TO ONE WHO HAS GIVEN ME MUCH OF INSPIRATION AND ENCOURAGEMENT TO PUSH AHEAD IN A FIELD OF DARKNESS AND IMMENSITY, MY COUSIN,
ELLEN CHANDLER,
THIS LITTLE WORK IS SINCERELY
DEDICATED.

FOREWORD

IF there be anything of interest or value to any one, spread upon these leaves, I beg that I may place the credit for it where it justly belongs.

Mrs. Emily Chandler Hale, my aunt and the only mother whom I ever knew, had a regard for the ties of kinship which was truly beautiful, and being an indefatigable reader, with a most retentive and logical mind, she had laid by in the form of notes, together with old letters, many of the facts that herein appear.

Since I am her sole representative, I have felt free to use them, as upon my decease they must be destroyed.

To the late Mrs. Elizabeth Parsons Forbes of Rowley, am I indebted for much of the data in the Jeffrey and Ebenezer Parsons family, and to the wonderful research work of the late Dr. John C. Warren for the Warren Genealogy prior to 1600, which has been copied in full from his book.

While the following pages represent hours of arduous and intense study; delving into old English and Latin; calling upon the microscope often to reveal some word or sentence dimmed by the ravages of time; patiently verifying data of would-be historians with records of Town, County and Ecclesiastical officers; bounding my kinsfolk to the fourth and fifth degree for memoranda; again I say, it is not to my credit but to the training of the beloved aunt, who so often said to me "Do not undertake too much — or that which you will not have strength of mind and body, coupled with a will, to finish."

Would that this were a more worthy monument to her memory!

CHANDLER

EDMOND CHAUNDELER (later Chandler), the ancestor of the Duxbury, Mass., and New Gloucester, Maine, families, was born in or near London about 1588/9, and probably was the son of John and Jane Gitton Chaundeler of St. Margaret Moyses.

When a young man he went to Barbadoes in the West Indies. This must have been about the year 1625, as only a ship's crew had visited the island previous to that year. Young Chaundeler must have had some financial resources upon his arrival in New England, for immediately he was able to live as a gentleman — erecting a house and having his apprentices. He joined the Plymouth Colony as early as 1632/3, and it is possible that he may have arrived there even several years prior to that date.

The early records show that he had many real estate transactions.

In 1632/3 there was also a Roger and a Samuel Chaundeler in the Plymouth Colony. Roger probably was not a kinsman but was of the Chandler (as he so spelled his name) family of Salem, where he soon went, and died. Unquestionably Samuel was the eldest son of Edmund.

The name of Edmond Chaundeler appears on the list of freemen of the incorporation of Plymouth in 1632/3. That same year land near Island Creek was granted to him, and it was not far from that point that he located his home. In 1634 it was written in the "Plymouth Booke of Records" that "the cattle of Edmond Chaundeler be marked by a slit cutt in the neather side of the left eare, under the eare."

In 1636-7 Edmond Chaundeler was a constable of the Colony; and in 1639 he and Jonathan Brewster were the first to represent the town of Duxbury as Deputies to the General Court. Again, in 1643-5, Edmond Chaundeler was a Deputy from Duxbury with John Alden. In 1643 he "took the oath of fidelity" and was declared able to bear arms. He was one of the original proprietors of the town of Bridgewater, incorporated in 1645. At the time he executed his will his family consisted of seven children, the three younger having been born in Duxbury, probably. From the text of his will, together with a diligent search of all records and a bit of family tradition, it may ever remain a disputed question, whether the daughters, Sarah, Anna and Mary, came to New England. His children were Sarah, Samuel, Anna, Mary, Benjamin, Joseph and Ruth, as mentioned in his will, and that instrument recorded in Plymouth County, is as follows:—

I Edmond Chaundeler being olde and weak in body, yet in good and perfect memory, doe make and Ordain this to bee my last Will and Testament

First, my will is that when It shall please god to take mee out of this World unto himself, that my body bee decently buried and that out of my whole estate my funerall charges bee defrayed.

2. My will is that out of the remainder of my whole estate all my just and lawful debts bee payed.

3. I give and bequeath unto my son Samuell Chaundeler my whole share of land that is at the place or places called by the names of Mattakeesett and Oushemett which I doe and shall possess.

4. I give and bequeath unto my son Benjamin Chaundeler to him and his heirs forever all that tract or tracts of land lying in Duxborough both upland and Meaddow with all the rights belonging thereunto only he is not to enter upon the possession there of till the terms of six years bee ended.

5. I give and bequeath unto my son Joseph Chaundeler to him and his heirs forever my whole share of land which now lyeth by Taunton River near unto a place commonly known by the [name of the] "Rocks" with all my further interest there unto.

6. I give and bequeath unto my three daughters Sarah, Anna and Mary three thousand and five hundred of Sugar which belongs to me at Barbadoes.

7. I give and bequeath unto my three children viz: — Benjamin, Joseph and Ruth Chaundeler the four last years rent due to me by my son Samuell Chaundeler for my land and cattle equally to be divided among them and for the first two years rent I reserve it for myself and to dispose of as I shall see good.

8. My will is that such cattle of mine which is in my son Samuell's hands shall after the term of six years, which he took them for be equally divided between my three children Benjamin, Joseph and Ruth.

I do by this my Last Will and Testament make constitute and appoint my dear and loving son Joseph Chaundeler to be the executor of this my Last Will and Testament.

In witness that this is my Last Will and Testament, I here sett my hand and seal this third day of Maye one thousand six hundred and sixty two — 1662 —

In the presence of

JOHN ALDEN

CONSTANT SOUTHWORTH.

The instrument was written by the testator and seems to have been drawn by one apparently versed in the legal phraseology of the times. But why did he single out Ruth to enjoy and share with her brothers the personalty in Duxbury — and give to "Sarah, Anna, and Mary three thousand and five hundred of Sugar" at Barbadoes, unless they were at Barbadoes to look after it?

That Edmond Chaundeler was a man of more than average intelligence, of honor and integrity, of sagacity and keen business ability, is evidenced by the high position he took at once upon joining the Plymouth Colony. The names of his children would indicate that he and his wife were deeply religious.

Edmund Chaundeler died in Duxbury the last of May, 1662, and his body was buried on the home place, near Island Creek. The name, date and place of death of his wife is uncertain.

Joseph, probably the youngest son of Edmund Chaundeler, must have been born in Duxbury about 1638. He married "Marcey" —, and to them were born at least six children, five — Edmund, Esther, Mary, Joseph and Sarah — mentioned in his will, John, having received his share and left home.

At a town meeting held in Duxbury, June 2, 1667, the town voted "to give to Joseph Chanler's son John, who by God's Providence has lost his hand, fifty acres of land, lying on the easterly side of the South river, and north-westerly side of the place called the 'Rocks,' provided that his father shall have the liberty to sell or otherwise improve the land for the benefit of the above-said child."

No trace of the above-named John can be found upon the records in Plymouth, and we assume to use a tradition handed down in the family of Dr. H. B. Chandler of Newton, Mass., and who was born at Barbadoes, that his ancestor was one John who came from Plymouth to Barbadoes in the early settlement of the island, to assist his aunts in the care of their sugar plantations, and who eventually succeeded to their estates.

"Joseph Chanler" was admitted a freeman, May 28, 1689. In 1679 he had been constable of Duxbury. His homestead was on the "road leading from the Duxbury Meeting-house to Plymouth." His will was as follows: —

In y^e Name of God amen! y^e twenty first Day of aprill in the year of our Lord, one thousand seven Hundred twenty & one, I Joseph Chandler of Duxbor^e in y^e County of Plymouth in New England Being weak in Body but of perfect mind & memery thanks be given unto God therefore Calling to mind y^e mortality of my Body & knowing that it is appointed for all men once to Dye Doe make & ordain this my last will & Testament: that is to say Principally & first of all I give & recommend my soul into

PHILIP DELANO
SAMUEL SPRAGUE.

Jan. 1, 1721/2, Joseph Chandler (Jr.) made oath to the above inventory. It should be noticed that in the above inventory no return was made of any real estate, and yet by the will, a considerable amount was disposed of. The total stated was £78 : 14 : 8.

Joseph Chandler died in Duxbury, Nov. 27, 1721, and was buried in the cemetery at South Duxbury. His wife Mercy died about 1727.

Joseph Chandler, Jr., born in Duxbury about 1672, married on Feb. 12, 1701, Martha, daughter of Samuel Hunt of Duxbury, and not John as some writers state, for by will of Samuel, bearing date of July 22, 1707, he mentions his daughter Martha Chandler.

Among the papers of the Rev. David Shepley of North Yarmouth has been found the following:—"Judah Chandler, son of Joseph Chandler, Oct. 21, 1796, aged 76 last Aug. 13, deposes that when he was about nine years old he moved with his father from Duxbury to North Yarmouth." It would therefore seem that Joseph Chandler with his wife and children, except Philip who had married and remained on the home place in Duxbury, moved to Maine in 1728.

He was one of the original proprietors of the town of North Yarmouth, and on June 16, 1727, had drawn house-lot No. 81. Every man admitted to draw was obliged within two years, to erect and well finish a convenient dwelling; and to clear and fence five acres of land. Each proprietor had, besides his house-lot of ten acres, one hundred acres in the north-west part of the town. What wonder then that he should take his family, as the larger number were boys and had not attained their majority? He began at once to identify himself with every interest of the new town. He was one of the nine original members of the First Congregational Church in North Yarmouth, organized Nov. 18, 1730, bringing a letter from the church in Duxbury. His wife, Martha, united with the same church by public profession Aug. 21, 1737. He drew pew number five.

He was one of the assessors of the town from 1733 to '35, and one of the selectmen for many years from 1735. He was an excellent farmer and carried on a blacksmith-shop besides — probably using the smith tools and anvil bequeathed him by his father, Joseph.

The will of Joseph Chandler was burned in the fire which destroyed the Cumberland Co. Probate records in Portland, in 1908, but in the Registry of Deeds for Cumberland Co., Maine, and Plymouth Co., Mass., are to be found recorded many of his deeds of real estate transactions. He died in North Yarmouth, Maine, in 1758. His wife, Martha, died in the same town early in the following year, Jan. 31, 1759.

Philip Chandler, the oldest of the family of ten children of Joseph and Martha Chandler, having married on Dec. 16, 1725, Rebecca Phillips of Duxbury, remained on the old homestead when his father and family moved to North Yarmouth, Maine, and in 1735 the deed of it passed from the father Joseph to Philip. They had a family of ten children, of whom all but Peleg and Mary settled in and around Duxbury, where their descendants are still living. All the sons except Peleg were in their country's service in 1775, '76 and '77, and he served many years on the Committee of Safety in New Gloucester, Maine. The town of Duxbury furnished at that time no less than fourteen men by the name of Chandler, all descendants of Edmund.

Philip Chandler died in November, 1764, at Duxbury, and was interred in the old burying-ground in South Duxbury, near his grandparents. A stone marks his grave.

His will was allowed and the inventory returned Dec. 11, 1764. He named his "beloved brother Ebenezer," as executor. His estate was valued at £1082, of which land at North Yarmouth (some of it derived from his father Joseph), was "by information" valued at £27. This he gave by will to his six sons. Later the five deeded their interest to Peleg, who was then living in the adjoining town of New Gloucester, as a set-off for his interest in the Duxbury property. The home-farm of Philip was valued at £640, and the household goods at £60 : 8 : 6. No record of the death of his wife Rebecca can be found. She was living in 1771.

Young Peleg, the third son of Philip, and named probably for his father's old friend and neighbor Peleg Wadsworth, early manifested very strong mechanical tastes, and as his grandfather was an old man, unable longer to continue the blacksmith business, Peleg was sent to North Yarmouth to assist him and learn the trade. At the death of his grandfather he looked after his father's interests in the estate, and on his own account was interested in the young town of New Gloucester.

For several years he had been very attentive to the vivacious and attractive daughter of Barnabas and Mercy Glass Winslow, a neighbor of his grandfather and his own second cousin. During the Summer of 1762 he passed much of his time in New Gloucester erecting a small house on the site of the late Mrs. Andrew C. Chandler's homestead. On Dec. 9, 1762, Sarah Winslow became his bride and it has been written that the wedding journey was from North Yarmouth to New Gloucester in an ox-cart, the first two-wheeled vehicle that had ever been over the road. But it must have been a very open winter, or they postponed the trip until the Spring of 1763. The records are silent. However the wedding present of Peleg to Sarah consisted of two spindle-backed chairs, which the young man made with his jack-knife, and which in 1910-11 were in possession of their great-great-grand-daughter, the writer.

Peleg and Sarah Chandler were two of the five original members of the Orthodox Congregational Church of New Gloucester. Much of the church building was done by Peleg's hands, and there is still in existence one of the doors which he made.

On Monday, the 14th day of January, 1771, at a meeting at the Block house of the Proprietors of the township of New Gloucester and the inhabitants of the township that have subscribed to join with them in building a Meeting-house : —

Voted, That Peleg Chandler be one of the Committee in room of John Woodman, to carry on the building of the Meeting-house.

Voted, To build the Meeting-house 5 ft. longer than formerly agreed upon; to have twenty six windows under the beams and plates—windows to be six square deep and four wide and the squares of glass 8 x 10 inches. . . . All to be finished off before they shall be wanted and he that bids them off to take pews or ground for pay.

One half was bid off by Peleg Chandler for £2 : 19, old tenor. Then no one could be found to bid for the other half and Peleg Chandler, determined to have a church building or "Meeting-house," bid them off for £3 : 0 : 1. Then it was "Voted, That Peleg Chandler be Treasurer to receive the money and notes that the Pews may be sold for." The "Pew ground" was bid off by sixty-three persons, among others Peleg Chandler, Pew No. 34, at £5 : 12 : 0; Isaac Parsons, Pew No. 49, at £7 : 1 : 4; Barnabas Winslow for Ezekiel Glass, Pew No. 18, for £5 : 6 : 8, and Barnabas Winslow, Pew No. 19, for £5 : 4 : 8. Peleg Chandler bid in Pew No. 36 in the gallery for £5 : 4 : 0. Isaac Parsons, Pew No. 37, for £4 : 18 : 8.

The large house on the hill at the four corners and known as "Bell Tavern," was built by Peleg Chandler about the year 1773. And here for many years swung the sign now in possession of his great-great-grandson Frederick H. Chandler, bearing the words "Bell Tavern. Peleg Chandler. 1776. Entertainment for man and beast." He owned most of the meadow land lying below his house, and it has been said that he had such a stentorian voice that he used it instead of a dinner horn to call his men. Sarah Winslow Chandler is said to have had a most sunny disposition and was the kindest hearted lady in the county, of gentle dignity, yet with great strength of character.

Of their eleven children, four died when very young; the others married and resided near their parents. Peleg, Jr., the second son to live to manhood, early expressed a strong desire to go to College. This his parents allowed him to do, and the following letter was written to him. It bears the address

P. Leg Chandler.

The "Debray" referred to was probably his son Philip's wife, and Nathan may have been his oldest brother, there for a visit. In 1784 Peleg was representative to the General Court. He died at his home in New Gloucester, in a room on the first floor facing two streets, on Aug. 24, 1819, at the advanced age of 84 years. Sarah, his wife, survived him until May, 1823.

When young Peleg, the son, started for College in August, 1792, he was well mounted on his gray horse Rosinante, with a little money in his pocket, and saddle-bags containing his clothing all nicely spun and made by his mother and sisters. The horse he was to sell in Providence to defray expenses in College. When he approached the village of Titicut in Bridgewater, he found a youth resting under a tree by the roadside, and, dismounting, they entered into conversation. He found him to be a member of the same class that he expected to (and did) enter at Rhode Island College—the Sophomore class. Peleg suggested that they should continue along together, taking turns in using his horse—and they became so well pleased with each other that they agreed to room together. The young man was Ezekiel Whitman, for whom and his father, Peleg named his youngest son.

They were graduated in 1795, and Peleg's saddle-bags, diploma, Commencement program in Latin, twenty-four inches long by eighteen wide, his heavy walking stick with carved ivory handle, and black satin waistcoat richly embroidered, are now the property of the writer, his great granddaughter. When he returned home his one thought was to pursue legal studies, but disappointment awaited him. His mother was strongly opposed to the legal profession on principle. His oldest brother, Philip, had married Deborah Hewett, the rich and beautiful daughter of Mrs. Isaac Parsons. They had provided themselves with a most comfortable home on a portion of his father's acres, and adjoining the garden of her step-father, Col. Isaac Parsons.

PELEG CHANDLER'S HOUSE

His parents were over sixty years of age, and to Peleg they turned to take up the burdens and care of the large farm. An ell was added to the big corner house, stretching toward the blacksmith shop, and here on Dec. 7, 1797, Peleg brought his bride, the third daughter of Col. Isaac and Salome Merrill Parsons, and step-sister of his brother Philip's wife. Here they continued to make their home until an increasing family and the care of an aged couple proved too much for the wife Esther. Peleg then built the large house higher up on the hill, known to-day as the "Cutter House," and moved his family to it, while Mr. and Mrs. Bearce (the latter the youngest sister of Peleg) moved home to care for her parents, and succeeded to the home estate.

Martha, another sister, had married Isaac Parsons, Jr., and his father had built for them a house on the same side of the road as the old Col. Parsons house, but a little beyond the brow of the hill. Peleg was now left free to take up his longed-for profession, and this he did with a zest; although a man in middle life he soon became an advocate of more than average success. "He was a man of marked ability, well read in the law, of great wit and humor, but seldom sarcastic and never bitter, except upon the most bitter occasions—master of himself, a true gentleman of the old school." In 1819, before the separation of Maine from Massachusetts, he was appointed Judge of the Court of Sessions. He held the office long after Maine became a State.

In 1802 Peleg Chandler was one of the petitioners for a charter to form the Cumberland Lodge of Masons. The first meeting of the Lodge was held on August 2, 1803, at which he was present as Secretary; Ezekiel Whitman was then Master, and among the members were William Haskell and Joshua Abbe. In 1810 and again in 1821 and '22, Peleg Chandler was Master; he was an enthusiastic Mason, regular in his attendance, and as the old records show, was almost constantly in office, either as Secretary, Warden or Master, from the formation of the Lodge until he removed to Bangor in 1827. His Past Master's diploma, granted him Nov. 5, 1810, elegantly engraved by Hawksworth, and printed on parchment, was in the possession of his son, Peleg W. Chandler, Esq., of Boston, in 1873.

In 1822, Charles, the oldest son of Peleg and Esther Chandler, had been graduated from Bowdoin College. Like his father, he had determined to make the practice of law his life-work. Unlike his father he had no opposition to contend with in the home, rather great support and encouragement on all sides; but there were many for his father to care for, and the young man considered that a wage-earner instead of a spender, he should at once become. He therefore decided to accept the Preceptorship of Foxcroft Academy, and read law in his father's office during the vacations. The eager longing of Charles to have his father near him, and inducements of a most flattering nature from Bangor, had great weight in making Peleg Chandler decide to leave the town of his birth, and on March 18, 1827, he wrote from Bangor:—

MY DEAR WIFE — With ardent hopes that you are getting better of your cold, I address you . . . I am in hopes you will see this place next June or July, and yet I feel all the time fearful that you will expose yourself so as to get sick. Do take care of your health. Tell the girls I want to see them and trust they will have discretion enough to take care of their health. . . . Charles is doing well I think. He is in good spirits and thinks he should be happy if the family were only here. I do not know but Theophilus must remain & take care of the farm, unless I can let it to some one who has no children & who will give me rent. . . .

Write soon to your

PELEG.

The family moved to the house on the corner of Hammond and Fifth Streets, Bangor, in the Summer of 1827. Theophilus, then a young man of twenty, was not left behind, but began the study of law in his father's office. Charles took the youngest brother, Peleg, with him to Foxcroft, and prepared him to enter Bowdoin, which he did in 1832, though violently protesting against being sent from home. In 1836, Theophilus left his father's office and sought the larger field of Boston; the youth Peleg was left as a student in the office. Under date of Jan. 15, 1839, Theophilus wrote to Charles: —

My prospect here is as good as could be expected. . . . In the way of family matters, I am as rich as Croesus, as my wife was the brightest of the Philadelphia jewels and my babe is the best in Boston. . . . I verily believe no one of the children possesses more love for the family, or so much interest in the welfare of its various branches as I do, and if you can give me anything interesting I shall be glad. Remember me to your good wife and babies. Peleg is moving into a house by himself. I hold my babe half the time when at home, and she dont lint me as babies used to do.

I remain as ever

Yours truly

T. P. CHANDLER.

Under date of Aug. 29, 1843, P. W. wrote to his father.

DEAR SIR:—Mr. Chute arrived last evening. He says you wonder why you dont receive any letters from me, and I almost wonder myself why I have not written. I suppose you know that Theo. & I went to New Gloucester the same week that you left. We enjoyed the jaunt mightily. . . . It seems that . . . has left you. Probably this is the best . . . He has disappointed me very much — but the truth is, the young men of our day don't amount to much. They think too much of themselves & the world & too little of industry, sobriety & God. . . . We are all glad that you enjoyed your visit here & assure you that you were missed when you left. You made a strong impression on all our friends & did us more credit than we shall ever be able to repay. A lady told me the other day that my mother was just such a lady as she hoped to become. We shall not be satisfied unless you come up every year now. Charles made us a pleasant visit. He is the best fellow that ever lived. . . .

Your son

P. W. CHANDLER.

On Jan. 18, 1847, Peleg Chandler, Esq., died at his home in Bangor.

Gov. Kent in announcing his death to the Court on Thursday morning, Jan. 21, 1847, said: —

“May it please the Court. I rise at the request of my brethren to announce to the Court the death of another of the aged and venerable members of our Bar. Peleg Chandler, Esq., died at his residence in this city on the 18th inst., at the age of seventy-three years.

“Our brother Chandler entered the profession late in life. After graduating at Brown University in the last century, he returned to his home in New Gloucester in this State. He was young, ardent, ambitious and eager to enter upon his chosen pursuit, the profession of law. But he yielded to the wishes of his father, and for many years devoted himself to agricultural pursuits on the paternal farm. He had passed the meridian of life before he commenced the regular study of his profession and was soon forced into its active practice. . . .

“As a friend and neighbor and in all the relations of life, he was highly esteemed in our community. He had a sympathy with humanity and an interest in all that regarded the good of man. He was social in disposition, familiar in his intercourse and strong in his attachments. . . .

“Without indelicately obtruding into the sacred retreats of domestic life, I may properly say that our departed brother was peculiarly happy and fortunate in all its relations and that he found in his home the highest pleasure of his life. And it was pleasant to see the early sacrifices of our friend to his sense of filial duty, repaid in his old age by the richest of all rewards, children who never brought the blush of shame to a parent's brow, but who gladdened his heart and cheered his downward path by a career of honor, integrity and exalting and increasing reputation."

Judge Allen replied: — "I can add nothing to the very just and discriminating tribute of Governor Kent. . . . Mr. Chandler was well educated in early life, but entered late in life upon the study of law as a profession. In his practice he secured the respect and confidence of all his associates. In social life he was interesting beyond most men of his age. He possessed an extensive knowledge of the men who belonged to the generation which preceded him, as well as those among his contemporaries, and was a keen observer of men and events. He was therefore an instructive companion. . . ."

And to these tributes must be added an abstract from an editorial in a Portland paper of 1857: —

"On a bleak day in January, ten years ago, three brothers met from long distances in a remote village near Portland, to lay in his ancestral burial place the mortal remains of an honored father. He was a man of marked character, of a commanding presence, and had inspired his children with affectionate admiration. His sons were of the same profession with himself, and owed whatever of success they had attained to his own instructions. They had removed his natural body to his and their native town, in compliance with his dying request, and the unostentatious monument that marks the spot recites that it was erected by his surviving sons 'in affectionate respect for the character of their father, teacher and friend.' And, now, within a few days, the oldest of these sons, and the one most beloved perhaps by the father, has passed forward to join his friend and early master in the law. Few men were more generally known throughout his native

State ; no man was more beloved and respected ; and although his decease has been everywhere referred to, a few more words will be pardoned by those who knew him. Indeed there are circumstances in his personal history that cannot fail of encouragement to men who never heard his name."

On Feb. 10, 1865, at the home of her son, T. P. Chandler, Esq., in Brookline, Mass., Esther Parsons, the widow of Peleg Chandler, Esq., died. Of her the youngest son wrote:—"A woman of a character so fine, that no partiality of relationship can do it more than justice. She had much of her father's firmness and independence, with all his strength of religious faith, but united with a character so simple and a disposition so retiring and truly feminine, as to inspire in all who knew her, a respect which was very great, and a love which was very strong."

Another wrote:—"Born at a time when our country was passing through the first great struggle for independence, it pleased our heavenly Father to take her home ere the finishing touch was given. Two grandsons are buried in the South, one upon the shady slope of Malvern Hill, Va.; the other near Hanover Court House, Va. A third grandson has spent months in the Southern prisons. A daughter passed away nursing our wounded in a hospital near the Capitol. Her nephews still serve their country." Her own words express her womanly patriotism: "Better lose all my children and have a country, than have them and no country." She was buried in New Gloucester, Maine, by the side of her friend, companion, lover and husband. And to New Gloucester we again turn to find the kinsfolks of Peleg and Esther Chandler.

As has been stated, Philip, the elder brother of Peleg, settled on a portion of the paternal acres. Blessed with an abundance of this world's goods, he and his accomplished wife were able to throw the latch-string high, and their pleasant home was the scene of many festal occasions for both old and young. They each possessed a rare trait of character — comradeship for, and friendly interest in young men, especially those who were just taking up the burdens and duties of life for themselves.

When, in 1809, the young and brilliant lawyer, Samuel Fessenden, decided to open an office in New Gloucester, there was little wonder that the home of Philip Chandler should afford him pleasure and encouragement. Young Fessenden had been born and reared in a home of culture and refinement, his father for many years being the beloved pastor of the Congregational Church in Fryeburg. At the age of twenty he was graduated from Dartmouth College, and immediately entered upon the the study of law, which profession he not only for many years adorned, but was the acknowledged head of the Cumberland County Bar, always famous for its legal ability.

On Dec. 16, 1813, Deborah Hewett, the oldest daughter of Philip Chandler, became the wife of this rising advocate. She possessed much of her mother's personal charm and grace, together with her father's genial disposition and strength of character. With a deep appreciation of her husband's inherent ability, she gave to him a motive-power of healthful ambition, coupled with the keenest fidelity to the interests of his clients. They established their home in the large house across the street from her grandfather's, — the old Bell Tavern, — and the next house on the same side of the street to her father. In this house five of their ten children were born; the youngest daughter, Ellen, born in Portland, became the wife of that noble physician John Dunlap Lincoln of Brunswick, Maine.

In 1822, the Fessendens decided that they must move into Portland, as his business had assumed such proportions as to make an office in the "centre" imperative. In 1846, Bowdoin College conferred upon Gen. Fessenden the degree of LL. D. He had many times represented his district at the General Court of Massachusetts, and later when Maine became a State, as a State Senator. "He was an undeviating Federalist, a warm temperance man, and strong to defend the rights of the colored people; stately, kindly in appearance, liberal to the poor, and an indulgent parent, the purest sources of his enjoyment and the best influences of his life, he found in his home." He died in the home of his son Charles, March 19, 1869. His devoted wife Deborah died in the same home four years later, Dec. 5, 1873.

On Feb. 3, 1825, Philip Chandler's oldest son, Solomon Hewett, married his cousin Sarah Campbell, and for a few years they made their home at the "Mills." S. H. Chandler was a man of great energy and business ability, and he soon became known as New Gloucester's wealthiest citizen. He moved back to the home of his childhood, razed the old buildings and erected on a part of the foundations the substantial house and out-buildings now owned by his grandson F. H. Chandler. His cousin, P. W. Chandler, said of him that he possessed one of the kindest of natures, and had a ringing laugh that was contagious. Certain it is that he not only sustained but added adornment to the name his grandfather had brought to New Gloucester two generations before, and which through his sons Andrew and Hewett has been perpetuated to the present time.

Their children were

- i. Mary,²⁵ m. 1628, Robert Bartlett, in Plymouth (d. 1676, aged 73 yrs.).
- ii. Ann, m. Apr. 19, 1633, Thomas Little of Marshfield.
- iii. Sarah, m. Meh. 28, 1634, John Cook, in Plymouth.
- iv. Elizabeth, m. 1636, Sergt. Richard Church, in Plymouth.

- v. Abigail, m. Nov. 8, 1639, Anthony Snow of Marshfield.
- vi. Nathaniel, b. 1624, in Plymouth ; m. Sarah Walker, in Plymouth ; he d. 1667.
- vii. Joseph, b. 1627, in Plymouth ; m. Priscilla Faunce, in Plymouth ; he d. 1689.

"Mr." Richard Warren, known as "grave Richard," "a man of integrity, justice and uprightness," came to Plymouth, New England, in the Mayflower, on Dec. 21, 1620. He was the twelfth to sign the compact, or "Constitution of Government," drawn up by the Pilgrims on board the Mayflower in Provincetown Harbor, Nov. 11, 1620. His wife Elizabeth and five daughters followed him to Plymouth in the "good Ship Ann," in 1623. She was a woman of "rare intellect" and "genteel presence, carrying herself with such grace and dignity" that she became known throughout the Colony as "Mistress Warren."

Under the land division of 1623, Richard Warren's apportionment, as one of the Mayflower passengers, fell to the north side of the town, with William White, Gov. Edward Winslow, Capt. Myles Standish and others ; under the apportionment to those who came in the Ann, 1623, his lands were on the other side of the town toward Eels River. There he made his home, in the section known as Wellingsley. He also owned land along the shore, known as Warren's Cove.

Richard Warren died in 1628, much lamented, for he had been extremely useful in the affairs of the Colony, bearing a deep share in its difficulties and troubles. Abigail, the youngest daughter of Richard and Elizabeth Warren, was married on Nov. 8, 1639, to Anthony Snow. It had been the custom of "Mistress Warren" to present to the husband of each daughter upon marriage a house and land. On Jan. 9, 1640, she deeded to Anthony Snow "a house and eight acres of land thereunto adjoining, situated near a place called Wellingsley." They soon moved to Green Harbor in Marshfield.

"Mistress Warren" was rated in the Plymouth tax list of 1629, and many years following. She was one of the first purchasers of Dartmouth (now New Bedford), and it is plainly evident was a woman of strong character and rare executive ability, as well as business sagacity. She was one of the few instances of continued widowhood.

The "Old Colony Records" contain the following:—
"Mistress Elizabeth Warren, an aged widdow, aged about 90 years, deceased on the 2^d October, 1673, who having Lived a godly life, came to her Grave as a shoke of corn fully ripe. She was honorably buried on the 24th October, afore-said."

SNOW

ANTHONY SNOW was at Plymouth probably as early as 1638, but soon went to Green Harbor, his land lying in the upper part of Marshfield Neck. It is said that the location of his house and well can still be found on the west side of "Snow's Swamp," so-called. He often represented the town in the General Court of the Colony; in many ways he was very active in town affairs, and was an honored citizen. On Nov. 8, 1639, he married Abigail, youngest daughter of Richard¹ and Elizabeth Warren of Mayflower fame.

Some time prior to his death Anthony Snow gave to Marshfield a piece of land near the old meeting-house, to be used for burial purposes. It however was not so used until about 1721, and has been known as Cedar Grove Cemetery. He died Aug. 1, 1692. By his will, dated Dec. 28, 1685, he gave to his wife Abigail all the household goods, and £90 in money. To his daughters, Lydia, Sarah and Alice, £10; and to his son Josiah, £10. He also mentioned a daughter Abigail's children. The inventory was returned Aug. 8, 1692. Personal property appraised at £248. Will allowed

Jan. 3, 1692/3. "Abigail Snow, relict of Anthony Snow, qualified as Executor."

Of the children, Josiah³ (Abigail,² *Richard*¹ Warren), was probably the oldest. In 1669 he married Rebecca Baker.

Children (Snow):

- i. Lydia,⁴ b. 1672; m. Nathaniel Winslow.
- ii. Mercy, b. 1675; m. Gilbert Winslow.
- iii. Deborah, b. 1677; d. 1681.
- iv. Sarah, b. 1680; m. Samuel Baker, a cousin.
- v. Susanna, b. 1682; m. Joseph Waterman.
- vi. Abiah, b. 1688; m. Nathan Thomas.

There must also have been two other daughters, for at the death of Josiah, on Aug. 1, 1692 (the same day his father died), Judge Bradford named "Rebekah Snow, relict of Josiah Snow, administratrix." She returned an inventory of the estate, Jan. 3, 1692/3, which amounted to £280. On Nov. 3, 1693, the Judge gave to the "widdar" all the property, and ordered her "to bring up the eight daughters."

In 1694 Rebecca Snow was married to John Sawyer; she died in 1711.

On Feb. 7, 1698, Mercy⁴ Snow was married to Gilbert Winslow of Marshfield, and later they moved to North Yarmouth, Me.

WINSLOW

THE name Winslow is probably of Anglo-Norman origin — an abbreviation of Winneslow.*

Kenelm¹ Wyneslowe and Katherine, his wife, were of Worcester, Worcestershire, England. Kenelm died there in 1607, leaving a widow and several sons. His estates were Clerk-enleaf and Newport Place. His will, dated Apr. 14, 1607, was exhibited and proved Nov. 9, 1607.

* Copied in part from the Winslow Genealogy.

Edward,² son of Kenelm, was born Oct. 7, 1560, in the parish of St. Andrew's, Droitwich. On Nov. 4, 1594, Edward Wynslow, Esq., married Magdalene Ollyver at St. Bride's in London.

Kenelm³ Winslow (Edward,² Kenelm¹), second son of Edward, Esq., and his wife Magdalene, was born Apr. 29, 1599, in Droitwich, England (six miles northeast of Worcester). He followed his brothers, Gov. Edward, Gilbert and John, to Plymouth, New England in 1629. He was a joiner. In 1630 he was granted a tract of land lying between Green's Harbor and South River. Upon a slight eminence overlooking the sea he built his house, and in 1634, he married Ellen, widow of John Adams (the Ellen Newton of the Pilgrims). Mrs. Adams had three children by her former marriage — John, James and Susan Adams.

Kenelm³ was a deputy from Marshfield in 1642, 1649 and 1651. He was distinguished for his sagacity and good sense, as well as for his fine executive and business qualities. A tradition has been handed down among branches of his descendants that he possessed a "high spirit or temper that brought him much into litigation." But he was from first to last one of the Pilgrims within the limits of the "Old Colony," although he came on the Mayflower's second trip.

While on a visit to Salem he was taken suddenly sick and died there Sept. 13, 1672. His body was buried in Salem. His will bears date of Aug. 8, 1672, and was witnessed by William Hawthorne in Salem, and exhibited at Plymouth Court, June 5, 1673. Most of his estate was left to his "wife Elinor," and at her death to go to "son Nathaniel." Ellen Winslow "was buried in Marshfield, Dec. 5, 1682, aged 83 yrs."

The children of Kenelm³ and Ellen (Adams) Winslow were :

- i. Kenelm,⁴ b. 1635.
- ii. Ellen, b. 1637 ; m. Samuel Baker.

- iii. Nathaniel, b. 1639; m. Aug. 3, 1664, Faith, b. 1645, dau. of Rev. John and Lydia Miller of Yarmouth, Mass.
- iv. Job, b. 1641.

Nathaniel⁴ Winslow (Kenelm,³ Edward,² *Kenelm*¹), married Faith Miller, Aug. 3, 1664. Children:

- i. Faith,⁵ b. 1665.
- ii. Nathaniel, b. 1667; m. Lydia Snow.
- iii. James, b. 1669.
- iv. Gilbert, b. July 11, 1673; m. Mercy Snow.
- v. Kenelm, b. 1675.
- vi. Eliner, b. 1677.
- vii. Josiah, 1681; d. 1682.

Nathaniel⁴ succeeded to the homestead of his father, and there all of his children were born. In 1686 and 1689 he was a deputy to the General Court from Marshfield; and again in 1695 and 1709 after the union of the Colonies. He died Dec. 1, 1719; his widow died Nov. 9, 1729, aged 85 years.

Gilbert⁵ Winslow (Nathaniel,⁴ Kenelm,³ Edward,² *Kenelm*¹), married Feb. 7, 1698, Mercy⁴ Snow (Josiah,³ Abigail,² *Richard*¹ Warren), born 1675, daughter of Josiah and Rebecca (Baker) Snow of Marshfield. They moved to North Yarmouth, Me. He was one of the original proprietors of North Yarmouth, and drew house lot No. 18. About 1730 he built a mill at Atwell's Creek, called "Folly Mill." He served the town of North Yarmouth at different times as town treasurer and selectman, and although not an M. D., was often called upon for advice and attendance by the early inhabitants when sick.

Children:

- i. Issachar,⁶ b. Feb. 19, 1699.
- ii. Barnabas, b. Feb. 24, 1701.
- iii. Gilbert, b. July 26, 1704; m. Patience Seabury.
- iv. Anthony, b. Apr. 24, 1707; m. Dorothy Baker.
- v. Mercy, b. Aug. 1, 1710.

- vi. Rebecca, b. Jan. 3, 1712.
- vii. Job, b. June 2, 1715.
- viii. Benjamin, b. Aug. 28, 1717.
- ix. Lydia, b. Apr. 25, 1720.

Barnabas⁶ Winslow (Gilbert,⁵ Nathaniel,⁴ Kenelm,³ Edward,² *Kenelm*¹) (*Mercy*⁴ Snow, *Josiah*³ Snow, *Abigail*² Warren, *Richard*¹ Warren), born Feb. 24, 1701; married Mercy, born Nov. 15, 1705, daughter of John and Esther (Chandler) Glass of Duxbury, later of North Yarmouth, Me. Barnabas drew house lot No. 86 of the first division.

Children, born in North Yarmouth:

- i. Rebecca,⁷ b. Mch. 9, 1735; bapt. May 23, 1742; m. Ebenezer Mason.
- ii. Esther, b. Dec. 8, 1736; d. Dec. 16, 1736.
- iii. Stephen, b. May 2, 1738; d. June 8, 1738.
- iv. Sarah, b. July 29, 1739; bapt. May 23, 1742; m. Dec. 9, 1762, her second cousin, Peleg Chandler of New Gloucester, Me.
- v. Asenath, b. Apr. 1, 1743; bapt. May 8, 1743.
- vi. Barnabas, b. Mch. 1, 1745; bapt. Feb. 2, 1746.

PARSONS

KEMERTON is a small parish four miles northeast of Tewksbury, being a part of the lower division; and fourteen miles north of Gloucester, in Gloucestershire, England. The Kemerton church register contains this record: "1627 Geoffrey the sonne of John Parsons Esq. of Kemerton Manor and Alice his wife, was baptized November —."

This is beyond question the Geoffrey who in 1645 accompanied his brother James to Alphington, near Exeter, in Devonshire. This was their mother's ancestral home, and James evidently decided to remain there, as is shown by a letter written by Elizabeth Parsons Morgan, daughter of James, to her cousin James, son of Geoffrey, in Gloucester, New England.

The letter bears date of May 14, 1714, Ashpington near Dartmouth (this near Alphington), and is to thank her cousin for a book that he had sent to her, and also to inform him of the death of her father James, which occurred in Alphington in 1708. It seems probable that Geoffrey soon tired of the quiet life of the small parish, and being an ambitious youth, decided to sail with an uncle from Dartmouth for Barbadoes, where he remained until 1654. He was a younger member of a highly respected family among the gentry not only of Gloucestershire, but of Devonshire. In 1654 he sailed for New England, arriving in Gloucester, on Cape Ann, late in the Fall of that year. As will be noticed, he was only twenty-seven years of age, and yet he must have had a considerable amount of money for those days, as in the following April, 1655, he purchased of one Giles Barge an acre and a half of land in what was known as Fisherman's Field, and a house and land a little removed from this. In this latter place, on Bray's Hill, overlooking Stage Fort, he fixed his residence.

There is a tradition of no little romance that while walking one sultry Summer's day in 1656, he was overcome by heat and thirst, and stopped by a spring for rest and refreshment. This spring was located on land owned by William Vinson (Vincent), one of the early and prominent settlers of the town of Gloucester.

While thus seeking rest, Sarah Vinson, the beautiful and attractive daughter of William Vinson happened along, and learning that the young stranger was thirsty, offered to go to her father's house for a drinking cup. Her charms and thoughtfulness at once made their imprint upon young Geoffrey's heart, and he resolved to make her his wife. This he did on Mch. 11, 1657. Ten children were born to them.

Geoffrey Parsons served as selectman of the town for many years; was one of its most prominent citizens and a successful business man. He and his sons lived on the westerly side of the "cut," and for many years were probably the only ones living on the Manchester Road. Manchester was formerly known as Jeffrey's Creek, and was a part of the Parsons estate. Some of the property owned by him is to-day in the possession of his descendants.

Geoffrey Parsons died Aug. 16, 1689. His will bears date of Dec. 17, 1688, and is too voluminous an instrument to appear on these pages in full. It is in part as follows:—

I, Jefferie Parsons Sr. of the County of Essex in New England, being of god's providence cast on my bed of sickness and weakness and not knowing how neere the tyme of my departure out of this world may be, yet knowing it to be the mynd and will of god that a man should sett his house in order before he dye, Doo therefore declare and make known this my last will and testament:

Imprimis, I give and bequeath to my dear and loving wife and to my son, James Parsons all my estate, (not hereafter in these presents not otherwise disposed) to improve for themselves and the bringing up of my children and keeping of the family together, either while they come of age or (by marriage) change their condition or otherwise dispose of themselves.

Item: I give and bequeath unto my son James Besydes the three acres I have given him already, where upon his house standeth, and an acre of meadow before his doore as appears in his deed of gift, I say besydes what is already given him also because I do also give him three acres of planting land more, situate and lying at the lower end of my field (formerly called by the name of fisherman's field next the sea). Also I give and bequeath unto my said son, one half of my marsh at home, being situate and Lying before my dwelling house, all in Gloucester above said. Also I give unto him a yoke of oxen and two cows and ten sheep, and all the above said premises given him, I give to him and his heirs and assigns provided always and it is my will and intention and I doe here by ordain and appoint that if my said son doe dye without heir of his body Lawfully begotten that then the lands above said I have given him and whatever lands hereafter I shall give him in this my last will and testament Bee equally divided amongst his surviving Brethren, etc., etc.

The will was approved and inventory returned Dec. 17, 1689.

Feb. 3, 1704, Ebenezer Parsons, the youngest son of Geofrey and Sarah Vinson Parsons married Lydia, the daughter of William and Mary Brown Haskell. The parents of each belonged to the wealthiest and most highly respected families of Gloucester and Essex County. The house of the Haskells was located on the west side of the Annisquam River (see Haskell).

Eight children were born to Ebenezer and Lydia Parsons, the sixth child being Moses. He married on Jan. 11, 1743, Susanna Davis, and to them was born on Feb. 13, 1750, Theophilus Parsons, who became Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Massachusetts, and one of the most eminent jurists the State has ever known. Moses was a graduate of Harvard and Pastor of the Congregational Church in Byfield, Mass. Lydia Parsons died Oct. 2, 1734, and Ebenezer Parsons published his intention of marriage with Mrs. Alice Norwood, but for some reason which the records do not state, the marriage never took place. On Dec. 4, 1742, he published his intentions of marriage with Mrs. Jemima Todd of Rowley, who became his wife. She died Apr. 25, 1752. He next married on Oct. 31, 1754, Mrs. Elizabeth Andrews of Ipswich. He was many times selectman of the town; several years a deacon and finally ruling elder of the first church of Gloucester. His business was that of a trader. He died Dec. 19, 1763, leaving an estate of £686.

His will was allowed Dec. 26, 1763, and inventory filed June 11, 1764. He gave to his wife Elizabeth "£100 old tenor," of his "moveable and personal estate." "Also lower room in the easterly end of my dwelling to use, and to use the oven in the westerly end, and to work in the old room; as also a rod of land in the garden and the liberty of the well during the time she remains my widow."

Isaac Parsons, the fifth child of Ebenezer and Lydia Haskell Parsons, married on July 4, 1739, Hannah, daughter of Thomas Burnham of Chebacco in Ipswich. They made their home for a time in Ipswich where he was a most prominent citizen and deacon of the first church. His business was that of a tanner. He died at the early age of fifty-three years, on July 5, 1767. Hannah, his wife, died Dec. 30, 1793. His will was allowed Dec. 18, 1767, and inventory returned. Estate valued at £704: 19: 7.

A large tract of land in the eastern part of the country, was granted by the General Court of the Province of Massachusetts Bay to sixty inhabitants of Old Gloucester on Cape Ann. This grant was confirmed to them July 5, 1737, on condition of their settling the same. One of the above grantors was Ebenezer Parsons of Gloucester. On Feb. 27,

Isaac Parsons junior

1738, the lots were drawn and it was voted "that the township lately granted to a certain number of the inhabitants of Gloucester be called by the name of 'New Gloucester.'" At this time Ebenezer Parsons drew lot No. 36 in the first division.

In June, 1761, young Isaac, Jr., strong and stalwart in mind and body, having attained his majority, determined to try his luck in the far eastern country. Accordingly he took passage in a sailing vessel for Yarmouth and travelled on foot over the "new way" from Cousin's River to New Gloucester. He soon formed the opinion that it might be made "a good country by industry," and therefore lot No. 36 of the first division which had been drawn by Ebenezer Parsons, was purchased by his son Isaac, and deeded to young Isaac. On his way to New Gloucester he stopped at the home of Daniel Merrill, whose daughter Anna became his wife on Dec. 1, 1763. She died Nov. 28, 1764, at the birth of a still-born male child.

Young Isaac had in 1762, erected the little house on the hill and wishing to establish a home, sought and obtained the hand and heart of Salome, a daughter of Humphrey and Betty Merrill of Falmouth. The marriage took place on Nov. 21, 1765, and Esquire Isaac, as he was then known, brought his new wife home in great state, mounted on a bay horse.

Eight children were born to them in this little home, and when the oldest, Isaac, was scarcely ten years of age, Capt. Isaac was called upon to render service to his country. While he was thus engaged as Captain of Col. Price's Regt. under Brig.-Gen. Wadsworth at the eastward, his wife Salome was stricken with a pulmonary trouble and died Sept. 19, 1780. His daughter, Esther Parsons Chandler, wrote in 1861, of her father's military career as follows:—

My father was a Captain in the Revolutionary War under Gen. Wadsworth. They were stationed at what is now called Waldoboro— it was then called Bagaduce. I think it must have been toward the last of the war, as he was absent during my mother's sickness, who died in 1780. He was made Colonel of the Cumberland Co. Regt.

Col. Parsons returned home on Dec. 31, 1780, to find his little ones, the youngest only two years of age, motherless. He must at once provide some one to care for them, and on Mch. 15, 1781, he found the one, in the person of Mrs. Deborah Hewett, widow of Capt. Solomon Hewett of Waldoboro, whom he had met during his military engagement the year before. She had, by her marriage with Capt. Hewett, two children, Deborah who later became Mrs. Philip Chandler, and Lydia who became Mrs. Andrew Campbell, both of New Gloucester.

The widow Hewett and her two daughters at the death of Capt. Hewett received quite a fortune, so that soon after the marriage with Col. Parsons he was enabled to build the large house which now occupies the beautiful site in New Gloucester, and is still known as the "Parsons Homestead." The old house in which he had lived with his wife Salome and where their eight children were born, is still standing in the rear of the larger one, filling the position of a shed and is in a good state of preservation.

By the third marriage three children were born. Mrs. Deborah Hewett Parsons died Oct. 5, 1786, at the age of forty-four years.

On May 3, 1787, Col. Parsons married the widow Mary (Noyes) Ellis of Falmouth, by whom he "had no issue or expects any," as he wrote in his diary. Mary Ellis Parsons was in the prime of life, when she entered the Colonel's family. His daughters were young ladies, accomplished and attractive, but needing the influence of culture and refinement that an entrance into the best homes in Falmouth (now Portland), would be likely to have upon them. Mrs. Parsons enjoyed this privilege and she soon introduced her step-daughters; the Colonel was a "gentleman of the old school," — very correct and precise; extremely proud of his military honors, and quite willing to accompany them when occasion demanded. In 1785 he was a Representative to the General Court at Boston, and returned home not only with the first pair of calf-skin boots ever owned in New Gloucester, but had purchased a chaise, also the first in town, which his wife and daughters used on their social and shopping expeditions to Falmouth.

Mrs. Mary Ellis Parsons died July 11, 1810, and Col. Isaac found in the widow Lucy Bacon of Yarmouth, a fifth congenial matrimonial partner. She survived him by several years.

Isaac Parsons was a man of great and good influence in his adopted town; of strong intellect; independent in character, an original thinker and progressive in his ideas.

He wrote his will with a precision and correctness that left his executor little occasion to apply to those learned in the law to construe it. It was extremely lengthy, covering about fourteen pages of foolscap, closely written. Evidently anticipating that he would predecease his fifth wife, he had arranged that his own burial place should be between the other four, two on either side, and provided in the above-named instrument "that whereas the stones marking the graves" of his four wives were of "slate," the one for himself should be of "marble," and several inches higher.

There was also a clause requesting his "successors never to drive upon the intervale with iron bound wheels," and "always to shut the intervale bars after them." Alas! little did our strict and careful ancestor think that the law of eminent domain might attach to that estate, and ere a generation had passed that same beloved intervale would be crossed by two different roads, each with their iron bands, iron (not bound) wheels and impetuous iron steeds!

Col. Parsons was one of the Overseers incorporated and provided by "an Act to establish a College in the Town of Brunswick, in the District of Maine, within this Commonwealth (Mass.), to be called and known by the name of Bowdoin College." He served upon the above-named Board of Overseers from 1794 to 1813, and used to make his trips to attend the meetings in his chaise, drawn by a beautiful "black stallion" at once the envy and admiration of all in the country through which he passed. But "pride goeth before a fall" (possibly not this kind of a one was meant), and on Dec. 3, 1803, little Hannah Anderson, the four months old grandchild of the Colonel was accidentally allowed to fall from this same chaise, and thus complete her earthly pilgrimage.

Col. Parsons had learned the tanning business from his father, and quick to appreciate the need of such in the new country, erected a mill on the small stream flowing across his land near the Chandler line.

In a communication to the Maine Historical Society in his own handwriting, when he was eighty-four years old, under date of Nov. 6, 1824, Col. Parsons wrote:—

The writer hereof being a native of old Gloucester in the Co. of Essex and the then Province of Massachusetts Bay, was born April 14, old, or 25 new style, A. D. 1740. Having heard much said about the Eastern Country as it was then called—some saying that it would make a good country in time, others said it would not support its inhabitants, where they could not have the advantages of fishing and lumbering—the writer was determined (by the leave of Providence) to go to New Gloucester and the Eastern Country at the age of twenty one and examine for himself. Accordingly he came in the month of June, 1761, and having spent much of that summer in exploring the country and examining the soil and natural state of the country generally, he was of the opinion that it might be made a good country, by industry; and that he might do as much good in his day and generation here as elsewhere. Although some of the inhabitants living on the sea board tried to discourage him, by saying that people could not subsist so far back in the country, where they could not have the advantages of fishing and lumbering, and that he did not intend to stay here, but only came to induce others to come, who would starve after the assistance of the Proprietors and Providence should cease.

He soon found that the settlers had not discovered the right way of managing and improving new land. He found by strict examination that land in a natural state that had a full growth of hard wood upon it, if the trees were all fallen down upon it and lay a suitable time, would collect so much nitre, as to become light and more suitable for the roots of any vegetable to penetrate in quest of nourishment, than it could be made by all the art of cultivation, especially when the wood was burnt off, and it had the additional benefit of the alkaline salts.

These advantages he found must be taken as soon as may be after the fire has run over the land, or the nitre will waste, the land settle, and the best profits be lost. He therefore in the year 1762-3 was fully convinced, that if corn were planted on new land, cleared and well burnt over without breaking the surface any more than by chopping off the weeds and sprouts, a good and ripe crop would be produced, and that the opinion that it would not stand without hoeing was erroneous. He therefore hired some and persuaded others to try this method and it was found by experience fully to answer to his assertions; and a knowledge of this method soon spreading through the country, it proved a greater encouragement or inducement to the settling of the State of Maine, than any one thing except the withdrawing of the Indians.

Before this method was introduced it could not be found that any farmer to the eastward of old York ever raised a bushel of corn to sell, but the people in general were dependent on the western and southern parts of the country for their bread. It must always be observed that new lands, after a fire has run over them, ought to be planted or sown with some sort of grain or grass seed as soon as may be, in order that the grass may take deep root before the land settles.

At the risk of repetition a sketch by Andrew R. Giddings, son-in-law of Col. Parsons, written in 1828, should be inserted here: —

The good man, like other good men, had his peculiarities; his religion was doctrinal, yet practical, and was founded more on hopes than fears.

His politics and faith seemed to march together. He was always inveterate against Popery, and not very charitable to Masonry, and irreconcilable to the King of England, George the Third, ever after the Stamp Act, Duty on Tea, etc. He was commissioned a Colonel, and after peace in 1783, a Justice of the Peace, and had been for many years a Deacon in the First Church, and it was curious to see the different classes when they addressed the good old man.

Col. Parsons was a man who observed much of the minute operations of nature, and acquired a pretty accurate knowledge of the natural history of those insects which annoyed the productions of the earth. To facilitate his researches, a kinsman, Chief Justice Parsons, presented him with a microscope. His accurate knowledge of the nature and origin of the mosquito was the source of much wit. Nor did he limit his attentions to insects, for he contemplated the Planetary system; and having perused the outlines of the Ptolemaic, Descartan and Copernican plans, he found serious objections to them all, and had devised one of his own, quite new and original.

He early planted an orchard, and was the first to make cider in New Gloucester. Once he essayed, when apples were not plenty and English turnips abounded, to mix the root and the fruit, and grind and press them together. But he never boasted of his improvement of serving the juice of turnips and apples in the same keg.

A large stock of cattle and a dairy yielded him a sure and steady profit, and furnished the material for a rich and wholesome aliment, and his flock and the industry of his daughters and other spinsters, decent and comfortable clothing; and every living being had an appropriate shelter.

To those who knew the now departed Christian, his memory will be ever dear, especially to those who found in him a father and a friend; his little aberrations from the general course of men of this world, his foibles and weaknesses will be overlooked, and the memory of the man who ever strove to protect the good of the society in which he lived, and the general good of the country at all times, and the church of Christ in particular, will be cherished.

The township and the town of New Gloucester and the County of Cumberland are indebted to him for many benefits, the fruits of his labors and knowledge.

Well said, were the words of our kinsman, Mr. Charles Peter Haskell at the Centennial of New Gloucester:—

We glory in the history of the past, and hold in profound reverence the memory of our fathers, who, with brave hearts and strong arms, cleared these farms, made these roads, and out of a wilderness built up and bequeathed to us the priceless inheritance of a noble town.

ALLIED FAMILIES

VINCENT — VINSON

SIR FRANCIS VINCENT of Stoke D'Abunon in County Surrey, Knight and Baronet, married Sara, daughter of Sir Francis Poulet and maid of honor to Queen Anne, wife of James I. Their son

William, born 1610; married Sarah ——. Their daughter Sarah, married Geoffrey Parsons of Gloucester, Mass., Mch. 11, 1657.

William Vinson's (Vincent) [son of Sir Francis and Sara (Poulet) Vincent] first wife and the mother of his children was Sarah ——. They had formerly lived in Salem probably as early as 1633, moving to Gloucester soon after the first settlement of that town. It is possible that Sarah, their daughter and the wife of Geoffrey Parsons of Gloucester, was born in Salem. Besides the daughter Sarah, there was a daughter Hannah who was married on Oct. 8, 1683, to William Ellery, and from these two, in the fifth generation, descended that distinguished and eminent theologian, William Ellery Channing, D. D.

"William and Sarah Vincen were admitted to the church in Gloucester, Jan. 23, 1650." Among the Presentments, June Term Court, 1659, in Essex County, was "Vincen, wife of William of Gloucester, for disturbance in meeting on Sabbath day. Jno. Davis and Jno. Pearse, Witnesses."

Sarah Vinson died Feb. 4, 1660, and on June 10, 1661, William married Rachel (Varney) Cooke, a widow, who survived him. He died Sept. 17, 1690. His will dated Mch.

19, 1684, mentions wife Rachel, son John, daughters Abigail and Sarah Parsons, and the children of deceased daughters, Gardner and Ellery. The instrument bears the mark of T William Vinson and a Seal.

HASKELL

WILLIAM¹ HASKCOLL, born in England in 1617, came to New England in 1637, in company with his brothers, Roger and Mark. They settled first in that part of Salem now Beverly. In 1643 William went to Gloucester and settled on the westerly side of the Annisquam River. He was a mariner and engaged in the fishing business. Was called Captain and Lieutenant. On Nov. 16, 1643, he married Mary, daughter of Walter Tybbot, died Nov. 12, 1693. Nine children were born to them, of whom William, born Aug. 26, 1644, was the eldest. William, the father, died in Gloucester, Aug. 20, 1693; Mary his wife died in Gloucester, Nov., 1702, aged 80 years.

William² (*William*¹), the son, married on July 3, 1667, Mary Walker, daughter of Mrs. William Brown of Gloucester; she took the name of her step-father and was known as Mary Brown. Their children were Mary,³ William, Joseph, Abigail, Henry, Elizabeth, Lidia, Sarah and Jacob, as named in his will now on record in Essex Co., Mass. William² Haskell was considered one of the richest men in Gloucester. He owned an extensive grist and saw-mill, probably situated where to-day is the town of Rockport. William died June 5, 1708; Mary died Nov. 12, 1715.

Lidia³ (William,² *William*¹), born Sept. 4, 1681, daughter of William and Mary Haskell; married Feb. 3, 1704, Ebenezer Parsons, son of Geoffrey and Sarah Vincent Parsons. They lived and died in Gloucester (see Parsons Genealogy).

Jacob³ (William,² *William*¹) born Jan. 15, 1691, was a minor at the death of his father, and his uncle Benjamin was appointed his guardian. Jacob married Dec. 31, 1716, Abigail Marcy. To them were born eight children. Jacob died Aug. 6, 1756: Abigail died Apr. 10, 1778.

Jacob⁴ (Jacob,³ William,² *William*¹), eldest son of Jacob and Abigail Haskell, born Oct. 27, 1718; married Nov. 29, 1730, Tabitha Day. Five children were born to them.

Jacob⁵ (Jacob,⁴ Jacob,³ William,² *William*¹), born Aug. 12, 1745; married 1st, Anne, daughter of Peter Godfrey of Gloucester. They moved to New Gloucester, Me., and became strongly identified with the best interests of the young town. Jacob married 2d, Sally Allen; she died Mch. 15, 1845, aged 84 years.

Peter⁶ (Jacob,⁵ Jacob,⁴ Jacob,³ William,² *William*¹), the eldest son of Jacob⁵ and Anne (Godfrey) Haskell, born 1769, in Gloucester, moved to New Gloucester, Me., with his parents. when a youth. They lived near Col. Isaac Parsons (the grandson of Ebenezer and Lidia Haskell³ Parsons), and ere long Peter won the heart and hand of the Colonel's daughter Salome (page 86). Peter Haskell became a farmer on an extensive scale. "His fine herd of cattle and excellent dairy were famous throughout Cumberland and adjoining counties. Few families lived more independently and happily, and none were more respected for every domestic virtue."

His son Peter⁷ (Peter,⁶ Jacob,⁵ Jacob,⁴ Jacob,³ William,² *William*¹) succeeded to the estate of his father-in-law, Col. Isaac Parsons, and his grandson, Mr. Charles Peter⁸ Haskell, to-day dispenses the old time hospitality from under the same roof (see Parsons Genealogy).

CHASE

RICHARD¹ CHASE, born 1542, in Chesham, son of Thomas Chase, Hundrith Church, Chesham, Buckingham County, Eng.; married Joan Bishop about 1565. Their son Aquila² (*Richard*¹), born Aug. 16, 1580; married June 23, 1606, Martha Jelliman, and to them was born in England in 1618 a son Aquila³ (Aquila,² *Richard*¹). Soon after the birth of this son, they emigrated to New England and settled in Newbury. In 1646 Aquila³ married Anne, born 1627, daughter of John and Anne Wheeler of Newbury. Her father, John, was born in Salisbury, Eng., and died in Newbury, N. E., 1670. Her mother, Anne, died Aug. 15, 1662. Of the children of Aquila³ and Anne (Wheeler) Chase, Priscilla⁴ (Aquila,³ Aquila,² *Richard*¹), was born Mch. 14, 1649. On Feb. 10, 1670, she was married to Abel Merrill, son of Nathaniel and Susanna (Wollerton) Merrill of Newbury. Aquila³ Chase, died Aug. 29, 1670. Anne, his wife, died May 19, 1688.

It is possible that Aquila Chase moved from Hampton, N. H., to Newbury, in 1646, where he received from the proprietors a grant of land, on condition that he "doe goe to sea and doe service in the Town with boat for foure years." There is a tradition in the Chase family that he was the first person who ever brought a boat over Newbury Bar. He must have moved to Newbury prior to the month of September, for under date of Sept., 1646, there is recorded "We present Aquilla Chase and wife and David Wheeler (a brother probably) for gathering pease on the Sabbath day."

MERRILL

THE name Merrill has its origin in France where the founders of the name took their title from the Forest of Merles. Emigrated to England. Nathaniel¹ born in England came to America with his brother John in 1633. They landed at Ipswich, but later in 1635 or '36 settled in Newbury. John had no sons, so that in his line the name died with him. Nathaniel¹ Merrill married Mch. 16, 1635, Susanna, daughter of Stephen Wollerton of Ipswich. Nathaniel died Mch. 27, 1655; Susanna died Jan. 25, 1672, in Newbury. Their children were: i. John,² born 1636; ii. Abraham, born 1637; iii. Nathaniel, born 1638; iv. Susanna, born 1640; v. Daniel, born Aug. 20, 1642; vi. Abel, born Feb. 20, 1645.

Abel² Merrill married Feb. 10, 1670, Priscilla, born Mch. 14, 1649, daughter of Aquila and Anne (Wheeler) Chase. Abel died Oct. 25, 1689. Their children were: i. Abel,³ born Dec. 28, 1671; married Abigail Stevens; ii. Susanna, born Nov. 12, 1673; iii. Nathan, born Apr. 3, 1676; married Hannah Kent; iv. Thomas, born Jan. 1, 1679; married Judith Kent; v. Joseph, born July 12, 1681; married Anne Wigger; vi. Nathaniel, born Feb. 6, 1684; married Hannah Stevens; vii. Priscilla, born July 13, 1686; viii. James, born Jan. 27, 1689; married Mary Adams.

James³ Merrill (Priscilla,⁴ Aquila,³ Aquila,² *Richard*¹ Chase), born Jan. 27, 1689; married Nov. 23, 1714, Mary, born Oct. 9, 1689, daughter of Robert Adams of Newbury; they had a son Humphrey,⁴ born Jan. 18, 1717, in Newbury, who married Dec. 10, 1741, his second cousin, Betty, born Nov. 18, 1715, daughter of Moses (son of Daniel) Merrill, born Sept. 7, 1683, in Newbury; died Jan. 17, 1756.

Humphrey and Betty Merrill moved to Falmouth, and on Oct. 19, 1742, their daughter Salome was born. She was married on Nov. 21, 1765, to Isaac Parsons of New Gloucester; she became the mother of eight children, and died Sept. 19, 1780 (see Parsons Genealogy). Humphrey Merrill was a private in Capt. John Elden's Company, which assisted in preventing the landing of the enemy at Falmouth. Roll dated Buxton, Dec. 14, 1775. The same Company was in service at Biddeford in consequence of armed vessels appearing in the harbor, and also in a "detachment Col. Mitchell's Regt. stationed at Falmouth, to assist in fortifying said town." Warrant for pay allowed in Council Jan. 23, 1779.
