DEDICATED TO THE MEMORY OF
CAPTAIN SAMUEL HENRY EARLY.

“A lively desire of knowing and recording our ancestors so generally prevails that it must depend on the influence of some common principle in the minds of men. We seem to have lived in the persons of our forefathers; it is the labor and reward of vanity to extend the term of this ideal longevity. Our imagination is always active to enlarge the narrow circle in which nature has confined us. We fill up the silent vacancy that precedes our birth by associating ourselves to the authors of our existence.”

EDWARD GIBBON.

PREFACE

The custom of recording genealogies is many centuries old, as witness the generations chronicled in the Scriptures, showing its importance in the estimation of the ancients.

Later nations have also provided for the preservation of family history. There are at the public record office in Chancery Lane, London, twenty-six miles of shelves containing millions upon millions of documents methodically arranged, so that if you have the necessary facts to work on, you may trace family history generation by generation.

Among the people who have observed the custom (which has a bearing upon nation and individual) are the Irish, who incorporated it in their system of government.

In the preface to the 2nd series of his "Irish Pedigrees," O'Hart says that to the end of the 16th century, or as long as the Tanist Law remained in force in Ireland, collections of authentic pedigrees existed; in one or other of which was carefully registered the birth of every member of a sept, poor as well as rich, and by which was determined the portion of land to be allotted for the sustenance of each head of a family and of those dependant on him. These records disappeared when, by the conquest of Ireland, they ceased to be useful for their own special purpose—but before they disappeared they formed the basis of genealogical collections of several Irish historians. Then a time came when it was of importance for the conquerors to know something of the native families. Out of this necessity arose a new value for all genealogical records, and the attention of English officials at the close of the 16th century was directed towards the recovery of such documents. In his "Miscellany of the Celtic Society," O'Donovan says, "Those of the lowest rank among a great tribe traced and retained the whole line of their descent with the same care which, in other nations, was peculiar to the rich and great; for it was from his own genealogy, each man, poor as well as rich, held the cantred in which he was born, the soil of which was occupied by one family or clan, and in which no one lawfully possessed any portion of the soil if he was not of the same race as the chief."

"In Ireland and Scotland each family had its own chief under Tanist law. These chiefs constituted the ancient nobility in sister counties down to the reign of James I."

The history given in the following pages is confined to the family of Early, which settled in the tidewater section of Virginia, and having acquired landed interests remained in the state for two or more generations, moving, as time passed, towards the hill country. The founder of this family was presumably John Early, first recorded in Virginia annals 1661.

To materials collected from American records, I have undertaken to add what data, regarding earlier history there was to be extracted from authentic Irish writings, copied during a visit to Dublin for the purpose of learning the basis for the claim, traditionally made, of Scotch-Irish ancestry. I have not attempted the difficult task of tracing actual connection with the family in the mother country, in order to discover the exact stem from which the venturous branch started forth to secure root in the new world. The Irish works to which I had access were:

1. "Annals of the Kingdom of Ireland," "A celebrated work of Irish history from the earliest period till the year 1676, compiled from ancient Gaelic Mss. in 1631, at the Franciscan monastery in the town of Donegal, by Michael O'Clery, a monk of the order, and by Peregrine and Conary O'Clery and Peregrine O'Duigenan, learned antiquaries. From their high character these annals have, since their publication, served as the basis of all Irish historical writings." Translated by John O'Donovan, barrister-at-law, 1856. Dublin.

In this there is a genealogical Index concerning the three Collas from 322 to 1536, which is amplified in the history; they were the ancestors of various families in Ireland and Scotland.

2. "Irish Pedigrees" begins with what the author calls the "stem" of each pedigree. From the stem, branch many other families, and to the head of each is attached a number, which determines the order of precedence assigned. Under the "stem" O'Brassil (West) comes Fiachra Casan No. 86, son of Colla-da-Crioch and his descendants down to Dallgan No. 96, who had a brother Maolmocheirghe, anglicised Mulmoghery, Early and Eardley—eleven generations from Colla-da-Crioch.

3. "Families in Ireland from the 11th to end of the 16th century," by Philip McDermott, M. D. p. 388. "O'Mulmoghery family of Donegal County. Maolmocheirghe, O'Maolmocheirghe, O'Mulmoghery, O'Maoilmocheirghe, or Ua Maolmocheirghe. This name is still common in the county of Donegal, Ireland, but anglicised Early because the Celtic signifies 'early rising.' Maol signifies the 'chief of the early rising.' The word 'maol,' when not prefixed to the name of a saint, signifies a king or chief, as in the present instance." These volumes were all issued in the 19th century.

From these three sources we discover that there existed a family which bore the name of Maolmocheirghe and dwelt in North Ireland many generations ago; but which, from the 16th century, has been known by the derivative name of Early. It remains to designate the descendants of later generations who came to America, and made their abode in Virginia.

The destruction of court and family records, removal of families to distant and unknown sections, the difficulty of obtaining response from many to whom enquiries have been sent and other obstructive causes, have retarded the publication of this family data, collected from various sources. I do not claim for it entire accuracy of detail, for it has not been possible always to confirm—yet on the other hand to disprove—much information which has been given by members of the connection. My aim is to preserve the knowledge which I have secured and incidentally to furnish clues to those who may desire to obtain lost traces of their branch of the family. The absence of record in various lines is not intended to convey the impression that none exists but that (if extant) I have not been able to obtain it.

One of the greatest deterrents to investigation has been the recurrence of the same given name often perpetuated through generations of large families. In such instances accuracy of date alone may keep one from becoming confused and misled. Even then the not unusual habit of one brother duplicating the name another chose for his children, may halt investigation indefinitely. It has happened that a certain name was a favorite one which became repeated in successive generations—without a distinguishing middle name or the latter omitted. The investigator, in such instance, may start quite confidently upon the family search through a first generation of 'Mary and John'—pursue the genealogical lines to a second generation but gets entangled, lost, in the maze of Marys and Johns discovered increasingly in the extension of lines. To this comes added confusion from the manner of spelling surnames, which seems to have been arbitrarily regulated by the conception of the writer, who leaving slight resemblance to the original, forces a pursuit of the name most similar. There is thus created an ignis fatuus in record hunting and there may come into play more than one family line to be followed, perhaps a final turn present an appearance of a distinctly different one.

These difficulties must largely account for the inaccuracies so often discovered in genealogical publications, the correction of which has to rest with the members interested in setting history right who are able to correct it. In all of the earliest records I found the name Early spelt in such a variety of ways that only its association gave me confidence in its being the one sought. It was written Earle, Early, Earley, Yerle, Yearly, Yerley indifferently through all order, deed and will books, then the similar names of Ely and Ealy would add to the uncertainty. I could not discover whether this was merely another specimen of eccentric spelling or if intended for families bearing those names.

We learn of a second founder of the name who came to America from North Ireland but landed upon the Jersey coast and established his family in Union County, New Jersey. This was William Early, who arrived in the New World about 1742. His son, Thomas, moved from New Jersey to Hampshire County, Virginia, and remained there twenty-five years, then left for Kentucky, where many descendants may be found. Samuel Stockwell Early, the descendant of a branch which later moved to Indiana, left a Mss. account of these settlers, which was published after his death by his nephew, Robert S. Hatcher, under the title of "The Early Family in America." The author believed that the two Virginia founders were brothers, and he had evidently intended to incorporate the history of both in his book, as it mentions several descendants of the earlier emigrant,—but he died before he had completed his manuscript, and it was printed in its unfinished state. There seems little doubt of a relationship, but we find John Early recorded as early as 1661, his son, Thomas, and wife, Elizabeth, in 1705—when their son, Jeremiah, was born, and in 1729 Jeremiah's son, John, was born, so here were four generations before the second settler, William, came to this country.

There is a suggestive coincidence in the fact that the sons in the first generation of both Earlys were named Thomas—which is singular in that there seems to have been but one son in each of these families. We learn from "The Early Family in America" that William came not directly from Ireland, but by way of England—where he married. It seems not improbable that he was not the first generation of his people in England. Previous ones may have started from Ireland, with intent of American destination, but taking England en route, were delayed there longer than it is supposed. A letter from one of the Early family living in Ireland about fifty years ago, contains the statement, "Our family sent at a very early period of our colonial history several members to America," which seems to confirm belief that two or more started about the same time.

To more clearly define family lines it may be well to call attention just here to other peoples in the state who bear a similar name, and in passing to note that as early as 1710 Earlys were living near the North Carolina border. In an account of the boundary line proceedings between Virginia and North Carolina at that date, is found the statement, "The day being clear this operation was taken at the widow Early's about two miles up the Wicocan Creek." (Va. His. Mag.)

An Earley family, which claims German origin, came with the human tide which flowed through Pennsylvania and settled, as barriers against Indian encroachment, along Virginia's west borderland, locating in the fertile valleys, descendants of whom still reside in that section. It will be observed that the last syllable of the name is spelt "ley"—thus marking it distinctively.

Three Early brothers settled in Monroe County; but, I think, in a second generation moved west, descendants of whom are to be found about Evansville, Indiana: they appear to have come from Pennsylvania.

Mr. Richard H. Earle, of Marietta, Georgia, who most untiringly collected material for a history of the Earle family, was of the opinion that the Earles and Earlys were originally one and the same people, and wrote that a number of circumstances led him to this conclusion. He quotes Hutchinson's "History of Dorset, Eng.," and Collinson's "History of Somerset, Eng.," which traces the ancestry of the Earles, saying they derived their name from the lordship of Erleigh, near Reading in Berkshire. This "Erleigh" is now a large town and is spelt Earley. In England all families deriving descent from the lords of Erleigh spelt their names 'Erleigh de Erleigh, Earley, Early, Erley, Erly, Earle, Earl.

"The family is of remote Roman origin: came from France and then Normandy with William the Conqueror, Johannes de Erleigh being a baron in France prior to joining William's standard. His French name was different from the one assumed when he became Lord of Erleigh."

Mr. Earle found Earles or Earls in the Southern States "whose ancestors came from Ireland, though it is pretty certain that their forbears resided in England before going to Ireland."

"The North Carolina Earls came from Bandon, Ireland."

"The part of Northumberland County, Virginia, in which my ancestors settled was an Irish community, which is proved by the name of the village they founded, Kinsale"—(the name of a town in Southern Ireland)—"on the Wicomoco river and a stream called Earle's Creek." Bandon is about twenty miles distant from Cork, Ireland, and Kinsale twenty miles from Bandon. Here are shown two settlements of people in different states, originally within twenty miles of each other in Ireland, who brought the names of Irish towns with them, rather than others, yet both are presumed to have been of English origin, and the claim of this (American) Kinsale community to Irish heritage is discredited.

I do not know whether Mr. Earle was familiar with the Irish historical writings of which Mr. Stockwell Early made a study, but believe that, if he had been, some of his inferences would have been different. He died before he had completed the investigations he had started for tracing his lineage, leaving a large collection of data, in the zealous pursuit of his theory of the Earle, Early and Yeardley relationship, one argument in favor of which was the fact that in the records of Gov. Yeardley's time he is sometimes given that name and at others the name of Earley: another is the intimate association of Sir Walter, Christopher and Martin Earle with Sir George Yeardley in the Virginia company of London.

As trustworthy an authority as Bishop John Early (5th generation from John Early, the first) is given for the statement that a relative of his was a first Virginia governor, referring, it is presumed, to Yeardley.

Now that many individuals are turning attention to genealogical investigation, and old court records are being brought to light, the unsettled problems which confuse research may at a day not far distant be solved. We must leave disputed points to the solution of later historians.

Turning to the "Early Family in America," we find that "the people known by the surname of Early, especially in the states of the South, are descended from an Irish ancestry whose habitat in the Isle of Saints lay in the ancient pentarchate of Ulster. Their cognomen is a translation into English of the old Hibernian designation O'Maolmocheirghe. This formidable appellative was the Gaelic title of one of the tribes composing the Clan Colla of Orgialla and was derived from the name of the progenitor of the tribe, Maolmocheirghe, a descendant in the 11th generation from Colla-da-Crioch, the founder and first sovereign of the provincial realm of Ulster under its Heremonian line of kings."

The author reverts back to the 4th century and repeats ancient Irish history in telling of the success of three war-like brothers, called the three Collas who wrested from the original possessors a great part of the province of Ulster. This they divided among themselves, but descendants of two of the brothers were deprived by a great warrior-king, Niall of the Nine Hostages, of their share of spoil. Descendants of the third brother, da-Crioch, retained their ancestors' portion and authority over it, as titular kings of Ulster, down to their submission to the crown of England in the 12th century.

"From Fiachra-Casan, one of the younger sons of Colla-da-Crioch, sprang the sept of O'Maolmocheirghe, which sustained the family reputation for piety." (There follows the list from "Annals of the Four Masters" of those who attained very high preferments for their service to the church, ancient representatives of O'Maolmocheirghe.) "Their race, we are told, is still numerous in the land of their ancestors but their surname has for centuries been anglicised as Early. This transformation was a consequence of the legislation of the English invaders of Ireland, who not only dispossessed the conquered natives of their lands and political rights, but deprived them also of their characteristic appellations. Many penal acts of Parliament were passed during the reigns of the Henrys and Edwards, which compelled the Irish to adopt English surnames together with the English language, dress, manners and customs wherever their authority prevailed. Dr. John O'Donovan, a celebrated scholar, complains of this policy of denationalizing the distinctive Irish designations, the effect of which has been greatly to obscure the race history and to render it difficult to determine to what stock many families belong. He describes the methods of altering names as having been either by paring the originals down or by translating them. By the second process English equivalents in meaning supplanted the Galic titles; thus the ancient name O'Maolmocheirghe was rendered 'Early' because 'moch eirghe' meant early to rise. Christian or given names also became Anglicised, such as Seagan, Tamas and Diarmuid of the Irish being replaced by the English John, Thomas and Jeremiah. Descendants of this family bearing the Anglican version of their name are distributed throughout several counties of Northern Ireland, but are gathered in greater numbers in the highlands of Donegal, whither they were driven by the evicting policy of the Anglo-Irish government. The latter appropriated all generous soils, such as characterized the possessions of Colla-da-Crioch's posterity to the use of its own adherents, and compelled the withdrawal of the nations into less fertile districts." (Ancient Tyrconnel—<sup>T</sup>ir-Connel or Donegal county, Ulster Province, was formed into the county Donegal by the Lord Deputy, Sir John Perrott, in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, called Donegal from its chief town. Donegal, in Irish, Dun-nan-Gall signifies the "Fortress of the Foreigners," and got its name, it is said, from a fortress erected there by the Danes. This ancient territory was called "Tir-Conaill," or the county of Conall, from Conall Gulbin, son of Niall, of the Nine Hostages.)

With the claim that they were "forfeiting proprietors," Irish land-owners were ousted from their holdings and turned adrift to find homes where they might obtain them. In the history of the "Twelve Livery Companies of London" there is given an account of the "Plantation of Ulster, six counties in Ulster confiscated in the reign of James I. in consequence of their adherence to Ulster chiefs. James by his letters patent dated March 29, 1613, in the 11th year of his reign, incorporated the Irish society by the name of the 'Governors and Assistants of the New Plantation in Ulster, within the realm of England.' A new county was thereby erected, which, uniting the old name of Derry with its new masters, the corporations and companies of London, is now called London-Derry. This new settlement was mapped and divided by the Irish society as nearly as could be into twelve parts and the twelve companies who had equally contributed to the raising of the £60,000 drew lots for their several shares."

In "The Genesis of America," Alexander Brown, alluding to the abatement of interest at that time in the American colonization, says, "very many merchants of London as individuals continued their interest in the American enterprise but the companies as corporate bodies soon transferred their interests in the far distant American plantation, and devoted themselves to those lands in Ireland."

Sufficient cause we find then for the immigration of those who became the victims of English speculation to America, the land which had been a loadstar to their English neighbors, adventurers who were less precariously circumstanced.

Mr. Stockwell Early not only read Irish history, he travelled through Ireland, and in mingling with the native people obtained much traditionary lore not to be found in books. He begins his narrative at the starting point of his ancestor: "from the valley of the Owenee" (an angler's stream, which flows towards the west coast, passing between Ardara and Glenties and empties into Loughros, More Bay), in the parish of Inniskell, a wild and picturesque but by no means productive region of Tyrconnel (Donegal) two of the race set out to seek a more promising abode in America."

Having located these emigrants in their Irish homeland, he follows them to their temporary home in England, across the ocean to their landing in New Jersey; to the change of a home in Virginia; thence after a residence of twenty-five years, to Kentucky, where they became more firmly established. None of this branch of Earlys remained in Virginia, their descendants are to be found largely in Indiana and Ohio: therefore we find no records of them in this state.

The introductory portion of Mr. Early's history, dealing as it does with early and quaint Irish records, is very interesting even to one indifferent to genealogical topics; as a family book, giving benefit of his great research, it is most valuable to the descendants of Wm. Early, the founder.

We turn to the Virginian, John Early, who is, with good reason, presumed to have been the father of Thomas Early, hence the ancestor of those listed in the following pages.

The coat of arms used by the American branch of the Early family as taken from Burke in the General Armory, is as follows:

"Arms: Gules a chevron between three birds argent.

"Crest: A dexter arm, erect perpendicular, the hand holding a ring, gem or stone, gules.

"Motto: Virgilan et tenex."

CHAPTER I.

---

JOHN EARLY, OF YORK COUNTY, VA.

---

THOMAS EARLY, OF MIDDLESEX COUNTY, VA.

---

JEREMIAH EARLY, SENIOR, OF CULPEPER COUNTY, VA.

---

The fact that the name of John Early is found among the records of the counties along the eastern shore as early as 1661 induces the belief that this Early came directly to Virginia from the mother country. The parish records prove that forty years later, Thomas Early and family were living in the same locality as that in which John, the emigrant, settled. Little has been discovered concerning either John or Thomas, due in a measure to the destruction of old records, the lapse of time, and the uncertainty as to where search should be made. The parish register of Christ Church, Middlesex county, gives the names of Thomas Early and his wife, Elizabeth;

- the birth of their son, Jeremiah, in 1705;
- the death and burial of Elizabeth Early in 1716;
- the marriage of Jeremiah Early and Elizabeth Buford in 1728;
- the birth, and baptism, of their son, John, in 1729.

The tradition of the drowning at sea of Thomas Early, before the death of his wife, has long been held by his family: this left Jeremiah orphaned at eleven years of age. No evidence has been found to prove that the first John and Thomas left only one son each, but in the absence of record to the contrary it may be considered reasonable to assume that such was the case. At the same time it is proper to state that there are court papers of a later date, concerning families bearing the name, who seem to have followed in the steps of the Jeremiah branch, as well as living people who have similar given names, which inclines me to suspect that there existed and exists another line descended from John and Thomas, and the publication of the complete county records of Virginia, already prepared, may reveal its history. These pages only undertake to chronicle the descendants of Jeremiah Early, Sr.

The Buford family were friends and neighbors of Thomas and Elizabeth Early in Middlesex county; upon the deaths of Mr. and Mrs. Early, their son, Jeremiah, fell under the guardianship of Thomas Buford: at the age of 23 years the marriage of Jeremiah to his dau. Elizabeth (aged 19 years) occurred: they continued to reside in Lancaster five or six years longer. It will be remarked that the fathers of both of this couple bore the name of Thomas, yet in naming their eldest son, they chose "John," which seems to indicate that he was the grandson of John Early, the emigrant: at least one other son, Jeremiah (b. 1730) was born before they moved from Middlesex.

THE ALLIED FAMILIES OF BUFORD AND PARROTT

The name Beaufort, or as it came to America, Beauford—is French, and as a family name, rare, being essentially a place name, meaning "a beautiful fort or castle," it grew into a family name during the eleventh and twelfth centuries, from the ownership of such places, the lords or masters being spoken of as "de Beaufort" of, or belonging to, the beautiful castle.

The given names of both the English and American families—such as John, Thomas, William, Richard and Robert are Norman, and came to England with the North men. By referring to old English wills and deeds, it will be seen that the progenitors of the Bufords in America were in England long before John of Gaunt adopted the name of Beaufort for his children or the French Huguenots had emigrated.

The first English Beauforts came over with the Conqueror, and got their names in the tenth century from the castle of Beaufort in Namur, Belgium. If they brought any titles with them none have survived in England, and they became knights, dignitaries of the church, merchants, husbandmen, yeomen and men of position in every walk of life. It is not possible now to connect the American family immediately with the English Buffords, yet there is no doubt that they are the same, and the search being made for documentary proof will probably establish the fact and show which Richard or John was the emigrant and progenitor of the family in America.

Many members of the family in the United States still spell the name Beauford, never having allowed the change to Buford, which gradually came to be the accepted form. It is readily seen how the change to Bufford would come about in England when one remembers that few people in the 10th, 11th, and even down to the 13th century could read or write, and that literary attainments were confined chiefly to the clergy, lawyers, clerks, etc. It was impossible to convey to a clerk any way of spelling a name other than phonetically and he wrote what seemed to him correct.

Richard Beauford emigrated from Gravesend, England, in the ship Elizabeth, August 1, 1635. Was examined by a minister of the church of England as to loyalty to the king, took the proscribed oath of allegiance, etc., age eighteen years (Hotten's Lists.) He was therefore born between 1617-18. There is no other Buford, Beaufort or Beauford found in any list of emigrants.

In the deed book of Lancaster Court House under date April 15, 1656, "John Vause assigned Richard Beauford 300 acres of land lying on the south side of the Rappahannock river, up in the freshes bounding on the land of Thomas Hawkins, etc."

Nothing else relating to Richard Beauford is found in any record.

The name of Lancaster first appears in the list of counties represented in the House of Burgesses, April, 1652. A court held August 7, 1654, divided the county of Lancaster into two parishes, the lower included the counties of Lancaster and Middlesex; and the upper, the counties of Essex and Richmond, and the territory extending indefinitely to the westward on both sides of the Rappahannock river.

That Richard Beauford's family record is not given is accounted for by the fact that the register of Christ Church is not begun until 1653. He is supposed to be the progenitor of the Bufords—the name which is spelled seven ways in old court records—and the descent is traced through John Beauford of Christ Church, Middlesex County, Virginia. Buford (the contraction of Beauford) seems to have been evolved in America, by a gradual process of reducing to the easiest and simplest spelling, in the course of a hundred years, and was adopted after the Revolution.

The sixth entry in the Middlesex register is the marriage of John Blueford (Buford) and Elizabeth Parrott, April 11, 1662: this date would preclude any thought of his having been born in Middlesex county, as the "first male child of English parents, Richard Parrott, Jr., was born there February 24, 1650."

The year after the marriage of John Buford, March 17, 1663, he received, together with Francis Broughton, 300 acres of land upon the south side of the Rappahannock river, Lancaster county, adjoining the land of Richard Lewis, said land being due for the transportation of six persons. John Buford d. 1722. ("Buford Family.")

THE PARROTT FAMILY

This name is traced from England to Barbadoes and Virginia. Richard Parrott was one of the first settlers of Lancaster County: the one record so far secured of his wife is her name, Margaret. They were probably married and their daughter, Elizabeth, born, before they arrived in Virginia, but were settled in Lancaster county as early as 1649; and it was their son, Richard, who was recorded as the first male child "begott and borne on Rappahannock river of English parents." Richard Parrott emigrant, was a vestryman of Christ Church; a commissioner of Lancaster county in 1656; elected High Sheriff June 5, 1657; senior justice of Middlesex county court from 1673 until his death.

In "Old Families and Churches," Bishop Meade states that Richard Parrott was appealed to while in England, on one of his visits, to bring out a minister for the church.

His plantations were in Middlesex county: one of them of 1000 acres extent was on the north side of the Pyankatank river. He d. Nov. 11, 1686; his wife d. Jan. 30, 1687. Their dau. Elizabeth, b. 1645, m. 1662 John Buford (written Blueford in register).

THE FAMILY OF JEREMIAH EARLY, SR., OF CULPEPER COUNTY, VA.,

embraces the descendants of his nine children, some of whom settled in southern and south-western states, but many remained in Virginia, particularly those of the eldest branches. All of Jeremiah's children left large families, which it has been necessary to trace through journeyings and intermarriages during the settlement in America of two and a half centuries. Knowledge of those who have taken root in Virginia has involved considerable investigation and delay; the attainment of accurate data concerning those who drifted into the states of Georgia, Kentucky and Tennessee and the later generations in Missouri, Mississippi and Alabama and Texas, has been more tedious and often discouraging. Little wonder if inaccuracies may be discovered in a family history calling for especial vigilance against delusive tradition and uncertain memories; but while members of the various branches have contributed items concerning their particular connection (which have been used in the following pages) the main features of this genealogical register have been copied from authentic records.

An act was passed by the Virginia House of Burgesses in 1720 authorizing the formation of a new county to be composed from territory constituting the then counties of Essex, King and Queen, and King William: the new county, whose boundaries "extended westward to the river beyond the high mountains"—(the Shenandoah)—received the name Spotsylvania, in honor of Alexander Spotswood, governor of the colony of Virginia. By the terms of the act creating it—which became operative the first day of May, 1721, it was made one parish, called St. George. In the year 1734 this parish was divided into St. George's and St. Mark's; the latter parish lying in the upper portion of the county, became in the year 1734 the county of Orange, and contained all that is now Orange, Culpeper, Madison and Rappahannock counties. Later St.

George's parish was subdivided to form a new parish within the bounds of Spotsylvania, known as Berkeley. The seat of justice of Spotsylvania County was first Germania, the residence of the governor, but by Act of Assembly, passed in 1732, it was removed to Fredericksburg. The town of Fredericksburg, named in honor of Prince Frederick, son of George II, was founded in 1727, from which time the two records were kept separate and distinct. After one or two other removals, the court was finally settled at its present site Spotsylvania C. H. The record books of the county have suffered from lack of care by early custodians, removal and vandalism during war: during the period of 1861-65 they were only preserved by being boxed and buried, yet though Will Book "C" (from 1759 to 1761) was destroyed by Federal soldiers, no records are lost as the missing ones are found in Book B. Many instances are found in which the surname in one document was written in three or four different ways. ("Va. Co. Records.")

In 1734 Jeremiah Early purchased land in the county of Orange (which about this time was cut off from Spotsylvania). Together with some of the Buford connection he moved to that part of Orange which fourteen years later was taken to form Culpeper: his plantation lay towards "the Great Mountains" and he became registered as "Jeremiah Early, planter:" a decade after his death the part of the country in which his estate lay again changed its county name to Madison, and his family became known as the "Earlys of Madison," a designation which has followed them into other states.

He had a family of nine children; six sons, to whom he gave names beginning with the letter "J" (a fancy followed by later generations) and three daughters; these latter married in Virginia, but moved with their families to Kentucky. Of his sons, three, Jeremiah, Joshua and Jacob left Culpeper and settled in Bedford, where all three married: John settled in Orange, Joseph and Joel remained in Culpeper (later Madison). In 1782 Jacob moved from Bedford county, Va., to Georgia, the first of his name to leave the state. In 1791 Joel, having settled his father's estate, went with his family also to Georgia: at this time there was a great impetus given to emigration into that state by the opening of new lands.

Jeremiah Early, Sr., became a large landholder, which enabled him to establish each child comfortably during his lifetime; at his death in 1787 he still had large property interests. He divided his personal estate into nine portions; impartially distributing it among the families of his nine children. His wife and three sons, John, Joseph and Jeremiah, had died; Joel, the youngest son, was the only one who remained near him: to him he devised his manor place and all the lands adjoining, and made him his executor; to Jane Early, the widow of his son, Joseph, he lent the tract upon which she lived during her widowhood, which at her death, together with two other tracts, was to revert to the children of Joseph: his will was exhibited for record on Feb. 19, 1787.

In 1735 Jeremiah Early bought land in Orange county of Robert Luney.

In 1739 Jeremiah Early, of St. Mark's parish, Orange Co., bought 120 acres, on north side of Stanton river, of Thomas Stanton.

In 1740 an order was given for viewing the most convenient way for an outlet from Isaac Smith's plantation through the land of Jeremiah Early with the least prejudice to Early's plantation.

Jer'h Early was a grand juryman at a court held May 28, 1741.

In 1746 Jer'h Early, of Orange County, bought more land on the south side of Stanton river of Thomas Stanton.

In 1747 Jer'h Early was appointed overseer of the road from Garth's ford to the plantation of Henry Downs in the place of Michael Pearson (discharged), the gang formerly under Pearson to attend and obey the instructions of Early in clearing and keeping the road in repair. March 14, 1749, Jer'h Early was witness to a deed bet. Stanton and Pearson.

May 18, 1749. First county court of Culpeper was held at Robert Coleman's (who gave the 27 acres on which Fairfax (Culpeper) was laid off in 1759).

In 1752 Jer'h Early, of Culpeper County, bought 250 acres (situate formerly in Orange, now in Culpeper, on south side of Stanton river) from Adam Banks, of King George county.

In Nov. 1753, Jer'h Early bought another tract of Thos. Stauton, 131 acres of same patent as others: his son John was a witness to this deed. In 1754 the suit of Jer'h Early agst Wm. Jackson, running from 1747 to '54, was dismissed, defendant paying costs.

In Jan'y, 1755, Jer'h Early, of Bromfield parish, Culpeper, obtained a grant of 240 acres on the great branch of the Rappahannock, from the Northern Neck or Fairfax Grants. In April of same year he bought of Michael Holt 400 acres: and at the same time 100 acres, granted by patent to John Rucker. This same month and year he sold 200 acres in Augusta Co. to Thomas Kirtley, Jr.: witnesses to deed, his sons, John and Jeremiah Early.

In 1757 Jer'h Early obtained a grant for 40 acres in Augusta Co., between Elk Run and Hawk's Bill, adjoining his own land.

In 1759 Jer'h Early, Sr., of Culpeper Co., bought of John Bostick, of Cumberland Co., 409 acres lying on both sides of Butteruns' branch, Bedford Co.

In 1763 Jer'h Early, Sr., of Culpeper, bought of Rd. Randolph's exors 100 acres on west branch of Elk Creek, Bedford Co.: same year bought of his son, Jer'h Early, Jr., of Bedford, 300 acres lying on both sides of Elk Creek, Bedford Co.

In 1764 Jer'h Early and wife Elizabeth conveyed a tract of 400 acres on Elk Run, Augusta county, to Wm. Smith: same year Jer'h Early bought of Nath. and Eliz'h Dickerson, of Spotsylvania Co., 100 acres in Bromfield parish, Culpeper.

In 1765 Jer'h Early bought of Isaac and Margaret Smith 86 acres lying in Culpeper Co.

In 1770 Jer'h Early received a grant of 29 acres from the Fairfax or Northern Neck grants.

The will of Jeremiah Early, written Jan'y 16, 1786, was not exhibited for record till Feb. 19, 1787, though his personality was appraised Feb. 26, 1786, showing that he had died at the ripe age of 82 years, soon after writing his will.

Jeremiah Early, Sr. (Thomas Early, John Early) m. 1728 Elizabeth, the dau. of Thomas and Elizabeth Buford, all of Middlesex county, moved to Orange Co. about the year 1734-5; d. 1786-7.

CHAPTER II.

ELDEST BRANCH OF THE FAMILY OF EARLY

---

FAMILY OF JOHN EARLY

Through the descendants of his eldest son, James, the family of John Early (2nd of that name), of Orange County, represents the oldest branch of the Early family which settled in Eastern Virginia. These descendants have resided in Orange, Greene, Madison and Albemarle counties; some few of later generations have moved south and southwest.

John Early, eldest son of Jeremiah Early and his wife, Elizabeth Buford, was born in 1729 in the parish of Christ Church, Middlesex Co., Va., was reared in Culpeper Co. and settled in Orange Co. In his father's will he is only included as one of nine children in the distribution of the personal estate, having before received his portion of land. He married Theodocia, dau. of John White, emigrant, and his wife, Ann Wisdom, of King and Queen County, Va., the granddaughter of Conyers and Mary White of Leicestershire, Eng. In his history of Albemarle county the Rev. Edgar Woods says "Conyers White moved to Albemarle from Orange county in 1776 and purchased more than 1500 acres of land on Buck mountain creek:" this must have been a brother of Mrs. John Early and she may have been connected with her husband's family through the marriage of his aunt, Sarah Buford (younger sister of his mother) to a Mr. Wisdom. Mrs. Theo. W. Early d. in 1817, having outlived her husband many years, and four of her children. The will of John Early, recorded in Orange county in 1774 (the year of his death), mentions his wife and six children, three sons and three daughters, but only one son and two daughters received portions in the division of the estate at its settlement in 1787, a daughter and two sons presumably having died after their father's death, unmarried: his brother, Joseph, who lived in Madison county, and brother-in-law, Thomas White, were appointed, together with Wm. Bell, executors.

CHAPTER III.

SECOND BRANCH OF THE FAMILY OF EARLY

---

FAMILY OF COL. JEREMIAH EARLY, OF BEDFORD COUNTY

Jeremiah Early (2nd of the name) b. 1730 was the second son of Jeremiah and Elizabeth (Buford) Early of Culpeper County: he is several times recorded as a witness to deeds of sale to and from his father while he lived in the same county. During the French and Indian wars he served as a lieutenant from the Augusta Military District: moved to Bedford with his relatives, James, William and Henry Buford, the sons of John Buford, also of Culpeper. Bedford was formed in 1753 from Lunenburg: its boundaries extended north and south by James and Staunton rivers, with the Blue Ridge Mountains (at their greatest height on the Peaks of Otter) crossing the horizon right and left. The county was still in an unformed state when Jeremiah Early arrived there.

In 1755 he purchased from John Gibson, of Bedford, 200 acres of land lying in Russell parish and in the deed of transfer is recorded as "Jeremiah Early of Augusta county." New London, previous to 1753 was the county seat of Lunenburg, but then became county seat for Bedford. Here in May 1756 Jeremiah Early was foreman of a grand jury of inquest: in June of the same year he was a member of a jury formed of the most capable free-holders: in 1757 he received an order of court for "laying the Court House flores, sealing the House and making a Barr" for which he was allowed 3,743 lbs. of tobacco.

In 1758 he purchased from William Bryan, of Albemarle, 200 acres on both sides of Elk creek in Bedford: also a parcel of land lying on the north side of the road to Warwick, from the trustees of Bedford Co., upon which he agreed to build within one year. At this time he was appointed overseer of the road (there was but one county road): received his commission as a justice of the peace, which office he held to the end of his life: he had remained in the militia and this year was promoted from lieutenant to captain of the Bedford company.

In 1759 he was commissioned to procure weights and measures for Bedford Co., and for this service was paid 4,500 lbs. of tobacco: at this time he sold a lot in New London upon which he had built: together with Benjamin Howard was paid 8,000 lbs. of tobacco towards the building of a prison for Bedford: bought from the executors of Richard Randolph 304 acres (part of a patent of 1,000 acres) on both sides of Erwin's creek, a fork of Otter.

In 1760 he was ordered to procure 2 locks for the Court House (for which he was allowed 64 lbs. of tobacco): was appointed to take the list of tithes.

In November 1761 Col. Wm. Callaway made a free gift of 100 acres of land adjoining the Court House at New London; Jeremiah Early, Richard and James Callaway were among the trustees appointed. Jeremiah Early was appointed a justice in the court of Chancery. This year he bought of Edward Watts 102 acres on Elk creek: sold to John Burks 304 acres on both sides of Otter river: bought of George Walton, of Lunenburg County, 241 acres of Bedford land: bought one half acre lot (in partnership with Joshua Early) in New London, upon which they built a store house: received 90 lbs. of tobacco for mending the prison. In 1762 Jeremiah Early, William Irvine and Jacob Anderson were appointed to view the way for a road to his (Early's) place: Early was appointed to list tithes for the year: to lay prison bounds: to build stocks and pillory: repair the Court House and clerk's office: appointed in 1763 to employ some person to repair the prison and have three pairs of handcuffs made for county use. This year he bought of Joshua Early 100 acres on the branches of Elk creek: sold to Jeremiah, Sr., (his father) of Culpeper county 300 acres on both sides of Elk creek: bought of Joseph Gibson 200 acres on the south side of Elk creek: also 260 acres beginning at Callaway and Walton's corner: was appointed to list tithes from Hairston's precinct up all the waters of James river.

In 1764, as captain of a company of militia, took oath to His Majesty, etc: sold to Jas. Callaway 200 acres on the south side of Elk creek: bought of Callaway 490 acres on the north side of Staunton river: bought of James Buford 558 acres on the north side of Burton's branch: was appointed (with two other justices) to view the way for two new roads from New London: appointed to take charge of the county standards he had procured: produced a certificate for 885 lbs. of gross hemp raised on his land. In 1765 sold to Josias Cofer 373 acres on the south side of Elk creek: received 5,169 lbs. of tobacco for supplying the county standards.

In 1769 received a grant of 275 acres of land on the north side of Goose creek adjoining his place: received a second grant of 270 acres.

In 1770 erected a mill at the mouth of Goose creek: bought of George Phillips 100 acres on the north side of Goose creek. In 1772 was appointed High Sheriff of Bedford county.

His first wife (Sarah Anderson, to whom he was m. 1750) died about 1770; he married (in 1773) 2nd, Mary Stith, sister of Richard Stith, county surveyor.

In 1775-6 was "transacting public business" with Col. William Cabell (chairman of the Amherst committee): on March 2nd, 1776, received of Col. Cabell £72 by John Talbot's order for the recruiting service of Bedford.

On March 23rd, 1778, he was commissioned lieutenant-colonel of militia: recommended to the Governor for the office of colonel, received his commission and qualified Dec. 28, 1778.

An act for disposing of the glebe of Russell parish, Bedford county, in 1779, was vested in Jeremiah Early, Rich'd Stith, Wm. Leftwich, Jas. Callaway and James Quarles, gentlemen in trust: the money to be laid out in a more convenient glebe.

Jeremiah Early's will written July 29, 1779, witnessed by Harry Innes, Joseph Toler and Wm. Bates was proved September 27th and ordered recorded: Col. James Callaway, son-in-law and Joseph Early, his son, appointed executors, acknowledged their bonds in the sum of £200,000 each, for faithful administration of decedent's estate. The will bequeathed, to his wife, the plantation on which he lived with such slaves, stocks, furnishings, etc., as was necessary for her maintenance, also his riding chair and two horses: all of which after the death of his wife, was to be divided between his children Elizabeth Callaway, Jenny, Jeffrey, Sarah and Abner Early. To his son Jacobus was given the land on which he (Jacobus) lived, with 500 acres together on Sycamore creek in Pittsylvania County: to sons Joseph, John and Jubal, the Washington Iron Works in Henry county, also bar iron, certain slaves and stock. To son Jeffrey a tract on Goose creek and Staunton river. To son Abner the plantation lent his wife during her lifetime. To daug. Judith Callaway, Jenny and Sarah Early and son Jeremiah money and furnishings. The slaves not disposed of were to be divided between certain children. If Jeremiah did not claim his legacy within three years' time it was to be divided equally between Jeffrey and Abner. Col. Early left a very large personalty in slaves, stock, bonds, etc. His sons all moved from Bedford; the lands of Jacobus and Abner being cut off into Campbell at the formation of that county: Jacobus, late in life, moved to Roanoke county. The property of Joseph, John and Jubal lay in Henry county where Joseph died young and unmarried; John and Jubal settled in Franklin County; Jeremiah went, at an early age, to Surry County, North Carolina: Jeffrey followed the fortune seekers to Wilkes county, Georgia. Jenny is the only one of four daughters of whom no record is found; it is said that she married into the Hairston connection. Joseph Early d. 1780, the settlement of his father's estate fell to Col. Jas. Callaway, who in 1782 proved that Jer'h Early's estate had furnished 1,425 lbs. of beef to sundry continental troops at New London in 1781.

(In 1780 the states were called upon to furnish in lieu of money, determinate quantities of beef, pork, flour, etc., for the use of the army, called a tax in kind, but this being difficult of execution was soon abandoned. Congress then issued a new species of paper money, guaranteed by the states. These new bills were to be redeemed within six years and in specie, but from the partial compliance of the states, the new paper answered little purpose. The several expedients proposed by Congress for raising supplies having failed a crisis followed in 1781.)

1112—11. Abner b. 1768 m. Docia Anderson.

Capt. Jacobus Early (Col. Jeremiah Early, Jeremiah Early, Sr., Thomas Early, John Early) b. 1750 m. Sarah Wall: residence Campbell county, Va.

In 1779 Col. Jeremiah Early devised to his "son, Jacobus, the land whereon he now lives beginning at Goose creek to the mouth of William's branch (the new survey made on Leftwich's line) together with all the lands purchased of Thorp and Buford; also 500 acres on Sycamore creek in the county of Pittsylvania," (the county formed in 1770 from Halifax).

In 1781 Jacobus Early furnished the deputy commissary of prisoners with two and a half bushels of meal: also furnished "the commissary Law" with 600 lbs. of beef for the army. Being recommended this year to the governor as a proper person to execute the office of captain of militia, was commissioned in 1782 as the captain of the Campbell county militia: he had already served as captain of a Bedford company, but the latter had claimed a discharge after six weeks enrollment from the time of marching out of the county, with the plea that the county lieutenant had promised that they should not be compelled to serve longer than six weeks.

In the year 1782 by act of Assembly, Campbell county was formed from Bedford: the land of Jacobus Early was within the limits of the new county. In 1782-3-4 orders were issued for the numbering of souls and the listing of tithes and taxable property in the bounds of Capt. Jacobus Early's company. In 1792 Jacobus bought 115 acres in Campbell (beginning at a line patented by Henry Snow to an oak on Watery Branch) of Mark and Eliz'h Snow, then in Wilkes County, Ga., power of atty, from Wilkes being produced entitled "An act to enable persons living in other countries to dispose of their estates in this commonwealth with more ease and convenience."

In 1793 Jacobus sold to John Lee 520 acres on both sides of Goose creek, north side of Staunton river by Callaway's corner. This was the land upon which he resided and it lay at the junction of Goose creek and Staunton river, where the town of Leesville is situated. Upon the purchase of the tract of land, his dwelling-house (then called a mansion) became the home of Lee. In the year 1818 there was a boom for building towns along the water courses, supposed to be navigable for batteaux, Staunton river being one of the streams. John Lee conceived the idea of locating a town on his land to be called "Leesville," surveyed and laid off in half acre lots 100 acres of which he sold in July 1818 enough to pay him $20,000, reserving the homestead and lots attached, then stopped further sales. Lee died in 1819 and the old mansion became the property of his son Richard, who resided in it until 1826. No one purchasing the lots put improvements on them and no business was attempted until Stephen Terry rented the old Early residence in the year 1826 and converted it into a store house: he also opened a tobacco factory in the town,—many industries were started by others. About 1830 Terry became dissipated and began to neglect his business and it closed in 1831. Jacobus Early sold the 500 acres on Sycamore creek, Pittsylvania Co., willed him by his father, to Edward Bybee in 1794, and appears to have moved then from Campbell. In 1802 he was given a deed of trust by Patton Anderson, of Botetourt Co., for entering as security on his bond. In 1893 he bought of Sam'l G. Adams two lots, with all appurtenances thereon, in the town of Antwerp, Botetourt Co. He moved to the part of Montgomery which was cut off to form Roanoke county: there he d. in 1815, but left no will; his son, Abner was appointed administrator.

Carr, who was a chaplain in the Rev'y Army, and who established the first Methodist church east of the Alleghany Mountains. The part of the county in which Jer'h E. Goodwin was born was known as Montgomery (divided later to form Roanoke Co.): he was educated at Emory and Henry College; was a member of the Methodist church and for 52 years in the ministry. When he began to preach, church buildings were scarce and religious services were often held in private residences: Wm. Carr's home was thus used and while travelling the Giles county circuit, the Rev. Goodwin met and married his wife. After his marriage he located at Bluestone, Tazewell Co.; at end of three years moved to Lee Co. where he remained for two years; in 1857 went to Kentucky—was one of the first settlers in Pulaski Co., making his home in the town of Science Hill: there he lived till his death in 1902 at the age of 81 years: his wife also died at Science Hill; both are buried in the Goodwin cemetery-lot at Somerset, Ky.

Elizabeth Early (Col. Jer'h Early, Jer'h Early, Sr., Thos. Early, John Early) b. 1759 m. (2nd wife) 1777 Col. James Callaway (b. 1736) son of Col. Wm. Callaway and his 1st wife, Eliz'h Tilly. James Callaway served in the French and Indian wars: was county lieutenant of Bedford during the Revolution: commanded a Va. Reg. at the battle of King's Mountain: owned and operated the Washington Iron Works in partnership with his father-in-law, Col. Jeremiah Early. Elizabeth E. Callaway d. 1796 and Col. Jas. Callaway m. a 3rd time: he d. 1809 in New London (then cut off into Campbell) on the border line of Bedford.

Wm. Callaway b. 1714 was the son of a Welsh emigrant: patented 15,000 acres of land in Lunenburg, Brunswick, Bedford and Halifax counties. In 1761 gave 100 acres adjoining the Court House in Bedford for the establishment of a town to be called New London: was the first county lieutenant of Bedford, his son James succeeding him. This officer ranked as colonel, was a large landed proprietor, governed the county and upon him rested the responsibility of a faithful execution of the laws: he could call out the militia upon demand and account to the governor and his council for his conduct; was commander-in-chief of all county affairs.

The military system in use in Virginia (as embodied in the code prescribed by George III at the close of the French and Indian war) provided that in each county there should be a chief military officer known as the county-lieutenant; below him in rank there was a colonel, lieut.-colonel and major; a regiment consisted of 500 men or ten companies of 50 men each, company officers being captain, lieutenant, ensign and several sergeants, the lieutenant and those above him were known as "field officers" those of lower rank as "subalterns."

Col. James Callaway served in the House of Burgesses from 1765-69, succeeding his father. It was while he held office as county-lieutenant of Bedford that affairs in the county occasioned the origin of what became known as "Lynch Law," from the name of one of the officers authorized by county officials to administer it. The kind of licence subserved the Revolutionary cause and was permitted as a necessity of the times from the lawless conditions pervading through a section of country at a great distance from the seat of government: it did not authorize or practice the taking of life, but was a system of restraint and punishment, as far as imprisonment and correction—carried on by a body of vigilants of good standing, and enforced a degree of order and fear of the law not otherwise attained. The Lynch law of the present day is a ghastly travesty on that used as a form of military discipline by law abiding citizens in a time of war.

In a state paper of Aug. 10, 1781, Col. Jas. Callaway informed Col. Wm. Davies that he had discharged the militia ordered to the south, inasmuch as those from the adjacent counties had been discharged, but ordered them to hold themselves in readiness to march at a moment's warning. Thanked Col. Davies for the compliment paid to the militia of Bedford and assured him that if the enemy made it necessary they would entitle themselves to credit.

Dr. George Callaway (Eliz'h E. Callaway, Col. Jer'h Early, Jer'h Early, Sr., Thos. Early, John Early) m. 1811 Mary Eliza, dau. of Col. Wm. Cabell, Jr., and his wife Anne Carrington, of Union Hill, Nelson Co., Va. Dr. Callaway d. 1822.

Papers belonging to Dr. Wm. Cabell, the emigrant make it certain that he was a grandson of Wm. Cabell, who went to Warminster, Eng., about 1664, and died there in 1704. In 1726 Dr. Cabell was living in St. James' parish, Henrico Co. and was deputy to Capt.

John Radford, High Sheriff of the county. The settlements having extended so far westward as to be inconveniently situated for attendance at court in Varina (the old C. H.) there was an enactment for the establishment of a new county from Henrico. Dr. Cabell had married Elizabeth Burks and was living on Licking Hole creek in the part of the county cut off to form Goochland: he was made one of the justices in 1728: was the first Englishman to enter the wild lands for settlements, and built his home at Warminster, Nelson Co.: was grand-father of Mary Eliza Cabell-Callaway.

Dr. George Callaway lived first in Lynchburg, Va., on the estate inherited from his father, including lands and mills (since Langhorne's), with lots and other estate in the towns of Madison and Lynchburg: these lands lay in the fork between Blackwater Creek and James River: Dr. Callaway sold out his interests in and near the town in 1818 and moved to Nelson County: built "Glenmore" where he died 1822.

A church was built on the lands of Mrs. Callaway, near the public road, in the gap on the northwest side of the Buffalo Ridge: it was known as Callaway's church, was the successor of the old Revolutionary church in Key's Gap where the Baptists now have one called Fairmont. The Church of England had fallen under the bann as being English, after the Revolution, and no regular service was held in the parish until this new church was opened in 1828. Mrs. Callaway d. 1867.

Jeffrey Early (Col. Jeremiah Early, Jer'h Early, Sr., Thos. Early, John Early) b. 1762: m. A. L. ———.

In August 1784 Jeffrey Early sold the land given him by his father, 937 acres in Campbell County on the north side of Staunton river and south side of Goose creek to his brother-in-law, Wm. Anderson, of Bedford County and moved to Lexington, Georgia, then in Wilkes, but which in 1793 was cut off into the new county of Oglethorpe. It has not been found where or whom he married, as only the initials of his wife are given in records referring to her.

There is preserved a peculiar agreement between the brothers Jubal, of Virginia, and Jeffrey, of Georgia, which remained in force from 1784 till 1793 concerning the purchase of 862½ acres of land lying in Franklin County, Ga., adjoining the Cherokee corner, which the two held in partnership, and which (if Jubal decided to move to Georgia) he should have the option of purchasing wholly paying for Jeffrey's half the same price he had given for his own; otherwise either one was to have the power to sell the whole tract. Jubal died 1797 without completing his arrangements for settling in Georgia, his family continued to reside in Virginia: the land owned conjointly in Georgia was disposed of by Jeffrey.

In 1786 Jeffrey Early was among the settlers who were granted head rights in Franklin County, which embraced a large part of the state from the Savannah to the Oconee river.

In 1792 Jeffrey Early, of Wilkes County, made a deed to Absalom Anthony of Greene Co., with the affidavit of John Dunn, of Jasper Co.: Early lived in the southern part of Wilkes near Greene county line: in 1793 Oglethorpe was established.

In 1794 the first court was held in Oglethorpe, three miles from Lexington, when Jeffrey Early was among the first grand jurymen.

In 1795 Jeffrey Early made four deeds of conveyance: one to James Baber for 280 acres in Oglethorpe: one to John Beasley for 200 acres: one to John McWhorter: and one to John Dunn for 209 acres.

In 1796 he sold a tract of land to George Lumpkin: made a deed to George Moore: deeded to his nieces Sally, Elizabeth and Nancy Early, of Surry Co., North Carolina, 2 negroes "for love and affection."

In 1798 he sold 43 acres of land to John Beasley.

In 1801 made a deed to George Moore.

In 1807 made a deed to William Finch.

This year his son Henry made a deed to the trustees of the University of Georgia: the same year A. L. Early (presumably his wife) Henry and Jacob (sons) signed a mortgage for the trustees of the University.

Same year Henry Early made a deed to Caleb Early.

In 1811 Jeffrey Early made his will dividing his property between his wife and their seven children, specifying tracts devised to the three eldest, Henry, Jacob and Matilda. To Henry 221 acres in Randolph County, Baldwin District (land which had been granted to William Farmer) also certain negroes, stock, furniture and money; or if Henry preferred, 250 acres off of the tract on which he (Jeffrey) lived adjoining John Beasley, Geo. Moore and John McWhorter; in which latter case the 221 acres was to be re-deeded to his wife and other children. To Jacob he devised two tracts in Randolph (granted to Walter Maxey) in Baldwin District: the third tract in same district he devised to his dau. Elizabeth Stewart, (who was then living in Randolph County) together with certain negroes, stock, furniture, etc., the same as given Henry. To Matilda a tract of 150 acres (which had been purchased of Sneed) on Long Creek: also stock and furniture, etc. To Austin two tracks of land in Baldwin District. The balance of his property to be divided between his wife and children as each child came of age or his daughters married. His wife was to be allowed to draw her portion or let it remain in the common stock, but should she marry again her part was to be given up to her. Dr. Dudley Dunn, and (his son) Henry Early were appointed his executors, until Austin came of age, when he also was to become an executor: the will was recorded in January 1812.

Henry Early as executor of Jeffrey, his father, made a deed for transfer of land to Caleb Early: Sarah and Henry Early made a deed of transfer to Jacob Early.

Jubal Early (Col. Jer'h Early, Jer'h Early, Sr., Thos. Early John Early) m. 1790 Mary Booker (dau. of Dr. Henry and Mary Booker-Cheatham, of Amelia County), resided in Franklin County, Va. In 1793 Jubal Early made a trip to the southern part of Georgia with a view to settling there: he and a brother, Jeffrey, then negotiated for the purchase of 862½ acres of land in Franklin County, adjoining the Cherokee corner, but Jubal returned to Virginia without completing his purchase and did not return to Georgia.

He held equal interests with his brother, John, in the Washington Iron Works of Henry County, Va. Jubal Early died in 1797 leaving two infant sons, who were placed under the guardianship of Col. Samuel Hairston, and were educated at Patrick Henry Academy, and Washington College, Lexington. Jubal's widow married secondly Major Patrick Hix, of Richmond, and had one dau. Mary Elizabeth, who married Armistead L. Burwell, of Franklin County, Mrs. Mary B. C. E. Hix d. 1848.

Col. Joab Early (Jubal Early, Col. Jer'h Early, Jerh' Early, Sr., Thos. Early, John Early) m. 1812 Ruth (b. 1794) dau. of Col. Samuel Hairston and wife Judith (dau. of Peter Hyde Saunders and his wife Mary Sparrel, the ward of Gov. Giles; and sister of Judge Fleming Saunders, of Pittsylvania County, Va.)

The Hairstons were of Scotch ancestry: Peter, the emigrant, left Scotland after the battle of Culloden, having fought on the losing side, came to America about 1747-8 landing at Norfolk, Va.; his son, Robert, was an ensign in the French and Indian wars and served one term in the House of Representatives; m. Ruth, dau. of George Stovall, clerk of the House of Burgesses; Col. Sam'l Hairston, the father-in-law and guardian of Joab Early, was their third son.

Sir. James Douglas, who fought with Robert Bruce (the heroic Scottish king) at Bannockburn, made an effort to fulfill Bruce's last request to carry his heart to the Holy Land and bury it in Jerusalem; but Douglas was killed in Spain while fighting the Moors. So the heart of Bruce was carried back to Scotland and buried in the Monastery of Melrose; the casket, in which the heart was placed, was locked with three keys and one of these given to each of his three most trusted friends whom Bruce had knighted, Sir James Douglas being one, Sir Robert Hairston another; on the Hairston coat-of-arms he gave the motto "Always Faithful": keys are used on both Hairston arms and crest.

Joab Early held at different periods all the important offices in the power of his county to bestow: was sheriff in 1816; member of the Virginia Legislature; colonel of the Franklin militia. Left a widower in 1832 with a family of ten children he devoted himself to their rearing and education; schools were distant and travel primitive, but his daughters were entered at the Moravian School at Salem, No. Ca., and Dr. Smith's Academy at Lynchburg, Va.; his boys all sent to college. In 1847 when his children were grown and most of them married and settled in homes of their own, he moved, with his two youngest daughters and sons, to Putnam county, Va., near Buffalo township (now in West Va.). Here he purchased fine fruit and grain land on the Kanawha river. At the opening of the war between states he hurriedly refuged with two of his daus., Mrs. Thompson and Mrs. Clarkson and their families, to the home of his son, Sam'l H. Early at Lynchburg, Va., without waiting to make any disposition of his property, personalty or real estate. A year or two later he went to reside with Mrs. Clarkson, who had secured a home in Marion, Smyth county, near her husband, Col. Clarkson, then operating the works at Saltville. His property having been confiscated, Col. Early made his home after the war with his son, Robert, in Lexington, Mo.: here he d. in 1870 and being a member of the order, was buried with Masonic ceremonies. Beautiful portraits of him and his wife are preserved in the family. Mrs. Ruth Hairston-Early d. 1832 in Franklin County, Va., and was buried in the family burying ground near Rocky Mount.

Thos. Randolph of "Tuckahoe;" m. 2nd Catherine, dau. of Henry Whiting and wife Anne, dau. of Col. Peter Beverley (burgess from Gloucester Co.) and wife, Elizabeth, dau. of Major Robert Peyton, who emigrated from Norfolkshire, Eng. Major Robert Beverley, father of Col. Peter Beverley, emigrated from Yorkshire: was clerk of the House of Burgesses in 1670: member of the Council in 1676: d. 1687.

Dr. John J. Cabell b. 1772 was son of Col. John Cabell (county-lieutenant of Buckingham and son of Dr. Wm. Cabell, emigrant and his wife, Elizabeth Burks) and wife Paulina, dau. of Col. Samuel Jordan, of "The Seven Islands" and his 2nd wife, Mrs. Judith Scott-Ware. Col. Jordan was a large land owner in Buckingham, Halifax and Albemarle: was county-lieutenant in Buckingham in 1761; burgess from Buckingham 1767-69: d. 1789.

At the beginning of the 19th century Dr. John J. Cabell m. (1803) Henrienne Davies and settled in Lynchburg, Va.: his home was a substantially built structure, with very thick walls; was provided like a country homestead with separate servants' quarters, laundry, carriage and smoke houses. When Andrew Jackson visited the town, Dr. Cabell had the walls of his parlor decorated with scenes depicting the environs of Paris in honor of the distinguished visitor; these frescoes remained in good condition till the building was torn down in 1904 to make way for the Elks' Home nearly a hundred years afterwards. With the exception of a few years in their early married life spent in Charleston, Kanawha county, Samuel Henry and Henrian Cabell-Early resided in this old family place continuously to the end of their lives.

Capt. Early was educated at Patrick Henry Academy and William and Mary College; also attended the law school in Fredericksburg maintained by the Marye family: he began the practice of law in Franklin, but did not continue: served as postmaster at Coopers', Franklin Co. After his marriage resided awhile in Kanawha Co., and engaged in the manufacture of salt at the salines there: invented and patented a pump for salt and oil wells to prevent injury from gas. He moved to Lynchburg in 1853 and engaged in farming operations in Bedford county. At the opening of the war of 1861-'65 he enlisted to serve in the Wise Troop, 2nd Va. Cav., but shortly after entering the field, transferred to Capt. Jack Alexander's Campbell County company: was detailed on the staff of Col. Wheat, who commanded the Tiger Battalion of Texas and when Col. Wheat was mortally wounded at the first battle of Manassas, Capt. Early assisted him off of the field. He was then made aid-de-camp on the staff of his brother, Brig.-Gen. J. A. Early, with the rank of captain and served in that capacity at Sharpsburg, 2nd Manassas, Williamsburg, and Seven Pines, in every fight with the Army of No. Va. until Malvern Hill, he and his horse having been wounded at Antietam: he was badly wounded at Gettysburg and was then brought home by his young son, who also had taken part in that battle. Being thus incapacitated for field service he was appointed assisting conscripting officer at Lynchburg. Upon receipt of news of the evacuation of Richmond, he was sent with special dispatches to Pres. Davis (then at Danville) to apprise him of what had taken place and carried back an important letter from Davis to Lee. Capt. Early was noted as a fine marksman and amateur sharpshooter and made some telling shots with cannon. After the war he again engaged in farming in Bedford Co., Va., and Kanawha Co., W. Va. When the Chesapeake and Ohio R. R. was being built he secured a contract to furnish R. R. ties, which he supplied from his coal lands in Boone and Lincoln Counties, W. Va. He was taken ill with pneumonia in Charleston, W. Va., and died there after several weeks' illness March 1874: his remains were brought to Lynchburg and interred in Spring Hill cemetery. Mrs. Henrian Early d. 1890 after an invalidism extending sixteen years.

A portrait of Capt. Early in officers' uniform was painted by J. W. L. Foster, of Toronto.

John Cabell Early (Capt. Samuel Hy. Early, Col. Joab Early, Jubal Early, Col. Jer'h Early, Jer'h Early, Sr., Thos. Early, John Early) b. Feb. 29, 1848, in Charleston, Kanawha Co., m. 1876 Mary W., dau. of Dr. Clifford Cabell (of Buckingham Co.) and wife Margaret,* dau. of Christopher Anthony (the son of Christ'r and Mary Jordan-Anthony) and his wife Anna W. dau. of Samuel and Ann Quigg-Couch, who m. in Philadelphia and settled in Goochland Co., Va., 1777, and were of the Quaker persuasion.

Dr. Clifford Cabell was a son of Frederick Cabell, (the son of Col. John Cabell, of Buckingham) and wife Alice, dau. of Judge

*Author of "Recollections of Lynchburg, by the oldest Inhabitant."

Edmund Winston and wife Alice (dau. of Anthony Winston and wife Alice, dau. of Col. Edm. Taylor) and grand-dau. of William Winston, called "Langaloo," a hunter, Indian fighter and orator, (who m. a dau. of George Dabney, of New Kent County) and was a son of Isaac Winston, emigrant said to have been of an ancient family long seated in Wales and the neighboring shires of England.

At the beginning of the war of '61-'65 John Cabell Early, a lad of twelve years, was attending the school of Dr. Gessner Harrison, in Nelson County, Va. This school was then broken up as it was composed mainly of youths old enough to serve in the army. Cabell returned to his home in Lynchburg and was sent to one of the city schools. Just previous to the battle of Gettysburg he obtained Gen. Early's consent to his serving as one of Early's couriers, but when he arrived on the field his uncle was shocked at finding him so small and delicate, and as his father was wounded in the battle, both were sent home, the boy hiring a buggy and taking the place of driver. He was at this time fifteen and then entered the Va. Mil. Ins. at Lexington, Va.: at the time of Hunter's raid he with a number of the smallest cadets was left to guard the barracks. In 1864-5 the Va. Mil. cadets were detailed to drill conscripted troops at Camp Lee, Richmond.

During the winter of 1866-7 young Early attended the school conducted by Prof. Jas. P. Holcomb at Bellevue, Bedford Co.: a year later he engaged with Rev. Thos. H. Early in the sale of farming machinery and having a bent for mechanics, took the place of demonstrator. He next farmed with his father in Kanawha County, but after his marriage in 1876 settled on a Bedford County farm, part of the Nicolas Davies' patented land: then purchased land on James river, a portion of the "Soldiers' Joy" estate, Nelson County, upon which he built "Red Gables": after a few years' residence returned to Bedford and built "The Pines." He was an invalid during the last fifteen years of his life and died in 1909 from an apoplectic stroke; buried in the family section at Spring Hill cemetery, Lynchburg. A portrait of him as a New Market cadet was placed at the Va. Mil. Ins. by his family.

Lieut. Early was duck hunting with a friend on Lake Mariano, near Gallup, N. M., on Sep. 13, 1914, when a terrible gale arose, upsetting their boat and drowning both men. Early was a fine swimmer, while his friend could not swim at all. There were no witnesses to the occurrence but evidence, disclosed in the search for the bodies showed convincingly that Early gave up his life in a heroic effort to save his friend. Lieut. Early was a charter member of the Philippine branch of the Sons of the Am. Rev'n, and a member of the Phi Sigma Kappa fraternity at the Univ. of Va. In 1915 the War Dept. authorized the naming of a battery on the great Fortress of Corregidor, Philippine Islands "XX Battery Early" in honor of Lieut. Jubal A. Early, of the 20th Inf., who was drowned in the line of duty near Ft. Wingate while trying to save the life of a companion."

His remains were carried to Lynchburg and interred in the family lot at Spring Hill cemetery: a bronze tablet to his memory was erected by his fellow officers.

Major Samuel Hale (2nd son of Mary Judith Early and John Saunders Hale) m. Elizabeth, dau. of Dr. Hairston, of Marybone, Henry County, Va.: he was killed a few weeks after his marriage at Spotsylvania C. H. May 12, 1864. Educated at Emory and Henry Coll. and Univ. of Va.

Samuel Hale was a student at the University of Virginia when war was declared; entered service as captain of Co. "K" 42nd

Reg. Va. Inf. C. S. army; was promoted to rank of major, and assigned to Early's division, as assistant adjutant and inspector general: served in all battles until wounded at Cedar Mountain: was acting as Gen. Early's adjutant when killed. His remains were carried to Franklin County and interred in the family burying ground.

General Jubal Anderson Early (2nd son of Col. Joab and Ruth Hairston-Early) b. 1816 in Franklin County, Va., until sixteen years of age attended Virginia schools; in 1833 he received an appointment to West Point Mil. Acad. from Pres. Jackson, and graduated in 1837, was then appointed 2nd lieutenant in the 3rd Reg. of Artillery, Company "E": served in the Seminole war 1837-8 under Gen. Jessup: his baptism of fire was at a skirmish with Indians at Lockee Hatchee near Jupiter Inlet in 1838. He resigned from the army that year and studied law under N. M. Taliaferro, Esq., of Franklin and received his licence to practice in 1840: was elected to Va. Legislature in 1841-2, the youngest member of the body; then appointed prosecuting attorney in the circuit and county courts of Franklin and Floyd in 1843. During the Mexican war he was appointed major of a regiment of volunteers from Virginia (January 1847); superintended the drilling and embarkation of troops at Fortress Monroe: acted as military governor of Monterey for two months. He contracted chronic rheumatism while stationed at Buena Vista from which he was a sufferer ever afterwards; was given leave of absence to recuperate, and spent the time with his father's family in the Kanawha Valley. On his return to his command, the steamboat on which he travelled, was blown up on the Ohio river, when he had a narrow escape, as one half of his stateroom was carried off and pieces of the boiler protruded through the floor cutting and burning his feet. He was mustered out of service at Ft. Monroe April 1848, the only field officer on duty with the regiment. Major Early resumed the practice of law, and became a candidate for the convention called to revise the constitution of Virginia: again was a candidate in 1853 for the Legislature. His practice had become considerable, the most important contest at the bar was in a contested will case in Lowndes County, Miss., in 1852 in which a very large amount of property was involved and he contended successfully single-handed with three of the ablest lawyers in the state. When in 1860 the question of Virginia's secession from the United States arose, Maj. Early was a member of the convention called by authority of the state legislature to decide upon the matter: he opposed secession and labored earnestly to preserve the Union; but upon the adoption of the ordinance he felt it his duty to abide by the decision of his state, and with entire faith in the justice of her cause, he joined the army of the Confederate States to defend her against invasion.

The day the convention took recess to await the result of the popular vote, Early tendered his services to Gov. Letcher and received from him the commission of colonel in the volunteer service of the state. On reporting to Gen. Lee, he was ordered to Lynchburg to take command of all Virginia volunteers who should be mustered into service at that place and organize them into regiments. He entered upon this service May 16th, organized and armed the 28th Va., the 24th (his own) and the 30th regiments. As soon as he learned that the federal troops occupied Alexandria he began sending these regiments to Manassas: also armed and sent off a number of companies to be attached to regiments already in the field: receiving orders to join his regiment he went to Manassas and reported to Gen. Beauregard on June 19th. In the battle of Manassas (or Bull Run) he commanded a brigade; (was then commissioned brigadier general) also at Williamsburg on May 5, 1862: (in the latter battle he received a severe wound in the shoulder from a minnie ball and his horse had an eye shot out) commanded a brigade at Malvern Hill, July 1, 1862; at Cedar Run (or Slaughter's Mountain) Aug 9, 1862; at the 2nd Manassas battle, Aug 27-28-29-30, 1862: at Sharpsburg (or Antietam) Feb. 17, 1862. Commanded a division in the battles of Fredericksburg Dec. 13, 1862: (commissioned maj. general Jan. 1863): being opposed to Sedgwick at Fredericksburg during the battle of Chancellorsville April and May 1863; of Gettysburg July 1-2-3, 1863: in command of Ewell's corps at Mine Run, November and December, 1863: (promoted lieut. gen. May 1864): commanded a division in the battle of the Wilderness May 5-6-7, 1864. Commanded A. P. Hill's corps at the battles around Spotsylvania C. H. May 9-21, 1864: commanded a division at Hanover Junction May 22-26, 1864: commanded Ewell's corps at the battle near Cold Harbor May 30 to June 12, 1864: sent with separate command from Cold Harbor against Hunter, June 13 and compelled him to retire from before Lynchburg, Va., June 19, 1864, (a granite shaft marks the point where he erected earthworks and stationed troops in his engagement with Hunter near Lynchburg); crossed the Potomac and threatened Washington City July 1864, (a tablet marks his point of observation at the entrance to Walter Reed Hospital): defeated Wallace at Monacacy July 9, '64: defeated Crook at Kernstown, near Winchester, July 24, '64; sent a cavalry command into Pennsylvania which burned Chambersburg in retaliation for the burning of private houses in Virginia and of towns in the Southern States by the Federal troops. Being largely outnumbered by the Federals under Sheridan he met with reverses at Winchester Sep. 19, '64; at Fisher's Hill, Sep. 22, '64; at Cedar Creek, Oct. 19, '64; and at Waynesboro, Mar. 2, '64. At Cedar Creek Oct. 19, he surprised a portion of Sheridan's army, then under Gen. H. G. Wright, early in the morning and routed two corps and forced back the other corps, and the cavalry, several miles, but Wright rallied his command and formed a new line near Middletown; after which Gen. Sheridan came from Winchester (distant 8 miles) and taking command made an attack on the Southern forces which resulted in the defeat of the latter. Early had in this battle 8,500 infantry, 500 or 600 artillerymen and 1,200 cavalry. After the war Gen. Early went to Mexico then to Canada, where he remained four years, returning to Virginia in 1869 and settling in Lynchburg. The results of the war between the states had not been able entirely to quench his patriotic zeal: he again interested himself in political campaigns affecting his beloved South: he was also very active in correcting newspaper history of the war. Gen. Fitzhugh Lee, a warm friend and admirer, said jestingly to him, when they were discussing historical inaccuracies, "General, a good many people are waiting for you to die so they may have a chance to write their account of the war": a prophecy which has been fulfilled, not only as to the part they played, but in criticism of himself—writers who had before been silent.

He was often misunderstood, his true nature not appreciated because of an abrupt manner beneath which, however, there throbbed a warm heart, with sympathy for all suffering creatures, any form of selfishness was foreign to his nature, and truthfulness the ruling principle of his life. Gen. Early in association with Gen. Beauregard (a life-long friend) presided over the drawing of the Louisiana

State Lottery for a number of years, the salary from which he distributed in charity. He did not engage in general law practice after his return to Virginia from Canada, though he undertook some very important cases successfully.

While in Canada he wrote his "Memoirs of the Last Year of the War for Independence," and soon afterwards the "Narrative of the War," (including his autobiography) and "Slavery," but the two last were not published until after his death, "Slavery" under title of "Heritage of the South": he was author of numberless addresses which were delivered by him.

He was the victim of a terrible accident in the autumn of 1890, when he was caught under the walls of a brick building in which he lived and which had not been considered unsafe, though badly damaged by fire; he was seated in his room, when the flooring caved in, but the heavy timbers fell over him in such a way as to protect him from the bricks and he was rescued before becoming dangerously hurt. In February 1894 he had a fall down several stone steps from the effects of which he died two weeks later in March. He was given a public burial with military honors and interred in a lot at Spring Hill cemetery presented by the Association for the purpose, because of his services in rescuing the city in 1864. A granite shaft marks his resting place. General Early was never married. His portrait was painted from life by Elder and, after his death, by J. W. L. Foster, a Toronto artist, who presents him as the soldier of 1865. Gen. Early left 12 folios of letters from men prominent in state and national affairs: which letters are loaned to the Confederate Museum at Richmond.

TWO LETTERS FROM GEN. R. E. LEE

Hdqrs. C. S. Armies, 30th March, 1865.

Lt.-Gen. J. A. Early, Franklin Co., Va.

General:

My telegram will have informed you that I deem a change of commanders in your department necessary, but it is due to your zealous and patriotic services that I should explain the reasons that prompted my action. The situation of affairs is such that we can neglect no means calculated to develop the resources we possess to the greatest extent and make them as efficient as possible. To this end it is essential that we should have the cheerful and hearty support of the people and the full confidence of the soldiers, without which our efforts would be embarrassed and our means of resistance weakened. I have reluctantly arrived at the conclusion that you cannot command the united and willing co-operation which is so essential to success. Your reverses in the valley, of which the public and the army judge chiefly by the results, have, I fear impaired your influence both with the people and the soldiers and would add greatly to the difficulties which will, under any circumstances, attend our military operations in Southwest Virginia. While my own confidence in your ability, zeal and devotion to the cause is unimpaired, I have nevertheless felt that I could not oppose what seems to be the current of opinion, without injustice to your reputation and injury to the service. I therefore felt constrained to endeavor to find a commander who would be more likely to develop the strength and resources of the country and inspire the soldiers with confidence and to accomplish this purpose, I thought it proper to yield my own opinion and defer to that of those to whom alone we can look for support. I am sure that you will understand and appreciate my motives and that no one will be more ready than yourself to acquiesce in any measures which the interests of the country may seem to require, regardless of all personal considerations. Thanking you for the fidelity and energy with which you have always supported my efforts and for the courage and devotion you have ever manifested in the service of the country, I am very respectfully and truly, Your obedient servant,

R. E. LEE.

(Written while Early was in Canada.)

Lexington, Va., 22nd Nov. '65.

Gen. J. A. Early entered the Confederate service at the beginning of the war, in the spring of 1861, and served to its termination in 1865. By his good conduct and merit he rose to the rank of lieutenant-general. He was in all the battles of the Army of Northern Virginia except when absent on account of severe wounds. During the campaign of 1864 he was detached with his corps during the summer for service in the Shenandoah Valley and was finally placed in command of the Department of Western Virginia.

Being a graduate of the West Point Military Academy, he combines theoretical with the practical knowledge of a soldier. He exhibited during his whole service high intelligence, sagacity, bravery and untiring devotion to the cause in which he had enlisted.

Rev. Abner Early (Col. Jeremiah Early, Jer'h Early, Sr., Thos. Early, John Early) b. 1767 m. 1791 Docia (b. 1775) dau. of Jacob Anderson (son of George Anderson) and his wife, Mary, the dau. of Col. Wm. Callaway and wife, Elizabeth Tilley. Abner Early inherited his father's home place (given his step-mother during her widowhood, she having married again). The lands of Abner Early were exempt from taxation according to law; (the attorney for the commonwealth being in court when this order was made). In Feb. 1798 on motion of Abner Early leave was given him to celebrate the rites of marriage agreeable to the Methodist Society: same date, an order of court was given to view a way for an alteration of the Richmond road leading through the land of Abner Early. In 1804 a resurvey was made of Abner Early's lands. In July of this year he qualified as overseer of the poor: being a partner, in general merchandise, of Buford Early (then deceased) he was given leave to administer on Buford's estate.

On Nov. 19, 1819 Abner and Docia Early deeded to Jacob, Abner and Henry Early and others, trustees, a certain lot in Campbell County on the east side of Flat creek and containing 1 1/16 acres "for the use of the members of the Methodist Episcopal church in America, according to the rules and discipline which may from time to time be adopted." This was doubtless the land upon which Early's chapel was built.

Abner Early's will was admitted to record in 1837: he devised the plantation on which he lived to his wife, Docia, during her life; this embraced all his land on Otter river which had not been disposed of, and was divided from the land given to his son, John W., by an old road running from Anthony's ford to a line near Sambo's branch: the property already given Jacob, Henry, William, John Wesley, Edmund and Matilda was confirmed in his will. His sons Jacob and Henry T. were appointed executors; Chiswell Dabney and John D. Alexander witnessed his signature.

THIRD BRANCH OF THE FAMILY OF EARLY

ALLIED WITH KIRTLEY

FAMILY OF SARAH EARLY-KIRTLEY

Sarah Early, of Culpeper County, Va., (eldest dau. of Jeremiah and Elizabeth Buford-Early) m. William Kirtley eldest son of Francis Kirtley and Margaret (dau. of John Roberts, Sr., of St. George's Parish, Spotsylvania County). Francis Kirtley, Sr., popularly known among his neighbors as "Sir Francis," the progenitor of the family, came to the Virginia colony from Wales in 1710. He was captain of a company of foot soldiers (under Lieut.-Col. Thos. Slaughter, from Culpeper County,) sent, 1751, against the French and Indians above Winchester. His will, dated 1763, is on record in Culpeper and mentions his sons William and Francis, Jr. When Culpeper was divided to form Madison, the estate of Wm. Kirtley lay in the new county and there his will was recorded in 1795. In this he bequeathed to his wife the home place on Stanton river, and mill tract containing 183 acres (which he had purchased from his brother), the mill standing on the river, 11 slaves, household furniture with the exception of the clock (which together with any other property his wife chose to give up, was to be sold), stock of all kinds, farming implements and two stills. The mountain land purchased from Joel Early and mill tract to be sold after the death of his wife, and proceeds divided between his five children: bequest of money to his two grandsons, Elijah and Elliott, sons of his son William, Jr. The dwelling house, outbuildings and one-half of the home tract to become the property of his son Jeremiah, the other half to be given his son William, Jr., after the death of his wife: his son Jeremiah and son-in-law, Isaac Davis, Jr., were appointed executors.

The information concerning this Kirtley family has been meagre. There are several deeds among Madison records from members of the family in the transference of property. One from Wm. and Sarah Kirtley to Joshua Jackson for 176 acres on Conway river, on June 15, 1771. One from Joel Early, executor of Jeremiah Early, to Wm. Kirtley, in 1791, for 294 acres at head of Wilson's river, a branch of Stanton. In 1792 from Wm. and Sarah Early-Kirtley to Jeremiah Kirtley, 160 acres on the west side of Stanton, a branch of Rappahannock river, standing on Wm. Kirtley's patent line and running with Francis Kirtley's line. At the beginning of the 19th century Wm. Kirtley's family had moved to Kentucky, where many of their Early relatives were settled. A letter from one of the descendants states that "all of Kentucky is full of the history of the family, not in great deeds but in the story of its conquest from wilderness to civilization, in the work of the ministry and of education:" it has continued as a family of ministers.

Major Jeremiah Kirtley (Sarah Early-Kirtley, Jeremiah Early, Sr., Thos. Early, John Early) m. Mary Walker, sister of Merriwether Walker: resided in Madison County.

In 1793 Jeremiah Kirtley was overseer of the road leading from Garth's ford near Kirtley's mill to the Conway river: the same year he became a justice of the peace for Madison county: an order was given to Jer'h Kirtley, Gent, to regulate the hands under the several overseers of the road between Gaar's Mill and Kirtley's road (around Thoroughfare Mtn.) to the Robinson river. In November of this year he received his commission as a major of the 2nd Battalion of the militia regiment in the county: was appointed one of three to settle the executorship of John Simpson and divide the estate. A deed from Jer'h and Mary Kirtley, 1794, was proved by Francis and Wm. Kirtley: in 1795 Jeremiah Kirtley was a justice of the peace for Madison Co., Va.

In 1807 a power of attorney from Merriwether Walker to Jeremiah Kirtley was acknowledged and ordered to be certified to Boone County, Kentucky.

In 1817 Jeremiah Kirtley was a presiding magistrate for Boone County, Kentucky.

William Buford (Margaret K. Buford, Sarah E. Kirtley, Jer'h Early, Sr., Thos. Early, John Early) m. 1801 his cousin, Frances Walker Kirtley, dau. of Francis and Eliz. Walker-Kirtley, b. 1787 in Rockingham County, Va., on the Shenandoah river. He d. 1848: his wife 1866. Wm. Buford was known as "Colonel Billy," to distinguish him from his cousin of same name.

Wm. Buford had a splendid stock farm which he called "Tree Hill:" he willed his estate to his two sons, Thomas and Henry (as executors), excepting a few legacies. The indebtedness of the estate was large, and these two sons having been closely associated with him in business affairs during the latter part of his life, he gave them directions as to the settlement and division of the estate, certain portions of which were to be given to his children left out of his will. In the final adjustment, Henry sold one-half of his landed property (which included the homestead) to a wealthy neighbor, Mr. Alexander. The mother's dowry was given to her, and Thomas, who refused to sell his portion, made every effort to keep the homestead in the family: this involved him in a series of law suits and he failed to accomplish his purpose, for at his mother's death the property went to Alexander.

ISSUE (SURNAMED BUFORD).

- 1113429—1. William, died young.

General Abraham Buford was educated at West Point Military Academy: served in U. S. army from 1841—: was made brevet captain 1847 for gallant and meritorious conduct at the battle of Buena Vista. Resigned from service in 1854; lived on his estate, "Bosque Bonita," near Versailles, Ky., 1854-61. At the beginning of the war between the states he was a farmer and stock raiser, having much at stake; did not decide to go into the war till Gen. Morgan's raid in 1862 into Kentucky. He joined Morgan at Georgetown and from there went South: was appointed colonel; with 5,000 raw recruits he joined General Bragg. Later he reported to President Davis at Richmond, who gave him a commission as brigadier. After the battle of Champion Hill he joined Gen. Joe Johnston at Jackson, Miss. In the spring of 1864 he joined Forrest at Tupelo and moved through Tennessee into Kentucky. At the close of the war he retired to his beautiful home, engaging once more in raising race-horses. He lost his only child at the threshold of manhood, a blow from which he never recovered: died in Indiana in 1884.

Thomas Buford 12th son of William and Frances W. Kirtley Buford, of Woodward County, Ky., was educated for a lawyer, but never engaged in practice: was a student. His financial ventures were disastrous, involving him in a series of law suits lasting ten years, which wrecked him financially, physically and mentally: though by nature he was temperate and moderate. In 1873 he invested all that he and his sister Mary possessed in a tract of land in Henry county, the title of which was defective, and became involved in a suit which lasted more than five years. During this time of strain he was shot and nearly lost his life, while standing unarmed. His sister died and he was left stranded, without any means of support. The suit became a celebrated one, and the verdict given against him caused his mind to become unbalanced: he lived only a few years afterwards.

In 1801 Isaac Davis and Adam Banks, executors of Wm. Kirtley, Sr., made a deed to Simeon Buford for land belonging to the Wm. Kirtley estate.

CHAPTER V.

FOURTH BRANCH OF THE FAMILY OF EARLY

---

FAMILY OF JOSHUA EARLY, OF BEDFORD COUNTY, VA.

---

Joshua Early, 3rd son and 4th child of Jeremiah and Eliz'h-Buford Early (said to have been one of twin brothers) was b. June 13, 1738, and was living in Culpeper County in 1755 where he is several times recorded as a witness in court, but in 1757 he bought 450 acres of land in Bedford County from Wm. Bryant, of Albemarle, and moved to Bedford somewhat later.

In 1761 he purchased of the county trustees lot No. 20 in the town of New London, whereon he built a store house.

The same year he purchased of Col. Wm. Callaway lot No. 4 in the town of New London.

In 1762 he was appointed surveyor of a road in place of Ambrose Bryant.

In 1763 he sold to his brother Jeremiah 100 acres lying on the branches of Elk Creek: the same year he is recorded as a jurymen at Bedford court. He and Jeremiah sold lot No. 4 with the building upon it to Alex. Boyd. In the month of April occurred his marriage to Mary, the daughter of Augustine Leftwich. This year he administered on the estate of George Anderson: his allowance for three days attendance at court was 75 lbs. of tobacco: in Sept. served again as jurymen.

Joshua Early was fond of the turf and owned fine race horses.

In 1764 he bought of John McFarland, of Russell parish, Bedford County, 212½ acres lying at the head waters of Meadow's Creek.

In 1770 he bought of Niel Buchanon 200 acres lying on both sides of Elk Creek.

In 1771 sold to Josias Cofer 10½ acres on a branch of Elk Creek.

In 1773 received a grant of 12 acres near Moseley's Spring Branch.

In 1779 bought of Uriah Leftwich 150 acres of land.

In 1786 his father (Jeremiah, Sr.) willed him one-ninth part of his stock, furniture, etc.

In 1811 Joshua Early's will was written: probated in 1812, gave to his wife the land upon which he lived adjoining Mrs. Pamela Moseley's land, a certain part of the household furniture, excepting a cedar chest (given his son John) certain moneys, bar iron and a 50 gal. still. To son Joshua 75 acres of land adjoining that before given him; to son Joel the land on which he lived with 75 acres adjoining; to son Tubal the land on which he lived; to son Thomas land upon which he lived along the bank of Elk Creek, also certain slaves; to son John land adjoining his mother's, together with slaves, stock and furniture, also the land on which his mother lived at her death; lent his son Jabez the land on which he lived and a share of personal estate—title to the land not to be given him till he was 50 years of age: to dau. Polly Moorman certain slaves and 200 acres of patented land in the state of Kentucky on the waters of Licking below his brother Joel Early's claim; to his grandson, Achilles, son of Polly Moorman, 200 acres of Kentucky land (balance of a tract of 400 acres) which, in event of his death without heirs, was to revert for division amongst his mother, brothers and sisters; to grand-dau. Patsy, dau. of his son, William (deceased) land purchased of Jas. Orchard on Elk Creek to where it unites with land given her father. Of the residue of his estate, not already disposed of, his dau. Sally Word to have an equal part, grand-dau. Patsy to have one-half share of the undivided estate with his sons and daus.: his nephew, Rev. Abner Early and sons, Joshua and John were appointed executors. Joshua Early, Sr., died in 1812: his funeral was preached by Rev. Abner Early upon the text "David's Charge to Solomon." Two sons James and William had died natural deaths; a third son, Buford, had been murdered by a man named Butterworth in Campbell County before their father died. Other children, Elizabeth Strange, Silas and Lucy Early and Sophia (dau. of his son James), not mentioned in his will, may also have previously died.

THE LEFTWICH FAMILY.

In the county of Cheshire, Eng., is situated Leftwich Hall,—about a mile from the town of Norwich, a manor granted to Richard de Vernon, who had accompanied the Conqueror to England. A book on heraldry gives the origin of the Leftwich name as follows: "Two brothers named Vernon lived on a stream called Wich,—one on the right, the other on the left: the ancestor of the left Wich was called 'Vernon of the Leftwich.'” In the fourth generation the estate passed to a daughter of the house, whose husband took the name of Leftwich from his wife's estate about 1250: the property is said to have descended uninterruptedly from the Conquest for 670 years. The American branch of the family is supposed to have descended from one Ralph Leftwich, who received grants of land in New Kent Co., Va., on the branches of the Piankitank river, for the transportation of six persons into the Colony, in 1658. Augustine Leftwich, Sr., who also received large grants of land; married and settled there. A grant dated 1760 in the Richmond office reads “for divers reasons we do give unto Augustine Leftwich one certain tract of land containing 212 acres lying in the county of Bedford on both sides of David's Creek:” signed Frans. Fauquier, Lt.-Gov. of Va., Williamsburg. Before moving to Bedford, Augustine Leftwich was living in Caroline Co., Va.

The coat of arms used by this Leftwich family is:

Crest—Five leaves, conjoined at base sort.

Arms—Argent, on a fess-engrailed azure, three garlands or.

Motto—“Vernon semper floret.”

There is a high ridge bordering on Goose Creek in Bedford Co., known as King George's Hill: on the highest point of the hill John Perrin killed King George, an Indian chief; hence its name. Situated between King George's Hill and Goose Creek is a fine farm of bottom land on which Augustine Leftwich settled: here he died and was buried on a mound near Goose Creek. The will of Aug. Leftwich, Sr., (recorded 1775) devised to Joshua Early, his son-in-law, 150 acres of land.

Clement Strange Early (Capt. Joshua Early, Joshua Early, Sr., Jer'h Early, Sr., Thos Early, John Early) m. Lou, dau. of Col. Thomas and Charlotte Buckner-Holladay, of Kentucky. Clement Early was a sugar planter in Cuba: met his wife during a visit to Kentucky, where he settled after his marriage, and engaged in merchandise. He and his wife died young, leaving one daughter, who was reared in the home of her grandfather Holladay: afterwards she moved to Lynchburg and became a member of Rev. Thos. H. and sister Frances Early's household.

Major Lewis Holladay, b. 1751, a member of this Holladay family, served through the Revolution. William Holladay (son of Capt. John Holladay) m. Fannie Ammon, emigrated to Kentucky about 1795, settling in Fayette County, where shortly afterwards his son Thomas was born. While the latter was still a youth (17 years of age) the war of 1812 commenced and he and his brother William Holladay, Jr., enlisted in the army. Thomas Holladay m. Charlotte, dau. of Capt. Robert Buckner and wife, née Hawes, (the dau. of Col. Samuel Hawes, of the 4th Va. Continentals, who received a grant of 4,200 acres of land in Bourbon County, Ky.).

Col. Thomas Holladay was colonel of the Nicolas County, Ky., militia, but being a Southern sympathizer, resigned his position and aided the cause of the South, in consequence of which his property became confiscated.

Benjamin Holladay, a brother of Thomas, went to Utah as an army contractor in the fifties with Col. Albert Sidney Johnson's army. He made a fortune in the west, and founded the Overland Stage Line and Pony Express: built the Portland and California R. R., established a steamship line and engaged largely in mining. John Buckner Holladay, son of Thomas, was a major in Col. Ezekiel Clay's regiment, C. S. army, and after the war served several terms as sheriff of Bourbon County.

war of 1812-14. Many emigrants bearing the name of Strange came to America. In 1619 one, in the employment of the British government under command of Yeardley, took passage in the ship "George;" returned to Great Britain; came again with a brother in the ship "Pauline," and settled near Jamestown, Va. Here he became a large land holder. A grant was given him and others of 1290 acres of land near Jamestown "extending into the woods" for meritorious service to the British government: it was recorded in 1635 in Charles City, signed by Gov. West. It is believed that Major Robert Strange and his sister "Patsy" who married Capt. Joshua Early, were descendants of this settler.

Buford Early b. 1775 (7th child of Joshua and Mary Leftwich-Early) was a merchant in Campbell: in 1801 he was a witness to a deed between Caleb Callaway and Abner Early: in 1803 he bought of Wm. Farmer 32 acres of land on each side of Dry Branch, the east side of Flat Creek beginning at Weber's corner, (a deed of trust redeemed in Nov. 1803). Buford Early and Rev. Abner Early were partners in general merchandise. On Dec. 24, 1803, Buford Early was murdered by a drunken man.

In 1804 leave was given Rev. Abner Early to administer on Buford Early's estate.

Wm. and John Callaway, Robert Scott and Henry Bell appraised sd estate in Campbell Co.

John Wyatt, Bennett Moseley, Josiah Cofer and Jacob Anderson appraised sd estate in Bedford Co.

Appraisement of personal estate was made by Rev. Abner Early.

There exists a family of the name of Allen in Kentucky which perpetuates the name of Buford Early; namely Buford Early Allen, son of Joseph Allen and Sarah Wisdom Craig (a descendant of Joseph Craig, of the "Travelling Church," and possibly a grand-dau. of Sarah Buford-Wisdom, of Middlesex county), who lived in Spotsylvania Co., Va.), hence connected with the Early family.

Mary ("Polly") Early (Joshua Early, Sr., Jer'h Early, Sr., Thos. Early, John Early) b. 1777, m. Rev. James H. L. Moorman, son of Mrs. Rebecca Leftwich-Moorman, who was the daughter of Augustine Leftwich, Jr., Meth. minister: and who moved to Ky. In 1797 Jas. Moorman held office of Grenader Ensign. The Moorman family is of English ancestry: and the name is derived from "moor" the commons or prairies of England: i. e. "the man of the moor." The motto on the coat of arms is "Esse quam video"—"To be, not seem to be."* The Moormans were Quakers in olden times and long before the Revolutionary war, to avoid persecution in England, migrated to this country: first Charles who settled in one of the southeastern counties of Virginia in 1670 and later moved to Green Springs, Louisa County in 1706. His brother Thomas also came to America. Descendants of these two brothers became citizens of Albemarle, Campbell, Bedford, Louisa, and Hanover counties, Va. The unusual name of Achilles or Achillis, as sometimes written, is repeated through generations of this family.

ISSUE (SURNAMED MOORMAN)

11148—I. Achilles.

(That there were other children may be inferred from the will of Joshua Early, Sr.)

It is learned that there are Moorman descendants about Aberdeen, Miss., who from the connection of that name with Terrell, and the given name, Achilles, seem to indicate that they may be descendants of Rev. Jas. H. Leftwich Moorman and wife, Mary Early, who moved from Campbell Co. to Kentucky early in the 19th century:

*The Thruston coat of arms bore a similar motto "Esse quam videri"—"To be rather than to seem."

Dr. A. L. Moorman, of Boxer, Alabama, belonged in this connection, and he bore the name Achilles.

Bishop John Early (Joshua Early, Sr., Jeremiah Early, Sr., Thomas Early, John Early) m. 1st Anne Jones; she d. s. p.; he m. 2nd in 1822 Elizabeth Browne Rives, dau. of Anthony, son of Timothy Rives and wife, Mary Browne (dau. of Abram Green and wife Elizabeth, the dau. of Henry Browne and Hannah Edwards) and a descendant of Colonel Henry Browne one of the councillors of Governor Wm. Berkley, of Virginia.

John Early b. 1786 in Bedford County, settled in Lynchburg very early in life: he purchased of John Breckenridge Cabell corner lot No. 53 on what was designated as 3rd street and 3rd alley containing 165 ft. front and running back 132 ft., facing obliquely across from where the Court street Methodist church stands: amidst new surroundings, with streets renamed, it remains unchanged after the lapse of many years, still occupied by members of his family.

Until borne down by the infirmity of age John Early took part in every public movement looking to the betterment of the city. His first appearance in public appears to have been at a conference meeting in 1808 at the Methodist Meeting House when he was among the aspirants for the ministry who were received on trial. In 1822 a meeting was held at the same Meth. Meeting House, which had for its purpose the establishment of a free school for the education of poor children: the money was raised by private subscription and in 1823 the Legislature incorporated the Lynchburg Charity School: the Rev. John Early was a member of this school board. This was the town's first organized effort for public education. In 1825 a colonization society was started with the Rev. John Early as president. The purpose was to raise means to send to Africa "all free people of color" who desired to go, and all slaves who were freed on that condition. In 1825 a committee (2nd for this purpose) was formed, of which Rev. John Early was a member, to devise means for bringing water to the city: the proposition was not heartily received as it seemed impracticable to raise water to the required height; but the work was successfully completed in 1829. At a meeting held in 1835 to inaugurate a plan for a railroad, Rev. John Early was among the citizens appointed to petition the Legislature to incorporate the Lynchburg and Tennessee railroad from Lynchburg to the Tennessee line, to connect with the Nashville and New Orleans road: this bill passed in 1836 and authorized the construction of a road from Lynchburg to Richmond. In 1841 a State educational convention was held in Richmond to which several delegates in favor of free education, (Rev. John Early one of them) were sent from Lynchburg. In 1839 a great struggle started for securing a railroad from Lynchburg through the southwest: the promoters of the enterprise met with many discouragements, but when the Legislature passed a bill for the establishment of a Salem railroad to the southwest a ray of hope seemed to dawn. At a town meeting Rev. John Early offered resolutions that a road starting at Lynchburg westward be built and called the Richmond and Ohio road: he was made chairman of the committee appointed on the business to confer with Richmond, but they did so only to meet with disappointment. The citizens became more determined then to build a road and made a brave fight which only successfully terminated on January 16, 1850, when work on the long desired Virginia and Tennessee road was started, after nearly twenty years' efforts to secure it. In 1853 John Early purchased from John Crouse and wife a tract of land leading from the Lynchburg and Salem turnpike to Jones' mill: at this time he and his wife deeded to the citizens of Lynchburg a portion of this tract for a suitable cemetery: an association was formed with Rev. John Early as president, and in June 1856 the reservation christened Spring Hill cemetery was formally dedicated. As stated above Lynchburg fought twenty years to obtain the Virginia and Tennessee railroad. In 1866 it was proposed to consolidate this road and the Southside. The city bitterly opposed it and after a long controversy the proposition was temporarily defeated at a meeting of stockholders presided over by Bishop Early.

John Early joined the Methodist church in 1804 and was licensed to preach two years later when only in his twenty-first year: was admitted to the Virginia Conference in 1807. He began his public labors among the slaves of Mr. Jefferson at Poplar Forest in Bedford County and was noted for his interest in the religious advancement of the colored race. In 1812 he had charge of a church at Greenville; in a letter to his brother Thomas, of Bedford County, written at this place he told of "the sign of the times," "a great many things are being said relative to the present war and a number of young men enlisted as volunteers in Brunswick, expecting to offer their services to the President, and their captain this day solicited me to go with them as chaplain, but I have a more important charge in the care of the churches. There is a diversity of sentiment relative to the war and there are many who are not in sympathy with the administration."

John Early's strong characteristics marked him as a superior man: he possessed an iron constitution, a practical but ardent mind, resolute will and habits vigorously systematic and laborious: was a renowned disciplinarian. His preaching was simple and direct. When only 27 years old he was made presiding elder in the Meherren District: was a chief founder of Randolph-Macon College, and continued to be its rector for many years. In the General Conference of 1832 he received a large vote for the episcopate and would probably have been elected but for his connection with slavery. Possessing surpassing capacity for business he was often called upon for important services by both church and state: was nominated for the Cincinnati Book Agency, and in 1836 for that of New York: was repeatedly nominated for Congress, but he preferred his ministerial office. The general government offered him the governorship of Illinois when it was a territory. President Adams solicited him to accept the same office in the territory of Arkansas and President Tyler that of Controller of the Treasury. He took an active part in the measures that resulted in the division of the church in 1844 and the organization of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South; took part in its convention at Louisville, Ky., in 1845 and was the president pro tempore of its first General Conference at Petersburg, Va., and was then elected its first book agent. In 1854 he was made one of its bishops at Columbus, Georgia. Bishop Early died Nov. 5, 1873, at his home in Lynchburg.

The statement has been credited that this Virginia bishop was a descendant of a similarly named English bishop, one John Early, of Worcester and afterwards Salisbury, England, in the 17th century, author of a humorous work "Microcosmography or a Piece of the World Discovered," a popular treatise on customs, characters and manners of the time,—which ran into eight editions during the life of the author.

A fine portrait of Bishop John Early is owned by his family, and hung for many years in Court Street Methodist Church, at Lynchburg, but was taken down when the old church building was razed.

CHAPTER VI

FIFTH BRANCH OF THE FAMILY OF EARLY

---

FAMILY OF JOSEPH EARLY

---

Joseph Early, the fifth child and fourth son of Jeremiah and Elizabeth Buford-Early, of Culpeper County, Va., was b. about 1740; m. 1762 Jane Paschal: resided in Madison County; d. 1783.

In 1765 Joseph Early was witness to a deed between Isaac Smith and Jer'h Early, Sr.

In 1770 Joseph Early bought 350 acres of land lying between the forks of Rapidan and Robertson rivers, from John and Ann Wilson, of Bromfield parish, Culpeper Co.

In 1772 Joseph Early joined the Baptists and became a member of Rapidan church. The "History of the Baptists in Virginia," by Robert S. Temple, states that "Joseph Early was a distinguished character in his sphere. Rich in this world's goods, he viewed himself as a steward of God, a friend of the friendless, his hands ever open to the poor and needy. He bestowed liberally for all religious purposes: when a meeting house was to be built, or any other plan was in agitation, his purse was easily commanded. His fellow citizens elected him to represent them in the Virginia Legislature in 1783, but he did not live to take his seat. After maintaining an unblamable reputation for piety and goodness he died in great peace."

On February 26, 1776, Joseph Early was commissioned a 2nd lieutenant in Captain Scruggs' company, 5th Va. Reg., commanded by Col. Charles Scott. He was a friend of Washington, who, in journeying to his estates in the valley, visited Lieutenant Early in his home: a watch presented by Washington to one of the children was highly treasured by the family.

On Nov. 28, '76, Joseph Early was commissioned 1st lieutenant. (See Heitman's lists.)

In 1779 Jos'h Early bought of Wm. Russell, of Bromfield parish, 125 acres of land. The same year he bought of Ephraim and Angus Rucker 20 acres on the Court House road, the deed for which was given his son, Paschal, in 1811. The same year bought of Adam Garr 122½ acres in a line of patent granted Michael Holt. Also another tract by estimation 34 acres.

Joseph Early wrote his will in 1780; he had become an invalid and d. 1783. The will (exhibited for record Oct. 20, 1783) bequeathed the land on the Rapidan given him by his father, adjoining the latter's manor place, to his sons, Paschal and William, in an equal division: provided that his sons Whitfield and Joseph should receive his manor house and plantation after the death of their mother: his daughters, Juliana and Mary, were to share with their brothers in the division of lands in the county of Kentucky, also in his two stills: the property lent his wife was to be so divided at her death as that the negroes might not be parted man from wife. He appointed Capt. John Scott, Elijah Craig and Adam Banks, his exc'rs. Elizabeth, his youngest dau. who was born after the writing of his will (and may have been a posthumous child) was not included among the beneficiaries. Some of Joseph Early's descendants remained in Madison County, but many moved to Kentucky, where those bearing his name are to be found at this time.

mother was a Sorrel. John Rucker is believed to have been a descendant of Ambrose, the emigrant. In 1795 John Rucker bought of Jeremiah and Rachel White 135 acres on the side of Neal's mountain: 1797 received the gift of a slave boy from his father, Ephraim, for "love and affection": 1799 John and Juliana Rucker sold to Fr. Collins 100 acres lying in Madison county near Merry Walker's land: in 1805 John and Juliana Rucker made a deed to her sisters and brothers for 125 acres on the waters of Elk Run, Madison county, excepting whereon the Rapidan Meeting house stood: 1806 John and Juliana Rucker sold land adjoining the town of Madison to Joseph Brock; same year John Rucker served as special bail at Madison court: on April 11, 1809, John Rucker served on grand jury at Madison court: 1810 John and Juliana Rucker sold to Richard Booton 396 acres beginning from the C. H. road: they may then have been contemplating moving from the state: in 1811 John Rucker died. His wife outlived him many years, and doubtless went with her children to Kentucky.

The "Rapidan" Meeting house was the church built by Joseph Early, father of Juliana Rucker.

Captain Paschal Early (Joseph Early, Sr., Jeremiah Early, Sr., Thomas Early, John Early) m. Patsy Newman, dau. of Samuel and Patsy Newman-Henshaw (of Madison county, Va.), and neice of James Newman, who m. Mary, sister of Paschal Early.

In 1793. Mrs. Jane Early and her son Paschal Early sold a tract of land on White Oak Run, adjoining the land of Peter Harnsborough and Martin Rouse, to George Wilhoit. 1794 Paschal Early recommended as ensign in a company of Light Infantry of Madison county, declined to serve.

In 1795. Paschal Early was recommended as lieutenant of Militia of Madison Co.: the same year he was sworn in as lieutenant of John Bransford's company according to law: later was commissioned as captain of a company.

In 1795 Paschal Early bought of Benjamin Winslow, of Orange county, a tract of land lying in Madison county, 337 acres beginning near the widow Stonesiffer's house, thence running southwards.

In 1805 Paschal Early and other heirs of Joseph Early, Sr., deceased, deeded to Angus Rucker, Jr., (his nephew) a tract containing by estimation 125 acres lying in Madison Co., upon the waters of Elk Run.

In 1806. An indenture was made between Paschal Early, John Rucker, William Early, Mary Newman, Whitfield Early, and Joseph Early, of Madison Co., of the one part, and Adam Banks, Thomas Graves, Joseph Eddins, Michael S. Berry and Leroy Canaday, elders of the Baptist Rapidan meeting house, of the other part, for $1. in hand paid—when the parties of the first part granted to the said Banks et als, their heirs and successors forever of their faith and order, a tract of land lying in Madison Co., containing two acres bounded at the fork of the road near the spring which is above the meeting-house, thence down the left hand fork south, etc., with all the right, title and claim of the sd Paschal Early, etc., to hold for the use of the sd Baptist church with leave from time to time to repair or add to the present meeting house and to build any other meeting house thereon, and to have divine service therein at such a time as the elders might choose.

In 1808 Paschal Early and his wife Mary sold to Wm. Jones 106 acres lying on Robinson river.

In 1809 Paschal Early, Commissioner, was ordered to divide the estate of Henry Aylor (dec'd) agreeable to the will.

Same year Paschal Early was ordered to hold an election at his mill on the north side of Robinson river on Easter Monday, April 3rd, for the purpose of choosing overseers of the poor for the county in District No. 1.

In 1816 Paschal Early held office of sheriff of Madison county.

In 1819. An indenture was made between Paschal and Mary Early on the one part and the wardens and trustees of the Lutheran church of the other part for 9 acres of land upon which sd Earlys formally resided in Madison county: deed for which was delivered to Daniel Utz, and others.

The will of Captain Paschal Early, written 1824, recorded 1826, provided for the payment of his debts by sale of land he bought of George Rouse, to the line of Michael House, thence to Elliott Blankenbaker's, a piece of wood to be left all the way up the dam with his place, all land south of this line with both mills, also certain negroes or any other part of his perishable property to be sold to the best advantage; the balance of his estate, real and personal, to be divided into four lots, giving his wife first choice—the division to take place the Christmas after his son Albert came of age: Richard to receive his when he came of age, Louisa when she married or came of age. In full confidence of his wife's performance of her obligations, feeling that she would do what was right and be a friend to her children, he asked that the court would require no security of her, in assuming the executorship.

A division of land among the heirs was made in 1831: to his widow  $155\frac{3}{4}$  acres; to Louisa  $332\frac{1}{4}$  acres; to Albert 212 acres; to Richard 174 acres.

Angus Rucker was a soldier in the war for Independence: on Sept. 9, 1781, he was stationed in Amherst county, Va., from which point he wrote Col. Davies that his "instructions in regard to collecting supplies and establishing a magazine at Lynch's ferry have been received," but he recommends "Stovall's ferry, 15 miles below, as a more fitting place, on account of less danger from high water: flour and corn abundant but unless the people are assured of payment, these articles cannot be procured. Bacon is scarce for want of salt." (Calendar of State Papers.) In 1815 Capt. Rucker made over his title to 1,000 acres of Military land (received for service as an officer of the Va. State Line during the Revolution Aug. 11, 1784, warrant No. 98) to Philip Slaughter, with the proviso that "whereas the sd land is located in what is called the Indian Territory and no survey can be made or patent issued for same until the Indian title shall be purchased, it is clearly understood that sd Rucker only sells and transfers his interest, and neither he nor his heirs are to be held responsible for any loss or damage, in case sd land shall never be obtained."

William Early resided in Madison county: his will, written in 1839 and recorded the same year, provided for an equal distribution among his children of the money due him, his wife to be given all the rest of his estate, real and personal, during her life, which at her death was to be divided between his four children: his wife and son Joseph A. In 1799, July 25, Whitfield Early produced an account for his services as a commissioner of revenue, and the court considered that 69 days were requisite for the performance of the service: he was app'd to succeed himself in the office for the ensuing year.

In 1801 he was app'd to view a road from the spring near his mother's land, and to survey the same. This year he resigned from the office of ensign in Capt. Paschal Early's company: was recommended for the position of lieutenant in 1802. Next year he and his brother William were witnesses to the last will of ——— Vawter, and were ordered to appraise the estate of Vawter. The same year he was recommended as fit and proper to act as the captain of a company in place of Joseph Porter, and was sworn in as a captain of Light Infantry. In 1804 he was app'd to view a road from German Ridge to Yager's Spring: 1805 was one of the appraisers of Reuben Fry's estate: 1806 served on grand and petit jury in Madison County, Va. Between the years 1806-09 he had moved with his family to Boone county, Ky.: settled two miles from Petersburg, on the Ohio river. In 1809 a power of attorney from his brothers in Virginia was ordered to be certified to Boone county, Ky. In 1824 he certified that Willis Graves' signature was in due form of law: he was then presiding magistrate of Boone county, Ky. In Oct. of same year he received from his brother Joseph of Madison county $10,000 for his part of the land upon which his mother lived which was willed him by his father.

Col. John Field was a lieutenant under Washington in Braddock's campaign; went with the Virginia troops at the battle of Pt. Pleasant; and for his services there his heirs were granted a large tract of land in what became Bourbon county, Ky. His residence in St. Mark's parish was called Field Manor: he was killed at Pt. Pleasant in 1774. In his will, recorded 1775, he bequeathed to his son, John, his lands on the north side of Mountain Run (the land he purchased of Wm. J. Triflett), and app'd him one of his excrs: the estate included land on the Rappahannock river at what was called Kelly's Ford.

In 1790 Joel Early made the gift of a slave, George, to his niece, Betsy, the dau. of Joseph Early, deceased, "in consideration of the love and affection which he has for sd. Betsy." In 1799 John Field and his wife, Elizabeth Early-Field, sold to Wm. Early, of Madison county, the tract of land upon which they lived, excepting  $\frac{1}{2}$  acre reserved for a graveyard. On Feb. 25, 1808, John Field, a justice of the peace for Madison county, was app'd commissioner to value property taken under execution of the law. In 1808-9 John Field, sheriff, was paid commission for collections. John Field remained in Madison county several years later, then moved to Bourbon county, Ky. On Dec. 8, 1815, he wrote to his dau., Eliza, who was visiting in Virginia, "Your letter I received yesterday stating a thing you know I was always opposed against—that is, for girls to marry under the age of 18 years. Mr. Henshaw is a gentleman to whom I have no right to object, being of a family I always respected. Your friends in Virginia must be your guide. Whatever they think best will be satisfactory to me." John and Eliz'h Field had other children besides this dau. (who remained in Virginia) but as the rest of his family lived in Kentucky, it has not been possible to find records giving their names or residences.

CHAPTER VII

SIXTH BRANCH OF THE FAMILY OF EARLY

---

THE FAMILY OF JACOB EARLY

Jacob Early (5th son of Jeremiah Early and his wife, Elizabeth Buford) was born and reared in Culpeper county, but moved first to Bedford county, where he married Elizabeth Robertson, and after living there a few years went to Georgia, settling in Wilkes county. He died in 1794, leaving a widow and five daughters, but only the eldest, Ann (or Nancy, as she was called) was then married. His will, recorded in 1806, gives the names of his daughters, and appoints his wife, Elizabeth, and son-in-law, Buckner Harris, executors of his estate. The will was probated in Athens, Clarke county; in it he bequeathes the tract of land upon which he lived with all household goods, to his wife, for her life-time, then that and a tract of land on Long Creek, was to be sold for division among his daughters, for whom he provided in the interim, by the distribution among them of slaves and stock: his will was recorded again in 1828.

Jacob Early and Elizabeth Robertson were married March 18, 1767. In 1779 he was one of Col. James Callaway's securities in £200.000 on his bond as executor of Col. Jeremiah Early, Jr. (his brother). While living in Bedford County he was recommended as the proper person to fill the office of captain of a company. In 1782 served as a justice of the peace in Bedford county. Between 1783-86 he had traveled to Wilkes County, Georgia, where he sought and obtained headright grants. "Gov. Wright, in 1773, made a purchase from the Indians of a large tract of land north of Little river, and stretching westward to the Ogeechee. It was known while he was in office as the 'ceded lands.' By the Constitution of 1777 all of this section was included in one county called Wilkes, in honor of the reckless John Wilkes, who had distinguished himself as the friend of the colonies. It was a section of great fertility and beauty. The people from the older colonies speedily found homes in this newly-opened territory, and in 1790, when Georgia had in it only 82,000 people, Wilkes had 32,000 of this number in its boundary, nearly all of whom were native Americans, who came mainly from Virginia." "His. of Georgia." (Rev. Geo. G. Smith.)

A nephew of the same name lived in Bedford County, Virginia, while this Jacob was resident there, and one might easily confuse the records of the two. But the younger Jacob (or Jacobus) became a citizen of Campbell when that county was formed, and many records concerning Bedford-Campbell residents were transferred to the new clerk's office. Jacob, the elder, was the first of the name to locate in Georgia; doubtless he induced his nephew, Jeffrey Early (son of Jeremiah 2nd) and his youngest brother, Joel, to follow him, for before the century closed all three families were established in that state. In 1792 Jacob Early was one of the justices of the peace in Wilkes county: he died two years later.

Jacob Early (Jeremiah Early, Sr., Thomas Early, John Early) m. Elizabeth Robertson in Bedford County, Virginia.

ISSUE (SURNAMED EARLY).

- 1116—1. Ann ("Nancy") b. 1769; m. 1790 General Buckner Harris.
- 1116—2. Sally.
- 1116—3. Elizabeth.
- 1116—4. Mary.
- 1116—5. Alice ("Alcey").

Ann Early (Jacob Early, Jer'h Early, Sr., Thos. Early, John Early) m. Gen. Buckner Harris (b. 1761, d. 1815). Members of this Early-Harris family lived at Jackson, Hazelhurst, Columbus, and West Point, Miss.

THE HARRIS FAMILY

This name is of Welsh origin, and in the Celtic language means "an heir or son." The original seat was in the town of Anniston, Wales.

The family crest, as given by Mr. Elven in his collection, is a hedgehog or porcupine charged with a key Az, "Ubique patriam reminisce." Another crest of the family, is an arm grasping a dart.

During the religious troubles growing out of the dissensions between the Puritans, and Presbyterians and the established church of England in the reigns of James I and Charles I, the Harrises fled from Glamorgan to Brittany and Navarre. There they united with the Huguenots remaining till the reign of Charles II. Returning to England they stayed there till after the revocation of the Edict of Nantes, when the Welsh Baptists turned to America. Between 1691 and 1761 the Huguenots emigrated to America settling Manakin town: the Harris family settled with them: from Manakin a branch of Harris' settled in Brunswick Co.: the names Buckner and Augustine are found in this branch. Characteristics of the family are great height, light grey eyes and red skin; remarkable memories and good conversational powers.

In 1691 William and Mary granted to Henry Harris and John Jordan ten square miles of crown lands in the county of Powhatan, Va., on James River. Walton Harris, a descendant,—eldest son of Nathan Harris, b. 1716, and his wife, Catherine, (the dau. of George Walton, of Brunswick Co.) b. 1739, d. 1809, m. 1760 Rebecca, b. 1744, dau. of Sampson Lanier and wife, Elizabeth Chamberlain. Sampson Lanier was son of Thomas Lanier and his wife, Elizabeth (dau. of John Washington), and grandson of Louis Lanier, of Bordeaux, France.

John Washington b. in England in 1634, emigrated with his brother Andrew, to America in 1657 settling in Westmoreland Co., Va.: he was chosen commander against Indians of Maryland and for his services was made colonel. His son Lawrence m. Mildred, dau. of Augustine Warner and wife Elizabeth, who was dau. of Geo. Reade and wife Elizabeth, (dau. of Capt. Nicolas Martian). John Washington, son of Lawrence m. Miss Whiting and their dau. Elizabeth m. Thos. Lanier, of which marriage Sampson Lanier was the youngest child.

Walton and Rebecca Harris removed with their children from Brunswick to the celebrated fishery at the narrows of the Yadkin river in North Carolina and from thence to Wilkes County, Georgia; thence near to the Schull shoals on the Oconee river in Greene County, Georgia.

Their eldest son, Buckner, was born 1761; at an early age he was engaged in fighting Tories and Indians in the Revolutionary War.

Walton Harris and sons, Buckner and Sampson, were of the Continental troops under Generals Greene and Elijah Clarke in the campaign around Augusta, Ga., when the fort was held by Colonel Brown, a British officer. Walton was made prisoner during the Augusta battle. His home was burnt by the British, and his wife and family were forced to take refuge in a haystack. After the war he drew lands in Georgia for his service. He was a member of the General Assembly in 1783: was granted 400 acres of land in Wilkes County in 1787. (Records in state office at Atlanta, Ga.)

The will of Walton Harris written and recorded in Greene County, Ga., 1809, mentions his dau. Betsy and six sons, Buckner, Augustine, Walton, Jephtha, Edwin and Sampson (deceased): appoints Peter Early, Geo. Stovall, Ro. Royston, his sons, Augustine and Walton, executors, his wife, Rebecca, executrix: witnesses Joel Colley, Nimrod Dickens, Anna A. Early and Sarah Royston. Walton Harris, Jr., m. Virginia Beverly Billups.

General Buckner Harris resided with his family at St. Augustine, Florida. Under secret orders from Madison's cabinet, he occupied a part of East Florida, then owned by Spain (was general of the American troops called the Patriots) but in its diplomatic intercourse with Spain, the government disavowed its complicity. General Harris was assassinated under a reward offered for his head by the Spanish governor in 1815. His widow moved with her younger children to Jackson, Miss., where descendants yet reside.

Wm. E. Jones, of Franklin College, was a very talented man: edited a paper at Athens, Ga.; later was a member of the Georgia Legislature: edited a paper at Augusta, where he also practiced law. He moved to Texas, was a member of its Congress before its annexation and became a judge of the state court. When the whole court in San Antonio was taken prisoners by the Mexicans he was put into the Mill prison and required to draw for the "Black Bean," as it was called—all who drew black beans were to be shot. He drew a white bean, and was thrown back into prison, but afterwards made his escape: a son captured with Judge Jones was never heard from and is supposed to have been murdered by Mexicans.

Letitia Harris (Ann E. Harris, Jacob Early, Jer'h Early, Sr., Thos. Early, John Early) m. Dr. David C. Dickson, Jr., a member of Congress from Mississippi; also Consul to San Antonio, Mexico: lived first in Jackson County, Ga., but moved to Mississippi. Dr. Dickson died in 1833 while serving in Congress, and was buried at Hot Springs, Ark.: he was a prominent figure in the early history of his state. Mrs. Nancy Early-Harris died while on a visit to her daughter, Letitia Harris-Dickson, though she made her home with her son, Dr. Wiley P. Harris.

Wm. Dickson, emigrant, of Scotch ancestry, married his cousin, Elizabeth, of Irish extraction, dau. of Col. John Dickson, a Revolutionary soldier. David Dickson (son of Wm. and Eliz'h Dickson) m. (2nd wife) Martha Cureton; their son, David C. Dickson m. Laetitia, dau. of Gen. Buckner and Ann Early-Harris. David Dickson, Sr., was born in Pendleton County, South Carolina, in 1750; died in Fayette County, Ga., in 1830. In 1775 he joined the American forces at Snowy Crest on Reedy river. In 1777 as captain of artillery he carried a company of Minute men to Georgia, where he was stationed on the frontier. In 1778 he went with the army to capture St. Augustine, which enterprise miscarrying, the company disbanded. He returned to South Carolina, joined the standard of Independence, serving till the end of the war as captain of artillery: was a terror to Tories, who gave him the nick name of "Long Pat." After the war he was elected to the Georgia Senate as long as he would serve: was also appointed and served as general of the Georgia Militia.

1116171—2. Sarah Blackburn b. 1849; m. Dr. J. J. Kirkbride.

Mary Brower Massey (Emily E. H. Massey, Dr. Chas. W. Harris, Ann E. Harris, Jacob Early, Jer'h Early, Sr., Thos. Early, John Early) m. 1866 Dr. Joseph E. Lynch. Mrs. Lynch was unusually clever and well educated: graduated with honors from St. Agnes Dominican Academy at Memphis, Tenn.: she d. of yellow fever at Port Gibson, Miss., in 1878, leaving a very young daughter, Ethel, who thus orphaned, lived with her guardian in Memphis, but while still of tender years, joined an aunt at the Dominican nunnery in Ohio.

Dr. Lynch was of Irish parentage: the family includes a long line of surgeons dating back to William the Conqueror, when they are said to have gone to England from France and been prominent in the history of Ireland. Dr. Lynch graduated at the N. Y. Medical College, after taking a collegiate course with the Dominicans at St. Joseph's College, Somerset, Ohio, and reading medicine with his father, Dr. Edward Lynch. He entered the U. S. Army as surgeon on Maj. Gen. Tremont's staff in 1861 and remained in the army till the close of the war, when he was given charge of hospitals established by Grant at Memphis: he rose from youngest staff surgeon in service to the rank of Major-Surgeon. In Memphis he was presented with testimonials of esteem and a set of surgical instruments in recognition of his superiority. Philadelphia College honored him and invited him to give clinics at that institution. He met Mary Brower Massey when she was attending St. Agnes' School in Memphis, through Fr. Rochford, who had been his professor and friend, and was then at St. Peters in Memphis. Their marriage occurred in 1866 at Port Gibson, Miss.; though opposed by her family because Dr. Lynch was a Catholic and officer in the Northern Army. They lived in Memphis for a time, his health failing, he moved to New York in order to build up a practice, but died suddenly in 1875. The father of Joseph Lynch, Dr. Edward Lynch, was born in Drogheda, Ireland, on the Irish Sea: graduated at the College of Physicians and Surgeons, at Glasgow, Scotland: m. ## CHAPTER VIII

SEVENTH BRANCH OF THE FAMILY OF EARLY

ALLIED WITH ROGERS

---

FAMILY OF ANN EARLY-ROGERS

7th child and 2nd dau. of Jeremiah and Elizabeth Buford-Early.

Giles Rogers emigrated from Worcestershire, England, early in the 17th century, to that part of Virginia which became King and Queen County. He married Miss Easom and had a large family. He was the ancestor of Joseph Rogers, Sr., who settled in Culpeper county, and whose will was recorded there in 1761. His son, Joseph Rogers, Jr., b. 1742, m. Ann, dau. of Jeremiah Early, Sr. They lived in Culpeper some years but moved in 1782 to Fayette County, Kentucky, settling at Bryant's Station. In a list of members of the church at this place the name of Ann Rogers is the first given.

Bryant's Station was a fort on the Elkhorn, five miles from Lexington, Ky. A siege occurred there Aug. 15, 1782: the battle of Blue Licks followed, and in this engagement Bernard Rogers, brother of Joseph, Jr., was killed. The fort contained about 40 cabins, placed in parallel lines, connected by strong palissades and garrisoned by forty or fifty men. It was a parallelogram of 30 rods in length by 20 in breadth, forming an enclosure of nearly four acres, which was protected by a trench four feet deep in which strong and heavy pickets were planted by ramming the earth well down against them. These were twelve feet out of the ground, being formed of hard, durable timber at least a foot in diameter. At the angles were small squares or block houses, which projected beyond the palisades and served to give additional strength at the corners as well as permitted the besieged to pour a raking fire across the advancing party of assailants. Two folding gates were in front and rear, swinging on prodigious wooden hinges, sufficient for the passage in and out of men and wagons in times of security. These gates were provided with bars. During the famous siege of 1782 the women, at the peril of their lives, obtained water for the soldiers from the spring at the foot of the hill. This spring has been enclosed with an ornamental and stout stone wall.

In leaving Virginia Joseph Rogers exchanged his farm, called "Horse Shoe Bend," with John Preston, of Culpeper, Va., for 3,000 acres of land near Lexington, Ky., known as the "Bryant Station" farm, and at first the family lived at the station. Later he built a house upon the site of the fort, some timber of which was used in the construction of his dwelling. This land remained in the possession of his family till about twenty-five years ago.

Ann Early (Jeremiah Early, Thomas Early, John Early) m. Joseph Rogers, Jr., son of Joseph Rogers, Sr., of Culpeper County, Va. Moved to Bryant Station, Ky.

After the death of Ann Early-Rogers, Joseph Rogers married twice, and lived to be ninety-odd years of age: was buried at the Bryant Station home: married 2d Mrs. Jane Farrar, widow of Joseph Royal Farrar, of Covington, Ky.: married 3d Susan Coons, of Fayette County, Ky. His son, Dr. Coleman Rogers, married Jane Farrar, the dau. of his step-mother, the second wife of Joseph Rogers.

and the Saxon, Harold, the Pope, setting aside justice, decided in the Norman's favor and consecrated the banner to be bourne in the invasion of England. The standard bearer's name was Tostien, and tradition says he was a nephew of the Conqueror. In the battle of Hastings "so brave was he, so well he led," and so loud his cries of "En avant" that some despairing Saxon caught at the sound and called him "Thruston" and Tostien adopted the soubriquet as his name. In the division of land which followed the conquest, the Domesday Book says, the "Story-haunted Camelot" fell to the Thrustons. ("Some Prom. Va. Fam.," Louise Pacquet du Bellet.)

Jane Rogers (Dr. Coleman Rogers, Ann E. Rogers, Jer'h Early, Sr., Thos. Early, John Early) m. Hon. Henry Pirtle, of Louisville, Kentucky.

Henry Pirtle b. 1798 in Washington County, Ky., was on his father's side of German and Welsh extraction; through his mother he was descended from a Swedish family, who had been at the court of Gustavus Adolphus and coincided with that prince in his scheme of Christianizing the western world. They were his missionaries, and included in the patent issued by his dau. Christiana in 1638 for the country lying on the west side of the Delaware river. His father John Pirtle and wife were among the early settlers in Kentucky from Virginia. It was the habit for persons bound for that country to rendezvous for fifty or a hundred miles around at some appointed place and travel in company with arms in their hands. His parents arrived at the place of meeting and found they had mistaken the day, and the company had gone on two days before, so they travelled horseback by wilderness path across the mountains alone till they reach the Crab Orchard.

Till he was eighteen years old Henry lived in the country, attending neighborhood schools, with instruction from his father: at sixteen he invented a plan, not before known, of ascertaining the sun's rising and setting in any latitude where the days are only twenty-four hours long. He studied law at Bardstown, under the Hon. John Rowan, an eminent western jurist. After reading law for three years he appeared at the bar, establishing his office in Hartford, Ohio Co., and attending courts of a large circuit. In the Green River country, the principal sources of litigation were conflicting land claims: at the end of five years, most of these claims being adjusted he moved to Louisville. A few months later and at 27 years of age he was appointed judge of the General Court and Fifth District: he held this office five years, when he resigned and engaged in practice in the courts of Louisville and Court of Appeals and Federal Court at Frankfort. Mr. Clay, when opposing counsel in a great case, said to the jury "The solemn force of the gentleman's manner is irresistible." In 1846 the commission of judge with same salary as that of Chief Justice of the State was sent him: he held it for a few days to save the term of the court and resigned it. He became chancellor of Louisville Chancery Court: founder of the Law School at Louisville Univ.: eschewed political office. In 1840 was induced by the people of his district to take a seat in the State Senate: remained the appointed time then returned to his constituents.

CHAPTER IX

EIGHTH BRANCH OF THE FAMILY OF EARLY

---

ALLIED WITH SCOTT

FAMILY OF HANNAH EARLY-SCOTT

Hannah Early, 3rd dau. of Jeremiah and Elizabeth Buford Early, m. John Scott and moved from Culpeper County, Va., to the neighborhood of Frankfort, Kentucky, where some of her descendants still live.

Capt. John Scott b. June 26, 1748, was the son of Thomas Scott, who emigrated from Scotland to Virginia and settled in that part of Culpeper county, which was cut off later to form Madison. He was a justice of the peace in Culpeper, captain in the Revolutionary army; his name appears frequently in the county records. In 1785 John Scott moved with his family to Kentucky, settling on a large and fertile farm in Scott county. Here he amassed considerable wealth and gained the love and respect of the entire countryside. He died Nov. 20, 1815; his wife died June 1, 1828, at their residence.

Hannah Early (Jeremiah Early, Sr., Thomas Early, John Early) m. 1770 John Scott, son of Thomas Scott.

- 1118—5. Ezekiel m. Dorothy Hawkins.
- 1118—6. Sarah d. infant.
- 1118—7. Eleanor m. Harbin Branham.

There were five branches of this family: some of whom having moved to the far western country and their addresses being unknown it has not been possible to complete their record.

Mary Scott (Hannah Early-Scott, Jeremiah Early, Sr., Thomas Early, John Early) m. John Brooking, of Scott County, Ky.

11182—1. Samuel Brooking, of Hart County, Ky.

Thomas Scott (Hannah Early-Scott, Jeremiah Early, Thomas Early, John Early) m. Miss Parker.

ISSUE (SURNAMED SCOTT).

11183—1. John.

11183—2. Parker.

Joel Scott (Hannah Early Scott, Jeremiah Early, Sr., Thomas Early, John Early) born Nov. 15, 1781, near Abingdon, Va., went, when but a small boy, with his parents to Scott County, Ky.: married Dec. 24, 1805, Rebecca Ridgeley Wilmot (the dau. of Colonel Robert Wilmot, of Fayette County, Ky.), born in Maryland (her parents' former home), Jan'y 3, 1784. Joel Scott resided on a large farm in Scott county near his father's homestead. By perseverance he became one of the wealthiest residents of central Kentucky. He possessed mechanical ability of a high order and soon after his marriage established, near his home, a woolen mill for the manufacture of broadcloth, blankets and suitings. On account of the war, prevailing at the time with Great Britain, and consequent curtailment of the importation of woolens, his venture was immediately very successful. This was the first woolen mill started west of the Alleghanies. In 1817 he sold his mill and farm, on account of the poor health of his wife, and moved with his family to Georgetown, Scott County, Ky. He invested here in various enterprises and within two years established another and larger mill in which he manufactured both woolen and cotton goods. His wife died April 3, 1820, and on Oct. 24, 1821, he married Mrs. Deborah Gano, widow of General Richard M. Gano.

In 1824 he sold out his interests in Georgetown and again moved to Frankfort, Ky. He then turned his attention to conditions existing in the state penitentiary and conceived the idea that vast benefit would accrue to the state and inmates were the latter accorded better conditions and treatment and the opportunity of mental and physical occupation. Up to that time the condition prevailing in the penitentiary was deplorable, and the institution was a great expense to the state. His finances being then such as to make him independent of salary, he decided to endeavor to put his theories into practice and soon after was appointed Superintendent of the penitentiary. Immediately he instituted radical reforms and the results of his efforts were soon apparent. He equipped a woolen mill within the prison walls at his own expense and soon had many of the inmates employed at profitable manual labor. Other shops were started and in the course of a few years the prison was a source of income instead of expense to the state, and a model which other states imitated. On account of ill health he was compelled to give up this work in 1834, when he retired to a home he had built in Woodford county, near his former farm, where he died June 28, 1860. His 2nd wife, Deborah Scott, died 1863 at the same place.

"Kentucky state prison at Frankfort was established in 1798. Under the operation of the Acts of the legislature, no revenue was derived to the state from the penitentiary: for 20 years it was a dead expense. In 1825 Joel Scott was appointed agent and keeper by act of assembly and entered upon his duties in the nature of a contract with the state, stipulating to pay one-half the profits and guaranteeing they should not fall below a stipulated sum. To him is due the credit of introducing the Auburn system under which Kentucky penitentiary has long been the most prosperous institution of the kind in the United States or the world. He was appointed for 2 terms of 5 years each, but relinquished the last term on account of ill health. The average number of prisoners during 9 years was 85, and clear average earnings of prison over and above expenses were $70,000: the heaviest branch of business was the manufacture of baggage and rope." ("Historical Sketches," Collins.)

Colonel Robert Wilmot, father of Rebecca R. W. Scott, was a lieutenant of artillery from Baltimore County, Maryland, and served throughout the Revolutionary war. He went to Kentucky from Maryland in 1786 and settled in what is now Bourbon county, on a magnificent landed estate, where he lived and died. In 1796 he was elected to the legislature from his county and more than once re-elected. In 1799 he was a member of the convention which framed the 2nd constitution of Kentucky. He was conspicuous for his good judgment and devotion to his county.

Colonel Robert Wilmot Scott (Joel Scott, Hannah Early-Scott, Jer'h Early, Sr., Thos. Early, John Early) b., 1808, in Scott County, Ky.; d., 1884, in Frankfort; m., 1831, Elizabeth Watts, dau. of Dr. Preston W. Brown and Elizabeth Watts, his wife, of Frankfort. Dr. P. W. Brown was a son of the Rev. John Brown and his wife, Margaret Preston, of Virginia; was a very learned physician and surgeon: d. in Louisville, 1826.

Colonel Robert W. Scott attended Transylvania University, then the most celebrated institution of learning in the west: graduated with distinction under Dr. Horace Holley, President. Upon the retirement of Dr. Holley, young Scott was selected to prepare an address expressive of their respect for the departing president—which he did to the satisfaction of all. At the end of his college course Ro. W. Scott commenced the study of law, first in the office of Hoggin and Loughbrough, of Frankfort, and later with Chief Justice John Boyle, of Mercer county. In Sept., 1829, he was licensed to practice his profession by Judges Daniel Myers and Thos. M. Hickey, before he had reached his 21st year. The following winter he toured the country in order to see and hear the great men of the nation. In Washington he heard the debate between Webster and Hayne, on Foote's Resolution, in which they discussed the theory of the government and proper construction of the constitution. From Washington Mr. Scott went to Richmond, Va., to attend the debate of the 2nd Constitutional Convention of Virginia, meeting there Presidents Madison and Munroe, Chief Justice Marshall, and John Randolph, of Roanoke. Returning to Frankfort he began his law practice as a partner of Judge James Hoggin, one of his preceptors.

Failing health caused him to retire after several years' practice. He bought a beautiful estate, "Locust Hill," in Franklin County, Ky., near the Woodford line, and began farming, becoming a leading agriculturist. He was one of the earliest and most ardent friends of the common school system and was the first school commissioner appointed in his county, and had the first school house in the county erected. In 1849 he ran as delegate to the state constitutional convention held that year, but was defeated because of his opposition to an elective judiciary.

In 1843 he became a Baptist and soon after was made deacon, licentiate and moderator of his church at the "Fork of Elkhorn," holding these offices till his death. In 1850 he organized and became superintendent of the first Baptist Sunday school established in Frankfort. He was moderator of the Franklin Association, trustee of Georgetown College, President of the Board of Trustees of the Western Baptist Theological Institute at Covington and an active advocate of temperance reform till his death at 76 years. The Franklin Farmer was founded mainly through his influence. He was appointed by Gov. Magoffin a Commissioner of the Feeble-minded Institute and President of the Board. Colonel Scott was made Chairman of the State Democratic Central Committee and exerted himself in the re-organization of the party in Kentucky. Failing health induced him to establish a winter home in Orange County, Florida, where he spent a part of every year.

Dr. Scott at 9 yrs. of age was the first public school pupil in the state: he graduated from Georgetown College in 1849, and next attended the University of Tennessee, from which he graduated with honor. In 1856 he graduated in medicine from the University of Louisville, and was made an interne of the city hospital. He settled in Bolivar County, Miss. When the war broke out Dr. Scott was appointed surgeon in the 4th Ky. Reg. under Col. Robert Trabue. From this position he was promoted Brigade surgeon, under Gen. Jos. E. Johnston. As surgeon on the staff of Gen. Polk, Dr. Scott was in charge of all the hospitals of Mississippi and Alabama. He also served with Gen. Stephen D. Lee, Gen. Dabney Maury and Gen. Rich'd Taylor. At the conclusion of the war Dr. Scott moved to Louisville, where he remained till his death, ranking high as a physician. Dr. Scott was president of the Association of Physicians and Surgeons C. S. A. & N. V. at Louisville: medical director of the Masonic Widows and Orphans Home, and the Young Woman's Home; president of the Academy of Medicine and Surgery; president of the Louisville Medical Society, and prominently identified with the Polytechnic: died at Norton Infirmary after an illness of two months from typhoid fever.

YOUNGEST BRANCH OF THE FAMILY OF EARLY

---

FAMILY OF JOEL EARLY, OF GREENE COUNTY, GA.

---

Joel Early, youngest child of Jeremiah and Elizabeth Buford-Early, of Culpeper, later Madison County, Va., was educated at Washington College, Lexington: m. 1772 Lucy, sister of Joseph Smith of Culpeper Co., and also a sister of Mrs. Abner Porter, near Orange C. H., an aunt of Mrs. Jeremiah Morton née Smith, of Culpeper; and related to the Barbour family of Orange and Culpeper. Joel resided in Culpeper until 1791 when he disposed of his Culpeper property and moved with his family to Wilkes (now Greene) County, Ga., where he acquired large landed interests.

In 1773 Joel Early bought of Waller and Sarah Lewis, of Spotsylvania County, 568 acres on the east side of Stanton river, adjoining the land of Jeremiah Early, dec'd.

In 1781 Joel Early, of the Revolutionary forces, was stationed at Travis Point: on September 25th of this year "Joel Early, lieutenant commanding, informs Gov. Nelson of the capture of vessels laden with stores by the British plundering boats. These latter are very active, but he will watch their movements and give timely notice of their operations." (Calendar of State Papers.)

In 1783 Joel Early bought of Adam and Gracey Banks 224 acres lying at the headwaters of Wilson's river, a branch of Stanton, for 10,000 lbs. nett crop of tobacco.

Jeremiah Early's will exhibited for record on February 19, 1787, bequeathed "to my son Joel my Manor house and all lands adjoining, with every part of my estate not before devised including my still and its appurtenances" and appointed Joel his executor.

On Nov. 8, 1787, Joel Early bought of Elijah Kirtley for the Jeremiah Early Est. land beginning at Ben. Smith's on the river near the mouth of a branch, for 50,000 lbs. nett of tobacco.

In March 1788 Joel Early was a delegate from Culpeper County to the Virginia Convention, when, being a firm democrat in politics, he voted for the Declaration of Rights before adoption of the Constitution.

In 1789 Joel Early obtained patents for a tract of land in Kentucky which was surveyed by him and patented by the state of Virginia: later Kentucky issued patents for the same land and other claimants entered into possession. The disputed claims lay in the counties of Pike, Floyd, Knight and Letcher on the Licking river. (A few years ago an effort was started to recover the patented lands for the heirs of Joel Early by forcing the title under the old patents.)

On Nov. 23, 1789, Charles Hammond made a deed to Joel Early, ex'cr, for 310 acres on the north fork of James river (upon which Hammond lived) for 2,550 lbs. nett tobacco, each hogshead to weigh 1,000 lbs. inspected at Petersburg, Va., for the use of legatees under the will of Jer'h Early: also 13 slaves for the use of sd legatees.

On April 15, 1790, Joel Early made the gift of a slave to his niece, Betsy, dau. of Joseph Early, dec'd, "for the love and affection he has for her."

A letter dated Dec. 4, 1790, from Elijah Craig bargained for purchase of land in Culpeper Co., from Joel Early, payment for which was partly to be made with a note due to Craig by Hon. John Cobb, of Georgia, in the hand of Capt. Prettyman Merry. Joel Early was then arranging to go to Georgia and Craig asked that he would "be so kind as to take the account with you and get it settled for me:" this letter was recorded by Early in Orange County Feb. 29, 1791.

In 1791 Joel Early sold to Adam Banks, of Culpeper Co., lands on the west bank of the Rapidan river, this being the Manor house and plantation of Jeremiah Early dec'd, by estimation 595 acres and another tract adjoining on same side of the river, formerly the property of Zack Lewis, dec'd, containing 568 acres, the two tracts containing 1,163 acres altogether.

On March 31, 1791, Joel Early sold to Wm. Kirtley 294 acres lying at the head of Wilson's, a branch of Stanton river, in Culpeper County, Va.

During the year 1791 Joel Early moved to the state of Georgia, settling in what was then Wilkes, but later included within the boundaries of Greene County. He purchased a large body of land in the northeast corner of the county on the Oconee river, which contained about 3000 acres mostly of very fertile land upon which he built "Early's Manor:" here he kept up the style of an old English baron, and was a leader in all undertakings of political importance. He held also large interests in the Yazoo Company which benefitted his Watkins grand-children: he was a very large man, weighing nearly three hundred pounds, and was somewhat eccentric, though a man of culture, and gave his sons the best advantages the country afforded. In 1807 he wrote his will, a unique document, elaborately and carefully drawn. After various bequests, he left the rest of his property to trustees, who were his sons, to hold, till the legatees, certain favorite sons, were forty-five years old: the daughters were to have a support if the income was sufficient. He gave directions not only for the distribution of his property, but as to the methods of pruning his orchards and resting the fields: two of his sons, who had displeased him, were disinherited. His death occurred in 1807.

Gov. Peter Early (Joel Early, Sr., Jeremiah Early, Sr., Thomas Early, John Early) m. Ann Adams, dau. of Francis Smith and wife, Lucy Wilkinson, of Essex County, Va., and sister of Gen. Thomas A. Smith, of U. S. Army, who m. Cynthia White and in whose honor Fort Smith, Ark., was named. Francis Smith was son of Col. Francis Smith, the son of Col. Nicholas Smith, who was son of Nicolas Smith, of Piscatoway, Va.

Peter Early, the eldest son of Joel Early, graduated at Princeton College in the class of 1792, then studied law under the direction of Jared Ingersoll in Philadelphia. Upon being admitted to the bar he joined the remainder of his father's family in Georgia and soon became distinguished as one of the foremost lawyers in his section of the state. He was elected in 1802 to fill the vacancy in Congress occasioned by the resignation of John Milledge, (chosen governor at that time) and took his seat in the House of Representatives in Jan'y 1803: was twice re-elected and continued to represent his district until 1807. He became an ardent supporter of the policy of Thomas Jefferson and bore a prominent part in the discussions of the time. Brilliant oratory and rigid severity of principle won for him the confidence of his co-legislators, who selected him as a champion, when the cause of popular rights or of incorruptibility in administration of affairs demanded a defender. In 1804 he was appointed a member of the committee charged with presenting to the senate articles of impeachment against Samuel Chase of Maryland. His speech at the trial of Judge Chase was pronounced to be the ablest delivered in the cause and elicited from John Randolph, of Roanoke, (an associate on the committee) the remark that "after the effort of this young Ajax from the forests of Georgia," an address from himself in the interests of the prosecution would be an useless task.

Hon. Peter Early was present at the Congressional Debate upon the reception of Jay's treaty: saw Fisher Ames fall after making his last speech. At the close of his Congressional term he declined re-election and resumed the practice of his profession, but was immediately and without opposition, chosen judge of Ocmulgee, one of the four superior courts into which the circuits of Georgia were divided. His judicial career so far commended him to the favor of his fellow citizens that in 1813 he was elected governor of the state by a large majority. While in the gubernatorial office he gave a cordial and hearty support to the administration of President Madison, under the trying ordeal of the war then raging with Great Britain. The spirit that animated him was finely exhibited by his action when called upon by the Federal Sec. of War for a loan of $80,000 by Georgia to the general government. He responded to the demand by drawing his warrant for the amount without waiting to obtain the consent of the Legislature. On being remonstrated with for this act by one who expressed a fear that a possible result of the war might be a disruption of the Union, when there would be no Federal government to account for the loan, he replied "Should such an event occur all will be lost together, if no Union, there will be no States, and property, public or private, will be without value or use."

In 1814 the Legislature of Georgia was induced to pass a law entitled "The Alleviating Act," the object of which was to arrest the collection of debts. This statute Gov. Early peremptorily vetoed, thereby arousing great hostility to himself and so impaired his popularity that on becoming a candidate for re-election he was defeated. A letter written in 1815 by Wm. H. Crawford, then in Paris, to Sen. Chas. Tait, regrets "the breach between Gov. Early and the Legislature," and hopes "that the good temper and magnanimity displayed by Early will heal the rupture. There is nothing in the transaction which ought to change the sentiments which the governor and the Legislature previously entertained of each other, for the questions in dispute between them are not of that simple and unsophisticated nature as to exclude all difference of opinion. It was the solemn duty of both parties to examine for themselves and obey the convictions produced by that examination. This they have done under solemn oath and there the matter ought to rest."

Gov. Early resumed his law practice, but at the insistence of the citizens of his county, served as State senator, which office he continued to hold until his death.

A quixotic sense of justice was a distinguishing characteristic of Peter Early, which was exemplified in his disposition of his father's will, of which he had been made the executor. The latter actuated by an impulse of resentment against other children, made Peter his principal legatee. After the death of his parent, Peter summoned his brothers and sisters to a reading of the will, when he said to them "Were I to accept the benefits of our father's will to your exclusion, I should be doing you a great wrong; without this will we should all share alike; as a simple act of justice, I here cast the will into the fire."

Georgia honored Gov. Early by bestowing his name on several localities. There is Early County into which all Southern Georgia was divided in 1818. It included a large part of Southwestern Georgia, and though a number of counties have been carved from it, is still a large county. A post village in Floyd County is called Early.

In the present county of Crisp, at that time included within the boundaries of Dooly, on the east side of Flint river "Fort Early," a stronghold erected in 1812 during the administration of Gov. Early—was located by Gen. David Blackshear. This was a stockade fort designed especially for Indian warfare on the border. It was used later by Gen. Andrew Jackson in defense against the Seminoles of Florida, re-in-forced by certain Creek Indians of Georgia, known as "The Red Sticks," who refused to recognize the treaty made at Fort Jackson. Gen. Jackson reached Fort Early on Feb. 23, 1818. Nearly a hundred years later, in 1916, four acres of land including this historic site and the breastworks were deeded by the owner to the Fort Early Chapter D. A. R., who now hold it in guardianship.

In 1809 Walton Harris (father of Gen. Buckner Harris, who m. Nancy Early, a cousin of Peter) appointed Peter Early one of the executors of his will, written 1809 and witnessed by Ann Adams-Early.

Peter Early died in the county of Greene on Aug. 15, 1817, at his country home,—which since passing from the ownership of his descendants has been known as "Fontenoy"—in his forty-fifth year: he was buried on a bluff over Oconee river near Schull shoals, ten miles from Greensboro, and a stone, containing name and dates was placed to mark his resting place. In 1914, by direction of his grandchildren, his remains were moved and reinterred at Greensboro cemetery beside his parents, and a new stone replaced the old one.

A portrait of him as preserved by the family of General Wheeler, has been presented to the state.

On March 13, 1818, the court appointed Ann Adams Early, widow of Peter Early, administratrix on his estate. After the death of Peter Early his widow m. 2nd, Rev. Adiel Sherwood, a noted Baptist minister and intimate friend of the Hillyer family, who later moved to Missouri, (where some of his stepsons went with him) became distinguished and some descendants yet survive. Mrs. Ann A. (Early) Sherwood left no child of her second marriage: she d. a year afterwards: she is said to have been beautiful and accomplished. Rev. Sherwood m. again and left a family by his last marriage.

Eliezer Early (Joel Early, Sr., Jeremiah Early, Sr., Thomas Early, John Early) b. 1799, m. Miss Patterson (?).

In 1803 Eliezer Early was a merchant in Memphis, Tenn.

In 1818 he made the first map of the State of Georgia, all older ones were Colonial.

In 1831 he was living in Florida, as will be seen from the following letter to Bishop John Early, written from New York, October 3rd, 1831:

"I am the second son of Joel Early, who was the youngest of a numerous family of brothers and sisters, children of Jeremiah Early, of Culpeper, now Madison County, Va. My father emigrated to Georgia in 1791 when I was a lad of twelve years. I am now (after a residence of twenty-five years in Georgia) resident in West Florida and I came through by stages from Augusta, Ga., to Philadelphia in August, to procure the necessary apparatus for a bank, about to go into operation in Pensacola, of which it is intended to make me the cashier. I leave this place tomorrow for Philadelphia, where this apparatus is promised me on the twelfth instant. I shall then immediately proceed to Washington, where I have business that will detain me about three days and where I shall hear from Major William Duval, of Buckingham County, Virginia, on some business which may cause me to go to see him. In this event I should not pass far from Lynchburg and would be quite inclined to take that place in my way expressly to see you provided I can learn that we are near of kin and that it would be as desirable to you as to me for us to become acquainted. You will perceive that I have some knowledge of who you are, when I tell you that I have for years known that a person of your name was living in Lynchburg and that you were the president of a bank there and have been a leading member of the Methodist church and a minister of that church. An immediate reply from you addressed to Washington City, will find me there.

(Signed) Eliezer Early."

Eliezer Early was librarian of Congress for a number of years, and died while residing in Washington City.

Mary Early (Joel Early, Sr., Jeremiah Early, Sr., Thomas Early, John Early) b. 1780, m. 1800-2 Major George Watkins (b 1770) son of Thomas Watkins, Jr., and wife, Sally Walton, sister of George W., a signer of the Declaration of Independence, and governor of Georgia. Major Watkins resided at "Calais" across Broad River from Joel Early, Jr.'s residence "Dover," in Greene County, Ga.

Thomas Watkins b. 1715, lived on Swift Creek, Cumberland Co., (later cut off to form Powhatan): his will recorded among Cumberland records in 1760, mentions four sons, Thomas, the eldest, known as Thos. Watkins of Chickahominy, who married Martha Anderson, sister of Claiborne Anderson, of Chesterfield: and resided near Bottom's Bridge; d. 1783: leaving four sons and seven daughters. His youngest son, Thomas, m. 1763 Sallie Walton and lived on Swift Creek, Powhatan Co., Va.: he was killed by Indian allies of the British. George, fourth son of Thomas and Sallie Walton-Watkins, was left an orphan and was brought up by his uncle, Joel Watkins, of Charlotte Co., Va.: later he went to live with his eldest brother, Col. Robert Watkins in Georgia: soon after his marriage he moved (1804) to Greene Co., Ga.: was an elder in the Presbyterian church, a gentleman without fear or reproach. He together with his brother Robert, compiled and published the first "Digest of the Laws of the State of Georgia, from its first establishment as a British province down to the year 1798 inclusive, the principle Acts of 1799, also Constitution of 1798, etc.: titles of all the obsolete and other acts concluding with an Appendix containing the original charter and other documents ascertaining and defining the limits and boundary of the State; of all the treaties with the Southern tribes of Indians; the Articles of Confederation and Perpetual Union; the Constitution of the U. S. and a few Acts of Congress." This Digest was printed in 1800 by Robt. Aitken of Phila.: because it contained the Yazoo Act the Legislature would not pay the compilers for their work, which was afterwards copied by Wm. H. Crawford.

Major Geo. Watkins d. in 1829 and was buried in the Greensboro cemetery. Judge Geo. Hillyer has in his possession an ivory miniature of this grand-father. Mrs. Mary E. Watkins was a woman of vigorous intellect: she d. 1842-3 and was buried at Athens.

- 11196—12. Elizabeth, m. Mr. Harrell, of Wetumpka, Ala.: d. 1857 at Ocala, Fla.

Dr. Thomas Anderson Watkins (Mary Early-Watkins, Joel Early, Sr., Jer'h Early, Sr., Thos. Early, John Early) m. Sarah Epps Fitzgerald, dau. of Rev. Freeman and Elizabeth Fitzgerald, adopted dau. of Wm. Fitzgerald and wife née Bledsoe (of Botetourt Co.), of Nottoway Co., Va. Born in Augusta, Ga., Dr. Watkins was reared in Greene Co., within sight of his grandfather Early's residence, among his mother's brothers and their families. He graduated at the University of Georgia; received his medical diploma at Philadelphia Medical College: moved to Courtland, Ala., in 1825; then to Mississippi, where he amassed a fortune: while living in Mississippi he lost his wife: in 1861 lived at Wenona, Carroll Co., Miss.; moved to Austen, Tex. in 1867 and died there in 1884. He left a mss. account of the old settlers of Georgia: owned and used an old letter seal of his grandfather Early's bearing his full name.

In a letter written December 16, 1873, Dr. Watkins writes "My mother was a dau. of Joel Early who emigrated from Culpeper County, now Madison County, Va., about 1791, and settled in Greene County, Ga.: her grandfather was Jeremiah Early, of Culpeper, Va.: my paternal ancestor was Thomas Watkins, of Chickahominy, Va. A little more than a century ago these ancestors were in moderate circumstances; at the commencement of the late war (1861-65) their descendants had more than fifty million dollar's worth of negro property, besides other valuable effects in proportion to that property."

On June 4th, 1875, he wrote "Mrs. Cynthia A. Swoope, of Courtland, North Alabama, is the only surviving child of Gov. Peter Early; her age is about seventy. She is the widow of a son of Jacob Swoope, who represented the Staunton, Va., district in Congress about the years 1813 and following. Gov. Early was a brother of my mother, who had a brother Jeremiah Early, whom I loved dearly; he was very popular and quite wealthy, died in 1816 at his residence in Greene County, Ga. The Earlys of my immediate connection are not a long-lived people. Of the descendants of my grandfather Joel Early there is only one male to perpetuate the name: if he has no male heir, the name will die out as far as this Georgia branch is concerned. Joel Early has, however, many descendants in Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi and Texas—and 'Early' is a favorite name in my family; I have known Early Cunningham, Early Watkins, Early Harris, Early Matthews, Early Hurt and Early Gooch. My maternal grandmother was Lucy Smith, related to the wife of Hon. Jeremiah Morton, of Culpeper, Va.: my paternal grandmother was Sallie Walton, sister of Gov. George Walton."

Dr. Watkins kept in touch with various members of the family through correspondence, and much information may be gleaned from those old letters still extant.

On the occasion of Judge George Hillyer's farewell attendance upon a meeting of the Railroad Commission, of which he was vice-chairman, Dec. 1918, he was presented with a silver loving cup in token of their esteem, when Chairman Candler read a tribute to his public service, which was (in part) as follows: "Your associates upon the Commission who have known and served with you for many years, are unwilling to allow the occasion to pass without an expression of their regret at the severing of relations with one they venerate. It is a great thing to retain the confidence of one's fellow men for eighty-four years; it is a rare honor for one to fill public station at the call of fellow citizens for forty-three years with never a question of his probity or breath of suspicion as to his character. The close of such a term of service calls for more than passing comment and we desire our minutes permanently to record the features of your career. When only twenty-two you were elected to represent Walton Co. in the Gen. Assembly from 1857-8; the next Ho. of Rep. elected you chief clerk for 1859-60; in 1860 you were a delegate to the Democratic Convention at Charleston.

"With the outbreak of war bet. States you raised the first company of volunteers (known as the Hillyer Rifles, of which you were elected captain) in Walton County. At Gettysburg you brought out of battle only ten men of your company, the others having been killed, wounded or captured." (Capt. Hillyer served in Longstreet's Corps.) "Gov. Joseph E. Brown called you from the field and appointed you Auditor of the Western and Atlantic Railroad which was and is still valuable State property: during the days when its successful operation meant much to the State and the Confederacy, you handled efficiently and economically its fiscal affairs for the years 1864-5. In 1869 you were appointed on a Commission to adjust and settle a large accumulation of claims against the road, aggregating two million dollars, which your Commission laboriously investigated and settled for $400,000.

"You moved from Walton Co. to Atlanta in 1865 and entered upon a large practice, which except when interrupted by service upon the Supreme Court Bench, continued more than thirty-five years. Elected to the State Senate from Atlanta District you represented it ably from 1870 to '74 and took a prominent part in rebuilding Georgia: rewrote and had passed a new city charter for Atlanta, under which it is now operated: in 1876 you were appointed by Pres. Grant Centennial Commissioner for Georgia. Upon the death of Judge Cincinnatus Peoples 1877 you were appointed, at suggestion of leading members of the circuit bar, judge of the Superior Court of Atlanta circuit by Gov. A. H. Colquitt for an unexpired term; then twice reappointed for terms of four years each; while holding the office you admitted Woodrow Wilson to the bar. You resigned in 1883, remaining in private life for a brief period, were then elected mayor of Atlanta and directed affairs as chief executive during 1885-6. Elected chairman of the Water Works Board over which you presided for twelve years and recreated the system which provides abundance of pure water. You were a delegate to the Democratic Nat. Conventions of 1884 and '92. Called from retirement by Gov. Hoke Smith in 1907 to become a member of the enlarged railroad Commission, the jurisdiction and powers of which extended over every public utility in the State, with supervisory powers over their rates, services and practices: your intelligent, unbiased and unremitting labors upon the Commission were endorsed by the people twice in general elections. You are retiring while still in the enjoyment of physical and mental strength and in your retirement the State loses a faithful, able and honest official."

As a Confederate veteran, Judge Hillyer was elected and served as Commander General of Georgia Confed. Vet. Association.

Judge Hillyer has been an exemplary and active member of the Second Baptist church of Atlanta, for nearly forty-two years. He is (in 1920) still hale, hearty and active, retaining a wholesome interest in State, national and world affairs.

Lucy Early (Joel Early, Sr., Jer'h Early, Sr., Thos. Early, John Early) m. Col. Charles Lewis Matthews, b. 1775, the youngest son of Governor George Matthews and wife, Anne Paul, grandson of John Matthews (who emigrated from North Ireland to America with John Lewis about 1737 settling in Augusta County, Va.) and his wife Anne, the dau. of Sampson Archer. Charles L. Matthews was educated in Virginia; was possessed of a fine mind well improved; was sociable and honorable: lived at the Goosepond place until his wife's death: moved first to Louisville, Ky., then to Alabama, settling near Cahaba, where he died: became one of the wealthiest planters in the South.

George Matthews, father of Charles, was b. 1739 in Augusta County; began fighting Indians at an early age. In 1761 a family living near his father's residence was massacred; he and two or three other youths supposing the noise of firing proceeded from a shooting match went to join in the sport, but upon arriving at the place saw dead bodies lying in the yard; preceiving their mistake, they fled, the Indians firing at them as they rode in full speed, grazed the head of young Matthews, cutting off his cue. He collected a party and went in pursuit of the Indians killing nine of them. On Oct. 10, 1774, he commanded a company at Point Pleasant and displayed great bravery. The fighting commenced at sunrise but no decided advantage was gained until even when Captain Matthews' company together with Shelby's and Stewart's withdrew into the then shallow bed of Crooked Creek, and concealed by the banks, gained the rear of the Indians, attacking them unexpectedly, succeeded in driving them across the Ohio river. From 1775 to '77 Matthews commanded the 9th Va. Reg. Line: was in the battles of Brandywine and Germantown. In the last named engagement he attacked the British troops in front of him, pursued and had just captured them, when he and his company, becoming confused by the dense fog were attacked, he being knocked down, a bayonet driven through his body and he made prisoner, was carried to New York and confined in a prisonship, where he was kept in durance from 1777 to '81, and suffered many cruelties at the hands of his jailors. Upon being exchanged he joined the army of Gen. Greene in the South, as commander of the 3rd Va. Line.

Gov. Matthews' wife, Anne, was the dau. of John Paul and his wife Margaret Lynn, of the Lynns of Lock Haven: John Paul (son of Hugh, Bishop of Nottingham), took part with the House of Stuart and was killed at the siege of Dalrymple Castle in 1745. Col. Matthews moved from Augusta in 1784 to Georgia; purchased Goose Pond tract on Broad River and moved his family there. He was elected member of Congress from Georgia; though not a man of letters, his wonderful memory served him in lieu of learning: while he attended Congress, a valuable document which had been once read, was lost, and he relieved the situation by being able to repeat its contents verbatim. He knew all officers who were entitled to land and acquired a large estate trafficking in bounty lands. He was twice elected governor of Georgia, serving the last time from 1794 to '95.

After the death of his first wife Gov. Matthews m. Mrs. Reed, of Staunton, from whom he was divorced upon a very slight pretext and he m. a third time, Mrs. Flowers, of Mississippi: he d. at Augusta, Ga., in 1812 aged 73 years and was buried in St. Charles' Churchyard. The history of the family of Lucy Early-Matthews is partly taken from the Matthews "Ancestral Tablets."
