My Father's Family

From notes found in Grandmother's Bible

For many years, grandmother, Jemima Douglas Oglesby Attkisson, a native Virginian, cherished old Bible records, letters and excerpts from wills and deeds.

No doubt she had hoped one of the family would some day take care of these and pass them on down through the generations.

It is gratifying to know that many others (of the widely scattered families) have similar and additional data, and that old records of Virginia and Kentucky churches and courts, verify much of it.

Our early families—Douglas, Oglesby, Haden, Perkins, Churchill, Blakey, Attkisson and George, lived in Scotland, England and Wales.

Those who came to America, settled first in eastern Virginia, later moving into western counties of the state, then into Kentucky and Indiana.

Records of the Churchills', Blakeys' and Georges' are found in the Parish Register of Christ Church, Middlesex county Virginia 1653-1813. Old numbers of William and Mary College Quarterly, contain records of these families. Scattered notes are found in Virginia Magazine of History and Biography. All bear out the authenticity of our own private records.

A carefully compiled genealogy by Mrs. Lue A. Kress of Caldwell, Idaho, (a great granddaughter of George Douglas Blakey of Kentucky) contains much of the Haden-Blakey lines.

Charts in the Hayden Family Magazine, published a few years ago in Chicago, by Charles Hayden, mention Anthony Haden Sr. and his descendants.

We find the surnames of our old families used as Christian or proper names throughout the different generations; Douglas, Oglesby, Perkins, Churchill and George. "Churchill" as a proper name was carried through many of the Blakey families, to the confusion of some genealogists. However, we have my grandmother's word, that our first Churchill Blakey lived in Wales, his mother evidently a Churchill.

Thomas, son of this Churchill Blakey of Wales, came to America and in 1686 was of Cumberland Christ Church Parish, Middlesex county, Virginia. Here, he was married to a daughter of Col. William Churchill and Mary, his first wife, (doubtless a kinswoman).

Some say this daughter was named Margaret, but more authentic records speak of her as, Catherine Susanna.

Thomas Blakey and Catherine Susanna Churchill, his wife, had one son who was given the Christian name "Churchill". He was born ca. 1690, died May 8, 1738.

On Nov. 30, 1710, Churchill Blakey (son of Thomas (Blakey) and Catherine Susanna Churchill), was married to Sarah George of Middlesex county, Virginia, the daughter of Robert and Sarah George, of Welsh ancestry.

The first child of Churchill Blakey and Sarah George, was Thomas

Blakey Jr. born in 1712, bapt. April 6, 1712.

Thomas Blakey Jr. married Anne Haden, daughter of Anthony Haden Sr. (a native of Norfolk county England) and Margaret, Lady Douglas of the Scottish house of Drumlanrig. (See charts B, C, D and H.)

Among the children of Thomas and Anne Haden Blakey, was Anne, born May 26, 1765, in Culpepper county, Virginia. She was married ca. 1779 to Joseph Oglesby, who was born May 6, 1756, in Buckingham county, Virginia, the son of William Oglesby Sr. and Anne Perkins (daughter of Constantine Perkins I of Henrico county, Virginia).

The seventh child of Joseph and Anne Haden Blakey Oglesby was, Jemima Douglas.

Jemima Douglas Oglesby born in Fluvanna county, Virginia, Jan. 21. 1792, married Alexander Attkisson, Dec. 3, 1811, in Jefferson county, Kentucky.

They were my grandparents, paternal.

In the old section of Crown Hill cemetery Salem, Indiana, are two quaint slabs of marble with inscriptions:

In memory of Alexander Attkisson, who departed this life Dec. 12, 1857, aged 67 years and 6 months.

In memory of Jemima D. Oglesby, wife of Alexander Attkisson, who departed this life Oct. 12, 1858, aged 66 years, 8 months, 21 days.

A Family Tradition

Grandmother, her brothers and sisters were given names that had been carried through many generations, Churchill-Oglesby and Blakey. Ann Haden Blakey and Joseph Oglesby show pride in their ancestry, by this choice of names:

From the Blakey-Churchill line: Thomas Blakey, William, Mary, Churchill B., Sarah, Catherine S., Anne Haden, Lucy B., Jemima Douglas. Reuben C.

A Kentucky Cousin, 1809-1886

George Douglas Blakey (son of George and Margaret Whitsett Blakey, and grandson of Thomas Blakey and Anne Haden), was a first cousin to my grandmother, Jemima Douglas Oglesby Attkisson. He was a welcome visitor in the Greencastle home of Aunt Sarah Patterson A. Munson.

To him, we owe much for the preservation of Haden-Blakey-George records in Bible and other notes.

George Douglas Blakey, lived in the old Blakey homestead "Rural Choice", near Russellville, Logan county, Kentucky.

He was editor and publisher of the Russellville Herald. In 1877 he published in this paper, a series of articles, "Men, Whom I Remember", much of which concerned the Hadens, Proctors, Whitsetts, Georges and Blakeys.

These articles have been compiled by Mrs. Lue Adams Kress (a great-granddaughter of George D. Blakey) into a booklet—"In Memory of Our Revolutionary Forefathers."

Although he had been a slave owner, George Douglas Blakey was a loyal Union man. As a presidential elector, he was one of a committee sent to notify Lincoln of his second nomination.

Douglas of Scotland

"Men have seen it in the tree, but never in the sapling—have seen it in the stream, but never in the fountain."—a favorite Douglas quotation.

From History of the House of Douglas:—Hume.

"From the time of Robert Bruce to the reign of James V of Scotland, the Douglas' figured prominently in Scottish wars and affairs of state."

In 1450-55 during the reign of James II, a single battle must, in all probability, have decided whether the House of Stuart or of Douglas was henceforth to possess the throne of Scotland.

During the last years of James II (1459-'60) the lands of the Douglas were divided among adherents to the crown. The turbulent nobles finally took refuge in the wildest districts of the Scottish border.

James II reduced the strong places of the clan to his own authority. Douglas Castle, (of "Douglas's Larder" fame) itself taken, the once powerful Douglas, fled across the border into England, with very few attendants.

Among those benefiting from this defeat, was the House of Angus, a large and flourishing branch of the Douglas, who were Loyalists.

On account of a difference of family complexion, this victory lead to the, then, popular saying, "Now the Red Douglas has put down the Black."

It was not until after the death of James V that the Black Douglas clan returned to their native lands.

When Charles I came to the throne, Drumlanrig rose being created, in 1628, Lord Douglas of Hawick and Tibbers and Viscount Drumlanrig—Earl of Queensbury. He died in 1640 having had by his wife, Isabel, (daughter of Mark Keir, 1st Earl of Lothian) four sons and two daughters. (See chart, Scottish Douglas) James, William, Archibald, George, Margaret and Janet. Of these, James succeeded as:

James, 2nd Earl of Queensbury. He died in 1671.

James, 2nd Earl of Queensbury, who died in 1671, suffered great losses by Cromwell. Married 1st. Lady Mary Hamilton, no issue. Married 2nd, Lady Margaret Stewart (daughter of Earl of Traquair), who bore him four sons and five daughters. (1) William, (2) James, (3) John, (4) Robert, (5) Henrietta, (6) Margaret, (7) Isabel, (8) Catherine, (9).... Of these, (1) William succeeded as 3rd Earl of Queensbury.

(2) James, was first a lawyer, then a soldier, a col. of Guards of Scotland, died at Namur.

(3) John, was killed at seige of Treves, in 1673.

(4) Robert, was killed at Maestrecht, 1676.

(5) Henrietta, married in 1676, Sir Robert Grierson of Lagg, "the terror of the Covenanters". His estates were greatly impoverished.

He sent his son to practice as an apothecary in Carlisle saying; "God speed ye; ye'll revenge the fecht at Flouden!"

(6) Margaret, married 1st Sir Alexander Jardine of Applegirth, married 2nd Sir David Thoits.

(7) Isabel, married Sir William Lockhart of Carstairs.

(8) Catherine .....

(1) William Douglas, son of James and Margaret Stewart Douglas was born 1637. Sheriff of Dumfrieshire 1664. Family estates impoverished by Argyll, had to forego foreign travel, instead studied for the bar, later restored many revenues and became chief advisor to the Duke of York (who was afterward James II).

William Douglas was created Duke of Queensbury, died in 1695, aged 58. Buried in Druisdeer Church.

At the age of twenty he had married his cousin, Lady Isabel Douglas, dau. of 1st Marques of Douglas, their children were:

(a) James, (b) William, (c) George and (d) Anne.

(a) James, Lord Drumlanrig, who succeeded as 2nd Duke of Queensbury.

(b) Lord William Douglas, who received from his father, Neidpath Castle and lands in Peebleshire. William married Lady Jane Hay, dau. of 1st Marquess of Tweeddale. He was created Earl of March. His grandson 3rd Earl of March became 4th Duke of Queensbury.

(c) Lord George Douglas .....

(d) Lady Anne Douglas, married David, Lord Elcho, eldest son of 4th Earl of Weymss—no issue..

(5) Lady Henrietta Douglas (daughter of James and Margaret Stewart Douglas) married in 1679 to Sir Robert Grierson of Lagg. Their children were: Henry, John, Edward, Hugh, William and daughters, one of whom may have married a Douglas.

The Griersons, of Norman descent, settled in the Marches of Dumfriesshire Scotland. Sir Robert was ever loyal to the Stuarts and suffered greatly for this.

“Sir Robert, was out with the ‘Heilandmen’ in Montrose’s time and again in the hills with Glencairn in 1652.”

He took no active part in the 15th, although, his son William was captured at Preston.

Sir Robert Grierson was arrested for refusing the oath of allegiance 1693 and so often fined that he was financially ruined.

He was known throughout Scotland as, Sir Robert Grierson of Lagg. “the Terror of the Covenanters.”

Scottish records give a servitor’s appreciation of him;

“He was na’ a bad master to his ain folk, an’ was liket by his tenants. They wad hae drunken temsells blind to his health at ony time.”—See chart D.

(Daughters of James and Margaret Stewart Douglas)

(6) Lady Margaret Douglas Jardine and her sister.

(8) Lady Catherine Douglas, were celebrated for their penurious dispositions. They would for a penny, “carry” people across the river Annan, near the castle. Lady Margaret generally wore nothing but rags.

When she went to Rockhall to visit her sister, Lady Henrietta Douglas Grierson, she carried her articles of finery and would inquire at the cottage gate-house, if the Laird were at home. If answered in the affirmative, she made her toilet. If he were absent, she repaired to her sister in her usual costume.

When Lady Margaret’s nephew, James 2nd Duke of Queensbury, resided at Holyrood House, she paid him a visit in her wonted dishabille. The sentinel at gate mistook her for a beggar, but her nephew, who happened near, greeted her, much to the surprise and chagrin of the servant.”

This branch of Douglas had settled in the Marches of Dumfriesshire, on the Annan river and in Ayrshire Scotland.

From History of House of Douglas—Vol. II.—Hume.

“Sir James Douglas, 7th Lord of Drumlanrig, revived the ancient rivalry between the Black Douglas, whom he represented, and his own brother-in-law, the Red Douglas, Earl of Angus.”

Sir James, 8th Lord of Drumlanrig, died October 16, 1615. Lived in the southwest of Scotland.

He was twice married, his first wife, Margaret, daughter of George, Master of Angus, by whom he had three daughters: Janet, Margaret and Nicholas, "who all married into good border families." Sir James married second, Christian, (sister of the 2nd Earl of Eglenton) by whom he had one son, Sir William Douglas of Hawick, who died during his father's lifetime, and four daughters."

Douglas of America

From "Americans of Gentle Birth and their Ancestors." 11 (1907)—
Call No., Newberry Libra. E. 69.69.

"Col. William Douglas of Gairallan, Loudoun county, Virginia, emigrated from Ayreshire Scotland about the middle of the 18th century. He died in 1783. He was the son of Hugh Douglas (of Gairallan Ayreshire Scotland in the parish of Old Cumnock), who was 6th in descent from Douglass, Earl of Douglas, fifth in descent from Campbell, Baron of Loudoun, 4th in descent from James II Earl of Drumlanrig."

From, "Virginia Heraldic":

"Col. William Douglas of Loudoun county, Virginia, was a son of Hugh Douglas Esq. of Girallan Ayreshire, Scotland, a descendant of Douglas, Earl of Drumlanrig and the Earls of Douglas.

Col. Wm. Douglas was a justice in 1770, High Sheriff in 1780. His will was probated in March Court. Loudoun county, Virginia 1783."

Margaret, Lady Douglas, wife of Anthony Haden Sr., was in Virginia earlier than 1745. Old records give her descent from the House of Drumlanrig (the Black Douglas), descent through James Douglas, 2nd Earl of Queensbury and Margaret, Lady Stewart, his second wife.

Some records indicate Margaret, Lady Douglas, wife of Anthony Haden Sr., was the daughter of William Douglas and Lady Jane Hay, his wife. Others, that she was the daughter of a Douglas, through the Grierson line, both of which stem from James 2nd Earl of Queensbury-Drumlanrig. (Charts: Douglas I and II, Haden.)

Other Douglas in Virginia

"The Rev. William Douglas was from Scotland: In the year 1735, he married Miss Nicolas Hunter by whom he had a daughter Margaret.

In year 1748-49 leaving them in Scotland, he came over as teacher in the family of Col. Monroe of Westmoreland, father of President Monroe, who was one of his pupils, as was Mr. Jefferson.

Returning to England to be ordained, he brought to America, his wife and daughter Margaret, whom he refers to in his diary as "Peggy". In the year 1750, he settled in Goochland county, Virginia, entering on his duties as rector of St. James Parish—St. James, Northam.

During the year 1748-1777, the Oglesbys and Attkissons (Atkinsons) living in Albemarle and Goochland counties were closely associated with the Rev. William Douglas. For twenty years or more he was their rector, baptizing, marrying and conducting burial services, and keeping records of these, in the parish register. The records so carefully kept by the Rev. Wm. Douglas, have been compiled into, "The Douglas Register," considered an authority today.

Margaret, daughter of the Rev. William and Nicholas Hunter Douglas, married Mr. Nicholas Meriwether of Albemarle.

Other members of this Douglas family settling in America were: James, brother of William, George a nephew, and two other kinsmen who inherited titles and returned to Scotland.

The three churches in Goochland at which the Rev. Douglas officiated were: Dover, Beaver Dam and Licking Hole. In the year 1777 the Rev. William Douglas retired to an estate in Louise."

"Albemarle Tories"

From: "The Albemarle of Other Days."

"We know that Thomas Meriwether of 'Clover Fields', who was married to a cousin of Gen. Washington, was British in his sympathies and so was the celebrated Parson Douglas of Louise, whose descendants are still prominent in this county.

The Rev. Douglas came from Scotland to teach in the family of Col. Monroe of Westmoreland. In later life he owned the "Ducking Hole" Estate, in Louise.

Rev. Douglas was a Royalist and adored George III and his whole family. His old Bible, long treasured at Cismont (but now in the west) has a record in his own hand, which is a curious intermixture of births of princes, princesses, of the reigning family, of those of his own household and of his Negro slaves.

George III is sandwiched between two Negro babies—Violet's child, Randie and Tibbie's child Suckie."

Another James Douglas, was of Williamsburg, Virginia. In 1773 he made an official surveying trip under Col. Preston, Surveyor of Fincastle county, Virginia, of which the whole is now the state of Kentucky. He was accompanied on these explorations by Capt. Isaac Hite (a kinsman).

James Douglas settled in Bourbon co., Ky., was one of the first grand jury, in the first court of quarter-session, after the admission of Kentucky into the Union, as a state, June 18, 1793.

The Virginia-Kentucky Hites and Oglesbys inter-married. Capt. Isaac Hite was living in Kentucky in 1792.

James Douglas, is spoken of by historians as one of Kentucky's most celebrated and courageous explorers and surveyors. His drawings and maps were accurate—today considered authentic.

From “Notes on Southside Virginia”—Watson.

“Beverly Brown Douglas, b. in New Kent county, Virginia, 1822, was the son of William Douglas of Providence Forge, New Kent co. and of Elizabeth Christian. He married in King William county, Virginia, a daughter of Robin Pollard. Beverly B. Douglas was a brilliant man, considered by many, the equal of Stephen A. Douglas. He died Dec. 22, 1878.

Haden of England

From "Memorials of the West"—Rogers. Collected on borderland, Somerset, Dorset and Devon.

"The Hadens were of Norman descent. Among the first in England (1272) was John de Hayden, who settled in Devon. From Devon, they spread to Suffolk, Surry, Kent, Warwickshire and Bedfordshire.

The family appear frequently as commanders, officials of the Army, as members of the medical profession and as artists.

For most of their time, they stood well with the sovereigns, being loyal in their dispositions. In the War of the Roses, they became staunch adherents of the House of Lancaster. In consequence of Civil Wars, their large estates became encumbered.

The ruins of the old Heydon Hall lie about three-fourths of a mile from the church, in the town of Heydon, in a beautiful grove. The town of Heydon lies about fourteen miles a little west of north, from Norwich, the shire town of Norfolk county.

Buildings of the Haden home cover about an acre of ground and were surrounded in the early day by a moat, crossed at entrance by a bridge. The outer wall to a height of 15 or 20 feet is still standing. The square enclosure is occupied as a garden.

The lower storey of each of the four corner towers is left. The large front tower is standing to a height of two stories. The old gateway, flanked by two lofty octagon towers and situated about fifty yards in advance of tower and bridge, has been converted into a spacious farm house.

The old ruins had been the home of the Hadens for many generations. Built in 1440 and lived in until 1613, when partially destroyed by fire."

From notes by Thomas Heydon Esq. I learn that the Heydons, Hadens, of Norfolk sold the property to the Bulwers in the ninth year of Queen Elizabeth (1567).

"St. Mary's at Ottery is the burial place of many of the English Hadens. Old gravestones bear the names: Sarah, Stephen, Jemima, Abner, Joseph, Margaret, John and Mary."

Haden in Virginia

“Anthony Haden Sr., son of John, born in Norfolk county, England, married Margaret, Lady Douglas (a native of Scotland) ca. 1715-20. They came to eastern Virginia ca. 1720-25. According to Kirshebal's History of Virginia, first edition. (Hayden Family Magazine).

“Anthony Haden served for ten years in North Carolina as Councillor of State.” In 1740 we find him on plantations in Virginia.

From notes on Southside Virginia—Watson page 131: “In 1742 Joseph Watson of Henrico county and Ann, his wife, John Watson Jr. (son of said Joseph Watson of Goochland county) planter, and Mary, his wife, convey to Anthony Haden land lying part in Goochland and part in Hanover counties, formerly said to be Henrico.” Goochland D. Amherst, Mass., March 1, 1936.

Mrs. Wm. Rudder, Salem, Indiana.

My dear Mrs. Rudder: I have been looking through the Hayden Family Magazine this morning and I find your Anthony Haden line and the statement that Robt. and John Haydon lived in Prince William co., Va., in 1756. I wonder if Chas. Hayden ever printed the data I sent him about 10 years ago compiled by Wm. F. Booker of Overwharton Parish records of the family of William and Mary Haydon whose children's baptismal dates he records: Lucy, born Dec. 28, 1731; Samuel, b. June 19, 1733; Henry, b. Dec. 2, 1735; Charity, b. June 19, 1737; Richard, b. March 8, 1739; William, b. Sept. 1, 1740, died Oct. 21, 1745; Daniel, b. April 16, 1743, d. June 5, 1744; Jacob, b. Aug. 18, 1745; Nathaniel, b. Dec. 1, 1749; William, b. Jan. 28, 1756; Daniel, b. March 17, 1753.

Have you placed this family in your tree?

Mary Hayden married John Nicholson April 23, 1752. A Samuel Hayden was wounded at the Battle of Great Meadows, 1754. Col. Geo. Washington, Capt. Peter Hogg.

Prince William Co. was partitioned from Stafford Co., Va., in 1730 and Fauquier from Prince William Co. in 1737. Loudon Co. from Fairfax Co. in 1757. I do not have the date when Fairfax was partitioned but in 1731 when Wm. and Mary were residents of Prince William Co., Va., Prince William Co. covered what is now Loudon, Fairfax, Fauquier and Prince William, so it will be difficult to find the Haydon locality for Overwharton Parish was co-extensive with Stafford Co., which was originally all the above counties. So besides searching Prince Wm. Co. records you should go to Stafford Co., Va., for deeds, wills, vital records and land certificates. Some old deeds, wills and books have lately been returned to Stafford Co. It might pay to have them searched. Could this William of Prince William Co., Va., wife Mary, 1731, have been a son of Anthony? Sincerely, Mrs. Wm. H. Davis, 12 Nutting Ave.

Oglesby of Scotland

Origin: Ogilvie, Ogilvy, Oglesby.

From "Memorial of Angus and the Mearns."—Andrew Jervise, edited by Rev. James Gammack, M.A.

"The surname, Ogilvie, Ogilvy, Oglesby, was assumed from the lands and barony (so-called) as was the custom of those early times. The first recorded was Alexander of Ogilvie, who in the year 1250 was of an inquest which found that the lands of Inverpeffer owed suit of court to the Abbot of Arbroath.

Donnotar, Forfar and Airlie were the homes of the Scottish Oglesbys. The "Glen of Ogilvie" is now traversed by road from the village of Glamis to the Dundee and Forfar turnpike.

Arms: Argent, a lion passant, gardant gules, crowned or. There is also a variation of this arms (which itself indicates the relationship of the families).

Crest: "A lion rampant gules; armed and langued azure, supporting a tilting spear entwined with a string of trefoils proper." From "Tartans of Clans of Scotland"—Grant. The Oglesby, Ogilvie, Ogilvy.

Tartan: Small checked plaid, bright red and blue with threads of yellow.

Badge: The Evergreen Alkanet (blue flower).

It is said the most favored Christian names of the male members of Oglesby, both in Scotland and America are: Alexander, John, James, Patrick, Robert, Walter, Thomas, Richard, David, George and William. Female names: Margaret, Catherine, Janet and Elizabeth.

James Ogilvy, 1st Lord of Ogilvy of Airly, was born in 1460 the son of Sir John Ogilvy of Airly and Margaret Seton, his wife.

James Ogilvy, who after guaranteeing a Treaty of Peace with England in 1484, was made a lord of Parliament in 1491 by James IV—created Lord Ogilvy or Airlie. He died in 1504. Married Mary Douglas, daughter of Archibald Douglas and Catherine, his second wife.

Mary Douglas, daugt. of Archibald Douglas, 5th Earl of Angus and Catherine, his 2nd wife; born 1475, married 1491 to James, 1st Lord Ogilvy or Airlie, b. about 1460 the son of Sir John Ogilvy of Airlie and Margaret Seton, Among their children: Alexander, Malcolm, John, James, Elizabeth, Margaret and Janet.

From M.S. Index to the Register of the Great Seal in the Library of Writers to the Signet, Edinburg 1306-1741. Book 26, No. 270.7 June 1539. Carta Confirmationis Magistro. Alexandro Ogilvy et Joneta Baird ejus spousae terrarum of Glessauch cum Cragmiln Banff.

James 6th Lord Ogilvy of Airlie, was a loyal subject of Queen Mary in all her troubles, for which he suffered long imprisonment. He was released by James VI in 1596 and sent Ambassador to Court of Denmark to assist at Coronation of Christian IV.

"In the early years of 1600, Granger of Scotland (author of the Scottish song, "Hie! Bonnie Lassie, blink o'er the Burn.") helped the Ogilvy's (being warm adherents) during a siege of Donnotar Castle. Sir George Ogilvy of Barras, Gov. of Donnotar, and his lady, Elizabeth Douglas, with the aid of the Grangers saved much from the invaders. There are tablets bearing inscriptions recording the part the Ogilvys and Grangers bore in defense of Donnotar Castle and in the preservation of the regalia."

James, 8th Lord Ogilvie of Airlie, for loyal and gallant services to Charles I, was created Earl of Airlie in 1639.

John Ogilvie, 4th Earl of Airlie, was a devoted adherent of the Royal family and joined Prince "Charlie" at Edinburg (1745) with six hundred men, principally of the Ogilvie clan. His sword and drinking-cup are still preserved at the family residence, Cortachy Castle. Inscribed on the sword, "The man who feels no delight in a galant steed, a bright sword and a fair lady, has not in his breast, the heart of a soldier." On the drinking cup the family arms are inscribed and the motto, "If Fortune Torments Me, Hope Contents Me." There is a legend in the Scottish family—Oglesby, "The Spectre Drummer", whose mysterious beating at Cortachy Castle can be heard whenever fate is nigh."

"Susanna Oglesby, widow of Richard Oglesby who died in Goochland Co., Va., in 1731, was the daughter of the Rev. Jacob Ware of Henrico Parish, who died in 1709 in Henrico county, Va., intestate, and his wife Susanna. The will of Susanna Ware, widow of Rev. Jacob Ware, was made on Feb. 5, 1734-5, and proved in Henrico, May 5, 1735. She made bequests to a number of married daughters (there are no sons mentioned) and to her granddaughter, the children of her daughter Susanna Ware Oglesby, as follows: "To Jacob Oglesby, an Indian fellow, named Roger and one horse, called Cyddar, and one bridle and saddle. To my granddaughter, Elizabeth Coraby Oglesby, an Indian girl, named Sarah, when she is of age or married, and except the first two children this Indian shall have, but her mother to have use of said Sarah." Also bequest to another granddaughter, Mourning Oglesby.

Jacob Oglesby, son of Richard and Susanna Ware Oglesby, was the father of: Richard, Jacob and William Oglesby. The birth of some of whose children are recorded in the Douglas Register. "I have not yet determined the name of the wife of Jacob Oglesby Sr. or the date of his death."

The Oglesbys and kinsmen, who left Virginia for the west, about 1796-7 settled in Jefferson, Oldham and Shelby counties, Kentucky. Later a few went to southern Indiana.

On March 5, 1799, the will of Richard Oglesby III, wife Nancy, was probated in Louisville, Jefferson county, Kentucky. Joseph Oglesby, executor. From this Richard came the Heads and other allied families of Oldham and Jefferson co., Ky.

Among his children was Jacob Oglesby, who married Isabel Watson, dau. of James R. Watson. They were the parents of James Richard Oglesby, one time governor of Illinois, statesman and general in the Federal Army.

Joseph Oglesby, son of William and Ann Perkins Oglesby, after coming to Kentucky served as sheriff and in 1807 was a member of legislature from Jefferson county. In some of these records the name is written in the old Scottish manner "Ogilvie", but oftener as Oglesby.

Marriage records of the children of Joseph Oglesby and Anne Haden Blakey, his wife, are found in Jefferson county, Kentucky, court records, marriage bonds.

Jemima Douglas, daughter of Joseph Oglesby Sr., native of Virginia, married Alexander Attkisson, Dec. 3, 1811, (also a Virginia Oglesby). They established a home in Salem, Indiana.

William Oglesby (the younger), also of Virginia, whose wife was Martha Ellis, is buried in the John Sweeney family grounds on the old Sweeney place, Oldham county, Kentucky. On the moss-covered stone is the inscription "W. O. aged 72 died 1824." His will bears date, Nov. 26, 1823, probated in Oldham co., Ky., March 15, 1824. He was the son of Richard and Sarah Ferguson Oglesby. (Richard's 1st wife) connected with this family was the John Paul, a Revolutionary soldier, who helped lay out the city of Madison, Indiana. Joseph Oglesby Jr., born in Virginia, was the son of William and Martha Ellis Oglesby. He was married in Jefferson co., Ky., to Elizabeth Hite, daughter of Col. John Hite of Virginia, Sept. 2, 1809. They established a home at Madison, Jefferson co., Indiana.

The Oglesby mausoleum at Springdale cemetery, Madison, is the burial place of this Joseph Oglesby and family. Descendants of William and Martha Ellis Oglesby. The Ellis, Pauls, the Ashbys, the Carters of Oldham and adjoining counties.

Another Revolutionary soldier: Micajah Oglesby, a son of William and Ann Perkins Oglesby of Virginia, left a will March 20, 1828, recorded in Surrey county, North Carolina. His second wife was Frances Black. Among other bequests he left to sons, Thomas, Micajah, Churchill, Shadrach and Nicholas Perkins, lands in Oldham county, Kentucky.

The Griffiths and Woodson Oglesbys and others of Oldham are descendants of this Micajah Oglesby.

Richard Oglesby, Gent., appointed commissioner of Amelia county, Va., at court held for Amelia co. Thursday 26, March, 1789.

A letter from Miss Mary E. Sweeny, Lexington, Kentucky, and Pine Grove in which she says: "Bible record shows William Oglesby died Tuesday, December 23, 1802." Miss Mary E. Sweeny is a descendant of William Oglesby and Ann Perkins, through their daughter Hannah Oglesby, who married Malachi Sweeny in 1793. This Hannah Oglesby and Malachi Sweeny were the parents of Joseph Addison Sweeny I, who married 1st his cousin Nancy H. Attkisson. Nancy H., and her children are buried on the old Joseph Addison Sweeny farm, in the family burial ground, about 3 miles east of the old homestead, once known also as the Tyler Plantation near Jeffersontown, Kentucky.

Oglesby - Rodman

Several years ago I received a carefully copied record from the old Bible of Ann Haden Oglesby Rodman. It was sent me by the elderly daughter of the late Dr. William Martin Rodman, who was the seventh child of Dr. William Rodman and Ann Haden Oglesby, his wife, of Oldham and Henry counties, Kentucky. Their first children were, (1) Hugh Herst Rodman, (Dr.) born March 5, 1807, (2) Joseph Blakey Rodman, born July 15, 1809. There were eleven children in all. See chart. At the close of letter Mary Jeanie Rodman McKinney said, "I think my uncle Hugh was the father of the Rear Admiral."

Since then I have received a letter from Mrs. Thomas Bainbridge Rodman of Mt. Sterling, Kentucky, in which she states: "Dr. Hugh H. Rodman was born June 4, 1818, died Feb. 11, 1872 He was an older brother of my father-in-law, Joseph Lewis Rodman, who was born, 1834, died 1912.

Rear Admiral Hugh Rodman was a first cousin and contemporary of my late husband, Thomas Bainbridge Rodman."

Comparing these two sincere letters, it would indicate there were two Dr. Hugh H. Rodman; in Oldham and Henry counties Kentucky—contemporaries. It is suggested they may have been cousins, since Hugh was a family name, and there were many doctors in this Rodman line of Oldham and Henry counties, Kentucky.

The Perkins Family—England and Virginia

A series of letters by Mansfield Parkyns Esq. of Woodborough Hall, Nottinghamshire, England, have been grouped into a book, "The Perkins Family of Ye Olden Times." The letters are arranged in chapters. Chapter I, the name, chapter II the coat of arms, these are followed by The Ufton Branch, other branches—Worcestershire, Warwickshire, Herfordshire, Monmonthshire, Gloucestershire, Dorsetshire and others, all concerning a family so large it might be called a race. Included in this book are tentative pedigrees of a number of the Perkins'including that of Ufton, written in Latin and signed by Frauncis Parkyns.

"This Francis Parkyns of Ufton, nephew and heir of Richard of Ufton and heir to the Nottinghamshire Estates, was the first of the Ufton family of Perkins, who used the pineapple crest (1600)."

A. Mary Sharpe has compiled from authentic, ancient records, a history of the Perkins family of Berkshire, England, "The History of Ufton Court, Berkshire and the Perkins Family" published by Eliot Stock, 62 Paternoster Row, London, England.

"The Harleian Society, marriage licenses, London, England, afford evidence as to change of name from Parkyns to Perkins. Vol. 1, (1520-1610). Index gives several Parkyns—Parkins, but no Perkins. Vol. II (after 1610) index gives Perkins but no Parkyns.”

On turning to the visitations of Berkshire, 1623, of which the original is in the Bodleian library, Oxford, one finds that the Berkshire family of Perkins bore, “Or, a fess dancette between ten billets.” The Berkshire family bore these arms quarterly with three other coats, the second quarter being “Sable, on a chevron between three eagles displayed a mullet gules.”

Of the Warwickshire Branch: “The oldest will in the Lichfield probate Registry, is that of Richard Parkyns of Monks Kirby in Warwickshire. It was made in 1501, duly registered, but the registration was subsequently cancelled and with date changed to 6, Feb. 1521, was again registered and proved in 1522.

“Of the Dorsetshire Branch, I note the will of William Parkyns of Wareham Parish, who died in 1557 leaving two sons, Thomas and William.”

These letters give an interesting and full account of one John Perkins of Hillmorton, Warwickshire, England. The Parish Register gives dates of his baptism, marriage and the baptism of his children, six of whom were born in England.

A tentative pedigree, beginning with William of Warwickshire. Hillmorton Parish, 1495, ends with record of this John Perkins and his children, one of whom was born in New England, also mention of death of John in New England, 1654.

Account of the voyage of the immigrant ship, Lyon, Feb. 5, 1631, from “Bristow” (Bristol) having left English port the 1st of December, 1630, reaching America Feb. 5, 1631. Among the passengers on the Lyon, with the Perkins family, were Mr. Roger Williams and his wife Mary. Mr. Rogers Williams is spoken of as “a godly minister” and the voyage as “a stormy passage hether.”

Since to trace historically, the English ancestry one should start from some proved certainty in America, we turn to Virginia. I have found no instance of a Perkins forebear in the New England States. Nicholas Perkins, our earliest proved ancestor of this family, was in Virginia as early as Oct. 10, 1641. He was said to be the son of Nicholas, who was the son of Richard of England. Included in the following Perkins record are notes from Jonet McGavoch Boyd, authentic notes signed J.H.S. and others from Narcissa Pendleton (Mrs. Tynes).—E.A.R.

"The earliest one of Perkins name in Virginia, of whom we have authentic information is Nicholas Perkins Sr. as he styled himself in a deed dated 1703, and recorded in Henrico county, Virginia. This Nicholas is the son of Richard Perkins of England, who came to Virginia in 1634 on ship "Bona Ventura." Nicholas Perkins Sr., son of Richard Perkins, born ca. 1641, married Sarah Childress, daughter of Abram Childress. He lived in Henrico county, Virginia. His land adjoined that of John Ellis and Thomas Harding on Tuckahoe Creek in Henrico county, Virginia. Nicholas Perkins does not give name of his wife in his will, but she is made executor. Will recorded as approved at a court held at Varina for Henrico county, 2nd day of February, 1712. Presented by Sarah Perkins, Abram Perkins, Test. Nicholas Perkins died 1711, will probated Feb. 2, 1712. Children mentioned in will: Philemon, Nicholas II, married Elizabeth .....; Richard, Abram, Sarah, married Moore; Elizabeth, Mary, married Amos Lead; Constantine, married Ann Pollard; Philemon, son of Nicholas and Sarah Perkins lived in Henrico co., Va. Nicholas Perkins II, son of Nicholas and Sarah, married Elizabeth ....., and died in 1709. Richard Perkins, son of Nicholas and Sarah ....., land whereon father lived was willed to him. Abram Perkins, son of Nicholas and Sarah, was executor of his mother's will. Mary Perkins, daut. of Nicholas and Sarah, married Amos Lead previous to 1711. Constantine Perkins, son of Nicholas and Sarah, married Ann Pollard. Date of death uncertain, but inventory of his estate was 1769, Oct. 16.

Children of Constantine Perkins and Ann Pollard, his wife: Constantine Jr., Nicholas Perkins III, William Perkins, Stephen Perkins, Joseph Perkins, Harden Perkins, May (Mary) Atkinson, Ann Oglesby and Elizabeth Ellis. Ann, daughter of Constantine and Ann Pollard Perkins, married William Oglesby and had child Jemima, who inherited two slaves Judith and Tom—line stops here.

Nicholas Perkins III, married Bethemia Harden, daughter of Thomas Harden and Mary nee Giles, daughter of William Giles and Bethemia Knowles, sole daughter and heiress of Capt. John Knowles.

Thomas Harden was the son of Thomas, who came to this country in 1650 with Capt. Moore Fauntleroy and settled in Norfolk county, Virginia. Children of Nicholas Perkins III and Bethemia Hardin, his wife: Peter, b. 1739; Charles, b. 1742; Bethemia, b. 1743; Nicholas, b. 1745; Constantine, b. 1747; Susanna, b. 1750; Elizabeth, born May 13, 1759, married 1st William Letcher, married 2nd George Hairston. She died Jan. 26, 1818. Capt. William Letcher was a Revolutionary soldier and was killed when their daughter Bethemia was an infant. This infant, Bethemia, was reared and educated by her stepfather, George Hairston. She married David Paumill of Pittsylvania co., Va., and had the following children: William Letcher, who married Maria Bruce Banks. Elizabeth, who married Archibald Stuart, from whom was descended J. E. B. Stuart.

The children of William Letcher Paumill and Maria Bruce Banks, his wife, were: David H. Paumill, James Bruce, Bethemia, Frances A., who married James B. Ficklen of Richmond.

From Frances A. Paumill and James B. Ficklen are descended the Millers, one of whom, Nannie Ficklen Miller married John McGavoch.

From the marriage of Elizabeth Perkins and George Hairston, her second husband are descended the Drapers and the Charles Tate's.

The following from notes signed J. H.S.: "The name Nicholas Perkins, first occurs in the Virginia records as a 'head-right' in a land grant to Bryant Smith, Henrico co., Va., Oct. 10, 1641. Patent Book 1, p. 783. The first land grant to Nicholas Perkins is recorded in Patent Book II, p. 262. Abstract: 'Nicholas Perkins, 170 a. Henrico co., 30 Aug., 1650. Lying in Bermuda Hundred, beginning in Cole's swamp, running along Cumnicot Path, west, north, west, thence along Cart Path in the head of said swamp.

"The Nicholas Perkins, who died in Henrico 1711 (?) was a son of Nicholas Perkins I, whose land grant I sent in abstract herewith and who, as the Charles City Record Book shows, died in 1655. Shortly after his death his widow became the wife of Dr. Richard Parker."

Nicholas Perkins II m. (per chart) Sarah Childress (or Childrey), daughter of Philemon Childress (or Childrey). The indications are that the last mentioned married a daughter of Rev. Jacob Ware of Henrico Parish, whose wife was Susanna. and whose other daughter (Susanna) married Richard Oglesby.—J.H.S.

The following Perkins notes compiled by Mrs. Tynes (Narcissa Pendleton): "The first Perkins from which the Virginia branch is descended came from a little town called Narlaux on the coast of Normandy, France. He settled in Berkshire, England. Nicholas I came from Bedfordshire to Virginia, 1650, by way of Bermuda Hundred and was a land proprietor of Bermuda Hundred, Henrico county, Virginia. His oldest son, Nicholas II was born in England ca. 1641. Nicholas Sr. was married in England ca. 1640 to the daughter of Dr. Richard Parker, who came to Nansemond co., Virginia in 1654. Nicholas Perkins II was born in England, 1641, died in Henrico co., Va., 1711. He married Sarah Childress about 1670. His will was probated in Henrico co., Va., 1712. Naming wife Sarah and following children: Nicholas, Mary, Sarah, Eliza, Constantine, b. 1682, married Ann Pollard; Philemon, Richard, Abram."

In Perkins Records, some confusion seems to have arisen—apparently one Nicholas Perkins is omitted in one of above records.—Compiler.

Parker

I. William Parker, brother of Thomas Parker, arch deacon of Cornwell, England.

II. James Parker, oldest son, married Catherine Bulwer, daughter of Sir Richard Bulwer of Shillingham, Cornwell, England.

III. Richard Parker (9th son) born 1625, died 1680, married a Londoner and came to Virginia, had six children, lived on James river; was a doctor of "Physicke." He settled in Nansemonde county, Virginia, in 1654; was High Sheriff of the county. He married Elizabeth, daughter of Capt. Richard Baily of London, England, and Accomac, Virginia. His daughter, Mary, married Nicholas Perkins I.

From Albemarle county, Virginia: Deed dated August 1, 1767, by which Constantine Perkins gives to his daughter, Ann Perkins, "now Ann Oglesby", two slaves. Witnesses: Shadrach Oglesby, Solomon Attkisson, Absolom Attkisson.

Churcel, Chercile, Courcil. English Churchill from: "History of Devonshire"—Rev. Thomas Moore.

"Roger de Courcil is said to have been the Norman ancestor of the English Churchills. In the 14th century, we find them established in Devonshire and inter-marrying. The families spread from Devon into Somerset and Dorset. Of the Devonshire Churchills, there was a William Churchill, during the reign of Edward 4th, who had a son Thomas, who espoused Grace, daughter and coheirress of Thomas Tylle of Tylle House."

Note: "Some authors speak of Tylle House as situated in Cornwall. I cannot, however perceive any mention of it in the topographical account of that Duchy, but I find Tylle House in the Parish of Broadclist, Devonshire, which, from its vicinity to the residence of the Churchills, is more likely to have been the seat of the gentleman whose daughter, Grace, espoused Thomas Churchill."

From Burke's Landed Gentry: John Churchill of Dorchester, married Edith, daut. of William Bond of Lutton, and died in the year 1557.

Of the Virginia Churchills, Col. William Churchill was in Middlesex county in 1674 as Deputy Sheriff, later in 1706 as a member of the council. According to his own deposition and will, he was born in 1649-50; in North Aston, Oxfordshire, England. The arms of the family as represented on a wax seal. attached to a deed, identify him as belonging to the family of Churchill, settled in the counties of Devon, Somerset and Dorset, England. There is an entry in the Order Book of Middlesex county, Virginia, during the year 1683, which shows that he was twice married. His first wife was Mary ..... by whom he had a daughter Mary, who married Capt. Roger Jones (and had issue Churchill Jones and Susanna Jones, named as legatees in the will of Col. William Churchill). Another daughter ....., who married Thomas Blakey and had a son Churchill Blakey. Col. William Churchill married 2nd on Oct. 5, 1703, to Elizabeth Armistead (widow of Ralph Wormely) daughter of Col. John Armistead of Gloucester. There were other children of the Capt. Roger Jones and Mary Churchill, his wife, not mentioned in the will of Col. Wm. Churchill, nor was the son of his other daughter of his first marriage, named in will. The will of Col. William Churchill bears date Nov. 18, 1710, proved in Middlesex county, Virginia, March 10, 1711.

It is assumed the Christian name of the first wife of Thomas Blakey I (daughter of Col. William Churchill and his 1st wife Mary) to have been Catherine Susanna (not Margaret) for: (a) The name Catherine Susanna occurs throughout Jones and Blakey lines. (b) Capt. Roger Jones and Mary Churchill (his wife) name one of their children Catherine and one Susanna. (c) Churchill Blakey and Sarah George had a daughter Catherine and a daughter Susanna. (d) Joseph Oglesby and wife Ann Haden Blakey named one of their daughters Catherine S. The name "Margaret", as suggested in some records occurs very rarely in any line—Churchill-Blakey—except where connected with the Douglas and is not generally accepted.

Atkinson-Attkisson

Motto "True to the End"

The name Adkison, Attkisson, Atkinson. The English-Scottish name Atkinson, is said to be the original name of family. In old deeds, wills and Bible records of the family, we find the name variously spelled.

Dr. William Attkisson and his son Dr. Rochester Attkisson and the latter's grandchildren today, use but one "t" in their name. Of the older families, with the various spellings, it is found, all bear the same charge in their arms, with the addition of other charges, proving a common origin.

William Atkinson (Attkisson) of Goochland county, Virginia, Parish of St. James Northam, signs his will—23 March, 1776, naming children of his 1st marriage: Jesse, Stephen, Absolom, Job, Hezekiah, Isaiah. Children of his 2nd wife: Mary Perkins: Josias, Anne and Elizabeth.

This William Atkinson is thought to be the son of the William Atkinson, who married a Parker in Henrico county, Virginia, Jan. 17, 1716.—St. John's Church.

Excerpts from will of William Atkinson: At a court held for Goochland county, Virginia, July 20, 1778, wife Mary etc.—“The remainder of my estate not already disposed of etc. I desire to be equally divided between my sons and daughters Jesse, Stephen, Absolom, Job, Hezekiah, Isaiah, Josias, Ann and Elizabeth, to them and their heirs forever.” March 23, 1776, Goochland county, Parish St. James Northam, Virginia. Recorded in Deed and Will Book No. 12, p. 158. Witnesses: Thomas Underwood, William Hughes, Joseph Perkins. The first six sons named in will were sons of the first wife. The last three children were of the second wife, Mary Perkins, daughter of Constantine Perkins I, and a sister of Ann, wife of William Oglesby and of Elizabeth, wife of Joseph Ellis of Henrico county, Virginia.

From Douglas Register: Parish Register of Goochland co., Virginia. Marriages: Stephen Atkinson and Ann Hanson, both of this parish, May 15, 1762. Birth date of first child and baptisms to Stephen and Ann Hanson Atkinson—a daughter Martha, b. Jan. 26, 1764, bapt. Mar. 18, 1764; a son, William, b. May 1, 1766, bapt. Fluvanna county, Virginia, Oct. 24, 1808. Ann Attkisson made a deed to her grandson, Alexander Attkisson, when he was eighteen years of age. Deed Book No. 5, page 179.

(Dr.) William Atkinson-Attkisson, (died 1816) born May 1, 1766, bapt. June 27, 1766, was the son of Stephen Atkinson and Ann Hanson of Goochland county, Virginia. He married ca. 1787 to Celia Ann Oglesby, daughter of William Oglesby Sr. and Ann Perkins, his wife. It is thought their oldest children were Michael and Mary, called “Polly” (note record following). It is known their other children were: Hector, Abner, William, Alexander, Nancy H. and Rochester.—See charts Atkinson-Attkisson, Attkisson.

Having reached the age of twenty-one, on June 11, 1811, Alexander Attkisson, a native of Virginia, living in Jefferson county, Kentucky, made a deed to Michael Attkisson, to property in Virginia. Deed is recorded in Fluvanna county, Virginia, in which is stated: “To property bequeathed me by my grandfather, William Oglesby, in 1802.” (signed) Alexander Attkisson.

brothers of Nancy H., Edward Baber, a cousin.

Abner and Hector Atkisson (sons of Dr. William Atkisson and Celia Ann Oglesby, his wife, left Virginia sometime after 1820. Abner established a home in Athens, Georgia. Hector in Alabama. Nothing more is known of them.

From Genealogy of the Fell family (E 7 - F 334, Newberry Library, Chicago): "Atkinson Abner (p. 108 David Fell, b. 1, 13, 1823, d. 8, 9, 1887, married 1, 3, 1850 to Margaret Atkinson, b. 1, 3, 1830, the dau. of Abner and Sarah Atkinson."

The above may refer to Abner Atkisson, Atkisson, son of Dr. William and Celia Ann Oglesby Atkisson, for: (a) Abner was thought to have used the old Scottish-English form, Atkinson, and to have married Sarah, (daughter of Joseph Oglesby Sr. and Ann Haden Blakey, his wife.) (b) Dates, names coincide with others of the family. ....

Virginia Atkinsons, whom I have not identified:

Family Reminiscences

The Scourge of '33 in Salem.

During the summer of 1833, cholera raged in Salem, Indiana, and surrounding counties. There were many deaths among young and old. Early in the summer of that year my grandfather, Alexander Attkisson, took his family down to the home of his brother, Rochester, at Simpsonville, Shelby county, Kentucky. They drove through in a carriage. Dr. Rochester Attkisson had a comfortable home at the edge of the town. There were slaves to look after the household and provide for their comfort. Dr. Attkisson was a practicing physician in Shelby county, Kentucky, and in after years his sons, also physicians and surgeons, were associated with Dr. McHenry Webb. The summer was spent in this hospitable home. Grandfather's family did not return to Salem until late in the fall of 1833. My father (Stephen Curtis Attkisson) remembered a visit his uncle, Dr. Rochester Attkisson, made in their Salem home, probably in 1840-43. This trip was made especially to interest his nephews in the study of medicine as he said, "to keep up the family tradition." None of his brother Alexander's boys was interested, preferring crafts and military service.

Great-Uncle Rochester's Slaves

Dr. Rochester Attkisson of Shelby county, Kentucky, kept the names of his slaves in his Bible. They were: Viney, Sarah, Henry, Alice, Charlie, John Lewis, Smith Thomas, Catherine, Ann, Harriet, Emaline, Rebecca and Ruth.

Years ago, we met Miss Betty Gains and Mrs. Waller, youngest sister of Dr. McHenry Webb, friends of the family. They told an interesting story of Viney, one of the Attkisson slaves. "She was a good natured worker, trustworthy with the children, a splendid nurse in sickness, but try as they would, Dr. Attkisson and 'Miss' Nancy could never convince her it was wrong to steal." Mrs. Waller said, "Viney couldn't pass a clothes line without liftin' an article or two. She would go around in the big kitchen, hiding meal and sugar in huge pockets of her full skirts. Even carrying out lard in her hand." One day Mrs. Attkisson taking her to task for this said, "Viney, haven't you enough meal and sugar in your own cabin?" Viney replied, "Lor yes! 'Miss' Nancy, but, dis am so much sweetah!"

The Negro as Property

Not until after the Dred Scott Decision, 1857, was the Negro in any Constitutional sense considered a person, but only property. They had no surname. After the war many took the name of their last, or of a favorite master.

Value of Slaves

Letter to Dr. A. B. Haden July 16, 1851:

“Smiths’ Gap, Hampshire co., Virginia.

“Dear Doctor: I saw Poling for you, he told me the girl cannot be bought for less than $400, that $375 has been offered and refused. He says the title is perfectly good. She is ten years of age, quite black, has a good countenance, and from my examination of her today, I would say she is quite healthy. Poling says the girl will not be disposed of until you can be heard from. You may write me on the subject. I will let Poling know what you are willing to pay. Yours truly. Robert W. Daily, M.D.”

Other Slave Holders of the Family

Col. William Churchill must have had a large number of slaves on his estates at “Wilton” and “Bushy Park” on the Pianketank, Middlesex county, Virginia.

Anthony Haden Sr. with plantations in Goochland, Henrico, King William and Hanover, had many slaves.

Excerpt from will of Anthony Haden Jr.: “My slaves are to have the liberty of choosing their master among all my children and the families are not to be separated on any account.”

William Haden, another son of Anthony Sr. in his will, after dividing the land etc. gives to his wife and to each child, slaves, naming them.

A deed dated Aug. 1, 1767, Albemarle co., Virginia, by which Constantine Perkins gives his daughter “Ann Perkins now Ann Oglesby”, two slaves. Witnesses Shadrach Oglesby, Solomon and Absalom Attkisson.

Dr. Joseph Addison Sweeny of Louisville, Ky., wrote: “I think my grandfather, Joseph Addison Sweeny, came from Buckingham county, Virginia. He was of the Oglesby line. I remember quite well having been told by “Uncle” Nelson (ex-slave), who came over from Virginia, with my grandfather. My grandfather’s 1st wife was a Miss Attkisson, his cousin.”

Excerpt from “Deed of Gift”:

From Ann Attkisson to her grandson, Alexander Attkisson: “That together with the affection which I bear toward my grandson, I, the said Ann have sold, given and conveyed to the said Alexander Attkisson all right, title, claim and demand which I have in or to a Negro woman Jude and her increase, also a Negro man Isom, also Nell and her increase, Nicey and her increase, which right and title I derived and obtained by the last will and testament of my father and which title I hold sacred for the above purposes, at a court held for Fluvanna co., Virginia, on the 24th day of Oct. 1808.—Deed Book No. 5, page 179.

Register of St. Peters Parish, New Kent county, Virginia

Baptism of slaves: Negroes belonging to Wm. Atkinson: Jane and Susanna, bapt. 7, ye 29, 1729; Giles, Negro boy Dec. 31, 1730; Lucy, March ye 28, 1728; Fanny, May 24, 1734; George, b. Sept. 15, 1737, bapt. May 21, 1738.

Susanna Ware, widow of the Rev. Jacob Ware, willed slaves to her grandchildren, the children of her daughter, Susanna Ware Oglesby, widow of Richard Oglesby of Goochland. Will made on Feb. 5, 1734-5, proved in Henrico co., Va., May 5, 1735. Grandchildren, Jacob Oglesby, Elizabeth Coraby Oglesby, Mourning Oglesby.

Old Letters

Cousin Hal. Munson (the Rev. Henry A. Munson) wrote: "I thought you might like to see a bit of your great-grandfather's splendid chirography, which I found in mother's Bible and am enclosing. 'Great grandfather, Joseph Oglesby Sr., had written a note of recommendation for a minister. 'This is to certify that the bearer, S. P. Moore, has been an acceptable member and minister of the Methodist Episcopal church in Lexington circuit. December 19, 1833.—Joseph Oglesby'."

An undated letter written by Ruth Attkisson to her brother Curtis, addressed to: Master Curtis Attkisson, Millport, Indiana. Since Ruth addressed him as "Master," he evidently was still in his teens. Probable date of letter, 1848. While yet a youth, Stephen Curtis Attkisson, worked at carpenter and cabinet work and became quite skilled. He went to Millport to work on the much-talked-of Plank Road and earlier in the saw-mill. Bits of the heavy timbers used in bridging the Knobs, ravines, were still to be seen a few years ago. While at Millport, Curtis, boarded in the hospitable Robinson home, making only occasional visits to Salem.

"Dear Curt: I thought I would write you a few lines. We have made you a couple of pairs of pantaloons for everyday and we will make you a nice pair next week. That is if we hear from you before that time. We want you to write and let us know if you want your nice pantaloons made like these, and if you do not, tell us how you do want them made. We also want to know how you like out there and how you are getting along in your new occupation.

Mother says, when you quit wearing your thick pantaloons, you must hang them up, or the moths will eat them. George went out home with Mr. Munson this morning, to help him tend the farm. You must write soon and come in the first opportunity. Mother says that you must be a good boy and attend to your business, say your prayers every night and keep away from wicked, bad boys and be sure to not break the Sabbath whatever you do. Write soon, I ever remain yours.—Ruth.”

One Sunday night, while attending church in the Millport neighborhood, country hoodlums cut to pieces his prized saddle, for which he had spent his first earnings.—E.A.R.

From a More Recent Letter

Major Horace Oglesby Woolford, a descendant of William Oglesby Jr. and Martha Ellis of Virginia, wrote: “In the family there was a saying (I have heard them mention it often) we could not get away from Jefferson county. After leaving eastern Virginia they lived in Jefferson county, Virginia (now in West Virginia), from there they moved to Jefferson county, Kentucky, and finally established a home in Madison, Jefferson county, Indiana.

Morgan's Raid

Told by Elizabeth Attkisson Berkey, daughter of Major Horace Newland Attkisson and by Grace Oglesby Carter Davis, daughter of Ruth Attkisson Carter.

“At the time of Morgan's Raid through Salem, Indiana, July 10, 1863, my uncle, Capt. Stephen Curtis Attkisson, was home on a furlough, having been wounded in battle.

“We were sitting on the front porch of my father's home on North High street, when a detachment of Morgan's men rode up. They saluted my uncle, who was in uniform, and asked why he was there.

“He returned the salute and pointed to his crutches. They answered and rode on.”

Elizabeth was at that time about seven or eight years of age.

Grace Oglesby Carter Davis said in telling of her mother's conference with Gen. Morgan at his Salem headquarters, The Persise House:

“Mamma (then Ruth Attkisson) and Mrs. Kate Newland Depauw, wife of Washington Depauw, had been intimate girlhood friends. Mrs. Depauw asked mamma to go with her to General Morgan's headquarters to intercede on behalf of the mills. They took with them, Mrs. Depauw's baby boy.

General Morgan was very gracious and promised them the mills should be spared, "but", said he, with sudden fierceness; "The next time, we shall come with fire and sword."

Union County Kentucky Raid—June 7, 1864.

Col. Cunningham made a raid into Union county, Kentucky, and impressed a steamboat load of Negroes into the U. S. Service.

They took from John C. Attkisson fifteen Negroes and from George Attkisson twenty-five. Col. Cunningham was accompanied by two gunboats to "help persuade the owners to consent to the raid."

By the name of Atkinson.

The late Eugene R. Attkisson, attorney of Louisville, Kentucky, wrote:

"Family tradition, only one branch of the family, Atkinson, used the name Attkisson. Have been told, name was changed back in Virginia on account of a dispute over peach brandy."

I was glad it was not corn whiskey. Later, in looking over old records, I found this note from a Kentucky Haden: "I recollect we made corn whiskey, on the plantation back home. Sold it at twenty-five cents per gallon, in gallon lots, eighteen cents per gallon, by the bbl."

The following was told me by Ottis Attkisson and Grace Oglesby Carter Davis, grandchildren of Alexander Attkisson and Jemima Douglas Oglesby:

“The Oglesby and Attkisson families, who crossed the Mason and Dixon Line were: Dr. Joseph Oglesby Jr. at Madison, Indiana, and Alexander Attkisson and wife Jemima Douglas Oglesby at Salem. Grandfather was a southern Democrat, while his sons, born in Indiana, were radical Republicans, Whigs. Sometime, during the heated Douglas-Lincoln debates and campaigns, cousins "Tish" and America Oglesby of Louisville, Ky., started on a visit to their uncle Alex, at Salem, Indiana. They were met at New Albany by my father and uncle (Stephen C. and Horace N. Attkisson). As they jogged along, the conversation, most unfortunately, centered on the debates and campaign. Tactless remarks were exchanged, growing in intensity, until the hot-headed boys, unceremoniously turned the horses around and speedily deposited their irate cousins somewhere near their starting point. The only reference to this episode made in after years by my father was: "The Kentucky cousins have forgotten their cousins in Indiana."—E.A.R.

A Jackson County Farm Home

Among the many hospitable homes of our kinsmen, that of Uncle Mike and Aunt Hetty Scott Attkisson, has been mentioned often in our family. On a Jackson county, Indiana, farm, with a family of fourteen children, all boys but two. Aunt Hetty had so planned the chores that everything moved along smoothly. She loved to cook and guests were always welcome. Far and wide people spoke of Aunt Hetty Attkissons feather-light cup cakes, which family tradition said she baked daily for "the boys liked to come in from the fields for a snack once in a while." Under Aunt Hetty's careful training her two daughters, Amanda and Georgia, became expert needlewomen. Their homes also were models of efficiency as were those of their children and grandchildren.

RECONSTRUCTION DAYS

CUMMING and ROME, GEORGIA, MEMORIES

“Miss” Olivia’s Harriett

“Uncle” Crap and “Aunt” Delphy

“Myrie”

Dedicated To Stella

February 28, 1865, while Stephen Curtis Attkisson, then a commissioned officer in the Federal Army, was at Salem, Indiana, he and Zerelda Catherine Sill were married by the Rev. H. R. Saylor.

Reconstruction Days

At the close of the War Between the States my father, Capt. Stephen Curtis Attkisson, was appointed Internal Revenue Collector of the "Cherokee Strip" (locally called Northern Georgia) with headquarters at Atlanta. Cumming, Forsythe county, being more centrally located and perhaps for other reasons, was chosen for their first home in the south. The county of Forsythe and surrounding country was a wild, rough land, heavily wooded with vast stretches of long-leaved pine. Highways were few. At certain seasons, the narrow clay roads were impassable, except on horseback. During the best weather my father drove two horses to a light buggy, but many days and nights, he travelled the wilds on horseback.

An English type stage coach drawn by four to six horses (depending on road conditions) made regular trips from Atlanta to Cumming, the countyseat of Forsythe. Once a month, Cumming had a "Sale day". Men only, attended these sales, held in court square. Many came to town riding mules. The broad-wheeled Conestoga and other covered wagons were still in common use.

Myrie (the maid) and I, spent these days, turning loose the mules, carelessly fastened to the pickets of our orchard fence, which was well out of sight of the house. The mules were free to wander where they would, or to gallop home to the hills. Trespassers were punished and we had no qualms of conscience. Although my father had been a "Yankee" soldier, he and my mother made lasting friends in this home of their adoption. For a year or more, they lived in the Cain Hotel, now the Puett home. I remember best the home near the corner of the square across from the Edmonson store. Five of the children were born here. One little grave is on the hillside, where many old friends lie buried.

Among the Cumming friends were: The Sims, Puetts, McAfees, George Mitchells, Dodges, Websters, Cains, Ira and John Hudsons, Haldmans, Edmonsons, Gramlins, Kellogs, Davenport, Pattersons Hightowers, Sommerhours, and the doctors, Knox, Nichols and Hockenhull, Phillip Clements, editor of the Cumming Clarion, who gave me my little black and tan dog, "Phil".

The Websters, returning from the Philadelphia Exposition brought me a beautiful bright blue wool jacket, braided in black and white. This, I called my "Centennial Jacket." One neighbor boasted the smallest waist-measure in Cumming, seventeen and three-fourths inches, by tight squeeze. They said she was often revived by peach brandy. At the foot of the McAfee hill, was a small battened house, the home of white workers from the Kirby coopershop. Their favorite son was given the name, Piecrust. In after years a member of this family recalled (to an anxious visitor to the home town) all the old names and between flourishes of her dip-stick, said: "Most of 'em, who haven't died, have moved to Atlantar."

When I was five years old, I was started to school in the brick academy at Cumming. Memories of this doubtful experience are: of a large room, pupils all ages, a terrible buzz and hum, a stern forbidding headmaster, on a high rostrum, and a dainty little teacher, Miss Cornelia Patterson—memories of recess-time when girls left to themselves, brought out from hidden pockets, short cherry sticks and boxes of brown parched meal—in lieu of snuff, and of the boys on the other side of the sweetbriar hedge, who occasionally found scorpions and with many boastful threats caused a clatter of tin, stifled shrieks and a waste of parched meal. Other memories are of clothes—lovely handmade, embroidered garments, little linen pinafores, broad brim leghorn and pique sundowns, mitts and a hated sunbonnet—my little primer, the pictures so beautifully covered with crushed rose leaves, but of my “a-b-abs”, I remember nothing.

In our home, on long summer days, young and old took afternoon naps. Around four o'clock, Myrie would open the blinds, and wash and dress us children for our early evening walk. We often rebelled against naps, dressing and all, but Myrie's hand was firm and strong.

During our stay in Cumming, grandma from Indiana, spent one winter with us. She was puzzled by “Ole Miss Nix” saying: “I don't like it in town, the glass winders hurt my eyes.” Miss Nix, as Myrie (the colored girl) said, was “Pore white trash”. She drove a two-wheeled oxcart, came into town weekly, selling “lightard”—pineknots and fatty pine, for flares and kindling.

Grandma thought it odd that we had our firecrackers at Christmas instead of Fourth of July. She enjoyed as much as we children the “fantastics” on horseback at New Year's celebration.

Auntie Fanny, mamma's youngest sister, spent a year or more in our Georgia home, before her marriage to my father's nephew, William Alexander Attkisson. After living a number of years in Cumming, my father's duties took us to Rome, for residence. We drove from Cumming, Forsythe County to Rome, Floyd County, in a rock-a-way, a carriage the body of which was swung by heavy leather straps. We had a pair of spirited black horses. I did not like them as I had the gentle bay mare we drove to the buggy. As my father lifted me into the rock-a-way, they said I screamed and cried saying, “I'll follow in Ole Miss Nix' oxcart.”

Our household goods were moved in big covered wagons. Two nights were spent in fine, old country homes—previous arrangements having been made. At one place, a peacock, spreading his brilliant tail, strutted on the brick wall, as the carriage wheeled through the gates. We were put to bed early. The four-poster beds had steps, the fat featherbeds were higher than our heads.

Tasty meals, supper and breakfast, were served. The "great salt", as in old Scottish days, held place of honor nor could the older ones forget bitter months, when every smokehouse floor had been carefully scraped, the dirt therefrom put into hoppers and the drained-off water evaporated, to save this precious salt. This once proud county seat had fields uncultivated, large brick carriage-houses, with no carriages, empty stables and barns.

The next day we drove through Resaca, where a decisive battle had been fought (1863). Not a house was standing, only brick chimneys and stone walls. The yards were overrun with roses and vines in full bloom. It was May. At Rome, we boarded for a year with "Miss Julia", the eldest sister of the Ombergs, who was bravely adjusting herself to the new way of living. In their backyard were empty cabins—their slave quarters. The first Ombergs had come to America from Norway or Sweden. Albion and the Misses Julia, Nellie, Kate and Sally, were of the third or fourth generation from the European ancestor. In this home was the splendid old furniture, the silver and china—remnants of better days.

Miss Julia, herself, sat at head of table. We children ate with the grownups. Our parents, while allowing us many privileges, had strict mid-victorian ideas of children's behavior.

Later we moved into our own home on Broad Street, a block from Ombergs and across from the beautiful George Norton estate, then a very attractive residential section of Rome. We had as neighbors: The Nortons', Coleys' (an English widow with family and relatives establishing a new home). The Wrights and Roncevilles. Other friends were, Judge Perry, Albion Omberg, editor and publisher; Dr. Nunnely, the Moores and Halls. On Saturdays and vacation days we climbed onto the picket fence to watch for the waffleman. Around ten or ten-thirty we could hear him blocks away as he came up Broad Street crying, "Gen-u-ine French waffles" with rising inflection on last syllable. His waffle-hamper, shaped like a scissor's grinder's outfit, had a tiny door, out of which he deftly slid a waffle and dredgebox of powdered sugar. Waffles were made often in our own kitchen on a heavy iron. It was exciting to see the red-hot coals as the iron whirled over and always a mystery how the iron and waffle could settle back into position, yet no hot waffle from this iron could equal the cold "gen-u-wine" French waffle—the most delectable bit a child ever ate at ten-thirty in the morning.

We were members of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, and attended Sunday school during Rev. La Prade's pastorate. Miss Nellie was a member of the Presbyterian Church of which Dr. Axson (father of Woodrow Wilson's first wife) was pastor. We often spent Sundays at the country home of Judge Perry or visited across the river in DeSoto, where relatives of our Cumming friends lived.

There Were No Public Schools in Georgia (1870's).

I attended Shorter College, Rome, Georgia, a girls' school, where classes were provided for children. Of the teachers, I remember Prof. Mallory and Mrs. Harper. There was no parched meal with cherry sticks at THIS school. Across court from the main building, connected by a breeze-way, was a long, low, room, empty except for a piano at one end and chairs around the wall. Windows, full length filled the two long sides. Here dancing and calisthenics were taught. The open court and long "galleries" were our playgrounds in bright weather.

The first tragedy of my life came when we left Georgia for Indiana. We could not take Myrie with us. Colored people were not tolerated in Salem; not even a nurse maid. At parting we clung to Myrie crying. Surely there was never so much childish sorrow in the whole wide world. Everything was different in this new home. There were no Old Sawnee (mountain), no distant Blue Ridge, no fog-clouded mornings—nor pine woods, no Myrie, nor any other friendly black face.

The cousins were pleased with my pretty clothes from the smart Atlanta shops, but to my dismay I was told to say "pack" not tote, "porch" not piazza, "veranda" not gallery. I was corrected for pronouncing Mary with a long a, and laughed at for calling at store for goobers. I wanted grits—no one had ever heard of grits. I wanted to go back to Georgia.

“Miss” Olivia’s Harriet

Strange sounds could be heard at daybreak in “Miss” Olivia’s back yard on Monday mornings. Low voices mingled with dull thuds, sharp raps and queer slithering noises, as the heavy, wet linens were sloshed about. Paddles, wielded over “battlin boards”, white from long use, soft free-stone water boiling in big iron pots and jars of homemade lye-soap, helped sinewy black arms to fill the clothes lines with a well-rinsed, clean, bright wash. The fog, followed by warm golden Georgia sunshine, completed this wholesome task. Sue, Marge, Jo and Mose, under “Aunt” Harriet’s watchful eye, had made the soft lye-soap—a process lasting over so many months that Aunt Harriet only could keep count. A hopper near the well, at the orchard gate, was filled with wood ashes and covered until spring. Water poured through this ash-hopper, caught in buckets, boiled down in large kettles and processed with waste grease, turned this, into glistening soft lye-soap.

There was caste among the Cumming colored folk. “Aunt” Harriet long accepted as head, had been a slave in Miss Olivia’s family and had refused to leave them after the war. “Uncle” Crap worked with the horses and in the garden, but grumbled if given some household task. Sue and Marge, in charge of the washhouse, kept the kitchen and other floors scrubbed white, with clean sand. These were their chores, nor would they have dared suggest a culinary idea. Aunt Harriet’s domain was the kitchen. She moved about as if performing some rite and (could she have read), would have scorned a cookbook. From somewhere she conjured recipes, all her own. She would fill a tall wine bottle with cold water, fresh from the well, this, tightly corked, was her rollingpin for pie dough. She baked light corn bread in an iron Dutch oven. First, she set a “leaven’n”, then added the other ingredients. She was an expert with beaten biscuit—one hundred strokes for every day—five hundred for company, with a system of her own for counting.

Very few “company” dinners were served in after-the-war-days, for, according to Aunt Harriet, no company dinner was worthy the name unless, at least, five meats were served. With chicken pie she served Scuppernon wine, a sparkling amber colored wine, made from the native wild grape. We never tired of watching her whisk up a mountain of egg whites. With a large platter, balanced at a precarious angle, she would walk about, beating the mass with a silver fork.

“Aunt” Harriet would not allow us children in the “sto”-room, a long pantry, just off the big kitchen. In it were large sacks of green coffee, loaf sugar in blue paper, wooden boxes of London layer raisins and over all the smell of spices.

When she baked, she placed the cakes on the pantry counter-shelf. There was always a pound cake and some brandied peaches. Big stone jars held cucumber pickles, packed between layers of grape leaves. A “cooter” lived in this store-room. What is a cooter, we asked. “A cootah?—a cootah?—well, hit look somethin’ lak a fox, an’ jist as sassy!”

I saw that pantry again, after I was seventy and closed the door almost as quickly as when I was seven, altho “Aunt” Harriet had been dead long over a half century.

"Uncle" Crap and "Aunt" Delphy

Their cabin was out beyond the cottongin, not far from the pine wood, where "Uncle" Crap was allowed to gather "lightard" for their fireplace. The cabin, small and low, leaned on its side, causing the one door to stand partly open. The windows had wooden shutters only and the chimney was of sticks, mud and stones.

Myrie often took us for a walk through the pine wood. She loved the soft moan of the boughs overhead and the springy, fragrant needles underfoot. We gathered pinecones to give "Aunt" Delphy, as we passed her door. She sat at the fireplace summer and winter with dipstick or pipe, often sewing on old garments. I was fascinated by the long thread she used. At each stitch her arm would be held at full length. Ever after a long thread in our household was known as an "Aunt Delphy thread." She must have been nearly a hundred—in fact "Uncle" Crap claimed to have passed his hundredth birthday. He was a familiar figure around Cumming during the Reconstruction Period. Brought into Georgia, directly from Africa, he was for years a slave on plantations near Atlanta. He was sly shrewd, never dependable, but withal a good stable "boy" and gardner. His goober patches were tended faithfully and were unexcelled. Across the fields from his cabin, Uncle Crap could see the calaboose, a grim reminder that there must be a limit to his "takins".

After a day's work at our home, he was given provisions for the next day and often a bundle of old clothes. He could not pass our smokehouse, on way to his cabin, without adding a jowl, shoulder or slab of bacon. With arms already full, he would carry this on his head. He showed no embarrassment whatever when caught. He would scold himself with many words, brazenly looking all around, then asking, "Now jist whar ah git dat extar load?"

At regular intervals, the colored folk of our household saturated their heads with fish-berries and whiskey. Scorpions in the sand and these things in the kinky heads, were not the only pests to be guarded against. Not for artistic effect only, were beds kept away from the walls. We had a great metal-spouted charcoal-burning-steamer, which was carried from room to room, scalding all cracks in the woodwork. This was the only indoor job "Uncle" Crap would do, without grumbling to himself. He felt his importance—it wasn't everyone who understood the mysteries of that charcoal steamer.

Myrie's kinswoman

Myrie

Myrie had all the good qualities of a well-trained ex-slave. Her faithfulness was touching. She entertained us children with folk tales, songs and queer games. She knew where the early wild flowers bloomed and the exact fence corners that hid the little purple pitcher plant. She knew where to dig in the red clay bank for the bright mica flakes and was first to find the fragrant wild "honeysuckle" (the azalea).

In our back yard was an open brick sewer, where kitchen suds were thrown. After Myrie emptied suds she would call, "Come! Chillun come!

'An see King Gaug's Ahmy pass by?' King George's army was the gray suds, dashing down the open sewer. We were a little awe-stricken at that and called the sewer, "the King's Highway." When we went for a walk, Myrie would say, "de debil am peepin' out 'n de cracked red clay, so step lively!" On one of these walks, a herd of wild steers, charging down the dusty street threw Myrie into a panic. We were near the home of a woman, known in that southern town, merely as "Becky H.....". Becky had heard the stampede, for she threw open the heavy, battened garden gate and called to us. Myrie hesitated, just the moment. Should she let the cattle trample us to death? or, should she, like Joshua's spies, enter the garden of this harlot? Fear and loyalty won. The little garden, tightly fenced, was edged with bright flowers—neat vegetable beds filled the spaces between. The cattle thundered by, the dust settled, and Becky sent us on our way with a handful of fat cookies, raisin centered.

Myrie made us say our prayers at night then jump into bed, to keep the foxes from getting our toes. After we were tucked in the foxes went away. On cool winter nights we slept in Canton flannel footed drawers, a one-piece garment, which we named "cobbies"—supposedly coined from cub. Cobbies were a protection from foxes as well as the cold, so we didn't have to hurry. Other of Myrie's effective weapons, were the chain-gang and the calaboose. Altho I had never seen children in stripes, working the roads or rock piles, I knew Myrie could put us there if we broke the rules. She loved us dearly. Her wild threats affected us as did her stories. Mamma had planned certain rules of conduct. The method of enforcing these rules was Myrie's.

We had many toys, but her games were best. Sometimes she would fill a hole in the earth with damp moss, place blossoms therein and cover with a bit of broken window pane, packing the earth well around the edges. This, in the shade kept fresh for hours. No playhouse was complete without one or more of these flower pits. At sundown, when the sandy soil was damp, we made frog houses. First, a small depression, then sand patted firmly over one hand and heaped and rounded into igloo shape. The hand carefully withdrawn, left a little doorway for the frogs. Just before the foxes came at bedtime, we often acted out Mother Goose and other stories.

In our long bedroom were two double spool beds and a matching lounge. These were our main properties. The foot of the beds served as a wall for Humpty-Dumpty and as a fence for Tom! Tom! the Pipers Son! and were splendid balcony rails.

When we drove up into the mountains. Myrie made playhouses under the trees. Rocks as large as she could carry outlined many rooms. Openings marked the doorways, which no one would ignore, nor would we for one moment have overstepped the walls. Here we found beds of the dainty mountain pink and the fragrant blooms of the sweet shrub (calycanthus), native of the Georgia mountains. In the fall we gathered a delightfully sweet nut, the chinquapin, growing on low shrubs.

Our favorite pets were: pigeons, small seabright bantams and dogs. We had a powerful mastiff, who was our constant companion—"Ole" Bull. He would allow no stranger near us. On our walks and country trips as well as at home he received as much consideration as any other member of the family.

These colored people could neither read nor write, yet the stories she told, were the same as the Joel Harris' "Uncle Remus" tales, I read later. That they had a common origin, one does not doubt—tales handed down through the generations of colored folk. A favorite story of another type was "Chickie Little." Myrie would begin with "Chickie Little told me so", she would go on and on, there was no end. It could have lasted for days, a sort of (child's) "Thousand and One Nights." She would swing into this saga with ever increasing fervor. Chickie Little's gossip spread and spread. First through the barnyard, out the lane, onto the highway, then over the broad world. To all this there was no rhyme, but there was a weird, sing-song rhythm.

The "Chinneyberry" (Chinaberry) tree was our auditorium. Ole Bull appreciated its dense shade. He would get quite excited and growl now and then, as Myrie, swaying and wailing, chanted of the gossip Chickie Little had started.

Another exciting tale, in a minor key, equally as enduring, was, "Lizard! bring back dat hoe cake ye stole." The lost hoe cake distressed Myrie and Ole Bull, even more than Chickie Little's gossip. During the intermission we ate cold biscuits, little red tomatoes and shallots.

Other colored folk of Cumming worked about our house and garden occasionally—Marge, Sue, Jo, Maria and Mose-the-dandy, who stole Papa's moss agate ring. Some of the women could weave rag carpet and coarse cotton material—white, also colored checks.

After seventy-five years, some of this material made of Sea Island cotton, is still strong and in use in our home. They were also clever basket weavers, using willow, reeds and split cane. Their "shuck" braided mats were a necessity at kitchen and hall doors.

Of these Cumming colored folk the only ones of any importance to us children were: "Aunt" Harriet, "Uncle" Crap, "Aunt' Delphy and Myrie. Dearly as I loved Myrie, I never prayed for her. I would end my childish—"Now, I lay me"—with, God bless Mamma and Papa, Gram-ma, my brother and sisters, all my aunts, uncles and cousins—Amen.

My Garden in Indiana

A hillside rugged, outcropping ledge,
Stones gray and mossy,
With blue, green cedars, a Judas tree
And pines quite gnarly.
The lovely weeds—the poor man's glass,
The Shepherd's purse,
Not rare, nor showy.
The sweet-wild plum, the mullen tall,
The thistle gay and prickly,
Strawberries wild, with blossoms white,
A foxgrape vine, with fruit quite tangy.
To my garden, so rough and wild,
Come birds and toads and rabbits bold
And oft a wee black skunk, most warily.

Stephen William Douglas Rudder

Stephen Wm. Douglas Rudder was a graduate of the Art Institute of Chicago. He received a number of honorable mentions there, and during his second year of residence was elected to membership in the "Art Student's League of Chicago," an honorary organization to which students are admitted after their work has passed a jury selected for the purpose. He specialized in figure drawing and etching during his third year. He and scenic director for the "Jordan River Revue." He also made the linoleum block for the cover of the programs for the "Melting Pot" presented on the campus.

Woodcuts of Maxwell Hall, The Well House, and Memorial Hall of Indiana University appear in the Vagabond published in 1931. In 1931 he entered the University of Chicago, under the "Old Plan"—Department of Humanities.

My Hoosier Garden.

In Rudder's Garden (Lona Parks Hutchison)

One day I walked in Rudder's garden. My gentle lady led me through the old Bott's gate, beneath the arbor of the bittersweet and past the woodsy plants and shrubs that feel so much at home here in this garden fair. We paused a moment at the chairs upon the sunny terrace while she told the story of the once busy mill-stones that rest upon the lawn. The hedge of roses was still in bloom, and, extending on and on covered the newly cropped grass with fragrant petals. They were my roses she said for when she looked at them she thought of me. Such a precious tribute only she would think to give!

Then a narrow pathway led us into a lower garden, a dream garden such as I had never seen before. From the inviting summer house we looked down upon the curving railroad tracks and on the busy factory there beside the creek. Stepping stones led past beds of old fashioned flowers, not stiff and formal, but growing free as happy flowers like to grow. Great ledges of rock formed the fish-pond in which lilies, flags and other water plants found a pleasant home.

And the roses there! Clambering over a trellis against the stone wall and pushing higher and higher until they joined the hedge above were great masses of blossoms, red, yellow and white. And among the scarlet beauties swung the bluebird's house.

And there were memories, too, such happy ones. There was the giant elm where the wild squirrel lived; the garages where they kept their cars and the stable where the gentle Bessie stood. We spoke of these and smiled into each other's eyes. Sometimes its so hard to be strong.

The last walk took us thro' a make believe forest out to the busy thoroughfare. Here I bade my lovely friend goodbye and thanked her for her kindness. The sun was hidden when I climbed the hill and spattering raindrops were falling here and there. But somehow I felt soothed and strengthened. It's good to walk in gardens where the heartsease grows.

(Lunch: cheese pimento and sliced ham sandwiches on homemade bread, mustard pickles, cabbage slaw, beaten biscuits, jelly, deviled eggs, fruit turnovers, fruit cake, caramel cookies, hot coffee and fresh fruit.) Left 1:15 (almost forgetting thermos jug—water). Entered W. Virginia 5:10 (6:10 E. stand. time). Left "Green Gables", Ceredo, W. Va., 7:10 a.m. Heavy fog. Tuesday. Mileage 11453. Left Huntington (after a good breakfast) 8:15. Charleston, W. Va., 9:20 (mileage 11506) crossed Kanawa river bridge 9:30. Beautiful scenery as we drove toward Gauley's bridge— Gauley Mt., elev. 1360. Dick, Stella and Otto climbed down ladder at roadside over ravine to watch long train pull through valley. 50 cars.—11:30. 1 p.m. lunch at Rainelle.

Tuesday 2:30 Greenbrier (Greenbrier College). White Sulphur Springs Hotel (mileage 11631). Entered Virginia 2:50. Covington, rayon and pulp mills. Lexington, Va. Washington and Lee Military School. Visited campus and Lee's tomb. Picked up large buckeyes nearby to plant in our home garden. Tuesday night, Fairfield, Virginia, restful night in well equipped log cabins in apple orchard, good dining room, well served breakfast. Left at 7:15.

Wednesday morning. Mileage 11710. 8 o'clock, Waynesboro. Left highway, headed toward Charlottesville. Stopped top of ridge for peaches from wayside stand, beautiful view above Crozett. Monticello 11 o'clock. Then to grounds of "Ash Lawn" (Monroe home). Pinch pitchers for the girls bought near here. On to Fluvanna county, Palmyra, home of Jemima Douglas Oglesby (our grandmother). Chicken dinner served in quaint hotel basement dining room, opening on old apple orchard. Explored W.A.S. Conrad store—hickory chair, rocker $2.69, stools $1.00. While Dick looked through records at court house. Drove over surrounding country with Mr. Lewis Perkins Campbell of Palmyra, in search of old burial grounds. On to Scottsville, over narrow roads, to abandoned homesteads and uncultivated lands, to Oglesby "graveyard, reserved in deed, on Hardware river." Left Scottsville 5 p.m., arrived Culpepper, birthplace of Anne Haden Blakey, 7:15. Splendid cottages. "Culpepper Terrace"

($2.50 double bed and bath). Supper and breakfast at Culpepper Mayflower cafe. Breakfast 6:40. Mileage, leaving Culpepper, 11899½, 7:10 a.m.

Thursday, Fredericksburg, 8:00 a.m. Mercer Apothecary Shop—to Goochland by noon. Old court house set well back in a grove of trees, old rock wall jail, ferns growing from crevices. Wall around court square, brick-topped with molded, handmade half rounds, high knoll overlooking James river. Sign—"Swatty's Pants", alterations free." At Richmond, St. John's church, State Capital, and many points of interest. Left 3:40, Road 33 (mileage 12052) entered King and Queen county 4:10 after crossing long bridge at West Point. (Hurried too much, of necessity, through all places). On to Urbana, Middlesex county to Old Christ church, where the Churchills, Georges and Blakeys were baptized and married. The old church, beautiful in a serene setting, red brick, simple dignified interior, red silk velvet cushions, white marble font and cross. A storm swept in, winds howled and storm broke as we hurried toward Williamsburg, left church at 5:15 p.m., entered Gloucester 5:50 (mileage 12035). Signs along Gloucester road for miles and later at lunch stand "Leg Stool." Crossed to Yorktown, drove on to Williamsburg in a blinding rain; had lovely rooms at Bogardes, a private home on Richmond Road 417.

Out on the quaint streets of Williamsburg next morning. Left at 10 Friday (mileage 12179). After a visit to William and Mary campus, Bruton church, old powderhouse and other points. Hilton village, neat and quaint. Entered Newport News 10:45; passed on way large tobacco warehouses and housing projects. Norfolk ferry 10:55. Ocean City—usual sights, boats, ocean, sailors etc. Virginia Beach, 12:45 (mileage 12238). Seafood dinner at open-air cafe. Got salt water taffee; walked and drove along lovely beach. Left 1:30 over James River bridge to Road 258, on to 58 toward Franklin. A downpour of rain. Reached a big old hotel in Franklin (called Elise), stayed the night. Left at 7:10 a.m. (mileage 12387) out of Franklin toward Durham, through Isle of Wight county—cotton and peanut fields—9:45 entered N. Carolina (mileage 12447). Raleigh N.C., 10:50 (12503), State Capitol. Lunch at Chapel Hill (corned beef, cabbage and corn bread pleased Otto). Big football crowd milled around, roses in bloom over fronts of shops and cafe's. Left at 12:40. Duke University, Durham 1:10 (12552). Heavy fog toward Ashville. Cabins near Ashville for the night (12798) Having driven 461 miles that Saturday. Arrived at Ashville 7:10 p.m. Fire in tiny wood stove, breakfast in cafe in office district of city—grits, sausage, hot biscuits and coffee. Drove over Ashville to Biltmore 7:55 (12805), Interesting development. Left Ashville 9 a.m. (12823) through Silva—here, shining, most immaculate rest room "Shell". Enter Tennessee 12:30 (12904), altitude 5000. Through Smoky mountains, lovely walk through ferns, mountain laurel etc., superb beyond description. Visited Indian reservation. After Gatlinburg at 1:45 with lunch at French Village cafe, back through park by way of Marysville. Dick and Otto played around branch and hanging bridge gathering boulders. Dick and Stella walked back  $\frac{1}{2}$  mile for wahoo, ferns etc.

Sunday. Left park 3 p.m. (12943). Stayed at Alhambra Court out of Knoxville, lovely, new, clean place. (Brown of Ft. Wayne was ill there, unable to go on south.) Left 6:30 a.m. (12986), oil changed, ready to leave 7:10. Entered Norris 8—Dam at 8:15. On to Cumberland Gap 10:15. Out of Tennessee-Virginia, over the mountain into Kentucky 10:30 a.m. (mileage 13078). Corbin for lunch at Arden Hotel. Left at 1, arrived Frankfort 5:15. Supper east of town at a sequestered old homestead, candlelight, fine sandwiches etc., but an air of something puzzling (wrong place perhaps). Quiet comings and going, but splendid service and an air of refinement withal. So, to town for the night. A new place "Anchor Inn"—clean, comfortable, well equipped brick cottages.

Left Frankfort, Ky., 6:10 a.m. (13288). Indianapolis Circle 10:10 (13444). Thence, after a night's rest, on to McConnellsville, Ohio, the childhood home of our mother, Zerelda Catherine Sill Attkisson.

Children of Anthony and Margaret Douglas Haden

Sent by Lou Adams Kress (Mrs. Fred Kress of Caldwell Idaho) (Author and compiler of "The Blakey Genealogy).

"I am descended from Ann Haden, daughter of Anthony and Margaret, and of Thomas Blakey. My great-grandfather, George Douglas Blakey, born at Rural Choice, Logan County, Kentucky, was interested in genealogy and had the Haden children listed in his family Bible. He left a lot of valuable records of family lines and to date I have found no error in any of them when checking them against other authentic records. Our family Bible shows the children of Anthony Haden and Margaret Douglas, his wife, as follows:

1. John,
2. Joseph,
3. Thomas,
4. Zachariah,
5. Rachel,
6. Ann, m. Thomas Blakey;
7. Ruth Haden, m. Jacob Farris;
8. William,
9. Jane, m. Mr. Hendly (or Handly);
10. Anthony Jr.—(Revolutionary Service).

Sarah George Blakey, evidently left Christ Church Parish, Middlesex Co., Va., shortly after death of her husband, Churchill Blakey, May 8, 1738. Concerning this, Dr. Wm. Whitsitt, Richmond College, Virginia, states: "While it has been possible to recover records of the sons of Churchill Blakey (the first in America). I have been unable to find item concerning his daughters, Betty, Jane, Susanna and Catherine. They were among the younger children and apparently none had married prior to date when their mother, (Sarah George Blakey, widow of Churchill Blakey), removed from the limits of Christ Church Parish." Records of births and baptism of children of Churchill and Sarah George Blakey are found in Christ Church Register.—Middlesex Co., Virginia.

John Blakey, son of Churchill Blakey and Sarah George, Middlesex Co., Virginia, Revolutionary Service

John and Jean Jane Blakey (Churchill 1) Issue:

John Blakey (Churchill 1 John 2) m. Oct. 3, 1779 Sarah Cowherd. Issue:

1. James M. Blakey listed in "Members of Legislature from Warren Co., Ky., 1820-22". Bowling Green is county seat of Warren Co., Ky. Blakey Bible states "James M. Blakey went to Mo., was son of John and Sarah Cowherd Blakey." (Must have been known to Blakey family nearby in Logan county for them to have gotten this item into the early records of the family Bible).
2. William Blakey probably the one who m. Polly Gaines 1799 (Green's notes).
3. Yelverton C. (Cowherd) Blakey Sr. (Names and dates from family Bible of Bernice Ewing Borst McReynolds), d. Jan. 5, 1815 m. Oct. 31, 1803 Judith Burton b. Sept. 9, 1788, Home, Va.
e. Yelverton C. Blakey Jr. b. May 24, 1813 d. Apr. 1862 m. Oct. 1, 1836, Sarah Katherine Blakey, his cousin, (dau. of James D. and Margaret Rucker Blakey).
4. Albert Gallatin Blakey, A. G. Blakey of St. Louis, says this Col. A. G. Blakey, his father, went to Bowling Green, Ky., for a short time with his brothers William and Yelverton (this would have been prior to 1815 as Yelverton d. 1815, and from there to Camp Cole, Mo., where he was in business with his brother, Yelverton, Col. Albert was Rep. from Benton Co., Mo., in State Legislature; Minister to Chili during administration of Buchanan (1856-60) and d. at Pleasant Hill, Mo., about 1878. Yelverton later moved to Boonville, Mo. Had dau. Mary who taught school in Kentucky. Brother William later moved to a place near Graham, Texas; here his dau. Mrs. Galliger still lives. This all seems to fit in the picture if they had a brother James M. living in B.C. who had been there long enough to be elected to the Leg. but if your father went to B. G. with his brothers before 1815 he must have been pretty old when you were born. There may have been other children of John and Sarah.

Churchill Blakey (Church 1 John 2) m. Mary Clark, Culpeper Co., Va., 1781. Had son William in Mo. (Blakey Bible; Green's Notes). Issue:

1. William Granville Blakey. (Research of Mrs. Tynes). Lived in Bowling Green, Ky., a short time (probably because his cousin James M. was located there and likely the Wm. mentioned in Blakey Bible as having gone to Mo.) moved to Palmyra, Mo., about 1824, and established a Girl's school. Also had a place of merchandise which he sold to his nephew Marcus Denison Blakey (below). Issue—a. William Jr.; b. Lucinda; c. Harriett; d. Mary Eurith—Mrs. F. M. Archer, Bluefield, West Va.; e. Albert, William G. m. 1811, Orange Co., Va.; Mary (Polly) Branham.
2. James D. Blakey b. 1794 d. Mch. 30, 1847. Buried Madison Co., Va., m. Nov. 30, 1813, Margaret Rucker. Issue: 1. Angus Rucker Blakey, m. Jane Eliza Johnston; 2. Sarah Catherine Blakey m. 1836, her cousin Yelverton C. Blakey Jr.; 3. Marcus Denison Blakey moved to Mo. about 1847. Bought store of his Uncle William G. Blakey (above). 4. Jane Allen Blakey m. Alfred D. Almond.
3. John Churchill Blakey.
4. Beverly Angus Blakey.
5. Janet Blakey.
6. Mary Blakey.

Mrs. Gregory of Alabama, descendant of Frances Blakey Bush, sister of John and Churchill (Churchill 1 John 2), says that her father, Downing Lemuel Smith lived near Jane Allen, Blakey Almond in Standardsville, Green Co., Va., and he says the father of Mary Katherine Smith thought that cousin Jane Allen Blakey Almond made the match between Mary Katherine and Geo. Wm. Fuller. Her father thinks that James D. Blakey, father of Jane Allen Blakey Almond was a nephew of Frances Blakey Bush. As John and Churchill were the only brothers of Frances, James D. must have been son of one of them.

Elizabeth Blakey, another sister of John and Churchill m. 1st ..... Davis, m. 2nd Wm. Blakey (which Wm., is not known).

Robert Blakey: b. Mar. 7, 1720.

Churchill Blakey (a grandson of Churchill Blakey and Sarah George) and son of Robert (E. B. I.)

His will proved in Middlesex County, Virginia, 27 June, 1814.

Records indicate he was the son of Robert Blakey (named in (e), Chart B.I.)

Married: Oct. 24, 1772. Ann Chowning (daughter of William Chowning, and a sister of Capt. Henry Chowning).

Children of Churchill Blakey and Ann Chowning:

(1) William Chowning, born Jan. 30, 1775, married Jan. 28, 1802, to Jane Healy.

(2) Robert, b....., married Oct. 12, 1808, Frances D. Roane (daugh. of Thomas Roane, Middlesex Co., Va. Was Capt. Middlesex Troops in War 1812. Their son John Chowning Blakey, who died in 1859, was the father of the Hon. Thomas E. Blakey of Essex Co., Va. The children of Judge Thomas E. Blakey were: (1) Churchill, who died in infancy. (2) Mary Esther, wife of ..... Gwathmey of King William Co., Virginia. Probably others.

(3) Henry, married Aug. 29, 1802, to Frances O. George.

(4) Ann, married Feb. 5, 1801, to Thomas Kidd.

(5) Elizabeth, b. 1779, married Jan. 30, 1808 to Matthew Major.

(6) Catherine Chowning, married Dec. 4, 1804, to her cousin, Col. John Chowning of Lancaster County, Virginia.

(7) Frances, married ..... Ball, a descendant of George Ball.

(8) Lucy .....

(9) Churchill, died in infancy.

Jane Healy Blakey is mentioned in the will of Churchill Blakey II. She evidently was the widow of their son, William, who is not named in will, but whose birth and marriage are recorded in Parish Register--Christ Church, Middlesex.

The Name Attkisson

Excerpts from letter of Mrs. W. B. Attkisson of Vacaville Solane Co., Calif. in answer to inquiry made by Mrs. Blanche Attkisson Clark concerning the name Atkinson-Attkisson and families using the latter spelling.

"I am a native Californian and know very little of my late husband's people. Have heard that one line only, uses this form of name. My husband's father was Thomas Blakey Attkisson. He had brothers Joseph and William. William was killed while yet a young man—from fall of a horse. There were several sisters. One married a Williams and one a Clark.

Since the names Thomas Blakey Attkisson, brothers Joseph and William, narrow this search, one concludes they must have been descendants of either:

(1) Dr. William Attkisson, who married Catherine S. Oglesby in Jefferson County, Kentucky, Feb. 28, 1816 (Catherine S. Oglesby was a daut. of Joseph and Anne Haden Blakey Oglesby).

or of,

(2) Abner or Hector Attkisson, brothers of above William.

or

(3) From William Oglesby Attkisson (son of Alexander and Jemima Douglas Oglesby Attkisson), born 1815, went west and married. This William's mother (Jemima D. O. Attkisson) was the daughter of Joseph Oglesby and Anne Haden Blakey Oglesby.

All of whom stem from William Attkisson of Virginia; Richard Oglesby of Virginia.

Chart A.

Atkinson. Attkisson, Attkisson.

Alexander Attkisson and descendants said to be the only branch of this family using the name Attkisson. Dr. Rochester Attkisson (a brother) and his descendants use only one "t" in name. Other brothers are thought to have used the original—Atkinson.

---

"From History of Henrico Parish page 228—St. John's Church, Hanover Parish, Richmond, Virginia. Marriages: William Atkinson to a daughter of Richard Parker, Jan. 17, 1716. Thought to have had sons William, Thomas and others." Notes by Mrs. Jennie S. Grayson, Charlottesville, Virginia.

Atkisson - Oglesby Chart II and III A. O.

Dr. William Atkisson III, son of Dr. William Atkisson and Celia Ann Oglesby of Virginia, born ca 1794-5; married Feb. 28, 1816 to Catherine S. Oglesby (daughter of Joseph Oglesby Sr. and Ann Haden Blakey of Virginia) No other record concerning this William Atkisson and family. Record of their marriage: From Marriage Bonds, Jefferson County, Kentucky, and family Bible records.

---

The above William Atkisson III, is the same who witnessed the marriage of his sister Nancy H. Atkisson in Campbell County, Virginia, 6 Nov. 1820, to Joseph Addison Sweeney, with his brother, Hector Atkisson, and his cousin, Edward Baber. The marriage by consent of an elder brother, Michael Atkisson, the parents of Nancy H. being dead at that time.

---

Hector Atkisson, son of Dr. William Atkisson and Celia Ann Oglesby, born in Virginia, went to Alabama, no other record, except as witness to the marriage of his sister, Nancy H. Atkisson to Joseph Addison Sweeney, in Campbell County, Virginia, Nov. 6, 1820.

Atkisson - Oglesby Chart IV A. O.

VI. Susan Evaline Atkisson, daught. of Dr. Rochester and Nancy Harden Bridges Atkisson, born Oct. 15, 1847, died Aug. 12, "in her 50th year"; married ca. 1866 to George B. Ewing. Their children died young.

1. Sophia Ewing, born Feb. 4, 1869 .....
2. Helen Susan Ewing, b. March 5, 1875 .....
3. Phil Bird Ewing, b. Oct. 11, 1879 .....

---

The following notation in the Bible of Dr. Rochester Atkisson: "George Ann Bridges, born April 3, 1833; died Feb. 18, 1858; married March 11, 1856, to Dr. William W. Forcee of Kentucky.

Atkisson - Oglesby Chart V. A. O.

Abner Atkisson—Atkinson (son of Dr. William Atkisson and Celia Ann Oglesby). Left Virginia—established a home in Athens, Georgia. His nephew, Stephen Curtis Atkisson, visited him there sometime in late 1860's or early 1870's—no farther record. It is thought he married Sarah Oglesby, daughter of Joseph Sr. and Ann Haden Blakey-Oglesby ca. 1822-'26. Indications are he used the Scottish-English name, Atkinson. No proof that the following refers to above Abner Atkinson, coincidental, however as to names, dates etc.

From Genealogy of the Fell Family:

Atkinson, Abner (p. 108).

David Fell, b. 1, 13, 1823; d. 8, 9, 1887; married 1, 3, 1850, to Margaret Atkinson; b. Jan. 3, 1830, the daughter of Abner and Sarah Atkinson.

---

From Campbell County, Virginia, Marriage Bonds: "Feb. 24, 1816, Polly Atkisson, d. of William Atkisson, m. Caleb Johnson". No proof, but indications are above "Polly" (Mary) Atkisson was the daughter of the William Atkisson who married Celia Ann Oglesby.

Atkisson - Oglesby Chart VI A. O.

Nancy H. Atkisson (daughter of Dr. William Atkisson and Celia Ann Oglesby of Virginia) born ca. 1803-'4 married 6 Nov. 1820, to Joseph Addison Sweeney (son of Malachi Sweeney and Hannah Oglesby).

From Campbell County Court Records (Virginia) "The clerk of Campbell county court will please issue license for marriage of Joseph Addison Sweeney and Nancy H. Atkisson, and oblige, yours, Michael Atkisson, 6 Nov. 1820. Witnesses: Edward Baber, Hector Atkisson, Wilm Atkisson.

The parents of Nancy H. Atkisson were dead at this time (1820). The Michael Atkisson, who gave consent, is thought to have been an elder half-brother and the same to whom Alexander Atkisson made a deed in June 1811 to property in Virginia.

It is known that the witnesses, Hector and William Atkisson, were brothers of Nancy H. and that Edward Baber was a cousin.

"Nancy H. Atkisson, was the first wife of Joseph Addison Sweeney (her cousin). She and their young children are buried in the Sweeney burial ground, on the old Sweeney place, a few miles east of Jeffersontown, Kentucky, known as the old Tyler plantation."—From letter of Dr. Joseph Addison Sweeney, late of Louisville, Kentucky.

The War Between The States

NORTHERN ARMY

Attkisson, Horace Newland, Capt. 50th Indiana, promoted to Major after Edgefield Junction, Tenn. From a newspaper printed on wallpaper: "The War in Tennessee." Nashville, Aug. 21, 1862. "Yesterday at noon Capt. H. N. Attkisson of the 50th Ind., with twenty men in stockade at Edgefield Junction, was attacked by one thousand guerillas. He repulsed them three times, killing two of Morgan's adjutants, seven privates and wounding eighteen guerillas. He finally drove them off, after a fight of three hours. Col. Mason of the 71st Ohio, with three hundred men and two cannon, in strong entrenchment at Clarksville, surrendered without resistance to the same number of guerillas." G. Ottis Attkisson of Campbellsburg, Indiana, a son of Major H. N. Attkisson, has a sword given his father, inscribed: "Presented Capt. H. N. Attkisson, commanding Co.
