PREFACE

For more than half a century the author has been collecting material for this brief ancestral record, has traveled many, many miles and been to much expense aside from the time, thought and patience essential in such pursuits. Accuracy has been the watchword, and all other features secondary. But for this persistent research there would have been missing links that never could have been supplied.

The showing of a direct and unbroken line of descent from the immigrant ancestors of the four families of Gilmore, Pearl, Coombs and Spofford, covering a period of nearly three hundred years is unique, and will we think, be appreciated. Perhaps it is superfluous to say that this comes far short of our dream of fifty years ago, although in some respects it equals or exceeds the original idea.

Some have been included who logically had no place, but are mentioned, partly from sentiment and partly because reference to them might be helpful to readers or students of the future. None however, have been excluded who, considering the scope of the work, had a right to appear in these pages.

We incline to the opinion that genealogy should be taught in schools or in places accessible to the public. We believe it would make for a better citizenship, for the stability of our institutions and for the perpetuity of the government itself.

Without further comment and without apology, this modest volume is submitted for the benefit of those related, for the consideration of all interested, and finally for a renewed interest in these matters by the ever widening circle of posterity.

"Taking part on the Peninsula in the summer of 1862 under Maj. Gen. George B. McClellan as in later campaigns which ended with Appomattox, Col. Pascal P. Gilmore had to do with stirring events. He early learned that truth is stranger than fiction. His entire service in the Civil war was in the army of the Potomac, principally with the Sixteenth Reg't. Maine Infantry Vols.--Charles W. Tilden, Colonel--and Fifth Army Corps commanded by Maj. Gen. Gouverneur K. Warren, one of the most able and efficient officers developed by that great conflict. Mr. Gilmore was not off duty a single day during his term of enlistment; wounded in the face at the battle of Dabney's Mill, Va. February 6, 1865; promoted for gallant and meritorious conduct in the battles of White Oak Road, March 31 and Five Forks, Va. April 1, 1865. Saw President Lincoln at the front, near Fort Stedman, March 25, 1865. Marched twenty-nine miles with his Corps April 8. Present at Appomattox April 9, 1865 and saw the flag of truce brought in which signified the surrender of Lee and close of the war. On Grand Review at Washington, D. C. May 23 and 24, 1865.

In Vol. 3, Genealogy and Family History of Maine by Little, we find the following relative to the immigrant ancestor:

“This ancestor, Anthony Coombs, is said to have been of one of the best French families, and by his father was designed for a priest, but his noble spirit revolted at the restrictions laid upon the priesthood. He soon found that an old friend of his had a portion of the English Bible which he diligently read in secret. He was so impressed by the faith and sincerity of this old man, and by what he read in the Bible that he determined to become an earnest christian, though he knew that the discovery of this purpose meant death for him. At length he ventured to talk about this with his mother, and found that she had the same ideas which had made his life have such a new meaning. She aided him with money and means to escape on a vessel to America, though she well knew that she might never look again on the face of this beloved son. No wonder that with such an ancestry as this, the members of the Coombs family through long generations, have been men and women of noblest thought and christian faith.”

SPOFFORD

The tradition in England as well as in America is, that Spofford is derived from Spaw meaning mineral or spring of water, and ford a passage over or through it. The name in England was frequently spelled Spofforth. The name dates back to Nicholaus De Spauford in 1265:

The Spofford, Pearl and Gilmore line, as connected with the Spoffords, is clear from John Spofford who came to America in 1638, m Elizabeth Scott of Ipswich, Mass., settled in Rowley where they remained for thirty years then removed to "Spofford Hill" Georgetown, Mass. According to the Spofford pamphlet in Maine State Library, Elizabeth Scott, wife of John Spofford the imigrant ancestor, was also born in England.

The following includes the Spofford, Pearl and Gilmore lines:

John Spofford, immigrant ancestor, b 1620, m Elizabeth Scott.

Samuel Spofford, b January 31, 1653. m Sarah Birkbee or Bisbee, Dec. 5, 1676.

Samuel Spofford, m Sarah Stickney. of Bradford, Mass., June 17, 1717.

Madge (Gilmore) Fellows m Hon. Raymond Fellows, of Bangor, Me. Their children are Margaret, Rosalie and Frank.

ADDENDA

The first Gilmore of record was John who defended the Earl of Argyle in 1500.

Admiral Gilmore of Scotland was a relative of ours.

There is a Gilmore hill in Glasgow.

The Mass. Gilmores of whom John was the immigrant ancestor, settled in Raynham. Good authorities hold that Robert, head of the N. H. line, was a brother of John. He settled in Londonderry, N. H. Both came to America about the same time.

A later John died from the effects of influenza contracted in crossing the Delaware with Washington.

Down to the close of the Revolutionary War, our name was generally spelled Gillmor as the records show that my great grandfather Samuel wrote his name in that way while in the Continental army. Since then, in the eastern states, it has been written Gilmore. As we are of Scotch origin my opinion is that it should be Gilmour, but after such a lapse of time it would hardly be wise to change again.

It is related of the immigrant John, that he was coming from New Jersey with a vessel but lost his Captain and had to depend on his own resources, though having practically no education and not a seaman. However he brought the cargo into port all right and when asked how he did it said, "I followed the stars and good judgement."

Tyrrel Gilmore was a soldier in Benjamin Hawes' company, Colonel John Smith's regiment which marched to Lexington and Concord on the alarm of April 19, 1775. Page 466 Vol. 6, Mass. Soldiers and Sailors of the Revolution.

His son⁴. Samuel Gilmore, was also a soldier of the Revolution, serving under Captain Hunt and Colonels Groaton and Jackson. Length of service three years. The only personal discription of him is that he was quite "stocky" and weighed about 180.

John Gilmore (Captain of Militia,) came to East Brewer, Me., from Franklin, Mass., in 1826. Built and ran a hotel for a brief period at Gilmore's Corner known as the Jefferson House, which had a picture of President Jefferson on the swinging sign board.

His direct line is as follows: John the immigrant ancestor and Agnes, his wife. James their son, m Thankful Tyrrel of Abington, Mass. David, fourth child of James and Thankful, b May 27, 1733, d Sept. 1832 as shown by the Abington town records and family Bible of James. The idea had obtained however, that this David was b May 27, 1731 and d Sept. 1832. He m Joanna Millerd. John, son of David and Joanna b March 27, 1763, m Mary Cook dau of Jacob and Hannah Cook of Foxboro, Mass. John Jr (Captain) and son of John and Hannah, b March 24, 1888, m 1st Sally Grant, m 2nd Hannah Billington of Dedham, Me., dau of Job and Hannah (Burrill) Billington. Capt. Gilmore d June 22, 1863. Iola Maria Smith, dau of William Frederick and Ellen Maria Smith. b Feb. 23, 1857. m Rodney Oscar Pinkham b in Dedham, Me., June 3, 1846, d Holden, Me.,

May 10, 1891. Children of Rodney Oscar and Iola Maria (Smith) Pinkham, Gertrude, b Dec. 22, 1878, d Nov. 17, 1879. Lewis F., b Sept. 15, 1884. Ethel, b Sept. 23, 1886, Raymond S. b Feb. 25, 1888. For this family tree in detail, see genealogical record, now in manuscript, of Ethel Pinkham, East Holden, Me.

Quincy Adams Gillmore was b in Lorain, Ohio, Feb. 25, 1825, d Brooklyn, N. Y. April 11, 1888. The History of Lorain County, (1916) says of him; "In his special field as a military strategist, one of the ablest was Quincy A. Gillmore. As a boy he attended the Norwalk Academy and Elyria High School. He began the study of medicine and wrote for publication. There was a vacancy at West Point and Gillmore was recommended because of his integrity and scholarship. He acquitted himself with credit as a cadet, graduating in 1849 at the head of his class. During the Civil War he earned an international reputation as an organizer of siege operations and a revolutionizer of naval gunnery. As Commander of the Tenth Corps, he took part in the final operations of the army of the James River. He was brevetted four times for meritorious conduct, the last time as Major General United States Army, for gallant and meritorious conduct in capturing Forts Wagner and Gregg and for demolishing Fort Sumpter. He resigned his commission as Major-General in Dec. 1865."

Charles D. Gilmore was one of the extremely few who rose from a private in the Civil War to the rank of Brigadier General. His father, Col. Rufus Gilmore was a man of prominence. Charles D. was born in Newburg, Me., removing to Bangor, and was Sheriff of Penobscot county before the war.

"This eminent officer enlisted August 10, 1861 and August 21, was commissioned Captain of Co. C. 7 Regiment. Promoted to Colonel of the 20 Reg't. Me. Infantry Vols., June 18, 1864. He was brevetted Brigadier General to rank from February 6, 1865, for long and meritorious service, and for gallant conduct in the battles of Dabney's Mill and Hatcher's Run. From his record in the War Department it appears that Gen. Gilmore participated with the Army of the Potomac in nineteen battles, being severely wounded at the battle of Lee's Mills, April 16, 1862, and that he served with a high degree of fidelity and with great credit to himself and the State." Adjutant Generals Report State of Maine, 1864-1865 Vol. 1.

The writer met Gen. Gilmore on the battlefield of Dabney's Mill, the evening after the engagement as he was returning to our lines after having been a prisoner for a few hours. Gen. Gilmore had a fine physique and was "every inch a man."

William Harrison Gilmore, b Fairlee, Vermont, Oct. 17, 1839; d Bradford, Vermont, April 18, 1910. A soldier of the Civil War he served faithfully in Co. D 8th Reg't. Vermont Infantry Vols. At the time of his death he was Adjutant General of Vermont a position he had held for twelve years. Gen. William H. Gilmore was of striking appearance and fine proportions being about six feet in height and tipping the scales at 220 lbs. He closely resembled Gen. Winfield Scott, but lacked the pugnacious look of Scott. It was the compilers privilege to know the subject of this sketch intimately.

Gen. Charles D. Gilmore was in our Mass. line. Gen. Quincy Adams Gillmore and William Harrison Gilmore are related through the N. H. branch.
