Mr. Murphy was 2d officer of the side-wheel steamer Monticello and was in charge of the first and only boat which got away from that unseaworthy craft when she broke up in a heavy south-west gale about four miles due west from Yarmouth light in the forenoon of 10th Nov., 1900.

In the boat with Mr. Murphy were the stewardess and two 16-year-old girls, passengers, the only females on the steamer; the 3d officer, one quarter-master and Capt. Norman Smith, passenger, the latter and the 3d officer each taking an oar, and Mr. Murphy at the helm.

Having run before the gale safely about five miles and passed Chegoggin Point, and when but a short distance from the shore, Mr. Murphy put the helm to port intending to land, but a huge comber overtook and capsized the boat and all on board were thrown into the surf.

Mr. Murphy and the two girls were drowned; the others were cast headlong upon the beach, and bruised and bleeding they "crawled up" beyond the reach of the undertow.

"Comber" is a nautical term for a breaking wave.
