INTRODUCTION

Among the first settlers who came to clear the land and build homes in the upper Kennebec Valley were the Dinsmores, Crosbys, and Houghtons.

Very naturally these families inter-married, and many of the children settled on farms not far from the ancestral homesteads. This was to be expected as land was very cheap, log cabins were easily and quickly builded, choppings or clearings were quickly made, the trees burned, and the land was ready for the first crop.

In those days there were no fast trains or automobiles to transport the ambitious to other places; even a wagon was a great curiosity, so the children and the children's children for the most part cleared more land and settled down on nearby farms.

These were the days of large families, and the wonder is that so many large families were raised, so many children clothed and fed and educated with the hard living conditions imposed upon them in trying to eke out a living from these rugged farms. However, as the Rev. John Dinsmore has written in his description of a Dinsmore's Golden Wedding, "The Lord always provided and they were not called upon to endure more than they could bear."

It is easy to imagine how in these old days the children and grandchildren looked forward to the family reunion held at Thanksgiving, Christmas, and other times when all would gather at the old homestead to enjoy the family fellowship, exchange experiences and keep alive a deep interest in the family tree.

The gathering of the clan for the family reunion was a great event in those days and so it came to pass that the Dinsmore family reunion became an established custom many years ago, and since 1875 has been held regularly each year.

In 1865 the Rev. John Dinsmore of Winslow was invited to take part in the exercises celebrating the fiftieth anniversary of the wedding of Arthur and Patty Dinsmore of Anson, Me., and on this occasion he preached a sermon, and also in his address gave an outline of the Dinsmore genealogy dating back to 1620, the report of which appears in the following pages.

These records have been carefully preserved by the family and at a reunion held in 1911 it was voted that the family genealogy should be revised and brought up to date. Mrs. Marita Savage was requested to undertake the work, and after many months of faithful and painstaking research the records of the following pages were secured.

Certain members of the family became guarantors for the expense of publication and thus it became possible to have in proper form the records of the Dinsmore family from 1620 to the present time.

Honorable mention should be made of Fred A. Dinsmore and Wm. P. Watson, loyal members of the family, who have through their interest and perseverance done much to bring to pass the publication of these records.

Let us hope that the love and devotion and the Christian fellowship which so characterized this family in the early days, may continue in the generations to come.

GOLDEN WEDDING

A golden wedding was celebrated in Anson, Maine, Sept. 10, 1865, in honor of the fiftieth anniversary of the marriage of MR. ARTHUR and MRS. PATTY DINSMORE. It was the first of the kind ever celebrated in the town, though not the first occurrence of fifty years of married life. As it occurred on the Sabbath, and as it had long been the intention of the aged couple to invite to the old homestead at the time, all their children, and as many of the grandchildren as could come, it was thought highly fitting that they should repair to the house of God, and have a sermon preached on the occasion. Rev. JOHN DINSMORE of Winslow, was invited to preach and give some account of the Dinsmore settlement in the town. The Saturday previous, a large number of the relatives assembled at the house of ARTHUR DINSMORE, and spent several hours in social conversation, and in giving reminiscences of the past, which exercises were closed with prayer. On the Sabbath the little church in the neighborhood was completely filled with an attentive and interested audience.

The sermon for the occasion was from the text, Malachi, 4:6: "And he shall turn the heart of the fathers to the children, and the heart of the children to their fathers." The topics of thought presented in the sermon were:

1st—How does the family stand related to the highest good of man?

It is the fountain of all moral power in the world, the origin or source of all good or evil in a community, state or nation. Without it religion could never have gained a footing on the earth. Without it society in its ripest civilization could not be kept from relapsing into barbarism and universal corruption. In the sanctity of marriage as originally ordained, in the purity and strength of the domestic virtues and ties, and in the proper training of the family, are the radical elements of individual and national life and redemption. * *

2d—The importance of cherishing and ennobling the family relation was considered.

By this agency alone is the true end of our being on earth secured, and the highest elevation of the race attained. * * What then is the duty of every community? Plainly to cherish and ennoble the family institution, make much of it, baptize it with the highest and most sacred obligations—hallow it with the blessed influences of the Gospel, bind it with cords that will hold the family together however widely separated, do every thing to make it what God designed it should be,—the origin and source of every noble impulse, and heavenly discipline for man.

To promote this, it is well to have family re-unions as often as practicable, especially such as we witness to-day, on the fiftieth anniversary of the parents' wedding. The event we celebrate is one that occurs in but very few instances, and is worthy of special record. We shall now give a brief genealogy of the Dinsmore family as far back as we can trace it.

The original progenitor of all the Dinsmores that live in this country and the old, so far as we are able to trace the genealogy, lived in a place in Scotland called Achenwead, about the time the Pilgrim Fathers landed on Plymouth Rock. He was a wealthy farmer, being called the Laird of Achenwead, and having tenants under him.* He had two sons, the youngest of which was called John. The latter, feeling himself degraded by his father, because he obliged him to stand uncovered, and hold the off stirrup of his elder brother's saddle, when he mounted his horse, left his home without his father's permission at seventeen years of age, and went to Ireland, and settled near Bellywatick, in the county of Antrim. This man had four sons, named John, Adam, Robert and Samuel. John, the oldest, emigrated to America—the first one of the name who came; but the date of his arrival is not on record. He landed at a place called Gorges, in the District of Maine, where was an English fort. There he built him a house, but before it was finished he was captured by the Indians and carried to Canada. After suffering many hardships, and narrowly escaping death by being burnt at the stake on a false charge, he was at length released by his chief, who believed him to be an honest man, and found his way back to Fort Gorges. He then took passage to Boston, and from there went to Londonderry, N. H., where he found many old friends who knew him in Ireland, and had emigrated to that place. The proprietors of the town gave him a farm of one hundred acres of excellent land, in consideration of the hardships and suffering he had endured, and the respect they had for him. Being a mason by trade, here he built a stone house, and then sent to Ireland for his wife, children and grand-children, all of whom arrived safely in 1730. The old man lived to the great age of ninety-nine, and was much respected and honored by all who knew him, for his piety, morals and good sense, having for many years been called "Daddy Dinsmore".

About the year 1745, Mr. David Dinsmore, tailor in Ireland, a grandson of the original John and nephew of John above, who went from Scotland to Ireland, set sail with his wife and children, from Londonderry in the north of Ireland for this country, and after a voyage of three months, landed in Boston, Mass. They brought flax with them, and immediately commenced making thread for sale. Afterwards they moved to Londonderry, N. H. In 1747, David Dinsmore purchased a farm in Auburn (then a part of Chester). The deed of the farm, dated in 1747, is still in existence, and is quite a curiosity. The first house built on the farm was of logs; afterwards a framed house was built, a part of which was standing three years ago, having stood over one hundred years, but now is demolished.

David was the father of seven children. Their names were: Samuel, James, David, Thomas, Robert, Arthur and Mary. Two were born before coming to this country, and five after settling in Auburn. The two youngest sons were twins, and resembled each other so much that it is said they were often mistaken for each other — indeed, the lady to whom one was engaged was visited by the other, and did not discover the joke that was played upon her. Robert and Arthur inherited the paternal estate, which was divided between them. Robert raised a family of nine children, and died in 1824, aged seventy-two. His part of the farm then came into the possession of one of his two sons, named Samuel, who married Miss Hannah Blanchard, Dec. 26, 1811. They lived together fifty-two years, and celebrated their golden wedding three years ago last December. The husband died a year ago last March. They had twelve children, ten of whom are still living. Arthur, the youngest son, now lives on the old homestead, and has two children. He is present to-day, a representative of that branch of the Dinsmore family, coming from the old homestead to this golden wedding. Thirty-seven children have been born on that old place.

Arthur, the other twin son of David, lived on his part of the old homestead till he had eight children, and then finding it hard to support so large a family on the land he had, and wishing also to get farms for his sons, resolved to go down into the wild and unsettled portions of Maine then belonging to Massachusetts, where he could get land enough, and very cheap. Therefore he came down to Augusta in 1792, and purchased six hundred acres of land in the north part of this town; but not liking it on coming to it, he bought here the next year, and came down and made a chopping, or in other words felled trees, preparatory to clearing the land. The next spring he came again, burned his chopping and put in a crop, and felled more trees. He then returned to Chester to get his family. It was during his absence this time, that his youngest son, Arthur, was born, (whose golden wedding we celebrate to-day,) and on his way back as he stopped at a certain place, the good lady of the house where he was entertained inquired how many children he had. He replied he had had nine children and had never seen one of them. His statement was very surprising to her, and she could not understand it till he explained how it was. In September following he took his family of seven children, leaving the oldest one at Chester, and having buried one, came to Newburyport, Mass., and there took passage in a vessel to Augusta. From there they came on horseback, taking their effects with them — the youngest child being only three months old, riding in his mother's arms. On arriving at Bickford's place on the hill, where Benj. Hilton now resides, the family remained there more than two months while a log cabin could be built. From that place there was no road or path, only a trail. The very night the family entered their cabin, another man and his wife came, and camped on the farm where Mr. Selden Brewster now lives. The reason why that family came before they had built a cabin, was because Mr. Titcomb, the proprietor of the land, had promised to give ten dollars to the first woman settling on any of his land; and they, learning that Mr. Dinsmore was building a cabin, came at once, hoping to secure the ten dollars. But as both ladies came the same night, Mr. T. resolved to divide the money between them; but the other man, somewhat angry, declared he would have the whole or none, therefore Mr. T. concluded to give it all to Mrs. Dinsmore, who really deserved it. The other family did not remain many years on their place.

Another incident worthy of notice, at the time they entered their little cabin, illustrates the generosity and good feeling of their neighbors. Mr. Benj. Hilton, who owned a mill at what ever since, has been called Hilton's Mills, grinding a bushel of wheat, took it and a piece of pork, as soon as he learned of their arrival, mounted his horse and carried them to the new family — judging very wisely that they could not have much with which to commence living.

The next spring after the Dinsmore family came, Mr. Jonathan Crosby* and Mr. Thomas Houghton* moved into the neighborhood, coming formerly from Massachusetts. They had married, each the other's sister, and Mr. Houghton was the father of the present Mrs. Dinsmore. He had fifteen children, nine by the first wife and six by the second, whose name was Mrs. Bridget Heald, the mother of the late Deacon Heald, and who lived some years on the old Houghton place. Eight of the Houghton family are still living.

Eight years Mr. Dinsmore lived in a log house, and the family, at times, was in very straitened circumstances, using the last mouthful of provision they had, and being obliged to go several miles to mill on horseback. But the Lord always provided, and they were not called to suffer more than they could bear. When Arthur was eight years old their first framed house was erected, the same in which he now lives, built large to accommodate a large family, and also to be convenient for holding meetings — (previously meetings were held in barns or a little log school-house). The house was large also, indicating the large hearted benevolence and hospitality of the dwellers within. The string of the door-latch has never been pulled in since the house was first erected; and it has been not only a minister's tavern of all denominations, but a tavern for everybody else that went to meeting, so long as the little school-house stood at the four corners, and was the meeting house. Enough meals were furnished gratuitously in that house, for a number of years, to support a moderate sized family. We have been told that often the cooking on Saturday in preparation for the Sabbath has exceeded in amount the cooking for all the rest of the week.

When the youngest son, Arthur, was fifteen years old, his father bought a wagon, and a great sensation it produced on its arrival, people came quite a distance to see the wonder, and yet it was set on wooden springs, and rode about as easy as a baggage or a farm wagon does now.

The names of the children that came from New Hampshire with the parents were, David, Elizabeth, James, Samuel, William W., Thomas, Jane W. and Arthur. The next year after their arrival, David married Rebecca Hilton, daughter of Benj. Hilton, the miller, and they settled on land at the south of the father. In 1797 Elizabeth married Richard Hilton and settled near the old Benj. Hilton place. In 1802 James married Deborah Patten, and settled at Anson Village. In 1807 Samuel married Susanna Houghton and settled where Mr. Brewster now lives. In 1808 William married Lucy Gould, and settled on the farm now owned by Mr. Peter Rogers. In 1811 Jane married Mr. John Ingalls and settled on the Benj. March place, and they are both here to-day, having lived together more than fifty-three years. In 1812 Thomas married Sally Houghton and settled near Richard Hilton. Arthur, the youngest, remained on the homestead, and married Patty Houghton Sept. 10, 1815, just fifty years ago to-day.

So that to-day we can say that 388 descendants trace their origin to the original settlers on the Dinsmore homestead; and at one time the father could sit in one room of his house and look out upon the homes of four sons.

Three brothers married three sisters of the Houghton family. The father died March 13, 1829, aged 77—living five years longer than his twin brother; and the mother died Sept. 27, 1837, aged 88 years—outliving her husband eight years. Her memory is still cherished with tender interest by a large number here to-day. She was the first woman that came into the place, the first one to pray for God's blessing upon the place, the first to desire a church and to connect herself with it, the first to welcome the faithful Missionary to the hospitalities of her house, and open it for a place of public worship. Sincere piety, an exemplary christian character, and ardent love for the cause of Christ, strongly marked her life. She was an every day Christian. None knew her but to respect and love her. And there can be no question that, under God, to her prayers, christian example, her children and children's children are largely indebted for the grace of God bestowed upon them, and the church in this place owes much of its prosperity. And to give to those who were not permitted to know her by personal intercourse, a graphic view of her life, let us quote an extract from a poem composed upon her death by Rev. J. Tucker, her pastor:

An aged mother, lately called home;
 Because her warfare here, and work were done.
 She lov'd the Lord, and served Him many years:
 And yet how oft she doubted it with tears!
 She loved God's word, His Sabbaths and His saints,
 Yet most of all her want of love laments.
 She loved Christ's servants—took them to her home,
 When hungry, fed them! yet nothing thought she'd done.
 She show'd to all around, a holy life:
 Yet of herself, she always spoke with grief.
 Her house, a "Bethel"—a "Temple," too, her heart,
 Where God did dwell, and daily grace impart!
 And yet she daily mourn'd her wicked heart,
 And fear'd in Christ, she'd neither lot nor part.
 Pray'r was her "watchword"—more—her "vital breath"—
 Through life she pray'd; and in the hour of death.
 "My spirit, Lord receive!"—her dying prayer
 And quick to heav'n the Angels did it bear.
 And yet her prayers how poor they did appear,
 In her own eyes; but to the Lord, how dear!
 Her many mites, in charity were spent,
 And yet she view'd it all, to God as lent.
 To sick ones, she her ready visits paid,
 And with them, night and day, she cheerful stay'd.
 At every call, her willing feet would come,
 Yet ever thought, her duty but half done.
 O! what a constant, Christian friend we've lost;
 And those who knew her best, did love her most.

About the time the brothers and sisters of the Dinsmore family were all settled in life, they commenced holding what were called family meetings, once a year, beginning at the old homestead and going round in the order of their ages. It was held at first on New Year's day, except when that occurred on Sunday, and then it was held on the following day. But after a while it was found inconvenient to meet that day, on account of drifting storms, and then it was changed to any other season of the year most convenient for the family where it was to be held; and those meetings were kept up till only two brothers and one sister were left to meet. At those meetings, they were accustomed to spend the forenoon in social conversation; and after dinner they would hold a religious service, each one being expected to give some account of his religious experience during the past year—their joys, sorrows, afflictions and trials, and then closed with singing a hymn prepared for the occasion, and prayer, led generally by the minister of the place where they met. Very precious were those meetings; never to be forgotten by the children—strengthening very much the bonds of love between the families.

HYMN — C. M.

SUNG AT THE ANNUAL MEETING OF THE DINSMORE FAMILY

Brethren beloved, we meet again —
 God's mercies to recount:
 To tell how rich his gifts have been,
 How swelled — how vast th' amount.

Descend, dear Savior, now descend,
 Our yearly meeting crown
 With thy blest presence, and extend
 Thy kindly influence round.

This day, thy Spirit on us pour,
 And lead us in thy way,
 And if we never loved before,
 Help us to love to-day.

(We sing of mercies — sorrows too, —
 For these we here must share —
 Our Savior shar'd them while below, —
 None here exempted are.)

Inspire our leader with thy grace,
 And fill him with thy love,
 May he our minds with truth impress,
 And lead our souls above.

For all the good thy grace imparts,
 May we thy praises sound,
 And every fibre of our hearts,
 In constant tune be found.

We'll share each other's joys and woes —
 Each other's burden bear,
 And often for each other flows
 The sympathizing tear.

The blessings which to us are given
 As we so richly share,
 Were sought by parents now in heaven,
 When once they offered prayer.

Around the altar where they prayed,
 May we, their children, meet; —
 Here let our solemn vows be paid,
 For here's the mercy-seat.

From all the houses where we live,
 May daily prayers ascend,
 That God may to our children give
 The joys which have no end.

And may their offspring yet unborn,
 The same rich blessings share,
 Till all shall meet in worlds unknown,
 God's mercy to declare.

Parents and children then will stand
 A perfect family —
 Made one in Christ, the worthy Lamb,
 To all eternity.

Yesterday there was another family gathering at the old homestead, of the children of the youngest son and brother of the original family. Eleven sons and daughters, with their wives, husbands and children, and cousins of different names and degrees, to the number of about seventy, came to celebrate the golden wedding of Mr. Arthur and Mrs. Patty Dinsmore. A joyous greeting it was, and very pleasant the reminiscences given — a memorable occasion! No death has occurred in the immediate family circle, and only one son-in-law and one daughter-in-law and four grand-children have died. How unusual the event, that so large a family gathers unbroken at the fiftieth anniversary of the parents' wedding. They have eleven children, twenty-three grand-children, and four great-grand-children — thirty-eight descendants.

And now, dear friends, allow me to congratulate you upon your arrival at this golden era of your life. Fifty years have passed away since you took each other by the hand, and mutually pledged your love and fidelity to each other, and the name of husband and wife was pronounced upon you. How checkered have been the scenes through which you have passed since that happy hour! How swiftly the years have fled apace as you have journeyed on, hand in hand, up the ascent and down the declivity of life! How many changes have taken place around; no family lives in this neighborhood now, where they lived when you started in life together! How few heads of families remain unchanged! Your only sister and her husband have lived together fifty-four years, and Mr. George Gray and wife fifty-one years. These are the only two couples that remain as they were then. And yet you have lived in the same house, and on the same farm fifty years! How the great world about you has advanced with rapid strides in improvements in the arts and sciences, in railroads and telegraphs, and labor-saving inventions.

At length you have reached the golden gate of matrimonial bliss and you can say with joy to-day, in the language of the Divine word, "Behold we and the children which God has given us." In grateful recognition of the good hand of God that has preserved your family unbroken so long, I need not ask you to join those right hands again and pledge anew the undivided love of fifty years, for I know that in heart you do it, and may you now be enabled to consecrate yourselves and your children, here in God's house, to Him who has been your father's God in all generations, and who has promised to be your God, and the God of your children, and children's children, to such as keep His covenant forever.

The following hymn sung by the choir, concluded the interesting service:

We come this mild September day,
Love's summons to obey.
Nor would we fail with joy to hail
This Golden Wedding-Day!

CHORUS

Your Golden Wedding-Day, dear friends,
Your Golden Wedding-Day;
Nor would we fail with joy to hail
This Golden Wedding-Day.

What though youth's early dreams are fled
Though gone life's spring-time gay —
We may not fail with song to hail
This Golden Wedding-Day.

CHORUS

Your Golden Wedding, &c.

For Fifty years, 'mid smiles and tears,
You've trod life's pilgrim way:
Then sure 'tis meet that thus we greet
This Golden Wedding-Day.

DINSMORE

CHORUS

Your Golden Wedding, &c.

May He whose smile can care beguile,
And Autumn turn to May,
Bid this dear pair His blessing share,
This Golden Wedding-Day.

CHORUS

Your Golden Wedding, &c.

NOTE. The above hymn, with two verbal changes, was sung at the Golden Wedding of Mr. Samuel Dinsmore, of Auburn, N. H., Dec. 26, 1861, and written for that occasion by a lady in Massachusetts.

This account was written by the Rev. John Dinsmore of Winslow, Maine, May 20, 1867.

Appreciation

The family meetings of the Dinsmore Clan have been held yearly since 1875.

In compiling these records I have endeavored to give complete data of the descendants of David Dinsmore, Grandson of John of Ireland, presumed son of Samuel, and nephew of John, who came to N. H., and bring the family records down to the present time.

Have failed in many lines owing to lack of interest and lost records.

To those who have so heartily responded and forwarded the research work; to the members of the association, for the deep interest shown; to Gertrude Western of Skowhegan whose untiring efforts and work of years, have given the complete Crosby records:—also Houghton records:—and to Nathan Dinsmore of Franklin, Mass., for the Biography of his father:—I wish to express my sincere and hearty thanks.

Also to the Maine Historaine Society in Portland, Me., State Library in Augusta, Me., and Geneological Society in Boston for the courtesy and kindness shown me in all my research work.

MRS. PATTY DINSMORE

The Dinsmore Genealogy

I QUOTE this from a letter dated Ballywattick, Ireland, Aug. 12, 1794, which was written by Robert Dinsmore:

"As to your request concerning the genealogy of our family you have been pretty fortunate in calling on me, as I assure you there is not a man living with my knowledge that can go as far up in that description as I can."

"My grandfather was born on the mean land of Scotland, near the River Tweed — son of a wealthy farmer as I suppose from his style, being called the Laird of Achenmead, as he had tenants under him. He had two sons of which my grandfather was the second whose name was John. He left his father's house in the seventeenth year of his age. I suppose he must have eloped as he brought no property with him, as I have often heard, save a gray bonnet, with striped woolen hose and a small cane in his hand:

"This is your original in Ireland, and mine; and all by the name of Dinsmore here or elsewhere that belong to that stock: This man had four sons, John, Adam, Robert and Samuel.

"John was the first that migrated to America, of that name. I never heard my grandfather give any other reason or cause for leaving his father's house but this: That his father obliged him, and that uncovered, to hold the off stirrup of his elder brother's saddle when he mounted his horse.

"This man lived to be ninety-nine years old, fifty years married, much respected by all who were acquainted with him for his piety, morals, and good sense. He was called 'Daddy Dinsmore'.

"There is yet something remaining which may gratify you in the line of heraldry. The Dinsmore coat of arms is a farm laid down on a plate of green color, with three wheat sheaves set upright in the center of a yellow color, all emblematical of husbandry and agriculture. Another description is the picture of a man with his dog and gun with a sheaf of wheat and one of oats which cross each other."

The Dinsmore Families of New Hampshire and Maine:

Probably derivation of the name, Dunsemoor (dunes, a little hill, and moor, heath). He probably lived on or by a little hill at the edge of the heath or moor.

From the records of the Dinsmore families gathered from various sources, I submit the following:

I

Laird Dinsmoor, I, the earliest known ancestor, was born in Scotland about 1600. Dwelt on the banks of the Tweed at a place called Achenmead, was thought to have been an adherent of Douglass, he was living there in 1667.

Children of Laird Dinsmoor:

- 1 — Dinsmoor 2, born about 1648, first name not known.
- 2 John Dinsmoor, born about 1650.

II

John Dinsmoor, born about 1650. He ran away from home at 17 and went to Ballywattick Parish in the Province of Ulster, County of Antrim, Ireland, in 1667. He married at the age of 20, in 1670. Left a widower at 70, died at the age of 99 years.

Children of John Dinsmoor, the Scotch Immigrant to Ireland (his wife was also Scotch):

- 3 John.
- 3 Robert.
- 3 Adam.
- 3 Samuel.

III

III

John Dinsmoor, born as early as 1671 in Ballywattick, Ballymony County Antrim, Ireland. Immigrated to Londonderry, N. H., that portion which is now Windham, N. H., as early as 1723. He is the ancestor of most of the Dinsmoors of N. H. He died in Windham, N. H., in 1741. He was the first of the name to come to America, landed at a place called Gorges where there was an English Fort. He was captured by the English and taken to Canada; the Indians released him and after many hardships, he reached Boston and went to Londonderry, N. H., where the Scotch-Irish from his old country had settled. He was a Mason and built a stone house in which he lived and where he died. He sent for his wife and two children and grandchildren. They arrived in 1730.

III

Children of John Dinsmoor were:

Robert Dinsmoor, born 1692 in Ireland. He married Margaret Orr in Ireland and came to N. H. in 1730 with four children:

- 4 John.
- 4 Mary.
- 4 Elizabeth.
- 4 Robert.
- 4 William, b. 1731 in America.

Robert⁴, d. Oct. 14, 1751, his wife June 2, 1752.

Elizabeth⁴, daughter of John³, m. John Hopkins in Ireland and came to America at the same time with two children. They had John, Robert, Nancy, Ruth born 1743. They lived in Windham, N. H.

III

Robert Dinsmoor³, John², of Ireland. B. 1673 in Ballywattick, Ireland, living there in 1715. No record is found of his family. Never came to America.

III

Adam Dinsmoor³, John², b. 1675 in Ballywattick, Ireland, no exact records. Remained in Ireland.

Children given were:

- 4 Robert.
- 4 James, b. 1742.
- 4 Andrew, b. 1752, came to America and settled in Penn.

III

Samuel Dinsmoor³, John², b. 1677, no definite records.

There is nothing to prove that the above Samuel was the father of David Dinsmoor⁴, but after comparisons and eliminations, it seems very probable that such may be the case. You will notice that David's first child was named Samuel Dinsmoor.

IV. David⁴ was a grandson of John², of Ireland, and nephew of John who has been described above. Probably son of Samuel 3rd. He was born in Ballywattick, Ireland, in 1714, d. 1784 (N. H.). He married Widow Elizabeth Kennedy, b. 1710; she died in 1807, in Chester, N. H. David and his wife and children sailed from Londonderry, Ireland, in 1745 and arrived in Boston after a stormy voyage of three months. He went to Londonderry, N. H., in 1745 and on May 8, 1747 James Adams deeded to David Dinsmoor, 4th, of Londonderry, a tailor, No. 22, 4th, D. in Chester which was Derryfield. In 1758 David purchased the west half lot No. 84 — 2nd P. 2d D. on which he settled.

Reverend John Dinsmore

The subject of this sketch was born in Anson, Maine, April 20, 1821, the son of Thomas Dinsmore and Sallie Houghton. He was at birth a very feeble and fragile child and for two or three weeks was held on a pillow and shielded from the faintest breath, lest the tiny spark of life should fade away. It was said that his head could be put inside a common teacup, and there was very little evidence of the long and useful life made possible by a healthy body which seldom succumbed to illness of any sort. All of his friends and acquaintances will remember the serious handicap in his lameness which dated from birth and which, to a less courageous person would have curtailed the work and usefulness of life, but this was not allowed to be any drawback. The writer of this sketch remembers to have heard him mention it but once in all his life. Some curious person asked some question in regard to his feet, wondering if some surgical operation might not restore normal conditions. His only answer was, "I was born twenty-five years too soon." Meaning, of course, that in later years experience and skill enabled surgeons to easily remedy the difficulty which in his infancy was regarded incurable. Owing to this physical defect his boyhood was spent in different pursuits than it might otherwise have been, and he gained more from books and educational privileges. In early life the ministry seems to have been his aim, and the entire family were interested in his preparation, although he was dependent to a great extent upon his own efforts, and as soon as possible began to teach country schools to furnish the necessary funds. For this reason his entire course of study was much broken by teaching where he gained a reputation for conscientious and effective work. Schools at Industry, Solon, West's Mills, Allen's

Mills and other places near his home are all mentioned in his books. Some of the prices which he received are interesting compared with present conditions. In 1840 he received $27.00 for eleven weeks, in 1841 $22.00 for nine weeks. In 1843 he began to teach a High School in Industry where he received $54 for twelve weeks and the following year, $100. A part of these years he was preparing for College, chiefly at Gorham Academy, and he entered Waterville College in 1844. A serious illness made it necessary to leave, and further preparation at North Yarmouth Academy resulted in his entering Bowdoin College Sophomore year, and graduated in 1848. His account of his trip to Brunswick is still extant. He started from home at 3 A. M., took a steamer at Waterville to Hallowell arriving at 10. Steamer to Bath which had 700 or 800 on board. Private carriage to Brunswick. A part of each college year was spent in teaching, and there is still to be seen in his scrap book this account of an exhibition at West's Mills, Industry, Nov. 10, 1849.

"Each part was performed well, evincing a well qualified, patient and pains-taking instructor, one apt to teach, and the pupils apt to learn, so that the exercises of the evening, interspersed with excellent music, begun, continued and with the original valedictory, worked out well. No wonder that young men buy their time of their fathers to attend Mr. Dinsmore's school, and that fatherless sons labor hard with their hands to furnish means to be scholars of such a school." It must have been in these early days that he was present at the laying of the corner stone of the Father Rasle monument at Norridgewock, in which he was interested. As soon as was practical he entered Bangor Theological Seminary, and while there taught a part of the time in the Latin School and also a Select School. The year of his graduation, 1852, he went to North Hampton, N. H., as pastor of the Congregational Church, in connection with Dr. Jonathan French, who became pastor emeritus. This pastorate of ten years was one of excellent results, and his parishioners were life long friends. At the beginning of this pastorate he married Althea Cobb, whose short life was one of ideal usefulness and friendship, and the entire community mourned her death. Later he married her sister, Katie Cobb, a woman still remembered, loved and admired for her intellectual attainments as well as a remarkably sweet disposition and rare spiritual qualities. She died in 1872, leaving three children, two of whom are still living. Mr. John Dinsmore, a teacher of note, who for fifteen years has had charge of the schools of the American Colony, Jerusalem, Palestine, and Mr. Nathan Dinsmore of Franklin, Mass., whose enthusiasm and interest in the history and prosperity of the Dinsmore family as exemplified at the family reunions, is well known.

REV. JOHN DINSMORE

In 1862 Mr. Dinsmore removed to Winslow, Maine, to succeed Dr. Shepley in one of the historic churches of the State. Here he remained for eighteen years doing most excellent and far reaching work which extended far beyond his own parish. He was greatly interested in Sunday School work, and was one of the pioneers in the movement for organized work and district Conventions. He was much sought after to address these Conventions which he did with vigor and enthusiasm. His musical ability was also a marked feature at these meetings and elsewhere. During this period he was a delegate to a large denominational meeting at Plymouth, Mass., where he did some committee work with Henry Ward Beecher with whom he afterwards had some correspondence which he much enjoyed.

In 1880 he removed to Brunswick to secure for himself a needed change of scene and for his sons the opportunity to study at his own Alma Mater, Bowdoin. While here he preached in various pulpits but chiefly in the church at Harpswell during the absences of its renowned pastor, Elijah Kellogg. He preached at Harpswell three or four years, after which he moved to Auburn where his youngest son was in business. There he enjoyed several years, not of quiet and repose, but of continued work and interest along any lines where he found the opportunity for his efforts. He married in 1875 Mrs. Sarah E. Chapman, and it was at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Althea S. Curtis, at Harpswell, that he died, December 8, 1907.

Fulton: Page 530 of History of Chester, N. H., by Benjamin Chase.

There were two men of that name at Long Meadows.

" Robert Fulton bought of Benjamin Crosset parts of lots Nos. 87 and 93 and half of the Saw Mill in 1768.

James Fulton lived on No. 85, 2d P2d. Died where Mathew Dickey lately lived. His wife was Margaret.

Fulton:

Jeane married Robert Leathed and went to Maine. Lived in the Dinsmore neighborhood in Anson.

He was a Scotchman deserted from the English army and went into the Revolutionary War. Was captured and came near being executed for a spy. Convincing the British soldiers that he was not the man they were after, he was allowed to go. He insisted he was Robert Leathed instead of Robert Bell, which was his right name. He always kept the name of Leathed after that because it saved his life.

Fulton:

- 2 Margaret married Arthur Dinsmore (see account later).

The following is copied from an old paper I found in Clara Dinsmore Houghton's desk. I am putting this in for the reason that if any one should wish to trace the mother of Margaret Fulton they might find it on the Wilson side, on account of so many of the children having Wilson for the middle name.

Memories of Arthur Dinsmore and his wife,
Patty Houghton

My grandfather with his kindly face, crowned with its white hair, was always a welcome visitor in our home, and I shall always remember the morning devotions, and one expression in his prayer which he always used when he prayed for the whole world, "whether he were black or white, bond or free."

As a child in school, I used to, on going home for dinner, look with eagerness to see if a team had driven into our yard, and it was always a pleasure to see the wagon that I knew was grandfather's. My grandmother with her smiling face, and white hair partially covered with a black lace cap, always had a smile for me, and also a piece of maple sugar crystals or an apple, with which I was very much pleased.

I remember eating dinner with grandfather and grandmother in what was their dining-room. I had gone with my father and mother for a visit, and they had the table set in the northwest room of the house on the old home place, and I think this was the time that I asked grandmother for the cheese saying I wanted a piece of it to put in my pocket to smell of. I got it, and I can see the smile that was on her face as she gave it to me. But I am afraid the piece diminished in size on the homeward trip, for I smelled (?) of it often on the way home.

I also remember grandfather's kindness and thoughtfulness in the last years of his life. When he came to our home for a visit, he did not care to remain after he had made his calls on his friends, for he would say he was ready to go home, and he would go across the river to Anson and see if he could not get a chance to ride home with some neighbor so Sumner would not have to come for him.

Lizzie Dinsmore Gray.

Arthur Dinsmore and Patty, his wife, were devoted Christians; always attending public worship when possible, and had family prayers at home. When he asked the blessing, he would place his right hand by the side of his plate, and say, "Enable us, O Lord, to come around thy table with thankful hearts for all thy mercies and blessings. Bless the bounty spread before us. Give it to us in thy love. Which favors, we ask for the Redeemer's sake."

He was tax collector in 1845. He was first selectman and post-master several years.

My grandfather, Arthur Dinsmore, who married Patty Houghton, when he came to Bingham visiting his children used to go over the river to visit "Cousin John and Tom". John Dinsmore I was not a brother of my grandfather's father so it is safe to say that his father and John I were own cousins, as I have learned that some of the nephews came to Maine with their uncles.

Thomas Dinsmore, John Dinsmore¹, was a great grandson of David who came from Ireland.

Thomas Dinsmore of Palermo

The writer was in correspondence with Mr. Dinsmore for quite a considerable time. On Oct. 8, 1913, he wrote me that he was approaching his ninety-first birthday; a clipping from a paper gives his death as May 20, aged ninety-two.

Mr. Dinsmore was living with his only son, James, of Palermo. He said his son had three children: Donald, 11; James Kenneth, 5, and Donald, two and a half, at the time. His wife, Delphine Greeley, died thirty years ago.

He wrote me that his grandfather came from N. H. to Bowdoinham where he thought his father was b.; went to China, Me. The grandfather had three sons: Samuel, who was a farmer, lived and died in Bowdoinham, Me.; Andrew, farmer, lived and d. in Richmond, Me.; Philip, a farmer, who lived and d., he thought, in Madison, Me. Two daughters: Lucy, who m. a man by the name of Graves; Betsey, who d. unmarried. Thomas Dinsmore's mother's maiden name was Eunice Crossman. His grandparents were buried in Durham, Me.

He gives the names of his brothers and sisters as David, Henry, William, Esther, Cynthia, Philip, Alfred, Bounds, Thomas, Eunice, Sarah, George, Charles (living), Lindey, Pliny (living) and Susan.

The town record of Wiscasset, which is a part of the old town of Pownalboro, has the following entry:

"Asa Dinsmore and Elizabeth Brown, both of Pawnalboro, intend marriage; dated at Pawnalboro Dec. 29, 1781. Certificate given Jan. 17, 1782; recorded by David Sulvester, Town Clerk."

The following is from the town record of Dresden, also a part of the old town of Pawnalboro:

 JOHN DINSMORE b. May 14, 1800, m. Lydia Reed of Woolwich, certificate given Apr. 4, 1824. Lived in Nobleboro.

My mother was the daughter of Sally Dinsmore and Francis Fuller above. They moved from Readfield to Carmel and both d. there.

Asa, Jr., and John lived in Nobleboro and had children.

Harriet Weelman had a daughter Susan who m. Peter Newbert, and perhaps others.

Nancy lived in Damariscotta Mills.

Lavina Reed lived in China and had three children, Rollin, Robert and Lavina; Lavina m. a Hanson and probably lived in China.

Nancy Jones had Allen, Warren and Sally.

The name of Sally DeWolf above, has come down in the family and we thought until we found the above record that she was the wife of Asa, Sr.; she may have been his mother but I have no proof of it.

There were many Dinsmores in New Hampshire. Both Samuel Dinsmore, Sr., and his son, Samuel, Jr., were governors of the state and their portraits were presented to the state by a son and brother, Col. William Dinsmore.

The third family in Hollis, N. H., then part of Dunstable, was that of Thomas Dinsmore. I do not know whether these were related to the Maine family. I am very anxious to trace the family ancestry of the above Asa Dinsmore and his wife, Elizabeth Brown.

W. F. Dyer.

Hiram Dinsmore

The people of Auburn will hear with regret of the death of Hiram Dinsmore, which occurred at his home, 95 High street, at three o'clock Thursday morning. But few men could be more greatly missed as for almost a half century he has walked the streets of that city as one of its most familiar figures. As an old-time and prominent business man he was best known to the older generation, but among all classes he was held in the highest respect and esteem.

Mr. Dinsmore was born in the town of Minot in 1830 and was the son of James and Betsy Verrill Dinsmore. The mother was the daughter of Samuel Verrill, who for thirty consecutive years was the town clerk of Minot and one of its noted characters.

On the father's side Mr. Dinsmore descended from one of the oldest titled families in Scotland. Seven centuries or more ago, Laird Dinsmore, whose shield bore the emblems of Bannockburn, had two sons, the oldest of whom was to inherit his lands and titles. The youngest boy was proud spirited and refused the menial task of holding the stirrups of the saddle for his more fortunate brother. With an independence worthy of the proud blood from which he sprang he shook the dust of his native moors from his feet and determined to seek his fortune in some distant land.

From such blood Mr. Dinsmore came in a direct line and all the sturdy virtues of those ancestors were inherited. His boyhood days were passed on his father's farm on Bradbury Hill and there were no less than fourteen brothers and sisters in addition to himself. That was one of the old-time families that built up our early civilization, but which is now but rarely emulated. In those days luxuries were unknown and even the best clothes of the children were woven by the mother on the old hand loom. It was under such circumstances that young Dinsmore was raised, but it was this that gave him those habits of industry and self-reliance that distinguished his after life.

When he was twelve years of age his father sold the farm and bought the Nehemiah Packard place at the head of Taylor Pond. The mother had scruples about moving out of Minot and her husband promised that he would not do so. At that time the Packard place was in Minot, but the next day the town was divided and the family found themselves in Auburn.

Mr. Dinsmore had a natural talent for music and this he cultivated until he became widely known as one of the best singers in this vicinity.

Mr. and Mrs. Dinsmore have been the parents of five children, only one of whom is now living. This is Mrs. Chas. E. Greenleaf, who is the wife of his business partner. He also leaves his wife and two grandchildren as well as one sister, Mrs. Laura Miller of Norfolk, Va. The grandchildren are Miss Edna Greenleaf and Elmer Greenleaf, both of Auburn.

An affectionate husband, devoted father, obliging neighbor and patriotic citizen — such was the character of him who has fulfilled his mission, finished his course and passed to a higher life.

History of the First Congregational Church of Anson, Maine

ORGANIZED APR. 19, 1804

The first church formed in the town of Anson, was organized in 1804, April 19th, at the house of Mr. Arthur Dinsmore in the southern part of the town. Mr. Dinsmore was the first settler in town, coming with his wife and nine children from Chester, N. H., in the year 1794.

The original membership was six, organized in the following manner: No Council of Churches was called, there being only two churches in the county, Skowhegan and Norridgewock, but a meeting was held and this is the record of it:

Anson, April 19, 1804.

This day, Jonathan Crosby, Thomas Houghton, Amos Heald, William W. Dinsmore, Margaret Dinsmore, Rebecca Dinsmore, having previously passed examination as candidates for church membership and giving satisfaction to us and one another that they were suitable persons to enjoy special ordinances, were embodied as a Congregational Church of Christ by publicly acknowledging the confession of faith and covenant thereunto prepared and were declared to be such in regular standard and in full communion with other churches of our Lord Jesus Christ.

JOTHAM SEWALL, Missionary.
SAMUEL SEWALL, Assistant.

The articles of faith and covenant to which they all affixed their names are highly indicative of the fervent piety of those early days. There were ten articles of faith; plain, simple statements of their religious belief. The covenant contained a fuller statement of Christian obligations and being somewhat different from the church covenants of today, we will give it to you as recorded.

A Covenant agreement entered into by the Church of Christ in Anson in the time of its embodying, April 19, 1804.

We, whose names are hereunto subscribed apprehending ourselves called of God into the church state of the Gospel and judging ourselves altogether unworthy of so high and holy a calling, being made the subjects of his free sovereign rich grace, according to his eternal purpose of love in Christ.

We do this day, as in the presence of God, Angels and Men, solemnly give up ourselves to God in Christ, avouching the Lord Jehovah to be our God and portion, and engage in his strength to walk in all conscientiously wait upon God in his worship, publicly and daily in our families and in our closets. We do also give up ourselves in covenant one to another and promising to watch over one another and be watched over according to the Scripture rule: carefully avoiding sinful stumbling blocks and offences whereby our union and edification might be obstructed, taking the Gospel rule of discipline for our direction. We engage to admit all to our holy communion who can give a rational, scriptural evidence of a work of sanctifying grace upon their souls, whose lives in the judgment of Christian charity, correspond thereto. We do also covenant to devote our offsprings to the Lord and do our duty towards them in religious instruction, training them up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord that they may be His. We will engage to abstain ourselves from all vain amusements such as gaming and frolics and do our utmost endeavor to persuade and restrain all under our care from following such sinful courses.

May the Lord pardon our many errors and imperfections, ripen us for and at last receive us into His heavenly kingdom, through our Lord Jesus Christ, the great head of the church to whom, with the Father and Holy Ghost, be glory world without end. Amen.

the commands and ordinances of the Gospel as far as the same shall be made known to us. Particularly Baptism and the Lord's Supper,

This Covenant with the Articles of faith adopted at the formation of this church were in use until December 8, 1827, when they were changed to correspond more nearly to those in use at the present day.

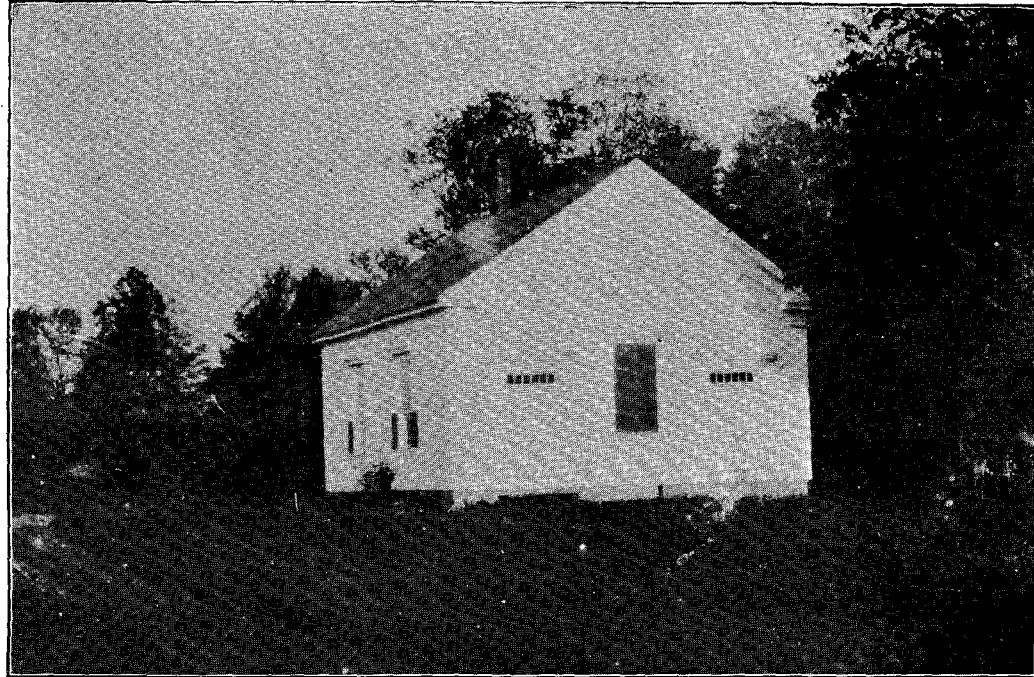

Two days after the formation of the church a meeting was held at the house of Arthur Dinsmore and two more persons, James Dinsmore and Betsey Skillings joined the church. Why they did not unite with the original number the record does not say, but at this second meeting Jonathan Crosby was chosen deacon by the church, also moderator and clerk during the pleasure of the church, says the record.

Attest: JOTHAM SEWALL.

Anson, April 23, 1804.

The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered for the first time to the Church in that place at which time Hannah Bray, was admitted to the church, and the same day was baptised a child of Thomas Houghton by the name of Luke, also children of David Dinsmore and Rebecca, his wife, on her account, by the names of Margaret, Benjamin, Jotham, James and Susanna. The ordinance was administered by Reverend Jotham Sewall, Missionary.

Attest: JONATHAN CROSBY, Clerk.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH, ANSON

Thus early did those pioneers of the church bring their children to be baptized. They were firm believers in the covenant of redemption that included the children in its promised blessings, and had the seal of the covenant placed upon them. Observe another thing. Those five children of David Dinsmore were baptized on account of the mother; the father was not a member of the church and what is very remarkable, he never joined the church, though living to great age, but was a very excellent man, always attended meetings on the Sabbath and did his part in support of the ordinances of religion, yet a great sense of unworthiness kept him from uniting with the church. He assented to the baptism of his children brought on the faith of his wife.

The next item in the church record is thus:

Anson, September 2, 1804.

At a meeting of the Church of Anson and Church of Starks with the Reverend Jotham Sewall, Missionary, at the house of Nathan Woods, Starks, Arthur Dinsmore, after having passed examination and giving satisfaction, was admitted as a member of the Church in Anson.

Attest: JONATHAN CROSBY, Clerk.

Arthur Dinsmore was the husband of Margaret Dinsmore, one of the original members, at whose house so many church meetings were held in that part of the town. Note another thing; here mention is made of a church in Starks, but when that was formed or how long it continued the writer of this history has no means of knowing.

One year after the church in Anson was organized the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered for the second time to the church, at which time Susannah Houghton was baptized, and received to the church, with Jinney Hilton and Deborah Dinsmore, likewise, Benjamin Weston and David Jones of Madison. Another child of David Dinsmore and his wife was baptized by the name of William, also a child of Samuel and Jinney Hilton by the name of Isaac. The ordinances were administered by Rev. Jotham Sewall. The next day at the house of Benjamin Weston in Madison, Rev. Jotham Sewall baptized the following named children: Steven, Benjamin, Mercy, Fanny, Nathan, Betsy, Mary, Electra and Eunice. Three days after the baptism of Mr. Weston's children, two children of David Jones in Madison were baptised at his house. The first death in this small church was Susannah Houghton, a little more than three months after uniting with the church, June 11, 1805.

August 15, 1805: Jonathan Crosby asked his dismissal from the office of Clerk of the church and William W. Dinsmore was chosen to fill that office.

The third time the Lord's Supper was administered to the Anson Church was May 4, 1806. Once a year was as often as it was observed then.

You will now want to know how often they had preaching. The church record gives no account of any preaching service, or regular preaching by any minister until the year 1826 when the church agreed to employ Rev. Josiah Tucker as their minister one quarter of the time for five years, for which he was to receive $75.00 annually, or if he preached one third of the time, he was to have $100.00 a year. At the same time they asked him to be their pastor. Although this church had no regular preaching for so many years, they undoubtedly had public worship every Lord's Day. The State Missionaries came as often as they could and administered the ordinances and preached. At other times they held prayer and praise services and had sermons read. The singing was excellent; the Dinsmore family were all good singers, several had a choir in each home. The place of meeting for a long time was the house of Mr. Arthur Dinsmore. Occasionally the minister at Bloomfield, now Skowhegan, or Norridgewock would come and spend a Sabbath, preach, administer the Sacrament and baptize the children presented. It is interesting to note how many children were baptized in those days. They had large families and as soon as the parents, or either one of them became Christians and united with the church they brought all their children to baptism.

In 1810, Josiah Melville, in this part of the town united with that church and also, quite a number in the years following. Some came from Industry in 1814 and after years. Benjamin Weston, Jr., and wife united with the Anson Church in 1819. This date was the first record of their holding the meeting in the school house near Mr. Arthur Dinsmore's. The church record gives no date of the erection of the school house, built large, not only for the accommodation of the increasing number of scholars in the district, but also for the Sabbath congregation for public worship. This was used for Church purposes until the year 1859 and by three different denominations at one time, alternating with each other, when a Union Church Building was built on another lot not far from it, and the old school house was moved to a spot near the Church. The old Union Church in North Anson was erected in the year 1829. In 1820 a Baptist Church was organized in the Dinsmore neighborhood and two members of the Congregational Church, not being satisfied with the mode of baptism, withdrew and united with the Baptist Church, with the full consent of the church. And it is worthy of note that these two churches have lived in Christian fellowship for nearly four score years, attending each other's public services and in later years when only one church could have a preaching service, they united in its support and always had a union Sabbath School. We are unable to give the date when the Methodist Denomination first commenced holding regular meetings in that old school house and organized a class, nor can we say just when that order left that place but it was quite a number of years, doing much good in stimulating the other churches to more aggressive work.

The first one to unite with the old church from the North part of the town was Josiah Melvin, in 1810. In after years quite a number followed his example; among the number were Ephraim Spaulding and wife, and later Jesse Spaulding and other Spaulding people. On May 6, 1824 the Anson Church voted to join the Somerset County Conference. Sometime later on this Conference included all the Congregational Churches in Somerset and Franklin Counties.

April 25, 1826: At the house of Benjamin Weston, Jr., in Madison, a Congregational Church was organized and those members of the Anson Church living in Madison by consent of the church withdrew and united with the Madison Church. May 17th a Council of churches was called to meet at the same place to ordain Mr. Josiah Tucker for the gospel ministry, a young man from Milton, Mass., to be pastor of the Anson and Madison churches. The ordination services were held in a new barn which Mr. Weston was erecting that year. Through the energetic effort of Rev. J. Tucker a Church Building was erected the next year on Blackwell Hill for the Madison Church which was dedicated December 1827 and Mr. Tucker soon after built himself a house for a parsonage. It appears from the record, these two churches so closely connected frequently held their conferences together and the following Sabbath observed the Lord's Supper in a union service, at the house of Deacon Weston and at one time held a similar service together at No. Anson. The monthly church conference was regarded as a very important meeting for spiritual growth and at one conference the church chose a Committee to visit those members who did not attend the conferences and communion services very regularly and ascertain why they neglected the covenant obligations. The Rev. Mr. Tucker continued to minister to the churches of Anson and Madison for ten years. In 1836 Rev. Levi Loring and wife came to Anson village, March 12th of that year. This record was made in the church book. At a meeting of the Church in the Academy on recommendation from the church in Gorham, Rev. Levi Loring and Sophia, his wife, were received as members of this church in full communion and fellowship. Also voted that Rev. Levi Loring be standing Moderator and Clerk of this church. Though the record does not say it, evidently Mr. Loring was engaged to preach to the Anson Congregational Church at that time for his name appears as Clerk of the church until 1842. During that time he preached in the school house near Mr. Arthur Dinsmore's and part of the time in Anson Village and Athens. The next minister that preached to the Anson Church was Rev. John Perham, who was first settled in Industry, a man greatly beloved by every one, who afterwards was settled in Madison. He was followed by Rev. — Hopkins and after him Rev. S. R. Plummer. All were good men and did good work. Rev. T. G. Mitchell who was settled in Madison in 1852 often ministered to the Anson church during his long pastorate in Madison. A man more devout, sincere and faithful in all the relations of life can rarely be found; a friend to every one, a Congregational Bishop in all of these churches for many years and called to receive his reward and crown only two years since.

This old church in its manhood days stood for a strong, orthodox, apostolic, Sabbath-keeping church, having a high regard for all of the requirements of the gospel of Jesus Christ. At six o'clock or sunset Saturday night all worldly matters were carefully laid aside and the evening spent in the study of God's word, catechizing the children and such religious reading as would fit them for the keeping of the Sabbath holy and free from all unnecessary labor. It is related that one member would not eat anything cooked on the Sabbath if he knew it and another member being asked by a neighbor on Sunday who had no regard for the Sabbath, if he would loan him his team the next day, replied, "I do no business on God's holy day, come tomorrow and I will tell you." Family worship was also regarded a religious duty to be performed by all heads of families as soon as they united with the church and very few neglected it. In many homes the children took part in the reading and singing and enjoyed it much. How early in those days the Sabbath School was organized no account is given. But when we remember the earnest discussions held in many homes relating to the great doctrines preached by different denominations, we are quite sure there was a great deal of Bible study among the people and the Sunday School has for a long time held a prominent place in the church service, so that when there was no preaching service the Sunday School was maintained. Some years when the average congregation at the preaching service would be about 60, 120 different persons, children and adults, were connected with the Sunday School. Nearly all who attended meetings went into the school. Sometimes questions, whose answers were to be found in the Bible, given out previously, would increase the interest in Bible study. The members of the old church were especially hospitable and kind hearted. No person ever went from their doors hungry or destitute of needed clothing. Take for example Mr. Arthur Dinsmore, the first settler of that part of the town, in whose house the church after its organization held its meetings for several years and when they were held in the school house near by, that home became the resort of large numbers of the people on Sunday at the noon recess between the morning and afternoon services. A free lunch was served to all who went there and we have it on good authority that the cooking done in that house on Saturday for that Sabbath lunch was more than what was done all the other days of the week. And you could not call there near any meal time but you must have something to eat. This was a sample of many homes and of their hospitality and benevolence.

But time in its onward march makes great changes! That part of this town which 60 and 70 years ago had a large population and many comfortable homes and regular church services, now has one family living in the home of the first settler and only three in the homes of later settlers. All have gone into the eternity before us all, or moved to the other parts of our great country. The last record of any additions with the old church was five in 1882, one in 1883 and two in 1889. Twelve members are now living but only two in the Dinsmore neighborhood. Mr. Sumner Dinsmore was the last clerk. The church has had about 120 members and nearly 100 children baptized into its sacred fold. Isaiah prophesied that "the child shall die a hundred years old", but this child of God, now 100 years old, will soon cease to have an organized bodily form and name but merged into the church, worshipping in this house of God, erected and dedicated as a memorial of Mr. Arthur and Mrs. Margaret Dinsmore, members of the first Congregational Church in the town of Anson, it will take a new lease of life in the younger church, now rejoicing in a gracious baptism of the Holy Spirit fitting it so wonderfully for its larger responsibility of bearing aloft the banner of the Congregational faith and polity in this grand old town of Anson.

Dinsmore Memorial Church at N. Anson

It was mainly through the efforts of Rev. John Dinsmore that the building was erected in 1884. He gave liberally of his time and money, and it was dedicated free from debt in 1892.

When the Congregational church in Anson disbanded, the members were transferred to this Memorial Church.

In 1924 the Universalists united with the Congregationalists, and is now the Federated Church. The building was remodelled in 1925, painted, new underpinning put in, and redecorated inside, addition built for a kitchen and a dining room seating 100. Rev. C. W. Rogers is now the pastor.

HOUGHTON GENEALOGY

After a search of years can only submit the following in regard to the Houghton Ancestry:

In correspondence with J. W. Houghton who wrote the Houghton Genealogy and if any one wishes to learn the history of the family, would refer them to his book, he very kindly wrote me the following:

"On further examination, I conclude that the Thomas you are seeking was b. in 1731; was the son of Thomas Houghton and Mariah Moore, both of Lancaster, Mass.: Thomas, b. in 1696; Mariah, b. 1699; m. Dec. 2, 1725; his father was James, son of Ralph.

"Thomas of 1731 had sisters Hannah and Mariah and brother Elijah who succeeded his father in the ownership of the Houghton House. My record of Thomas, b. 1731, stops with record of his birth.

"I conjecture that he is the man you are looking for because the date allows it. His descendants may be the members of your family. I think that is right. My record does not give the name of his wife."
