Foreword

 HIS PAMPHLET is compiled and published as a small tribute to the memory of the compilers' grandfathers, the late Col. Hosea Wilson Gray (1816-1885) warrior, statesman and patriot, and his brother, Orlando Noah Gray (1819-1909), both hardy, hard-working, pioneer settlers of Linn County, Iowa Territory and Clay County, Nebraska, and Jewell County, Kansas, respectively.

The history of the first three generations of the family is taken from "Gray Genealogy," published by M. D. Raymond of Tarrytown-on-Hudson, New York, a fine and comprehensive volume of 316 pages, first published in 1887 and republished in 1896. The book is now out of print and the author is dead. The copy on file at the Congressional Library, Washington, D. C., was consulted by Mrs. Cutler in May, 1929. The author's only child, Lizzie Raymond (Mrs. J. E. See) Tarrytown-on-Hudson, New York, has a copy of this work from which she kindly copied extracts for the use of the compilers of this pamphlet.

Miss Helen Fassett, 1104 M St. NW, Washington, D. C., compiled the Rowley family sketch.

Mrs. Louise Wilson Vandyne (Mrs. E. Everett), Troy, Pa., furnished the sketch of Noah Wilson's settlement at Alba, Pa.

Mrs. Lizzie Cathcart Hickson (Mrs. Chas. O.), 215 Plaza Hall, 43rd and Chestnut streets, Philadelphia, Pa., furnished an excerpt from Haverley's Pioneers and Patriots of Bradford County, Pa., vol. 2, pp. 27-9, concerning Noah Wilson, and others concerning Dr. Reuben Rowley, M. D., and the Campbell family.

The information concerning the first three generations of Wilsons was taken from a pamphlet: "The Wilson Family," compiled by Howard O. Wilson, cashier Stockyard National Bank, Omaha, Nebr.

All paragraphs marked 7 and 8 mean that these individuals are of the 7th and 8th generations of the founder of the family in America.

In the paragraph of Silas Gray and his wife, Omira Wilson, the numbering concerning the Wilsons refers to the founder of this branch of the Wilson family,—Henry Willson, who settled at Dedham, Mass., in 1635.

Pages 9, 29, 31, and 35: The date of birth of Omira Wilson as given in the text was taken from the family Bible of Parthenia White (Gray) Smith (Mrs. Marion B.) now in the possession of her daughter, Alice Omira (Smith) Ruggles (Mrs. Frank E.). The date according to the inscription upon the grave stone of Omira Wilson, who is buried at Marion, Linn Co., Iowa, is October 7, 1795. This latter date is believed to be the correct one.

The Gray Family

The surname GRAY, of the same class as White, Black, etc., has been in use in England from earliest times, also in Scotland. The Scotch family is of Anglo-Norman stock, and has been settled in Perthshire since about 1300. John de Gray came over with William the Conqueror. The family possesses the Lordship of Gray; and the family crest is a lion couchant. As religious differences multiplied in Scotland, many of the family went to Ireland. The Scotch family settled in Ulster in the seventeenth century, and were so numerous that the town of Londonderry was almost a family settlement.

John (King of England, 1199-1216) quarreled with the Pope about the appointment of an Archbishop of Canterbury. He had secured the election by the monks of John de Gray, but Pope Innocent III appointed Stephen Langton. (See Lancaster's Manual of English History, first edition, p. 57.)

Nesbit's Heraldry says: "The Grays unquestionably came over to England with William the Conqueror in 1066, for among the names of those inscribed at Battle Abbey, after the Battle of Hastings, as worthy to be remembered for valiant service there rendered, was J. de Gray. In an old manuscript of arms in the reign of William the Conqueror are the armorial bearings of Paganus de Gray, equitum signifier to King William. Gray, Earl of Kent, chief of the ancient and illustrious house of Gray, so dignified in the reign of Edward IV., from whom are descended the barons of Rotherfield, Codmore, Wilton, Ruthven, Groby, Rugemont, viscount of Lisle, earl of Stamford, marquis of Dorset and duke of Suffolk, all of that surname, derived it from the honor and castle of Gray

(or Croy as some still write it) in France, their patrimony before the Conquest. Edward IV. of England married Elizabeth Gray, widow of Sir John Gray, who was slain at the battle of St. Albans in 1461."

Burke's Peerage says: "The family of Gray is of great antiquity in Northumberland. Henry de Gray obtained from King Richard I. (1190) the manor of Turoc in Essex. Sir John Gray, Knight of Burwick, 1372, was father of Sir Thomas, of Berwick and Chillingham. Sir Edward de Gray married the daughter and heiress of Henry, heir apparent of William. The union of the Grays with the royal line of Tudor was by the marriage of the duke of Suffolk with Mary, daughter of Henry VII., sister of Henry VIII. and widow of King Louis XII. of France, who died Jan. 1, 1515. The tragic fate of their granddaughter, Lady Jane Gray, who reigned for a brief hour, an unwilling queen, has enlisted the sympathy of the world. Her execution in 1554, was followed by that of her father, duke of Suffolk, and his brothers, Lord John and Lord Thomas Gray. The Grays were restored to favor by James I, in 1603."

Mary, daughter of Henry VII, married Charles Francis Brandon, duke of Suffolk. They had Lady Frances Brandon, who married Henry Gray, marquis of Dorset, afterward Duke of Suffolk. They had Lady Jane Gray, who married Lord Guilford Dudley, son of the duke of Northumberland.

The following five paragraphs are taken from The Encyclopaedia Britannica (11th Edition), pp. 391, 395 and 769.

John de Gray (d. Oct. 1214) Roman Catholic bishop of Norwich (Eng.) was appointed bishop Sept., 1200.

Sir Andrew Gray (c. 1390-1469) of

THE GRAY FAMILY

Broxmouth and Foulis, was created a Scottish peer as Lord Gray, probably in 1445. Andrew was a leading figure in Scottish politics during the reign of James I. (1424-37) and his two successors (1437-60; 1460-88). The second Lord Gray was his grandson, Andrew (d. 1514), and the fourth lord was the latter's grandson, Patrick (d. 1582). Patrick's son, Patrick, the fifth lord (d. 1609), married Barbara, daughter of Lord Ruthven, and their son Patrick (d. 1612), was sixth Baron Gray. In 1585, Patrick, sixth Baron Gray, married as his second wife, Mary Stuart, daughter of Robert, Earl of Orkney, who bore him six daughters and a son, Andrew (d. 1663), seventh Baron Gray. He was succeeded as eighth Lord Gray by Patrick (d. 1711), a son of his daughter Anne; and Patrick's successor was his kinsman and son-in-law, John (d. 1724). On the extinction of John's direct line in 1878, the title of Lord Gray passed to George Stuart, Earl of Mcrey.

Walter de Gray (or Grey) (d. Fulham, Eng., May 1, 1255) was a nephew of John de Gray, Roman Catholic Bishop of Norwich, and was educated at Oxford. He was appointed Chancellor to King John in 1205. He became bishop of Lichfield in 1210; and bishop of Worcester in 1214. Gray was with John at Runnymede when the king signed Magna Charta in June, 1215. Later on he became archbishop of York.

Gray, a town of eastern France, capital of an arrondissement in the department of Haute-Sacne, founded in the seventh century, gave its name to the distinguished English family of de Gray, Gray or Grey, Anchital de Gray being mentioned as an Oxfordshire tenant in Domesday.

Henry Gray (c. 1599, d. 1673), eldest son of Sir John Gray, succeeded his grandfather, Henry Gray, as Baron Gray of Groby in July, 1614.

1. (886) JOHN GRAY, a one-armed pensioner, had lost his arm in the British Navy, and was on half pay. He came from England early in the seventeenth century. His family crest was a lion couchant; and the family possessed the Lordship of Gray. He had six sons—JOHN (887) and probably Joseph, George, Isaac and two more. No record can be found of his wife's name. He is known to have landed in New England in the seventeenth century; and, from that date on, his family has left a well defined mark in the records of the colonies.

2. (887) JOHN GRAY, son of (886), was born in the eastern part of New England about 1680. He died in 1711 or 1712. He married Ruth Hebbard, April 28, 1704, at Beverly, Mass. She was born at Windham, Conn., August 6, 1683, and was the daughter of John and Ruth Hebbard. After the death of John Gray in 1711 or 1712, she married, November 8, 1712, Benjamin Webster, at Beverly, Mass. Children of John and Ruth Gray were: Ruth, b. Jan. 5, 1704, and JOHN (888), May 17, 1707.

3. (888) JOHN GRAY, son of (887), b. at Beverly, Mass., May 17, 1707, and married Anne Hebbard, at Windham, Conn., Feb. 26, 1728. Lived for a time at Windham, Conn., later at Lebanon, and then at Sharon, Conn. His wife, Anne Hebbard, died May 28, 1746; and he married Catherine Gardiner, a widow, Sept. 18, 1747.

Children of Anne were:

- a. Anne, b. Nov. 18, 1729; d.
- b. Joseph, b. June 12, 1732; d.
- c. Ada, b. March 18, 1734; d.

- b. Sarah, b. April 4, 1750; d.
- c. Darius, b. June 18, 1752; d.
- d. William, b. May 22, 1754; d.
- e. Daniel, b. June 4, 1756; d.
- f. JAMES, b. August 3, 1759; d.

THE GRAY FAMILY

4. JAMES GRAY, son of John (888) and Catherine Gardiner, was born, according to the authority mentioned above, Aug. 3, 1759; but the records on file in his application for a pension in the Pension Office at Washington, D. C., do not agree with this nor with each other. In his pension application, James Gray stated in one place that he was born in 1763 and in another, in 1765. It is believed that Aug. 3, 1759, is correct. Argalus W. Gray gives Jan., 1761, as the date of the birth of James Gray. James Gray, himself, states in his pension application that he was born at New Boston, N. H. Raymond's "Gray Genealogy" states that James Gray was born at Sharon, Conn. He married Parthenia White, Mch. 26, 1786, at Sharon, Conn. About 1791 he removed from Rutland, Vt., to Hartwick, Otsego Co., N. Y., and, in 1805, he settled in Gray's Valley, Tioga Co., Pa., where he died in 1847. He was a Revolutionary War soldier and a pensioner, receiving a pension of $80.00 per year. ~~His pension claims are numbered 23,668 and 42,761.~~ He guarded Maj. Andre after he was condemned and witnessed his execution. His brother John (889), was a captain during Revolutionary War. James also served in the army during the War of 1812. See p. 179, Vol. VIII, 6th Series, Pennsylvania Archives.

6. COL. HOSEA WILSON GRAY (Silas, James, John, John, John), son of Silas Gray and Omira Tate Wilson, was born in Sullivan Township, Tioga Co., Pa., April 8, 1816 (family bible record) and died at Sutton, Nebr., April 28, 1885. He was married at Marion, Linn Co., Iowa, Nov. 3, 1840, to Ann McQuarry Smith, born April 13, 1821, at Washington, Wayne Co., Ind., died April 19, 1869, at Marion, Iowa, (daughter of Isaac Smith and Esther Tharp (daughter of James Tharp and Sarah Collins). In 1837, Col. Gray emigrated to Illinois and one year later to Iowa. Was the first man to hold office of sheriff in Linn County, being elected sheriff four times, and then clerk of the district court. After holding the latter office two years he voluntarily retired to devote his time to his large land interests and the law. In 1856 he was elected a member of the Constitutional Convention of Iowa (see Reports in Historical Museum at Des Moines, Iowa; speeches, signature and portraits are on file) and had the satisfaction of attending a reunion of the survivors of that body twenty-five years after its work had stood the test of time without material alteration. He was Commissioner of Public Works and Buildings, the Vinton Blind Asylum being one of the state institutions erected during his term of office. Also promoter and trustee of Cornell College at Mt. Vernon. In April, 1861, before any requisition was made on his state, he enlisted a company and tendered it for service in the field, being its chosen captain. It was mustered in as Company A, Sixth Iowa Infantry. He was brevet colonel when discharged. At the close of the war he came to Sutton, Nebr., practiced law and established the first lumber yard in that part of the state. He took an active interest in every improvement and development of his town and state, his counsel and usefulness as a citizen being recognized and acknowledged. He was a Royal Arch Mason.

7. ADA AUGUSTA GRAY (Hosea Wilson, Silas, James, John, John, John) daughter of Col. Hosea W. Gray and Ann McQuarry Smith, was born in a house called the Mansions, at Marion, Iowa, Dec. 16, 1848; married Jan. 1, 1868, at Marion, Iowa, to George Whitfield Bemis (born Sept. 1, 1846, at Mayfield, N. Y.; died Mch. 4, 1915, at York, Nebr.). Following her marriage she with her husband, came to Sutton, Nebr., where her home was noted for its gracious hospitality. An unusually fine musician for that time and place, she was the first organist in the Methodist church and held the post for seven years. Her piano was the first one in the locality and people came from many miles away to listen to impromptu recitals. Now, (1929) at the age of eighty, she still plays very beautifully, sings, is a member of two music clubs, an officer in the D. A. R., and takes part in many clubs and social activities. Pioneer suffrage and W. C. T. U. worker. Culture and refinement marked her pioneer home, and blizzards, drouth, grasshoppers and other ills of the early settlers were met and conquered with spirit

ROBERT FULLER, of Redenhall, Norfolk, England, was the father of Edward Fuller, Mayflower immigrant. Robert Fuller married Frances, maiden name unknown. Robert's father was John Fuller, of Redenhall, Norfolk, England. Robert's mother was Ann

1. EDWARD FULLER, Mayflower immigrant, son of Robert Fuller and Frances, was born at Redenhall, Norfolk, England, and was baptized Sept. 4, 1575. He died at Plymouth, Mass., between Jan. 11 and Apr. 20, 1621. His wife, Anne, whose maiden name is unknown, and his son Samuel accompanied him on the voyage. Anne died about the same time as her husband. His name is the 21st on the Compact, signed in the cabin of the Mayflower just before landing on Cape Cod, November, 1620.

2. SAMUEL FULLER, Mayflower immigrant, also, and son of Edward and Anne Fuller, was born at , England, in 1612; died Oct. 31, 1683, at Barnstable, Mass.; married at Scituate, Mass., Apr. 6, 1635, to Jane Lathrop, daughter of Rev. John Lathrop, celebrated Puritan minister of Scituate and afterwards Barnstable, Mass. Samuel and Jane were married by Miles Standish, "redoubtable Captain of Plymouth," who was also a civil magistrate. After the death of his parents, young Samuel was raised by his father's brother, whose name also was Samuel Fuller, and who came over in the Mayflower. Samuel, son of Edward, lived at Scituate and also at Barnstable. Jane Lathrop was baptized Sept. 29, 1614, at Edgerton, Kent. She died between 1658 and 1683, but just when is not known.

Children of Samuel Fuller and Jane Lathrop were: Samuel, Elizabeth, Sarah, Mary, Thomas, JOHN and an infant.

3. JOHN FULLER, son of Samuel Fuller and Jane Lathrop, was born at Barnstable, Mass., , 1656; died at 1710; married at , 1678, to Mehitable Rowley (b. Jan. 11, 1661; d. , 1694), daughter of Moses Rowley, Sr., and Elizabeth Fuller, and granddaughter of Capt. Matthew Fuller, M. D. (b. in England in 1603; d. at Barnstable, Mass. , 1678), and his wife Frances. Capt. Matthew Fuller was a nephew of Edward Fuller, Mayflower immigrant. Capt. Matthew Fuller's wives were Frances and Hanna. John Fuller, son of Samuel, grandson of Edward, was called "Little John" to distinguish him from his cousin, "Big John," son of Capt. Matthew Fuller. Capt. Matthew Fuller's father was John Fuller, brother of Edward Fuller and Samuel Fuller, Mayflower immigrants.

Children of John Fuller and Mehitable Rowley:

Four or five of these children were born at Barnstable Mass. All others at East Hadam, Conn.

4. ELIZABETH FULLER, daughter of John Fuller and Mehitable Rowley, was born at East Hadam, Conn., , 1692, and was still alive in 1766; was married at , March 4, 1713, to Samuel Rowley.

She was the grandmother of Reuben Rowley, Revolutionary War veteran who died at Alba, Pa., July 6, 1833.

Samuel Rowley was the son of Henry Rowley who, on Oct. 17, 1633, married Anne, widow of Deacon Thomas Blossom, who came from Lyden on the Speedwell and had to return and later arrived in 1629.

CAPT. MATTHEW FULLER, M. D., son of John Fuller and nephew to Edward and Samuel Fuller, both of Mayflower fame, b. in England in 1603; d. at Barnstable, Mass., in 1678; mar. (1) Frances, (2) Hanna; settled in Plymouth, Mass., in 1640. He served as sergeant under Capt. Miles Standish in 1643. June 20, 1654, he was appointed lieutenant under Capt. Miles Standish. In 1671 he was chairman of the Council of War of the colony and also served as a lieutenant in a force raised to fight against the Saconet Indians. In 1673 he was surgeon general of Plymouth and Massachusetts Bay colonial troops. During the King Philip War, he was captain of the Plymouth Colony forces. In 1643 he moved to Barnstable, Mass. During the Quaker troubles, he was fined for making a speech advocating religious toleration. Some of the genealogical writers say that Capt. Matthew Fuller was the son of Edward Fuller of the Mayflower, but all agree that Matthew did not accompany Edward on the Mayflower voyage. The statement is made by G. T. Little in his "Genealogical and Family History of Maine" that recent investigation shows that Edward and Samuel Fuller, Mayflower immigrants, left a brother named John in England; and that John was the father of Matthew. The compilers of this pamphlet hold opposite opinions upon the question of who is the father of Matthew—one believing John to be and the other Edward.

The Lathrop Family

W. R. Cutter's History of Middlesex Co., Vol. III, p p 1076-8. See Cutter Genealogical and Personal Memoirs, Vol. I, Mass.—Lathrop, Sterling's Genealogy, p. 467.

The surname "Lathrop or Lathrup" is derived from the parish Lowthorpe—thorp meaning village, so the literal meaning of the word is "low village." Lawthorp is a small parish of about 150 persons in the Wapentake of Dickering, East Riding, of Yorkshire, England.

Walter de Lothorpe was appointed high sheriff of Yorkshire in 1216; and the name has been common in Yorkshire from that time. Robert and Richard Lowthorpe lived at Whepsted, Thingoe Hundred, Suffolk, in 1287. A prominent family of Lathrops lived in Staffordshire before 1560. Arms: Sable, an eagle displayed argent. Crest: a Cornish chough proper.

1. JOHN LAWTHROP or LOWTHORPE, as the name was then spelled, lived early in the 16th century in Cherry Burton, about four miles from Lowthorpe. He left a son, Robert, mentioned below, and three daughters, whose names are unknown, although their families are mentioned in their brother's will.

2. ROBERT LATHROP, son of John, succeeded to his father's estates in Cherry Burton and added to them. He died in 1558. His will is dated at North Burton (Sheriburton), July 16, 1558, and proved at York, Oct. 20, 1558. He was, of course, a good Roman Catholic; and left bequests to the church, to his wife, Ellen, and children, John, Thomas, Laurence, and Margaret, who married Robert Hodgeson.

3. THOMAS LATHROP, son of Robert Lathrop and his wife Ellen, was born in Cherry Burton, in . He married (1) Elizabeth Clark, widow, who was buried at Etton, July 29, 1574; (2) Mary Salte, who was buried at Etton, Jan. 6, 1588; (3) Jane , who, after his death, married Coppendale. Thomas Lathrop died in 1606. His will is dated Oct. 5, 1600.

Children of Elizabeth:

- a. Robert, married Ann Pattison, Jan. 27, 1607-8;

ton, Yorkshire, England, and was baptized there, Dec. 20, 1584; died at Barnstable, Mass., Nov. 8, 1653; married at _____, in 1611, to Harriet Howse (d. 1634), daughter of Rev. John Howse and his wife Alice. He spelled his name "Lothropp." He graduated at Queen's College, Cambridge, 1601, B. A., and took his master's degree in 1609. He became curate of a parish church in Edgerton in the lower half hundred of Calehill, Lathe of Screy, Kent. He was there as early as 1614 and probably 1611, and as late as 1619. He renounced his orders in 1623, and allied himself with the Puritans. In 1624 he succeeded Rev. H. Jacobs, an Independent minister of the first Independent church of London, who had resigned to go to Virginia. The worship in this church was illegal and the meetings secret. The church was discovered by a spy and forty-two made prisoners. In 1634, he was released, and came to Boston in the "Griffin." He located at Scituate and was chosen pastor of the church there, Jan. 19, 1634. He relocated at Barnstable, Oct. 11, 1639, and was pastor of the church there for fourteen years. See "Genealogical and Personal Memoirs," by Cutter, Vol. 1, Mass. Also "The New England Memorial," by Nathaniel Morton. Children of Rev. John Lathrop, mentioned in his will, dated Aug. 10, 1653: John, Thomas, Benjamin, Jane, Barbara. Jane Lathrop married Samuel Fuller, son of Edward and Anne, Mayflower immigrants. Children by Harriet were: Jane, Barbara, Thomas, Samuel, Joseph, Benjamin, Ann, and John. Children of Ann, whom he married after the death of Harriet, were: Barnabas, Abigail, Bathsua, John, and two who died in infancy.

Thomas and Mary Lathrop were the parents of Rev. John Lathrop. Thomas Lathrop's parents were Robert and Ellen Lathrop. Robert's father was John Lathrop.

The Rowley Family

See "Memoirs" by Cutter. This family has a coat of arms and goes back to the Saxon era of English history.

1. HENRY ROWLEY, original immigrant, came from England to Plymouth, Mass., prior to 1632. He was born _____; died at Barnstable, Mass., _____, 1673; married at _____, 16____, to Sarah Palmer, daughter of William, immigrant ancestor, who came from England with his son, William Palmer, to Duxbury, Mass., in the "Fortune," in 1621. Wm. Palmer, Sr., was born in England in 1585, and died 1647. Frances, wife of William Palmer, Sr., and mother of Sarah, came out in the "Anne," in 1623. After the death of his wife Sarah, Henry Rowley was married at _____, Oct. 17, 1633, to Anne, widow of Deacon Thomas Blossom. Henry and Anne moved to Scituate in 1634. Both were members of Rev. John Lathrop's church. (See Plymouth Colony Record, vol. III, part 2, p. 93 and N. Y. Genealogy and Biology, vol. 37-1, p. 58.)

2. MOSES ROWLEY, SR., son of Henry Rowley and Sarah Palmer, was born at Plymouth, Mass., probably before 1630; died at East Haddam, Conn., after 1705; married April 22, 1652, at Barnstable, Mass., to Elizabeth Fuller, daughter of Capt. Matthew Fuller, M. D., nephew of Edward Fuller, Mayflower immigrant. The wives of Capt. Fuller were Frances and Hanna. Capt. Fuller came from England about 1640. He died at Barnstable, Mass., in 1678. Elizabeth was born at England; died at _____ died July 16, 1725, at East Haddam, Conn.; married , to Mary Fletcher, born ; died . Moses Rowley was married a second time, at East Haddam, Conn., Feb. 17, 1715, to Mary Crippen, widow of Samuel Corbe, of East Haddam, Conn. Samuel Corbe died there, April 10, 1694. She was the daughter of Thomas and Frances Crippen, of Falmouth, Mass., and East Haddam, Conn. She died June 9, 1764, aged 96. Three of her children married Fullers.

4. SAMUEL ROWLEY, son of Moses Rowley, Jr., and Mary Fletcher, was born at Falmouth, Mass., about 1688; died at Hebron, Conn., about 1767; married March 4, 1713, at , to Elizabeth Fuller, born , 1692, at ; and alive in 1766. She was the daughter of John Fuller and Mehitable Rowley, granddaughter of Samuel Fuller and Jane Lathrop, and great granddaughter of Edward Fuller and Anne, his wife, Mayflower immigrants, and also of Rev. John Lathrop. Deacon Samuel Rowley settled at Hebron, Conn., not long after his marriage.

5. THOMAS ROWLEY, son of Samuel Rowley and Elizabeth Fuller, was born March 24, 1721, at Hebron, Conn.; died at Benson, Vt., , 1803.

; married at Hebron, Conn., July 15, 1744, to Lois Cass, born Dec. 17, 1717 (or 1727); died , 1794, at Shoreham, Vt., daughter of Moses Cass (born , 1695; died Sept. 6, 1741; married to Mary Haskins (born ; died , 1739). Thomas Rowley was called the Green Mountain bard. Extracts of his poems appear in Heminway's Vermont Gazetteer.

The Campbell Family

See: New England Historical and Genealogical Register, Vol. 32, pp. 275-6-7, Robert Campbell and his descendants.

Settlement of Voluntown, Conn., by H. F. Douglas.

Genealogy of the Campbell, Noble, Gorton * * * * Families, by Mildred Campbell Whitaker (Mrs. Alexander Edward).

John Campbell, first Earl of Breadalbane, was a lineal descendant of Sir Colin Campbell, first Earl of Argyle. First Earl of Argyle was a great, great grandson of Robert Bruce (1274-1329), King of Scotland.

After the death of his first wife, Mary, John Campbell, first Earl of Breadalbane, married again. He had a number of children by his second wife, among whom was—

1. ROBERT CAMPBELL, b. , 1673, at Campbelltown, Argyleshire, Scotland; d. at Voluntown, Conn., Feb. 14, 1725. Upon his marriage with Jenet Stuart, he was given land in Tyrone, Ulster Co., Ireland. He settled there, and all members of his family were members of the Presbyterian church. His son Charles was the only one of his children married in Ireland, before they came to America with Dr. Dorrance's Colony in 1719. The family located at New London and Voluntown, Conn.

Children of Robert Campbell and Jenet Stuart, all born at Tyrone, Ulster Co., Ireland:

- a. Charles, b. 1696; d. 1770; married Mary ;
- b. John, b. 1698; married Agnes Allen;
- c. Sarah, b. 1700; unmarried;
- d. Mary, b. 1702; unmarried;
- e. James, b. 1704; d. June , 1773; married Hannah Taylor;
- f. Robert, b. 1706; married at Voluntown, Conn., in 1737, to Mary Trumbull.

2. JAMES CAMPBELL, fifth child of Robert Campbell and Jenet Stuart, born about 1704, in County Ulster, Ireland; died June 1773, at Killingly, Conn.; married June 3, 1725, to Hannah Taylor. He accompanied his father's family to Connecticut. They had twelve children.

3. SAMUEL CAMPBELL, seventh child of James Campbell and Hannah Taylor, born Jan. 8, 1736-7; died ; married at , Apr. 10, 1760, to Esther Smith. This couple had eight children. Their first child, Susannah, was born Jan. 27, 1761. She is believed to be the Susan Campbell who married Reuben Rowley,

THE GRAY FAMILY

1. WILLIAM WHITE, Mayflower immigrant, b. _____; died shortly after the landing of the Pilgrims.

2. PEREGRINE WHITE, son of William White, was born on the Mayflower, 1620, in Cape Cod Bay; d. _____; mar. _____.

He was the first white child born after the arrival of the Pilgrims. He left a numerous progeny. Parthenia White, who married James Gray, Revolutionary War veteran, is believed to be a descendant of William and Peregrine White. See: "Genealogy," by George Thomas Little.

Early Day Poetry

(The following letter was written by Col. Hosea W. Gray, of Marion, Iowa, to his lifelong friend, N. W. McKean, Esq., of Bradford, Pa., June 8, 1844.)

N. W. McKean—Dear Cousin:

I send you, for better or worse,
Some thoughts in argument to imitate verse.

A tax on your patience, if not on your time,
To canvass a mass of monotonous rhyme.

The first thing I'll mention I'm happy to tell,
Your friends and my own in this country
are well:

No slight colds to mention, no ague distressing,

By way of imploring on you the same blessing.

My mind is reverting to Penn's eastern clime,

My thoughts wading backward the vista
of time,

Recalling the moments which vanished
"lang syne,"

When mutual friendship was yours and
mine.

Old Bradford! How well I remember the place.

Its mountains and rocks and diversified face,

Its green hills and valleys, its brooks and
its streams,

Arise in their order as fanciful dreams.

There first in young childhood we oft used to meet,

And protests of friendship eternal repeat.

Our youthful diversions drove care from the mind,

There sorrow was distanced and "ennui"
behind.

Remember the strolls that would frequently bring

Our walks to a close at the recreate swing
Where lay in dishonor the old Farrand

boat,

Dismantled, deserted, and long ceased to float.

How we rowed to the islands so verdant
and flowery,

Where set adrift oarless by mischievous
Lowery,

There were scenes I must pass without calling attention,

As the salesman would say, "they're too numerous to mention."

Again, you'll remember how passed in review

Phrenological notions, and everything new.

Recollect at one time how discussions grew warm

On dentistry proper, derivative form.

THE GRAY FAMILY

With critic's acumen we weighed in the balance,
Condemned or established with perfect
nonchalance
Each doctrine or dogma, in science or art,
Collectively viewed or examined apart.
The world from such genius neglected
to profit,
Our theories are gone and there's nothing left of it.
If the world won't catch pigeons flying roasted along,
It must still be contented to always go wrong.

Well, times have changed and years have passed
Since that we saw each other last,
And so I'll change my verse.
Though changing times change you and me,
We mind not changing if it be
Not changing for the worse.

Fate has not hardly dealt with me
Nor can I any reason see
A charge 'gainst Fate to bring.
My wife's my idol and my joy,
Besides I have a matchless boy
of whom the world might sing.

My goods will necessary wants supply,
Superfluous ones we should ourselves deny
And with competence be content.
I've somewhat to bestow on want,
I've land enough to sow and plant
Where monks and barons ask no rent.

* * * * *

May I hear of you soon, of your losses
and gains,
Your health and your wife's and the little McKeans'.
May your journey through life full of
bliss be and joy,
With no infliction of verses again to annoy.
In taking leave you will please receive
All goods for which I pray,
'Till life shall end, I am your friend,

Hosea W. Gray.

Marion, Ia., June 8, 1844.

*A letter written by Orlando Noah Gray
at the age of 84 years:*

Jewell City, Kans., Nov. 16, 1903.

Dear Namesake, O. G. Palmer,
Grandson and Married Man of Family, etc.,
2d Lieut. of Cavalry,

Well, I got your letter all right that you wrote me while you were camped on the banks of the Ohio river. Glad to get it.
We are always glad to get a letter from you. We, up this way, are all well. Our crops of all kinds are good this year, so you see we are not in a starving situation. I have my work all or nearly all done up for this winter.

You mention the long ago when a company passed down the Ohio river past where you were camped (West Point, Ky.).
Yes, that event is fresh in my memory as though it happened last year. It was this way: In the fall of the year, Sept., A. D.
1843, in the old home town of Alba, Bradford Co., Pa., a little company packed their worldly affairs, goods and chattels for the then wild and dangerous far west,
the Territory of Iowa, the home of the cut-throat and the red man. That company consisted of myself and wife, Melissa, and your mother, then a babe, and Rosina. We four constituted my family. Added to us were my wife's oldest and youngest brothers, David Pratt, older than Melissa, and George, a mere boy. One more and you have the party—my brother, Argalus. We seven cut loose from all former associations to try the rugged west, and passed down the Ohio river to its junction with the Mississippi and up it to St. Louis.
Sixty years are gone and where are the seven? Rosina and myself are all that's left of them. David and Melissa died early; George was lost in the Great Rebellion; Argalus died a few years ago (Sept.
16, 1900) in Pennsylvania; and the babe,
your mother, has gone to a fairer clime,
mourned by all that knew her.

But I must close. This is already too long for your patience, so good-bye, with love to you all by myself and Rosina.

(Signed) O. N. Gray.

Noah Wilson Revolutionary War Veteran

Col. Irad Wilson has left the following record of his father:

Noah Wilson left Addison, Vermont, after the close of the Revolutionary War, with a company of sixteen men to settle on the banks of the St. Lawrence river near the river in Canada; but finding the same government there they had just emerged from, they unanimously resolved to return to the south side of the river. The spirit of adventure was strong in the man and he was not willing to relinquish his desire to settle in a new country; and, hearing of the "Connecticut Grant" in northern Pennsylvania, examined the title of the Connecticut company and believing it good, resolved to view the land. (He bought 3,000 acres, lost it, but made good to those friends he sold to.)

Accordingly, in the month of April, 1802, he saddled a good horse and rode out into the west; and, one day as the sun went low, came to the place now bearing the name of Alba. The stream flowing by carried pure, clear water; and Mr. Wilson then and there named the place Alba, which afterwards and for many years became his home.

Noah Wilson spent his first summer in the wilderness of Alba. He raised the first crop of corn which was grown in the settlement by setting fire to a windfall at the base of the mountain just west of here (Alba). This mountain he named Armenia. He burned over and planted corn among the logs with the peen-end of a hammer, that being the only hoe he could find in the country. He raised about 40 bushels of good, sound corn, which he stored in a crib until the family should need corn. This crop was raised on the farm recently owned by Watson Freeman. He also cleared four acres and sowed it to wheat, this also being the first of that cereal raised in the limits of the present borough. His home during that first summer was a little cabin about the size of an ordinary bedstead, open at one end and covered with bark. His bed consisted of hemlock boughs covered with horse blankets, just a little, dry sleeping camp. His bill of fare contained bread, made by Mr. Lindsay, then living on the Allen Taylor farm. The flour was brought from Athens on horseback. Venison graced his board, brook trout could be had for the catching, no hard work in those days; bruin furnished the fat in which to prepare the fry.

In the fall of 1802, after harvesting his corn and drying what pumpkins he needed, he returned to Vermont for his family, with whom, on the 5th day of May, 1803, he began his pilgrimage again for the west. His family consisted of his wife, Mary Kowley, a sister of Dr. Reuben Rowley, four sons and three daughters. With them and his goods, he loaded two wagons, the same being drawn by five strong horses.

Mr. Wilson had bought 3,000 acres of the Connecticut company, and had surveyed the same. The newcomers found at Troy, Elisha Smead, in a little log cabin with about an acre of the woods cut away to prevent the trees from falling and crushing the cabin. John Barber, whose site was near Valie's Steam Mill. These settlers, with Caleb Williams, Ruben, Samuel, and Aaron Case, and Dr. Reuben Rowley, accompanied Mr. Wilson from Troy to Alba and with their axes cut out and cleared a road for his wagons to pass. Late in the afternoon of May 20th (1803) the cabin of Mr. Wilson was reached and occupied by a portion of his family. Irad Wilson, then a boy of five, slept under the wagon, while a sister, Martha, afterwards Mrs. Robert McKean, slept in the wagon. The accompanying men slept by the log fire they kindled. The next two days, these good friends from Troy stayed and built a more comfortable house, which was completed, the roof of bark being put on. They made bedsteads of crotched sticks driven into the ground with little poles reaching from the cracks between the logs, and elm bark served as bed cords. As he had more leisure, basswood planks were split for flooring and other preparations for comfort were made. Being in a new country, the next thing was to cut down the forest. Many of these acres were tilled by his grandsons. Today but one, Edwin S. Wilson, lives on any of these acres.

(Noah Wilson was Scotch-Irish; married Mary Rowley, who was Welsh. Their children were: Irad, married Sally Elliott; Noah, married ; Iram, married Hannah ; Martha, married Robert McKean; Malinda, married Reuben Tabor; Omira, married Silas Gray; Samantha, married Buell Smith. Samantha was the first child born in Alba.)

Major General Thomas Jefferson McKean

One of the sons of Martha Wilson, daughter of Noah Wilson, Revolutionary War veteran, and Robert McKean, was Major General Thomas Jefferson McKean.

Born in Bradford Co., Pa., 1810; died at Marion, Ia., Apr. 19, 1870; Cadet West Point (from Pa.) 1827-31; graduated with the class of 1831; Lieutenant Regular Army July 1, 1831, to Apr. 1, 1838. Resigned. During the Mexican War, he applied to return to the military service as an officer. His application was not approved, so he enlisted as a private, Apr. 12, 1847, and served to Aug. 7, 1848, when he was mustered out of the service, having arisen to the grade of sergeant major. He participated in Scott's Campaign in Mexico, being wounded in the Battle of Churubusco, Aug. 20, 1847.

Upon the breaking out of the Civil War, he again entered the military service: June 1, 1861, Additional Paymaster of Volunteers; Nov. 1, 1861, Brigadier General of Volunteers; March 13, 1865, Brevet Major General of Volunteers; Aug. 24, 1865, honorably mustered out.

In 1844, he was a member of the Constitutional Convention of the state of Iowa. From 1848 to '61, he was a civil engineer and farmer. From 1848 to '51, he was chief engineer from Dubuque & Keokuk R. R. From 1851 to '53, he was U. S. Deputy Surveyor and General Assistant Surveyor of Iowa and Wisconsin. In 1859, he was sheriff of Linn Co., Iowa. In 1865, he was mayor of Marion, Iowa. From 1866 to '69, he was a farmer near Marion, Ia. In 1868, he was a delegate from Iowa to the National Convention of the Republican party. A Veteran's Soliloquy

"Kinder restless these days, wonderin'
 What the president will say.
 Seems to me somehow they're thunderin'
 Slow a gittin' under way.
 Now and then my eye will linger
 Where that there ole musket swings
 An' this here old index finger
 Sorter twiches like, and stings.

That ole gun looks mighty temptin'
Though I knew it's out of style;
Still there haint no law exemptin'
It from service yet awhile.

Powder can's a hangin nigh it
By its leather girdle wide,
Bullet pouch a swingin' by it
With some rough ole balls inside.

Sorter like to git a level
On a Spaniard with thet gun,
Just to kinder scare the devil
And discover if he'd run.

Peaceful man, but that invitin'
Look about that there ole gun
Makes me want to do some fightin'
Like I did in sixty-one.

War's an awful thing we figger
Who has seen Death run amuck,
But dern me, I'd like to trigger
That ole gun onct more for luck.

Kinder like to hear her holler
That ole tune she used to roar;
If there's war, you bet I'll foller
Dear "Old Glory", through once more.

A tiny WICKED French Streak perhaps leads
Us to admire just a
VERY DELICATE FLUSH
On a maiden's cheek
And we really think
That DARK lashes add
Such DEPTH to Milady's
Eyes and really now, who Could help but admire
ROSY LIPS? It is indeed
All art to use COMPLEXIONS
That come in a BOX and
Make them look as though
SUNSHINE and FRESH AIR
Had brought them but
How the poor MUSE must
Wring her hands, if there
Is a muse for the ART of
MAKE-UP when she sees
Young women emerge

To the Public Thorofare
With Calcimined FACES that
Would not survive a grin,
Eyes that are simply
PAINTED open, lips that
Look just like CRUEL
GASHES in the GHASTLY
CHALK-WHITE surfaces
Covering their Poor
Countenances and a
HECTIC FLUSH on each
CHEEK BONE like danger Signals betraying the Last Horrible stages
Of consumption.

Personality

Some houses gaze with placid mien
Upon the passers-by;
While others peer neath gables lean
With supercilious eye.
A white colonial down our street
Looks modestly about
As though she feels it is not meet
Her welcoming to shout
I'll never love the stately Hall
That overlooks our block.
Her glance is frigid—not at all
Inviting; but before I knock
Next door, a simple, friendly look
Has made me feel I'm welcome here.
Oh, may my house, by hook or crook
Contrive to smile a welcome fair.
A derelict a few blocks down,
Quite hideous in decay,
Still brings a smile—the rakish clown—
Attracts me in a way.
Each house exudes its warmth or chill,
And nods or scowls at me,
Flashing impressions, good or ill—
Expressing personality.

The Cowbell Orchestra

Such funny times we're living in—
We are, by heck, as sure as sin!
For, lo, folks trip the light fantastic
In a measure most bombastic.
Gone the staid and graceful dances,
For some shuffling, slipshod prances,
To the bim-bam, bim-bam-bing
Or a Cowbell Orchestra, b'Jing.

Would you have thought to see the day
When orchestrys were made that way?
When men would steal from peaceful cows
In verdant meadows where they browse
From off their necks the very bells
To furnish music for the swells!
And yet the orchestra's a string—
A string of cowbells, yep, b'Jing.
One winter night came Billie Brooks
To ballroom door and in he looks,
When in its own peculiar way
The orchestra began to play.

And you can't blame Friend Billie, no,
That he should holler, "So, boss, so,"
When he heard the old familiar ring
Of a Cowbell Orchestra, b'Jing.

If out his tomb came Beethoven
In mortal shape to live again
He'd pluck from out his classic bean
Some sundry locks of hair, I ween,
And cry, "By what misfortune fell
Am I consigned to live in—inferno"?
He would, if he heard the bim-bam-bing,
Of the Cowbell Orchestra, b'Jing!
The harp that once thro Tara's halls
Has no place in these modern brawls,
Nor violin, nor flute, nor lute—
Sweet voices now forever mute—
Lost in the fierce, discordant clamor
Of tireless muts who kick and hammer,
And shake and pound and have their fling
In Cowbell Orchestra, b'Jing.

Apportionment

The more Earth gives, the less can I say,
"Mine";
I know that I must also argue, "Thine".
The more Years yield, the less I keep for "Me";
Time would not give, did I not reason,
"Thee".

I shake my head when life pleads, "Yours",
Constrained by Soul to firmly credit,
"Ours".

—Anna Gray Bemis Cutler in "The Harp".

Be not overproud nor boastful
Of the good within your heart,
Paths of righteousness and evil
Lie but one short step apart;
Lie so close, a single footstep
Sets the erring pilgrim right
Or a stride from cut his pathway
Will the other's being blight.

Fishing

Fishing is always good for men
Who only fish for pleasure, when
They hie them to the purling stream
To rest and play and muse and dream.
To spend the day and half the nights
In solemn, stern pursuit of bites
Were only nonsense—that indeed—
And seeking what you do not need.
To fish for fish is looking down
With serious face and anxious frown
And missing yonder bird that swings
On slender spray up there and sings.
To fish for fish and lose the day
Is losing all the things that pay,
And catching naught at most but food
A fashion primitive and crude.

But when you go to fish for joy,
The fishing's always good, my boy;
The golden treasure of your catch
And ne'er the heaviest creel may match.
—Eugene Henry Bemis in "Teller."

Shadows

(Part of some verses written for the sixty-fourth wedding anniversary of a dear friend.)

In the happy, happy days of long ago,
When brow and cheek were fair, memory's spell

Recalls the purple-tinted afterglow;
We watched it till the shadows fell.

Yes, too, that wedding day. How bright and fair!

I clasped your hand—it trembled—
Just to tell

The rapture of the moments fleeting there,
Where we, just you and I, sat as the shadows fell.

Then came the rosy babe; 'twas but a brief
Sweet life. Let the little face in memory dwell.

I clasped your hand—it trembled—O, the grief

Can ne'er be told, when that deep shadow
fell.

Fair days and stormy life ever go apace,
The poor heart must forget sometime the knell,

Else would it break, and so again the face
Smiles as when first the welcome shadows
fell.

Some shadows fall across the path of all.
Yet of the substance we love best to tell.
These dear old friends seem only to recall
The good of life where pleasant shadows
fell.

Dear Heaven, grant us yet full many a year,

The story of these lives we love, to tell.
We know not which of us will still be here
To note when last the final shadows fell.

American Legion Monument

“To our soldier dead, Air, Land and Sea.”
 Slit snake-tongues of lightning writhe around you;
 Snows of blossoms sink silent over you;
 Hidden, half buried in Autumn’s regal
 colors;
 Serene, steadfast, Winter’s majesty whit-ens you;
 And nothing around, above, below, affects your message—

“To our soldier dead, Air, Land and Sea.”
 O silvery, shining shaft,
 O cross with glory fraught,
 White, pregnant words engraft,
 To tongue of man leave naught.

“Air, Land and Sea,” we read;
 War’s deadly tale is told.
 Love, tears, grave joy, a mead
 Our hearts in pride unfold.

No thrilling horror’s breath
 Nor hate of alien men
 May rule the reign of Death;
 Pure peace beyond our ken.

Each blasting flame you meet
 Each drift of white or red
 In tune the chant repeat:
 “O blessed soldier dead.”

My King

From the rise of the sun to the reign of the moon,
 I am ruled by the will of a king;
 Though the sceptre he holds much resembles a spoon,
 I must rush to his aid when he craves the
 least boon,
 And obey his commands though he acts
 like a loon,
 Without stopping to question a thing.

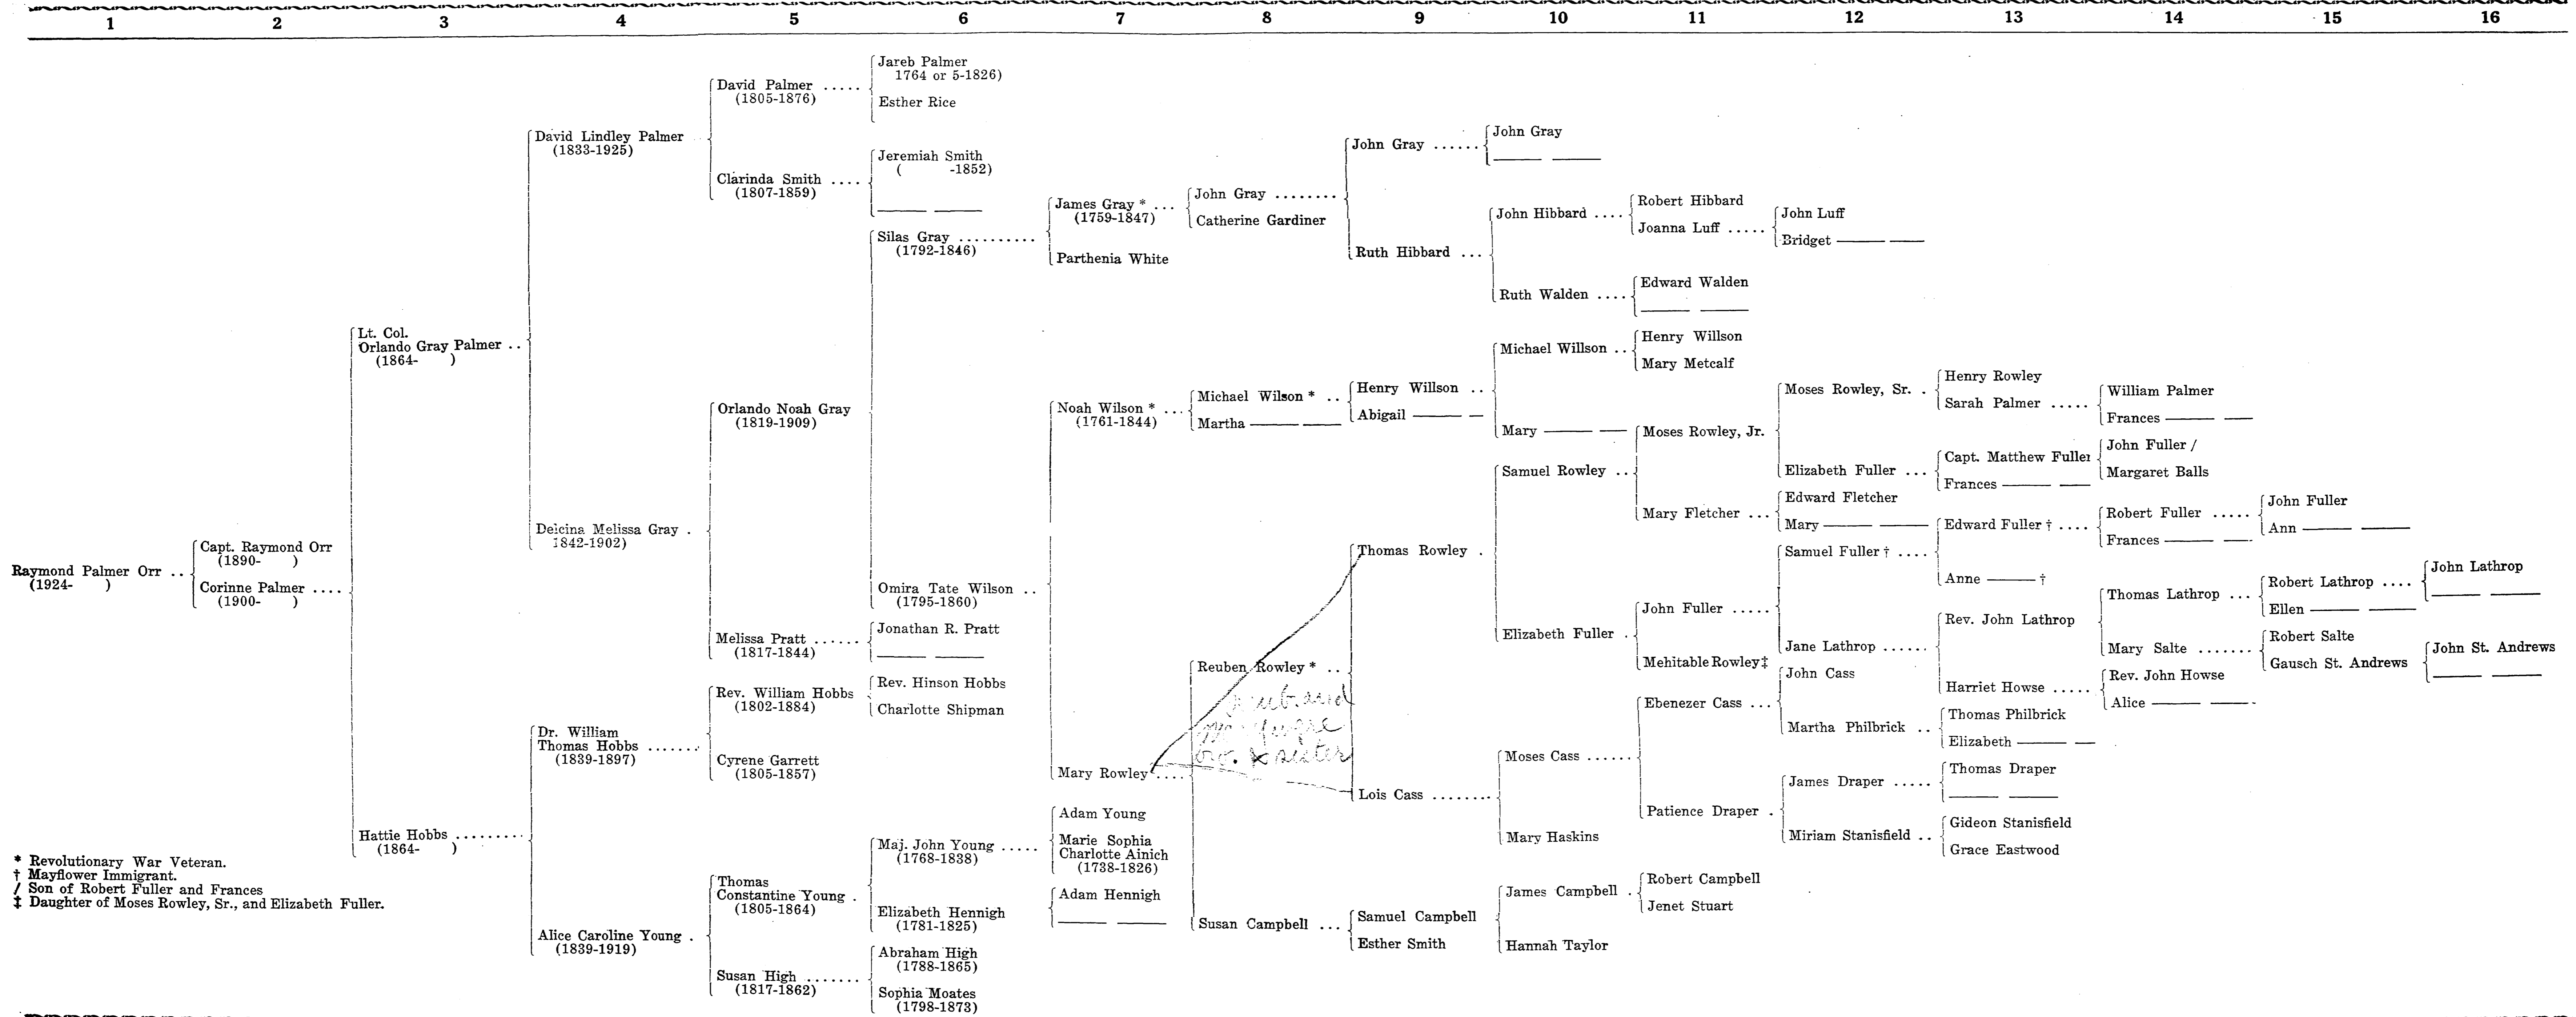

He can stalk through the house at a staggering gait,
 In a fashion he tries to make grand;
 When he wakes in the night ’tis my horrible
 fate,
 To be scolded and blamed at a terrible rate,
 While the most I can do is to walk and to wait,
 For my baby is king of the land.

Though in bantering mood, I rebel at his ways,
 He’s my hope and my pride and my joy;
 And his service such wonderful recompense pays,
 That my proudest desire, all my nights and
 my days,
 Is to live to be worthy the kingliest praise,
 Of this monarch, my own little boy.
