PREFACE.

My grandfather, Rufus Dennison, who when a young man removed from Freeport to Franklin Co., Maine, used to correspond with his nearer relatives and visit them till he had passed the age of eighty years. He also wrote to his more distant relatives in Massachusetts, and ascertained our relationship to George Dennison of Annisquam.

There are other Dennisons who have lost the traces of their family connections, as he did, and have the desire but not the time to ascertain them. Often in the same town are neighbors having different surnames, who never suspect that their great-grandparents in childhood played around the same fireside.

While living in Bath, Maine, near Freeport, I felt the need of a genealogy and copied records for my own use, and later the thought came to me of collecting this material in genealogical form, and offering it to my kinsfolk, not only as a memorial of the past, but as a record for present and future generations. As time goes on data will be harder to collect and this may be the foundation upon which someone who has better opportunities can build a more complete work. We can learn from nature to value a record of the past. To the geologist the strata of rock unfold the ages, and in footprints and fossils a record of animal life is preserved. Can man do less, can we let the unrecorded footsteps of those who move about us go to oblivion in a few years hence? To know something of our ancestors is not only a matter of personal interest, but also one of historical importance. Where they lived, what they thought and did, sometimes under adverse conditions, ought to teach us a lesson in contentment, and give us a more exact knowledge of ourselves.

I will not trouble the reader with details of the difficulties of collecting genealogical information. This work has taken the most of my spare time for two years past, but nevertheless it has been pursued with increasing interest. The pleasure of having formed new acquaintances among my kinsfolk, the consciousness of having done a little service for them, and the finished task seem to tell me that the time has been well spent.

Our acknowledgements and thanks are due to the various members of the family who have so generously assisted in the work. The descendants of Abner Dennison are indebted to Miss Grace M. Rogers of Freeport, who has with great care and patience compiled that part of the records. She writes that everybody has been very kind, only one or two families not having responded, and she feels grateful for all the assistance received. I would mention Mrs. Delia A. Rogers, and my cousins John Haraden Pratt and Annie J. Rogers, all of whom have contributed valuable data and have shown a great interest in the success of the work. I must also mention the late Mrs. Rachel C. Reed, who was a great help, having written to me only a few weeks before her death, and F. W. Soule for having sent valued records and prompt replies to my numerous questions.

We are conscious that many errors will be discovered. We have taken extra care to guard against them and we would thank our readers for corrections.

CHARACTERISTICS.

It is not unusual for parents to transmit to offspring not only physical build, features, and tone of voice, but also mental qualities and even their characters. Less frequently does the child inherit such tendencies from ancestors more remote.

In the study of a family as a whole, certain characteristics are bound to appear through successive generations. As one of the Dennisons, I might be excused from comments as a prejudiced observer, but I will try to present fairly what I think will be recognized by many as correct observations.

Not many of the name have been distinguished as professional or literary men. Many have been successful in business, some even distinguished. In the communities in New England where they have lived, they have been a race of men to do things in a modest way. In many branches of the family there is great inventive genius and skill in the use of tools. Some have been ship-builders, ship-carpenters, sea-captains, joiners, and farmers, and the quality of their work in many a seaport and town speaks out for their common honesty. While generally successful in accomplishing what they undertake and sometimes successful financially, I have never known any of them to be small or mean in the use of money. They belong to that class of people, who by working, earning, and using money, have contributed to the common welfare and made our country a desirable one.

In times of national peril and need the Dennisons have been represented on deck and in the field of battle, and have proved themselves to be men of spirit, courage, and patriotism.

EARLY HISTORY.

In the English and early Colonial records the name Denison and its variations Denyson and Dennison seem to have been used to designate members of the same family. Mistakes in writing surnames were frequent before people advanced in the art of spelling. The family name of Soule was written Soul, Sole, Soal, and Sowl, and the genealogies of other families show like variations.

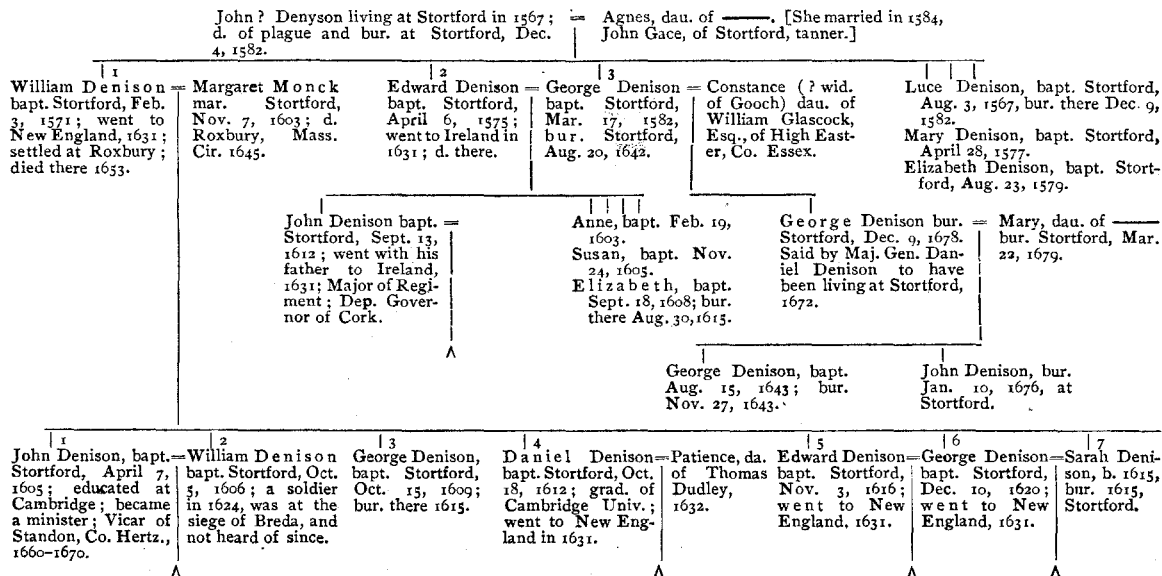

The ancestors of the English Denisons were probably Huguenots, and came with other Flemish emigrants from the northeast border of France where the name is still a common one. The records of the family taken from the parish registry of Bishop's Stortford, Hertfordshire, England, are the earliest we have. (See N. E. Hist. and Gen. Reg., Vol. 46). An autobiographical letter by Maj. Gen. Daniel Denison, found many years afterwards by one of his descendants, Rev. Daniel Rogers, of Exeter, N. H., gave the first clue to the locality in England from which the family sprung. A chart (see page 7) prepared by J. L. Glascock, Jr., Esq., of Bishop's Stortford, from the records of that parish verified the statements of that letter.

Maj. Gen. Daniel Denison says, "My father was born in Bishop's Stortford, England. He had two brothers, Edward and George, who all had children. George was the youngest and was living in Stortford in 1672. His brother Edward, in the year 1631, removed himself and family into Ireland, where he died and left a son, John Denison, who was a soldier and major of a regiment in the time of the wars, and deputy-governor of Corke, where Mr. Wainwright saw him. I have received divers letters from him. He was living in Dublin in the year 1670." He also states that he and his brother John were "bred scholars at Cambridge."

The New Eng. Hist. and Gen. Reg. states that until the above mentioned letter of Maj. Gen. Daniel Denison had been found, they had been unable to find any traces of the family in England; and it says that the George Dennison who settled in Annisquam in 1725, was possibly a descendant of William's nephew, John, who went to Ireland. On this probable connection, see letter of Capt. Joseph Dennison, a grandson of George, on page 8.

A letter by Capt. Joseph Dennison of Freeport is familiar to many of the family. He wrote as follows: "My grandfather, George Dennison was born in Dublin, Ireland, about the year 1695 (?) [on gravestone 1699,] came to this country at the age of 17 years. Being a student at college in Dublin, he was impressed on board a British man of war and came to Newfoundland, where he made his escape.

"With much hardship and suffering he arrived at Boston in the year of 1712. There he obtained business as a clerk in a commercial house, the firm of Sargent and Co., where he continued for a length of time to their mutual satisfaction. Being a good scholar and of good habits, he soon obtained many friends.

"I will mention one of his first business enterprises, which shows that he was enterprising as well as a speculator. The above firm had a vessel they had been looking for, for a long time, and had come to the conclusion she was lost. George asked Mr. Sargent one day, when he was lamenting the loss of the vessel and crew, what he would take for her at venture. Mr. Sargent put him off, said he did not want to take his money for nothing, but George persisted in his design, and Mr. Sargent named a small sum, saying that if she ever arrived the vessel and cargo were his; upon which George plunked down the money and in a short time the vessel arrived with a rich cargo. He removed to Gloucester, Cape Ann, and pursued the cod-fishing business, sent his vessels to the banks, was prosperous, and accumulated some considerable property."

He makes reference to his grandfather's family and the equal division of the property at his death. As the children of George are recorded in their proper place (page 17), we omit the rest of the letter and give place for the will of George Dennison, of Annisquam, Mass.

COPY OF GEORGE DENNISON'S WILL.

In the name of God, Amen :

I, George Dennison, of Gloucester, in the county of Essex and Province of Massachusetts Bay, in New England, shoreman, although weak of body, yet blessed of God of sound memory and judgment, do this 29th day of Jan., 1747-8, ordain, make and constitute this to be my last will and testament in manner and form following :

GIFT OF GEORGE DENNISON.

Whereas, I the subscriber, George Dennison, of Gloucester, in the County of Essex, have thought fit, with the consent and desire of my wife, in the settlement of my estate before my death to give freely out of my personal estate to my children, as follows, viz. :

To my son George, one-half my Schooner Abigail, as she now lays at Lieutenant Young's wharf, burden about 50 tons, and three hundred pounds money, old tenor. To Abner, Isaac, and David, the other half of my Schooner Abigail, equally to and between them, and nine hundred pounds old tenor, besides three hundred pounds to Abner and Isaac to help repair the house I have given them. To Jonathan, £400 old tenor; to Abigail, £600; to Susannah, £600.

This is to certify that Abigail, my wife, is equally concerned with me in the disposal of what I have given as above, and that it was according to her free will, and at her request and desire that I so did, and this which my wife and I have thus agreed to give to our children, in our lifetime, being thus given and disposed of, as not to be accounted after my decease as any part of my personal estate; because I have made a free gift, tender and surrender of it to my children as above. As witness our hands this 30th day of January, 1747-8.

N. B. That what remains of my personal estate not disposed of at my decease, we both agree likewise to give it to our four oldest sons, George, Abner, Isaac, and David.

GENEALOGY.

This includes only Maine descendants of George Dennison of Annisquam. For reference to early life of George Dennison, see letter of his grandson, Capt. Joseph Dennison, page 8. That he was a man of energy and influence we may infer from records of business transactions and from his will. He sent vessels to the Banks, was successful in business, raised a large family, and died at the age of 49, leaving an estate valued at £1532. (See Babson's Hist. of Gloucester.) He was one of the original proprietors of the township of New Gloucester, and also owned wild land in the present town of Freeport, Maine, where his sons Abner and David settled about 1757.

The name of George Dennison first appears in the Gloucester records at his marriage to Abigail, daughter of Edward and Hannah (York) Haraden, on Jan. 14, 1725. She was born 1706 and d. May 1, 1753. He was born 1699, and d. March 14, 1747-8.

From old letters in the possession of the writer they seem to have begun work in their new home with much enterprise. They built a saw-mill and vessel, and sent lumber to different places on the coast.

Sept. 3, 1895; m. in 1855, Sarah Webber, dau. of Benj. and Nancy Townsend Webber. Wm. E. Dennison went to sea when a mere boy and worked his way from the lowest round to the highest. He was well known on the Maine coast and at the time of his death was captain of the Maine Central steamer, Frank Jones, a position he had held for many years. Capt. Dennison served in the navy in the civil war, and with his American gunboat Cherokee, captured with others the blockade-running steamers, "Circassian" and "Emma Henly," rated the largest prizes ever taken by the American navy. Capt. Dennison, with his schooner Adrianna, saved the U. S. S. Wyoming, which had been run ashore by her rebel-sympathizing crew in the Gulf of California, July 31, 1861. The Wyoming was a notable ship and the circumstances under which she was rescued were such as to put Dennison in command of the gunboat Cherokee upon entering the navy. He had the distinction of having taken more prize money than any other person in the navy.

Mr. Dexter Stetson after learning the trade of a carpenter went from Durham, Me., to Nahant, Mass., when a young man. He built many of the fine summer cottages there. He was a respected and public-spirited citizen, and served his town in many capacities, but his ambition led him to a larger field of action, and he went to New Orleans, La., as a builder and contractor for the U. S. government. After building large storehouses there he was transferred to the Atlantic coast and built lighthouses from Florida to North Carolina. He served the government thirty years and built some of the finest lighthouses on our coast. When he retired, he received many complimentary letters from high officials of the Army and Navy for his integrity and efficiency.

H., Aug. 25, 1802, and d. Wilton, Me., Nov. 9, 1892. Rufus Dennison when a young man worked in the shipyards of Freeport and Mirimichi. About 1821 he removed to Avon, Me., and settled near the Bennetts. Not finding farming profitable or to his taste, he moved to Dixfield, Me., and ran a grist-mill.

He followed that business for over 30 years in the towns of Wilton, Farmington, Jay, and New Sharon. He was a skilful mechanic and framed several buildings. In the year of 1854 he retired to a farm in the eastern part of Wilton, now owned and occupied by his son, Wm. H. H. Dennison and known as the Dennison Homestead. He was never a user of liquor or tobacco and at an early age advocated the cause of temperance. He was the 1st lieutenant of the Jay militia and was a patriot from his youth. At the age of 14 years he went into the war of 1812 as a drummer and served one year. He used to tell the story of how his drum became too damp for use, after it had been left out by mistake. The Colonel became angry as they started out to march, and with drawn sword came at full speed after the stripling who failed to beat his drum. There was a haystack near by and Rufus ran for it, and was able to turn more quickly than his pursuer and always be on the opposite side from him, to the great amusement of the regiment and the discomfiture of their commander. He was a Universalist, and in character a man of energy and decision. He suffered from rheumatism, and used crutches for 10 or 12 years.

Frances Soule Campbell is one of the most successful and well known artists on the Pacific Coast. It was intended to have inserted here a sketch of her life and works that would to some extent be equal to her merit, but the San Francisco earthquake and fire came when this part of the book was being prepared, hence this meager account. It is to Miss Campbell that we are indebted for the lines of royal and colonial descent which are in the Appendix.

The following account from a California paper in regard to her will be of especial interest: "Miss Campbell as a miniaturist upon ivory ranks foremost in the State. It has been decided by connoisseurs that her technique is the nearest approach to that of the old world masters of any artist in the west. It is characterized by a wonderful depth of atmosphere, combined with great daintiness of color and fine expression. Miss Campbell, too, has rare insight. She sees the soul beyond the face, and has the art to clearly depict what she sees. Next year she will leave for Europe, where she has some orders from royalty."—The Daily Colusa Sun.

Since the fire her address is 2630 Bancroft Way, Berkeley, Cal.

(227) Enos Soule<sup>4</sup>, son of Barnabas and Jenny (Dennison) Soule, b. Nov. 29, 1792; d. Nov. 8, 1869. He early chose the life of a sailor and rose to the command of some of the largest ships that left the harbors of Maine. After retiring from the sea, he engaged in building ships with his brothers, Henchman and Clement, and together they were actively interested in this business for nearly a quarter of a century. Their ships are famous wherever the flag is carried. Some of the staunchest and handsomest vessels ever built were constructed and launched under their supervision, comprising ten large ships, five barks, two brigs, and three schooners.

Capt. Soule served in the war of 1812, was taken prisoner, and suffered for two years the horrors of Dartmoor Prison. In all the relations of life he was a model citizen, public-spirited and patriotic, and of unbending integrity. He married in 1817, Sarah, dau. of David and Rebecca (Chandler) Pratt, who was born June 30, 1798.

APPENDIX.

The following sketch of the family of William Denison is taken from "The Town of Roxbury" pages 90, 91, 92, by Francis S. Drake :

The family of Denison was one of distinction in our colonial annals. William Denison, with his wife, Margaret, and his sons, Daniel, Edward, and George, probably came over in the "Lyon" with Eliot in 1631, as his name stands third in the record of the First Church. Made a constable and a deputy to the General Court in 1634, he was a man of mark, possessed considerable property, and was one of the founders of the "Free School." With his son Edward, and other Roxbury men, he was disarmed in 1637, for "subscribing the seditious libel," or in other words, for being a follower of Anne Hutchinson.

His eldest son, Daniel, who married Patience, daughter of Gov. Thomas Dudley, removed to Ipswich, attained the rank of major-general, and was highly distinguished both in civil and military affairs.

Edward, who was in 1665 the first town clerk of Roxbury, and a representative in 1652 and 1655, married Eliza, daughter of Capt. Joseph Weld, and died in April, 1668. His son William, a graduate of Harvard College in 1681, also town clerk for many years, died on March 22, 1718, when the name became extinct in Roxbury.

Of George, the youngest son, a romantic story is told. He was trained to arms, and while serving in Ireland was severely wounded. Borne by his men to the mansion of a gentleman, named Borodaile, he was attended with great kindness and assiduity by Anne Borodaile, his only daughter, to whom, on returning to England, Denison engaged himself. Revisiting Ireland, he unfolded his intention of emigrating to America, at the same time urging her to accompany him as his wife. She declined encountering the perils of the sea and the wilderness, and they parted. In 1640 he married Bridget Thompson of Roxbury, who died three years later. Leaving his two infant daughters with their grandparents, he sailed for England in 1643, and under Cromwell resumed the military career as an officer of cavalry in the civil war, then raging. Again visiting Ireland, he this time succeeded in persuading the lady to accompany him to America. They remained a few years in Roxbury where, in 1646, we find that the young men of the town chose George Denison, "a young soldier lately come out of the wars," to be their captain, a choice that was negatived, however, by the elders. They afterward settled in Stonington, Conn., where he distinguished himself in Philip's war as an energetic and capable commander. In 1676, with sixty-six volunteers and one hundred Christian Indians, he slew seventy-six of the enemy without losing a man, and took prisoner Canonchet, son of Miantonomoh, the Narragansett chief. Capt. George Denison died in 1694, at the age of seventy-six. His wife survived him, dying in 1712, at the great age of ninety-seven.
