

DUSENBURY FAMILY
of
Holland and New York

Some descendants of William,
Henry and Moses

The Dusenbury family is of Dutch origin. In 1728 three brothers, William, Henry and Moses Dusenbury imigrated from Amsterdam, Holland to America.

William and Henry were farmers. Moses had received a medical education and began the practice of medicine.

Soon after their arrival in New York they settled at White Plains, Westchester Co. N. Y. The doctor however, not liking the country, went back to Holland, where soon after his return he died unmarried.

Henry Dusenbury

In 1732 married Mary Totten. Issue 2 children, Mary & Peter. Mary Totten was the daughter of Colonel Peter Totten of Rye, New York. Col. Totten was a distinguished officer in the Provincial forces sent against the French and Indians. In 1766 he was an aged man living with his son Gilbert, who in that year wrote his (Col. Totten's) will.

In 1746, during the Third Intercolonial War, Henry Dusenbury was drafted. In April of that year orders were sent to the Colonies, to raise troops: Massachusetts raised 3500, Connecticut 1000, New Hampshire 500, Rhode Island 300, New York 1600, New Jersey 500, Maryland 300, Virginia 100, Pennsylvania 400. The troops commanded by Clinton assembled at Albany, N. Y. The corporation of Albany refused to provide for the soldiers. The bills drawn upon the British Treasury failed to purchase provisions, desease and death followed in rapid succession. At last impressment was resorted to.

During that memorable campaign Henry Dusenbury died. William Dusenbury assumed the care of Henry's children Peter and Mary.

In 1754 Mary, wife of Henry Dusenbury, died at her father's (Col. Totten's) house.
