DEDICATION

Dedicated to those descendants of the Fellows, Craig and allied families, now living in America, who have helped the writer in so many ways to gather material for this genealogy.

We, who are descendants of those pioneer families in America, have a work to do as great as even they had. They, with others of their kind, by their frugality and by the sweat of their brows, laid the foundation of an Utopia in the wilderness. We, their descendants, are to complete that Utopian structure upon their foundation. To do this we must foster the chief traits of those ancestors: frugality and industry. Frugality and industry make men equal; and equality among men is liberty in the fullest sense of the word.

GENEALOGY

The Fellows family in America is descended from the "Fellows" family of Lincolnshire, England. This family was of Scotch-Irish descent and consisted of three brothers and two sisters.

- 1 William Fellows was born at Lincolnshire, Eng., about 1611. At the age of 24 years he came to America on the ship "Planter," embarking April 2, 1635. He settled at Ipswich, Mass., in 1641. His wife is thought to have been the sister of John Ayres. He died in 1677 and his will was proved November 27, 1677.
- 1 Richard Fellows was born at Lincolnshire, Eng. He came to America in 1643, settling at Hartford, Conn. In 1659 he removed to Springfield, Mass., and in 1661 to Hatfield, Mass. He died there in 1663, leaving a widow, Ursula, and a son, Richard, who was killed by the Indians, August 25, 1675.
- 1 Samuel Fellows, Sr., (which see).
- 1 Elizabeth Fellows married John Morrike and was living at Roxbury, Mass., at the time of her death, May 7, 1650. By will she left to each of her brothers ten pounds English money.
- 1 Grace Fellows married a Mr. Allam and remained in England. By her sister's will she received five pounds English money.
- 1 Samuel Fellows, Sr., was b. in Lincolnshire, Eng., in 1619. He mar. there a woman whose given name was "Ann." He came to America about 1640, settling at Salisbury, Mass. Although two generations of the family lived and died there, but few accounts of births, deaths or marriages can be found in the town records.

Tradition, however, tells of a "Fellows House," the cellar of which still may be seen, and on the bank of the Merrimac River is the "Fellows Rock," from which one of the early members of that family, disappointed in love, plunged into the river and was drowned. Samuel Fellows, Sr., d. March 6, 1698. His wife d. Dec. 5, 1684.

Children:

2 Samuel Fellows, Jr. (which see).

2 Hannah Fellows, b. Sept. 5, 1648; d. March 23, 1727. On Nov. 6, 1666, she mar. Capt. Nathaniel Brown. He d. Oct. 5, 1723.

2 Samuel Fellows, Jr., was b. at Salisbury, Mass., Nov. 13, 1647; d. Dec. 5, 1729. June 2, 1681, he mar. Abigail Barnard, who was b. Jan. 20, 1658.

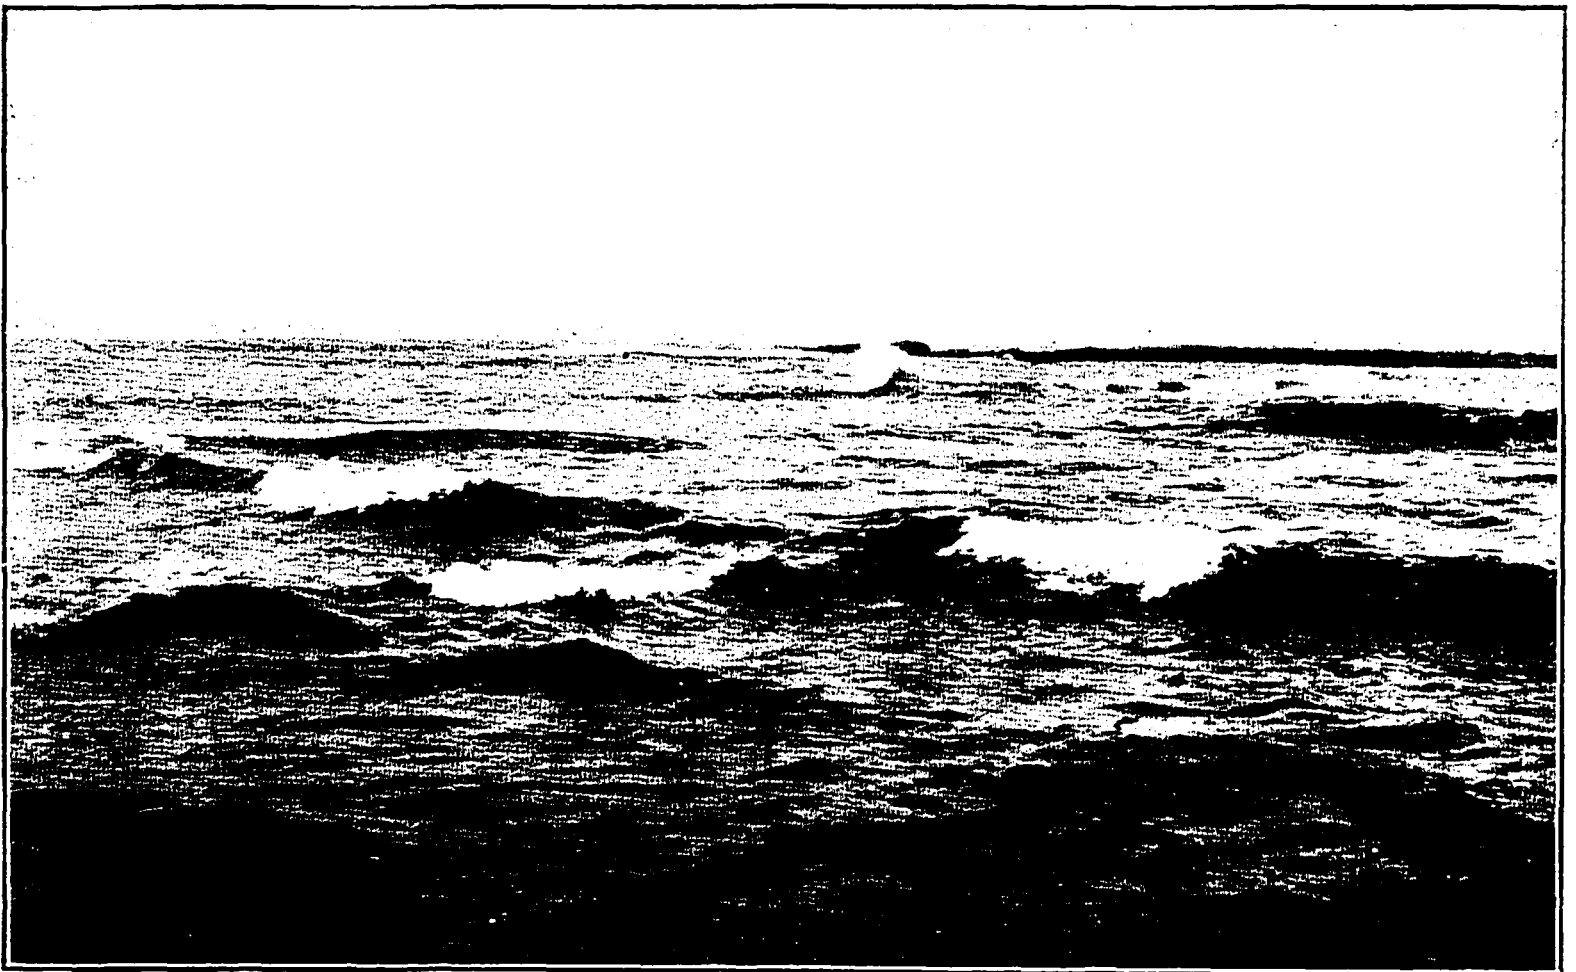

Children:

3 Samuel, b. Aug., 1683.

3 Thomas, b. Jan. 29, 1686.

3 Joseph, b. April 23, 1688.

3 Ann, b. April 28, 1690.

- 3 Ebenezer, (which see).
- 3 Hannah, b. July 20, 1697.
- 3 Ellinor, b. Dec. —, 1699.

- 3 Ebenezer Fellows was b. Nov. 10, 1692; d. Feb. 5, 1741. Nov. 12, 1718, he mar. Elizabeth Brooks, who d. Nov. 8, 1764.

Children:

- 4 John, Sr. (which see).
- 4 Abigail, b. Nov. 6, 1721.
- 4 Moses, b. Dec. 31, 1723.
- 4 Ebenezer, b. Aug. 19, 1727.
- 4 Joseph, b. Jan. 10, 1729; settled in New Britain, now Andover, in 1761.
- 4 Benjamin, b. Nov. 6, 1730.
- 4 Ann, b. March 15, 1734.
- 4 Elizabeth, b. June 22, 1738.

- 4 John Fellows, Sr., was b. at Salisbury, Mass., April 27, 1720, and d. in 1812, aged 92 years. March 6, 1745, he mar. Elizabeth Blaisdell at Kingston, N. H. She was b. in 1722 and d. July 10, 1766.

Mr. Fellows was by trade a ship and house carpenter and was one of the first house carpenters in Salisbury, N. H. He was living at Kingston, N. H., at the time of his wife's death. Shortly afterwards he moved to Salisbury, N. H. Here he built a small house by the side of the road leading to the site of the "Fellows House," destroyed by fire in 1880.

Mr. Fellows was in Capt. Ebenezer Webster's company at Bunker Hill, June 19, 1775, and served throughout the Revolutionary War.

In Aug., 1918, George E. Fellows, a lineal descendant of John Fellows, Sr., showed the writer the farm where stood the home of the first of the Fellows family to live in Salisbury, N. H. Upon this farm is a private cemetery where many of the tombstones bear the name "Fellows."

Tradition tells of a burial ground several miles to the northward of Salisbury, on Searle's Hill. The stones in this cemetery were removed, the ground plowed and no trace of the graves is left. Upon Searle's Hill stood the first meeting house in Salisbury, N. H., and from its top signal and alarm fires were kindled in the early days of the pioneers.

Kearsarge Mountain, N. H.

Salisbury, N. H., named after Salisbury, Mass., is a village of less than a score of houses. It lies on an elevated plain surrounded by hills. The highest of these hills, Kearsarge Mountain, lies a few degrees south of west, seven miles away.

John Fellows, Sr., mar. for his second wife a widow, Mary (Tucker) Kenniston.

Children:

- 5 David, b. Oct. 6, 1746.
- 5 Adonijah, b. July 11, 1748; d. 1821.
- 5 Hezekiah, b. Dec. 16, 1750; d. unmarried.
- 5 Ebenezer, b. July 9, 1753; served in Rev. War.
- 5 Moses, b. at Salisbury, N. H., Aug. 9, 1755. He enlisted at the breaking out of hostilities with Great Britain in 1775, and served during the war.

At the battle of Bunker Hill, a bullet fired by the British cut the cord to which his powder horn was suspended. With his last charge of powder and no ball Mr. Fellows fired his ramrod with such accuracy as to kill one of the enemy. The same gun was used as a club in the retreat down the hill.

He marched through the Maine woods in the fall of 1775 with Arnold to join Montgomery in the ill-fated expedition against Quebec. He crossed the Delaware with Washington on Christmas night in Dec., 1776, and endured the hardships of Valley Forge in the winter of 1777-78. After his discharge April 20, 1780, he returned to Salisbury, N. H. On May 20, 1782, he mar. Sarah Stevens, daughter of Reuben Stevens. She was b. at Plaistow, N. H., Nov. 26, 1762, and d. in July, 1863, aged 100 years, 8 months. He d. in Feb., 1846, and is buried in the cemetery at Salisbury, where a monument suitably engraved has been erected to his memory.

VERMONT IN JUNE

The sun shines bright
On verdant hills,
The water glints
In sparkling rills.

Sweet song of birds
Among the trees
Is wafted far
By fragrant breeze.

'Tis summer time,
That time so grand,
The month of June
In Vermont land.

While hum of bees,
A nearer sound,
Is harmony
With things around.

In rivers wide
Where waters sweep,
The cattle stand
Awhile, knee-deep.

The cricket's chirp,
In meadows near,
The barnyard cock,
Old chanticler;

While mountain trout
In snug retreat,
Avoid at will
The angler's feet.

Combines in one
Enchanted whole,
A sound that cheers
The alien soul.

Beauty is seen
On every hand;
Pleasant is June
In Vermont land.

DESCRIPTION OF A VISIT BY THE WRITER TO SALISBURY, N. H., JULY, 1918.

This summer while at Concord, N. H., on my way northward into Vermont, I decided to stop off at Salisbury, N. H., and see the place where several generations of my ancestors had been born, had lived and had died. Accordingly I bought a ticket to Gerrish, N. H., 12 miles north of Concord and 4 miles from Salisbury.

I arrived at Gerrish at 7:30 p. m., expecting to stay there all night and go up to Salisbury the next morning on the stage which runs daily between the two places.

At Gerrish I found only three houses, one of these was the depot. Neither of the dwelling houses had a room or bed for a stranger. I telephoned to Salisbury from the depot, asking that some one from Salisbury come down after me.

A man with a Ford arrived at Gerrish at 8:30 p. m. That ride to Salisbury is one that I will not soon forget. It was over a hill road, a typical one, and not in very good repair. Through mudholes, climbing higher and higher all the time, at break-neck speed, we hurried along a road as dark as that fabulous habitation guarded by Cerberus.

We reached Salisbury at 9:30. The chauffeur had told me on the way up, that he did not know whether I could find a place to stay all night at Salisbury, as there was no hotel there. He took me, however, to a place where he said they sometimes kept summer boarders.

I knocked at the door of this place and asked the lady who answered my knock if I might stay all night. She answered that every room and bed in the house was occupied as she had fifteen summer boarders at the present time.

When I told her that I could sleep anywhere, even in the barn, she said that she could make me up a bed on the lounge in the dining room if that would do. As it was raining outside I accepted her offer with alacrity.

I took my satchel from the auto and entered what proved to be the kitchen. The lady at once asked me to step into the other room. With my hat in one hand (by good luck I had set my satchel down in the kitchen) I stepped into a room in which were seated some dozen persons of various ages. In some embarrassment I was introduced to these people, her summer boarders.

These people, like all New Englanders, were easy to get acquainted with. At 10 o'clock, at the request of an old gentleman from Boston, Mass., a lady some 70 odd years old, favored us with selections on the piano. Her playing was from memory. Among other selections the "Mocking Bird" was given with a skill rarely excelled by any except talented musicians.

One by one the company dropped off to bed till no one but myself and a little boy who had been waiting for his mother were left.

After he and I had been keeping up a sort of a desultory conversation, between our nods, for twenty minutes, the landlady came in to ask if I was ready for bed. On my replying in the affirmative she showed me where I could find a mattress. I put the mattress upon the dining room lounge, and it, with one heavy woolen blanket and a pillow, was my bedding for the night.

At 10:30 o'clock I took off my shoes and stockings, lay down upon the mattress and pulled the blanket up to my chin. By two minutes after 10:30 I was asleep.

I awoke about three o'clock in the morning. The wind was blowing through the doors and windows, which were all open. Pulling the blanket more snugly about myself and thanking my stars that I had so good a place in which to pass the night, I went to sleep again.

I awoke at 6 o'clock. Not a sound was heard in the house anywhere. I put on my stockings and shoes and went out for a walk. It was clear, although the sun had not risen yet. I could see that the house where I had slept was a two-story, rambling structure covering considerable ground, and that the village consisted of less than a score of houses.

The village lies on an elevated plain. As the sun rose the beauty of the view from Salisbury Plain made me cease to wonder why it had summer boarders.

At half past 7 o'clock I returned to the house and found that I was the only one of the boarders that had risen. I found a breakfast of oatmeal, boiled eggs, potatoes and fruit waiting for me.

After breakfast I walked down a road a short distance where I had been told by the chauffeur of the auto, the night before, that a man by the name of "Fellows" lived. The chauffeur had also told me that this Mr. Fellows had lived there a long time and might be a relative of mine.

I had not walked far when I met a rugged, silver-haired old man, bronzed by the wind and bareheaded, carrying a peck of potatoes to the store. I spoke to him, asking if his name was "Fellows." On his replying in the affirmative I told him my name and that my mother's name was Fellows.

Mr. Fellows said that he was going to the store and if I would sit down upon his porch and wait for him he would be very glad to talk with me. I walked past his home for a short distance and returned to meet him at his door. On comparing notes we found that his great-grandfather and my great-grandfather was the same man.

After visiting for an hour we went to the Salisbury cemetery where we found the graves of some of the Fellows family. Among these is the grave of Moses Fellows, my mother's cousin, and a hero of the Revolutionary War. Returning to the house, Mr. Fellows introduced me to his wife, who insisted that I take dinner with them.

After an early dinner, I got the chauffeur of the night before to take Mr. and Mrs. Fellows and myself for a ten-mile ride to Warner, N. H., where Mr. Fellows' sister, Mrs. Frances Sargent lives and where I might take a train, that night, to continue my journey into Vermont.

After an interesting ride of nearly two hours through one of the most beautiful parts of New Hampshire we arrived at Mr. Sargent's farm. When introduced to the younger son of the family, his face struck me as very familiar. On asking him if he had a brother in Boston he replied that his brother Frank lived there. I had met Frank H. Sargent several times in Boston during my visits to that city.

After a pleasant afternoon spent at Elm Farm, as Mr. and Mrs. Sargent call their New Hampshire home, Mr. and Mrs. Fellows left me at the depot in Warner, where, at 8 o'clock, I began my journey again into the Vermont hills. My visit to Salisbury, N. H., will always remain a pleasant memory of my eastern trip.

5 John Fellows, Jr., was b. Feb. 5, 1764; d. March 24, 1837. At the age of 16 years he enlisted in the Rev. War. in Feb., 1780. He was to receive a bounty of "twelve heifers with calves by their sides," provided the same John Fellows served for the space of three years. He served till the treaty of peace was signed with Great Britain, Sept. 3, 1783.

Oct. 22, 1787, Mr. Fellows mar. Prudence Stevens at Plaistow, N. H. The mar. was recorded at Salisbury, N. H. She was b. about 1771; d. in Oct. 1849. Prudence Stevens was the daughter of Cutting Stevens, who was b. at Plaistow, N. H., July 19, 1749. He was probably the son of Jonathan and Abigail (Heath) Stevens.

Cutting Stevens fought at the Battle of Bunker Hill, June 16, 1776. Long afterwards, Prudence Stevens told her grandchildren how she, a little girl, 5 years old, sat with her mother on the morning of the battle, by the door listening for the sounds of the guns. Her mother was crying, for both her husband and father were in the battle.

In 1796 the family moved from Salisbury, N. H., to Topsham, Orange county, Vt. A farm of 50 acres was purchased near the south side of the town and a log house erected. Fifty acres more were added to the farm afterwards and a small framed house built upon higher ground and across the road from the "Fellows" house now standing.

This farm lies in the upper Connecticut river valley, west of the river and among hills rudely piled one above the other. The highest peak of the eastern range of the Green Mountains lies about 8 miles to the northwest, while the lofty summit of the White Mountains can be seen in the northeast.

At this time Topsham as well as the central and northern parts of the State of Vermont was a wilderness. Mr. Fellows and his sons felled and burned the original forests, built stone fences, which still stand, and began the raising of crops.

John Fellows, Jr., and Prudence (Stevens) Fellows, his wife, are buried in "Fellows Hill" cemetery. They lie in the northwest corner. Her grave is unmarked and lies upon the left hand to the north of his grave.

Richard Huntley Fellows and his wife were much opposed to new inventions. They did not have a stove in their home till the year 1875. In that year they built a brick oven, which was considered a great innovation by the old couple. Nearly all the clothing, sheets, blankets and pillow-cases were made from wool or flax and were made by them beneath their own roof until as late as 1876.

During his lifetime Mr. Fellows was considered a master-hand at wielding the scythe. When an old man he often pointed to a row of forty worn-out scythe blades hanging in his shop, saying that he had worn those blades out, cutting hay and grain from the fields of Vermont.

He was a keen sportsman and took great delight in hunting and fishing. Many were the strings of speckled trout brought home by him, and not a few foxes, deer and other game fell victims to the unerring aim of his old "flintlock." When he was well along in years and could not hold a steady gun, he would say, if told that his gun "wobbled," "That makes no difference, if I pull the trigger when the gun wobbles into the right position." He seldom missed his aim.

- 6 John Fellows was born at Salisbury, N. H., Feb. 25, 1793; d. June 6, 1879. When he was 3 years old he went with his parents to Topsham, Vt. Dec. 19, 1819. he mar. Lucy Marston, who was b. Dec. 4, 1796, and d. May 24, 1865. On her tombstone on Fellows Hill is inscribed:

"Lucy, wife of John Fellows, Died May 24, 1865.
Aged 68 yrs., 5 mo., 20 da.
'She is not dead, but sleepeth.'"

In 1819 the house still standing upon the old homestead, in Topsham, was built. The old log house and the small framed house which succeeded it, have disappeared, but the spring from which water was obtained, may still be seen.

A few seedling apple trees grafted with better fruit stand upon the hillside, marking the spot where the orchard stood. The severe winter of 1917-18, the severest in the history of Vermont, (lowest temperature was between 50° and 60° Fah.), has killed these trees as well as nearly all the apple trees in central Vermont.

Emily (Fellows) Felch.

Joseph L. Felch.

Josephus Felch.

After his marriage to Emily Fellows, Mr. Felch lived at East Topsham, Vt. Here he followed the occupation of carding, weaving, dyeing and fulling cloth. His wife was a tailor, taking the cloth manufactured by her husband and making it into clothes.

In 1878 he became a farmer, settling upon a 125-acre farm, the nucleus of the 250-acre farm now owned by his son, John H. Felch.

Children:

- 8 John H., b. March 13, 1853; Nov. 15, 1882, mar. Flora Avery, who was b. Feb. 11, 1860. She is the daughter of Lewis Avery, b. Feb. 4, 1831, and Mary (Emery) Avery, b. Jan. 12, 1831.

John H. Felch, like his father before him, believes in hard work. By his work he has reaped from the stony hills of Vermont enough wealth to put himself and wife beyond want in their declining years.

Unlike some of his neighbors he believes in preserving his hard maple groves. His groves contain over 500 maple trees, many of them over a 100 years old. On an average he taps 450 of them each year. The average yield of sugar per tree is $2\frac{1}{2}$ lbs. There is also considerable hard wood timber on his farm.

Children:

- 8 Joseph L., b. Sept. 13, 1883; murdered April 22, 1916. Sept. 8, 1908, he mar. Anna A. Smith, who was b. Aug. 12, 1890; children: Bernice and Blanche.

No more dastardly crime was ever perpetrated in the State of Vermont than that which took place on the night of April 22, 1916, when Joseph L. Felch was shot and instantly killed while at work in his sugar house, three-fourths of a mile from his home.

Mr. Felch had gone to his sugar house on the evening of April 22, to finish sap-boiling for the year. At about 11 o'clock as he sat dozing by the side of the evaporator he was shot through the head with his own rifle.

The deed had been deliberately planned, for a hole had been cut in the door of the sugar house through which a gun could be pushed, and his own rifle had been taken from its accustomed place in his home after he left that evening.

A hired man by the name of Williams was arrested. The trials which followed brought forth the details of a domestic tragedy of which Mr. Felch was entirely innocent. Williams was adjudged guilty and sentenced to States prison for life.

SUGAR MAKING IN VERMONT.

Sugar making in Vermont begins about the first of March and lasts nearly a month. The sap flows best when freezing weather at night is followed by a thaw the next day.

Half inch auger holes are bored into the maple trees from $1\frac{1}{2}$ to 3 inches deep, and 2 to 4 feet above the ground. A wooden or iron spile is driven into the auger hole and a tin sap bucket, holding 10 or 12 quarts is hung upon the spile or set upon the ground under the end of the spile. The average tree will fill one of these buckets at least once per day. From 16 to 18 quarts of this sap will make a pound of sugar.

A journey is made each day from tree to tree with a sled carrying a tank. The sled and tank used vary in size. Some are small enough to be drawn by hand; others are so large that they are drawn by horses or by ox-teams. The sap is emptied from the sap buckets into the tank upon the sled, then it is hauled to the sugar house.

The sugar house is usually near or in the maple grove and in some place protected from the wind. From the tank on the sled the sap runs into a larger tank in the sugar house and from this tank into the evaporator as needed.

A Sugar House.

The evaporator is a large pan from 4 to 6 feet in width and from 8 to 12 feet in length. This pan sets over a long stove or brick arch 3 or 4 feet high, having a door at one end into which is fed the wood which keeps a fire going continuously during sugar making. At the other end of the arch or fire-place is the chimney.

For syrup the sap is boiled to the right consistency, then poured into tin cans or tin pails and sealed tightly for shipment. For sugar the syrup is usually put into smaller pans and boiled until it will crystallize on cooling.

The last step in sugar making is called "sugaring-off" and is a very interesting part of sugar making, especially to children on the Vermont farm, for it is at this time that the hot syrup must be tested to find if it will crystallize properly.

Each sugar maker has his own method of testing the syrup, but the test that the children like best is the "snow test." This is to let a spoonful of the hot syrup fall into a dish of snow. The snow cools the syrup and forms either a most delicious gum-drop or a crisp lump of sugar which melts in the mouth like a snowflake, with a flavor which only new made maple sugar can give.

8 George M. Felch was b. Jan. 22, 1889. On Sept. 8, 1916, he mar. Tessie B. Sweet, who was b. April 16, 1898. She is the daughter of William and Della (Niles) Sweet.

Mr. Felch lives with his father and mother upon the homestead. With putting in the farm crops, haying, lumbering, road-working and sugar making, he and his father have work all the year round.

The ox-teams of which Mr. Felch broke and worked several, have given place to a team of fine horses. Though this team is a good one and one of the best in the county, Mr. Felch says, "I still like a yoke of oxen best for all purposes."

Work is never so rushing that George cannot spend some time in summer with his rod and tackle along the streams, or a day in winter tracking the deer through the forest.

Brook trout are found in all the streams. Deer are numerous and an occasional bear is seen. Though the season for hunting deer is short and only buck deer may be lawfully killed, many deer are shot every year in Vermont.

In the years 1916-17 seventy-five buck deer were killed in Orange county, Vt., and in the whole state 1630 bucks, weighing 277,972 pounds, an average of $170\frac{1}{2}$ pounds each, were reported to the authorities as having been killed. When we consider that a good many deer are killed and not reported we can realize that deer hunting is considerable of a sport in Vermont.

J. Q. A. Fellows.

7 J. Q. A. Fellows was b. at Topsham, Vt., April 3, 1825. He worked on his father's farm till he was twenty-one years of age, meanwhile using his leisure time in preparing for college. During the winter months, after he was sixteen years old he taught a country school.

He graduated from the University of Vermont at Burlington in 1849. The year following his graduation he taught in the Royalton, Vermont, Academy.

He went to New Orleans in 1850, arriving there Dec. 17 of that year. The journey was made by rail from Vermont to Norwich, Conn.; thence by steamer to New York City; thence by the Camden & Amboy R. R. to Philadelphia; thence by railroad to Baltimore, Md., crossing the Delaware and Susquehanna Rivers by ferries; thence by the B. & O. R. R. to Cumberland, Md.; thence by stage to Wheeling W. Va., and from Wheeling to New Orleans by the Ohio and Mississippi Rivers. The whole journey took sixteen days.

Mr. Fellows taught for some time in the city schools of New Orleans and at the same time studied law in the office of Judge Whittaker. He graduated from the law department of the University of Louisiana, (now Tulane College), in 1852, and at once began the practice of his profession, which he followed till 1895, when sickness compelled him to withdraw from active work.

He was leading counsel in the celebrated Myra Gaines case, in the Slaughter House case involving the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, and in the suits on behalf of the State in opposition to the payment of the vast accumulation of State obligations. In connection with the last he filed, in December, 1872, a suit enjoining the payment of upward of $45,000,000. This was the largest sum ever litigated in the State (1897) and Mr. Fellows, by his knowledge of the case and magnificent legal attainments, succeeded in preventing the allowance and payment of nearly $30,000,000 of these claims.

Mr. Fellows, while yet a young man, was made a Mason in Rising Sun Lodge No. 7, Royalton, Vt. He was initiated Nov. 28, 1849; passed Dec. 26, 1849, and raised Jan. 20, 1850. In May, 1851, he affiliated with Marion Lodge No. 68, of New Orleans, La. In 1886 (by consolidation of Marion Lodge), he became a member of Perfect Union No. 1, and was a member of that Lodge at the time of his death.

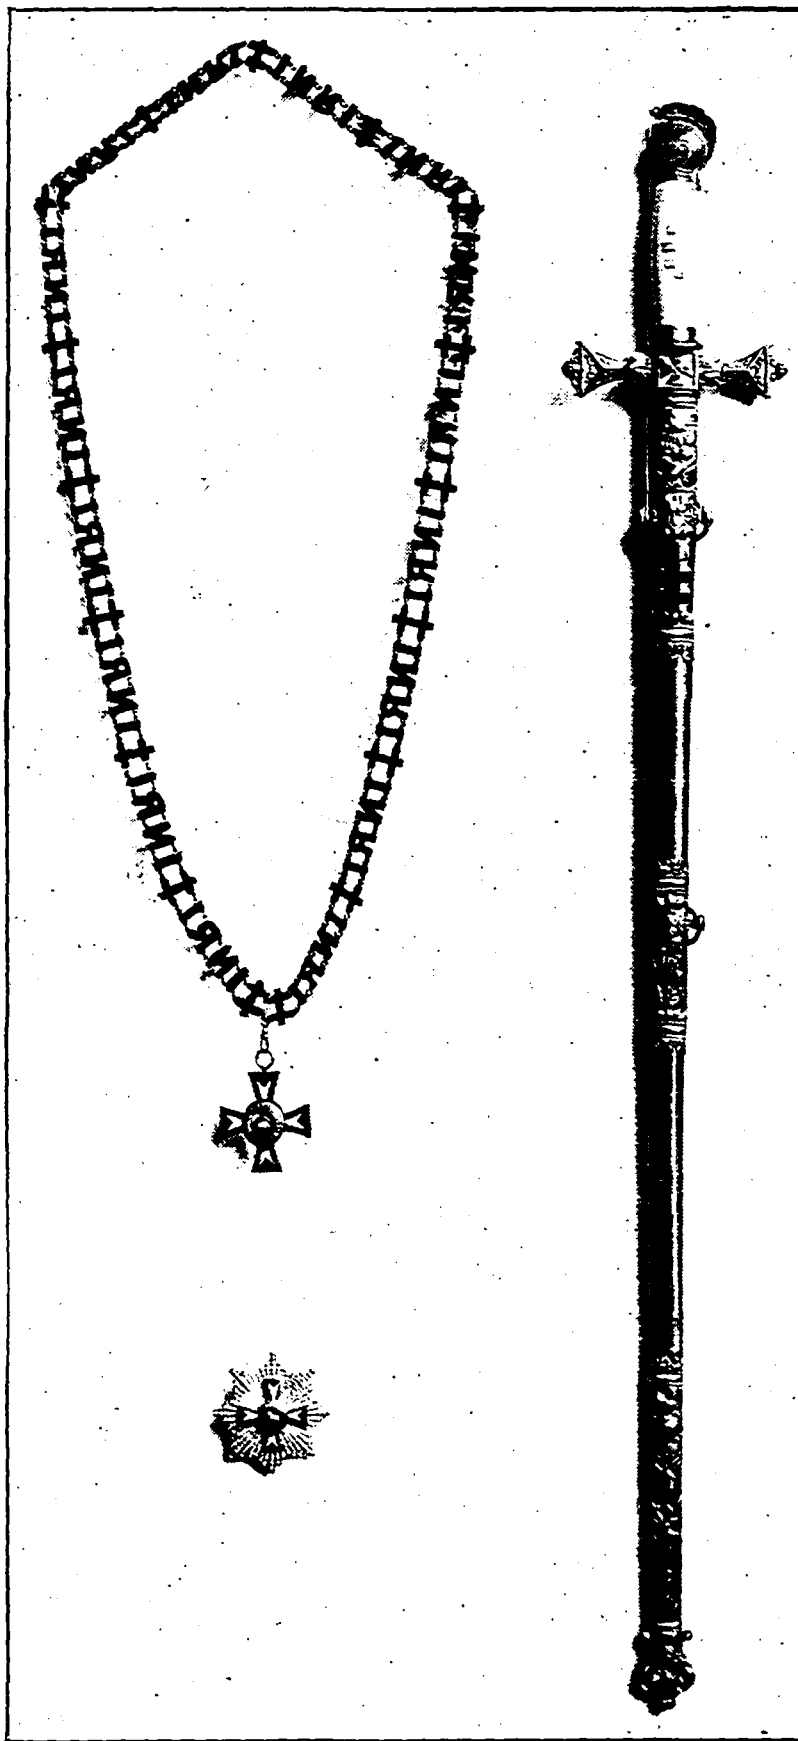

Mr. Fellows filled the following offices in the various Masonic bodies in the State of Louisiana.

(a) Grand Lodge, Free and Accepted Masons: Most Worshipful Grand Master in 1861, '62, '63, '64 and '65.

(b) Grand Chapter Royal Arch Masons: Grand King in 1855; Deputy Grand High Priest in 1856, '57 and '58; Most Excellent High Priest in 1859.

(c) Grand Council, Royal and Select Masters: Grand Principal Conductor of Works in 1856-57; Deputy Illustrious Master in 1865-66; Most Illustrious Grand Master in 1368.

(d) Grand Commander Knights Templar: Very Eminent Deputy Grand Commander in 1864; Right Eminent Grand Commander in 1865.

Official Badges and Sword of J. Q. A. Fellows.

Mr. Fellows also held the following offices in the Masonic Orders of the United States:

(a) General Grand Chapter, Royal Arch Masons of the United States: General Scribe in 1862.

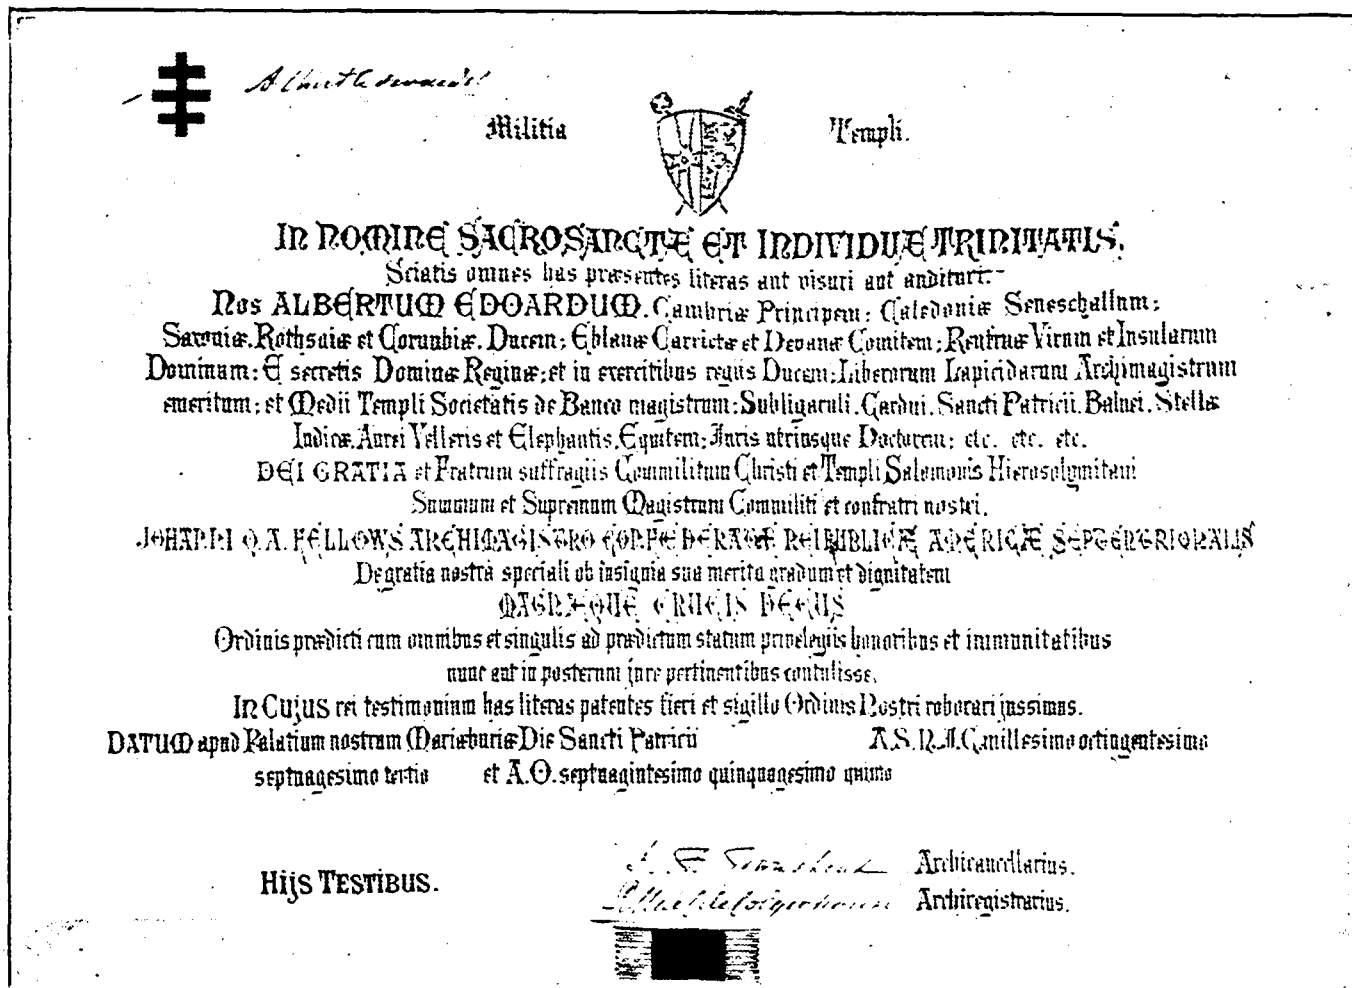

(b) Grand Encampment, Knights Templar of the United States: Grand Standard Bearer in 1862, Grand Generalissimo in 1865, Deputy Grand Master in 1868 and Grand Master from 1871 till 1874.

(c) Order of High Priesthood: Past President of the Grand Council of Louisiana, and oldest member of that Order at his death.

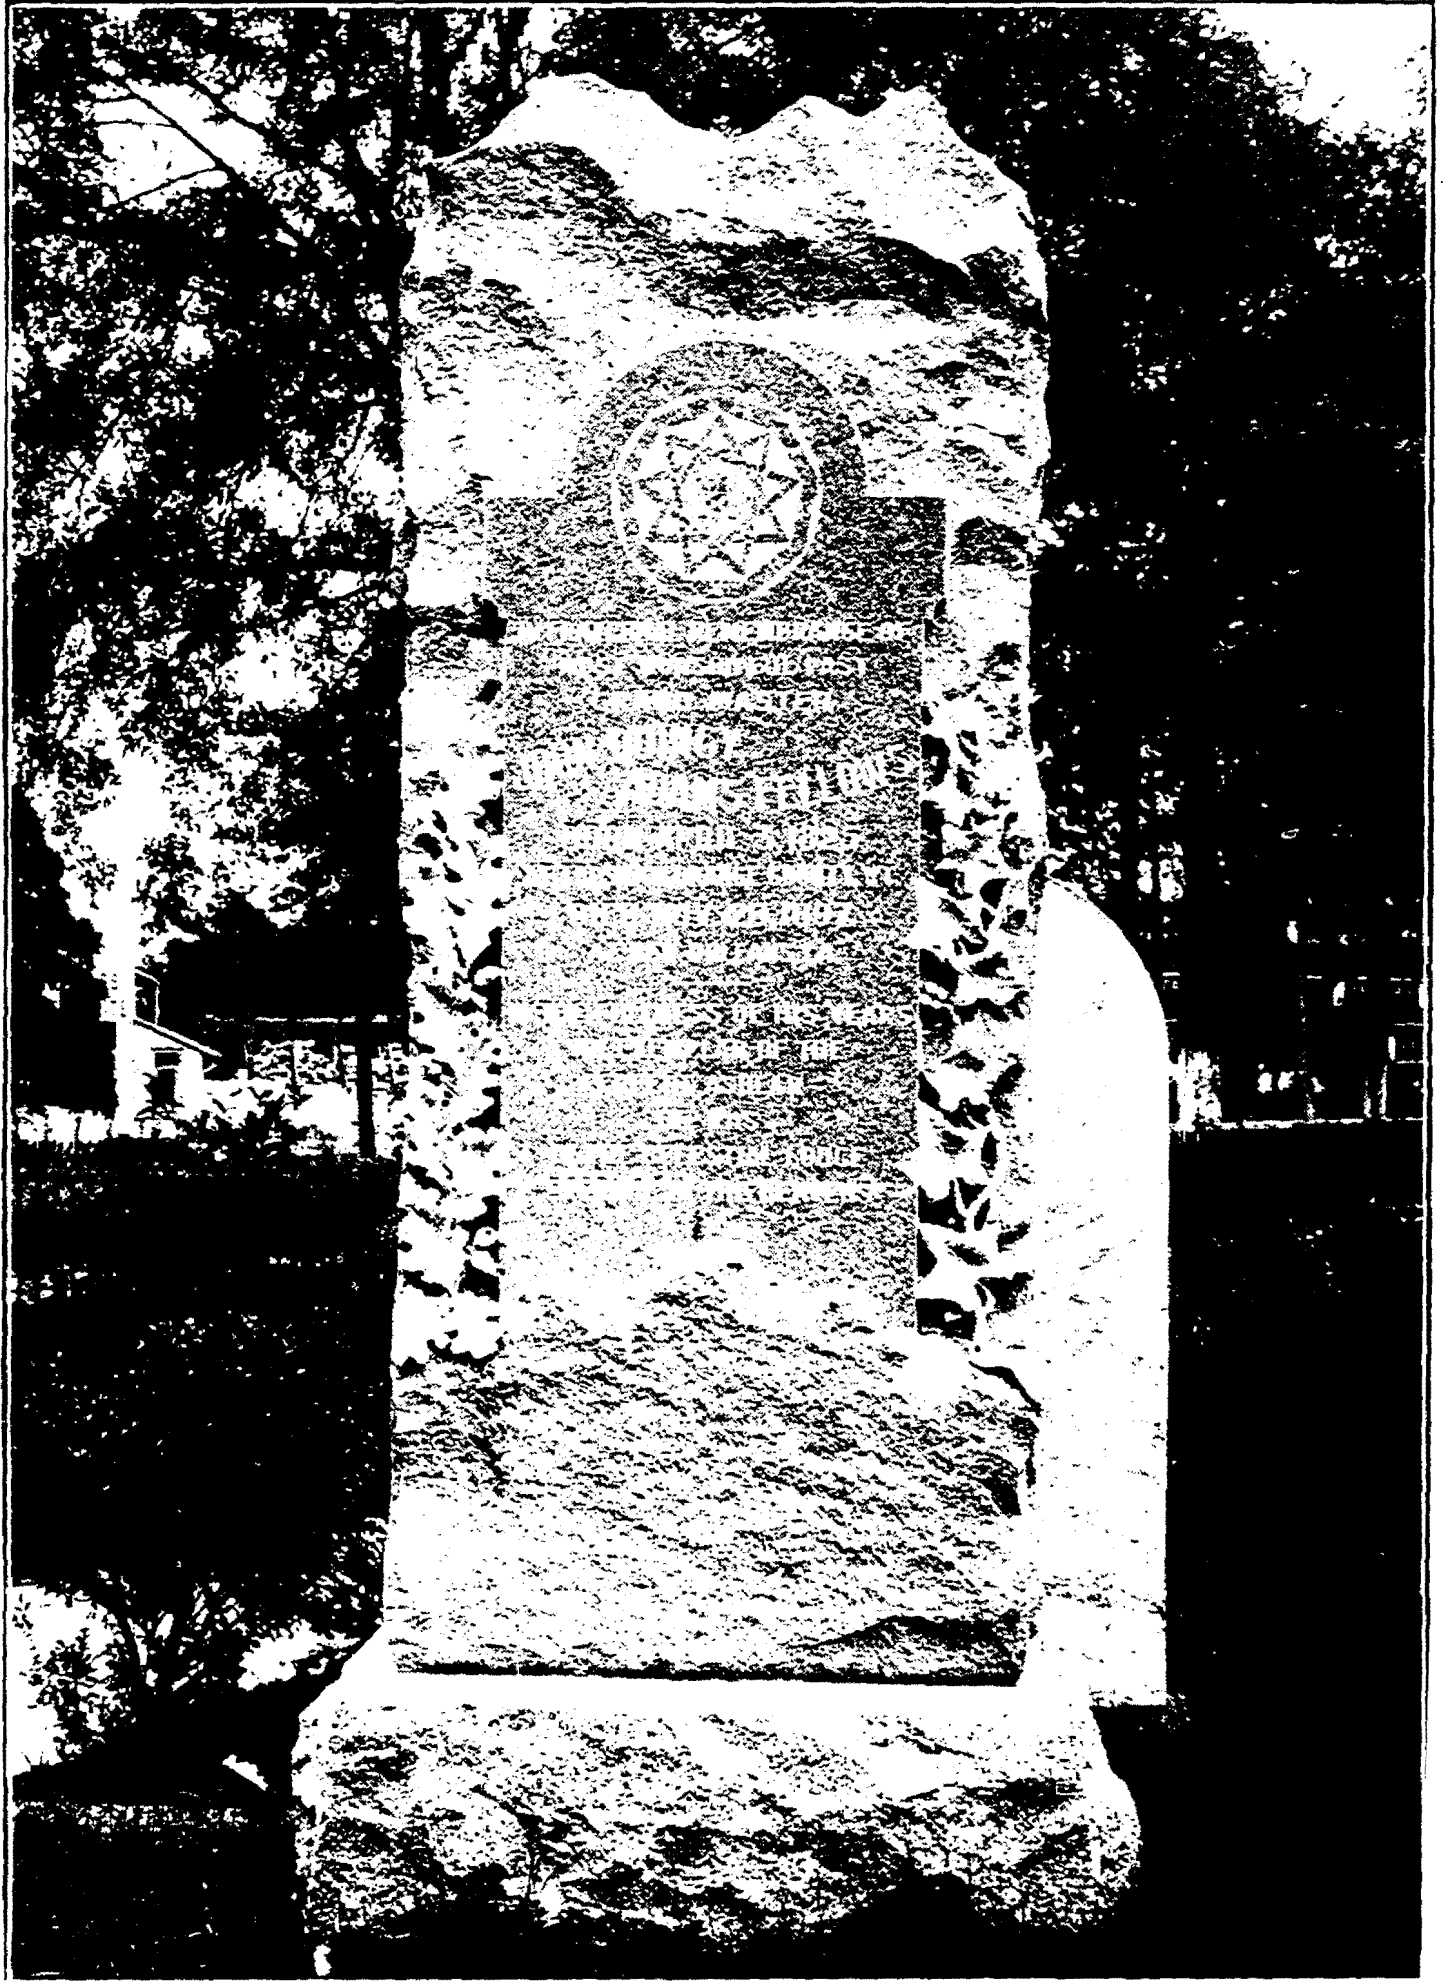

At the time of his death Mr. Fellows was Grand Representative of the Grand Lodges of California, Florida, Maryland, Minnesota, Mississippi and Vermont; of the Grand Chapters of California, Connecticut, Mississippi, New York, Vermont and Wisconsin; of the Grand Council of Illinois, and of the Grand Commanderies of Kansas, Minnesota, Vermont and Wisconsin.

While Grand Master, and just 35 years of age, on April 12, 1860, he unveiled the statue of Henry Clay, who had been Grand Master of Kentucky 35 years before.

On Nov. 1, 1856, he was employed as law reporter of the New Orleans Picayune. The same year he drafted the Constitution and Regulations of the Grand Lodge, which in 1858 were adopted without alteration. This constitution, with but few changes, remains the written law of this jurisdiction. Because of his research in musty manuscripts on Masonry he has been termed, "Historian of Masonry in Louisiana."

Certificate of Membership. Order of the Grand Cross of the Temple.

During his term as Grand Master the controversy arose in reference to the "uniform" question and his action thereon was sustained by the Grand Encampment. The committee on Templar Jurisprudence submitted an unanimous report in favor of his decisions—forty-three in number—and this report was also adopted without a negative vote—an action without precedent in the annals of Free Masonry.

It was during Mr. Fellows' term as Grand Master of the Knights Templar of the United States that the bodies of Knights Templar in the British Empire formed an organization of the Convent General and elected the Prince of Wales, afterward King Edward VII of England, Grand Master; and he, in commemoration of the event, instituted the "Order of the Grand Cross of the Temple," limited by statute to thirty members. Among the thirty members were: the Prince of Wales, the Emperor of Germany, the King of Sweden, the Crown Prince of Germany, the Crown Prince of Denmark, Prince John of Glucksburg, the Duke of Leicester, and the Earl of Limerick.

Mr. Fellows was the only member selected from America. Among his treasured relics were the star and cross of this Order, and the parchment certificate of his membership attested with the sign manual of "Albert Edward."

Mr. Fellows died Nov. 28, 1897, at New Orleans, during the last great scourge of yellow fever in that city. The city was quarantined, so none of his relatives could reach his death bed. The funeral was in charge of the Masons of New Orleans. He is buried in the Masonic cemetery at New Orleans.

At his death his library and manuscripts were sold or given to various orders in New Orleans. A few of his books, a picture of himself, his sword bearing the inscription, "J. Q. A. Fellows, Grand Master of Knights Templar, 1871"; the parchment certificate of his membership and the cross and star of the Order of the Grand Cross of the Temple, were taken by his wife, Mary (Moody) Fellows, to her girlhood home at Newburyport, Mass.

By will Mrs. Fellows left her property to her sisters. But before her death she had expressed her desire that the things prized by her husband were to go at her death to her nephews, the children of Mr. Fellows' sister, Mary (Fellows) Craig. In 1918 these articles were placed by the sisters of Mary (Moody)

Fellows in the hands of the writer of this geneology for preservation and disposal.

The following clipping from the New Orleans Picayune will be of interest to the relatives of J. Q. A. Fellows:

THE PRESIDENT'S "PLAN" OF RESTORATION.

The New York World publishes the following letter from J. Q. A. Fellows, Esq., of this city:

New Orleans, Nov. 3, 1865.

To the Editor of the World:

I have just perused the speech of Mr. Seward, at Auburn, and the editorial of the World thereon, with no little interest. The interest was excited principally by the covert manner he speaks of "Johnson's plan of restoration, not his own," and your comments on that point. Mr. Seward is literally correct when he says that "it is the plan which abruptly, yet distinctly, offered itself to the last Administration," and though he literally speaks the truth, neither he nor any member of the last Administration had anything more to do with its invention than the Tycoon. "The plan"—such is the heading of the document—is without date or signature, and in the same handwriting as this you now read, was written in the Fifth Avenue Hotel in July, 1863, and placed in the hands of President Lincoln by myself on the last Saturday of that month, with some other papers, in the presence of Col. B. B. French, Washington, and Thos. P. May, of this city, without either of them or the President being aware of it. On the following Monday the President called my attention to the document, requested me to keep it, or a copy, learned of me the author, and placed my name across the back of it in his own hand, and, I have reason to know, laid it before the Cabinet the next day, and preserved it as an important State paper. Would to God his Cabinet had permitted him to act upon it from that moment as energetically and promptly as his successor is doing. I failed to keep an exact copy of it, and have only the rough draft made in pencil in my pocket, while waiting for the cars at Bellows Falls, about the 10th of July, 1863.

I write this to set you right, and to show you the spring of the conservative movement in Louisiana, in 1863-64—which President Lincoln guaranteed, but which Secretary Stanton first suppressed, and then subverted.

Respectfully yours, J. Q. A. FELLOWS.

On March 14, 1858, Mr. Fellows mar. Elizabeth Mills of Burlington, Vt. She was the second daughter of Samuel and Mary Mills. She was b. in 1820, and d. March 6, 1876, and is buried in New Orleans.

Mr. and Mrs. Fellows had no children of their own. Two children, however, a girl and a boy, were taken by them and cared for till they grew to womanhood and manhood.

Mary Larue was b. Jan. 29, 1851. She was the daughter of John C. and Marie L. (Mintzer) Larue, of New Orleans. Her parents dying in 1860, she was taken into the home of Mr. Fellows, her father's law partner. Here she spent the years of her girlhood, receiving her early education in the schools of New Orleans. She graduated later from Mrs. Worcester's school in Burlington, Vt.

May 21, 1873, Miss Larue mar. Augustus Barrows of Burlington, Vt. He was the son of George E. and Harriet (Marshal) Barrows. To Mr. and Mrs. Barrows was b. a daughter, Kathleen L. Barrows. Baby Kathleen lived a little over three years, d. Dec. 25, 1886. She is buried in Lakeview cemetery, Burlington, Vt.

On Nov. 7, 1897, Mr. Barrows d. and was buried beside his youthful daughter, at Lakeview. Mrs. Barrows has a beautiful home at Burlington, upon the east shore of Lake Champlain. A most beautiful view of the lake and of the Adirondack Mountains beyond the lake, in New York State, can be seen from her home at all times of the year.

John Fellows, adopted son of J. Q. A. Fellows, was found by Mrs. Fellows in a basket under an oleander bush near their house in New Orleans on August 28, 1862. The clothing worn by the child showed that he came from a home of refinement. The doctor who examined the child thought it about three months old.

John Fellows lived with his adopted parents till the death of Mrs. Fellows. He was then taken by his father to the grandfather Fellows' home at Topsham, Vt. He lived with his grandfather for several years, after which he obtained a position as express messenger on the Boston & Maine R. R., plying between Boston, Mass., and St. Albans, Vt. He worked for this company over twenty years. He lived a single life and made but few friends. Those few, however, found him a man of sterling worth.

It was said of him by his fellow workmen that he was a very strong man and liked nothing better than to have two or three of them try to shove the express packages upon him faster than he could take care of them.

In 1914, his health failing, he was persuaded by his friends in Boston to go to the state hospital at Taunton, Mass., for treatment. He remained at Taunton for over a year, then was sent to the insane asylum at Worcester, Mass. Here, on July 8, 1916, he died, and, unable to find his relatives, the authorities of the asylum buried him in the Potter's field of that institution.

In August of 1916 the writer, while in Vermont, learning of Mr. Fellows' death, went to Worcester, had the body taken up, re-coffined, and buried in a lot in Mt. Hope cemetery, Worcester, Mass. A suitable marker has since been placed at the head of the grave.

Whatever property that Mr. Fellows had, including his father's gold watch, must have been lost or taken from him, for he arrived at the asylum at Worcester with only his wearing apparel.

Mary Little (Moody) Fellows, daughter of Samuel and Olive W. Weymouth) Moody, pioneers of the town of Newburyport, Mass., was born April 3, 1841. She attended the schools of Newburyport, graduating from the Putnam Free School in 1862.

She taught the first year after graduating at the Lafayette Literary Institute at Lafayette, Ind. She returned the next year to Newburyport where she taught continuously till 1869.

In that year she went to New Orleans, La., where she taught school for nine years.

July 31, 1878, she became the second wife of J. Q. A. Fellows, being mar. by the Rev. John Hannon, pastor of St. Charles Ave. Church, New Orleans, La. She d. Oct. 8, 1917, and is buried in Belleville cemetery at Newburyport, Mass.

7 Mary (Fellows) Craig was b. at Topsham, Orange county, Vt., June 27, 1826; d. at Wethersfield, Ill., Feb. 22, 1911. She early had the care of her younger brothers and sisters thrown upon her. It may be that in the care of these brothers and sisters she learned that patience and skill in sickness which made her in after years, on the prairies of Illinois, of so much use to her neighbors. March 23, 1848, she was mar. to Robert H. Craig, at her father's home, by the Rev. Stillman Morgan.

Robert H. Craig, son of James and Margaret Nesmith (Dickey) Craig, was b. at Groton, Caledonia county, Vt., Jan. 1, 1826, and d. at Wethersfield, Ill., May 18, 1909.

Till 1850 after their marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Craig lived upon a farm in East Topsham, Vt. In that year he went west to look at Illinois land. In the spring of 1851 he returned for Mrs. Craig.

The journey from Vermont to Illinois at that time was no small undertaking. Both the Erie and the Michigan canals were used in the journey. From Henry, on the Illinois river, to Elmira, Stark county, Ill., the lumber wagon was used, there being no railroad west of Chicago at that time.

March 24, 1851, R. H. Craig and Moody Grow bought of Henry White 118 acres of land on Sec. 22, in Elmira township, for $765. By Dec. 18, 1852, Mr. Craig had sold his claim on this land for $500. For several years he rented land in Elmira township. March 31, 1857, he bought of Thomas Lyle 109 acres of land in Elmira township, four miles east of Kewanee, for $2,400. This land was sold by Mr. Craig Feb. 18, 1871, for $6,600. Feb. 20, 1871, he bought 160 acres of land on Sec. 29, Wethersfield township, Henry county, for $8,000.

WHEN ILLINOIS WAS YOUNG.

In the days before the white man came to Illinois herds of the larger wild animals, such as the buffalo, the elk and the deer, roamed over the prairie of Wethersfield township and took refuge in its groves.

Buffaloes, elks, deer and beavers did exist upon these prairies for buffaloes were shot in Illinois as late as 1818, elks as late as 1816 and beavers were trapped as late as 1876.

There still may be seen near the southwestern corner of the N. $\frac{1}{2}$ of the N. E. $\frac{1}{4}$ of Sec. 31, two pond like depressions which, without doubt, are the remains of old buffalo wallows.

In the pioneer days of the white man in Wethersfield township, deer and smaller wild game were plentiful. Men who were here in the 50's often tell of having seen from two to a dozen deer at one time upon the prairie in this township.

One day while John Lyle, a former pioneer resident of Kewanee, was riding horseback across the prairie he saw, by the side of the road, two young deer about one day old. He dismounted and taking one under each arm carried them home to his wife.

She brought them up by hand till they became full grown. A bell was placed upon the neck of each and for several years they were the playmates of the family. Finally they disappeared and it was thought that they had become the prey of some hunter, for several months after their disappearance their bells were found hidden under some leaves at the edge of the forest.

For several weeks during the fall V-shaped flocks of ducks and geese could be seen daily on their way southward. In the spring flocks of these same wild fowls often came down in the new-sown wheat fields to feed upon the uncovered wheat or upon the corn left in the fields from the preceding crop. Sometimes 500 or a 1000 geese could be seen feeding at day-break in a single 40-acre field.

Flocks of wild pigeons were so numerous during their migrations that they often darkened the sun. Prairie chickens numbering from 100 to 1000 or more could be seen upon their breeding grounds in spring and the whistle of the quail, or "Bob White," could be heard throughout the year.

Since the drainage of our ponds and sloughs the wild goose and the wild duck have taken other courses in their migrations. Seldom is a flock of either seen feeding in a Wethersfield field.

Not a single descendant of the wild pigeon which once flew over this region in countless numbers is left. The prairie chicken and the quail are rapidly disappearing and it will be but a few years before they, like the buffalo, the elk and the beaver, will have disappeared forever from this locality.

Mr. and Mrs. Craig moved to this farm March 1, 1871. By 1898 he had obtained over 1,000 acres of land, over 900 acres of which lay in Wethersfield township. In the fall of 1896 they moved to the Holmes' property in Galva, Ill.; thence in Feb., 1904, to No. 111, Tenney St., Wethersfield, where they lived till they died.

Mr. Craig was of the strict Presbyterian faith. Sunday was a day of rest and church and Sunday school services had to be attended regularly by all members of the family. The following incident will show how Mr. Craig was regarded by his friends.

In 1886 one of the leading bankers of Galva had 160 acres of Wethersfield land which he wished to sell. One day Mr. Craig was in the Galva bank on business. The banker asked him if he did not want to buy some more land. Mr. Craig replied that he did not think he did, as he had more land already than he could pay for, not having paid a cent on the last 80 acres that he had bought. The banker told him that he could take the land and pay for it when he got ready.

That evening the matter was talked over at the home of Mr. Craig. His boys urged him to buy the farm. Two notes for $4,000, each bearing 8 per cent interest, were written on foolscap paper by one of the boys. The next day these notes were given to the banker and a deed for the farm was given to Mr. Craig.

Mr. Craig had asked the banker what security he wanted. The reply was, "your note." The answer to the question, "Do you want the boys to sign the note, was, "No, you are good enough security."

During her whole life Mrs. Craig was sought by neighbors and friends in time of trouble and sickness. She responded willingly even when herself suffering from the infirmities of age. Her whole life was given in unselfish service for others.

Mr. and Mrs. Craig are buried in the Wethersfield cemetery. A block of granite from the hills of their native state, Vermont, marks the spot where they are buried.

WETHERSFIELD GRADE SCHOOL.

The Wethersfield Grade School was completed Oct. 12, 1903, at a cost of $30,000. The building is in the center of a 10-acre lot. There are over 200 trees of different varieties upon the ground. There are over a score of flower beds upon the school ground. The largest flower beds are over 30 feet in diameter. Twenty-five hundred tulip blossoms have been counted at one time in these flower beds. It has been called the most beautiful school grounds in the state.

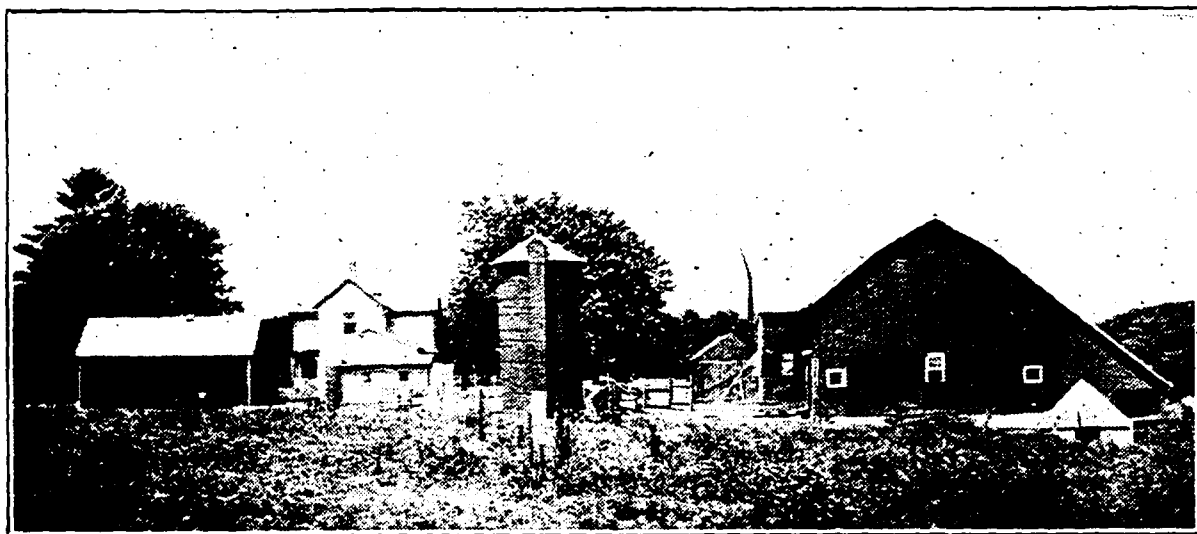

Wethersfield Township High School.

Wethersfield Township High School was begun July 18, 1914; completed and occupied April 12, 1915. The cost of the building was $35,000. A shed in the rear of the building furnishes shelter for the teams and carriages of pupils who drive to school.

Mr. Craig early took an interest in farm work and before he was 10 years old could drive a team or plow corn as well as any one upon the farm. He began working for himself in 1883 upon the farm where he now lives. He has added to the farm till he now has over 400 acres of well improved land. He is considered by his neighbors one of the best farmers in the county.

CORN IS KING.

He who can ride for a few hours along any country road in the vicinity of Kewanee, Ill., will not need to be told that corn is "King."

Even in those pioneer days when the virgin soil of these prairies was producing its first crop, corn was not more abundant or of a finer quality than it is this year.

Harvesting Corn in Illinois, October, 1918.

The stalks in the fields stand as straight and as majestic as any Indian warrior of old, the ears of corn from every stalk hang down of their own weight, and the glint of the golden grain is seen through the bursting husks of every ear.

The rhythmic motion of the leaves in the passing breezes sings a song of gladness to the farmer and whispers to him of cribs filled to the eaves with ears of golden corn.

People of other occupations may well rejoice with the farmer because of the abundant crops of this year; particularly may they rejoice because of the abundant corn crop; for a good corn crop insures the success of every line of work in the industrial life and in the social life of this community.

Nature, indeed, was truly kind to the farmer and through him to the people of all other occupations when, this summer, she poured forth her blessings of moisture and of sunshine upon our cornfields and made them to produce so abundantly.

IN HARVEST TIME.

There is a step upon the stairway, the step of the early riser on the farm. Every ear in the house hears the sound. 'Tis unwelcome to some, however, for every muscle of the body is sore from the severe labor in the harvest field of yesterday.

While breakfast is eaten and the chores are being finished there is a tenseness in the air as before a battle, for today, again, a battle is to be waged against the standing grain.

Into the field from 7 till 8 o'clock goes an army of reapers, as vast as that army which faces the central powers in Europe, an army of reapers whose labors are very essential to the success of the Allies.

Harvesting Scene in Illinois, July, 1918.

The machines are oiled and looked carefully over, a nut tightened here, a rod shortened there. Horses or tractors are hitched to the binders and soon the cry of the driver is heard in every field.

The sun pours its heat down upon the sweating horses and toiling men. The water boy, that future farmer in embryo, is much in demand. His water quenches the thirst of the men and produces a perspiration the evaporation of which keeps the temperature of the body nearly normal.

The heat grows more intense as the sun nears the zenith. The clothes of the workers are saturated with water and the salty sweat from their foreheads finds its way into their eyes, making them smart and burn. Care must be taken not to overheat the body. A rise of one or two degrees in the temperature of the body may send a man to the shade and out of the harvest field for a day or even for the whole season. "Old Sol" is no respecter of persons but takes his toll alike from the seasoned harvester as well as from him who is new at the work.

Noontime is welcomed by all. With intense satisfaction the horses sink their muzzles into the water tank and drink their fill. Then in their stalls they find the feed of oats and corn which gives them strength to haul the heavy binders during the long afternoon to follow.

The men wash some of the rust and dirt from their heated faces, and sit down at the table to a dinner which the women folks have been planning and preparing for, all the forenoon; a dinner both wholesome and plentiful, for the hungry wolf never stalks before the door that leads to a farmer's table.

After dinner a few minutes are taken for rest. Then men and horses go to the fields again to continue the labor of the forenoon. Thus harvesting goes on till all the grain is in the shock or in the granary.

This year those men of other occupations who have gone out from the cities and towns to help the farmer harvest his grain can realize as never before, that, with all the modern improvements now used by the farmer, there still remains a lot of hard and sometimes disagreeable work in harvesting the crops of oats, wheat, rye and barley.

A letter received from Glen C. Craig, written Jan. 12, 1919:

Uerzig, Germany.

Dear Folks:

How are you all at 111 Tenney street? It is not very cold here yet. We had a little snow for Christmas, but it has rained considerable since. It is cold in the morning but never below freezing. For several mornings it has seemed very much like spring.

This town, Uerzig, is about 70 kilometers from Coblenz on the lowland along the Moselle River, so the high hills on the west and north protect it from the winds in those directions. We have been here since the 23d of Dec.

I received my Christmas box three days ago, but the contents did not last very long. The variety was one good feature, a little of several good kinds of "eats." It was all good. The only trouble there was not enough of it as we do not get very much candy here.

I wish I could read the Chicago Daily Tribune instead of getting a few clippings from it. We have the Saturday Evening Post and a few other magazines now, as well as the New York Herald, the paper that we always got on the front.

I do not remember if I told you when we first went into line. We left our camp about 40 miles north of Dijon, where we had settled after landing in France, went to Toul on the railroad and from there by truck to the trenches. Never will

I forget that ride at night to Toul. We arrived about 2 a. m. There were no lights because Toul was subject to air raids. We were a quiet lot as well as tired, because we had hiked two days prior to getting on the train and we hardly dared to light a cigaret.

We staid a few days at Bruly, a little town about three miles from Toul. While there we witnessed some air raids and these were exciting because we knew that we were near the real thing. From this place we went in trucks, at night, to the trenches, another and never to be forgotten night. Here we went over the top on the morning of Sept. 1, 1918.

We stayed on the St. Mihiel front until Oct. 10th, then returned to Bruly again. It was a walk back instead of a ride as when going out. It was here I wrote you my letter of Sunday, Oct. 13, containing my Christmas coupon.

We remained here about a week, then rode in French trucks to the Argonne-Meuse front to be a support. We were there ready for the big last drive Nov. 1. Here we made that big advance in two days which was so hard for the artillery to keep up with us.

Here I spent my birthday (Nov. 5th) in a house at Montigny, while some big shells were bursting near us. Occasonally at night an aeroplane would drop some bombs which I thought pretty close. We made another advance before the 11th, and finished up on the east bank of the Meuse. I was in Monzay when hostilities ceased.

INDIAN TRAIL FARM.

The occurrence of Indian arrowheads in all parts of Wethersfield Township proves that it once formed a part of the Indian hunting grounds.

In pioneer days stone arrowheads were frequently found upon the prairie and to this day they are turned out by the plow.

The Illini before their destruction by the Iroquois claimed Wethersfield Township as part of their hunting grounds. Later it was claimed by the Sacs and Foxes, who had their chief settlement on Rock River in the northwestern part of Henry County.

The chief Indian trail in Wethersfield Township ran almost directly north and south through the township. This trail entered the township a little over a mile from its western boundary, crossed the western branch of Indian Creek on section twenty-nine, south of the sand mound, on the Craig farm, thence almost directly north to Blish's Woods at Wethersfield. A few rods of this trail can still be seen on the northern slope of the hill south of the sand mound before mentioned. This piece of trail was never plowed up and is probably the only vestige of an Indian trail left in Wethersfield Township.

The last Indians in any number to use this trail was the band of the Winnebago chief, Shick-Shack, who in 1827, led his band, consisting of over forty men with their squaws and children over this trail to Prophetstown, thence to the Wisconsin hill country.

It is said on good authority that this same chief was one of the friendly Winnebagoes who helped to place Black Hawk in the hands of United States troops after that chief's escape at the battle of Bad Axe, Aug. 2, 1832.

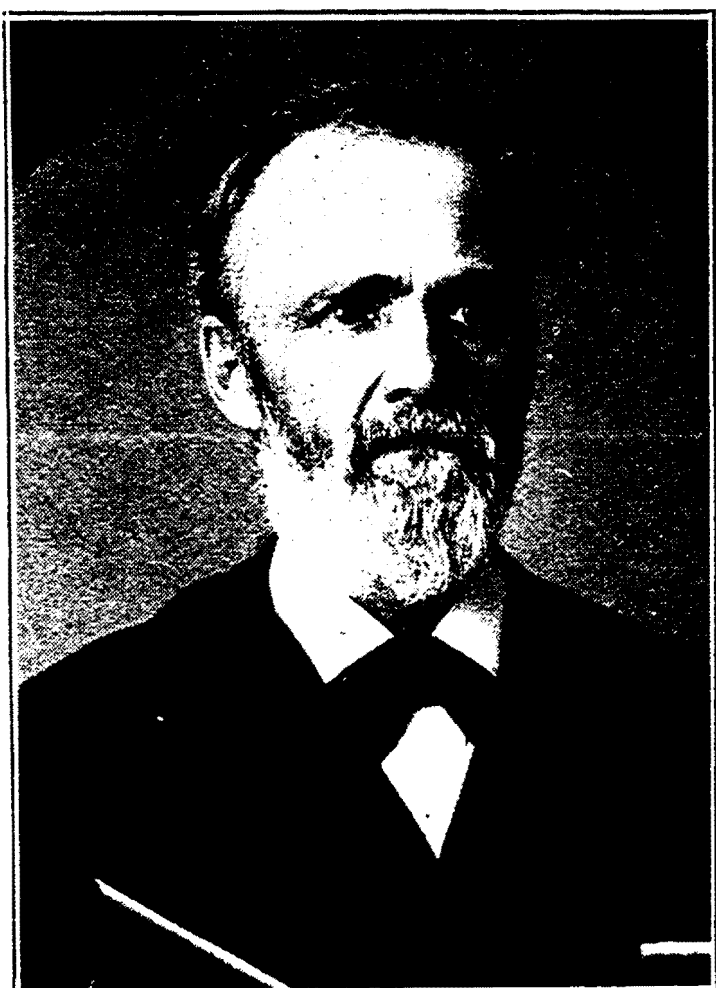

To perpetuate this trail Elmer Craig, who now owns the old homestead, has named the farm, Indian Trail Farm.

Dr. George W. Fellows.

Abbie Jane (Wilson) Fellows.

7 George Washington Fellows was born at Topsham, Orange County, Vt., April 8, 1828. At the age of fifteen years he began teaching school. He taught for three years and at the same time studied medicine with the village doctor. At the age of eighteen he went to New York City, where he spent a year in the City Hospital and attended medical lectures. About 1849 he graduated from the medical department of Dartmouth College, N. H.

In 1849 he was seized with one of the worst fevers of that time, the gold fever, and went to California. There were no railroads west of Chicago at that time. The journey from Vermont to Chicago was made by rail, and from Chicago to San Francisco by the prairie schooner drawn by ox teams. The journey by ox team took six weeks and was a very interesting one. Large herds of buffalo were seen on the western plains. Deer and buffalo meat was obtained by the hunters of the party. Because of the size of this party they were not molested by Indians.

Dr. Fellows spent several years in the gold fields of California. The gold was obtained by washing it out of the sand and gravel from the river beds. After the gold was obtained it was put in buckskin sacks. These sacks were buried in the earth under the tent. At one time when Mr. Fellows and his three partners were away their tent was robbed and burned to the ground.

After accumulating several thousand dollars worth of gold dust Mr. Fellows returned as far as Kewanee, Ill., and began the practice of medicine in that city. Dec. 5, 1864, he mar. Abbie Jane Wilson, sister of Charles E. Wilson, one of the leading lawyers of Kewanee, in the 70's. She was b. in Boston, Mass., June 24, 1840.

Dr. Fellows was one of the pioneer doctors of Kewanee, often braving the hardships which only those who have lived in a new country can understand. Impassible roads, dark nights and the cold of winter had no terrors for him. He ministered to rich and poor alike with no thought except to relieve their sufferings. In 1877 he removed to Creston, Iowa, where he practiced medicine till his death, Sept. 6, 1906. He is buried at Creston, Iowa.

Children:

March 31, 1895, at Rosendale, Mo., and is the daughter of Edward Thompson Elrod. Mr. Fellows is a merchant. P. O., 1410 Charles Street, St. Joseph, Mo.
- 8 E. Arthur, b. May 5, 1878; express messenger; met his death March 17, 1903 by falling from the open door of the express car between stations.
- 7 Benjamin F. Fellows was born at Topsham, Orange County, Vt., April 15, 1833; d. Sept. 26, 1904. March 22, 1857, he mar. Mary Etta Colby, who was b. March 1, 1838, and d. Nov. 26, 1885. Both are buried in Pleasant View cemetery, Kewanee, Ill.

After his marriage Mr. Fellows farmed in Vermont till 1863. Dec. 19, 1863, he bought an eighty acre farm two miles east of Kewanee. This farm lay in Section 35, Kewanee Township, and cost $27.50 per acre. This is one of the best eighty acres of land in Kewanee Township and would sell at this time for $350 per acre.

Mr. and Mrs. Fellows lived on this farm till March 11, 1885, when they bought a home at 414 East Prospect street in Kewanee. Both died at this place. Mr. Fellows was of a quiet and retiring disposition and was highly respected by all who knew him.

Children:

8 George, b. June 14, 1858, at Topsham, Vt.; moved with his parents to Kewanee in 1863. Feb. 2, 1887, he mar. Sarah Isabelle Titterington, who was b. in Taylor County, Iowa, Feb. 9, 1862. He is a laborer in the plow shops. P. O., 1021 Fourteen and One-half street, Rock Island, Ill.

Children:

Franklin Nourse was b. at Topsham, Orange County, Vt., on March 12, 1830. He was the son of Elijah and Mehitabel (Towns) Nourse. He went to Richland County, Wis., in 1851. The next year his father arrived and bought the S. $\frac{1}{2}$ of the N. E. $\frac{1}{4}$ and the N. $\frac{1}{2}$ of the S. E. $\frac{1}{4}$ of Section 6, Town 9, N., Range 2 E., now included in the town of Buena Vista.

When Mr. Nourse came to Wisconsin Indians were still found there. Deer were common and prairie chickens were plentiful. In 1856 he made a flying visit to his native town in Vermont and mar. Hannah Fellows; her sister Mary often said that it was done, courtship and marriage, so quickly that Hannah never had time to say "No."

After his father's death, Mr. Nourse made the homestead one of the best improved farms in the state. Mr. Nourse had a remarkable memory. At the age of eighty years he could recite many selections which he had learned from his readers at school.

Mr. and Mrs. Nourse were fine types of the Wisconsin pioneers. She d. Dec. 11, 1911. He d. April 7, 1914. Both are buried in the cemetery at Sextonville, Wis.

Thomas D. Fellows.

Lemira E. (Doe) Fellows.

7 Thomas Davis Fellows was b. May 24, 1838, at Topsham, Orange County, Vt. May 4, 1870, he mar. Lemira E. Doe of Corinth, Vt. She was the daughter of James M. and Lucinda (Dickey) Doe.

Mr. Fellows was born and spent his boyhood days in the "Fellows House," which still stands. He saw the old fireplace give place to the more modern woodstove. He saw his brothers and sisters, one by one, leave the old homestead and go out into the Great West to make homes for themselves and for their children.

In 1880 he sold the old homestead and moved to his present place of residence. On the south of the house in which he now lives is the main wagon road between Montpelier in the central part of the State, and Bradford on the Connecticut River in the eastern part of the State. Beyond the road and separated from it by a narrow meadow is Wait's River. On the east of the house is "The Brooklet." Beyond the river are forest covered hills which rise to the skyline.

All day long the noise of running waters may be heard and at night the music of river and brook lulls one to sleep beneath the low rafters in the garret.

Here in this valley, sheltered by the everlasting hills, Mr. and Mrs. Fellows have lived for thirty-eight years, except for two years when he was in the Legislature of Vermont. The monotony of the long winter days and evenings is broken by the frequent visits of neighbors. Often are there visitors at mealtime, for the fame of Aunt Lemira's cooking, particularly of her apple pies, has spread beyond the borders of the State.

In the corner of the kitchen, reaching from ceiling to floor, stands the family clock, ticking off the seconds as it has done for over a hundred years. On the door of this clock, one of the famous Seth Thomas clocks of Connecticut, is written the date, Oct. 17, 1812. Whether this is the date when the clock was made or the date when it was cleaned no one knows, but the clock must be a hundred years old or more, for Emily Fellows, born in 1823, often said that it was purchased by her father before she was born.

Mrs. Fellows began teaching in Vermont when she was sixteen years old and taught six years. She received for teaching her first school $1.25 per week of five and one-half days, school being held in the forenoon of each Saturday. She boarded around, as it was called in those days. This was boarding in every home that had children in the school. The

THE BROOKLET.

Little brooklet, as you flow,
With a murmur soft and low,
 Through the shadow and the light,
 Always working day and night,
Happy, happy, must you be
In your journey to the sea.

In Vermont 'mong hills of green,
Springs to life your silvery sheen;
 Only at first a tiny rill,
 Tumbling, twisting, down a hill,
Over a dam, under a bridge,
Dancing like a fairy midge.

Stories many you can tell,
Of woodsy things, I love so well;
 Of stately pine, of spruce and beech,
 Of speckled trout within your reach;
Of flowers rare in forest glen,
Far beyond the haunts of men.

Of song of birds, sweet and clear,
Echoed back, now far, now near;
 Of timid fawn and graceful deer,
 Drinking with no sign of fear
From thy motley pebbled edge,
Shaded by the water sedge.

May we all, sweet brooklet, clear.
Though our lives are sometimes drear,
 Look beyond all sordid things,
 And as thou, with fairy wings,
Strivest 'gainst a hidden might,
May we strive for truth and right.

The Brooklet.

time that the teacher boarded at each home was in proportion to the number of children sent to school from that home.

Mr. Fellows is a skilled fisherman, and his rifle hangs on the kitchen wall ready for instant use. Although he is eighty years old his hand has not lost its cunning nor his eye its keenness of sight.

Mr. Fellows still tells some of the stories told to him when a boy, stories handed down from his grandfather's time, and told in the long winter evenings around the open fireplace, when Vermont was a wilderness. The following story is one told by him:

THE TWO BROTHERS.

A hundred years ago there lay in one of the valleys of the Green Mountain State a quaint little village. Among the inhabitants of this village were two brothers who were said to be witches. They were shunned accordingly by their neighbors.

These brothers were often seen wending their way on dark nights to the top of a hill which lay back of the village. One day they told one of the villagers that they were going on a witch ride that night and asked him to accompany them. Against the wishes of his wife he finally decided to go with the brothers.

Just at dusk that evening the brothers came to the villager's home bringing with them three witch bridles. After supper they took the bridles and climbed to the top of the hill. Here they caught three calves, put the bridles upon the calves' heads and prepared to mount them.

The brothers told the villager that after mounting the calf he must not speak, for if he spoke the witch spell which gave his bridle its miraculous power would be broken and he would fall.

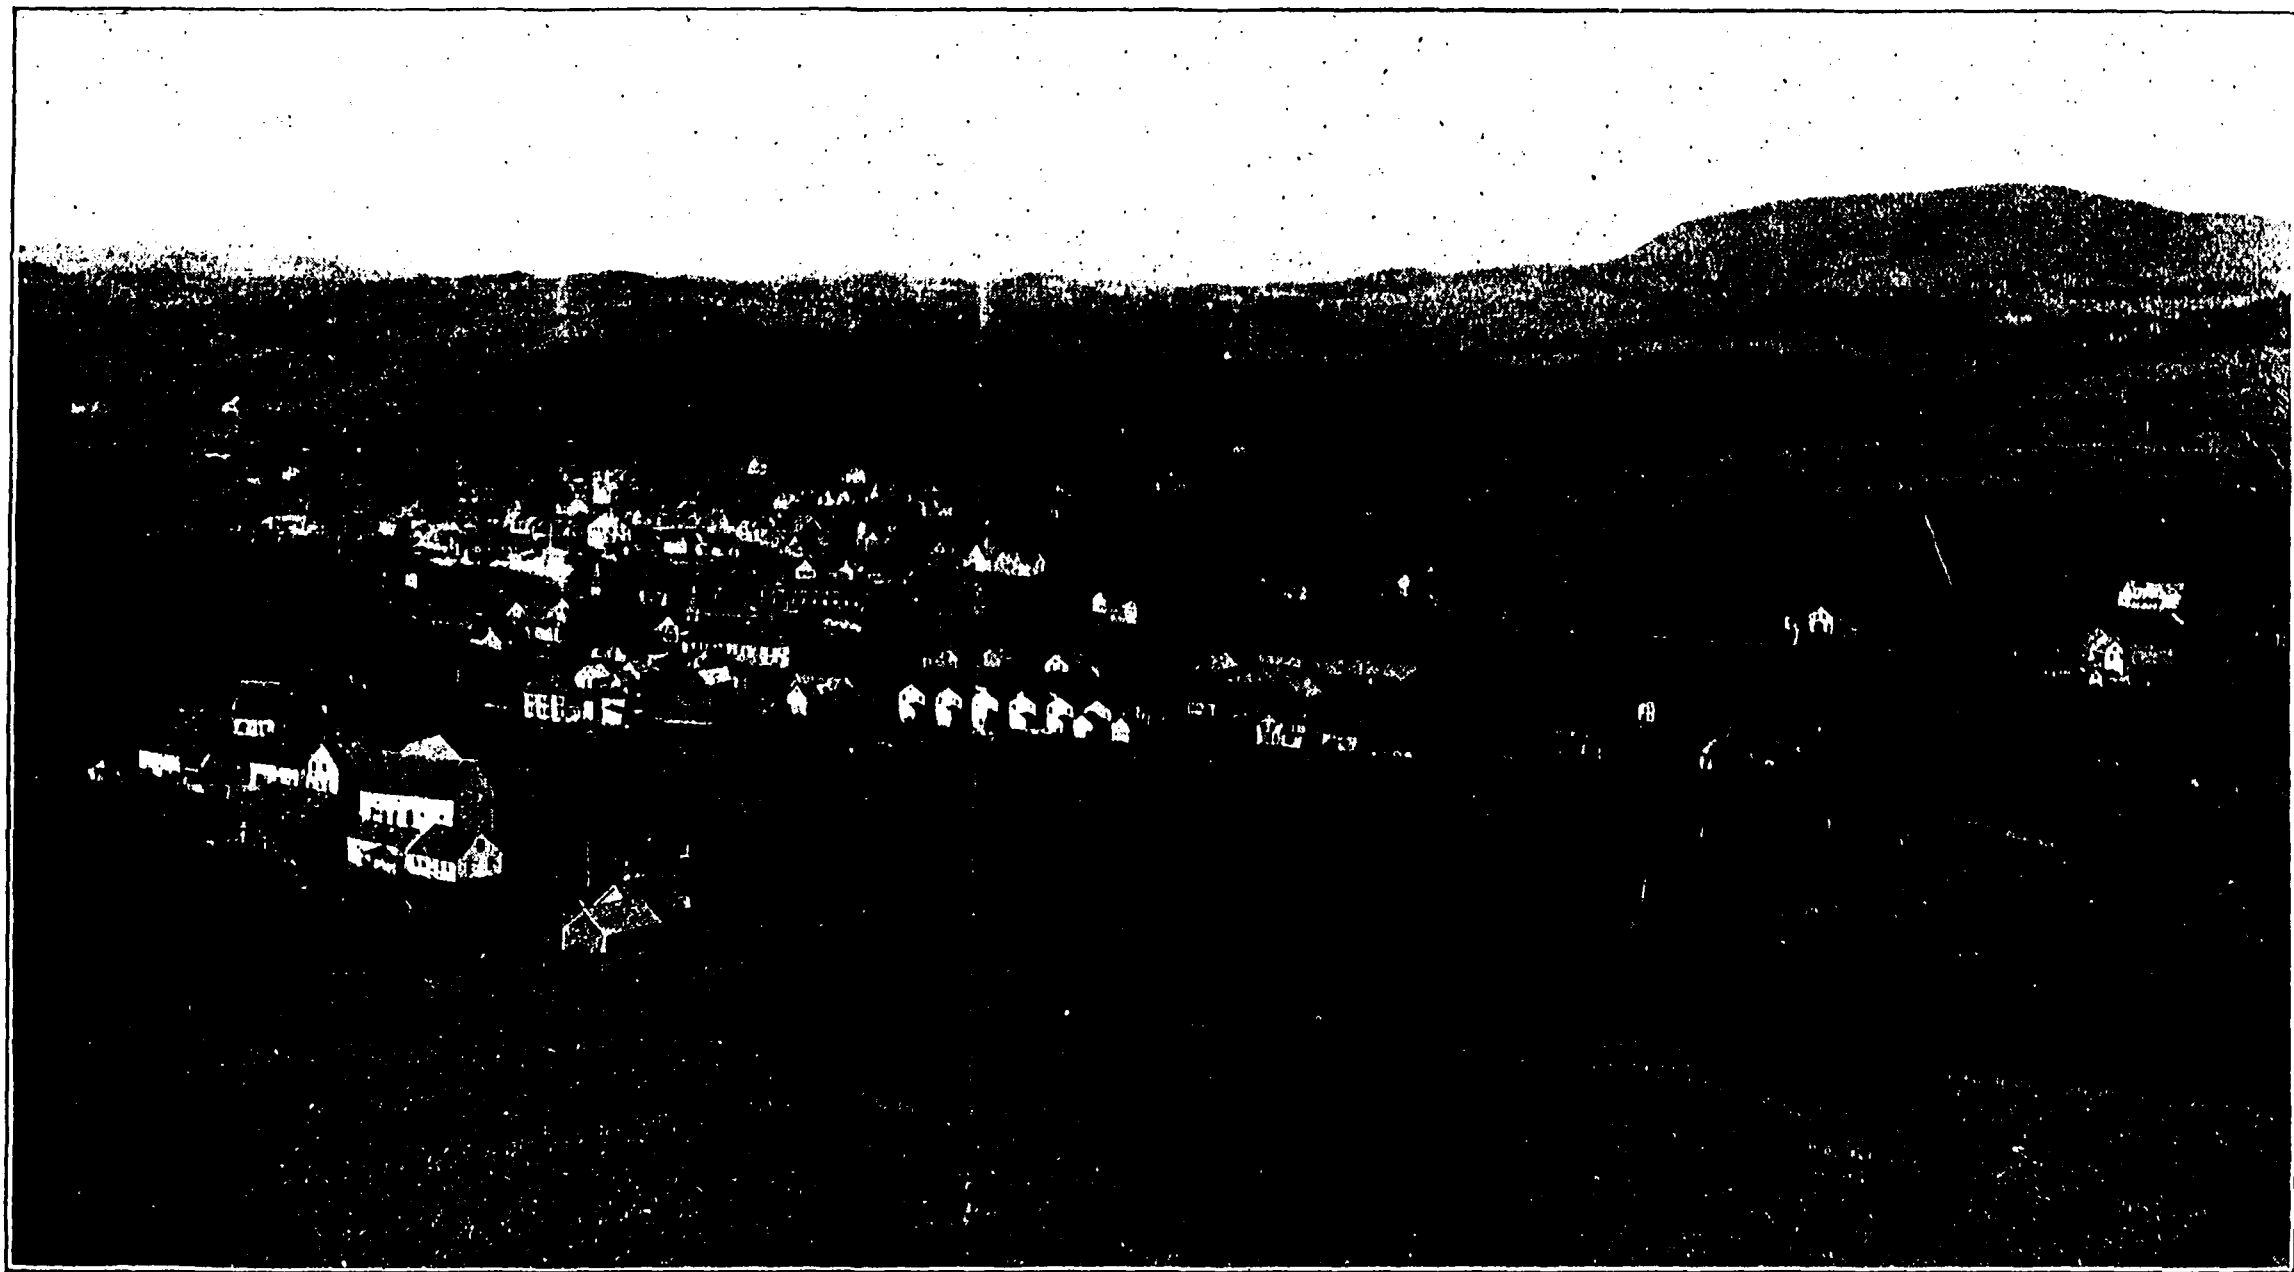

They mounted the calves. The calves sprang into the air and leaped for the next hill top. The hills in this region were from three to five hundred feet high, and their tops were several miles apart. The villager saw the dark, evergreen-filled valleys far below him each with its river winding away into the distance. He was very much frightened at first, but in a short time he became accustomed to the long leaps and began to enjoy himself.

At last they came to a valley which was wider than any of the others. The calves gave a mighty leap and sailed over the valley. The villager looked back when they were nearly across, and forgetting what the two brothers had told him, said to the calf, "Gracious! You made a good leap that time."

He had no sooner uttered the words than the bridle lost its power and the calf and rider fell to the earth. The fall stunned the villager and when he recovered, the calf and bridle had disappeared. After wandering among the hills for several days, he found his way home. He was ragged, dirty and tired and could tell little regarding his night's ride and its subsequent events.

In after years, however, he was wont to tell the story to his companions as they gathered of an evening at the village store. His story would always bring a smile to the faces of the "knowing ones" and they would wink slyly at each other behind the story teller's back, for they knew that the path to the hill led to a "moonshine still" owned and operated by the two brothers.

THE CRAIG FAMILY IN AMERICA.

The name "Crag" or "Craig" is of Scotch origin. In the ancient Gaelic language it means a steep, rugged, broken cliff or projecting rock.

In that remote past when man was just emerging from that darkness which separated him from the lower animals, one of our ancestors may have taken up his abode in some cave made almost inaccessible by cliffs. Here he raised a family, the beginning of a clan.

The needs of this family becoming greater, the men issued from their rocky fastness to prey upon their less protected neighbors on the plains. The cry, "From the crags, from the crags," would be raised by the attacked plainsmen. As the attacks became more frequent the cry was changed from "crags" to "The Craigs." When the family became a clan, it was necessary for each individual to have a given name, as John, William, etc., to distinguish him from others of the clan or family.

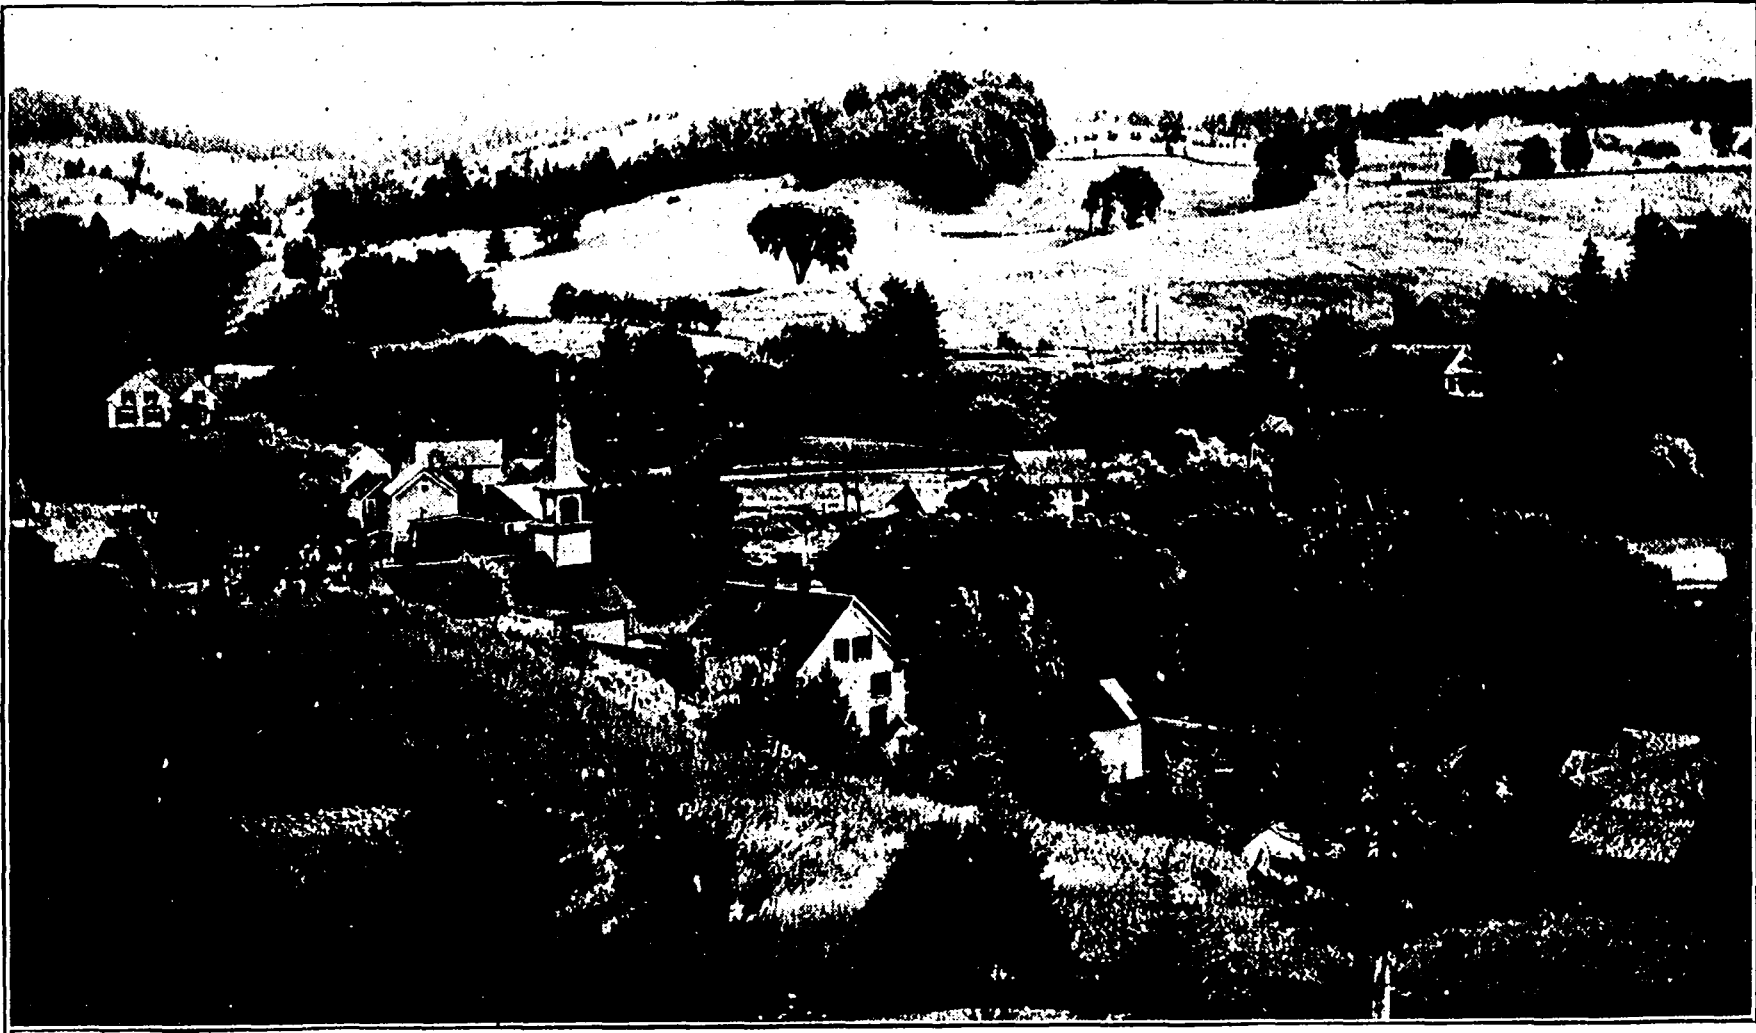

There is also a legend to the effect that "The Craigs" obtained their name from an ancestor, who in medieval times discovered, in battle, that by striking an enemy between the helmet and the armor (or on the crag or neck) he could bring off a head at each stroke, and thereby called to his followers, "Hit them on the crags, boys, hit them on the crags." The word "Craig" is identical with "crag," the obsolete meaning of which—according to Webster—is the neck or throat.

The original home of the "Craigs" is Scotland. Two brothers of that name, John and Thomas, were quite prominent there in the sixteenth century. In the seventeenth century a family of Craigs were driven from Scotland because of some political or religious offense and settled in the Province of Ulster, Ireland.

Between 1720 and 1740 a family of these Craigs from Ireland, consisting of four brothers and four sisters, emigrated to Pennsylvania, U. S. A. Sarah Craig, daughter of David Craig, one of the brothers, was the great grandmother of Theodore Roosevelt.

The immediate ancestors of the Craigs in America of which this geneology treats, lived in the parish of Erskine, Shire of Renfrew, North Britain, now Scotland.

The Parish of Erskine is not far from the City of Glasgow. It is eight and one-half miles long by two or three miles wide and contains 9,092 acres. It forms a part of the Shire or County of Renfrew. This Shire lies upon both sides of the Clyde River and is thirty-one and one-half miles long. Its greatest breadth is thirteen and one-fourth miles; area 254 square miles, about 162,427 acres. The ancestors to which our line of Craigs belong lived here as farmers in 1784.

- 1 William Craig, Jr., son of William Craig, a farmer in the Parish of Erskine, Shire of Renfrew, Scotland, was b. in 1753. He married Margaret McInlay (McKinley) about 1771. He d. in 1807. She d. in 1823 at Topsham, Vt., and is buried there.

In 1784, this family, consisting of father, mother and five children emigrated to Ryegate, Caledonia County, Vt. Mr. Craig bought from the Scotch Land Company at Ryegate, lots 175, 176, 177, 186 and 187. These five lots, containing one hundred and eight acres, lay at the foot of Blue Mountain, Caledonia County, Vt.

On June 5, 1807, the heirs of the said William Craig sold all interest in these lots and in his personal property to his son, James Craig, for $400. In March, 1821, these lots were sold by James Craig to Edward Miller for $756. This property is still in possession of the Miller family.

RYEGATE.

Beautiful land of our fathers, rock-ribbed and seamed to the view;

Decked are thy hills with a beauty, that ever the ages renew.
Staunch stood the houses they builded, those fathers of long age,

When the land was a forest unbroken save, by sound of the axe and the bow.

Of hemlock, of spruce and of fir, snugly built were those houses and low;

Far down at the foot of Blue Mountain, where musical waters flow.

Roomy and wide were those houses, and red as the morning sun,

When seen through the mists of the valley, just as the day is begun.

Dusky and low were the garrets, with clusters of herbs in view,
For versed were the wives of our fathers, and the lore of healing they knew.

Heaped high were the bins in the cellars, and the cribs were full to the eaves,

For the winters were long and inclement, and the summers as fickle as leaves.

Low down at the foot of Blue Mountain, the landscape its beauty anointing,
Lay the little village of Ryegate, its church-spire heavenward pointing.
Severe and staid was the minister, and broad was his Scottish brogue,
Whether he preached to his flock on the Sabbath, or roundly censured the rogue.

To this land of beauty and hardship, came our fathers from over the sea,
To make for themselves at Ryegate, a home in the land of the free.
Those fathers have paid the penalty which the sands of time demand,
Their children and children's children are scattered in every land.

But the children of those fathers, wherever they are found,
Still wander to the hills of Ryegate, to them 'tis holy ground;
For there their fathers labored, to reap from virgin soil,
That competence and sturdy health, which comes from honest toil.

School House District No. 9, Groton, Vt.

On reaching Ryegate in 1784, Mr. and Mrs. Craig became members of the "Seceder" now the United Presbyterian Church, presenting the following certificate:

"These do certify that William Craig, son of William Craig, late farmer in the Parish of Erskine and Shire of Renfrew, North Britain, with Margaret McInlay his spouse, residing in the Parish of Erskine from their infancy preceding this date, behaving themselves sober and inoffensively, free from public scandal or ground of church censure known to this session, and having been admitted to sealing ordinances here, there is nothing known at present to hinder them from the same privileges where Providence may order their lot. Is attested at Erskine the 3d of May, 1784, by Walter Young, Minister." George Dempster, Sess. Clk."

The five older children of Mr. and Mrs. Craig were born at Erskine and were baptized by the Rev. Walter Young. The other two children were born at Ryegate and baptized by Rev. Dr. Witherspoon.

Children :

- 3 Janet Nesmith Craig, b. Jan. 17, 1809; d. Feb. 21, 1838. On March 14, 1835, mar. James Caldwell, Jr., who was b. at Ryegate, Vt., Dec. 10, 1908, and d. at Topsham, Vt., Aug. 16, 1863. James Caldwell received from his father a much worn pocket Bible. This Bible is still in the possession of J. R. Caldwell, grandson of the first James Caldwell in America.

To the Caldwells in America was sent a copy of the Old and New Testaments in pamphlet form. The leaves of these pamphlets were $12\frac{1}{2} \times 19\frac{1}{2}$ inches and the printing was done in 1716 by John Bartlett, University of Oxford, Printer to the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

Through the influence of Nancy Chamberlain, daughter of Joseph Chamberlain, who became the second wife of James Caldwell and stepmother of Mary Caldwell, these pamphlets were bound in leather. Volume I includes all the books of the New Testament, and a few books of the Old Testament not usually found in later editions of the Bible. Volume II includes most of the books of the Old Testament.

Volume I was given to the eldest daughter of Archie Caldwell, Roxanna (Caldwell) Aldrich, and by descent to her eldest daughter, Mrs. Blanche Smith of Shenandoah, Iowa. Volume II was given to Mary (Caldwell) Tibbetts, then to her eldest daughter, Jennie Tibbetts, who now has it.

Children :

- 4 Mary, b. Jan. 9, 1836, at Topsham, Vt. At the age of twenty-four years she became the wife of Gustavus Tibbetts, who was born in the Town of Belgrade, Kennebec County, Maine. He was the youngest child of Nathaniel and Hulda (Page) Tibbetts. In 1851, Mr. Tibbetts moved to Illinois, making the trip by railroad to Cleveland, Ohio; thence by boat to Chicago as there was no railroad from the east into Chicago at that time. From Chicago he went by canal to Peru, Ill., thence by wagon to Neponset, Ill. In 1852 Mr. Tibbetts returned to Vermont, but in 1854 he went west to make a permanent home.

In 1854 Mr. Tibbetts purchased eighty acres of prairie land southwest of Neponset from the Government. He plowed this land with an ox-team. In 1857 he built a house upon this farm.

In 1860 he went to Topsham, Vt., where, on Feb. 23, 1860, he mar. Mary Caldwell of that place. She returned with him to their farm at Neponset, where they lived till 1898. In that year they moved into the village of Neponset.

Mr. Tibbetts saw the coming of the railroads and trolley lines. He saw the uncultivated prairie give place to the rich and prosperous farms of today. Generous, hospitable and cheerful he was a true type of the Western pioneer. He d. June 8, 1918. Mrs. Tibbetts d. May 17, 1911. Both are buried in the Old cemetery at Neponset, Ill.

John Lyle.

Mr. Lyle, Jr., built a log cabin in Elmira Township in 1836. Entering this cabin as residents were John Lyle, his wife and son, George, aged three years, and Mr. Lyle's brother, Thomas Lyle and wife, and his mother, Janet Lyle.

A daughter, Helen, was born to Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lyle in this cabin Nov. 13, 1837. This was the first white child born in Elmira Township, Stark County, Ill.

To this cabin for shelter in the fall of 1837 came Thomas Oliver, Sr., and wife, with their children Margaret, Adam, Andrew, Charlotte, Betsy, Ann, William, Thomas, Henry and John, together with John Turnbull and Adam Craig. These people, twenty-one in number, all lived in this log cabin, 16x24 feet, during the winter of 1837-38.

In 1836 John Lyle went to Elmira, Ill., where he began farming and stock raising. He was a man of great endurance and of an iron constitution. Few men among the early pioneers exhibited greater enterprise or led a more energetic life. He gained considerable wealth by buying unimproved lands, then converting them into improved farms and selling them at market value.

Mr. Lyle enlisted in Company K, 134th Illinois Volunteer Infantry, on May 24, 1864, and served till Oct. 25, of the same year. He d. July 29, 1889. At the age of twelve, John Fischer came to America with his parents, who settled at Kewanee, Ill. After reaching this country he spent two years in a country school, then worked for a short time in a coal mine with his father, who was a miner by trade. While a young man he worked on a farm for two years. Later he worked for the Haxtun Steam Heater Company, which afterward became the Western Tube Company, and is now the Walworth Manufacturing Company. But the greater part of his early manhood was spent in the grocery business.

In 1889 he began the real estate and loan business which assumed considerable magnitude. In 1902 Mr. Fischer, in conjunction with three other men, founded the Savings Bank of Kewanee, of which institution he is president.

Mr. Fischer is a self-made man. He is only another example of what a poor boy can become in this country by his own pluck and perseverance. As a business man Mr. Fischer has the confidence and respect of all who know him.

On Oct. 2, 1883, Mr. Fischer was united in marriage with Etta Ruth Lyle, daughter of George Lyle and granddaughter of Home of John Fischer.

John Lyle. Mrs. Fischer has been a good helpmate. By inheritance she brought her husband considerable wealth which through his capable management has largely increased. To this marriage five children were born, three of whom are now living, two having died in infancy.

- 3 Mary Jane Craig was b. at Groton, Vt., Oct. 1, 1818. On Feb. 19, 1837, she was married to Thomas Lyle, son of William and Janet Lyle. Thomas Lyle was b. at Paisley, Scotland, March 18, 1809. His education was obtained by attending the country schools during the winter months.

Mr. Lyle was a prominent citizen in the early history of Stark County. He was the first supervisor of the county and held the position of postmaster at Elmira for fourteen years. During his life in Stark County he saw a wilderness of prairie land change to fine cultivated farms; he saw the rail or "zigzag" fence give place to the hedge and wire fence; and he saw the wooden farm implements of frontier days supplanted by more modern implements of iron and steel. The following letter, written to his brother-in-law, Robert H. Craig, in 1848, will show what he thought of the new country.

“Elmira, Ill., March 5th, 1848.

“Mr. Craig, Sir:

“I am in receipt of your letter of Jan. 18th & I now take this opportunity of answering it. We are all in good health & we have another son. I think by your letter you are quite given to religion as that is all you write. We have had the pleasantest winter that I have ever seen. We have not had to exceed 2 inches of snow at one time this winter. Pork has been selling verry low here this winter. It has sold from $1\frac{1}{2}$ to $2\frac{1}{4}$ cts. per lb. We sold ours 8314 lbs. at 2 cts per lb. We sold beef cattle enough last summer to amount to 490 dollars. Last spring we sold 2000 bu. of corn at 28 & 30 cts per bushel. We sold between 400 and 500 bu. of oats for from 25 to 32 cts. per bushel. We sold upwards 700 bu. of wheat at 60 cts. per bu. We shall not have any corn or oats to sell this spring as we have been getting considerable stock. We now have 20 head of horses, 139 head of horned cattle from 1 year old and upwards. We have between 70 and 80 head of hogs. We have 70 head of sheep but we let our sheep out. The way we feed our corn to our stock would frighten a Vermonter. We have about 600 bu. of wheat to sell. It is now worth from 60 to 70 cts.

“We now have 160 acres of land that will be under crop this season. We rent part of our land to one of brother Robert's sons. We have done considerable in the threshing business for three seasons past & finally we do something in the speculating line buying & selling & trading horses & cattle. As many cattle as we have we do not work an ox at all. You may tell sister Margaret that we can't boast of our children as she does & finally we can not expect them to be as smart as hers, being brought up on the wild prairie but there appears to be something natural about them, they know enough to eat when hungry and drink when dry. We do not hear anything from Adam, yet. I hope you will excuse me for not writing to you before this time. I had a letter from Hale that I have not answered. Tell him I hope he will excuse me & I will write to him after awhile.

“Yours etc

“Thos Lyle.”

Between the shaft and the coping,
Sleeping the sleep of the just,
Lieth one whose earthly form
Is slowly turning to dust.

But from dust the soul ariseth,
As by wings of the morning dove,
And for her who gave so willingly
Is there wealth of heavenly love.

The "Nourse Family," arranged by Ethel Howard Heimbaugh.

The branch descended from Rebecca and Francis Nourse through their third son, Francis.

- 1 Francis Nourse, Sr., was b. in England, Jan. 18, 1618. Aug. 24, 1644, he mar. Rebecca Towne, who was b. in Yarmouth, England, Feb. 16, 1621. She was the daughter of William and Joane (Blessing) Towne.

Mr. and Mrs. Nourse were among the early settlers of Salem, Mass. From 1638 to 1678 they lived near what is now Skerry street in Salem. In 1678 they purchased the Townsend Bishop farm, better known as the Nourse Farm.

Mr. Nourse built a substantial house which still stands and is known as the "Rebecca Nourse" house. It was in this house that this man and his respected wife were living when the witchcraft delusion, for a season, conquered wisdom and stifled justice. Mrs. Nourse was tried for witchcraft in 1692 and hanged. Her husband lived till Nov. 22, 1695. Their house, 147 Pine street, Danvers, Mass., has been preserved by the Rebecca Nourse Memorial Association.

Children:

- 2 Samuel, b. Feb. 3, 1649; mar. Mary Smith, April 5, 1677.
2 John, b. 1645; d. 1715; mar. (1) Elizabeth Smith; mar. (2) Elizabeth Very.
2 Francis, Jr., (which see).
2 James.
2 Rebecca, mar. Thomas Preston.
2 Mary, mar. John Tarbell.
2 Elizabeth, mar. a Mr. Russell.
2 Sarah, unmarried.

- 2. Francis Nourse, Jr., b. in Salem, Feb. 3, 1661; mar. Sarah Tarbell, of Reading, Mass.

- 3 Jonathan.

- 3 Benjamin Nourse, b. 1690; mar. (1) Elizabeth Roberts, who was b. Aug. 3, 1690, at Reading, Mass., and d. at Harvard, Mass., May 29, 1739. He mar. (2) Hannah (Rogers) Atherton, widow of Joseph Atherton, of Harvard. He moved to Rutland, Mass., and in 1749 was on a committee to petition the General Court to fortify the town. He d. Jan. 6, 1761. She d. Dec. 9, 1763. They had one child:

- 4 Benjamin, b. Dec. 9, 1716; d. June 20, 1806. He moved with his father to Rutland, Mass., in 1740. Sept. 1, 1740, mar. Martha Marble, of Petersham. In 1772 he removed from Rutland to Packersfield, now Nelson. His name occurs in the records of the settlement of that town. In 1776 he and his son, Benjamin, signed the Association Test with other patriots of Packersfield.

To Benjamin Nourse is accredited three enlistments during the Revolution. On account of the age of the father it is presumed that the son, Benjamin, performed the greater part of the service. Two of the three terms of service include, in part, the same time which awards one enlistment at least to the father. Mr. Nourse removed to Littlefield, N. H., in 1786. He d. there June 20, 1806. His widow d. July 5, 1807.
