HENRY F. BISHOP

PREFACE.

The object of this little pamphlet is to supply and preserve for future generations the facts herein contained in regard to this branch of the Bishop family. To the late George Bishop Smith, of Chicago, with whom a correspondence for a few years prior to his death was held, the writer is greatly indebted for information that otherwise would have been difficult, if not impossible, to obtain. George Bishop Smith's active life had been spent in newspaper work in various cities. He wrote a short time before his death: "It is a regretful remembrance that my name was at the masthead of the Norwich Courier in 1859, when its daily edition swamped my youthful enterprise." He was anxious to look up his ancestry, and searched in vain for the connecting link with Samuel or John Bishop, the first settlers of Norwich. The writer happily discovered and established this connecting link a few months after Mr. Smith's death, and herewith offers to all our dear kinsmen this little pamphlet as a souvenir.

H. F. BISHOP.

CAPTAIN BURNHAM'S INN

This old stage tavern or inn, was kept for a long time by Capt. Benj. Burnham, who built the present house on an old tavern site. It was kept later by Capt. Reuben Bishop, father of the author, whose boyhood days were spent there; it was a tavern where the stage line between Boston and New York changed its horses. It was, at the time of the cholera scare in '32 and '33, a busy place, where daily three stages in each direction drew up their foaming, panting horses upon the front green, the post-horn's mellow tones having heralded their arrival.

I remember, I remember
The house where I was born,
The little window where the sun
Came peeping in at morn.

* * * * *

I remember, I remember
The elm trees dark and high ;
I used to think their slender tops
Were close against the sky.
It was a childish ignorance,
But now 'tis little joy
To know I'm farther off from heaven
Than when I was a boy.

—Thomas Hood.

In 1634 settlers from Salem founded Ipswich, in the colony of Massachusetts Bay, and the date of Thomas Bishop, as a freeman of Ipswich, is 1636 in the records. "The family history, from Thomas Bishop to Earl Bishop, my grandfather, and other descendants," writes his grandson, George Bishop Smith, "needs details that may be supplied by reference to other than public records," from which are derived the facts herein compiled. Thomas Bishop was a man of affairs, and at his death, Feb. 7, 1671, his estate probated above £5,000, a large fortune for that day. In his active life he was much called upon to serve his town in local office, and at the General Court of the colony in 1666 ; and there is evidence that his name was known and respected in all the then neighboring colonies. He was the founder of the Ipswich family of Bishops, other families of the name deriving descent from his brothers, Nathaniel and Henry, who were among the first settlers and business men of Boston. Margaret, widow of Thomas, survived him, and their sons, named in the will, were Samuel, John, Thomas, Job, and Nathaniel.

Of later dates than the death of Thomas, the records show that Samuel Bishop of Ipswich served (1676) in the King Philip war; and that in 1678 Samuel Bishop had "commonage" at Ipswich, whatever that may mean. Records also show that in 1685 Capt. Thomas Bishop of Ipswich suffered loss of a ship sailing to the Barbadoes.

The needed information to supply a line of descent to Samuel and John Bishop, who were early settlers in that part of Norwich, Conn., subsequently known as Newent Parish, and later as the incorporated town of Lisbon, in 1786, where so many Bishops were born, has been very difficult to trace. The connecting thread of history is, however, direct, and records show, so far as available, that the said ²Samuel, Jr., and his youngest brother, ³John, who emigrated to Norwich, were sons of ¹Samuel of Ipswich, and grandsons of said ¹Thomas Bishop. Of this ¹Samuel Bishop and his wife Hester Coggswell's children, we have little to find in Connecticut records. Their oldest child, Margaret, married a Griggs. She was sister of Samuel and John, whom we have traced down to recent date, even to those now living, though scattered all through the country.

In 1694 that portion of Norwich lands described as "lying between the crotch of the rivers Shetucket and Quinebaug," was by vote of the town sold to purchasers from Ipswich, Massachusetts, representing the Perkins and Bishop families, already established and wealthy at Ipswich, and each having also family connections of established wealth and character at Boston. The Bishops—Samuel and John—who afterward came to the new purchase with other first settlers, are described in Norwich history as "descendants of Thomas Bishop of Ipswich." The new settlement received the name of Newent, in family remembrance of traditions that refer to Newent parish, in Gloucestershire, England; it was also the third parish of Norwich. That it was not a religious colony would be indicated, by the record showing a vote of the town of Norwich threatening extreme measures if a church was not forthwith organized at Newent; and it was in compliance with such a vote that a parish organization was made effective in 1723, the name of John Bishop appearing in the seven selected (according to custom) to be of record as church founders.

Records show the marriage, in 1706, of Samuel Bishop and Sarah Forbes; the marriage, also, of John Bishop, in 1718, to Mary (born 1697), daughter of Thomas Bingham and granddaughter of Thomas Bingham, an original settler in Norwich in 1659. After the death of his wife, this John Bishop married, in 1727, Temperance (born 1704), daughter of Joseph Lathrop, of Norwich. John Bishop was born at Ipswich, in 1685, son of Samuel and Hester (Coggswell) Bishop, and died at Norwich in 1755.

The land title to the Newent purchase was long disputed by the descendants of Uncas, to whom "the crotch in the rivers" had been an ancestral seat of equal beauty and honor. In 1725 the Mohegan title was quit-claimed to "Lieut. Samuel Bishop and others," and in 1745 was altogether surrendered by deed to "Capt. Samuel Bishop and others." This Samuel Bishop was confirmed to his title of Captain in 1737 by the General Assembly of Connecticut Colony, which body at a later date, May, 1754, confirmed Samuel Bishop, Jr., son of Samuel, to be Lieutenant of the Company or train-band in the parish of Newent, in the town of Norwich." ⁴Samuel Bishop's son, ⁵Daniel Bishop, of this Newent-Norwich family, was lieutenant in the regiment (Israel Putnam, lieutenant-colonel), raised in 1759 for the Old French War. He was, in 1768, confirmed as captain of the Newent train-band.

⁶Nathaniel Bishop, brother of ⁵Daniel, also of the Newent-Norwich family, was lieutenant in Durkee's Connecticut regiment, raised in 1776 for the War of the Revolution—a regiment largely drawn from Norwich and its near neighborhood. His name appears also in the rolls of the Connecticut Society of the Cincinnati.

The Bishops and the Perkinses were allied families at Newent, and their wealth enabled them to extend their ownership over an additional 1,000 acres, to which was given the local designation of Hanover (or fourth) parish in Norwich. Their wealth and shipping interests also enabled them to import and keep slaves ; and Matthew Perkins (born 1713) died on his Hanover estate, in 1773, of lockjaw caused by the bite of a slave. This Matthew Perkins married, in 1739, Hannah, daughter of Samuel Bishop, whose wife was Sarah Forbes, as before recited. The widowed Hannah Bishop Perkins died Oct. 28, 1809, aged 87 years, and of her thirteen children a daughter, Hannah, attained the age of 96, a son, Joshua, 93, another son 90; and other ages of record are 83, 76, 68, down to 57 years, only one of the thirteen failing to reach years of maturity. This record of Hannah Bishop and Matthew Perkins presents a striking parallel to that of Sibel Worthington, who attained 101 years, and whose nine children attained ages of 88, 86, 85, 83 and 82 years, down to 60 years. The two women were born respectively, in 1722 and 1727, and their lives reflect, at this distance, at once a view and a record rarely found in the annals of any family. Of the Worthington descendants one of the daughters married Earl Bishop. Their children were named Earl and Lucretia Bishop.

A grandson of Hannah Bishop and Matthew Perkins (as above) was named Bishop Perkins, and was representative in Congress (1853-55) for the Herkimer district of New York.

Where Bishop family records have been unavailable, much information has been derived from the published records of the Perkins and other allied families. The Perkinses of Newent-Norwich are descended from the brothers Joseph and Jabez, who were associated with the two Bishop brothers in the original settlement of Newent. It thus appears that Daniel Bishop (born 1732), son of Samuel and Abigail (Corning) Bishop, married Mary (born July 11, 1735), daughter of Dr. Joseph and Mary (Bushnell) Perkins. This Daniel Bishop died in 1783, leaving Mary a widow. Dr. Joseph Perkins was a son of the Joseph first of record at Newent, and Samuel Bishop was apparently the lieutenant of record in 1754. Daniel and his wife Mary were therefore grandchildren of original settlers of Norwich.

At the same or about the same date as the marriage of Daniel and Mary, the record shows the marriage of Nathaniel Bishop and Lydia, daughter of John and Lydia (Tracy) Perkins. The brides were cousins, and the husbands probably brothers.

REUBEN BISHOP (5).

⁵REUBEN BISHOP was a soldier in our Colonial and Revolutionary war. A Yale College class book for the year 1819, when one of his grandsons graduated (Dr. Elijah Bishop, son of Caleb and grandson of this Captain Reuben Bishop), speaks of the grandfather, "as a captain of a militia company in the Revolutionary war, who accompanied Arnold's expedition up the Kennebec river towards Quebec, and was killed September 24th, 1775." The story of his death as related by his widow to her great-grandchildren and others the present writer remembers very well. She said her husband, the captain, was visited by one of his soldiers who was intoxicated. When the captain ordered him to go to his quarters, and shut the door upon him, the soldier turned and fired his musket through the door, thus fatally shooting his commander. My great-grandmother lived to the good old age of 90 years; and her lips and voice conveyed to my ears many interesting facts which, with those coming under the personal observation of the writer, cover one hundred and fifty years of past history—which must be quite unusual.

The writer has been unable to get much help from existing records, there being no complete records to be found in the then chaotic state of affairs in our history, when Captain ⁵Reuben Bishop gave or lost his life to serve his country. The date of his death (1775) was after Concord, Lexington, and Bunker Hill battles, but before the Declaration of Independence, or Washington's having command of the army. I find in the Colonial Assembly records of Connecticut he (Reuben Bishop) was commissioned as an ensign, in 1771, in the Norwich train-band, but cannot find any confirmation of his being appointed captain. But I understand that in Arnold's army they had power to grant commissions upon the field of service, to those deserving promotion. On Sept. 24th, 1775, when he died (only about eight days after the expedition left Boston or Cambridge for Quebec), they had just time to be near the mouth of the Kennebec River. The Probate Court records of Norwich show the settlement of his estate, which was insolvent. It gave in an appraisal of his military equipments, and shows that his administrators collected and returned credit in pounds, shillings and pence for money received for his services in the army. His widow, Hannah, was left with five sons. She married (second time) Capt. Benjamin Burnham, and had a son and a daughter by this second marriage. She used to relate it as a hard task to care for her five fatherless children when Joshua, the oldest son, was drafted in the last two years of the Revolutionary war, and often said, "It took each year the best yoke of oxen she could raise to buy a substitute for him, as she could not spare him."

This family owned slaves, and after slavery was abolished in the State of Connecticut they were obliged by law to support and maintain those who were too old to support themselves.

As a boy I was fond of paying a visit to old thick-lipped, black Nanny, in a room set apart for her sole use in my grandfather's house, where she could bake her "johnny cake" by the open fireplace.

I had great interest then in an old blue broadcloth stuffed pillion I could see hanging up, attached to a saddle, on which my great-grandmother informed me she used to ride seven miles to church, behind one of the male members of the family, in mortal fear of some unfriendly Indians springing out of ambush upon them before they could realize their danger. It must be remembered that in those early times there were roving tribes of Indians who were not always friendly.

Bundy Hill's settlers in Norwich could plainly look across the Shetucket River upon Sachem Plain, where the Narragansett tribe under Miantonomoh came to attack "Uncas," Chief of the Mohegans, and his warriors. It was not so very long ago, then, that these scenes had become historic to that locality, and the monuments erected to the memory of these chiefs are in that immediate vicinity. Not much more than a generation had passed since Uncas with his signature  and his son Owaneco's signature  were placed upon all deeds of conveyance by them; and even then the living grandson of Uncas, "Atawanehood's" mark  would give title to land disposed of.

REUBEN BISHOP (5).

⁶REUBEN, son of ⁴Caleb, and ⁶Hannah, daughter of ⁴Joshua, were married by Peter Powers, Feb. 10, 1761, and their children (5) have a double line back upon their ancestors. Their children :

⁶Joshua, born Jan. 14, 1762 ; died 1845. Married Welthy Adams.

⁶Caleb, born March 20, 1764 ; died 1842. Married Ziporah Tracy.

⁶Cyrus, born Jan. 22, 1766 ; died 1829. Married ⁶Susannah Bishop.

⁶Earl, born Dec. 29, 1768 ; died 1808. Married Lucretia H. Miller.

⁶Daniel W., born Nov. 24, 1770 ; died 1813. Married Lucy Read.

⁶Reuben's widow, Hannah, married second Benjamin Burnham. Two children were born to them : ⁶Bishop Burnham, born 1783 ; married a Clark, and ⁶Hannah Burnham, born 1786 ; married Dr. Elijah Baldwin, of Canterbury, Connecticut.

CAPT. SAMUEL BISHOP (5).

⁶Capt. SAMUEL, ⁴Ebenezer's son, born 1765 ; married Lucy Lord, 1792 ; she was born 1765. Capt. Bishop was in the Revolutionary army. He emigrated to Attica, N. Y., about 1810. Their children (five) were :

⁶Ezra, born — ; married Margaret —, of Scotch descent, and had two sons, Fitz James and Walter Scott.

⁶Rebecca, born about 1793 ; died childless.

⁶James Lord, born — ; resided in Sturges, Mich.

⁶Lucy Strong, born — ; married Wm. Brewster, of Le Roy, N. Y. Descendants, Wm. S. Brewster, Chicago ; Helen Brewster, married Henry M. Baker, of Hudson, Wis.

⁶Wm. S. Bishop, born 1803 ; married Mary Sayles (first) and Cornelia Rochester (second).

WILLIAM S. BISHOP (6).

⁶Wm. S., moved from Lisbon to Rochester about 1820. He was a prominent man, highly respected by all who knew him. He was made a justice of the peace before he reached his majority, and held many official positions through his whole life. He died 1863, leaving three children by the first wife, namely :

REV. GEORGE SAYLES BISHOP, D.D. (7).

Rev. ⁷GEORGE SAYLES, D.D., a graduate of Amherst College, 1857 ; settled as pastor in Newburgh, N. Y., for several years, and was for twenty years pastor of the Dutch Reformed Church at Orange, N. J. ; has served as a Moderator of the Synod of that organized body. Rev. George S. Bishop, D.D., was chosen Vedder Lecturer before the College and Seminary of New Brunswick in 1884. He has represented in Holland the American branch of his church, and has three times been a delegate to the Pan-Presbyterian Council. His sermons have often been "recognized" and published in the last forty years (as the Christian Intelligencer has said), "for their strong defence of the old school orthodoxy." He was born 1836; married Hannah Williston. They have two sons; a daughter, ⁸Margaret, has died. Children:

Rev. ⁹Wm. S. Bishop, curate of St. John's Chapel, N. Y. He is a graduate of Rutgers College and General Theological Seminary.

⁹Edward H. Bishop, a graduate of Princeton, N. J., is a teacher in New York City.

MARY CATHERINE BISHOP (7).

⁷MARY CATHERINE BISHOP married Merrill E. Gates, LL.D., formerly President of Amherst College. Their residence is Washington, D. C. Their children, ⁸Merrill E. Gates, Jr., a graduate of Amherst College and of Columbia Law School, Class 1902; ⁸Wm. S. Gates is in graduate class of Amherst Union Theological Seminary for 1902.

⁸Margaret, unmarried (1901).

JAMES L. BISHOP (7).

⁷JAMES L., born 1843, a lawyer in New York City, married Martha Maitland. Their children:

⁸Maitland L. Bishop, born 1879, is in Amherst College, class 1901.

⁸Mary Charlotte Bishop, born 1877.

⁸Merrill Bishop, born 1883. Is at Amherst College, in class 1904.

It is well to state that in this paper many difficulties prevent following out each one of the earlier descendants in the line of all their children, also, to state that some Bishops by name appear among the records which may have come from the Ipswich Bishops later than the first settlers, but relatives of said Samuel and John, perhaps some not related at all. It is herein proposed to follow out some of the branches of the Bishops, Samuel and John, or all that can be found of them down to a recent period among those now living, by historic data, which have been carefully searched for, and are too valuable to be lost if their children are ever to have a complete genealogical line. Some miscellaneous records, not easily connected, have been saved for future use should some descendant discover their proper connection.

REV. GEORGE S. BISHOP

The lineal descendants of the cousins 4 Reuben and 4 Hannah, who married in 1761, can be followed to the present day. In reviewing their ancestors of the fourth generation much is, however, obscure, or yet not looked up, in regard to their aunts and their children, although most of them were in prominent families in their day, as was their aunt Hannah Bishop, who married Matthew Perkins. She had as sisters Esther, Sarah, Elizabeth and a Susannah, who all had families not reported here.

HENRY FITCH BISHOP (8).

The writer was one of four in his family who followed the profession of dentistry. Early among the first graduates of the oldest dental college in existence, ⁸Henry Fitch Bishop's name appears as receiving the degree of D.D.S. He practiced for nearly forty successive years in Worcester, Mass.; afterward followed his profession for a few years in Hanover, Germany, before retiring. In publishing this genealogical line pertaining to his family's history he herein asserts that, in reviewing his past life, which has been long "as measured by years," he finds no great achievements to speak of, but relates with great pleasure an incident which was connected with his boyhood days, before he was ten years old, when he, in company with his father, left the dear old homestead on the top of the hill for a three-mile ride to a neighboring farm on which there was a pine timber lot. After making a trade for two dozen small pine trees, he and his father dug them up and returned home with them. The trees were set out by the roadside—on a road leading past the back part of the old farm, not much frequented. At that time there were no pine trees seen for miles around, and they were conspicuous, but often broken down to gratify the passing teamsters, who had a passion to trim and adorn their horses with the evergreen boughs. Fortunately, nine of those twenty-four trees, held up by the writer for his father to plant dirt about the roots, survived and out-grew the strength of the teamsters who would thoughtlessly destroy them.

The result became the pride of his life, and is worthy the imitation of any boy who would do a good and lasting deed—if not for himself, for those who come after him—by setting trees by the roadside in this era of improved roads, thus making the farms more valuable and the country more beautiful. The nine living trees referred to became great sawmill logs, and made fine boards when sawed, from eighteen inches to twenty-four wide, as now seen covering the barns of the place on which they were nailed several years ago. Nor is this all; by their pine needles they seeded down several acres of pasture ground, where a pine forest now exists, of trees large enough to require the help of a saw-mill to handle their lumber.

In that capacity he was called to the late Secretary Seward at Washington at the time of the Lincoln tragedy; and his services were duly appreciated by the late Surgeon-General Barnes, who mentions his name in a marginal note in his published official works as rendering valuable services in that line. He was a soldier in the New York 37th Regiment in 1862 in the War of the Rebellion, and in 1863 was near enough to Gettysburg to hear the cannonading of that great battle while on duty with the reserves as an assistant surgeon of his regiment.

The Bishops of this Ipswich-Norwich stock were not only noted for their patriotism, but they were public spirited in all enterprises requiring energy and patience. They were industrious and frugal, securing thrift and a competency for all needed comforts. They were also temperate in their habits and obedient to laws regulating good morals in the community in which they lived. No records of crime, nor drunkenness, seem to be found attached to them in their history. One of their descendants—a most estimable lady, Miss Rebecca Bishop, of Rochester, N. Y.—writing to Norwich to find out what could possibly be learned of her common ancestry of a hundred and fifty years ago, speaks of them, with much pride, thus: “For they were great—not, like Cæsar, stained with blood;” but they were good men, and took an honorable stand among the early settlers of our country. They were enumerated among the best types of those good, sterling old colonial families which accomplished so much for our national independence, and left an indelible and lasting impression throughout the development of our whole country’s history. This Miss Bishop also wrote: “I love to talk about the old homestead. Perhaps you do not remember that I was born in the same house that our common ancestor, Samuel Bishop, built on Bundy Hill; also that my father and my grandfather were born in that same house.” (It has been destroyed by fire twice and rebuilt since.)

One peculiarity of those earlier settlers which has been very noticeable was in selecting a site for erecting their homes—they placed their houses upon high ground, overlooking large tracts of distant land, as if to draw inspiration of a higher cultivation and to feel and strengthen their ambition into high and still higher aspirations in life. In the early part of the eighteenth century there were in Lisbon nearly a dozen of these sightly homes of the Bishops and their relatives. We give a view of one of them, much like the others:

Alas! the changes which time has wrought! Not a Bishop remains as a resident of the town of Lisbon at the present time. This once thrifty place, with its true aristocratic people, has become so changed that it neither supports a lawyer, a doctor, a post office, nor even a store or blacksmith's shop at the present time. Such a local contrast in the energies of a township could not be better understood than by republishing an historical account of what took place there, by her active inhabitants, in the Revolutionary War times. History says: "On Saturday, Sept. 3, during the earlier struggle in the Revolutionary War, at 4 o'clock P. M., an express arrived at Norwich from Col. Israel Putnam, whose home was not many miles from that locality, that Boston had been attacked the night before and six of the citizens killed. This was but a rumor, but it caused the greatest consternation. The citizens of Norwich assembled about their Liberty Tree, then adjourned to the Court House and resolved to despatch an express to Providence to learn the truth of the report. David Nevins volunteered on this service, as he had on many similar occasions, and departed at 8 o'clock P. M. On Sunday morning 464 men, well equipped and the greater part mounted on good horses, had already started for Boston, under command of Major John Durkee, and rendezvoused at Capt. Burnham's Inn, seven miles from Norwich Court House, where they, at 11 o'clock A. M., were met by the return of Mr. Nevins with information that the report was not true, whereupon they dispersed.

Soon after he graduated at Yale College he was employed to take charge of the Mathematical Department in Washington College at Chestertown, Md., and remained in that institute two years. But ill health, in consequence of too close confinement, compelled him to relinquish the position. He returned to New Haven and began the study of medicine in the medical school there, and on completing the regular course of study, he received the degree of M.D. He commenced the practice of medicine in the village of Freedom, Baltimore County, but finally settled in Smithsburgh, Washington County, Md. (near Hagerstown), where he practiced his profession through his life.

³John, born Sept. 30, 1685 ; died Nov. 14, 1755. Was a brother of ³Samuel, one of the earlier settlers of Norwich, now Lisbon, Conn., since 1786, when Lisbon was chartered as a separate town. They were the oldest and youngest sons of ²Samuel, of Ipswich, Mass., who was a son of ¹Thomas Bishop, one of the founders of Massachusetts Bay settlement, who lived and died in Ipswich.

Abiel Holmes, D.D., LL.D., who was the father of the poet Oliver Wendell Holmes, M.D., LL.D. Capt. Dr. David Holmes was usually addressed with this double title in consequence of his having been a military officer before he received his degree for the practice of medicine. He had been married first to Mehitable Mayo, by whom he had eight children. He had eight more by this second marriage to Temperance Bishop.

⁴Temperance Bishop and Capt. Dr. David Holmes' children will not be followed out in this paper, supposing their genealogical line is already on record and in print ; but will here state it was their second son, born Abiel Holmes, the clergyman, who was the father of the poet Oliver Wendell Holmes.

⁵ John married Lucretia Derby April 3, 1777.

[A John Bishop graduated at Harvard College in 1776, and died in 1833. I conjecture this may be the same who married Lucretia Derby in 1777.]

At the session of 1851 the question was the election of two United States Senators

JONATHAN PARKER BISHOP

—one as the successor to Daniel Webster. This was the beginning of the Free Soil party, which afterward became the Republican party. Mr. Bishop was the candidate of a coalition contest in his town and elected, and it was a life-long gratification to him to speak of his claim that his vote decided the contest which by one vote elected Charles Sumner and Robert Rantoul, Jr., to the vacancies, as Sumner had but one majority after twenty-six balloting, in which Mr. Bishop answered every roll-call and voted. He died July 10, 1865. His wife died Nov. 16, 1877. Their children:

¶ Moses B. H., born 1817; married Abigail Torrey first, Eliza Lavers second.

ROBERT R. BISHOP (7).

¶ ROBERT R. BISHOP and wife Mary have three children : 8 Robert R., 8 Elias B., and 8 Joseph T.

Judge ¶ Robert R. Bishop, who has been on the Superior Court bench in the state of Massachusetts for many years, is held in high esteem and honored, not only by all who know him personally, but for the superior qualifications and fitness he has shown in discharge of his official duties, and for his decisions, which in the main will stand irreversibly the test of time. He was once nominated for Governor, but, unfortunately for the state, he was not elected, because many politicians wanted to see what Gen. Benj. Butler would do, and they saw that he was better fitted to govern rebels in New Orleans than to preside over the good old Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

And so must we, before we're truly blest.

Part III.

A chapter suggesting further search by any persons who may be able to shed light upon facts connected with either Samuel or John Bishop's descendants.

The Samuel Bishops were numerous and not always easy to keep clearly in the line of ancestors and descendants. History gives us a Daniel L. Bishop, son of Samuel and Mercy Johnson Bishop, born 1777; married, 1805, Lucy Perkins, born 1780, daughter of Simon Perkins, of Liverpool, Nova Scotia. She died in 1817 in New York. Their children were:

Simon Perkins Bishop, residing in Cincinnati, very aged, in 1901; Elizabeth Bishop, a daughter, married 1831.

Dr. Daniel Edward Bishop died in England, Dec. 30, 1899.

The above Daniel L. Bishop married, second time, in 1824, *Elizabeth Perkins, who was born 1783 (the sister of his first wife). She died in 1856 at Ithaca, N. Y., where, also, her husband had removed, and where he died. I have not been able to give positively his father Samuel's parentage, but have little doubt he was, John Bishop's son. Of Daniel L. Bishop's children by his wife Lucy, Elizabeth married, 1831, J. Newton Perkins, a prominent and well-known business man in Norwich, New York and Boston as a railroad manager. He died May 13, 1876. They have two children living: Rev. J. Newton Perkins, born 1840; married Emily Soules. He is an Episcopalian clergyman in New York City. A daughter, Elizabeth (1901), resides in Plymouth, Mass. One daughter is deceased, a Mrs. Lucy Perkins Benedict.

Simon Perkins, Jr., of Liverpool, born 1771; married, in 1804, Nancy Ann Bishop, born Jan. 24, 1780, daughter of, Ezra Bishop, son of, Samuel. Thus the brother descendants intermarried.

Ezra Bishop, born 1745; married Anne Lathrop, 1770, and had a son, Henry, born 1777, and a daughter, Anne, born Jan. 24, 1780. (?) The wife, Anne L., died Feb. 23, 1780.

Ezra's daughter Nancy, married Simon Perkins, Jr., of Liverpool, Nova Scotia; and her brothers and sisters, as accredited to Ezra as father, show that Ezra must have married a second time, whom I know not.

The children supposed to be Ezra's by a second wife:

Nancy, born Jan. 24, 1780.

Harry, born Sept. 6, 1786.

Sally Lord, born Sept. 15, 1790 ; died 1817.

Maria, born Dec. 20, 1791.

Abigail Corning, born Nov. 24, 1793.

Samuel, born Sept. 21, 1798.

Ezra (doubtful).

To find a Samuel Bishop of proper age for the father of Daniel L. Bishop we can only conjecture that ³John Bishop's son Samuel must be the one indicated; and if thus right he married Mercy Johnson, as already found in print. Then again we find a record of the death of Daniel L. Bishop, son of a Samuel, in 1794, which I feel sure creates a doubt as to one or the other of these records that have got into type. One Daniel Bishop died 1783, and his widow married again. As a Daniel L. died in 1794, it might be he, and not a Samuel, who was father of the Daniel Lathrop Bishop who married the Perkins girls of Nova Scotia. There were two sons of ³John Bishop and Temperance Lathrop, which might explain and connect the history of some of these Bishops if found, to wit:

Benjamin, born June 16, 1738.	} No further record of them found.
Joseph, born Aug. 31, 1735.

³John's son Samuel, born Nov. 21, 1745 (whose son Daniel L. Bishop as mentioned above), could be right.

A Hannah Bishop married Daniel Lathrop, Feb. 14, 1797. To what family did she belong?

Capt. ⁴Samuel Bishop, who married Abigail Corning, as has been recited and authenticated, had a daughter whose history can be further followed than has been related. Their daughter, ⁵Abigail married Joshua Perkins, and their daughter ⁶Tabitha married Benjamin Burnham, and ⁶Tabitha's sister ⁶Abigail Perkins married Barnabas Huntington, and their daughter ⁷Lucy married ⁷Barzillai Bishop. Their son ⁸Nathan Perkins Bishop who married Nancy Lee celebrated their golden wedding a few years ago. The writer who was present at the wedding of his cousin Nathan P. to Nancy Lee, and, fifty years later, was also present at their golden wedding, remembers, among other things mentioned on that occasion, an enquiry about a piece of china formerly owned and used by A. B. Perkins, by her obtained from England, having on it a "coat of arms." The Perkins' families must have had all claims to it, and it was consequently given to Barzillai Perkins Bishop, a member of the firm of Harwood, Bishop and Bidwell, of Norwich, Conn.

THE ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY OF THE NEWENT CHURCH.

The celebration of the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the Lisbon Church (Newent) took place in 1873. The writer was present and participated on that pleasant occasion when the letters from non-residents and invited guests were read. One most attractive letter, describing the virtues of his grandmother, Temperance Bishop, and his high respect and love for her memory, was received from Oliver Wendell Holmes over his own autograph. This letter, I am sorry to say, I am unable to get and place imperishably before the Bishop where it naturally belongs.

Once more to time's old grave-yard I return

APPENDIX.

No doubt, if we had the English records at hand, we should find that many more Bishops now in this country were traceable to and connected with this Thomas Bishop stock of Ipswich and Massachusetts Bay settlers.

Many families of Bishops in New England, not supposed to be related now, might possibly find ancestors in Thomas Bishop's brothers or in his children or grandchildren, as several of them are referred to by name only, but without other records.

There were two brothers of his : Nathaniel and a Henry, in 1671, and three sons, Thomas, Jr., Job and Nathaniel, as well as one grandson, Thomas, brother of Margaret, Samuel and John, herein described ; and no doubt these four children of Samuel and Esther Cogswell had other brothers, for the parents were reported to have had nine children.

Samuel's descendants :

⁶ Ebenezer, Jr., born 1767, ⁵ Hezakah, born 1772, ⁵ Elijah, born 1742, son of ⁴ Caleb.	} Sons of ⁴ Ebenezer.	} Unable to trace down their children, if they had any.
John's descendants :
⁴ Joseph, born 1735, ⁴ Benjamin, born 1738, ⁴ Zeria, born 1742,	} Sons of ³ John.

Joseph Bishop, on page 36, should have place among the children of John Bishop under his brother Benjamin.

There is an uncertainty as to whether John Bishop married Lucretia Derby. If so he was but eighteen years old at the time of marriage.

That the John Bishop of Bradford and of Medford, Mass., who was a graduate of Harvard College, is claimed as an ancestor of the late Heber R. Bishop of New York may be true, but that he was the one who married Lucretia Derby is extremely doubtful ; for she was married to a John Bishop by the Rev. Joel Benedict, a clergyman settled in Lisbon, Conn., formerly Norwich.

Page 39. A more extended account of the descendants of Samuel and Mercy Johnson Bishop has been recently published in history of Lisbon, where it has been claimed that four brothers came from Isle Guernsey to Lisbon and vicinity—John and Ebenezer settled there, while as to Daniel and Nathaniel, one settled in New Haven, the other near New London.

This Daniel Lathrop Bishop, born Oct. 20, 1777 ; died Nov. 26, 1848.

His son, ⁴Samuel Perkins Bishop, born 1807 ; died 1902. (Not Simon, as in the book.)

Has four sons living in 1903 : ⁵Daniel Lathrop, born 1847 ; ⁵Henry Hunter, born 1852 ; ⁵Edward Perkins, born 1859 ; ⁵Newton Perkins, born 1865.

The above ⁴Samuel Perkins Bishop had a brother, Dr. Daniel Edward Bishop, died Dec. 30, 1899, in Europe, and a sister, Mary Johnson Bishop, who married a Thompson, and she had a daughter, Elizabeth, married a Mr. Converse. They now reside in Philadelphia, Penn.

On this 39th Page of the Bishop Genealogy as also on Page 79 of Lisbon Historical sketch, a traditional misleading, is possible in regard to the four Bishop Brothers, emigrating from Isle of Guernsey, England, to Lisbon. This town was not incorporated till 1786. Besides, Norwich (that part now Lisbon) had a John Bishop, born 1731—see Page 33—and an Ebenezer Bishop, born in 1725—see Page 10, Bishop Genealogical Pamphlet, whose descendants have been traced and correctly given. Emigrants might have settled in New Haven, New London and Long Island, as in Lisbon, later on named Bishop, but not connected with those of whom we have definite records.

There has been recently found an important "ancient diary," which gives much light to corroborate history, which I have known about, and searched all the Libraries I could get at for important facts, which I knew about, yet, could not verify. This diary has been printed in the Bridgeport Standard and two or three other newspapers. Just at this time it is in the possession of the Connecticut Society (Historical) and probably they will publish and own it. Its importance to me is, that it gives the names of my great grandfather, Reuben Bishop, and his brother, Elijah Bishop, and a distant cousin of theirs, Benjamin Bishop, upon the Roll of Major Durkee's Company, which was from Norwich, Conn., now Lisbon. The first two were sons of Caleb and grandsons of Samuel, and Benjamin was son of John—see Page 34.

All historians must be very thankful to Mr. Wm. P. Eddy, of Brooklyn, who has preserved and now placed upon record, where it cannot be lost, this valuable Historical diary.
