THE DORRANCE-TURNER-HILL
FAMILIES IN AMERICA

P R E F A C E

THE object of this small book is to put into permanent form data in my possession regarding the American ancestry of my children. I shall be pleased, however, if these genealogical notes prove of any interest or value to others.

In this book no attempt has been made to trace the families beyond the confines of America. In the first place, the size of such a volume would be prohibitive. Secondly, my interest in such ancestors is very impersonal. Thirdly, descent from men like Alfred the Great and Charlemagne is of little significance as they are in the lineage of a very large body of Englishmen and Americans of English descent. Lastly, anyone descended from the American ancestors of English descent listed in this book can easily trace back his ancestry by combining this book with others previously published. For example, this book lists Rachel Perne, who married Edward Rawson. Her name will be found on page 143 of "Your Family Tree," by David Starr Jordan and Sarah Louise Kimball, published in 1929 by D. Appleton and Co. Dr. Jordan's book shows her descent from David I, King of Scotland; Alfred the Great and William the Conqueror, Kings of England; Henry I, King of France; Charlemagne.

All descendants of Alpheus Thompson, Squier Hill, Ebenezer Walker, Job Risley and Reuben Risley—listed in this book—are eligible for membership in the Sons of the American Revolution. In that society my National number is 30293 and my State number is 3293.

Descendants of John Alden, Priscilla Mullins, William Mullins and his wife Alice, John Howland, Elizabeth Tilley and John Tilley and his wife are eligible for membership in the Society of Mayflower Descendants. My National number in the latter society is 5897 and my New York State number is 1399.

Much ridicule has been directed very properly at persons boastful of their ancestry. An interest in ancestors who had a part in settling this country and in establishing the republic, however, is commendable and makes for better citizenship.

I shall be pleased, of course, to receive any corrections or additional data.

NEIL H. DORRANCE.

DORRANCE

It is found that the European history of the family by the name of Dorrance is not confined to Great Britain. They seem to have been French Huguenots (Protestants), who escaped about 1598 from their native land because of persecution for adherence to their religious faith. Their first foreign home was Scotland. There are also many of the name in the north of Ireland, first going there from Scotland. There are still some of the same name in Normandy and other portions of France. It is probable that the Torrances of England and Scotland are also of the Dorrance family. Their motto is, in the family crest, "I Saved the King." The name (Turnbull) and crest (bull's head) were given to a Torrance for having saved the king from an attack by a furious bull as the king was hunting one day. He seems to have been the ancestor of the present Trumbull families.

Three brothers, the Rev. Samuel Dorrance, George Dorrance and John Dorrance, natives of Stirling, Scotland, moved to the north of Ireland. Owing to the oppression of the crown, which caused such large emigrations to America of the Scotch-Irish in the early part of the eighteenth century, John and George Dorrance, with their families, and the Rev. Samuel Dorrance, emigrated from the Province of Ulster, in the north of Ireland, about 1720. The voyage to New England was made in a small vessel purchased and manned principally by themselves. John and George Dorrance settled in that part of Connecticut afterwards included in the township of Foster, Rhode Island. The Rev. Samuel Dorrance, their brother, married Elizabeth Smith, August 1, 1726, and lived between Sterling Hill and Oneco, in that part of Voluntown Tp., afterwards included in the township of Sterling, Conn. The Rev. Samuel Dorrance was born in Scotland about 1685. He received the honors of the University of Glasgow in 1709 and was licensed to preach by the Presbytery of Dumbarton in 1711. He was pastor of the church in Voluntown until December 12, 1770.

GEORGE DORRANCE—Born 1675, died Sept. 22, 1754. He married Margery ( ), born 1673, died April 24, 1754. They were buried in the Old Sterling Tp. Burial Ground at Oneco, Conn. George Dorrance emigrated with his brothers, John Dorrance and the Rev. Samuel Dorrance, from the Province of Ulster in the north of Ireland about 1720—certainly before December, 1722. He was a constituent member of the Voluntown Presbyterian Church, organized Oct. 23, 1723, and was still a member in 1745-6. Margery, his wife, was also a constituent member, as her name is on the list dated Nov. 23, 1729, when "it was decided to rectify as far as possible the error of having omitted the names of female members." George Dorrance and his brother John Dorrance, with their families settled in the extreme northeastern part of Voluntown Tp., Windham, Conn., now the southwestern corner of Foster Tp., R. I., where they built a saw mill on the Quanduck River. The site of the mill was owned in 1910 by Frank Plummer. This locality has been known as the "Dorrance Neighborhood" since they first settled there. George Dorrance's name appears on the land records of Voluntown, Conn., and Scituate and Foster, R. I. His will dated Scituate, Aug. 26, 1749, recorded there June 7, 1755, mentions his wife and four sons.

JAMES DORRANCE—Son of George and Margery Dorrance. Born in the Province of Ulster in the north of Ireland in 1702 or 3, died in North Sterling, Conn., March 12, 1799. He married in 1732 or before Elizabeth ( ), born 1708, died June 7, 1777. Both are buried in Oneco, Conn. James Dorrance settled in that part of Voluntown, now included in North Sterling, Conn., where he had 20 acres of land laid out to him Nov. 14, 1726. By gift from his father and by purchase he subsequently became a large landowner. This land was on or near the Colony line and close to the Dorrance Neighborhood in Rhode Island. James Dorrance was received into the Voluntown Church in 1728 and "still adhered to that church in 1745-6." The will dated Jan. 27, 1786, was recorded at Plainfield, Conn., Feb. 4, 1800.

SAMUEL DORRANCE—Son of James and Elizabeth ( ) Dorrance. Born April 28, 1740, in that part of Voluntown, now known as North Sterling, Conn. Bapt. 1740, died in Hampton, Conn., June 7, 1799. He married Rebecca Gordon, Sept. 27, 1764, who was born Aug. 3, 1743, died Nov. 3, 1838. Both are buried in the Hammond Cemetery, Hampton Village, Conn. They removed to Hampton in or before 1775. The will of Samuel Dorrance, dated Hampton, Feb. 1, 1799, recorded Aug. 22, 1799, mentions wife, six sons and four daughters.

DR. JOHN DORRANCE—Son of Samuel and Rebecca (Gordon) Dorrance. Born June 19, 1778, in Hampton, Conn., baptized there June 24, 1778. He died at Peterboro, Madison County, New York, Oct. 11, 1857. He studied medicine with his cousin, Dr. Trumbull Dorrance, in Berkshire County, Mass., and settled at Peterboro, N. Y., in 1806. Married Mary Thompson in 1810, who was born March 14, 1783, died July 2, 1872.

DANIEL GORDON DORRANCE—Son of Dr. John and Mary (Thompson) Dorrance. Born at Peterboro, N. Y., March 13, 1811. At the age of nineteen years he entered Cazenovia Seminary. Upon leaving this institution he, for a short period, pursued studies with a view of entering the medical profession. The intention, however, of professional pursuits was soon abandoned by him for those of a business life, and in 1832 he went to Florence, Oneida Co., N. Y., to manage the store of J. S. T. Stranahan and Co., continuing in that position until 1837, when he engaged in mercantile business on his own account, which he successfully conducted until 1859, when he removed to Oneida Castle, where he resided until the time of his death. During his business career he was extensively interested in banking pursuits and real estate, and, in more limited but important ways, in manufacturing industries. He was from 1840 to 1859 the land agent of Hon. Gerrit Smith, and during this period and afterwards was largely interested in real estate, owning and handling extensive tracts of land in New York and Western States. The grounds occupied by his residence at Oneida Castle are historic, as they comprise a portion of the site occupied by Rev. Samuel Kirkland, a missionary to the Oneida Indians and founder of Hamilton College, and the old mission house formerly stood near a corner of his garden.

But while the real estate branch of his business enterprises was successfully conducted, banking pursuits were more to his training and liking. He first became interested in banking in 1847 when, with thirteen others, he organized the Fort Stanwix Bank of Rome, N. Y. He was elected one of the first Directors of that bank and served in that capacity until his death, being the last survivor of the original organizers. In 1866, he with others organized the Oneida Savings Bank of Oneida, N. Y., was elected its first President and served in that position until his death. He was long a Director, Vice-President and, at the date of his decease, President of the Oneida Valley National Bank of Oneida, N. Y. He was also the founder of the banking firm of Daniel G. and John G. Dorrance of Camden, N. Y., and President of their successor, The First National Bank of that place, from the date of its organization until the time of his death. He was also, at the time of his death, President of the Westcott Chuck Co. at Oneida and also a Director of the Rome Brass and Copper Co. of Rome.

In politics he was originally a Whig and since 1856 and the organization of the Republican party he affiliated with that party. He for several years represented the Town of Florence in the Board of Supervisors, and in 1846 represented his District in the State Assembly, and in 1854 and 1855 he served in the State Senate. In religious beliefs he was a Presbyterian and was a member and trustee of the Cochran Memorial Church at Oneida Castle. He married Anne Sparrow, March, 1837, in Florence, N. Y. He died at his home in Oneida Castle on Thursday, March 26, 1896. His wife was born 1814, died December 17, 1891.

JOHN GORDON DORRANCE—Son of Daniel Gordon and Anne (Sparrow) Dorrance. Born at Florence, N. Y., Dec. 17, 1837. Died at Camden, N. Y., Oct. 1, 1919. He married, on Feb. 5, 1861, Ellen E. Brown of Oneida, N. Y., who was born Feb. 28, 1841, and who died Oct. 28, 1920. He completed his education in Cazenovia Seminary and in 1856 engaged in business at East Troy, Wis., being connected with trade interests at that point until 1865 when he came to Camden. For eleven years thereafter he carried on merchandising in what was then known as the Trowbridge store, which stood on the corner of Main and Mexico streets on the present site of the Dorrance Bldg. In May, 1876, he formed a partnership with his father, Daniel Gordon Dorrance, for the conduct of a banking business in Camden, which they carried on under the firm name of D. G. and J. G. Dorrance until 1880, when the firm was succeeded by the First National Bank of Camden, in which D. G. and J. G. Dorrance were the principal incorporators, holding the majority of the stock.

He was appointed Commissioner of Prisons from the Fifth Judicial District for the term of five years by Governor Morton in 1895 and was reappointed for the full term by Governor Roosevelt.

He served as Cashier of the First National Bank of Camden from 1876 to 1896 and as President of that institution from 1896 to 1919.

DANIEL JAMES DORRANCE—Son of John Gordon and Ellen E. (Brown) Dorrance. Born in East Troy, Wis., July 25, 1862. He married, Feb. 22, 1887, Edith L. Turner at Lowville, N. Y. She was born Sept. 14, 1861, and died Oct. 30, 1926. His education was acquired in the schools of Camden and Clinton, N. Y., his preparatory course being supplemented by study in Cazenovia Seminary. He entered the First National Bank of Camden as assistant teller Jan. 1, 1884, holding that position until appointed teller on Jan. 12, 1886. He was made assistant cashier Sept. 14, 1893, and became Cashier of the institution July 16, 1896. In November, 1919, he became President of the bank and continued to serve in that capacity when, in 1926, the First National Bank of Camden became the First National Bank and Trust Company of Camden. On Feb. 11, 1928, he was made Chairman of the Board of Directors of the First National Bank and Trust Co. of Camden, New York, a position he still holds. During the World War he served as Chairman of Liberty Loan Committees.

GORDON DORRANCE—Son of Daniel J. and Edith L. (Turner) Dorrance. Born Camden, N. Y., June 14, 1890. Married, Sept. 12, 1922, Emile deVaulte Schlanger, who was born Feb. 25, 1898, in Breslau, Germany. Y., in 1908, from the Biltmore Forest School, with the degree of Forest Engineer in 1913, and had supplementary work at the Technische Hochschule, Darmstadt, Germany, and at the Graduate School, University of Pennsylvania. He was with the Maryland State Board of Forestry from 1913 to 1917 and served in U. S. Army during World War. Since 1920 he has been president of Dorrance and Co., book publishers, of Philadelphia, Pa. He is the author of two books, "The Story of the Forest" and "Broken Shackles," and of many newspaper and magazine articles. He resides at the Fairfax Hotel, Philadelphia, Pa., and his business address is the Drexel Building in the same city.

For a short time he was a member of the editorial staff of the Boston News Bureau, but in 1919 he was elected Vice-President of the First National Bank of Camden, N. Y. On Feb. 11, 1928, he became President of the First National Bank and Trust Company of Camden, N. Y., a position which he now holds. On Sept. 22, 1927, he married at Camden, N. Y., Amanda L. Hill, who was born June 5-6, 1838, and who died May 20, 1894. Admitted to the Bar in 1855, he was elected District Attorney of Lewis County, New York, in 1856, serving three years in that capacity. In 1859 he was elected County Judge of Lewis County, holding that office until Jan. 1, 1864. In 1870, he was again elected District Attorney, serving for three years. In 1886, he was again elected County Judge and held that office continuously until retired by the age limit on January 1, 1903. In 1881, he was elected by the legislature a Regent of the University and he continued as a member of the board for about fifteen years. He served as State Senator in 1877-78 and during his term took a prominent and influential part in the affairs of the Senate.

In August, 1861, Governor Morgan authorized the raising of the First Regiment, New York Light Artillery. First Lieutenant Guilford D. Bailey, Second United States Artillery, a native of Lewis County, was appointed its colonel and Judge Turner its lieutenant-colonel. Judge Turner joined his regiment in September, 1861, and through the ensuing winter did important duty in Maryland, Virginia and the Shenandoah Valley. In March, 1862, he was placed in command of the reserve and light artillery depot for the Army of the Potomac near Washington. It was during this period that he called on Abraham Lincoln to request he be again assigned to service at the front. Lincoln treated him very kindly, commended him on his efficient work, but declined to transfer him on the grounds that he was greatly needed in his present post. In December, 1864, he was placed in command of a cavalry force and ordered in February following to Madison Barracks, Sackett's Harbor, N. Y., to protect the frontier against raids from Canada by bodies of armed rebels and their sympathizers. He was mustered out of service in July, 1865. With the exception of one year, he served continuously from the date of organization to the time of his death, as commander of the Guilford D. Bailey Post, G. A. R., of Lowville, N. Y. He also served as vice-commander of the G. A. R., Department of New York. His legal education was received at Albany Law School, Albany, N. Y. Years later, Alfred University, in recognition of his distinguished career as lawyer and judge, gave him the honorary degree of LL.D. He was an able public speaker and also possessed of marked literary talent.

EDITH LILLIAN TURNER—Daughter of Henry E. and Amanda L. (Hill) Turner. Born in Lowville, N. Y., Sept. 14, 1861; died in Camden, N. Y., Oct. 30, 1926. She married Daniel J. Dorrance, at Lowville, N. Y., Feb. 22, 1887. She was graduated from Lowville Academy in 1881 and later studied for some years at the New England Conservatory of Music in Boston, Mass., where she devoted most of her time to voice, piano and organ. She possessed a very remarkable contralto voice, which many music critics claim has never been equalled. A perfect wife, an ideal mother, a loyal friend, her life was an inspiration. She did good quietly without a thought of appreciation or reward. Although herself an invalid for many years, those in misfortune found in her a ready sympathizer and a powerful ally. Her cheery disposition, her interest in others and her countless kindly and charitable acts won and kept for her a host of friends. Her own great suffering was forgotten in her love of others, and there have been few men and women who, blessed with health and strength, yet have left behind them so many acts of goodness and human kindness, so much of beauty and true nobility. She had a brilliant mind and a warm heart.

SQUIER HILL—Son of Zaccheus and Mary (Squier) Hill. Born in Ashford, Conn., Aug. 14, 1747, and died in Canajoharie, N. Y., Nov. 17, 1826. He married Dorothy Walker at Ashford, Oct. 25, 1770. She was born in Rehoboth, Sept. 21, 1749, and died in Montgomery County, N. Y., March 17, 1834. Squier Hill was elected "Trying Man" in 1771. Sept. 6, 1774, he was one of the committee of the "Sons of Liberty" who waited on Rev. Samuel Peters. He served as sergeant, April 19, 1775, at Lexington Alarm Call, and as ensign in Capt. Knowlton's company of Col. Israel Putnam's Continental Regiment in 1775. He served in the Centre Division at Cambridge under General Putnam, period of his active service being from May 1, 1775, to Dec. 18, 1775. He was one of the thirteen officers of Connecticut regiments, who, with 400 of their men, took an active part in the Battle of Bunker Hill. He and a few other officers from Connecticut, with 200 men, made up a portion of the 1,000 men who, on the night of June 17th, threw up the intrenchments in which they made their stand on the following day. He also served as First Lieutenant in Captain Wright's Co., Third Battalion of Connecticut troops, which served under Generals Spencer and Worster during 1776 and 1777. In addition he served as Captain in Col. McClelland's regiment, Tyler's Brigade, under General Sullivan, 1778, in the State of Rhode Island, his captain's commission being dated March 1, 1778. (Connecticut Military Records, pages 5-55, 58, 424, 543 and 545). During the war he donated £4,000 ($20,000.00) for the American cause and in addition furnished horses and beef for the troops. A portion of this was paid for in worthless scrip and he never made application for the remainder. He, in common with many affluent families, was almost reduced to poverty by the inability of the government to redeem its pledges. His home was twice burned by Tories and he was obliged, after his return from the war, to mortgage his farm to his life-long friend, General Keyes, for "296 Spanish-milled dollars." In 1786 he repaid this money when he sold his farm and moved to Wales, Mass.; thence he moved to Canajoharie, N. Y. He lived there until his death and all the quarrels of the neighborhood were referred to him for arbitration. He was a large man, tall, with blue eyes, light brown hair and a smiling countenance. He was a farmer, but, as quaintly expressed, "never milked a cow," indicating more of the so-called "gentleman farmer." The night before the Battle of Bunker Hill, he was engaged as stated before in throwing up earthworks, and toward morning threw himself on the ground and fell asleep. He dreamed that a British officer was about to kill him. That day he served behind the fence, and in the first charge beheld the officer of his dream "even to the watch fob." He said, "I took as good aim as I ever did at a squirrel and the officer fell." When they retired from the field and marched down the neck, they were assailed by a heavy fire, both from the shore and the water. There was a hole in a fence through which his men crawled, but he reflected that it would be beneath the dignity of an officer thus to escape and leisurely climbed the fence. As he went over a ball passed through his hat, knocking out the cockade. His company helped to save the retreating garrison, as they did not retreat until the main body had left the field. Later, this company served for a time as body-guard for Washington. Squier Hill once said that in all the numerous times he had seen General Washington, he only once knew him to smile, and that was caused by a letter received from Lafayette.

EBENEZER HILL—Son of Squier and Dorothy (Walker) Hill. Born in Ashford, Conn., Feb. 2, 1778, and died in Lowville, N. Y., Sept. 1, 1862. Y., Sarah Townsend, who was born Sept. 15, 1811, and who died Feb. 23, 1861. She was the daughter of Thomas Townsend, a descendant of Richard Townsend, who came to America in 1682 in the "Welcome" with William Penn. I do not know the names of Thomas Townsend's parents and grandparents, but his descent from Richard Townsend is a family tradition, a tradition confirmed by plates handed down from generation to generation, by the fact that the Townsends were members of the Society of Friends and by the family knowledge that the family came from Philadelphia.

AMANDA L. HILL—Daughter of William Walker and Sarah (Townsend) Hill. Born in Lowville, N. Y., June 5-6, 1838, and died there May 20, 1894. She married, Jan. 7, 1857, Henry Ellis Turner, who was born April 1, 1832, and died Feb. 6, 1911. She achieved more than local distinction as
