PREFACE.

This work has been in preparation for several years. It is not complete, but it is given out now to arouse interest in the subject. We trust that where the record is incomplete the proper data will be sent us. There are some families which we have not been able to connect with this history at any point, but which no doubt can be traced to some connection. Mr. Sanborn contemplates a larger work and we ask all to send him as complete a record of their family as possible. Whatever mistakes there are—and there are mistakes—we hope that all will help us by calling our attention to the same so that they may be corrected in the larger work. Our thanks are due to all who have so kindly furnished us information for this work.

Relationship is traced by numbers. For example, the last name, Roland Heath Cate, is 659 and after his father's name, Frederick Symon Cate, stand the numbers 624, 475, 200, 156, 84, 34, 11, 2, 1. These numbers give the names of Roland Heath Cate's fathers grandfather, great-grandfather, etc. There are three indexes: the Cate family, the Cates family, and families marrying into the Cate and Cates families; this last includes the maiden name of the mother. Dates in parentheses belong to the wife or husband only.

EARLIEST RECORDS.

Cate, Cates, or Catt: "William and Roger Catus, of Normandy—1180; Roger Catus—1198; Radulphus Cattus, of Lincoln—1189; Alexander Le Kat in England—1272. The family long flourished in Norfolk."

[The Norman People.]

"Cates, Jo., aged 17, passenger on the Assurance de Lo (de L'eau) for Virginia—1635; John Kates, age 23, passenger on the Safety for Virginia August, 1635."

[Authority not known.]

Assurance and Safety may be a translation of the same word. These, perhaps, were brothers. A John Cates died in Virginia in 1623 or earlier.

Catt—Nickname, "the cat," a sobriquet affixed on the nominee for some supposed sleekness of manner, etc. A well-known Norfolk surname at least six centuries old in that country.

Adam le Kat.

Milo le Chat.

Elyas le Cat, Norfolk Co.

Reginald le Cat, Essex Co.

Henry le Catt, Norfolk Co., 14 Edw. I.

April 14, 1751, Thomas Cates, Bowling Alley.

[Burial Register of St. James', Clerkenwell.]

"In memory of Mr. John Cates. He was a gentleman born in England and the first settler in the town of Windham. By his last will and testament he gave a generous legacy to ye First Church of Christ in Windham, in plate, and a generous legacy in land for ye support of ye poor, and another legacy for ye support of ye school in said town forever. He died in Windham, July ye 16th, A. D., 1697."

[Tombstone in Windham, Conn., churchyard.]

"Lieutenant John Cates, a pious Puritan who served in the wars of England, holding his commission under Cromwell. When Charles II came to the throne, he fled to this country for safety. He landed first in Virginia, where he procured a negro servant to attend him. But when advertisements and pursuers were spread through this country to apprehend the adherents to the Protector, he left Virginia, came to New York, and thence to Norwick. Still feeling that he would be securer in a more retired place, he came to this plantation, dug the first cellar, and with his servant raised in Windham the first English habitation in the spring of 1689. After leaving legacies to church, town and school of Windham he willed the rest of his property to Mary Howard, 'unless my child or any of my children now in England should come to New England.'"

[Historical address delivered at Windham, Conn.]

It is probable that a son of Lieutenant Cates came to Connecticut as there was a Cates family in Windham, Co., in 1780.

SOUTHERN FAMILIES.

Some records of southern families have been found but nothing complete. Benjamin B. Cates (M. D., University of Pennsylvania, 1888,) is a physician in Knoxville, Tenn., and Professor of Surgery in the Tennessee Medical College, (Knoxville, Tenn.) His brother, Reuben L. Cates, a graduate of the Yale Law School, is District Attorney-General for Knox County, Tenn., and his cousin, Charles Theodore Cates, Jr., is Attorney-General for the State of Tennessee and Supreme Court Reporter.

The southern family starts with Joseph Cates and John Kates, who immigrated to Virginia in 1635. Some of their descendants emigrated thence to Orange Co., N. C., and thence spread through Kentucky and Tennessee. We find both spellings of the name—Cate and Cates. Some families have been found both here and in New England with spelling Kates.

Joseph and Deborah (Cobb) Cates, (Gorham, Me.), (33-11-2-1.)

"Joseph Cates was a citizen (of Gorham, Me.) before 1765. He was esteemed as a man of ability and one of the strong pillars of the Congregational Church; he was one of the selectmen in 1768, and on various important committees during the War of Independence. Mr. Cates was a Deacon and Ruling Elder of the church for many years."

[Judge Pierce's History of Gorham, Me.]

"Joseph Cates was a resident of Falmouth (Cape Elizabeth) as early as 1745. April 8, 1745, he was published to Deborah, the youngest daughter of Joshua, Jr. and Elizabeth (Vaughn) Cobb. (I maintain that this is an error and that this Deborah was the daughter of Jonathan Cobb, as is proved by papers in the office of the Cumberland Co. Commissioners at Portland, Me.—M. R. S.) In 1748 Joseph Cates purchased a lot of land in Cape Elizabeth, on the road leading from the ferry to the meeting house, where he probably lived. May 11, 1772 he sold this land, as he was then living in Gorham to which he probably moved in 1756. A man of good abilities, he held many important offices in the town and was much beloved and respected by his fellow-citizens. His farm in the "Quaker neighborhood" was occupied after his death by his sons Benjamin and Ebenezer and lately by Richard Willis a (lineal) descendant."
