born in Wenham, Nov. 24, 1696, who married JOHN ROGERS on Dec. 12, 1712. Their daughter, MARY ROGERS, became wife of CAPTAIN CHARLES BARRY (C-1) and mother of JOHN BARRY (C-2).

Records furnished by the Cork (Ireland) Historical Society show that WILLIAM BARRY, 9th generation from SIR WILLIAM MOYLE BARRY (VIII) "had three sons, of whom two were murdered, and the third, McTEIGE BARRY, escaped and went to Massachusetts in the American Colonies." Now this "McTeige Barry" could have been the above-named "TEAGUE BARRY (BARROW)" as their names are similar and McTeige Barry was contemporary with Teague Barry (Barrow).

- William Crocker Barry in a letter dated Dec. 28, 1950.
