

GENEALOGY

OF A

BRANCH OF THE DESCENDANTS

OF

WOLSTON BROCKWAY,

WHO SETTLED IN LYME, CONN.,

ABOUT 1660.

COMPILED BY

A. N. BROCKWAY, M. D.

INTRODUCTION.

About ten years ago I began to prepare a Genealogy of the descendants of my grandfather, Rev. Thomas Brockway, who was for thirty-five years the revered pastor of the Congregational Church in Columbia, Ct. Learning soon after that Hon. Beman Brockway, of Watertown, N. Y., was also giving attention to ancestral matters, and meeting him subsequently, we concluded, as our great-grandfathers were brothers, that we would act in concert in seeing what could be done in the way of collecting materials for a Genealogy of the Brockway Family in America.

A vast amount has been collected, which I hope may some day be compiled in a Genealogy.

At present, I have concluded to offer only a record of the descendants of my grandfather, as full as we have been able to make it. It is not entirely complete, for the reason that many are not able to give correct data of their families.

It has been a labor of love, and I offer it to place on record, in an enduring form, the names of those who have descended from such an honored stock.

A. N. BROCKWAY.

WOLSTON BROCKWAY.

The earliest known mention of this doubtless first representative of this family name in America, and the ancestral head of all bearing it here prior to 1800, is found in the Town Records of Lyme, Ct., where it is stated, that Dec. 3, 1659, he bought "housing and land of John Reynolds, of Norwich, formerly of Lyme, on the East side of the river, over against the town of Saybrook." No prior notice of him has yet been found in either Lyme, Saybrook, or the Hartford State Records. The earliest Saybrook town and church records have been missing for more than two centuries, having, probably, been destroyed by fire, which occurred in the fort and its adjacent buildings at that era. By comparison of dates, it is seen that he came to Lyme in his twenty-first year, and was married soon after. Some twenty years later he became the possessor of a considerable tract of land in the Northwestern part of Lyme, on the Connecticut river, and located his family residence there.

The "deed of sale" from Reynolds to Brockway specifies "his land, upland and meadow, all that was granted him (Reynolds) by the town of Saybrook, for £20." In a sale from that property in 1680, he is named as "Wolston B., Planter," and also "Cooper of Black Hall." In 1682, he sold out to Christopher Chredophus, of New London, for £100, "all of my land purchased of John Reynolds, in the neck of land commonly called Black Point, twenty acres of upland and three and one-half of meadow." In 1687, it was "voted that Goodman Brockway shall have the remainder of his 4th division, in some convenient place between Joshuasland and Fishing Brook, if it be there to be found." In 1682, he was one of the "stewards" with Reynold Marvin, and on the list of proprietors of the town of Lyme, and in 1704 was chosen sheep-master, and was then located "at the third hill to the Westward of Flatrock hill, and his division to the Eastward of the great plain at Tantum Morantum." In 1698, he "was granted by the town the remainder of his proportion," viz: "the neck of land against the lower corner of Twelve Mile Island," and "at the upper end of the meadow, at the fishing brook, up to the landing place, near his house," showing that he then lived in that part of the town. In 1697, was a deed of gift from Wolston B. to his son Wolston of land, "commonly known as the Planting Field, where my said son hath erected himself a dwelling house," near the lot of his own son William. In 1702, he bought of Rev. Moses Noyes forty acres of plough land, and also received from the town two hundred acres at Tantum Morantum. In 1697, he devised land to his eldest son, William, "according to God's command to provide for my children," and also, in 1709, devised property to the same son, in consideration of a legacy bequeathed by his "kinsman, Mr. (Gregory) Wilterton, of Hartford." The particular connection between the two families is not known. Mr. Wilterton, as we learn from the Rev. Dr. Walker's recent "History of the First Church of Hartford," was one of its original members. His tombstone and that of his wife are among the oldest in the ancient cemetery in that city.

In a deed of 1702, he gave his son Wolston certain property, "feeling that he was growing old," and in return Wolston, Jr., promises to provide for his father, but died in 1707, before his father. He also deeded land to "son Richard" and to "son John;" also to the latter "two iron pots and one brass skillet," on Sept. 5, 1716. The record of his children's births was sent to the town clerk Jan. 20, 1683, and it contains no mention of this son John, who is, however, often mentioned in the record of deeds. Wolston also gives Richard the homestead in Lyme, to care for him and his wife. The latest paper signed by him is dated Aug. 1, 1718, he being then about eighty years of age.

Wolston Brockway, Sr., married in Lyme, Hannah Bridges, of that town, daughter of William Bridges, and the number of children recorded was ten. "Goodwife Brockway" died Feb. 6, 1687. Where she was buried is not known. He, without doubt, died at his son William's house, in Joshuatown, near Brockway's Ferry, and was interred in the first burying ground of the family on the hillside in the rear of Mr. Z. B. Warner's home, but no decipherable stone marks the spot. Many of the next generation were buried there, and the stones are still standing, and to be read. Of the sons, William, the eldest, succeeded to his father's homestead, and his descendants are still living on the Brockway property. Wolston, Jr., died early, and his son, Wolston, third, also died young, as in the will of Wolston, second, Samuel is mentioned as the eldest son. The other sons were scattered, settling along the shore of the Sound, and thus being separated from the elder branch, their descendants have been thought to be a separate family. Richard married, and some of his children remained on the old land, but cannot be traced after the record of birth of children of the fourth generation. These children lived in stirring times, and while many entered the army and died for the country, the spirit of unrest engendered by war, and the promise of land at the West, wide enough for homes for all, prompted many to leave the old and tried for new homes in the wilderness, and they took their all and journeyed to Ohio, Vermont, New York, Pennsylvania and Canada, and in the struggle for wife and little ones no time was found for recording the advent of new members of the family, or the departure of the aged.

REV. THOMAS BROCKWAY.

Rev. Thomas Brockway was graduated from Yale College in 1768, and in January, 1772, received a call to settle over the Congregational Church and Society of Columbia. The terms of his settlement were as follows : Voted to give Mr. Brockway two hundred pounds settlement, one hundred to be paid at the end of the first year, and fifty pounds at the end of the two following years. Also to give him ninety pounds salary, and to get him as many cords of wood, yearly, at six shillings a cord, as he desires, not exceeding thirty cords, to be deducted out of the above ninety pounds.

His ordination took place June 24, 1772, the sermon being preached by Rev. Samuel Clark, of Kensington, and his ministry covered the period of the Revolutionary war. It is related of him, that, when the news of the burning of New London was brought to Columbia on the Sabbath, he immediately, after a prayer, dismissed his congregation and "started off, with his long gun, and deacons and parishioners, to assist in doing battle with the enemy."

How long a period his services in the army as Chaplain lasted, does not appear. He was in the service at the time of the evacuation of New York city by the Americans, and being sick, was taken in a cart out of the city, by way of Broadway and the King's Bridge Road, to a place of refuge, where the lady of the house nursed him until he was able to leave and resume his duties with the army.

His pastorate in Columbia covered a period of thirty-seven years. Having been, for several weeks, unable to attend to his duties, he visited Lyme, his native place, for the benefit of his health, and there died suddenly July 5, 1807.

The inscription upon his tombstone at Columbia reads as follows: "In memory of Rev. Thomas Brockway, A. M., who died July 5, A. D. 1807, in the thirty-sixth year of his ministry, and in the sixty-third year of his age. As an husband, he was tender, as a father, affectionate, and as a friend, sincere; as a minister of Christ, he shunned not to declare all the counsel of God, and was wise in turning many to righteousness. 'Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life.'"

Rev. Frederick S. Avery, a successor in the pastorate of the Church, says of him: "And some there are still with us who remember, with reverence, with esteem, and with affection, that holy man of God, who ruled over them so gently, and with such a tender care for the flock, whose words were spoken as by the mouth of God, and whose ministry was manifestly acceptable to the Great Head of the Church."

He married Eunice, daughter of Elijah and Susanna (Lord) Lathrop, of Norwich, where she was born Sept. 13, 1753. She died at Clinton, N. Y., Sept. 16, 1823, and was the fifth generation in descent from the emigrant, Rev. John Lathrop, second pastor of the First Independent Church in London, the first pastor of the Churches of Scituate and Barnstable, Mass. Genealogy from Rev. John: 2d, Samuel; 3d, Samuel; 4th, Col. Simon; 5th, Elijah; 6th, Eunice.

Mr. Brockway's published sermons are: "A Thanksgiving Sermon in Lebanon, Second Society, or America Saved, or Divine Glory Displayed in the Late War with Great Britain," "Virtue its Own Rewarder," and a "Sermon at the Ordination of the Rev. Bezaleel Pinneo, in Milford, Oct. 26, 1796." He also published a poem of 119 pages, entitled, "The Gospel Tragedy, an Epic Poem," in four parts.

REV. DIODATE BROCKWAY.

Rev. Diodate Brockway spent his childhood and prepared for College at a classical school in his native place, and graduated at Yale College in 1797. He taught school for six months at East Haddam, when he commenced the study of theology, under the direction of Rev. Mr. Parsons, and afterwards completed his studies with his father at Columbia, Ct. He was licensed by the Middlesex Association, and after a few weeks commenced preaching in Ellington, being ordained over the Congregational Church there Sept. 19, 1799, his father preaching the ordination sermon, upon a stage erected in the open air. His pastorate over this Church continued until his death—fifty years. In July, 1804, he received almost fatal injuries by falling from the belfry of the Church to the ground, a distance of sixty-five feet, suffering a fracture of one of his thighs and a severe wound of the head. After a partial recovery, Mr. Brockway preached for some time sitting in a chair, being unable to stand for any length of time. In 1827, he was elected trustee of Yale College, and continued a member of the corporation until his death, at Ellington, Jan. 27, 1849. Two of his sermons have been published : "A funeral discourse, delivered at the Meeting House in Ellington, July 3, A. D. 1803, on the Sabbath after the interment of Deacon Gordon Ellsworth," and "A sermon delivered June 25, 1806, at the dedication of the new Meeting House in Ellington." He was married Oct. 29, 1799, to Miranda, daughter of Deacon John and Eunice (Dorchester) Hall, of Ellington, cousin of Capt. Abel Hall, of Lyme, who married Caroline Brockway. Mrs. Brockway died at Ellington March 31, 1824, aged 43.

JARED WARNER FITCH.

Jared Warner Fitch passed his boyhood and was educated at Clinton, N. Y., teaching school near that village. He studied medicine with his father, Dr. John Fitch, and graduated at the Berkshire Medical College, Pittsfield, Mass., in 1829. After practicing at Clinton for a time, he removed to Portsmouth, Ohio, and finally settled in Greenville, Ohio, where his active professional life was passed, and where he acquired an extensive medical and surgical practice. He was married, Nov. 8, 1836, to Adeline, daughter of Gad and Orra Barstow Bulkeley, at Norwich, Ct. In 1848, owing to impaired health, and desiring to retire from active professional life, he removed to Rochester, N. Y., and was in the hardware business until 1852, when he located in Oneida, N. Y., and engaged in farming and other pursuits, as well as pursuing the practice of medicine, in which he continued until the end of his life. Dr. Fitch was ever the trusted physician, as well as the welcome visitor and friend. "He was most genial and delightful in all his associations as friend and physician, as husband and father, and as a man—a Christian man, loved in all the relations of life." He was a public-spirited citizen, loving his country and fulfilling his political duties earnestly and conscientiously. He died suddenly at Oneida, N. Y., Dec. 8, 1881.
