INTRODUCTORY.

THE first part of this book is taken from "Genealogies of the Families and Descendants of the Early Settlers of Watertown, Massachusetts, including Waltham and Weston; to which is appended the early history of the town; with Illustrations, Maps, and Notes, by Henry Bond, M. D. Vol. I. Genealogies. Boston: Little, Brown & Company. 1855."

"In England and her colonies the Julian Calendar was retained until 1752, when the Gregorian Calendar, or New Style, was adopted by an act of Parliament. In 1582, Pope Gregory dropped ten days from the Julian Calendar. The year 1700 was a leap year according to the Julian (O. S.) calendar, and not according to the Gregorian (N. S.) calendar, thus increasing the difference to eleven days. We have inserted dates as they are found in the ancient records, without altering them so as to correspond with the New Style. In order to make the dates previous to 1752 correspond with the New Style, it is necessary to add 10 to dates of days between 1600 and 1700, and 11 to the dates between 1700 and 1752. Thus: Watertown Church was organized July 28, 1630 O. S., which would be August 7th, N. S. According to the Julian Calendar, or Old Style, the year began March 25th, and the same days, between January 1st and March 25th, belonged to different years in the old and new styles. This occasioned double dating." Thus: Jonathan Coolidge, b. March 10, 1646-7 (or 164<sup>6</sup>), means 1646 Old Style, or 1647 New Style. By recurring to § 57, p. 1000, it will be seen that, in the records of Watertown previous to 1648, the year was considered as beginning on the 1st of March, but not after that date.

Under the same Roman numerals are included the people of the same generation.

OF SOME OF THE

DESCENDANTS OF JOHN COOLLIDGE.

It is supposed that the name Coolidge may have been derived from the village of Couling, or Cowling, in Suffolk, England, on the borders of Cambridgeshire. Probably Collins came from the same source. There being no fixed way of spelling names in former days, people writing them as they sounded to the ear, the name has been spelled at different periods; Couling, Culling, Colyng, Cullidge, Coledge, Cowlidge, Coollidge, etc., and Coolidge.

- I. John Coollidge, b. 1604; d. May 7, 1691. Wife Mary, d. Aug. 22, 1691, aged 88. One of the earliest proprietors of Watertown, Mass. He came from Cambridgeshire, England. The date of his arrival is uncertain, probably towards 1630. Admitted freeman, 25th May, 1636; selectman, 1639; representative, 1658.

His residence (homestead) in 1642 was bounded on the N. by Cambridge line, W. by Wm. Paine, E. by David Fiske, and S. by highway to the pond.

- II. 1. John, probably born in England, p. 6.
2. Elizabeth (?), m. June, 1656, 2d wife to Gilbert Crackbone, of Cambridge.
3. Mary, b. Oct. 14, 1637; m. Isaac Mixer, Jr.; d. Nov. 2, 1660, leaving two daughters, Sarah and Mary.

7. Nathaniel, d. Nov. 3, 1711, p. 6.
8. JONATHAN, b. March 10, 1646-7, p. 7.

Elizabeth is supposed to be his daughter; she died before the date of his will, and without issue. Mary Coolidge, who married Isaac Mixer, is mentioned as the only daughter of John and Mary Coolidge.

Page 165: "Grace, widow of Roger Porter, in her will, proved 1662, mentions John Coolidge as her brother. Perhaps she used the term only to denote Christian affection."

In the will of John Coolidge, dated Nov. 19, 1681, he names all his sons but Obadiah, who died 1663, probably unmarried. He mentions his granddaughters, Sarah and Mary Mixer. Date of will, Nov. 19, 1681; proved June 16, 1691.

Marguerite Olivier was the daughter of Anthoine Olivier, a French Huguenot, who, with his relatives of the Segourné and Germaine families, embarked at La Rochelle for New England, in consequence of the revocation of the Edict of Nantes in 1685.

He moved from Boston to Port Royal (Annapolis), Nova Scotia, and after a few years returned to Boston.

The first volume of his French Bible, containing the names of his fifteen children, is in the Boston Athenæum, to which it was given by Elisha Sigourney, July 16, 1810. It was printed in Paris in MDC LXXV.

Marguerite Olivier was married three times: At the age of 20, (1) Nov. 18, 1746, Joseph Coolidge, of Boston, who died Sept. 14, 1771; at the age of 49, (2) Dec. 26, 1775, "Cap. After the marriage of his granddaughter, Eleonora W. Randolph, to Joseph Coolidge, Thomas Jefferson gave him the desk on which he wrote the Declaration of Independence. After the death of Joseph Coolidge, 1879, his heirs, Mrs. Ellen R. Dwight, Mr. J. Randolph Coolidge, Dr. Algernon Coolidge, and Mr. T. Jefferson Coolidge, offered the desk to the United States, considering that the Department of State, where the original Declaration of Independence was kept, was the fittest place for it.

It was a little writing-desk three inches high. Upon it was the following inscription, which Mr. Jefferson had written himself and placed upon it : —

"Thomas Jefferson gives this writing-desk to Joseph Coolidge, Jr., as a memorial of affection. It was made, from a drawing of his own, by Benjamin Randall, cabinet maker of Philadelphia, with whom he first lodged on his arrival in that city in May, 1776, and is the identical one on which he wrote the Declaration of Independence. Politics, as well as religion, has its superstitions. Those gaining strength with time may one day give imaginary value to this relic for its association with the birth of the great charter of our independence.

"Monticello, Nov. 18, 1825."

It was presented to Congress on August 22, 1880, by the Hon. Robert C. Winthrop. Both houses took formal notice of the gift.

Two copies of the desk were authorized to be made, one for the Hon. Robert C. Winthrop, and the other for the Hon. John Randolph Tucker, of Virginia, in consideration of their part in the matter.

Not long after, a number of copies of it were made in the cabinet shop of the Treasury Department, and distributed around.

THAT FRENCH BIBLE.

MR. EDITOR, — I am indebted to your highly intelligent correspondent, "G. L.," in the "Transcript" of January 23. I have examined the Bible, — a ponderous volume it is, — and I have no doubt that it is the identical Bible so often and so devoutly opened in that little church of the Huguenots in South Latin School Street by those amiable and excellent men, Pierre Daillé and André Le Mercier.

The Rev. Dr. Holmes, in the appendix to his memoir of the French Protestants, referring to this Bible, remarks that it is "the only remaining relic of the Protestant French Church." Let us hope that the Doctor was mistaken. I know not why the sermons of Le Mercier — his autograph — are not a relic of that church as truly as the Bible from which he selected his texts; and, already, an obliging clerical friend has favored me with one of André Le Mercier's manuscript sermons, "sur la 2 Épître de Saint Pierre, chapitre 1, versets 1 et 2 et 3," bearing the following memorandum: "À Boston, le troisième jour de May, 1719."

Judge Richard Cranch, the brother-in-law of the first President Adams, was a particular friend of Le Mercier, and, after his death, is said to have become the custodian of his papers, and, among the mass, of his sermons also. A friendship between such men may be readily believed to have existed: both were eminently moral and religious men, and a large portion of Judge Cranch's life was devoted to theology. After his death, in 1811, at the age of eighty-five, the sermons of Le Mercier fell among the descendants of the Judge, by one of whom some of those sermons were presented to the reverend gentleman who has kindly sent one of them to me.

The portrait of Le Mercier is still extant. A highly respected friend writes me thus: "It is now in the rooms of the Essex Institute, — an institution formed several years since by a union of the Essex Historical and the Essex Natural History societies, — where it is in very safe keeping, and duly appreciated. It is in a state of good preservation, has an old black wooden frame, gilt round its inner edge, or once was. The painting has quite a fresh appearance. The picture has no signature or date, nor is there anything about it to indicate who was the artist. It appears to be drawn in canonicals, with white bands, powdered wig (a small wig), and a colored robe, thrown loosely over a black dress, without any show of hands or arms. On the top corner, back of the portrait, are the words, 'In Christo;' on the opposite top corner, 'Vita est;' and on the lower corner, under this, 'Mori: Mercerus.' The original seems to have been a bright, good-looking man, about forty years old."

Another friend informs me that his grandfather, the Hon. Thomas Cushing, Speaker of the Massachusetts House of Representatives before the Revolution, who died in 1788, was very much attached to Le Mercier, and owned this portrait, which my informant well remembers. It fell into the possession of his uncle, Col. Thomas Cushing, of Salem, who married an Orne, and through him, undoubtedly, passed to the Society.

And now, my dear Mr. Editor, while we are talking of Bibles, it may not be uninteresting to our obliging friend, C. L., who, I am aware, has a particular interest in this topic, nor to some others of your readers, to hear what may be said of another Bible. I refer to that which among the descendants of the Huguenots in New England is known by the name of the "Olivier Bible," having been the property of old Anthoine Olivier, — for he spelled his autograph name, as appears upon the fly-leaf of his Bible, now upon my table, with an "h." Many of his descendants will not be displeased with me for multiplying copies of old Anthoine's original record, in his own handwriting, of the births and deaths of his children. His quiver seems to have been full of them. Fifteen are recorded, on the two first and last fly-leaves of the first volume, as born between 1712 and 1731, inclusive.

The Bible of which I speak is a thick-set, chubby quarto, in two volumes. I have seen the first volume only. The titlepage of the first part of the first volume runs thus: "Histoire De La Sainte Ecriture Du Viel et Du Nouveau Testament, en forme de Chatéchisme. Traduite de l'Anglois. Se Vend à Charenton, Par Antoine Cellier, demeurant à Paris, rue de la Harpe, à l'imprimerie de Roziers. M. DC, LXXV." The first volume extends to the end of "II Chroniques."

The first forty double pages contain "Histoire de la Sainte Ecriture." The next ten pages contain "Abrégé De La Chronologie Sainte." Then commences "La Sainte Bible," etc.

This book bears the marks of diligent and reverential use; for though the leaves have evidently been frequently turned over by the fingers of those old Huguenots, not even a pencil-mark has profaned its sacred pages. It was presented to the Boston Athenæum, July 16, 1810, by Mr. Elisha Sigourney, a descendant from the Huguenots. Where is the second volume? It appears not to have been presented by Mr. Sigourney to the Athenæum.

By common consent the Oliviers, for very many years, have become Olivers, to the great annoyance of all genealogists. The English and the French stocks are entirely distinct. The English Olivers were among the early settlers. Prince, in his Annals, II., 70, names Elder Thomas Oliver, whose son was admitted freeman in Boston in 1640. John graduated at Harvard in 1645. Elder Thomas Oliver himself came here in 1631. Daniel Oliver, a member of the Council of Massachusetts, died in 1732. Lieut. George Andrew Oliver, the grandson of Elder Thomas, is better known as the distributor of stamps during Hutchinson's administration. Chief Justice Peter Oliver died in 1791. Judge Oliver, who wrote about comets and water-spouts, died in Salem in 1799. All these and many more were of the English stock. But I must say no more of these Olivers, or the reader may wish me in Oliver's dock, and give me a Rowland, perhaps, for all these Olivers.

Now, the Oliviers, who have suffered the printers to knock their "i's" out, are a race totally distinct. There is as wide a difference as Mr. Burke said there was, when correcting a member who confounded Matthew Montague with Montague Matthew, between a horse-chestnut and a chestnut horse.

The Oliviers came not here until the revocation of the Edict of Nantes, in 1685, compelled them to fly.

Should this French Bible be lost, a record which must be of great value to the descendants of old Anthoine Olivier must be lost forever. Lend me your types, Mr. Editor, for its preservation. I give only the names, precisely as they are spelled by the old paterfamilias, with the dates:—

1712. Sept. 3. Jean born.	1721. Sept. —. Anne Annapolis Royal born.
1713. July 12. Seuseon (Susan) born.	1721. Dec. —. Anne dies.
1715. Feb. 4. Antho. Olivier born.	1722. Aug. 29. Jeanne born.
1716. Aug. —. Antho. Olivier dies.	1723. Dec. 13. Marianne born.
1716. Feb. 16. Marrie (Mary) born.	1724. Sept. 20. André born.
1717. Ap. 16. Jeanne (Jane) born.	1725. Sept. 18. Gillaoume (Gillaume) born.
1717. Oct. —. Jeanne dies.	1726. Nov. 8. Marguerita born.
1719. Mar. 20. Daniel born.	1727. Dec. 21. —ane born.
1720. Aug. 20. Jeanne Annapolis Royal born.	1731. June 15. Elizeabet (Elizabeth) born.

Eight of these children — the first in order — were born in Boston, the remaining seven in Annapolis Royal, in Nova Scotia, which was the Port Royal of the French, and settled as early as 1608. The old gentleman seems to have had a great partiality for that seaport, since he bestowed it as a name in baptism on two of his children.

A few facts, historical and genealogical, may be gathered from Antho. Olivier's record. It may be concluded that Le Mercier took charge of the French Church between February, 1715, and February, 1716; for Pierre Daillé baptized all the children of Olivier before the latter date, and André Le Mercier those born in Boston after the former date, and each is called "ministre de l'Eglise Française, de Boston."

From the names of those by whom the children were presented in baptism, and their stated relation, it is clear that "Seuseon Johonnot" was the aunt of Olivier's children; that "Daniel Johonnot" was their uncle; and that old "André Sigourney and Mary, his wife," — probably an Olivier, — were their uncle and aunt.

If the reader will turn to the Massachusetts Historical Collection, XXII., 79, he will find an allusion by the Rev. Dr. Holmes to "Mrs. Wheeler, a widow lady, the mother of Mr. Joseph Coolidge, an eminent merchant in Boston" (meaning Mr. Joseph Coolidge, Sr., who resided in Cambridge Street, between Bowdoin and Temple Streets, forty-five years ago). "She was a branch of the Germaine family, and related to old Mr. Andrew Sigourney." This lady was thrice married. Her first husband was the father of the Mr. Joseph Coolidge referred to; and she, as I am informed by her lineal descendants, was the Marguerita Olivier named in the record as born November 8, 1726.

Of all occasions upon which one should fall into temptation, the very last is that upon which he is gravely occupied in turning over the pages of the Holy Bible. But we are poor, frail creatures, are n't we, Mr. Editor? Between the leaves at page 67, just where the twentieth chapter of Exodus begins, I found a rose. The leaves were perfect; the flower had lost its color, but a small bud retained enough of its original complexion to show that it would have served for the badge of Lancaster.

I longed to steal that rose. "It is a Huguenot rose," thought I, "placed there, very probably, by Miss 'Seuseon' Olivier or Miss Marguerita!" I began to be very sure of it. The temptation to steal that rose waxed stronger and stronger. I really coveted that rose; for I have a little granddaughter who is a lineal descendant; a great-great-great-great-granddaughter, of that old Huguenot, Anthoine Olivier, and I wished to keep the relic till she grew up, and I should be able to tell her its history.

Well, I took the flower up by the stem, and was half inclined to "verify the suggestion," to use the modern phrase, — that is, to steal it, — when my eye suddenly fell upon the fifteenth verse of that twentieth chapter, "Tu ne déroberas point"! The rose dropped from my fingers, and I closed the book.

And now, my dear Mr. Editor, once again, where are the records of that French Church? The church and land were conveyed to Thomas Handyside Peck and others, Mr. Crosswell's people, May 7, 1748. Le Mercier was then living, for he is named as one of the grantors. The only surviving elder was Stephen Boutineau. If the records went into Le Mercier's hands, the descendants of Judge Richard Cranch may still be the unconscious proprietors of those records. Stephen Boutineau died in Boston. The "M. Boutineau," the refugee, who is stated in the "Salem Gazette" of November 6, 1783, to have died in exile, was James, the son of Stephen. The recovery of these records will not only, as our friend G. L., observes, be of importance in a historical point of view, but the genealogist will be greatly rejoiced. I have reasons for believing they are yet in existence, but neither time nor space allows me to state those reasons here.

True, they may be lost. Trunk-makers and cooks are no respecters of records. He who penetrates to the bottom of a mince-pie may, peradventure, find a jewel; and some forty years ago I was the happy proprietor of a small trunk lined very prettily with Robert Bloomfield's "Fakenham Ghost."

Dr. Dibden, on page 6 of his "Biblia Polyglotta," relates a pleasant story respecting the Ximenes Polyglot: "Professor Moldenower, who was in Spain in 1784, went to Alcala for the very purpose of discovering these MSS., and there learnt, to his inexpressible chagrin, that about thirty-five years before they had been sold by an illiterate librarian — 'como membranas inutiles' — to one Toroyo, a dealer in fireworks, for the purpose of making rockets. Martinez, a man of learning, and particularly skilled in the Greek language, heard of it soon after they were sold, and hastened to rescue these treasures from destruction. He arrived time enough to save a few scattered leaves."

And thus the leaves of Ximenes's Polyglot became illuminated manuscripts.

Andrew Le Mercier, after the sale of the church, in 1748, resided for a time in Dorchester, but resumed his residence in Boston, and died here, after a tedious and protracted illness, March 31, 1764, at the age of seventy-two. He published, 1732, "The Church History of Geneva" and "An Account of that Republic," where he received his education. Dr. Chauvry's copy is now in my hand. Le Mercier also published, in 1733, "A Treatise against Detraction." I have before me a copy, bearing on its titlepage, "John Colman ex dono Peter Chardon." Both these performances are duodecimo volumes, and highly creditable to the head and the heart of the writer.
