PREFACE.

The desire to learn more of my Garrard ancestors gave me the starting point in beginning this work. I could not, at the beginning, anticipate the difficulties and obstacles quite insurmountable which awaited me in my efforts to bring to light the history and family traditions which had been so long neglected and almost forgotten. Disappointments came at every turn. The older generation have all passed away, and those now living can recall but little derived from their parents.

When investigation in Virginia was begun, and I learned that the Stafford county records, at the very period in which my search would be directed, were all destroyed during the Civil war, my discouragement was so great that I almost gave up my difficult task. I concluded, however, that it would be better to collect all that could be obtained, and preserve it, than to let all be obliterated by the hand of time.

I have made searching investigations in Virginia where the first American ancestor settled, and also in England, hoping to find something of the French Huguenot ancestor. The result has been very disappointing and unsatisfactory, and I am sure my disappointment will be shared by every descendant who feels an interest in this undertaking.

Hundreds of letters have been written in quest of information, many records examined, many Huguenot histories searched, without finding anything direct or reliable. The meagre family traditions are all that can be reached, and guided by them I have collected fragments relating to the early family history. These fragments are all that can be given; but, if preserved, they may at some future day serve as ground-work for farther research by any who may wish to undertake it.

I have spared neither trouble nor expense in prosecuting my investigations, and every source of information has been exhausted.

It has been very slow and tedious work, and has occupied nearly all my time for more than a year; and I much regret that my satisfaction regarding it is not complete, but hope it will be received as the result of my best efforts to obtain what all so much desire and would value.

I wish here to express my acknowledgments to all who have given me assistance in regard to families and lists of descendants.

To Mr. Paul Oeker, of Paris, France, who so intelligently made a search among the records of London, I must remain under great obligations.

Also, to Dr. John W. Garrard, of Birmingham, Ala., who has kindly furnished data of the Garrards of the Southern states.

Mr. C. L. Bryan, clerk of Stafford county, has been very accommodating, and I am exceedingly obliged to Mr. James Ashby, deputy clerk of Stafford, for his interest and assistance. He visited and examined all the old churchyards in Stafford, including a very old burying ground near Falmouth, hoping to obtain some names or inscriptions for this work.

The pictures given of Governor and Mrs Garrard were taken from portraits painted by Horace Harding, who preceded his brother Chester Harding, as an artist, a number of years. These were copies from the originals painted by St. Leger de Happert, of Philadelphia, in 1800. These originals I have. They are not so well executed as the copies by Harding; the canvas is thin, and shows its age of nearly a hundred years. The picture of John Mountjoy Garrard was taken from a miniature painted on ivory, about 1800, and supposed to be by de Happert. That of Judge Garrard is also from a miniature on ivory, painted, it is thought, in New Orleans, after he became advanced in years.

I may venture to hope that this fragmentary collection will prove acceptable to all descendants, and that they may derive some satisfaction, if not pleasure, from these pages compiled by one who here places on record her admiration and affection for her worthy and venerated ancestors, whose names are herein recorded, and whose virtues should be held in lasting remembrance by all their descendants.

ANNA RUSSELL DES COGNETS.

LEXINGTON, KY., March 16, 1898.

GOVERNOR JAMES GARRARD.

This work has, unfortunately, been too long delayed. Information relating to the Garrard family history is now almost impossible to obtain. All of the older generations, who knew all facts and traditions relating to it, have passed away, and the oldest of their descendants now living have retained but little derived from their parents.

Extended investigations have been made, but with most unsatisfactory results. The records of Stafford county, Virginia, having been destroyed during the Civil war, all information which they may have given, is hopelessly lost. Those extending from 1709 to 1748 are all gone, and nothing can be found which would indicate the date of the settlement of the Garrards in Virginia. In the absence of records, tradition must be our only guide in tracing them.

All traditions agree that the first ancestor was a French Huguenot, who left France soon after the Revocation of the Edict of Nantes; most probably about 1685. Tradition in our branch of the family says: "The Huguenot ancestor left France with two little sons, and went to England." Their names, and where they lived in England, cannot be found.

Mr. Paul Oeker, of Paris, France, whose wife is a Garrard descendant, has made investigations in London and Paris, hoping to find some data that might assist in tracing the early ancestors who left their homes in France for a safer residence in England; but he has obtained nothing from which the origin of the family can be determined in a definite way.

Mr. Oeker concludes from all data found in London, that all the Garrard families in England are descended from one and the same French stock, but from long residence there, since the time of Henry V, have become English in all respects. The later Huguenot branch did not immigrate until after the Revocation of the Edict of Nantes, and it is doubtless this branch which was transplanted to Virginia.

While family tradition says the original French name was GERARD, Mr. Oeker thinks it must have been GARARD. He has found in London, among many hundreds of names of French Huguenots who went to England between 1670 and 1700, and who were naturalized by Royal Patent Rolls, issued by the various Kings, Charles II, James II, Queen Mary and William III, that PETER GARARD is the only one of the family found. His naturalization as a British subject took place May 8th, 1687, in the ninth year of the reign of William III.

The naturalization of refugees occurred many or several years after their arrival in London. But, where in France these refugees came from, not a trace can now be found.

As the result of his searching investigations, Mr. Oeker arrives at the conclusion that PETER GARARD was the Huguenot ancestor of the American Garrards. The period, as well as other points, agree with the American tradition. He was a man of prominence and influence, as he acquired British citizenship.

As the name GERARD can nowhere be found in the London records, we must conclude that it was GARARD; and as all the families who had preceded him to England had changed the spelling to GARRARD, he doubtless adopted the precedent.

In Agnew's valuable work PETER GARARD'S name is spelled GARRARD, while in the original Patent it is spelled GARARD. As his is the only name "GARARD" found in the records of French Huguenots who escaped to England between 1685-1695, the theory may be accepted that PETER GARARD, naturalized in England in 1685, was the Huguenot ancestor of the American Garrards. The traditions of the American families point to the probability of such theory being correct. Mr Oeker inclines to the belief that PETER GARRARD came from the Walloon country, near or about Lille, northeastern France, and that he escaped through Belgium or Holland. There is some reason to believe the Garrards have some Spanish blood, derived, perhaps, from an ancestress. Bearing upon this Mr. Oeker finds that at the end of the sixteenth century the author of the book "Arte of Warre," Captain Garrard, was in Spanish service and fought in the Netherlands before he retired to England, where already a cousin of his, Sir W. Garrard, lived. That tends to point both to Spanish connections and the Walloon country as being the locality of their origin. It forms to-day a part of Belgium and a part of France on the Belgian frontier, and was settled by French Huguenots.

There was an "Olimpia Garrard," who died at Norwich, leaving a will and property. This was certainly a Spanish name. The "Garrard eyes," black and Spanish in their general appearance, have been transmitted to many descendants of every generation, even to the present day. Also, the fact that the first Garrards in Virginia had some Spanish household goods, which they brought with them from England and which they greatly valued, suggests Spanish connections. But of this nothing definite can be found.

If, then, we accept the theory that PETER GARRARD was the Huguenot ancestor, we must conclude that he and his two young sons who accompanied him, lived and died in England. The children of the two sons were, of course, the American ancestors. WILLIAM GARRARD, of Stafford county, Va., and his brother J. GARRARD were sons of one of PETER GARRARD'S sons, and ROBERT, JOHN and JACOB GARRARD, who settled in the Carolinas and Georgia, were children of the other son of PETER GARRARD. These, then, were all grandsons of PETER GARRARD, the French Huguenot.

If the "two sons" ever came to America, not a trace of them can be found, neither in Virginia nor in the register of the old French church in New York, where the names of all French Protestants coming there between 1600 and 1700 can be found. It is most probable that they never left England, and that the first of the family who came to America was WILLIAM GARRARD, who settled in Stafford county, Va. As the county records are gone, the date of his settlement there cannot definitely be determined, but it was probably between 1730 and 1740. It is not known whether he married in England or in Virginia. Tradition in one branch of the family says, he married Mary "Lewis," while the descendants of another branch think she was a "Moss." This discrepancy probably arises from his having twice married, and the second wife may have been Elizabeth "Moss." The old marriage records of Stafford county having also been destroyed, and only a portion of one Parish record, that of Overwharton, being preserved, it is impossible to obtain anything upon those points.

WILLIAM GARRARD had certainly in Virginia one brother. The following account of him has been preserved and kindly furnished by one of his descendants:

"William Garrard, of Stafford county, Va, had a brother living in the same State, and it may be presumed that they came to Virginia at or about the same time. His first name is not known, but it began with J and is supposed to have been JAMES or JOHN. The relations existing between those brothers were of the most affectionate character. Their letters which were long preserved by their descendants, gave evidence that their attachment to each other was tender and devoted. But a disagreement arose between them on account of the division of land in Virginia, and they became completely estranged. So intense was the bitterness of feeling between them, that the brother, J. GARRARD, said he would not bear the same name, and changed his to GERARD. He went back to England, but after a few years returned to Virginia, where he died, but in what part of the State is not known. His only son and child was JOHN GERARD, and he inherited the silver plate which was brought from England by his father. This plate was of antique pattern, and every piece was marked J. G. This was subsequently divided among his descendants.

"The son, JOHN GERARD, moved with his family to Kentucky about 1795, and settled in Shelby county, where he died. He left three children, NANCY, PHOEBE and WILLIAM.

"NANCY GERARD married John Newland, of Shelby county, and after the death of Mr. Newland she removed with her family to Ralls county, Missouri, where she died in 1865.

"PHOEBE GERARD married William Wilds Cook, of Nashville, Tenn., a lawyer, and partner of Hon. John Bell, of Tennessee. Mrs Cook died in 1857.

"WILLIAM GERARD went to Frankfort, Ky., and was for many years editor of the "Frankfort Commonwealth," and was also State Printer. He represented Franklin county in the Legislature in 1819, 1820 and 1822. In 1828 he removed to Ralls county, Mo., where he died at an advanced age, in 1853.

"He left four children. The eldest, WILLIAM GERARD, left two sons: RICHARD, living in Kansas City, Mo., and ALEX. GERARD. The second son, MR. EDWARD GERARD, went to Arizona, and has several sons.

"MARY GERARD married ——— Martin, and had several sons, and a daughter, ANNE GERARD, married ——— Lyle. Her sons were GERARD LYLE, Springfield, Mo., and JOHN MARTIN LYLE, who for many years occupied the Chair of Languages in Westminster College, at Fulton, Mo."

This history relating to WILLIAM GARRARD and his brother J. GERARD, was remembered by Mrs. Hawkins, a daughter of Governor Garrard. Many years ago she related to her children an incident which occurred when she was quite young, and while her father, who was then Governor of the State, resided at Frankfort.

On a certain day the Governor brought home with him a Mr. Gerard whom they had never before seen, and introduced him as his first cousin, and while at dinner related the story of the unhappy estrangement of their fathers who were brothers.

That cousin was of course JOHN GERARD, of Shelby county.

It is much to be regretted that a connected history of WILLIAM and J. GARRARD cannot be obtained. Many Huguenot histories, and the publications of the Huguenot Society, in New York, have been examined, but no mention of the GARRARDS can be found, and we are compelled to believe that they came from England to Virginia, not earlier than 1735 or 1740.

WILLIAM GARRARD owned the farm upon which he lived, and upon a part of which the Court House property is now situated. Old Acquia Church was not far from his residence, and it was doubtless there that he had his membership. That churchyard, as well as others in Stafford county, have been examined with the hope of finding tombstones whose inscriptions might tell something of those who are there buried, but not one of the name can be found.

The name GARRARD has not existed in Stafford county for nearly a hundred years.

In the calendar of Virginia State Papers, vol. 2d, page 43, there is a communication from the Stafford County Militia, dated April 14th, 1781, to His Excellency Thomas Jefferson, then Governor of Virginia, which is signed by

“GEORGE BURROUGHS, Captain.”

The names given above were those of the officers of the Stafford County Militia at that date, and a certificate that it is a true copy has been obtained.

The office of County Lieutenant was the superior one, and the officer holding it had command of all military organizations in the county, with the rank of Colonel. WILLIAM GARRARD is also named as County Lieutenant, of Stafford, in Henning's Statutes at Large.

The children of COL. WILLIAM GARRARD and MARY LEWIS, his wife, of whom we have data, were DANIEL, born in 1736; JAMES, born in 1749, and MARY ANNE, born in 1753, who married Col. John Montjoy. As there was a period of thirteen years between the births of DANIEL and JAMES, the probability is suggested that other children were born during that time, but all investigation has failed to find them. The wife of COL. GARRARD must have died between 1755 and 1760, after which he married Elizabeth Moss. The children of his second marriage were WILLIAM, HENRY, ROBERT and ELEANOR.

A long and exhaustive search has failed to find anything relating to the three younger children. It is not known who ELEANOR married, but her daughter married — FOSTER, and her daughter married — AYRES. Those families lived in Kentucky, and some of their descendants now live in Missouri, but they can give no information beyond the fact that Mrs. Foster was the daughter of Governor Garrard's sister ELEANOR.

A copy of the will of COL. WILLIAM GARRARD has been obtained from Stafford Court House. It is dated September 7th, 1786, and it is acknowledged in the presence of Bailey Washington, Jr., John Fristoe, James Boag and William West. Its first item is that he wants his just debts paid, and he authorizes his executors to dispose of his Court House tract of land in fee simple; also his tract known as "Bridwell's tract." He mentions by name a large number of negroes to be divided between his wife Elizabeth and his four younger children. As the children of his first marriage receive nothing under this will, it is presumed that they had previously received their portions of his estate. He speaks of the younger children as not being grown. He makes some small bequests, the first of which is a gold watch to his son James; a gold ring to his daughter Mary Anne Mountjoy; also a gold ring to Mr. John Gregg; and a negro girl to his granddaughter Elizabeth Mountjoy. He gives all his land in Kentucky to his son William, whom he appoints executor of the will.

"At a court held for Stafford county, the 12th day of February, 1787, the foregoing will of William Garrard, deceased, was presented in court by William Garrard, executor, who made oath with Thomas Ludwell Lee, Lewis Waugh and Charles Rawls, as his sureties, in the sum of three thousand pounds current money, for his execution thereof.

T. G. S. TYLER,

"Clerk of Stafford Court."

JAMES GARRARD, son of Col. William Garrard and Mary Lewis, his wife, was born in Stafford county, Va., January 14th, 1749. It is found that he served as Colonel in the State militia of Stafford county during the Revolutionary struggle, and while in that service was elected to the Virginia Legislature, where he was a staunch supporter of the bill to establish universal religious liberty. He was thus distinguished by his fellow citizens in being elected to the State Assembly, and receiving military appointments.

In 1783 he removed to Kentucky and settled in Bourbon county, on Stoner creek, where in 1786 he built his residence, which has always been known as "Mount Lebanon." The records of the Land Office of Kentucky show that he entered large tracts of land; and as it may be of interest to some, the following transcript of these records are here given. The first is—

"One thousand acres of land, entered by James Garrard, on Treasury Warrant No. 30, dated October 15th, 1779. This land was in Jefferson county, on Salt river, near the mouth of Floyd's Fork, and was surveyed February 10th, 1783."

Next is—

"1,000 acres, on April 20th, 1784, in Fayette county, on Licking creek.

"1,000 acres, May 1st, 1784, on Licking creek.

"378 acres in Jefferson county, April 10th, 1784.

"5,000 acres, on August 20th, 1786, in Fayette county, on Big State creek.

"1,000 acres, August 30th, 1787, in Fayette county, on Stoney creek.

"1,000 acres, August 30th, 1787, on Ohio river.

"345 acres, August 30th, 1787, on South Fork of Licking.

"500 acres, August 23d, 1788, in Bourbon, on Stoner creek.

"425 acres, December 6th, 1788, on Sandy river.

"23,250 acres, October 19th, 1789, in Bourbon, on Big Sandy.

"500 acres, May 20th, 1790, in Bourbon, on Stoner's Fork."

It appears from the beginning of his residence in Kentucky that he was a prominent citizen, taking part in promoting the best interests of the Commonwealth. He was a member of the conventions held in Danville, Ky., in May, 1785, in August, 1785, in 1787 and 1788. He was also a member of the convention held in Danville in 1792, which formed the Constitution of Kentucky, and was several times a Representative in the Legislature.

The following is taken from "Collins' History of Kentucky":

"The First Court in Bourbon county was held May 16, 1786, at the residence of James Garrard (near Talbot's station, four miles north of Paris) by the following: James Garrard (afterwards Governor of Kentucky), John Edwards (afterwards U. S. Senator), Alvin Mounjoy, Edward Waller, John Gregg and others. John Edwards was appointed clerk and Ben. Harrison, sheriff. The Courts continued to be held at Gov. Garrard's residence for several years."

In 1796 he was elected Governor of Kentucky, serving until 1800, when he was again elected under the New Constitution. Alex. Scott Bullitt was the first Lieutenant-Governor of the State, being elected in 1800. Hon. Harry Toulmin was Secretary of State during both terms of Gov. Garrard.

The county seat of Bourbon was established by the Virginia Legislature in 1789, under the name of Hopewell, and in 1790 a committee was appointed to lay off its environment. James Garrard, being one of that committee, proposed that its name be changed to Paris, which was adopted.

Garrard county, Ky., was formed in 1796, and was named in honor of James Garrard, then Governor of the State.

Col. Garrard had united with the Baptist Church in Virginia, and had his membership at Hartwood church, situated about twelve miles from Fredericksburg. After his settlement in Kentucky, he was ordained to the ministry, and was for a time pastor of the church of Cooper's Run, which was in his immediate neighborhood. *In 1791 he, Ambrose Dudley and Augustine Eastin, Baptist ministers, formed a committee who reported to the Elkhorn Association a memorial and remonstrance in favor of excluding slavery from the Commonwealth by constitutional enactment.

An interesting sketch of the life of Governor Garrard by one of Kentucky's historians, written several years ago for the Louisville Courier-Journal, is here given:

STATE HISTORY.

"THE ONLY MAN WHO EVER FILLED THE OFFICE OF GOVERNOR
TWO SUCCESSIVE TERMS.

"Of the early legal and official life of Kentucky few men stand out in the picture more prominent than Gen. James Garrard. He came to the State at a time when he was most needed, and he left his finger marks upon its early history, telling the story of his handiwork and writing his epitaph in the hearts not only of his descendants, but of thousands who reaped and enjoyed the fruits of his labors. He is the only man in the history of the Commonwealth who was elected to and filled two consecutive terms of Governor. He was an exemplary Christian gentleman, an honest and wise statesman and a man of great practical usefulness. He helped the helpless, aided the weak, fed the hungry, and was a generous and warm-hearted friend to all mankind.

"James Garrard was born in 1749, in the colony of Virginia and county of Stafford. He grew to manhood imbued with the spirit of freedom, and when the colonies threw off the oppressive yoke of old England, Garrard espoused the cause of liberty and became a gallant soldier and efficient officer. He performed active service in that memorable struggle, and while still in the field was elected to the Virginia Legislature. In that body he became an active and working member, and contributed as much energy and wisdom to its deliberations as any statesman of the time. He was largely instrumental, more so perhaps than any other member, in the famous act securing 'universal religious liberty.'

"Virginia having been settled by the old Cavalier stock, the Church of England had been the prevailing religion, and had been enforced upon the people, entailing persecution in many instances. * * * * The colonial period of Virginia witnessed considerable petty persecutions in the attempts to make the Church of England the 'State religion.' Garrard was himself a Baptist minister, and thus exerted his abilities to pass the act mentioned above, securing to all the freedom of religious liberty.

"James Garrard came to Kentucky soon after the close of the Revolutionary war, 1783, and settled in Bourbon county, near the present city of Paris. His residence, 'Mount Lebanon,' was long a noted landmark in that section of the State. When he came here Kentucky was still claimed by the savages as a hunting ground, and often proved the battle ground of the white and red man for its possession. He did not deem it an infringement of Christian duty to take part in expelling the murderous savages from the new country he had adopted as his own. He could tell them, when he chose, the story of Mount Calvary, and those who had no fears of an angry God had a wholesome dread of his unerring rifle.

"He filled many positions of honor, and in 1796 was elected the second Governor of the Commonwealth.

"No better illustration of Gen. Garrard's popularity can be given than the fact that in the race for Governor he defeated Gen. Benjamin Logan, the founder of St. Asaphs and one of the ablest of all the statesmen of pioneer Kentucky, and one of the most popular of her military officers. When it is known that both men entertained the same political sentiments, and when the great popularity and high standing of Gen. Logan is taken into consideration, the victory of Gen. Garrard is the stronger testimonial to his worth and character. He appointed for his Secretary of State Harry Toulmin, a man of great learning and ability, and a statesman withal of some reputation. But what seemed strange to many, he was a pronounced Unitarian, and an Englishman, neither very popular in Kentucky at that day; Garrard, it will be remembered, was a Baptist minister. It was doubtless Toulmin's acknowledged ability that rendered him acceptable to the people of Kentucky, and afterward led to his appointment as Judge of the United States Court of Alabama.

"Gov. Garrard was re-elected Governor in 1800, the only instance, as already quoted, of a man's filling two successive terms as Governor.

"Both his administrations were characterized by wise legislation and strong, statesman-like measures."

The following extract is from his first message to the Legislature :

"With peculiar pleasure it is that I call your attention to the present state of the country, contrasted with what it lately was, involved in war, with a cruel foe on all our borders; and now, by the directions and exertions of the Federal government, as the instrument of a wise and gracious Providence, the blessings of peace, no longer an expectation, are in our enjoyment. Add to this, increase of population; the extension of the settlements to the extremities of our territories; the flourishing state of agriculture; the increase of improvements; the establishment of manufacturers; a year of the greatest plenty in succession to one of the greatest scarcity, with the hopeful prospects opening to agricultural industry and commercial enterprise by means of the treaty with Spain, which has opened the navigation of the Mississippi river and a port at Orleans for us—objects long and ardently desired—and with this accumulation of blessings, extending our views to the security of our rights by means of our constitution and laws, I might ask in the exultation of an American citizen, where is the nation that hath greater reason to be thankful, contented and happy?"

Rev. John L. Waller, in a brief historical sketch of the Baptist Church in Kentucky, written at least fifty years ago, in connection with Governor Garrard, says:

"In 1796 James Garrard, a Baptist minister and a member of Cooper's Run Church, Bourbon county, was elected Governor of Kentucky. He appointed to the office of Secretary of State, Harry Toulmin, who had been a follower of Dr. Priestly in England and a minister of the Unitarian persuasion. It was owing perhaps to the intimacy existing between Governor Garrard and Secretary Toulmin, arising in part from their official relations, that the former became tinctured with Unitarian sentiments. Be that as it may, it is certain that in 1802 Governor Garrard and the pastor of Cooper's Run Church, Augustine Eastin, a minister of considerable eminence, began to appropriate Arian, or rather Socinian, sentiments. The majority of Cooper's Run Church and several neighboring churches to which Mr. Eastin preached, espoused the doctrines of Garrard and their minister. Every effort was made to reclaim these individuals and churches, &c., &c."

This would indicate that Governor Garrard became a little loose in his theology, or rather wandered off from the old landmarks. But, nevertheless, he lived a highly respected man and citizen, and died regretted by all who knew him.

"His death took place January 19th, 1822, at his home, Mount Lebanon, in the seventy-fourth year of his age.

"WILLIAM HENRY PERRIN."

It appears that the religious views of Governor Garrard underwent a change, and he became a Unitarian, which, of course, met with disapprobation from the churches with which he dissented. He, however, had the independence and strength to stand by his convictions, and the censure or disapproval of others had no effect upon his accepted belief, or the quiet dignity of his life. Many attributed that change to his intimate association with his Secretary of State, Hon. Harry Toulmin. Mr. Toulmin was a man of brilliant talents and great learning. His family was from France, but had lived many years in England, where Mr. Toulmin had been a follower of Dr. Joseph Priestly.

Dr. Priestly, a learned Unitarian divine and eminent philosopher of Birmingham, England, was born near Leeds, England, in 1733, and died in Pennsylvania in 1804.

Augustine Eastin, a brilliant preacher, born in Goochland county, Va., came to Kentucky in 1784. He lived in Bourbon county, and became pastor of Cooper's Run Church. He, with Gov. Garrard, severed connection with the Baptist Church and lived Unitarians. Mr. Eastin was greatly beloved by all who knew him, to the end of his life. The blameless life and elevated character of Gov. Garrard disarmed all who opposed him, and he retained his place in the hearts of those who loved him as a patriot and a most exemplary man.

On December 20th, 1769, in Stafford county, Va., Gov. Garrard married Elizabeth Mountjoy, of Overwharton parish, Stafford county. One of her brothers, Col. John Mountjoy, married a sister of Gov. Garrard, and in their branch of the family some data of the Mountjoys is given.

All accounts agree in representing Mrs. Garrard as a very superior woman, a devoted wife and a tender, loving mother. She was born May 2d, 1751, and died August 28th, 1832, having survived her husband more than ten years. The health of the Governor became much enfeebled several years before his death, which occurred January 19th, 1822. They were both buried at "Mount Lebanon," where stands a monument erected to Gov. Garrard by the State of Kentucky, upon which is the following inscription:

"This marble consecrates the spot on which repose the mortal remains of COL. JAMES GARRARD, and records a brief memorial of his virtues and his worth. He was born in the colony of Virginia, on the 14th day of January, 1749. On attaining the age of manhood, he participated with the patriots of the day in the dangers and privations incident to the glorious contest which terminated in the independence and happiness of our country. Endeared to his family, to his friends and to society by the practice of the social virtues of husband, father, friend and neighbor; honored by his country by frequent calls to represent her dearest interests in her Legislative councils; and finally by two elections to fill the chair of the Chief Magistrate of the State, a trust of the highest confidence and deepest interest to a free community of virtuous men, possessing equal rights and governed by equal laws; a trust which, for eight successive years, he fulfilled with that energy, vigor and impartiality, which, tempered with Christian spirit of God-like mercy and charity for the frailty of man, is but calculated to perpetuate the inestimable blessings of government and the happiness of man. An administration which received its best reward below, the approbation of a grateful and enlightened country, by whose voice, expressed by a resolution of its General Assembly in December, 1822, THIS MONUMENT of departed worth and grateful sense of public service was erected and is inscribed. He departed this life on the 19th day of January, 1822, as he had lived, a sincere Christian, firm, constant and sincere in his own religious sentiments, tolerant for those who differed from him; reposing in the mercy of God and the merits of his Redeemer his hopes of a glorious and happy immortality."

All of the children of Governor and Mrs. Garrard were distinguished-looking men and women. All their sons inheriting that patriotism which distinguished their father, served in the war of 1812, and represented Kentucky in her Legislative halls.

"Mount Lebanon" descended to a grandson of Governor Garrard, William Garrard Talbot, whose children still own and occupy it. The stone house stands as a monument of the pioneer days of Kentucky.

CAPT. WILLIAM GARRARD.

WILLIAM GARRARD, eldest child of Gov. James and Elizabeth Mountjoy Garrard, was born in Stafford county, Virginia, April 20th, 1771. He was twelve years of age when his parents removed to Bourbon county, Kentucky, where he was reared and educated. He was for many years clerk of the Bourbon County Court, and was a Representative in the Kentucky Legislature in the years 1793, '96, '97, '98, '99, 1800 and 1822.

In the war of 1812 he was captain of a troop of volunteer state dragoons, of Major James V. Ball's squadron, in the service of the United States. GEN. JAMES GARRARD.

JAMES GARRARD, son of Governor James and Elizabeth Mountjoy Garrard, was born in Stafford county, Va., January 31st, 1773. He came when ten years of age with his parents to Kentucky, and was reared at "Mount Lebanon," their home in Bourbon county. He was a distinguished officer in the war of 1812, and participated in the battle of the Thames. In 1817 he was appointed Brigadier General of the Fourth Brigade Kentucky State Militia, by Governor Slaughter.

He was a member of the Kentucky Senate from 1813 to 1817, and it is found from the Journal of the Senate of the latter year that he was chairman of the Committee on Propositions and Grievances. He was a Representative in the Lower House of the Legislature in 1808, 1820 and 1830.

In early life he engaged in agricultural pursuits and breeding fine stock, in which he was deeply interested. He, perhaps, contributed by his spirited enterprise as much to the improvement of the breed of Kentucky stock as any other citizen of the State, having made a voyage to England for the purpose of selecting by his own judgment from the best stocks. He was a man of superior business qualifications, sterling integrity and untiring energy, and he accumulated a large estate. His farm adjoined that of his father, and his residence, known as "Fairfield," was situated on the opposite side of Stoner Creek, commanding a view of "Mount Lebanon."

On December 18th, 1793, he married in Fayette county Nancy Lewis, eldest child of Thomas Lewis, who emigrated from Fairfax county, Va., to Kentucky in 1785. He was the only son of Stephen Lewis and Elizabeth Offutt, of Fairfax county, Va., who were both of Maryland families. He was born May 8th, 1749, and died in Kentucky in

Mrs. Garrard was named for her grandmother, Anne Conyers Payne, but from some fancy she was always called Nancy, which name has been given to many of her descendants. She was born in Fairfax county, Va., August 18th, 1774. She was gentle and lovely in character, and her death on November 17th, 1835, left her home desolate. Gen. Garrard feeling acutely the loneliness of his home, married secondly, in 1837, Mrs. Mary Kerfoot Williams, widow of Gen. Roger Williams, a Revolutionary officer. From this marriage there were no children. He died after a few days of illness at "Fairfield," September 1st, 1838. The children of Gen. Garrard and Nancy Lewis were—

JEPHTHA DUDLEY GARRARD was born at "Fairfield," Bourbon county, Ky., December 5th, 1802. He received his education at Transylvania University, at Lexington, Ky. After completing the study of law he went to Cincinnati, Ohio, where he entered upon the practice of his profession. His untimely death occurred at his residence in that city, January 26th, 1837, at the early age of thirty-four years. The editor of the Cincinnati Gazette, in its issue of that date, says of him :

"Mr. Garrard is called off in the prime of life, in the midst of usefulness. It is not for the editor of the Gazette to pronounce his eulogium. He may be misled by feelings of private friendship. But he feels at liberty to say that Mr. Garrard was one among our most useful, most valuable citizens. His public spirit, his individual activity, his private charities were extensive, active, energetic—felt, not seen; practiced, not proclaimed—extended to every department of usefulness: city enterprise, county improvement, religion, politics, political economy. Few men in our community were more valued by the friends that knew them; few could be called from us who will be more missed—and most of all, missed by the poor and needy. Even now not a few hearths are cold and comfortless, which would have been far otherwise had not death called Jephtha D. Garrard to his last account."

In 1824 Mr. Garrard married Sarah Bella Ludlow. She was a daughter of Israel Ludlow, one of the early founders and proprietors of Cincinnati, and was born at Ludlow Station in 1802. Her mother was Charlotte Chambers, daughter of Gen. James Chambers, who was Colonel of the First Pennsylvania Regiment, war of the Revolution, and a member of the Society of Cincinnati. She was highly endowed with beauty and intellect, and was a brilliant woman in all respects. Ten years after the death of Mr. Garrard she married Judge John McLean, Justice of the U. S. Supreme Court. They resided in Cincinnati until Judge McLean's death in 1861, after which she lived much with her children. She died in Cincinnati, January 12th, 1882, aged eighty years. The children of Jephtha Garrard and Sarah Bella Ludlow were—

ISRAEL GARRARD, was born in Cincinnati, Ohio. The following sketch of him is taken from "Ohio in the War" (vol. I, p. 943) :

"Israel Garrard was a pupil of Ormsby M. Mitchell. He afterwards was student at Cary's Academy in Cincinnati, and Bethany College in West Virginia. He read law with Judge Swayne, at Columbus, and graduated in the law school at Harvard.

"Being fond of an adventurous life, he sought pleasure and occupation in the West, and spent much time in Missouri, Texas and Minnesota. The war found him deeply engaged in property interests in Minnesota. During the siege of Cincinnati he served on the staff of Major McDowell, commanding the organization of the city and the State forces. On the 18th of September he was appointed a Colonel of the Seventh Ohio Cavalry, and from that time until the close of the war he was absent from the field but eight days, and then his command was in camp recruiting. He commanded a brigade much of the time; and after the capture of Stoneman on the Macon raid before Atlanta, he commanded the remains of the division. He was promoted to Brigadier General by brevet on the 21st of June, 1865, and on the 4th of July the same year he was mustered out of service. On taking leave of his regiment he was presented with a cavalry standard, upon which was embroidered the following epitome of his service: 'Carter Raid, Dutton Hill, Monticello, West's Gap, Buffington Island, Cumberland Gap, Blue Springs, Blountsville, Rogersville, Morristown, Cheek's Cross Roads, Bean's Station, Dandridge, Mossy Creek, Fair Garden, Cynthia, Atlanta, Duck River, Nashville, Plantersville, Selma and Columbus.'

"On a plate on the staff is an inscription expressing the regiments confidence in him as a leader and its respect for him as a patriot and a gentleman. General Garrard is now enjoying the quiet retirement of agricultural life at Frontenac, on Lake Pepin, Minnesota."

In May, 1856, Gen. Garrard married Catherine Wood, daughter of George Wood, a distinguished lawyer of New York city. She has been many years deceased. Their children were—

Murray Hoffman, of New York city. Their children are Beulah and Evelyn Garrard.

KENNER GARRARD was born at "Fairfield," the home of his paternal grandfather in Bourbon county, Ky., during a temporary visit of his mother from Cincinnati in 1827. The appended sketch of him is taken from the "History of the Fifth Cavalry, U. S. A.," by Capt. George F. Price.

"Kenner Garrard entered Harvard for the regular academic course, but at the end of the sophomore year left to enter at West Point, from which he graduated in July, 1851. Assigned to the Fourth Artillery and transferred to the First Dragoons. Ordered to New Mexico and served as escort to Topographical Survey across the Staked Plains. Was sent to Carlisle Barracks as Cavalry Instructor, and on March 3d, 1855, was appointed First Lieutenant in the Second Cavalry (now the Fifth).

"He was appointed Adjutant of the regiment and served also as Assistant Adjutant General of the Department of Texas, then commanded by Col. Albert Sidney Johnston. After a detail on recruiting service he joined his regiment in January, 1861. Being disabled by sickness, he did not leave when the regiment was withdrawn, and was subsequently retained at headquarters, which was captured by the insurgents, and paroled. He reached Washington with difficulty, where he turned over $20,000 that had been intrusted to his official care.

"His promotion to captaincy dated February 27th, 1861. He was employed on staff duty at Washington until appointed as Cavalry Instructor at West Point. In December, 1861, he was appointed Commandant of the Corps of Cadets. On this duty he remained until officially informed of his exchange and release from parole, October, 1862.

"He at once entered the field as Colonel of the 145th New York Volunteers, and took part in all the principal battles of the Army of the Potomac. He succeeded General Weed (killed at Gettysburg) in the command of the Third Brigade, Syke's Division. He was brevetted Lieutenant-Colonel U. S. army, appointed Brigadier-General N. S. V., for gallantry at Gettysburg. In November, 1863, he was promoted a Major in Third Cavalry, and assigned to charge of Cavalry Bureau at Washington.

"After a brief service he was relieved at his own request to take command of the Second Cavalry Division of the Army of the Cumberland, and served through the Atlanta campaign. He was made Brevet Colonel U. S. army, July 22d, 1864.

"In December he was assigned to the command of the Second Division Sixteenth Army Corps, with which he served in the Battle of Nashville, and seige of the forts at Mobile. He commanded the district of Mobile until mustered out of the volunteer service, August, 1865

"He served as A. A. Inspector General Department of the Missouri, until November 1866, when he resigned and retired to private life, having previously received the brevet of Major General U. S. army for faithful and gallant service.

"He held the honorary degree of B. A., conferred upon him by Harvard University in 1865, in consideration of the honorable military service of one who had been a student.

"On returning to his home, Cincinnati, he identified himself with the best interests of the city, serving on many civic boards with distinction to himself and advantage to the public welfare.

"He died May 15th, 1879, after an illness of three days. His death was a public bereavement. His influence for good was the natural outgrowth from the best qualities of a noble character. It has been well written of him 'that he deserved esteem rather than sought it.' He merited gratitude and high honor at the hands of his countrymen. He lived without reproach, and he made a record which is worthy of a careful study by officers of the army who have yet to win their laurels."

LEWIS HECTOR GARRARD was born in Cincinnati in May, 1829. He was well educated, and his talents and tastes inclined him to literary pursuits.

When seventeen years of age, to benefit his health and in quest of adventure, he made a trip to the western plains, joining a company commanded by Mr. St. Vrain, of the firm of Bent, St. Vrain & Co, Indian and Mexican traders. Their destination was Bent's Fort, Indian Territory. During his stay at that place he had some experience in fighting Indians. The Commanche tribe had been committing great depredation at Fort Bridger, not far from them. Fort Mann, a small government post about half way between Bent's Fort and Fort Leavenworth, was in great danger from hostile Indians, not having enough men for its defence, and Mr. Garrard volunteered to stop there on his way in from Bent's Fort. While there, and exposed to great danger, Col. William H. Russell from California, Secretary of State under Gen. Fremont, with sixteen men of the California Battallion, stopped at Mann's Fort on their way to the States. This was most opportune, for he, knowing the great danger that surrounded young Garrard and having been a classmate of his father, prevailed upon him with difficulty to return home with them. Subsequent events proved that it was most fortunate that he did so, for very soon afterwards Fort Mann was almost destroyed and many were slain by Indians.

After his return home he published a most interesting account of his frontier life, entitled "Watoyah and the Taos Trail." He was also the author of "Chambersburg in the Colony and Revolution," containing a biographical sketch of his maternal great grandfather, Gen. James Chambers, whose certificate of membership in the Society of Cincinnati he possessed and prized as a valued relic.

He was a member of the medical profession, but failing health for many years necessitated his retiring from a practice which promised satisfactory success. On making his home in Minnesota he interested himself in public affairs and business and civic cares, becoming twice a member of the State Legislature, twice Mayor of Lake City, and President of the First National Bank at that place.

Stricken with paralysis for two years, he was a helpless sufferer until death granted him the release for which he patiently waited—release and rest in "the far white camps of Peace."

He died at Lakewood, N. Y., July 7th, 1887, and was buried July 9th in Spring Grove Cemetery, Cincinnati.

Dr. Garrard married Florence Van Vliet, of Minnesota, a very superior and lovely woman. She died at Bellport, Long Island, September 25th, 1897. Her remains were interred in Spring Grove by the side of her husband.

ELIZABETH GARRARD BROOKS.

ELIZABETH MOUNTJOY GARRARD, daughter of Governor James and Elizabeth Mountjoy Garrard, was born in Stafford county, Va., March 6th, 1783. She married James Allen Brooks, May 9th, 1810. He was a native of Pennsylvania, and when quite a young man, went to Bordeaux, France, where he engaged in mercantile pursuits. France was then under the brilliant reign of Napoleon and he witnessed many events now famous in history.

Soon after their marriage they went to New Orleans where they lived several years. Mr. Brooks participated in the Battle of New Orleans. Some years later they went to Lexington, Ky., where Mr. Brooks died of cholera, in 1833.

Mrs. Brooks died in Houston, Texas, in June, 1843, aged sixty-two years. They were both interred in the Episcopalian Cemetery, at Lexington, Ky.

As Mrs. Brooks was the "Miss Garrard" referred to, the following extract is given from the address of Hon. John Mason Brown, delivered on the occasion of the Centennial commemoration of the town of Frankfort, Ky., October 8th, 1886:

"The advent of Mr. John Goodman was for Frankfort the art of music and the first appearance of engraving in the State. His skill supplied that which was unattainable by transportation from abroad. Until his day there was not in the commonwealth a musical instrument less portable than the wicked violin or the pocket flute, and we may well believe how crude was the music produced by performers wholly uninstructed in the art. It was a notable undertaking when Mr. Goodman, in 1801, constructed out and out, in his house on Main street, next but one to the southeast corner of Washington, a complete piano forte. It was made for the daughter of Governor Garrard and its first exhibition was an event of the town. An old letter of January, 1802, from a Frankfort lady to her absent husband, thus speaks of the occasion—a Christmas dinner :

“ ‘We had a good substantial dinner at the Governor’s, two large turkeys, two pieces of beef of about twenty-five pounds each, and bacon and ducks. The desert was tolerable, but being placed on the table by the direction of his Excellency, it was not disposed to the greatest advantage. We had very fine peach wine of Mrs. Garrard’s own make. Miss Garrard’s forte piano, made here by Mr Goodman, is now at home and is as pretty a piece of furniture as I ever saw. I think it will be well toned when it is better seasoned. The tones are now sweet but weak. It cost two hundred dollars.’ ”

Thus it appears that the first piano in Kentucky was made for Elizabeth Garrard, afterwards Mrs. Brooks. The children of Mr. and Mrs. Brooks were—

ELIZA JANE BROOKS, born in New Orleans, July 31, 1811. She married first, John Van de Graffe, in 1833. He died eighteen months after their marriage. Their son was—Isham Talbot, who was born in Bedford county, Va., in 1773. *"While quite young his father emigrated with his family to Kentucky and settled near Harrodsburg, Mercer county. Young Talbot acquired a classical education, and on arriving at manhood studied law with Col. George Nicholas, and afterwards moved to Frankfort, Ky., and entered the lists when Clay, and Daviess, and Bibb, and Bledsoe, and Rowan adorned the bar; and public opinion of that day, and this, has regarded Mr. Talbot as one of the brightest in that galaxy of illustrious names. In 1812 he was elected to the Senate of Kentucky from the county of Franklin, which office he continued to hold until his election in 1815, to the Senate of the United States, to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Jesse Bledsoe. In 1820 he was re-elected to the Senate and served in that body until March 4th, 1825. Mr. Talbot's career in the Senate is a part of the history of our common country, and the reports of the debates of that body bear ample proof of his eloquence and patriotism. MARIA GARRARD DUDLEY.

MARIA GARRARD, daughter of Gov. James and Elizabeth Mountjoy Garrard, was born at "Mount Lebanon," December 22d, 1790. She married Peter Dudley, of Frankfort, Ky. * "As Major, Mr. Dudley led a troop of mounted Kentuckians to the River Raisin against Pottawatomie Indians. This expedition was very daring and quite successful." At a later period he was appointed Adjutant General of the Kentucky State Militia, which office he held many years. His residence was always at Frankfort, where he died June 17th, 1869.

Collins, in his History of Kentucky, published in 1874, gives some statistics of the early days of Frankfort, from which the following is taken :

"Two daughters of Governor Garrard, Mrs. Thomas W. Hawkins and Mrs. Gen. Peter Dudley, aged eighty six and eighty-two, respectively, are living. They were children in Frankfort in 1796, aged ten and six, and Mrs. Dudley is still a citizen. There are citizens of Frankfort older than Mrs. Dudley, but they were not residents in 1796."

Collins says, also, of Frankfort in 1797 :

"Gov. James Garrard, Harry Toulmin (then Secretary of State) and George Rowling each indulged in the luxury of a carriage, and paid tax upon it."

Mrs Dudley died in Frankfort, January 28th, 1876. They had no children.

DANIEL GARRARD, SR.

DANIEL GARRARD, son of William Garrard, of Stafford county, Virginia, and Mary Lewis, his wife, was born in 1736. It is not known whether he was born in Virginia, or in London, before the emigration of his parents to Virginia. He married in Virginia, about 1760, Elizabeth ———; her family name has not been found. She was born in 1747. He is said to have been a man of lofty character and sterling integrity. About 1785 he removed to Kentucky, and settled in the vicinity of Ruddell's Mills, near Ruddell's Station. He died December 7th, 1813. His will was probated in 1814. After making provision for his wife, Elizabeth, he divides his estate between his children, and names his wife, and three of his sons-in-law, Thomas Hughes, Haran Bates and Joseph L. Stephens, as his lawful executors. Witnesses to the will were Thomas A. Thomson, John Mulheim, Washington Duncan, Laban Shipp, and Elizabeth Shipp. Mrs. Garrard died June 30th, 1816. ROSANNA GARRARD, born in Virginia about 1768. She married Haran Bates, and it appears that they lived in Bourbon county, but no trace of their descendants has been found.

SARAH GARRARD, born in Virginia about 1770. On October 4th, 1789, she married Stephen Grymes, son of Philip and Mary Grymes of Fayette county, Ky. Philip Grymes was of the noted Virginia family of that name, General R. E. Lee and Bishop Meade being among those tracing their ancestral lines to them. Mrs. Sara Grymes died previous to 1805, the date of her husband's will. Their children were—

THOMAS GRYMES, married America Bates. None of their descendants have been found. America Grymes, named in the will of Thomas Garrard as his niece, must have been the daughter of Thomas and America Bates Grymes; and Lafayette, Francis, and William Grymes, also named in the will of Thomss Garrard, must have been their grandchildren.

LAVINIA GARRARD GRYMES. On January 10th, 1817, she married Col Nimrod Long Lindsay, of Bourbon county, Ky. He was a son of Thomas and Margaret Lindsay, of Virginia, who were descendants of the old clan so well known in Scottish history—who were crusaders, soldiers and statesmen. An old ballad of the Battle of Otterburn has these lines:

“The Lindsays flew like fire about Till all the fray was done.”

In “Marmion,” Scott says of one of its distinguished members:

“Still is thy name in high account,
And still thy verse has charms;
Sir David Lindsay of the mount,

Col. Lindsay was a wealthy farmer of Bourbon county, was a member of the Legislature, and a man of strikingly handsome appearance. He died September 4th, 1840, and Mrs. Lindsay died September 14th, 1840. Their children were—

5 RICHARD LINDSAY, married Olivia Clay Bedinger, of Bourbon county. Both deceased. Their daughter Rosa Lindsay married W. S. Buckner. Their children are Elizabeth, and Frank Buckner.

5 MARGARET LINDSAY, married Willoughby Sanford Scott, of Bourbon county. Their children were Louise, married C. C. Rogers, of Bourbon county. She was a beautiful and very attractive woman. Their children were Judge Lindlay R. Rogers, a prominent lawyer of Ogden, Utah; and Mrs. Katherine Brooks, of California. Mrs. Rogers married secondly D. P. Rathbone, of Tennessee. She died in 1896. Mary Eddie Scott married first, Col. R. P. Bolling, of Louisville, Ky. He was of the old Virginia family who proudly trace their descent to Pocahontas. After his death in 1880, she married David P. Faulds, of Louisville. She died December, 1891. She was a remarkable woman, and neither Kentucky nor any other State has had a daughter more universally honored and lamented at the close of a useful life. A Louisville paper of that date says:

“The death of Mrs. Mary Bolling Faulds, wife of Mr. David P. Faulds, comes to thousands of hearts as an irreparable loss. During her illness her house was besieged by all classes of people who had felt the cheering warmth of her friendship, anxious to learn her condition. When it was finally announced that her gentle spirit had taken its flight, every eye that had known her was dimmed with tears, and every heart ached for those who are left to mourn her. Sorrow has placed a heavy hand upon the loving mother, the devoted husband, the affectionate relatives and friends."

5 MARY LINDSAY, married Warren B. Rogers, of a well known and wealthy Bourbon county family, of English descent. Nathaniel Rogers came to Kentucky from Virginia with a military land grant. His son William was a friend and neighbor of Patrick Henry in the Old Dominion. Mr. Rogers has been many years deceased. Mrs. Rogers still lives at her lovely old home "Glenwood," which in years past was one of the gayest and most hospitable households in "Old Bourbon." Their children were James R. Rogers, who was a Captain in the Confederate Army. He is unmarried, and lives at "Glenwood." Loudie Rogers married Capt. Jones of the Confederate Army, and is deceased. Alice Rogers married Col. R. G. Stoner, of the Confederate Army, and a citizen of Bourbon county. She died in 1896. She was an unusually bright and lovely woman whose character endeared her to a host of friends. THOMAS GARRARD, born in Virginia, about 1775. He owned and lived upon a tract of land adjoining that of his father, in the vicinity of Ruddell's Mills, Bourbon county, Ky. He never married, and it appears that his health was impaired during the last years of his life, and that he was faithfully cared for and waited upon by his slaves. For that service he makes ample provision for their support in his will, which is dated June 21st, 1842. Some extracts from it are here given. First, he emancipates twelve slaves, naming each one and makes special provision for them. He devises ninety acres of land to James Houston, and William McIlvaine to be held in trust and managed for the benefit of Perry and his wife, Cynthia, and their children. This land he bought from William Lindsay, it being W. Duncan's old farm. He gives to his slave, Abe, the remainder part of the tract of land he bought of William Lindsay, it being about nine or ten acres on the south side, next to Thomas Hutchinsons, subject to the same conditions of the part willed to Perry, Cynthia and their children. He wills that his man Joe shall be free from date of will. He bought Joe from Ebenezer Martin. He gives to his niece, America Grymes, and her two eldest sons, Lafayette and Francis Grymes, all the land which he owns which is not already disposed of, and upon which he lives and which was devised to him by his father, Daniel Garrard, and the land he bought of Fisher's heirs, James Shaw and Abraham Moore, supposed to be two hundred and ten acres, more or less, and they and their heirs are to hold it forever by their maintaining his old servant, Anthony, as long as he lives.

He gives to America and Lafayette Grymes all his household and kitchen furniture. He gives also to his niece, America Grymes, and her son Achilles Grymes, his negro man Lewis, who he bought from Thomas A. Grymes. He directs his personal property sold and after his just debts are paid, the money is to be divided as follows: To America Grymes, two hundred dollars; to his friend Jacob Duncan, eight hundred dollars; to his sister Mrs. Lucy Stephens, three thousand dollars; to the children of his neice, Maria Rule, twelve hundred dollars; to the heirs of his brother, William Garrard, one thousand dollars; to his neice, Elizabeth Hughes, one hundred dollars; to his neice, Eliza Hutson, three hundred dollars; to his nephew, William Trabue, two hundred dollars. If the money should be more or less than what is devised, each legacy is to be increased or reduced in the same ratio. He wishes to be buried on his own land, and a few panels of post and railing of locust timber put around his grave, and the grave walled around with rock and a tombstone over it, and to be forever uncultivated.

He directs his executors to furnish his slaves with their free papers, put them in possession of the property devised to them and protect them in their rights. He appoints his trusty friends William McIlvaine and James Houston his lawful executors and sets his hand and seal the 21st day of June, 1842.

Witnesses to the will are Samuel L. Fisher, Metton Lamison, E. Maston and Jesse Current, of the Ruddell's Mills neighborhood, Bourbon county, Ky.

FRANCES GARRARD, born in Virginia, about 1777. She married George Humphrey. Her descendants have not been found.

MARY ANNE GARRARD MOUNTJOY.

MARY ANNE GARRARD, daughter of William Garrard and Mary Lewis, his wife, was born in Stafford county, Va., November 2d, 1753. The register of Overwharton parish shows that she was baptised February 17th, 1754. She married Col. John Mountjoy in Stafford county, July 29th, 1772.

Colonel Mountjoy was a son of William and Phyllis Mountjoy, of Stafford county, Va. The Overwharton parish register gives the births of the family as follows: Edward Mountjoy, born January 1st, 1735; William Mountjoy, born September 28th, 1737; John Mountjoy, October 25th, 1741; Mary Mountjoy, November 6th, 1743; Alvin Mountjoy, February 9th, 1746; Margaret Mountjoy, in 1748, died in 1755; Elizabeth Mountjoy, May 2d, 1751 (married Governor Garrard); George Mountjoy, September 1st, 1757.

The Mountjoys were of French Huguenot descent, and had lived in England before coming to America. The date of their settlement in Virginia is not known, but it was probably as early as 1730. Bishop Meade says in his work, "Old Churches and Families of Virginia": "Patriots of the northern neck of Virginia signed resolutions, drawn up by Richard Henry Lee, soon after the passage of the Stamp Act, 1765. Among the names of signers are those of William, Edward, Thomas, and John Mountjoy."

Of their service in the war of the Revolution, the following data is taken from Heitman's "Historical Register of Officers of the Continental Army":

"ALVIN MOUNTJOY, Virginia, 2d Lieut. 3d Virginia, 25th February, 1776; 1st Lieutenant 15th January, 1777; resigned December 10th, 1777.

"JOHN MOUNTJOY, Virginia, Captain 10th Virginia, January 14th, 1777; resigned September 14th, 1778.

"WILLIAM MOUNTJOY, Virginia, Paymaster 3d Virginia, November 20th, 1777 ; retired September 14th, 1778."

The descendants of Col. John Mountjoy relate that he served seven years in the Revolutionary struggle, and that at one time his regiment became so reduced in numbers that he returned home and raised and equipped a company of men at his own expense, for which the government promised to remunerate him. Subsequently his heirs got nothing for his outlay.

William Mountjoy, father of Col. John Mountjoy, was a vestryman in one of the churches in the Overwharton Parish. most probably old Acquia church, near to which they lived. Col. John Mountjoy and his brothers, Edward, Alvin and William, left Virginia and settled in Kentucky at an early day. Edward Mountjoy was a member of the State Legislature in 1798. Alvin Mountjoy was a Representative in 1800. He married Mary Edwards of Virginia and lived and died near Falmouth, Ky.

JUDGE WILLIAM GARRARD.

WILLIAM GARRARD, son of Col. William Garrard, of Stafford county, Va., and Elizabeth ————, his wife, was born about 1760. As the old marriage records of Stafford county were among those destroyed during the Civil war, the family name of his mother cannot be found. He was a fine lawyer, and a brilliant and handsome man. As he was appointed by his father executor of his will, he must have been at that date, 1786, still a resident of Stafford county.

He married Francis Bullitt, daughter of Cuthbert Bullitt, of Prince William county, Va. She was a great beauty and belle, and was much admired by Gen. Lafayette, who danced with her at a ball on his first visit to America. His admiration of her was so great that when he returned on his second visit, he inquired for her and wanted to meet her again. In the meantime she had married Judge Garrard, and went with him to live in Kentucky. It appears that they lived for a time in Bourbon county, but subsequently removed to Jefferson county, near Louisville, where he was Judge of one of the courts.

In "Randolph's Virginia Reports" it is found that a "suit for land in Virginia was brought in February, 1828, by W. Garrard and Frances, his wife; Thomas Bullitt and Alexander Bullitt, against Henry."

Mrs. Garrard died after 1830. Judge Garrard visited his relatives in Bourbon county in 1836. No dates can be obtained, but it is believed that Judge Garrard died in New Orleans at the home of his daughter Mrs. Ernest. The picture given of him was copied from a miniature painted on ivory, which was very beautifully executed. They had two daughters; the eldest was—

SOPHIA GARRARD, who was born in Virginia.

JUDGE WILLIAM GARRARD.

About 1819 she married George C. Gwathmey, of Louisville, Ky. He was the first cashier of the Bank of Kentucky, and one of the most prominent citizens of Louisville. Mrs. Gwathmey was one of the most accomplished and popular society women of her day. Their eldest daughter—

JULIA GWATHMEY, was born in Louisville, Ky., about 1820. She married George C. Bacon, a merchant of Boston, Mass. Their son—

GEORGE BACON, was reared in Boston with his father's family, his mother having died while he was quite young. He is deceased, and left a son—

6 ERNEST BACON, of Boston, Mass.

ELLEN GWATHMEY, was born about 1824. In 1854 she married Gen. Carey Fry, United States army. He died in California in 1872, and his remains were interred in the cemetery at Frankfort, Ky. After his death Mrs Fry resided continuously at the Galt House, in Louisville, Ky., where she died in 1894. She was always one of the most charming women in local society, being a central figure for many social gatherings. She was well informed, and was educated at the celebrated school of Rev. P. S. Fall, near Frankfort, Ky., where so many of the elegant women of Kentucky received their schooling and accomplishments. Mrs. Fry had no children.

ALFRED GWATHMEY was born about 1825. He married Georgia Keats, daughter of George Keats, who was a younger brother of John Keats, the English poet. Their son was—

GEORGE KEATS GWATHNEY. His parents dying when he was very young, he was reared by his maternal grandmother, Mrs. Keats, whose second husband was Mr. John Jeffrey, who was appointed his guardian. Mr. Gwathmey is a journalist and lives at Maysville, Mo., where he is editor of a newspaper. He married Georgia Reynolds. Their daughter is—

6 KATHERINE ELLEN GWATHMEY.

MARIE ELOISE GWATHMEY, born in Louisville, Ky., December 13th, 1829, married Philip B. Poindexter, a lawyer, and son of ex Governor Poindexter. She is said to have been extremely beautiful, and her loveliness of disposition and character rendered her very attractive. She died in Mendham, N. J., June 2d, 1887. Their children were—

6 MARY CRAIK POINDEXTER, married John Gilmer Speed, of Louisville, Ky. They left Louisville in 1876 and have since resided in New York. He is a journalist and writer of ability. Mrs. Speed died at their summer home at Mendham, N. J., September 24th, 1897. She was a distinguished looking woman, highly cultured and noted for her brilliancy of mind and rare conversational powers. The productions of her pen found ready acceptance in Eastern leading periodicals. Their daughter is Eloise Gwathmey Speed, of Mendham, N. J.

JOHN GWATHMEY, born 1831. He never married and died in the Confederate States service.

ELLEN GARRARD, married Frederick Earnest, of New Orleans, where they resided. They had no children. Mrs. Earnest died about 1868 at Natchez, Miss.

GARRARDS OF THE SOUTHERN STATES.

Data for this record of the three brothers, ROBERT, JOHN and JACOB GARRARD, with a partial list of their descendants has been furnished by Dr. John D. Garrard, of Birmingham, Ala., who has preserved the traditions and data received from his father.

Traditions in the families of these brothers are the same as those of the descendants of Col. William Garrard, of Stafford county, Va. Their ancestor having been a Huguenot and leaving France about 1685, it may reasonably be supposed that he was identical with Peter Garard, who became naturalized in England and changed his name to Garrard. One of the two young sons of Peter Garrard, who are said to have accompanied him to England, was doubtless the father of ROBERT, JOHN and JACOB GARRARD, who came to Virginia about 1750. Their father is said to have been a first cousin of Col. William Garrard, of Stafford county, so the theory may be accepted that they were the two sons of Peter Garrard. They were all born in England and in education and language were Englishmen, rather than French. They are supposed to have entered Virginia at Norfolk, and it is surmised that they, or one of them went to Stafford county, where Col. William Garrard had lived for some years. Nothing definite can be learned upon this point, but inference can be drawn from the fact that "Anthony Garrard, son of Jacob, was baptised October 12th, 1756." That is found in the register of Overwharton parish.

About 1757 they all left Virginia for the more Southern states. Jacob settled in North Carolina, and Robert and John in South Carolina. At a later period John went to Georgia.

ROBERT GARRARD.

JACOB GARRARD.

JACOB GARRARD, the emigrant, came to America about 1750. It is not known with a certainty, but it may be inferred that he lived for a few years in Stafford county, Va. The register of Overwharton parish shows that "Anthony Garrard, son of Jacob, was baptised February 12th, 1756." The "Jacob" referred to was doubtless the emigrant, as he married in Stafford county, about 1755, and the baptism of Anthony was in 1756. At a later period he removed to North Carolina, where he and two of his sons were killed in the Revolutionary service.

All of his children except two sons, Anthony, the eldest, and Jacob, the fourth son, remained in North Carolina, and their descendants are dispersed over the State. His eldest son—

ANTHONY GARRARD, born in Stafford county, Va., and baptized February 12th, 1756, in Overwharton parish. He went to Wilkes county, Ga., about 1785, where he lived until his death, about 1807. About 1777 he married Elizabeth Green, whose mother was Lucy Tins. Their children were—

ALFRED GARRARD, died unmarried.

NICHOLAS GARRARD, died unmarried.

WILLIAM W. GARRARD, of Columbus, Ga., was born about 1818 in Marion county, Ga. He was a typical Southern gentleman, a wealthy planter and one of the most influential cotton merchants in the South in the ante-bellum days, when "cotton was king." He died at his residence, "Hilton," near Columbus, Ga., in 1866, aged forty-eight years. He married first, Mary M. S. Urquhart, who was born May 13th, 1820, and died May 27th, 1841. Their daughter—

6 MARY ISABEL GARRARD, married Dr. William A. Robertson, of St. Landre parish, La. He was a man of prominence, and at one time Speaker of the House of Representatives of Louisiana. He is now deceased. They had no children.

Mr. Garrard married secondly, Frances Isabel Garteray Urquhart (sister of his first wife), who was born in Richmond county, September 14th, 1818. Her father was David Urquhart, who was born in Cadbell, in the Parish of Fearne, County of Ross, in Scotland, May 15th, 1779. He died at his residence "Hilton," near Augusta, Ga., November 20th, 1842. The wife of Mr. Urquhart was Catherine Brooks Garteray, who was born in Prince Edward county, Va., July 7th, 1783. She died at the family residence, "Hilton," near Augusta, Ga., October 6th, 1835.

Mrs. Garrard died at her son's residence near Columbus, Ga., August 13th, 1890. The Rev. Dr. Carter her minister in his obituary of her, says:

"Mrs. Garrard was the daughter of Mr. David Urquhart, a planter of large means and a princely gentleman. Of his large family only one survives, Mrs. L. T. Downing, of Columbus, Ga. Miss Isabel Urquhart married Mr. William W. Garrard, one of Georgia's most prominent citizens, who died many years ago. She leaves to mourn her loss three daughters and two sons; Mrs. Humphreys Castleman, of Atlanta; Mrs. James Harris, of Chattanooga; Mrs. J. T. Glenn, of Atlanta; Col. William Garrard, of Savannah, and Hon. Louis F. Garrard, of Columbus, Ga. She was in her seventy-second year.

"Mrs. Garrard was a remarkable woman, as all who knew her can testify. The culture inherited from her high-strung and noble race, she illustrated in her life. The honored heirloom of her ancestors she handed down untarnished to her descendants. Left with the care of a large household, she dedicated herself to rearing her children, and in their honored and useful lives are the living proofs of her success. There was a dignity in her bearing that impressed all with the nobleness of her character. Singularly courteous in her manner, she won the respect of all who knew her. The loving tribute of a loving daughter but expresses the estimate of a true regard. Of her gracious presence, of her loveliness of character, her worth as a wife and mother 'whose children rise up and call her blessed,' it may be very justly said, 'none knew her but to love her, none named her but to praise.' It was during the long sickness, which from the first with death's prophetic power she anticipated the end, that the writer of this sketch became so well acquainted with her as to know her noble and true character. The calmness with which she anticipated the inevitable hour, the patient cheerfulness with which during the long and weary months she bore the almost continual suffering, is rarely ever witnessed. It was indeed a precious relief when at last came to her 'the sleep from which none ever wakes to weep.' "

The children of Mr and Mrs. Garrard were—

5 WILLIAM URQUHART GARRARD, a prominent lawyer of Savannah, Ga. At the beginning of the Civil war he was a student at the Alabama Military Institute at Tuscaloosa. Notwithstanding his youth he soon entered the Confederate service, becoming a member of the Thirty-first Alabama Regiment. He was conspicuous at the battle of Vicksburg, leading one or two desperate charges; and after the place was surrendered and the Confederate troops marched out with all the honors of war, Gen. Stephen D. Lee addressed a letter to Hon. J. A. Seddons, Confederate Secretary of War, bearing date July 21st, 1863, in which he recommends for promotion Sergeant-Major William Garrard, Thirty-first Alabama Regiment, Stevenson's Division, for "distinguished gallantry in the field at Baker's Creek and during the siege of Vicksburg." The letter adds: "He attracted my attention repeatedly by good conduct and officer-like deportment. He has won promotion on the field."

Shortly afterward William Garrard received from the department his commission as First Lieutenant, Company I, Thirty-first Alabama Regiment. He served as Assistant Adjutant-General to Brigadier-General Pettus, but never left the line and kept with his company throughout. He fought with the army at Missionary Ridge, through the Dalton campaign, and was with Hood in his Tennessee campaign through the Carolinas. In the re-organization of General Johnston's army and the consolidation of regiments he became Captain of Company K, Twenty-third Alabama. He was paroled with Johnston's army at Bentonville, N. C., and rode horseback across the country to his home at Columbus, Ga.

His studies having been interrupted by the war he had not yet finished his education, and he went to Lexington, Ky., where he studied in the law school of Kentucky University. On returning to Columbus he entered into partnership with Col. Raphael J. Moses, the prominent jurist and distinguished orator.

In 1869 he went to Savannah, Ga., where he has been practicing law steadily and successfully, refusing all public office and declining to engage in politics except as a citizen and leader. In 1882 Col. Garrard was elected commander of the Savannah Volunteer Guards with the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel. His election was from the ranks, one of the few times in the history of the guards that this had been done. He was commissioned December 23d of that year and took active command of the corps on the parade of January 19th, 1883, on which occasion he was presented with a handsome sword and belt by the corps.

On July 14th, 1887, he married Mary Robert Lawton, second daughter of William G. and Elizabeth James Lawton. An Atlanta paper says: "Col. Garrard is one of the most elegant and cultured gentlemen in Southern society. He is one of the leading and most brilliant lawyers in Savannah, and he and his charming wife have an elegant home which they make notable for graceful, charming entertaining in that aristocratic city. The name of Garrard both in Georgia and South Carolina is a synonym for all that is attractive and cultured in manhood and womanhood."

Their children are Bessie Garrard, born June 13th, 1888, died June 27th, 1889; William Garrard, born September 24th, 1889; Giulielma Lawton Garrard, born June 26th, 1891; Lawton Garrard, born September 29th, 1892, and Emily Lawton Garrard, born August 29th, 1895.

5 EVA GARRARD married Humphreys Castleman, of Kentucky, October 21st, 1868, at "Hilton," the home of her parents, near Columbus, Ga. Mr. Castleman is the son of David Castleman and Virginia Harrison, of Fayette county, Kentucky, both now deceased. He served in the Confederate States Army in the command of Gen. John H.

HON LOUIS FORD GARRARD.

Morgan. They have lived for many years in Atlanta, Ga. Their surviving children are Isabel, and Louis Garrard Castleman. Ada Isabel, Frances Isabel Garrard, and Virginia Harrison Garrard died in infancy.

5 LOUIS FORD GARRARD. "In the second year of the war between the States, he was a cadet in the Military School at Tuscaloosa, Ala. He determined at once to go to the defense of his country. His intelligence, bravery, and sound judgment soon attracted attention, and at the age of sixteen he was transferred to the Nelson Rangers, which was made the escort of Gen. Stephen D. Lee. With this command he rendered great service. He was in the thickest of the fight at the battle of Nashville, where his bravery was conspicuous. His courageous bearing and gallant conduct on the bloody field of Franklin, Tenn., where fell ten thousand of his brave comrades, was most distinguished, and it was said that "never did Knight in the crusades acquit himself more gloriously than did Louis Garrard, in the front rank, in the blood-stained slaughter pen at Franklin."

For his gallantry on the field at the battle of Nashville he received a flattering recommendation from Gen. Stephen D. Lee, securing for him a commission in the regular army of the Confederacy, to take effect upon the close of hostilities. The termination of the war made that an impossibility, and as his education had been so interrupted by the war, he went to Lexington and entered the University of Kentucky, where he remained one year, and then became a student in the Law School at Harvard. Upon his return home he was admitted to the bar, and has since enjoyed a lucrative practice in his native city. He has often filled positions of trust and honor, and by his marked ability as a lawyer and financier, has gained the confidence of his city, county, and State. He has been a county commissioner for twenty-five years. In 1878 he was put forward by the people for Legislative honors, and in the election led the ticket. In the House of Representatives he was one of the committee on finance, and is the author of the famous "Baby Bond Bill," which became a law, and which enabled Georgia to float her indebtedness from seven to four per cent, thereby saving the State thousands of dollars. He was re-elected to the Legislature, and made speaker of the House of Representatives during the terms of 1882 and 1883.

He then retired from politics and gave his entire time to his profession. In 1892 he was elected a delegate to the State convention and wrote the platform. From there he was sent as a delegate to the Chicago Convention, was a member of the Committee on Resolutions and was the author of several of the planks which formulated that platform. In February, 1894, he announced for the United States Senate and was defeated, but the disappointment was without sting or humiliation, as he entered the campaign against great odds. After the heated contest was over at the capital he returned home and at once took the stump for Democracy. It was said of him, "Georgia needs more Democrats like Louis F. Garrard."

Mr. Garrard is now being strongly urged to become the Democratic candidate for Governor of Georgia, and if he consents to make the race, his friends consider his success assured.

He married Annie Foster Leonard, daughter of Van de Van Leonard, who was born in Petersburg, Va., 1790, and died August 3d, 1861. Her mother was Frances Ramsay Darnell, born January 4th, 1804, died May 29th, 1879. Mrs. Garrard was born in Muscogee county, Ga., July 6th, 1849. Their children are Louis F., born July 27th, 1874; Francis Urquhart, born June 1st, 1876; Annie Leonard, born October 17th, 1878; Guy Castleman, born June 28th, 1883; Helen Gertrude, born April 2d, 1886, and Frances Isabel Garrard, born December 23d, 1894. UNTRACED GARRARDS.

The result of many investigations has been the discovery of Garrard families who cannot trace to their first American ancestor. They all claim French descent, and some of them relationship to Governor Garrard's branch. It seems probable that they are all descended from the same French stock. All data received from them will be here given with the hope that it may assist some of them in tracing farther back than they have heretofore been able to do.

HON. ALPHEUS GARRARD, of Silver Peak, Nev., sends the following of his branch of the Garrards, between which and the family of Governor Garrard's father relationship has not been traced, but from repetition of the same names found in the other branches, we are inclined to believe that they are of the same descent.

In Taylor's "Lives of Baptist Preachers," his name is spelled GARRARD. One of his descendants now seventy-four years of age, and living in Ohio, says, "The original settler of Gerrardstown, Va., was Jonathan Garrard." They also claimed to be of French descent and the name at first was GARARD. He says some branches spelled it GEARARD, but his father dropped the e. Many of them retain it as GERRARD, and some as GERARD. All of the name emigrated from Gerrardstown and their descendants are numerous in Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, and the name is still varied in spelling. Rev. John Garrard died in 1778, at an advanced age.

Stephen C. Garrard of Hamilton county, Ohio, son of John Hays Garrard, grandson of Jonathan Garrard, and great-grandson of Rev. John Garrard, of Gerrardstown, Va., says: "The first name of Rev. John Garrard's wife was Mehitable, but her family name is not known." He continues, "About 1792 some of the family emigrated to the territory of Ohio. Landing at the mouth of the Miami river, and ascending about two miles, Jonathan Garrard, son of Rev. John Garrard, built a fort, or 'Block House,' which was afterwards known as 'Garrard's Station.' "

He says also that he had always heard from his father, that they were in some way related to the family of Governor Garrard, of Kentucky.

The varied ways of spelling the name has always created confusion in making efforts to trace them. The same want of harmony exists in the pronunciation of the name. In Kentucky the accent is placed upon the first syllable, and custom has established that pronunciation, but it is obviously incorrect. As being derived from the original French GARARD, the accent should be upon the last syllable, with the G hard, as in GRANT.

There was another REV. JOHN GARRARD, who came from Virginia to Kentucky in 1781.

Collins, in his "History of Kentucky," says: "On June 17th, 1781, under the shade of a sugar tree near Hynes Station, in Hardin county, a Baptist Church with eighteen members was constituted, and REV. JOHN GARRARD was installed as first pastor; his pastorate was of short duration, for in March, 1782, he was captured by Indians, and never heard of afterwards.j'

The writer inclines to believe that he was an elder brother of Governor Garrard.

In searching among the records of Westmoreland county, Va., the will of a WILLIAM GARRARD was found. The writer of this will must be identical with the William Garrard who patented land in Westmoreland county in 1716. This will gives no indications of relationship to any of the other Garrards heretofore found. It is dated November 4th, 1746. He appoints his wife, Mary Garrard, sole executrix, and mentions his sons Nathaniel, and Aaron, and grandson William Garrard, son of Nathaniel, and daughters Jane and Sarah. The will was signed and sealed in presence of his grandson, William Garrard, and Anthony Garrard. From this it appears there was an Anthony Garrard in Virginia before the infant "Anthony" was baptized in 1756, in Stafford county.

The will of Mary Garrard, widow of the writer of the above mentioned will, has been sent to the writer from Prince George county, Va., where it appears she died. Its date is April 10th, 1776. She gives to her daughter, Jane King, and her son-in-law, Thomas King, the use of one hundred and twenty acres of land in Westmoreland county and Washington Parish, it being the plantation upon which she lived. After their decease it was to go to her grandson Thomas King, and in the event of his death, to her grandson Nathaniel King. Nothing more of this family is found in the Westmoreland records.

DR. THOMAS GARRARD, from Lancashire, England, came to St. Mary's county, Maryland, in 1640. He removed with his family to Westmoreland county, Va., in 1650. Much relating to him is found in the "Archives of Maryland."

The writer obtained interesting data of him, thinking he may have been the ancestor of the Garrards of Stafford county, but neither of his two sons left a male heir, and the name in his branch became extinct.

The writer hopes that these Notes relating to different Garrard families may assist in some degree any one who may wish to farther pursue genealogical research.
