THE FLOYD FAMILY OF RUMNEY MARSH*

---

1. CAPT. JOHN<sup>1</sup> FLOYD was born about 1636, judging from his testimony given as a witness in court at Salem in 1681 and from the age appearing on his gravestone at Lynn. He was living at Lynn in 1662 with wife SARAH DOOLITTLE, daughter of John of Rumney Marsh, when his eldest child was born. From here he moved, about 1670, to Malden, settling at Black Ann's Corner, near the Rumney Marsh line. He was made freeman in 1674, and during the spring and early summer of 1676 served as lieutenant in Capt. Henchman's company in King Philip's War. About 1680 he moved to Rumney Marsh, where he lived for the remainder of his life, retaining, however, the Malden farm and sharing in the sixth division of the common lands of Malden as a freeholder of that town.

John Doolittle, his father-in-law, died 24 Sept. 1681, and made Capt. Floyd's children the residuary legatees of his large estate in Rumney Marsh, in his will mentioning Sarah Floyd, and making "son-in-law John Floyd" sole executor.

Capt. Floyd was in Gov. Andros's expedition of 1688 against the Indians to the eastward, and in 1689 was in command of a military post on the Saco River. In 1690 he was made captain of a troop and stationed at Portsmouth, and for about three years after this he saw service against the Indians, taking part in the fight at Wheelwright's Pond, in the expedition of Sept. 1690, under Maj. Church, against the enemy around Casco, etc.

In 1692 he was arrested and imprisoned on the charge of practising witchcraft, and evidence was given against him in the trial of Abigail Faulkner at Salem, 11 Aug. of that year, but he appears to have escaped conviction.

He died at Rumney Marsh 1 Feb. 1701-2, and was buried at Lynn. His heirs drew up an agreement for the division of his estate, which included eight negroes and was partitioned between the widow Sarah, sons Hugh, John, Joseph, and Daniel, and sons-in-law Nathaniel Upham and John Hawks (Suffolk Probate, vol. 14, p. 400). Sarah, widow of Capt. John Floyd, died 16 June, 1717, aged 75, and was buried in the old Rumney Marsh burial-ground, now in Revere.

* Floyd is a name of Welsh origin derived from the word lloyd or llwyd, meaning grey. It was very common in London and the country round about in the early part of the seventeenth century, and several of the early settlers of Massachusetts Bay and Plymouth bore this surname. John Floyd, a merchant from London, was in Scituate with wife Anne in 1640, and later removed to Boston. Joseph Floyd (often given as Flood), also from London, came to Dorchester with wife Jane in 1635 and moved to Lynn three years later. Possibly, one of these was the father of Capt. John Floyd of Rumney Marsh, but no record has been discovered throwing any light on the subject. The other early New England Floyds seem to be out of the question.

Rumney Marsh, which was then the northernmost district of Boston, became a part of Chelsea in Jan. 1738-9, and is now the town of Revere, Mass.

† Mary, given by Savage and other authorities, was more likely a daughter of John and Sarah (Barker) Flood of Boston.

By inheritance and purchase he became owner, with his brother John, of the great farm in Rumney Marsh formerly belonging to John Cogan. In 1730 he transferred to son Hugh, Jr., a part of what was known as Sanford's Lot. Hugh was a member of the Malden church to 5 Apr. 1724, when, with his wife, he joined the church of his own district. He died 17 Nov. 1730, and his will, probated 31 Dec. of the same year, mentions wife Elinor, sons Samuel, Benjamin, and Hugh, and daughters Sarah Leath and Elinor Leath, and the children of deceased daughter Joanna Tuttle.

He was made a freeman, 22 Mar. 1689-90, while living at Malden, but removed soon after to Rumney Marsh, where he held various town offices and from which he was a representative on the Boston Board of Assessors for several years. He was one of the founders of the Rumney Marsh church in 1715, and seems to have taken an influential part in local affairs. An indignant neighbor in a letter (Boston Town Papers, vol. 2) calls him "Lord Ruler att Winisimit." John Floyd was at one time a lieutenant in the Malden military company, and is given that rank on his gravestone at Revere. He died 7 Jan. 1723-4, aged 58 (gravestone). In his will, probated in 1724, he mentions son John, who was sole executor, daughters Rachel Pratt, Abigail Tuttle, and Joanna Floyd, and grandsons James and John Nichols.

He left a nuncupative will, in which he mentioned son Joseph and daughters Ruth and Dorothy. A paper filed with the will calls Joseph, Jr., "only son of the deceased." Chamberlain, in his "History of Chelsea," gives Sarah Belcher as the second wife of John<sup>3</sup> Floyd, and says that it was the son, John<sup>4</sup> Floyd, who married Sarah Vyal. The Belcher marriage record, however, gives John Floyd, Jr., whereas the Vyal record, coming eight years earlier and during the lifetime of John, Sr., gives simply John Floyd. He married thirdly, 24 Aug. 1763, HANNAH (BELLAMY) BILL, widow of Jonathan. John Floyd was a husbandman and lived in Chelsea, where he died 4 Nov. 1775, aged 89. His will was probated 6 Feb. 1776.
