To the Grants and Their Relatives:

GREETING:

There will no doubt be found mistakes in this Genealogy, notwithstanding I have sought to guard against them. At this late date it is very difficult to get reliable information concerning the various branches of the family, some have kept records, and others have either kept none or if records have been kept, they have been lost or are in the possession of other members of the family and in many cases they cannot be found. Hundreds of letters have been written to collect what is found here, many of the replies were incomplete, calling for further correspondence, even then, satisfactory results were not always secured.

There are yet many gaps and missing parts that are unavoidable, because of inability to obtain the necessary information. I have had some pleasant surprises in getting information concerning relatives, that I had never known of before, but all things considered the genealogy will be reasonably complete, as to most of the lines; as to some of the lines no information whatever could be obtained.

I take pleasure in sending you this Record, asking each to pardon and correct any mistakes.

Cordially your kinsman,

JOHN P. GRANT

HISTORICAL

In Inverness Shire, Scotland, in 1750, Donald Grant, whose lineage is given in Part First of this Genealogy, was born and about the year 1770 married Elizabeth Cumming, a daughter of Duncan and Isabella Cumming of Tullohgoram, Scotland, they had four children, two sons and two daughters, James, Donald, Isabella and Margaret.

James, the eldest, was born in Scotland in the year 1771, and married Elizabeth Kedzie, a daughter of Adam and Margaret Stewart Kedzie, who came from Hawick, Scotland to America, with her parents, in the year 1795.

Donald the second son was born on the voyage to America in the year 1777, and married Sarah Ann Stilson of the town of Franklin, Delaware County.

Isabella was born in America, never married, was called "Aunt Tibbie."

Margaret was born in America and married a man by the same name, William Grant; they settled in Johnstown, N. Y. and lived and died at the same place, leaving two daughters, who were living at the same place the last known of them.

In Inverness Shire, Scotland, in 1715, John Grant, whose lineage is given in Part Second of this Genealogy, was born and in the year 1745 married Margery Cumming, they had four children, two sons and two daughters, Peter, Helen, Elizabeth and Alexander.

Peter was born in Scotland, Jan. 1, 1747, and on May 1, 1776, married Catherine Cumming; they continued to live in Scotland until the following year. Their first child Penuel was born in Scotland and was an infant when the parents came to America in 1777; they had seven children, 5 sons and 2 daughters, Penuel, John P., Mary, James P., Sweeton, Alexander P. and Peter P.

Helen was born in Scotland in 1767, came to America with her parents in 1777, in the same ship with Alexander

Grants and Their Relatives

Cumming, whom she later married. She was 10 years old and her husband 12 when they came to America. They were married at the old Grant Manor House, near Leeds Greene County, and located on the farm later known as the Cumming Homestead Farm, near Hobart, later known as the Montgomery Homestead and now owned and occupied by Mrs. Dell Siminon. They had five children, 2 sons and 3 daughters, Margery, Isabella, Daniel, John and Elizabeth (Betsey); their genealogy is given in Part Fourth.

Elizabeth was born in Scotland, married a man by the same name; both lived and died in Scotland.

Alexander was born in Scotland, April 11, 1762, came to America with the family in 1777, married a Scotch girl from Bovina, Jane Thompson, who lived to be 104 years old. Some of the relatives say she walked to Hobart, something over a mile, when she was 103 years old. The genealogy of this family is given in Part Third.

From the best information obtainable, it is quite certain, that the families of Donald Grant, John Grant, his son Peter Grant and Isabella Cumming and her nine children all came to America at the same time in the same ship.

After a short stay in New York, the three families settled near Catskill. John Grant and his family located on a farm six miles West of Catskill, the first farm West of the village of Leeds, on the farm now known as the Potter Farm, for many years known as the Salisbury Farm, upon which is still standing a stone house in a good state of preservation, built by a man by the name of Salisbury in 1705.

Upon this farm John Grant and his wife, with Peter Grant and his family lived until they later migrated to Delaware County. In this old stone house all the children of Peter Grant were born, except Penuel, who was born in Scotland. Here all the relatives and friends who came over from Scotland later made their temporary abode until they found a more permanent home; many who came from the rugged hills of the Highlands of Scotland, as a matter of choice moved into the high grounds of the Catskill Mountains and located in the town of Stamford, where it was said at one time if you met a stranger and called him "Grant" you would not miss his correct name many times.

Peter Grant was not only a farmer but a carpenter and while still living on the farm near Leeds, did more or less carpenter work; he built the Old Reformed Church, still standing at Leeds.

In building operations in those days, the nails used were made of wrought iron, hammered out by hand. He hammered out by hand the nails which he used in nailing on the trim of the Leeds Church; he also hammered out the door fixtures on the same building; the main structure is of stone and still standing.

Some years later his son Peter P. Grant built the South Kortright Presbyterian Church; while it has been somewhat remodeled, in recent years, the main structure still stands.

After the American Revolution more or less trouble was caused by the Indians. The Indian War broke out in 1790 and while the principal incidents of that war were farther West, yet it spread to other sections where the Indians were more or less numerous, and that was true of the town of Stamford and other surrounding towns, where their methods of warfare were common. Some of the Grants were captured by the Indians and this may account for the Grants living near Catskill selling out their lands and migrating to Stamford, to join those who had preceded them. Among them were John Grant and his son Peter and their families. John Grant's wife had died and was buried near Catskill.

On April 2, 1792, John Grant died and was the first person buried in the Grant cemetery, near Hobart on the Township road.

On January 8, 1814, Peter Grant died and was buried in the same cemetery. His seven children by this time had become more or less scattered; Penuel, the eldest, had married William Stewart and settled in the town of Jefferson, Schoharie County, in what is known as West Kill, on the farm later owned by William Wood.

John P. Grant married Mary Cumming, a daughter of William and Jane Wilson Cumming, at the Cumming Manor House in what was Greenbush, now Rensselaer, opposite Albany. The Cumming Manor was owned by a man known as Captain Cumming, who owned a sloop which he ran on the Hudson River between New York and Albany. William and his wife Jane and their daughter Mary, when they came to America, after a short stay in New York, went with Captain Cumming on his sloop to the Cumming Manor House at Greenbush, where they made their abode for a time; here their daughter Mary on the 3rd day of December, 1805, was married to John P. Grant, who lived for many years in the town of Stamford, and later moved to Guilderland, Albany County, where they died and were buried in the Guilderland cemetery; they had nine children, Peter J., William C., Jane Wilson, Catharine C., Margaret Ann, Richard James, Alexander C., John Wilson and Sweeton Daniel.

James P. Grant married Mahetable Firman and had seven children, all sons, Henry, Peter C., John F., Alfred B., Richard K., Sweeton and James O.

Sweeton Grant married Hannah Whitely and had six children, Frances Evaline, Julia Catharine, Caroline Aminda, Mary Janet, Margaret Amelia and Edgar Sweeton. He married Margaret Stewart for his second wife, but had no children by this marriage.

Alexander P. Grant married a lady whose first name was Alice; her maiden name is not known. It is supposed he settled some place in Pennsylvania, but no information can be obtained of him or his family.

Peter P. Grant married Elspeth Cumming and had thirteen children, seven sons and six daughters, Elizabeth Ann, Peter C., John Frazier, Catharine C., William C., Alexander S., Daniel C., Mary Jane, Frederick P., Julia C., Amanda C., James C. and Helen M.

Peter P. Grant was honored by Governor Joseph C. Yates, who appointed him Captain of Light Infantry, in the 87th Regiment of the State of New York on August 24, 1823.

On June 29, 1826, Governor DeWitt Clinton appointed him Lieutenant Colonel of the same Regiment.

On April 14, 1829, E. T. Throop, as Lieutenant Governor, appointed him Colonel of the same Regiment, and Duncan Cumming, who lived and died in Tullohgoram, Scotland, married Isabella Cumming, whose maiden name was Cumming. They had nine children, two sons and seven daughters, Elizabeth, Barbara, Margaret, Isabella, Margery, Catharine, Alexander, John and Mary.

Elizabeth married Donald Grant (see Part First).

Barbara married James Grant (see Part Fourth).

Isabella married Finley Stewart (see Part Fourth).

Margery married Alexander McDonald (see Part Fourth).

Catharine lived and died in London, unmarried.

Alexander married Helen Grant (see Part Fourth).

John, a watchmaker and organ builder, lived in London and later moved to Wales, where he married a widow with one child. While in Wales he built an organ for the Prince of Wales.

Mary married a man by the same name in Albany, John Grant. They had one son, who moved West and became a prominent lawyer and later a Judge of the Supreme Court.

Elizabeth Cumming, daughter of Alexander Cumming and Helen Grant, was born in Hobart, March 12, 1800; she lived in Hobart many years, was never married. During her lifetime she was well acquainted with the genealogy not only of the Cumming family, but the Grant family as well. She died in Binghamton, N. Y., in 1884. Her nephews, Alexander and Aschel Cumming, were prominent lawyers of Binghamton, with whom she lived for ten years before her death. While her mind was still vigorous and her memory good, she gave to Aschel Cumming her recollections of both families and he very carefully reduced the same to writing, and to this statement I am greatly indebted for many of the facts stated in this genealogy.

The Cumming and Grant families came to America in 1777, during the American Revolution, which began in the spring of 1775, and lasted about eight years. The battles of Concord, Ticonderoga, Lexington and Bunker Hill were in the early part of 1775, the Declaration of Independence was signed in 1776, Lafayette came over to aid the Colonists in the spring of 1777, the city of Kingston was burned by the British in October, 1777, about the same time of the arrival of the Grant and Cumming families.

To leave their native land, their kindred and the graves of their parents and many of their children; to take their sons and daughters and go forth like the Pilgrim Fathers to a new country, not a few hundred miles, but to sail away over three thousand miles of ocean, required heroic courage and indomitable will. They knew the new country to which they were sailing was in the midst of a revolution to secure their independence from the mother country, and that the result was, as yet, uncertain, but they had faith that they would eventually succeed and secure their freedom and dissolve the political bands that had connected them with another, and secure for themselves and their children the rights of life, liberty and the pursuits of happiness.

TRADITION

There is some doubt as to the origin of the name "Grant." Some claim it is derived from the French word "grand," meaning great, valorous. If so, the family is undoubtedly of French origin, and probably came over from Normandy during some of the Norman invasions.

Others claim the name may be of Danish descent from "Aquin de Grand, or Giant," and that in succeeding generations, as a compromise, it became Grant.

Still others trace the origin from Asia, from a man by the name of "Wodine."

"It is said a celebrated manuscript in Scotland bears the title 'An Account of the Rise and Offspring of Grant,' and the author shows a great deal of ancestral pride in his attempt to trace the origin of the Clan of Grant to a certain prince named Wodine. This prince came out of Asia about the year 600 and settled in Norway, where he built a great city and where prayer and sacrifices were made by the Norsemen.

"Coming down to the ninth century, history records the name 'Hacken,' the third of that name from Wodine, and Earl of Trondelagen, one of the most renowned men for courage and strength in the Kingdom of Norway. Because of an unusual feat accomplished over his enemies he was called 'Hacken Grant,' the latter word being used in the sense of Great, and all the descendants from this Hacken were called Grant.

"It is said that Hemming Grant, son of Hacken, having become converted to Christianity, through the influence of his wife, who was a daughter of Adelstin, the first Christian King of Denmark, was banished from Norway."

Whether the Grants came to Scotland from Norway by way of the Hebrides, or as followers of Rolf the Ranger, an ancestor of the Duke of Normandy, it is impossible to determine at this time; one thing is certain, however, and that is that they located in the North of Scotland, in Inverness Shire, along the river Spey. If they came over from Normandy during one of the Norman invasions, they would naturally locate in the southern portion of what is now Great Britain. Still this would not be at all conclusive, as the distance is not so great but that they might have migrated to the North of Scotland.

At one time the Norsemen were a very numerous and powerful people, they built ships on a very large scale and for a long time practically controlled the Baltic and North Sea as well as the English Channel; they invaded not only England but Normandy many times, and no doubt many of the population of Normandy came from Norway.

If the Scottish manuscript, above referred to, is at all authentic, it would seem to be the most reasonable theory that the Grants came from the Norsemen, taking into account the fact that history records the invasion of the North of Scotland by the Norsemen many times. Taking into account, also, their proximity, it would seem to be more reasonable that they came from Norway rather than Normandy.

They did not rise to the proportions of a Clan until about the fourteenth century; Richard Le Grant was Archbishop of Canterbury in 1228; about the same time William Le Grant married Albreda Bysset, of the baronial family of the same name, and he went as a crusader to the Holy Land in 1270, the eighth and last Crusade undertaken by Louis the IX of France, who on his voyage was driven by a storm to the coast of Africa, where he died at Carthage of a plague, after which Edward I of England assumed command and completed the expedition.

About the year 1900 Charles Church More and David F. More, President and Secretary, respectively, of the "John More Memorial Association," visited Scotland and there obtained very much valuable information, first-hand, and at the 1900 reunion of the Association, the latter delivered an historical address, in which he gave many facts concerning the Grant family, and to him I am indebted for much that is herein contained.

The earliest recollections of the family begin with Gregor, or Gregory Grant, who was appointed Sheriff of

Grants and Their Relatives

Inverness by King Alexander II in 1214, and held the office until 1249.

Sir Lawrence Le Grant was High Sheriff of Inverness in 1258. Sir Duncan Grant was the first owner of what is the Castle and Barony of Grant, chartered to him, as heir of his mother, Matilda of Glencairne.

Castle Grant has been the home of the chiefs of the Clan since the fourteenth century and is cherished and venerated accordingly by all who bear the name Grant.

Among the features of the Castle is the magnificent dining hall, 47 feet in length, 27 feet in width and of proportionate height; the walls are adorned with numerous and rare works of art and ninety-nine ancestral portraits.

The oldest and most formidable dwelling place of the Clan chiefs is Castle Urquhart, built on a rocky promontory on the West side of Loch Ness. It was founded in the Norman period. It was besieged and taken by Edward I in 1303, and was later chartered to John Grant, the tenth chief, called the Bard, a poet of such excellence that King James IV granted him, under the great seal, no less than four charters, embracing the land of Urquhart, Bardland, and St. Ninians, united in the Barony of Glen Morrison, Corumany, Mulben and Mickle Balnarth. All these charters are dated December 5, 1509.

Castle Urquhart was one of the fortresses which defended Scotland and was held for the King by the Grant family.

The possessions of the Grants, as the chief dwellers of Strathspey, were situated between the two "Craig Elachies," two great rocks on either side of the river Spey.

"A Mountain in Flame" is the Grant crest, taken from it. The name means "Rock of Alarm," and in the time of danger huge fires were kindled on the Craig as a signal for the clan to assemble. "Stand Fast Craig Elachie" was the war cry, and is today the motto of the clan.

Sir John Grant, the third, and Ralph, his brother, grandsons of Gregory Grant, were great heroes and patriots; they joined William Wallace in the defense of his country, and were taken prisoners and carried to London, but were liberated on bail in 1297. Sir John married Bigla, daughter ter of one of the great family of Cumming, with whom he got the lands and Baronies of Glenenoch and Dullenfide.

Sir John Le Grant, the fifth chief, is described as a man of extraordinary parts and singular merits, often employed in negotiations of State, and always acquitted himself with fidelity and honor. He with Sir Robert Erskine and Norman Lisle were appointed ambassadors extraordinary to the Court of France to renew the ancient Liegue in 1359. There is preserved a safe conduct from Edward III of England for him to travel in that Kingdom with ten servants in 1363 and another to come to the Court in 1366. His son, Sir Robert Grant, is described as a man of remarkable fortitude and resolution. It is said that he fought and vanquished an English champion of undoubted courage and great strength of body, in the beginning of the reign of Robert II. He died in 1385.

In later times one of the heroes of the family was Sir Colquin Grant, Lieutenant General, one of the most dashy Hussars in the British Service, who commanded a Brigade at Waterloo, where he had several horses killed under him.

The Castle Grant is the lordly seat of the Grants, as Earl of Seafield, which at the present time is fairly well preserved and kept in memory of centuries of Scottish history and seven hundred years of the Clans of the family of Grant.

We now reach the period of the Reformation and are told of John Grant, the twelfth chief of the Clan, that, although he received a charter, under the great seal, from Queen Mary, of the land of Park Hill, in the county of Fife, October 25, 1557, that he came early into the Reformation and was one of the members of the Convention, when Popery was abolished, and the Protestant religion established in Scotland.

This chief had two sons, Duncan, his heir apparent, and Patrick, of whom the Grants of Rothiemurchus are supposed to have descended. He died in 1585.

About a century later Isobel Grant, a descendant of Patrick Grant, married Gregor More, and from this union the numerous family of More are supposed to have descended.

Grants and Their Relatives

Of the remaining eight chiefs of Grant, it is recorded of John Grant XIV that he raised a battalion of troops from his own clan, in connection with the Earl of Argyle, and fought so bravely for his country and King in 1594, that he was granted a charter of the lands and Lordship of Abernathy in Elgin and Farres and of Lethientie of Over Mid and Nether Auchrosk in Inverness Shire, and united the barony of Cromdale.

He is said to have been offered a patent of honor by King James in 1610, but modestly declined it; his son Grant XV is said to have been possessed of an immense estate, not only inheriting his father's estate, but was granted additional charters in 1616, 1624, and 1625, in the last of which are mentioned the lands of Rothiemurchus.

James Grant the XVI made an alliance with the Stewart family by marriage with Lady Margaret Stewart, daughter of the Earl of Moray, in 1640, and the eighteenth Grant does the same by marrying Elizabeth Stewart, daughter of Lord Down, son and heir of the fifth Earl of Moray.

The seventeenth chief Ludovick Grant is spoken of as a man of great fortune and great authority; he came early into the Revolution, and was in great favor with King William, who appointed him Colonel of a regiment of Foot in 1689, also Sheriff Principal of Inverness.

Sir Ludovick Grant was a son of James Grant and Lady Margaret Stewart, niece of Mary Queen of Scots.

In 1690 he raised a regiment of 600 of his own clan and joined Colonel Livingston, which gave such a check to the Highlanders at Cromdale, that they soon after laid down their arms.

He was for a long time a member of the Scots Parliament and always steady in the interest of his country.

His son Alexander, the eighteenth chief, had command of a regiment of Foot, was Governor of Sheerness, and raised to the rank of Brigadier General.

James Augustus Grant, born at Nairn, near Forres, in 1827, for honorable service in India was nominated as a companion of the Star.

General Sir James Hope Grant, born in 1808, served with great distinction in China, as Brigade Major, was made Major General for eminent service at the siege of

Grants and Their Relatives

Delhi. In the campaign in China, terminating in the capture of Peking, he commanded the British forces throughout and for which he received the thanks of Parliament, he was nominated a G. C. B.

Sir Patrick Grant, born in 1808 in Duthil near Rothiemurchus, in 1856 was appointed Commander-in-Chief of the Madras army, and in 1857 of the army in India, at the period of the great mutiny.

Mathew Grant, for forty years town clerk and surveyor of Windsor, Connecticut, was a lineal descendant from the Grant Clan in Scotland. He came to America May 30, 1630. General U. S. Grant was, as he states in his Memoirs, the eighth in line from Mathew Grant.

From this family, undoubtedly, many of the Grants in this country came, as there were a large number of families and in those days a large number in each family.

Our ancestors do not belong to this line, although they belonged to the same Clan in Scotland. They did not come to America until 1777, during the American Revolution, 147 years later.

The Grant Clan was one of the strongest and most powerful in Scotland.

The Earl of Seafield, James Ogilvie Grant, was killed in action in France during the World War. He was born in 1876, and was the eleventh of his line. He was Captain of the Third Queens Own Cameron Highlanders Special Reserve, when the war began.

His brother, Trevor Ogilvie Grant, succeeded him and is the present Earl of Seafield.

EXPLANATION

This Genealogy commences with the Grant and Cumming families that came to America in 1777. As stated in the Historical Section the two families are closely connected by marriage; it is quite a remarkable coincidence that so many by the name Grant married so many by the name Cumming, for example, in PART SECOND, John Grant married Margery Cumming, his son Peter Grant married Catharine Cumming, his daughter Helen married Alexander Cumming, in the next generation John P. Grant married Marv Cumming and Peter P. Grant married Elspeth Cumming, and in the family of Duncan and Isabella Cumming their oldest daughter married Donald Grant and the second daughter Barbara married James Grant.

In many cases Grant married Grant and as a result some of the lines are duplicated, as will be seen, in the Record.

I am greatly indebted to many kinsmen, who have furnished me with information, without which this work would not have been possible.

I scarcely need say that mistakes will be found in this Record, much as I have tried to guard against them.

PART FIRST contains the lineage of Donald Grant and Elizabeth Cumming.

PART SECOND contains the lineage of John Grant and Margery Cumming and continues with the lineage of their son Peter Grant and Catharine Cumming.

PART THIRD contains the lineage of Alexander Grant and Jane Thompson, and PART FOURTH contains the lineage of Helen Grant and Alexander Cumming.

Each name is numbered and Roman numerals designate the different families in each generation.

Part First

Part Second

LINEAGE OF THE FAMILY OF JOHN GRANT AND MARGERY CUMMING

First Generation

- 275 JOHN GRANT, b. in Inverness, Scotland, in 1715, m. Margery Cumming, d. Apr. 2, 1792, and was the first person buried in the "Grant Cemetery" on the Township Road, near Hobart, N. Y.
- 276 MARGERY CUMMING, b. in Inverness, Scotland, m. John Grant and lived in Scotland until 1777, when with their family they came to America and located six miles west of Catskill on the farm west of and adjoining the village of Leeds, on the farm known as the Salisbury Farm, now owned and occupied by a Mrs. Potter; she died and was buried at Catskill.

Second Generation

Children of John Grant (275) and Margery Cumming
(276)

- 277 PETER GRANT, b. in Scotland, Jan. 1, 1747, m. Catharine Cumming, May 1, 1776, d. in Stamford, Jan. 8, 1814, and was buried in the "Grant Cemetery."
- 278 CATHARINE CUMMING, wife of Peter Grant and daughter of William Cumming and Jean Wilson, b. in Scotland, June 7, 1754, d. Mch. 22, 1827.
- 279 HELEN GRANT, b. in Scotland in 1767, came to America when she was ten years old, m. Alexander Cumming.
- 280 ALEXANDER CUMMING, b. in Scotland and came to America in 1777 with his mother, Isabella Cumming, who brought her nine children with her; her husband, Duncan Cumming, died in Scotland; he owned and occupied the "Cumming Homestead," later known as the Timothy Montgomery farm, now owned and occupied by Mrs. Dell Simonson.

Grants and Their Relatives

- 281 ELIZABETH GRANT, b. in Scotland, m. a man by the same name; from the best information obtainable, neither Elizabeth nor her husband came to America.
- 282 ALEXANDER GRANT, b. in Scotland, Apr. 11, 1762, came to America with the family; was called "Left-Handed Sandy;" m. Jane Thompson, d. Apr. 29, 1832.
- 283 JANE THOMPSON, b. in Scotland, Mch. 16, 1765, d. Apr. 10, 1869, at the age of 104; her relatives say when she was 103 she walked from her home to Hobart, something more than a mile.
- 284 MARGERY GRANT, b. in Scotland in 1750; have no information as to whether she married and came to America or died in Scotland. Peter Grant, the eldest child, was married in Scotland; his first child, Penuel, was born in Scotland; when they came to America they located with his father's family at the Old Grant Manor House near Leeds, now owned by Mrs. Potter. Peter Grant was not only a farmer, but a carpenter; he built the Old Reformed Church at Leeds; he hammered out the nails and window and door fixtures used in building it. The Church is still standing; the main part is of stone.

Third Generation

- Children of Peter Grant (277) and Catharine Cumming (278)
- 285 PENUEL GRANT, b. in Scotland, Feb. 22, 1777, m. William Stewart, Dec. 11, 1800, d. Sept. 3, 1838; was the only one of 8 children born in Scotland.
- 286 WILLIAM STEWART, b. Sept. 1, 1776, d. Aug. 1, 1842.
- 287 JOHN P. GRANT, b. in America, Nov. 8, 1778, m. Mary Cumming, Dec. 3, 1805, at the Cumming Manor House, Greenbush, opposite Albany; d. Mch. 18, 1850; buried in the Guilderland Cemetery, Albany County, N. Y.
- 288 MARY CUMMING, b. in Berwick, Scotland, Mch. 23, 1786, d. Feb. 4, 1853, and was buried in the Guilderland Cemetery; was the daughter of William and Jane Cumming, buried in the same cemetery.

Grants and Their Relatives

- 289 MARY GRANT, b. in America, Nov. 12, 1782, m. Richard Kilpatrick, d. Mch. 19, 1860.
