OF THE
DAME * FAMILY
For Ten Generations
IN AMERICA.

Privately Printed. Richmond, Va.: 1890.

DAME GENEALOGY.

"The family came from Cheshire, England, and were freeholders from the time of Edward IV., or thereabouts.

Where they formerly lived is now known as the "Parish of Leighton-Cain Minshal Vernon," in the town of Nantwich, in Cheshire.

The old farm is now called the "Red Hall Farm." A portion of it is known to this day as "Dam's Crofts."

As near as could be found out the family mostly emigrated during the Puritan troubles in England in the seventeenth century, part going to Holland and a part to America. Whether the former became Van Dam or not could not be learned. One Christian, Tobias Dam, became quite eminent in Germany, during the latter half of the eighteenth century, as a theologian; and before that time Jan Dam was known as "a rebellious and troublesome subject" in New Amsterdam (now New York). There is nothing to connect these men with the English family except the name and the tradition (of the removal to Holland) spoken of.

One of the most interesting stories of the English family was about Thomas Dam, who lived to a very great age. He was born in the year 1494, died 1648, and was one hundred and fifty-four years old. He was buried in the church-yard of the Parish of Church Minshall, near Middlewick, in Cheshire (the place was famous for its old people). The register of Thomas Dam's death is still in existence, and is marked around with ink to call attention to the remarkable age. This is a copy of it:

Thomas Damme of Leiggtou, buried ye 20th of febbuarie being of the age of seven score and fourteen. 1648.

His wife is also buried in Church Minshall. He is said to have danced a hornpipe at the celebration of the opening of the present bridge over the river Weaver, at Church Minshall, he being then one hundred and four years old."

(The above from the papers of N. L. Dam, Lynn, Mass.)

In a petition to the Governor by the inhabitants of New Hampshire, 1689, John¹ Dam and Nicholas Dam were signers. These two are mentioned by John Camden Holten in his list of Emigration of "Persons of Quality" to America between 1600 and 1700. No trace of Nicholas afterwards.
