TO THE INTERESTED.

IN publishing this book, or history, of my forefathers and relatives, I have been moved by a high regard for them. I have collected these facts, imperfectly it may be, with much difficulty, and after great labor, and hope they will not be examined with too critical an eye, for I have done all that is possible with the means at my disposal to make the chronicle correct and interesting.

ORIGIN OF THE GUTHRIE NAME.

Early in July, 1503, a gay and gallant company assembled on Lamberton Moore (near Berwick-upon-Tweed), for within the walls of its kirk the young, ardent and chivalrous James Fourth of Scotland was to receive the hand of his fair bride, Margaret of England.

At a distance from the pavilion and booths a crowd had assembled to witness the athletic games of the border. One Meikle Robin had overcome all competitors, and none dared to face him. He was finally easily downed by a young man whose dress bespoke him to be a domestic of one of the noblemen. A witness to all this was one known for many miles around as Strong Andrew. He was a native of Eyemouth, about three and thirty years of age, and he united in his person the callings of a fisherman and cadger.

The following day, while returning home, he met the stranger who had thrown Meikle Robin, and challenged him to a bout. This was accepted, and in a twinkling of an eye Andrew measured his length upon the ground. They went on towards Eyemouth together, and on the way came upon an inn kept by a widow called Nancy Hewitt, and Andrew invited the stranger in to have some refreshment. Now the Widow Hewitt had a very pretty daughter, Janet (to whom Andrew was engaged), and the stranger was not long in discovering this.

Finally, the stranger asked for something to eat. "O sir," said their hostess, "I'm verra sorry an' vexed that I hae naething in the house that I could gie ye — naething o' kitchen kind but the haddocks which Andrew left this forenoon; an' I hae been sae thrang wi' folk gaun back and forret to Lamberton, that they're no gutted yet. But if ye could tak them ye are welcome to them."

"Gut two, then, good dame, and prepare them," said the stranger.

"I doubt, sir, twa winna do," said she; "for they're but sma'. I had better gut thrie."

"Certainly, gut thrie," said Andrew. "I brought the stranger in — and what is a haddie, or what are they worth?"

“You are a generous hearted fellow,” said the stranger, “and ‘gut thrie’ shall I call you if we meet again.”

Andrew went out to look after his pony, leaving the stranger with Janet, and as he returned to the house he heard Janet crying, “Mother! mother! O Andrew! Andrew!” Rushing in he beheld her struggling in the arms of the stranger. He dealt him one blow that laid him prostrate on the floor and caused the blood to flow from his lips.

The third day after this encounter was the last and great day of the festivities, and the greatest event of this day was at hand—a battle in earnest between an equal number of Borderers and Highlanders—the most distinguished to receive a purse of gold from the King. The Borderers were one man short. Andrew, who had been with Janet in the audience, could stand it no longer, and, breaking away from her, joined the Borderers, making their number complete.

In this combat Andrew was everywhere, and no one could stand before his strong arm. He was the champion of the field—the hero of the fight. He was taken before the King to receive the prize. Immediately they recognized each other—the stranger and the King were one and the same man. Instead of receiving the prize Andrew was thrown into prison, and two days after Janet and her mother were also imprisoned. On the fourth day Andrew was summoned before the King to undergo his punishment. His sentence was death, but the King, in reward of his bravery at Lamberton, said his life should be spared, but the hand that struck the blow should be cut off.

Just as this was to be done the Queen entered. The King rose to meet her, saying, “What would my fair Queen?”

“A boon! a boon! my liege,” playfully replied the princess; “that ye strike not off the hand of this audacious man, but that ye chain it for his life.”

“Be it so, my fair one,” said the King. And taking the sword of the executioner in his hand he touched the culprit on the shoulder with it, saying, “Rise up, Sir Andrew Gut-thrie, and thus do we chain your offending hand!” The young Queen at the same time raising a veil with which she had concealed the features of bonny Janet, and the King, taking her hand, placed it in Andrew’s.

The original patent of nobility is in Castle Sterling, Edinburgh.

THE GUTHRIE FAMILY.

The Guthrie family is of Saxon descent, the name meaning "Wai-like." The earliest traditional knowledge of the family is in 1680, in Edinburgh, Scotland, where they were of the best middle class, and interested in the manufacture of iron.

About this time John Guthrie severed his connection with his partners and brothers, Robert and James, and, with a small capital, sought his fortune in Ulster County, Ireland. It is not known in what business he embarked while there, but it is probable that his knowledge of the iron industry led him to take up some branch of it. He had not been there long before he married a Protestant young lady of good family. At that period the Protestants were unpleasantly situated in that country, and naturally his mind turned to the new world where religious oppression was unknown — where a man could worship his Maker as his heart dictated without risking his life or jeopardizing his chances of gaining a livelihood. It was about 1700 when he bade farewell to his friends in Ireland and set out to seek his fortune in the new world.

After a wearisome voyage of two months he landed at Boston. Remaining here but a few years, he moved to Washington, Litchfield Co., Conn., and engaged successfully in the iron business, running a forge and furnace on the Housatonic river. There he died in 1730, leaving four sons, who carried on the business.

About the same time that John emigrated from Ireland, his two brothers, Robert and James, came out from Scotland and settled in Pennsylvania. (No attempt has been made to trace their descendants.)

Second, Mrs. Curby, whose maiden name was Hand. Her family consisted of one son and three daughters. Third, Mrs. Cogshell, whose maiden name was Woodard. She had no family.

In 1795 he emigrated to Ohio with his third wife and youngest daughter, who soon died. His wife died in 1797. He died at his son Joseph's, in Troy Township, Athens Co., O., May 30th, 1808.

Truman Guthrie, son of Joseph and — (Cary) Guthrie, born Jan. 14, 1765, at Washington, Litchfield Co., Ct. In the spring of 1788, buckling on his knapsack and shouldering his musket, he started for Ohio. He stopped for a time in Pennsylvania to assist in cutting some wheat, and reached Marietta, Ohio, July 3d, 1788. Here he took up his residence, and having a share in the Ohio Land Co.'s purchase, he cleared about half an acre of his land, which was in the neighborhood of Mound Cemetery. Around this he planted a bush fence, and sowed a peck of wheat he had brought with him from Pennsylvania. This is said to have been the first wheat sown in Ohio. He then returned to Connecticut, and the following spring he and his brother Stephen came on with a yoke of oxen and a cart with some tools, among them a crow bar, which is now in the possession of Edwin Guthrie, who is living on the farm. That summer (1789) Truman and Stephen built a log cabin on the Harmar side of the Muskingum river. In the fall the Indians drove off all their oxen, which they never recovered. Soon after (1790) they went to Newbury and commenced clearing Truman's land. The Indians becoming very troublesome, they built a block house, but were not able to remain there long, being compelled to go to Farmer's Castle, in Belpre, as a more secure place against the Indians, the war having fully set in. Before leaving their block house they buried their grindstone. Twenty years after, Truman's family wanting a coarse stone for grinding axes, etc., he said he knew where this stone was buried, and thought he could find it. The third time he struck his crow bar into the ground he hit the stone, and it was afterwards worn out in the use of his family.

He married Elizabeth Stone, of Washington Co., O., July 21, 1796. As there were few boats and no stages, he used his only means—the canoe—to take his bride home.

They raised seven boys, the youngest being fifty years old when he died.

Stephen Guthrie, son of Joseph Guthrie, by his second wife, was born January 10, 1768, at Litchfield, Ct., and married Sally Chappell, a beautiful New England girl, in 1788. Her father was a French Huguenot, Capt. Chappell, who lost his life in defense of his country, leaving a wife and small family in rather straitened circumstances. (See appendix I.) In September of this year, Stephen and his brother Truman, with a few others, started on their journey for the banks of the Ohio and junction of the Muskingum river, a distance of nine hundred miles. He left his wife at Litchfield until he could make a home for her in the far west. They made from thirty to fifty miles a day, and camped at night around a large fire, which served alike to keep them warm and keep at bay the beasts of prey. Their route, after leaving Philadelphia, was up the valley of the Susquehanna, past Harrisburg, then a mere hamlet of frontier log cabins, to Bedford, an Indian trading post, thence to Red Stone, now Brownsville, on the Monongahela river. Here they purchased canoes and set off for the mouth of the Muskingum, where they arrived in October, welcomed by Genl. Putnam, Tupper, Sproat and others of the Ohio Land Co., who had laid out in part the town of Marietta. The first building erected was a stockade, with a substantial palisade of strong timber, sunk three feet in the ground and extending ten feet above.

Stephen and Truman, having a claim upon part of a tract of land where Harmar now stands, immediately commenced clearing it, and by fall had six acres ready for cultivation, part of which they sowed with wheat, this being the first grain sown by any of the emigrants of the North West Territory.

During the winter the stockade was enlivened by frequent "balls," the music being furnished by a free colored man, who performed very acceptably on the violin — contra dances, Virginia reels and the French minuet, then the most recent and fashionable.

In the spring they harvested a good crop of wheat, and about the middle of September, 1789, they started for Connecticut. Stopping en route at Red Stone, they contracted for a flat bottomed boat 50 feet long by 14 feet wide, to be finished by the first of April, 1790, ready for their return. About the first of April they again left New England with their dear ones for their western home. They purchased two yokes of oxen and one cow, a wagon well covered and fitted up with camp equipage and provisions for three or four weeks. Arriving at Red Stone they found their boat ready for them, and, after a day of rest, transferred everything to the boat and started for Marietta. All went well until they reached Wheeling Island, where the boat struck a rock and stove a large hole in the bow. Fortunately, Mr. Zane, owner of the island (founder of Zanesville), came to their assistance promptly, and in three or four days all was ready for proceeding on the journey. Declining a very tempting offer of Mr. Zane to settle on the island, they again started, and reached Marietta without further mishap. About this time an Indian war was raging in the northwest, which necessitated the settlers keeping close to the stockades. This became exceedingly irksome to those who owned land in Belpre Township, and Stephen and Truman Guthrie, Mr. Goodale, Mr. Dana and some others decided to build block houses in Belpre and Newbury. This was done, and they moved into them with their families. In 1794 Gen. Wayne defeated the Indians with great slaughter and drove them from that part of the country. The termination of the Indian war rendered the living in block houses unnecessary, and the settlers rapidly spread over the surrounding country. In 1796 Belpre Township was organized, and Stephen Guthrie, being considered one of the most prominent men in that part of the country, was appointed by the Governor a Justice of the Peace. He held considerable landed property, but never accumulated anything more than a competency. Land was cheap, produce almost without a market, and it was difficult to obtain sufficient money for taxes, although light.

Stephen built a comfortable brick house, manufacturing the brick on the premises. Here most of the large family were born, and, with the exception of J. C. and C. B., what little schooling they had was obtained in a log school house near by.

Mrs. Sally Guthrie was born at Charon, Ct., Aug. 11, 1770, and died at Newbury, March 18, 1818, leaving a family of nine children. She was a woman of fine personal presence, kind hearted and sympathetic, always ready to bestow favors or material aid to those in need. Her influence was not confined to her own neighborhood, but extended far beyond the limits of her own circle.

In 1820 Stephen married a widow named Ackley, living a mile below Athens. She was a Vermont lady — a woman of most desirable traits of character. A fervent Christian, endowed with those rare qualifications to discharge successfully the duties of a stepmother to a large family of boys. This lady had a life estate in the Ackley farm near Athens. On account of her interests there, and the advantages for sending the boys to school, the family moved to that farm, where they remained for three years, when she died, and the family returned to the old homestead at Newbury in 1824.

Some time thereafter Mr. Guthrie married a widow named Palmer of Marietta. Stephen Guthrie died at Newburg, Ohio, September 3, 1827. He was of medium height and a man of strict integrity, possessing a high sense of honor, with a great love for justice and a due reverence for the majesty of the law. He hated oppression in every form, was generous and open hearted to a fault, honest and true as steel to a friend, but, withal, credulous, and hence was often the victim of fraud.

Laura Matilda Guthrie, eldest child of Stephen and Sally (Chappell) Guthrie, born June 25, 1789, at Litchfield, Conn.; married to Amos Dunham in 1804, died October 1, 1875 at Pomeroy, O.

Extract from paper at the time of her death: "Died, October 1, 1875, at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. L. H. Smith, Laura M. Dunham, at the age of 86 years, 3 months and 6 days, after an illness of about eight weeks.

"Mrs. Dunham was born in Litchfield, Conn., June 25, 1789, and came to Ohio with her father, Stephen Guthrie, in 1791, who first found a home in the neighborhood of the garrison at Marietta, where he remained but a short time, moving thence to Farmer's Castle, in Belpre, where they remained with their families until their farms were cleared, the Indians driven off and cabins built. Mr. Guthrie settled on the farm now owned by Mr. A. L. Curtis, three miles above the mouth of the Big Hocking, where, at the age of fifteen Laura was married to Mr. Amos Dunham, of Sharon, Conn., and settled on the Little Hocking in what is now Dunham Township, Washington County, four miles from the settlement in Belpre, and with heroic devotion assisted her husband to break the ground for a home in the wilderness. In this terrible school of experience she developed a power of endurance which with a strong will enabled her to overcome all obstacles standing in the way of her success as wife and mother.

“Twenty years of unceasing toil and anxiety in her Hocking home found her with four children, all girls, and an invalid husband. This state of things demanded a change and with a laudable ambition to promote the interests of the helpless family she determined to leave the farm where her labors had now become fruitless for want of the strong arm of her husband, who was stricken down in the prime of his manhood. The determination was carried out by moving to Marietta, where a new field for labor and thought presented itself, demanding all the resources of her better nature to overcome. But with a body that seemed to demand no rest, a mind strong, and a will to command, success was assured, and many years were profitably spent in the education of her children in a cultivated society of which she herself became a conspicuous member and one of the most active in matters of benevolence of which it was the pride of her life never to lose an opportunity.

“In the year of 1837 Mrs. Dunham with her family moved to this city, then a small village, and for 38 years has been one of its most active and useful members, never failing to respond to public or private calls for charitable labors, until exhausted by old age she sank into the arms of death, in the presence of her devoted daughters who never left her alone during her illness, and under whose ministrations the pangs of death were made more tolerable.”

JULIUS CHAPPELL GUTHRIE.

Julius Chappell Guthrie, eldest son of Stephen and Sally (Chappell) Guthrie, was born at Belpre, O., in a block house, opposite the mouth of the Little Kanawha river, on the north bank of the Ohio river, April 26, 1792. He is said to have been the first white male child born in that part of the territory. He was brought up on his father's farm at Newbury, Washington Co., O. At the age of nineteen he went to the academy at Athens, O. Here he remained a year a classmate of Thomas Ewing, one of the most distinguished men of Ohio, who was then a young man, earning his way through many difficulties, as he did, to honor and fame. Through life he and Mr. Guthrie were warm friends. For a time Julius worked for Joseph Miles, who was a merchant at Athens, O. There he met Pamela Buckingham, who was visiting her sister Elizabeth, Mrs. Miles. From Athens he went into the keel boat service on the Ohio and Muskingum rivers, transporting salt from the Kanawha Salt Works (where Ewing spent his vacations boiling salt and studying) up the Muskingum, in the service of Ebenezer Buckingham, brother of Pamela Buckingham, whom he had met at Athens. In the meantime Miss Buckingham had left Athens and on horse-back gone to Putnam, O. There, at her brother Ebenezer's, she and Mr. Guthrie were married Sept. 23, 1817.

For a time Mr. Guthrie was in Ebenezer Buckingham's store and then took an interest with his wife's sister-in-law, Esther Buckingham, for a few years, when he and his brother Albert Austin Guthrie formed a co-partnership, which continued many years. Austin going out Mr. Guthrie took his sons Waldo Buckingham and Solomon Sturges into business under the firm name of J. G. Guthrie & Sons, which partnership continued until his death, July 25th, 1849.

He was an ardent Whig, was well read in all the affairs of our country and had a powerful influence in his county. A great admirer of Henry Clay, so much so that he took his eldest daughter Sarah, and visited him at Ashland, Ky. He was a man of fine presence, six feet in height, weighing 190 pounds, quick of step, firm of purpose and ever kind and tender as a woman. He possessed a wonderful memory, was a man of pure habits, liberal views, and one of Nature's noblemen. He was an affectionate father, true and loving husband, and a highly esteemed citizen. He never sought office, but for many years was a trustee of the church and seminary where he lived. He died July 25, 1849, at Putnam, O. Mrs. Guthrie was born August 20, 1799, at Cooperstown, N. Y. She was lovely in character, a most devoted mother, affectionate and tender wife and a true Christian woman. Her pastor, Rev. Dr. Kingsbury, of whose flock she had been five and twenty years a member, and of whose teachings of the word she had ever been a meek and patient pupil, taking fast hold on the promises and truths which fell from his lips, paid fitting tribute to her altogether lovely disposition when he said: "Her husband was her glory, home her empire, and her children her jewels." She died March 14, 1863, at Putnam, O., in the house where all her children were born and reared.

Erastus Guthrie (2), son of Stephen and Sally (Chappell) Guthrie, born July 22, 1798, at Belpre, O. This was the only son who was a farmer. He owned the old homestead at Newbury. Leaving there he moved to Deavertown, Morgan Co., and engaged in the mercantile business with his brothers Stephen and George, then went to Malta and engaged in the iron business, starting a foundry. In this he was financially unfortunate. He was a staunch Whig, a positive and pure character, a true friend, and honorably served one term as a Representative in the State Legislature, from that county. He married Achsa Palmer in 1821 at Marietta, Washington Co., O.; died June 26, 1861 at Malta, O. Mrs. Guthrie was born in 1800 in Massachusetts, died March 23, 1866 at West Columbia, W. Va. She was a woman of fine mind, commanding presence, a great reader, and one of marked characteristics.

Albert Austin Guthrie, son of Stephen and Sally (Chappell) Guthrie, was born January 9, 1803, in the old log cabin at Newbury, O. For many years he was a partner of his brother, J. C. Guthrie, at Putnam, and did a successful business.

The anti-slavery agitation becoming prominent in 1834, Austin, with Birney, Field and other strong men took great interest in the question. In 1835 an anti-slavery convention of the leading men of the country was held at Putnam, and Austin being one of the most prominent was singled out by a mob (who broke up the meeting) as a mark for their vengeance. He was a good speaker, logical and clear in placing an argument before an audience, and was commissioned by the "American Anti-Slavery Society" of New York to stump the state in the cause of emancipation. He was appointed Revenue Collector for the 13th Ohio District, by Secretary Chase in 1862. Judge C. C. Converse and Austin Guthrie were the projectors of Woodlawn Cemetery and Mr. Guthrie was manager, designer, and superintended the laying out of the grounds, which are said to be one of the most beautiful in the country. He married Amelia Sturges September 26, 1825, at Fairfield, Conn. She was born November 5, 1799, at Fairfield, and died September 3, 1882, at Putnam, O. Mr. Guthrie died February 13, 1874, at Putnam.

Sheldon Guthrie, son of Stephen and Sally (Chappell) Guthrie, was born November 28, 1805, at Belpre, O. His first business experience was as salesman for J. C. & A. A. Guthrie, at Putnam. From there he went into the employ of E. P. & E. Sturges, at Mansfield, O. Here he remained until he went into business for himself, first in Elyria, then in the new county of Putnam in the northwestern part of the state. From there he went to New Orleans, where he remained until the breaking out of the Rebellion. He, with the other northern sympathizers, was offered the alternative of taking the oath of allegiance to the Confederacy or leaving the city. He scornfully refused to do the former and consequently was compelled to close up his affairs and leave with barely enough to take his family to Cincinnati. He married Emily Ann Terry July 13, 1830, at Mansfield, O. She was born December 1, 1804, in New York City, and died July 16, 1884, in New Orleans, La., aged 79 years and 7 months. He was a man of great force of character, sterling integrity and of a deeply religious nature, putting his whole heart in the literal rendering of Holy Writ. He died in New Orleans, June 12, 1888.

Mr. Guthrie died November 24, 1886, in Zanesville (Putnam) O.

Extract from Zanesville "Daily Times Recorder," November 30, 1886. ". . . He left a log school-house at thirteen years of age with a slender store of even the groundwork of knowledge, which was to be added to by reading and insight only. He passed a few years of hard work on the farm. He lost his mother at nine and his father at eighteen years of age. But he found a home with his brother, the late J. C. Guthrie, whose house then and for thirty years thereafter was the beacon light of hospitality. He came to Putnam in 1819, and was a clerk for J. C. & A. A. Guthrie. From 1833 to 1837 he was a partner of his brothers, trading at Deavertown, Ohio. Returning to Putnam, he continued in the same business there and in Zanesville, and about 1840 began to make salt, and after a few years to mine coal, and ultimately, for thirty years, was relatively a large operator and made much money. But he was apt to trust to others and was sanguine, and thus lost the fruits of great work, remarkable energy and winning manners. He was kind and generous to a fault and greatly loved by his workmen. He was a lover of freedom, and proved it by help to the slave when such opinions were costly and such aid dangerous. He had a true public spirit, and gave beyond his means during the rebellion. A life-long reader, he was a man of great intelligence. In his youth he loved Johnson, Addison and Burke, and in old age went in thought with Stanley to the Congo, and learned in Bancroft, the history of the constitution, as long before he had studied the Federalist. He took up Emerson at 76, and had just finished 'Montcalm and Wolfe' at his death."

Columbus Bierce Guthrie, son of Stephen and Sally (Chappell) Guthrie, born February 27, 1814, in Belpre, Ohio: was twice married: 1st, Mary Sophronia Metcalf, March 19, 1839, in Lenox, Mass. 2nd Jane Morton of Fredonia, N. Y., Sept. 23, 1845, in Erie Pa.

Mrs. M. S. Guthrie was born March 19, 1813, in Lenox, Mass., and died in the same place July 2, 1844.

Mrs. J. M. Guthrie was born December 1, 1825 in Adams, Jefferson county, N. Y., and now lives with her three youngest children in Minneapolis, Minn.

Mr. Guthrie was the only one of the family who received a classical education. He studied at Athens and Hanover colleges, and with Dr. Robert Safford of Putnam, O. He graduated at the Jefferson Medical College of Philadelphia, and opened an office in Logan, O., and practiced medicine there for several years. From there he went to New York and traveled for the drug firm of P. Scheffelin & Co., in the Southern States. In this way he became acquainted with the faculty of the Medical College of Memphis, Tenn., and was offered the professorship of Materia Medica, which he accepted. Here he remained for ten years, until a short time before the late war, when he removed to New York and went into the cotton commission business.

When the Mississippi River was opened up by our armies, he was the first bearer of dispatches from Cairo with authority from Secretary Chase to purchase cotton. He was very successful, clearing over $60,000 in three months. After the war he put his capital into the West Columbia Coal and Salt Company, where he lost it all in a few years. He then obtained a position in the Treasury department under Secretary Sherman. There he lost his health and died December 28, 1877. He was of a genial nature, true to his friends, strong in his principles, and a bold advocate for liberty and union.

Waldo Buckingham Guthrie, eldest child of Julius Chappell and Pamela (Buckingham) Guthrie, born July 22, 1818, in Putnam, O.; married Jane Elizabeth Clark, June 20, 1844, in Cleveland, O. Mrs. Guthrie was born August 26, 1821, in Utica, N. Y., and died March 8, 1876 in Rochester, Ind. They had no children.

Waldo B. was a man of a most sensitive nature; a model of honesty and truthfulness, and always faithful to his principles and friends.

He was a staunch Republican, and ever sincere to the cause of our country in its hour of peril and danger. He was the embodiment of generosity and kindness, and knew no languor when humanity called for relief. He died at Putnam, O., September 18, 1866.

Solomon Sturges Guthrie, son of Julius Chappell and Pamela (Buckingham) Guthrie, born August 30, 1819 in Putnam, O.

In the year 1835 Sturges entered the store of his father and uncle, Albert Austin Guthrie (31), in Putnam, O. He remained with them until 1837, when he and his brother Frank (71), went to Gambier, O., and entered the Grammar School, educating himself at his own expense. There being no railroads in those days, they started in a wagon with baggage and bedding for "Kenyon"—fifty miles away. They arrived under favorable circumstances and were warmly welcomed by Bishop McIlvain, who was President of the College. There they remained, pursuing their studies until the spring of 1838, when they returned home. Sturges again entered the store, which was now organized under the name of J. C. Guthrie & Sons. It was composed of J. C. Guthrie (27), Waldo Buckingham Guthrie (69), and Solomon Sturges Guthrie (70).

He continued there until the fall of 1838, when they opened a branch in Rehobeth, Perry county, O., of which he took charge.

The desire for knowledge again asserting itself too strongly to be overcome, he gave up this position in 1840 and went to the "Ohio University" at Athens, O., of which William H. McGuffey was president. Remaining there until July, 1841, he returned home and again entered the mercantile business with his father and brother Waldo, continuing in it until the decease of his father in 1849.

In the meantime—August 29, 1845—he married Anna Jane Sherwood, of Newark, O. Mrs. Guthrie was born April 20th, 1824, at Fairfield, Conn., and died May 26, 1880, in Buffalo, N. Y.

In 1847, in company with General S. R. Curtis and family, he took a trip via the Ohio and Mississippi rivers, to Keokuk, Ia., with some thought of remaining there, but abandoning the idea he returned home via Chicago and the lakes.

Here he remained until the spring of 1851, when he went to Buffalo, N. Y., and entered the commission business under the firm name of Buckinghams & Guthrie (his partners being his uncle Alvah Buckingham and his two sons Benjamin H. and Philo Buckingham), opening branch houses in Chicago, Toledo and New York. In 1856 the firm was dissolved and a new one organized under the name of Clark, Guthrie & Sturges (being Cyrus Clark, S. S. Guthrie and Edward Sturges). This firm did a large business until the fall of 1857, when the great financial disaster of that year overcame them. But he could not be conquered; his energy and the unbounded confidence in his integrity and business capacity soon reinstated him, and gave him a place among the best business men of the city of his adoption.

He has from his youth been an active member in the Presbyterian church, and always devoted much time and money to the cause of Sunday-Schools and charitable works of the city in which he lives.

He was elected and served one year as president of each the Board of Trade of Buffalo and Young Men's Christian Association, and has several times represented the Buffalo Board of Trade in the National Board of Trade conventions. A staunch Republican, he for three years represented his ward in the city council and was sought by his party as a nominee for Mayor but declined; and during the great war, although too old to enlist, sent a man to the service.

In 1874 he was elected and served for ten years as director and agent of the "New York, Lake Erie and Western R. R.," and was ten years president of the "Union Steamboat Company" and "Union Dry Dock Company of Buffalo."

Now he is senior partner of the firm of S. S. Guthrie & Son (Harry S.-182) commission merchants, Buffalo, N. Y.

Stephen Franklin Guthrie, son of Julius Chappell and Pamela (Buckingham) Guthrie, was born March 23rd, 1821 at Putnam, O. He was a remarkably bright boy, of a most genial temperament and very fond of books. His father took him in his early youth to Kinderhook, N. Y., and placed him in the Kinderhook Academy under the charge of his father's cousin, Professor Silas Metcalf. He remained there over a year, making great progress in his studies, and leaving with the respect of all who knew him.

Returning home he decided to become a civil engineer and with his brother Sturges (70) went to Gambier Grammar School in the fall of 1837, where he continued until the spring of 1838.

In 1839, with his cousin Milton Buckingham, he started on a trip through Southern Ohio, visiting Belpre, Newbury and Athens. He was taken sick and returned home. With a future of great promise dawning upon him, he died September 2nd, 1839. In his death many bright hopes were dashed.

Few young men possessed the genial, winning manners, and personal attractions and conversational powers of Frank Guthrie. His fondness for books and his readiness with which he grasped them is rarely equalled.

Second to Hon Hugh Judge Jewett, April 10, 1853, at Putnam, O.

From the "Magazine of Western History," November, 1888: "Hugh J. Jewett was born in Hurford Co., Md., July, 1817, and lived on the farm till he was sixteen, with but few advantages, and commenced the study of law in the office of Col. Jno. C. Croome, in Elkton, Cecil county, Md., and was admitted to practice in 1838. He immediately became interested in the great West, and with the great tide of immigration turned his face thitherward and located in St. Clairsville, O., where he remained until 1848, when he felt that Zanesville was a wider field for his expanding power, and moved to that city, where he won great success as a lawyer, banker, railroad official and politician. He was elected to the State Legislature on the democratic ticket in the years of 1856-57. He ran for Governor in 1861, under protest to some portions of the democratic platform, and was defeated. He showed undeviating loyalty and support of the government during these trying times, and during the war, in his official capacity with the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, did great service for the government. He was elected to the State Senate in 1868-69, and to Congress in 1873, and during his term he was elected president of the Erie railroad company, and resigned his seat to assume the duties of that trying position, and reorganized that company under great difficulties, and, by his sagacity, placed it among the successful railroads of the country. His prior connection with the "Central Ohio," "Little Miami," "Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton" and "Pittsburgh, Cincinnati & St. Louis," had given vast experience, and fitted him to take the responsibility of the Erie, which he assumed for ten years. Few men have had more honors conferred, and none filled them with greater credit. He, now, like Cincinnatus of old, has retired to his farm and enjoys the honors he won."

Julius Chappell Guthrie, son of Julius Chappell and Pamela (Buckingham) Guthrie, born Oct. 30, 1836, in Putnam, O.; married Emily Andrews Tracy, June 11, 1863, in Cincinnati, O. Mrs. Guthrie was born Nov. 30, 1836, in Pottsmouth, O.

In August, 1853, Mr. Guthrie went with Gen. C. P. Buckingham, to Mt. Vernon, O., in the Kokosing Iron Works, where he remained until December, 1857. He was in Cincinnati, O., from May, 1858, until the breaking out of the war, when he joined the 6th Ohio Volunteer Infantry, in April, 1861, being connected with the adjutant general's office. He staid in the army but a short time, returning to his old home at Zanesville, O., where he remained until February, 1862.

In August, 1863, he entered the grain commission business in Chicago, to which he devoted his energies until February, 1879.

From "Biographical Directory of Railway Officials of America," 1885:

"Born in Putnam, Muskingum county, O., Oct. 30, 1836. Entered railway service February, 1862, as agent of the Central Ohio railroad, Bellaire, O.; November, 1862, to August, 1863, agent Central Ohio and Pittsburgh, Cincinnati & St. Louis railways, Newark, O.; February, 1879, to February, 1880, general agent Atlantic & Great Western and New York, Lake Erie & Western railroads, Cincinnati, O.; February, 1880, to January, 1882, general manager Erie & North Shore Despatch, Detroit; January, 1882, to December, 1884, as above."

Mr. Guthrie resigned the vice-presidency of the Tioga railroad in 1884, and went into the grain commission business in New York City. In January, 1886, he accepted the commissionership of the "Middle States Lumber Association," with offices at Columbus, O. This position he held until June, 1887. In the meantime, January, 1887, he was made secretary of the American Coal Co. Association, with offices at Columbus, O., which position he now holds and fills with ability and honor to the company and himself.

Charles Bierce Guthrie, son of Julius Chappell and Pamela (Buckingham) Guthrie, born Aug. 4, 1838, in Putnam, O.

Charles Bierce was a youth of remarkable talent, and early resolved to become a lawyer, and prepared for college. Selecting Kenyon College, at Gambier, O., which he entered, and graduated at the age of 21, in 1859. He then returned to his home, Putnam, and read law with his brother-in-law, the Hon. H. J. Jewett. In the year 1862 he went to Buffalo, N. Y., and May 17th, at the age of 23, was admitted to practice in the District Court of the U. S.; Sept. 8, he enlisted in Company "G," 100th Regiment N. Y. State Volunteers, for the war, and was made second lieutenant. He served in Virginia, and being taken sick with fever, resigned, and was honorably discharged from the service at Fortress Monroe, Nov. 14, 1862. He married, in Zanesville, Oct. 12, 1864, Miss Clara Granger, and made his home in Buffalo, practicing law till July, 1872, when he removed to Titusville, Pa., and became a partner in the law firm of Guthrie, Byles & Guthrie. They had the leading practice of the place. In 1879 his health failed, and while at Geneva, N. Y., with his wife, he took a sail on Seneca lake; the boat capsized, and he was drowned.

Mrs. Guthrie is a daughter of Oliver Granger, and was born Nov. 5, 1841, in Zanesville, O. She is now living in Passaic, N. J.

From the Titusville Herald, Sept. 25, 1879: "The firm of which Mr. Guthrie was a member has enjoyed a very extensive practice, and to C. B. Guthrie was generally entrusted the examination of legal questions, the preparation of cases for trial and the argument of cases in banc. He was a ready and forcible speaker, and was to have been the orator at the coming fair next Tuesday, and would have given a brilliant and instructive address had he discharged that appointment.

"It is needless to say that he was the favorite in society, careful not to give pain to others, and to render good offices to all, and laughing rather than sneering at human foibles, with the charity of a magnanimous soul, witty, genial and sympathetic. Money with him was a means, not an end. He gave freely when justice or charity demanded, when he had it to give.

"In politics he was a democrat to the backbone, but no one doubted, when he upheld the banner of his party, upon which the eagle of victory so often hovered but did not alight, that he was conscientious and honest in his convictions, and ready to march any minute to the music of the union."

Herbert Franklin Guthrie, son of Julius Chappell and Pamela (Buckingham) Guthrie, born April 26, 1842, in Putnam, O.; married Christina Osborn, May 12, 1866, at Chicago, Ill. He was divorced from her in 1879, and Nov. 22, 1887, married Mrs. Anna K. Scott, and now lives in Cincinnati, O., where he is agent of the Wabash Western Railway company.

During the war, in July, 1861, he resigned his position at Newark, O., with the "Central Ohio Railway," and going to Camp Dennison, O., reported to Col. James Barnett's 1st Ohio Artillery, when he was assigned to duty at regiment headquarters in a clerical position. In October he was sworn in and assigned to duty with Battery "L," 1st Ohio Light Artillery; Nov. 1st, 1861, as 1st Sergeant; Dec. 12, 1862, he was promoted to 2d Lieutenant; May 6, 1863, to 1st Lieutenant, and served till the expiration of term of service, Nov. 1st, 1864. Nov. 1861, he entered the field at Paw Paw station, on "B. & O. R. R.," under Gen. Lander, and served under Generals Shields, McDowell, Pope, Fitz John Porter, Hooker, Meade, Sykes, Burnside, Auger, Sheridan and Crooks. He passed through the following prominent battles: Winchester, 1862; New Market, Port Republic, Cedar Mountain, 2d Bull Run, Antietam, New Hope Church, Chancellorsville, Fredericksburgh, Wilderness, Chantilly, Gettysburg, Fisher's Hill, Winchester, Cedar Creek, and numerous small engagements, and he was in command of "G. Co.," 3d U. S. Artillery, for about four months, by order of Major Gen. Halleck, which was quite a compliment to a volunteer officer. He was applied for to the War Department of the U. S. for aide-de-camp to Maj. Gen. Curtis, and again an order was issued for him to report to Maj. Gen. Phil Sheridan as aide-de-camp, but, by request of Gen. Crook, was countermanded, and he was breveted as captain by Maj. Gen. Crook, after the battle of Cedar Creek, for meritorious services.

Martha Guthrie, youngest child of Sheldon and Emily Ann (Terry) Guthrie, born Dec. 1, 1846, in Kalida, O.; married to David Gray June 2, 1869, in New Orleans, La. Now living in Buffalo, N. Y.

Mr. Gray was born in Edinburgh, Scotland, April 8th, 1836. J. N. Larned, author of his life, says: "His stock is deep rooted in Scottish life." With his parents, he sailed for America in 1848, locating in Sheboygan, Wis. In 1856 he went to Buffalo, N. Y., taking the position of librarian for the Young Men's Christian Union. His taste for literature soon brought him into prominence, and he became editor of the Buffalo Courier, which position he held for over twenty years. During this period he traveled for ten years throughout the Old World, and wrote interesting and valuable letters of his travel. He was an invalid for several years before his death, which occurred in March, 1887, being the result of injuries received in a railroad accident while, with his brother, he was en route for Cuba.

One of his friends and admirers, James Fraser Gluck, in some reflections on Mr. Gray's life, says: "He was a man strong intellectually, of diversified experience in the busy haunts of men, passing his days in the sanctum of the editor of a great daily paper, where all the whirling currents of business, commerce, politics, literature and social ambitions have their vortex. That this man should find in the almost literal interpretation of the Gospel his only trust and consolation, cannot be accounted for on the theory that a highly touched poetic spirit sought celestial visions, inspired by the christian narrative of the life of Jesus Christ."

Amos Chappell raised a company of volunteers, marched to Horse Neck, on Long Island Sound, and there he died. His grave can still be seen at Sharon, the headstone bearing the following inscription :

“ Our hero, armed, forsook a tender wife,
And all the pleasures of domestic life ;
Courtied the field of battle and of death,
And in the glorious cause resigned his breath.”

Mrs. Chappell was married to Jonathan Dunham in the year 1778.

LETTER FROM WALTER CURTIS (SEE 30) TO S. S. GUTHRIE (SEE 70).

BELPRE, May 11, 1867.

MR. S. S. GUTHRIE:

Sir—I shall not apologize for not taking notice of your letter of January last, otherwise than by saying that the unsteadiness of the eye and hand of nearly eighty years of life make writing somewhat of a task.

You ask for my recollections of incidents in the early history of Ohio. That harvest has been so closely reaped by Messrs. Atwater, Hildreth, I. H. James and others, that the scanty gleanings which I can contribute will add but little to the collection.

About the 20th of Sept. 1791, your grandfather, Stephen Guthrie, and my father, started with their families, accompanied by three unmarried men from the town of Warren, Litchfield Co., Conn.; destination, Marietta, Ohio. The transportation turn out consisted of two wagons, one drawn by four oxen, the other by two horses. It was confidently expected that the war with the Indians would be terminated by the expedition then marching under St. Clair. But so slow did the news of events travel in those days, that the defeat which took place in August, did not reach our travelers till they reached the summit of the Alleghany mountains, the latter part of September. It was then too late to turn back. They took water about thirty miles above Pittsburg, in a flat boat about half covered. One cold blustering day in November, as the boat was drifting near the shore of the head of Wheeling Island, a hanging tree caught one of the studs, took out a plank, which placed the boat in a sinking condition. A man by the name of Toleman, in trying to reach the shore by the tree, fell off and was drowned. The stock was driven overboard; the boat swung to the shore and was prevented from sinking.

Col. Zane of Wheeling, took the whole party to his quarters and furnished every assistance suggested by his boundless benevolence. Some delay was occasioned by the stock straying to the woods but it was ultimately recovered, and they re-embarked and arrived at Marietta without any further mishap.

Your grandfather settled in the garrison, opposite the mount of Little Kanawha, and father remained at Marietta for some years. Some change of residence took place during the war not of consequence in this narrative.

I never heard of wild buffalo being killed in Ohio. When I frequented the woods as far back as 1797 and 8, there were naked places in the woods on the ridges which the hunters said were buffalo beats, but I never saw bones or horns, or other relics of their existence. Towards the close of the war, when we lived in the Newbury garrison, there was a company of Virginia Militia and a Capt. Bogardus stationed there. A post of them went down to Giandot on a hunting expedition, killed quite a number of buffalo, brought the meat and hides up in large canoes—some of which was salted, some jerked, and some eaten fresh. That which was salted looked rather blue and tasted the same. It appears the Indians lived on this side of the Ohio and the buffalo on the other. The Indians made their home and raised their corn on the Scioto, Maumee and Miami Rivers—reserving the hilly parts of the State for their hunting grounds.

The Pickaway plains was a great place of Indian residence. About four miles south of Circleville stood Logan's cabin, where that celebrated speech was made to Lord Dunsmore, which we used to read in Webster's third part. The Pickaway plains was an unhealthy place to raise children, hence the name Pick-away which took off the papooses.

The first ascending navigation of the Ohio was by light sharp pointed boats, propelled by oar and manned by Spaniards and Canadian French, who transported their goods and herds from Vincennes to Kaskaskia, and other points to Pittsburg.

I do not recollect the exact year of the advent of the first keel boat. They were introduced mostly for the transportation of hemp from Kentucky, which was subsequently spun into thread for rope, wound upon large wooden reels, and shipped eastward in a partly manufactured state.

I have seen Mr. Blennerhassett and lady, but any description I could give of their person or place of residence would seem tame and insipid to those who have read Mr. Wirts' flowery eulogium, delivered on the occasion of Burr's trial. Mr. Blennerhassett was in person tall and spare, of a benevolent studious disposition much given to the cultivation of music, and very short sighted. There was much poverty and considerable sickness in those days, and medicines and cordials that were difficult to obtain elsewhere were frequently solicited of Mr. Blennerhassett, and I do not think the applicant ever returned empty handed, even though he had nothing to give in return. Mrs. Blennerhassett, when I saw her, in size and figure very much resembled your sister, Mrs. Jewett, in her early maturity, though with a more florid complexion and great blandishment of manner. That family was greatly sinned against, no juster claim was ever presented to the government than theirs, for expenses incurred in that prosecution. As for the residence and surroundings, it was all that wealth and taste could make it.

I think the first mail route established in this state, was between Marietta and Gallipolis, stopping at intermediate stations. The vehicle of transportation was a light rowboat, propelled by six oars, running up and down in the middle of the river to keep out of the reach of the Indians' rifles. A Frenchman by the name of Peter Lalence, was chief engineer.

I have no recollection of the publication you speak of, unless it was a book in pamphlet form written by a Mr. Flint, narrating individual conflicts with Indians and other events of early history.

Perhaps some other time I may recall some other incidents of our early history; if so, will send them to you.

Family all in usual health. Wife has been quite poorly this spring, but is better now. Shall be glad to hear from you at any time.

Yours Truly,

WALTER CURTIS.

LETTER FROM JOSEPH MILES (MENTIONED IN LIFE OF PAMELIA WIFE OF JULIUS C. GUTHRIE-27) TO S. S. GUTHRIE (70)

WASHINGTON, Ill., April 30, 1857.

Dear Nephew—Your kind, and I must say unexpected letter, came to hand about a week since and was perused with pleasure. It found us in reasonable health, and owing to stormy and muddy weather, almost entirely excluded from society. I have not been able to attend church but two or three times this winter. We have had a remarkable winter. Some very cold weather; frequent snow, but not very heavy or deep. Our spring very backward. I went to town once, but it was so muddy I was obliged to stay better than two weeks, and was confined almost entirely to the house—could hardly cross the street.

* * * * *

I think of no news, either religious or political to relate. Your enquiries relative to our relation I can give you but little positive information. I shall endeavor to answer them as well as I can in the order you have stated them.

1st—Elizabeth and myself were married the first day of January, 1809—it was her birth day—she was twenty years old.

2nd—Mr. Sprague—I have no date; they were married in Coopers-town just before the family started for Ohio.

3rd—I believe Mr. Cushing was married in Ballstown.

4th—I do not know when Father Buckingham left Connecticut. He lived a while in Nine Partners, and then in Ballstown, and then in Cooperstown, N. Y. He moved to Ohio in the spring of 1800. He went up to Coshocton in the spring of 1800, and do not think he lived there quite two years.

5th—Your uncle Eben'r married his first wife in November, 1805. I am not positive as to the month, but I think I am not mistaken.

6th—I am more at a loss about Caleb Cooley. I think he was married in 1810.

I am sorry that I can not be more particular. We often have to lament the inattentions of youth in old age, if we are permitted to live to old age. My mind has become very forgetful and my hearing very poor, and I am admonished every day that I am near my last. I pray God that I may have my loins girded with the Gospel, and my lamp trimmed and burning, and in constant readiness for my departure; so that when the Lord shall come, I may be ready.

Please to remember us to your lady, and if you have the opportunity, to your dear mother.

Yours affectionately,

JOSEPH B. MILES.

N. B.—I shall be 76 the 21st day of June.

WRITTEN FOR THE HARVEST HOME PICNIC AT NEWBURY, OHIO, 1887,
BY MRS. CHARLES L. GUTHRIE (ALMIRA DUNHAM-67).

From the hill, and from the valley,
From our farms, both large and small,
From the cottage, meek and lowly,
From the castle, grand and tall,
By one common cause invited
To this lovely place we come,
And with heart and voice united
We will shout our harvest home.

We have labored hard, my brothers,
But our labors have been blest ;
We have gathered in our harvest,
Now we take a day of rest.
As our mothers, wives and daughters
Shared with us the toil and heat,
So we gladly, proudly bring them
To enjoy this harvest treat.

But our joy is mixed with sadness
When we see a vacant place
Where our eyes were used to seeing
Some dear, kind, familiar face.
All their labors now are ended,
They are safely gathered home
To the glorious, Heavenly mansions,
There to sing their harvest home.

If there's one heart that's clouded,
May the clouds be swept away,
Let no discord or dissension
Mar the pleasures of the day.
May each heart be filled with lightness,
And each lip the strain prolong,
Whilst the grand old hills re-echo
The triumphant harvest song.

On this day we're proudly thinking
Of our sires — a noble band —
Men of brain and men of muscle,
Warm of heart and strong of hand.
Through their hardships and privations
Better times to us have come.
In our heart of hearts we bless them
At this happy harvest home.

High above all other anthems
Shout the praise of God above ;
Tell us of His many blessings —
Tell us of His wondrous love.
He has sent the blessed sunlight,
He has sent refreshing rain ;
Guided with such skill the seasons,
That our barns are filled with grain.

Soon our Spring will be ended,
And our Summer time is brief,
Soon will come the silent reaper
Gathering in the golden sheaf.
When the reaping time is ended,
And the housing time has come,
Safely in our Father's mansion
We will shout our harvest home.

AN ACROSTIC.
WRITTEN TO DR. COLUMBUS BIERCE BY AMOS DUNHAM.

Cease your acknowledgements, my lad,
Of favors which you never had.
Let me no thanks receive from you
Until some thanks to me are due.
My humble cot shall be your home —
But what of that ? — you are my son ;
Unfeeling must a father be
Should he discard a son like thee.

But friendship — Oh that Heavenly name —
I own its worth, I feel its flame.
Enchanting raptures from it flow,
Resplendent beauties in it glow.
Contented may you spend your life
Endowed with health, a friend, and wife.
