TO THE PATRONS OF THIS BOOK:

Dear friends, I have accomplished the task I undertook,
In gathering up the records, to form a little book ;
That coming generations, their ancestors might know,
And keep alive in memory, the scenes of long ago.
First, let us wander forth, in the old Colonial days,
When the houses of New England were filled with prayer and praise ;
When Puritans came over across the foaming sea,
To make the settler's cabin the homestead of the free ;
When solemn congregations sung psalms on holy day,
And the devout and pious, all went to church to pray ;
When the people were all loyal to England's king and crown,
And promptly paid their taxes each year in every town.
Although their fixed idea was a State without a King,
And a church without a bishop, with them a model thing,
Yet true to Bible teaching, these Puritans thought fit
Jehovah's laws to honor, and to the king submit.
In a Massachusetts county there was a rural town,
But it had never yet attained to any great renown ;
And Leominster they named it, but why I cannot tell,
Yet hardy, brave and honest were the men who there did dwell.
Here dwelt an honest farmer, but quite unknown to fame,
And Lieutenant David Johnson was this quiet farmer's name;
And yet, 'tis said of him that he fought on Bunker Hill,
The day that British redcoats did General Warren kill.
This selfsame David Johnson, let me tell you now, shall be
The trunk whence grow the branches of my genealogic tree ;
Whose limbs have been extended from the old Atlantic tide
Far o'er the Western Prairies, all blooming in their pride ;
And their beautiful proportions majestic now appear,
As we pause awhile to view them on this Centennial year.
The families of kindred that sit beneath its shade,
Shall, in succeeding pages be faithfully portrayed ;
The Johnsons and the Sweetsers, the Monroes, Fisks and Gunns ;
The Brighams, Brockets, Gausers, the Whites, and Moores, and Stones ;
The Fredenburgs and Woodward's, Brainards and Crosses too ;
Van Ettens, Smiths and Taylors, I'll bring them all to view ;
And other worthy branches with records bright and clear
Are on these pages entered ; look and you'll find them here.
And as the years roll onward the children of these sires,
On cheerful winter evenings, around their homestead fires,
Shall ponder on these pages, and con these records o'er,
And talk about their kindred who lived in days of yore.

WM. W. JOHNSON.

INTRODUCTION.

In the early days of New England, the settlers from the mother country who bore the name of Johnson were very numerous, as the Colonial records show. Savage, in his Genealogical Dictionary, Vol. II, page 559, presents a few prominent facts in connection with this name. He says: "The first person in New England guilty of the impossible crime of witchcraft, and executed at Hartford, was a Johnson of Windsor; and one of the most distinguished was Rev. Samuel Johnson, first president of King's College, New York, born at Guilford, Conn., Oct. 14, 1696. Ten of the name had been graduated at Harvard in 1834, of which three were clergymen; and forty-eight at other New England Colleges, of which twenty-one were clergymen." He further says: "Of this name the occurrence is so frequent in all parts of New England, that, out of inquiries confined exclusively to it, a large volume would grow."

On this account, no small difficulty exists in tracing out the descendants of the different families. But a thorough examination of Colonial history, has very fully established the belief that David Johnson, of Leominster, was a descendant of Captain Edward Johnson, who came from England in the fleet with Governor Winthrop in 1630. He was of Hernhill, a parish near Canterbury, and owned an estate there. He settled in Charlestown, Mass., in 1637, but afterwards removed to Woburn, and was one of the founders of the church in that place. He was a very zealous Puritan, as his writings show, for he wrote the history entitled, "Wonder Working Providences of Zion's Saviour in New England." He was frequently a member of the General Court, and in 1655 was the speaker of that august body. He died in 1672. His wife's name was Susan, and the names of his children were Edward, George, William, Matthew, John, Martha and Susanna 2d. (See Savage's Genealogical Dictionary, Vol. II. P. 550.)

WM. JOHNSON, son of Captain Edward, was born in England, but came to America and settled in Woburn. He became a freeman in 1655. On May 17th, of the same year, he married Esther, daughter of Elder Thos. Wiswall. He was a Representative in the General Court for several years, and a military officer of every rank except the highest. He died May 22, 1704. (See Savage's Gen. Dict., Vol. II, p. 558.)

JOSIAH JOHNSON, son of Dea. William, born in Woburn, Jan 15, 1669, the record of whose family has not been preserved, is believed to be the father of David Johnson of Leominster, the records of whose descendants are found in the following pages:

DAVID JOHNSON.

DAVID JOHNSON was born (probably in Woburn) between the years 1700 and 1710. His exact birthdate is not known, on account of the loss of the record of his father's family. He belonged to the second American generation of the family, his father, Josiah, being the first American ancestor. He married about the year 1738 Mary Peters, a descendant of a respectable and somewhat distinguished family of Puritans.*

Soon after their marriage they settled in Leominster, where all their children except the oldest one were born, and where he died in a good old age, leaving his estate to his son Luke.

He was a man of sterling character, and though advanced in years, was among the patriots who fought the first great battle of the Revolution.

*Hugh Peters, 4th Minister of Salem, born 1599 in the parish of Ewe, Cornwall, graduated at Trinity College, Cambridge; went to Holland with the Puritans, and came to America in the ship Abigail, 1635. Six of the name Peters have graduated at Yale, and four at Harvard. (Savage's Gen. Dict., Vol. III., p. 402.)

†Seth Sweetser settled in Charlestown in 1637. He came from Tring, in Hertfordshire. Benjamin, son of Seth, came from England in 1658, and in 1659 was fined £50, and imprisoned as a Baptist. (Savage's Gen. Dict., Vol. IV., p. 239.)

P Since the Publication of this book the following, copied from the Marriage Record of Lancaster, has been received by the Compiler. "David Johnson to Mary Warner, Feb. 22, 1738/9." The idea that her name was Peters probably arose from the fact of having a stepfather Peters.

5. JOSIAH JOHNSON, 2d, son of Lieutenant David Johnson, was born in Leominster, Mass., March 7, 1746, old style.

He resided in that town until 1773, when he emigrated to Charlemont, where he purchased land. The deed was given by Jonathan White, of Leominster, and Joseph Wilder, of Lancaster, on the 15th day of December, in the 13th year of His Majesty's reign, A. D. 1773.

The description of the land is as follows: "One hundred acres of land, in Charlemont, in the county of Hampshire, in the southeast part of said town, on the south line of which it is bounded south; on the north it is bounded by Mr. Taylor's farm; on the east it is bounded on the public land; on the west it is bounded on Mr. Taylor's other farm, or the farm called Clesson's farm."

It would be difficult, I think, for a surveyor, from this description, to find that land now.

When Buckland was incorporated in 1778, this land was included in that town.

He owned a grist mill for a short time in the north part of the town, but the greater part of his life was spent in farming. He contributed largely of his influence in shaping the character of the new town, and was a prominent man, not only in civil affairs, but also in the church.

In 1774 He married Martha, daughter of Othniel Taylor, of Charlemont. She was born Dec. 21, 1756, and died Oct. 27, 1825. He died Feb, 21, 1827.

They were both interred in the old churchyard at Buckland Centre.

36 WALTER R. JOHNSON, born in Leominster, Mass. June 21 1794. At Groton Academy 1814, entered Harvard University 1815. Graduated 1819. Preceptor of Farmingham Academy 1820. Teacher of Classical School in Salem 1821. Principal of Germantown (Pa.) Academy from 1822, to 1826. Removed to Philadelphia, 1826. Appointed Professor of Mechanics and Natural Philosophy in the Franklin Institute. Member of the Academy of Natural Sciences. Appointed in 1839 Professor of Chemistry, and Natural Philosophy, in the Medical Department of the Pennsylvania College at Philadelphia. Appointed in 1845, by the city of Boston, to examine, and report on the sources from which a supply of pure water might be brought into the city. Was one of twenty who organized The American Association of Geologists in Philadelphia in 1846. Honorary Member of the Maryland Institute. Member of the National Institute at Washington from its first organization. He established his residence in Washington in 1848. Visited Europe in 1851. His Biographer says of him, "He maintained a strict temperance in all things, through life; believing it essential both to bodily health and mental vigor. The account of his death is given as follows in The N. E. Hist. & Gen. Record Vol. VI, p, 391. "His death was occasioned by inhaling noxious gas, while performing some experiment in the Laboratory of the Smithsonian Institute. But his friends attribute it to some other cause. He died April 26, 1852, after an illness of six days, and in his death the scientific world met with a great loss. For a more particular account of him see Biographical sketch, written by his widow for Barnard's American Journal of Education, Dec., 1858. Below will be found part of a poem written by him on leaving New England.

He married Sept. 2, 1823, Nancy Maria, daughter of Dr. Lothario Donaldson, of Medfield, Ms., a lady of fine scholastic ability, who is still living in Washington; P. O. address, 506 Twelfth St., Washington, D. C.

WALTER B. JOHNSON - 1911

Walter B. Johnson

CHILDREN, FOURTH GENERATION.

- I. ——— who died in infancy without name.

167

And must I bid my native scenes adieu?
 And must all ties be rent, all thought erased?
 Shall no fond feeling, years long lost, renew,
 Where joy's faint image still may be retraced,
 And guiltless pleasure brought to fancy's view,
 To be by ardent memory embraced?
 Can Time blot out, with his oblivious hand,
 The dear remembrance of my native land?

Ah, no, New England, never shall thy hills,
 Thy dales, thy verdant landscapes, and thy groves,
 Thy towns, which busy prosperous commerce fills,
 Thy hamlets, filled with happy youthful loves,
 Thy mountain torrents, and thy meadow rills,
 The blue expanse where mighty ocean moves,
 Cease their enchantment o'er my wandering soul,
 Which, magnet-like, still seeks thee as its pole.

Back to thy mountain summits must I look,
 And see them in dim distance sink and fade;
 Monadnock, that my artless childhood took
 To be an outpost for creation made;
 Wachusett, whose gray head the tempest shook,
 Turbaned in clouds, in mighty robes arrayed,
 Whose folds waved down his sides in princely state,
 As if they clothed creation's potentate.

SUNSET.

The glorious sun is fast sinking away
 Mid the golden-tipped clouds of the west;
 The farmer has finished his toil for the day,
 And all nature will soon be at rest.

The robin's sweet song is now heard in the grove,
 As he sits on the tallest green tree,
 But, soon will be hushed, his sweet accents of love,
 When the night shades creep over the lea.

The beautiful hills, in their vestments of green,
 Are tipped with a tincture of red,
 And the sun's lingering rays, on the mountains are seen,
 While the twilight surrounds the homestead.

The calm, peaceful lake, in its slumbers so deep,
 Is seen through the neighboring grove,
 As the last rays of daylight behold its deep sleep,
 And the white lights are seen from above.

The songs of the thrush and the robin have ceased,
 And the night-hawk is flying afar,
 And the moon, gently rising, is seen in the east,
 By the side of a pale, silvery star.

YOUTHFUL RECOLLECTIONS.

The place of our birth! O, it brings to the mind
 Those fond recollections no other can bring;
 To that place, ever hallowed, are fondly inclined,
 Our thoughts, which around it forever must cling.

The sounds which first greeted in childhood our ears,
 The objects first painted on juvenile eyes,
 With all their fond freshness, in life's riper years,
 Distinctly, in visions of memory, rise.

Of scenes most familiar in life's early years,
 Which, in beauty, remembrance so kindly doth bring,
 And time, by its rapid advances, endears,
 Let the muse now in order most joyfully sing.

The tall shady trees, with their broad, leafy boughs,
 Where the birds of the summer once nestled and sung;
 Where in springtime the robin, her mate did espouse,
 And with birdlike affection protected her young.

The fields, where in gambols of childhood, we passed
 The bright summer mornings of juvenile days;
 And e'en when the shadows of evening were cast,
 Our sports oft went on by the moon's feeble rays.

The mountainous ramparts surrounding the vale,
 Whose rocks had the storms of the ages defied;
 The oaks and the pines, which had weathered the gale,
 And had lifted their heads to the clouds, in their pride.

The brook, on whose banks in the bright summer days,
 We joyfully gazed on the fishes within,
 As they, in affright, darted numerous ways,
 Till, beneath the loose pebbles, themselves they did screen.

The school-house, where I the first rudiments learned,
 Of the language I speak, of my own native tongue,
 With its seats and its aisles, to my vision returned,
 While its scenes of delight, to my memory clung.

My schoolmates, who wandered with me in the grove,
 To pluck the wild blossoms that grew in the shade,
 Or, pleasantly sauntering, homeward did rove,
 As evening came on, and the daylight did fade.

The church, where my ancestors reverently heard
 Salvation's glad message proclaimed unto men;
 Where the heralds of mercy expounded God's word,
 And anthems were sung, in harmonious strain.

The beautiful glebe, where that fabric was reared,
 And the scenes which around us in beauty were seen,
 To my fanciful vision have often appeared,
 Though mountains and valleys were lying between.

The churchyard, which kept the lone dust of the dead,
 Where the sires of the hamlet in silence reposed;
 With the trees, which above them their foliage spread,
 To my juvenile mind, a deep lesson disclosed.

These scenes, all so lovely, in memory live,
 And pleasing sensations awake in the mind;
 Yes, scenes of my childhood, much pleasure ye give,
 A joy that is holy, and pure, and refined.

“WE ALL DO FADE AS A LEAF.”

The varied scenes of Nature's page,
 With pleasure must the mind engage;
 And when we look at them aright,
 The soul is filled with pure delight.

The human form, erect and free,
 With beauty stamped, we love to see;
 For, in the image of their God,
 The first fair pair in Eden trod.

But beauty's charms must fade away,
 The fairest forms must all decay,
 Alike, the wicked and the just,
 Must, to the earth, resign their dust.

Earth well may claim its kindred earth,
 But souls are of immortal birth,
 And destined, if to God they're given,
 To the immortal joys of Heaven.

If earthly things do not allure
 The heart from joys divinely pure,
 When mortal blossoms fade and die,
 They'll bloom again above the sky.

THE DECORATION.

They come from the hamlet, the city, the farm,
 The springtime has lent to all Nature a charm ;
 The forests stand proudly in vestments of green,
 While the blossoming fruit trees enliven the scene,
 And the beautiful birds, from their late southern home,
 To the groves of the North, with their music have come.
 Their notes, most enchanting, are greeting the ear,
 Inspiring the world with their musical cheer.
 And now to the grave-yards all hasten away,
 To honor the dead on this thirtieth of May.
 The sire and the matron, the youth and the Maid,
 The young and the aged, all join the parade,
 For to each is committed a sanctified trust,
 To lay the sweet flowers o'er the patriot's dust.
 With emblems of mourning, by one grassy grave
 A mother is standing, whose son went to save
 His own native land, which he cherished so well,
 But alas, on the field of Antietam he fell.
 And here comes a father, quite aged and gray,
 He comes with his offering, to honor the day;
 For, away from his home, in his youth and his pride,
 Went one who most nobly at Gettysburg died.
 And now comes a little one, blooming and fair,
 With her curls lightly floating on Spring's balmy air;
 And a lovely bouquet, all so tastefully made,
 On the grave of her grandpa she tenderly laid;
 For aged men fell in that terrible strife,
 Which fearfully threatened our national life,
 And at Fair Oaks, to God and to country he gave
 His own life an offering, his country's to save.
 In yonder lone spot, where the evergreens sigh
 To the breezes of night, doth a cherished one lie,
 And a sister's kind hand, with affection has spread
 The sweetest of flowers o'er the patriot dead,
 For Atlanta's fierce fight a kind brother had given—
 His body to earth, and his spirit to heaven.
 O, sad are the memories that come on this day,
 Of the loved ones who went from our firesides away,
 Of the many who went, but who came not again,
 For numbered were they with the wounded and slain;
 And widows, and orphans, look back with a sigh
 To the carnage at Shiloh, where thousands did die.
 As sorrow broods o'er them, a moment they pause,
 And reflect that they died in a glorious cause.
 Their names we will cherish, and honor their deeds,
 Immortal is he who for liberty bleeds.
 Their dust has returned to the dust whence it came,
 But their memory shall live in the annals of fame.
 O, rest, ye brave heroes, your work is now done ;
 Some fell at Stone River, and some at Bull Run.

At Winchester, others by Sheridan led,
 Were numbered that day with the patriot dead.
 At Corinth, at Vicksburg—no more need I tell,
 So numerous the fields where the brave soldiers fell,
 And their friends in the North, in the East, in the West,
 And e'en in the South, at affection's behest,
 To the graveyards repair on this national day,
 Their offerings to bring of the flora of May.
 From the hills of New England, from workshop and field,
 To where the Sierras their treasures do yield;
 From the Southern Savannas, that slope to the tide,
 To the Prairies that bloom, in their beauty and pride;
 From the old Alleghanies, with mineral wealth,
 To the lakes of the North, with their commerce and health;
 As the ages roll on, and the years pass away,
 Columbia's patriots shall honor this day.

DECORATION DAY.

We go to the grass grown mounds, where those
 Who stood in the ranks with us, repose.
 In the cold embrace of death they sleep,
 Where the mourning friends oft go to weep.
 Where the sculptured marble marks the spot
 Of those who were with us, but now are not;
 Where the willow bends, and the moaning breeze
 A requiem chants 'mid the ancient trees.
 Tread lightly, comrades, 'tis hallowed ground,
 Here the war-worn heroes, a rest have found;
 And we come, with the choicest flowers of spring,
 To honor their graves with an offering
 Of the fragrance and beauty which nature gave,
 An offering meet for a soldier's grave.
 And as each year in its course shall bring
 The fragrant flowers of the balmy Spring,
 To their resting-place we will still repair,
 And our offering leave of the flowers so fair.
 As onward the ages shall roll away,
 And our children shall ask, what means this day,
 We will tell of the deeds of valor done
 By the loyal sire and the loyal son,
 How Rebels were slain, and the "Stars" arose,
 And we triumphed proudly over our foes;
 And our Nation was saved, though brave ones fell,
 Who served their country so truly and well.
 And still on their graves, as the years pass away,
 Our children will scatter the blossoms of May.

“I WENT TO GATHER FLOWERS.”

Surrounded by pleasures, a wanderer in time,
I gazed on the beauties of Nature, sublime ;
Her music, harmonious, I heard in the grove,
And her flowers, all so fragrant, me tempted to rove.
With a heart light and buoyant, I wandered awhile,
Where the trees, and the flowers, and all nature did smile;
And I gazed on the sun, in his western decline,
And thought that a happiness lasting was mine.
But soon, where the dead of the hamlet were laid,
I came, and my heart sunk within me dismayed ;
I paused there to weep, and my spirit did say,
The pleasures of time will soon vanish away.
The friends of my youth, whom so dearly I prize,
In the slumbers of death will soon close their eyes ;
And this body of mine, now so active and gay,
Like the roses around me, will shortly decay ;
And the beauties of earth, though they flourish awhile,
By a death-chilling blast, will at length cease to smile.
Then let us be wise, ere we sink to the tomb,
That in regions immortal our spirits may bloom.

FOR A FRIEND'S ALBUM.

Now here comes the album, with pages so white,
Sent forth by the owner, with charms, to invite
The neighbor, friend, poet and christian to write
A kind sentiment here,
Which may, when hereafter presented to sight,
Some lone moments cheer.

A thought, from the fragments that roam in my mind,
To transfer to its pages so fair, I'm inclined ;
And when your eye meets it, O, may it remind
                You of friendship unbroken;
And many kind spirits in life may you find,
                Who shall leave here a token.

A token of friendship! memento most dear!
A mark of esteem from a friend most sincere.
And while we're performing our pilgrimage here,
                May we oft bear in mind,
That our sorrows are soothed, while in life's path so drear,
                By the friends that we find.

But friends from each other must soon pass away,
Our bodies are mortal, and they must decay;
But to all who will walk in the straight gospel way,
At length shall be given
Pure friendship's unclouded, unchangeable day,
In its own spotless heaven.

MY BROTHERS AND SISTERS.

The children who lived with me,
 At the foot of an ancient hill,
 Who roamed the pastures so free,
 And the mountains climbed at will,
 Who plucked the flowers of spring, so sweet,
 And the tempting fruits of autumn did eat,
 Are my own dear brothers and sisters still.
 Their youthful songs were merry and free,
 And their hearts were full of childish glee,
 For the bustling world, with its anxious care,
 Scarcely had made its advent there.
 In memory's palace proudly stand,
 With sparkling eyes and with voices bland
 This joyful, happy and social band.

But O, the vision has fled ; the old hill stands there yet;
 Upward it lifts its head, and with rains and dews is wet,
 But the hill, and the children too, their brother will never forget.
 But the hill, O it stands there still, and will as the ages roll,
 (The same old rocky hill) till the heavens are wrapped as a scroll,
 And the doleful funeral knell of the world begins to toll.
 But the children have passed away, some to the land of rest,
 Others as pilgrims stay, away in the mighty West,
 Waiting, the voice to obey, of Jehovah's great behest,
 When he from its earthly clay, shall the living soul divest.
 But when the summons shall come, and the world's strong pillars bend,
 And the nations shall hear the doom, that proclaims their final end,
 And the slumbering dead shall rise, and from grassy graves ascend,
 May these children, good and wise, round the throne their voices blend.

THE SUMMER.

I love, on Nature's varied scene,
To muse and meditate;
And as the seasons intervene,
Observe their changing state.

The summer comes with perfumed breath,
To sweeten every breeze;
And brings us more of life than death,
In Nature's argosies.

The verdant meadows—pleasant sight!
In beauty lie unmown;
While Phoebus, in his chariot bright,
Rides o'er the northern zone;

And from his elevated seat,
Sends down his burning rays,
And fills this lower world with heat,
In summer's longest days;

And brings, out of the fertile earth,
Its products, rich and rare,
And, in a thousand forms, gives birth
To beauties bright and fair.

The peonies and roses new,
With petals, white, and red,
Profusely o'er the morning dew,
Their grateful fragrance shed.

And when the sun's departing light,
Fades slowly in the west,
How gently, nature doth invite
The wearied ones to rest!

The seasons quickly pass away,
Earth's choicest flowers will fade;
Man is the creature of a day,
Yet wonderfully made.

And though his mortal body die,
His nobler part shall live;
God, to the wise and good, on high
A heavenly home will give.

And may my portion ever be—
My pleasure—my desire—
The Great Creator's works to see,
To love, enjoy, admire.

THE VOLUNTEER'S DEPARTURE.

I go to the tented field,
To the bivouac and the strife;
I go where the soldier dies,
And the patriot yields his life.

I go where the banners wave,
Where the stars and stripes look bright;
I go my country to save,
And its mortal foes to fight.

I go where the cannon's voice
Doth in thunder tones resound;
I go—'tis my own free choice—
Where the harvest of death is found.

I go where traitorous bands,
In their frenzied hate, are seen;
I go where murderous hands
Wield weapons of slaughter keen.

I go where the victor goes;
Where the sons of freedom win;
I go where our mortal foes
Shall die in their rebel sin.

I go in a righteous cause;
I go for the rights of man;
I go to sustain our laws,
Or to fall in freedom's van.

I go where my country calls;
Where heroes engage in the strife;
Where the soldier nobly falls,
And the patriot yields his life.

I go—from loved ones I roam—
Strong, are the ties I must sever—
My country! my kindred! my home!
Jehovah protect them forever!

THE VOLUNTEER'S RETURN.

I went, at my country's call,
To fight for our flag you know;
On the altar I laid my all,
When I volunteered to go.

I went where the southern skies,
Like a brazen furnace burn;
Where the miasmata rise,
And thousands to dust return.

I went where the serried ranks
Of the rebel host were seen
On the rivers wooded banks,
With their deadly weapons keen;

On the rocky mountains side—
In the winding vales below—
By the rolling ocean's tide—
Or, where'er our foes did go.

I went where the battle loud,
With its thunders, rent the sky;
Where no winding sheet or shroud
Clad the hero called to die.

Where the zip of the minnie ball,
And the howl of the shrieking shell,
On my ear with their death like call,
And their doleful accents, fell.

Where the dashing horseman's blade
The blade of his foeman met,
And the deadly charge was made,
With the glittering bayonet;

Where the battle shout was given,
As the ranks of the foe gave way,
And its echoes reached to heaven,
As they fled in wild dismay

Where the patriot with his blood,
His love for his country sealed,
And our heroes, brave and good,
Lay cold on the crimson field.

Where our foemen dead lay strewn,
Like leaves in the forest sere,
When the autumn winds have sung
The dirge of the dying year.

But now the battles are o'er,
And the rebel power has fled;
I come to my home once more,
From the scenes of carnage red.

I come to the loved ones, left
In tears on the parting day;
But the clouds of grief are cleft,
And the gloom has passed away.

I come where liberty reigns,
And the bondman sighs no more;
For broken are slavery's chains,
And the reign of oppression is o'er.

I come, but my comrades brave,
Who stood in the ranks with me—
O! some fill the soldier's grave,
And home they will never see.

Thus I come where the widows weep,
Where the lonely orphans sigh,
Who their faithful vigils keep
O'er the brave who did nobly die.

I come, a TeDeum to sing—
Saved by the patriot's blood—
Loud hallelujahs shall ring,
Of praises and glory to God.

THE SOLDIER'S DREAM.

The winds of night were sighing,
When a soldier far away,
In his narrow tent was lying,
At the close of a weary day.

From his home his country called him,
To stand in defense of right,
For a powerful foe had risen,
Against our flag to fight.

By many wearisome marches,
On many a toilsome day,
He had reached the land of Dixie,
From the homestead far away.

He had heard death's weapons rattle,
He had seen the crimson flow;
He had trod the field of battle,
'Mid the scenes of death and woe.

He had stood at his post of duty,
In the lightnings flashes bright,
Where the furious storm was raging,
On the dark and dismal night.

But now in his tent he was lying;
At the close of a weary day;
Of friends and home he was dreaming,
As wrapped in his blanket he lay.

The scenes of his boyhood most cheering
Before him in visions all bright,
And the friends of his youth, so endearing,
Appeared in the dreams of that night.

'Twas springtime—and nature in beauty,
Emerging from winter's embrace,
With charms all inviting and lovely,
The meadows and woodlands did grace.

The trees of the forest were covered
With vestments of beautiful green,
And birds of bright plumage there hov-
ered,
To cheer and enliven the scene.

From scenes of the camp and the battle,
In visions he wandered that night;
Till his home, far away in the Northland,
Most joyously greeted his sight.

The place where in childhood he wand-
ered,
In sportive, yet innocent glee,
Where murmuring brooklets meandered,
By roadside, through forest and lea;

The hillside, where lambkins were sporting,
The orchard, just whitening with bloom,
The field, where the farmer was plowing,
The sound of the anvil and loom,

All woke a remembrance delightful,
Of scenes in his juvenile life,
When impressions all real and truthful,
With pleasant emotions were rife.

His home! O, the thrilling emotion!
With rapture he stands at the door,
The home of his early devotion,
He has reached it—he asks for no more.

Its inmates, the dearest of mortals,
Its fireside, the best ever seen,
He opens and enters its portals,
Let fancy now picture the scene.

The greetings are scarcely yet ended,
 With dear ones he came home to see,
 And while voices together are blended,
 He is roused by the camp reveille.

The vision has fled—and the soldier must stay,
 Where Dixie's broad rivers still flow,
 At the post of his duty by night and by day,
 No furlough, nor homeward can go.

THE BEREAVEMENT.

I stand by an ancient river,
 Where I stood long years ago;
 Its purling waters ever
 Right on to the ocean flow.
 And near it stands a farmhouse,
 Where an aged father dwelt,
 And round his fireside altar,
 In daily prayer he knelt.
 A son had grown to manhood
 Within this ancient home,
 And, from its sacred portals,
 Had ne'er desired to roam.
 Affection's ties had bound him
 To his aged parents here,
 And the hallowed scenes around him,
 Still made the homestead dear.
 On a blooming May day morning,
 When the grass was springing green,
 Around that ancient farmhouse,
 A merry group were seen;
 And the grandsire sat among them,
 His dim eyes beamed with joy;
 For the happy ones before him,
 Were sons of his own dear boy.
 The flowers, on that Mayday morning,
 With beauty and fragrance rare,
 Were the garden walks adorning,
 And scenting the balmy air.
 And childhood's soul now basking,
 In pleasure's sunlight bright,
 Dreamed not of hidden sorrows,
 Or woes concealed from sight.
 Bright soul of youth confiding,
 Gay heart of childhood free,
 In hope's fond smile abiding,
 Most lovely sight to see.
 But lo! the war trump sounded,
 And forth our legions went;
 That grandsire's son enlisted,
 And to the front was sent.
 The lilacs bloomed in beauty,
 The rose its fragrance gave,
 While at his post of duty,
 He stood among the brave.
 But ere the roses faded
 In the gentle summer light,
 A host our land invaded;
 There came a deadly fight,*

And the father of those children
 Was found among the slain;
 His words of love and kindness
 They never heard again.
 And by that ancient river,
 As its waters pass away,
 A widow sits in sorrow,
 And lonely orphans stray.

*Battle of Gettysburg.

THE SPRINGTIME.

Spring once more her mantle spreadeth,
 O'er the fields of late so bare,
 And, with fairy footsteps, treadeth
 'Mid the flowers that blossom there.

Birds, from southern climes, are coming,
 Decked with plumage bright and gay,
 Bees, around the hives, are humming,
 Gath'ring in the sweets of May.

On the tree top joyful sitteth
 Thrush or robin gay with song;
 While the bluebird lightly flitteth,
 Where she thinks to raise her young.

Odors, from the orchard blooming,
 Float upon the morning air,
 Every gentle breeze perfuming,
 With a fragrance rich and rare.

Now his fields the farmer ploweth,
 And prepares the fertile soil,
 That the grain in hope he soweth,
 May requite him for his toil.

Let us chant a Mayday chorus,
 Sing of birds, and bees, and flowers,
 Praising him who reigneth o'er us,
 And who keepeth us and ours.

PASSING AWAY.

The generations come,
 But quickly pass away;
 Man makes himself a home,
 But short his earthly stay.
 He propagates his kind,
 His children round him rise,
 But soon they're left behind,
 In death the father lies.
 The work we have to do,
 Must speedily be done;
 How soon we bid adieu,
 To all beneath the sun.
 The grassy graveyards hold
 The forms to us so dear,
 All men are growing old,
 Quickly they disappear.
 But still 'tis ours to toil,
 And bravely labor on,
 That we a record good,
 May leave when we are gone

ON REVISITING MY BIRTH PLACE.

Long years had passed away, I came
Where first I saw the light;
I tuned my harp but not to fame,
For youthful visions bright.

Before me in their beauty rose,
They caught my eager view;
And now permit me to disclose
Some of those scenes to you.

The mountains all sublimely stood,
And drew my earnest gaze.
Here was the rock, and there the wood,
As in my childhood's days.

The lofty pine, the mountain crowned,
The laurel, near did grow;
And, as I viewed the scene around,
I saw the brook below.

It had a voice—a friendly voice,
Familiar to my ears;
Its rocky banks had been my choice,
Far back in childhood's years.

Its murmurs rose like music's sound—
They long had been at rest,
To me, where different scenes abound,
Within the mighty West.

They woke an interesting tale
Of years all passed away,
Of scenes within my native vale,
In childhood's sunny day.

By that meand'ring, purling stream,
In Springtime's balmy days,
I often went, to muse and dream,
And sing my youthful lays.

In summer, too, 'neath ancient trees,
Which gave us shade at noon,
I wandered forth, as Scotia's bard
Did on the banks of Doon.

And listened to the singing bird,
Admired the blooming flowers,
All nature's music joyful heard,
In those delightful hours.

There young companions too, I found,
Inspired with youthful g'ee,
Together did our joys abound,
Companions where are ye?

Parted, the echoing hills resound,
And scattered far away.
The locks, which youthful heads, then crowned,
Time's hand hath tinged with gray.

Some linger round their native hills,
Where first they drew their breath;
Others have felt the icy chills,
And the cold hand of death.

Some, borne by emigration's tide,
To western lands did roam;
The forest, or the prairie wide,
Did furnish them a home.

Others, in college halls, were found,
Conning the Classics o'er,
Or, sounding learning's depths profound,
For scientific lore.

Thus, changing time marks man's career,
From infancy to age,
And memory, kindly standing near,
Unfolds the varied page.

Flow on, thou murmuring brook, flow on,
Thy waters pass away,
And others come when they are gone,
To wake thy tuneful lay.

So, when my course on earth is run,
And mortal cares expire,
And I am gone, some other one
Shall wake my rustic lyre.

Meanwhile, may I, in nobler strains,
Attune my harp above;
And where immortal glory reigns,
Sing of immortal love.

SCHOOL HOUR.

Hark, the school bell now is ringing,
To our seats we all repair,
Here to join in happy singing,
Here our lessons to prepare.

Happy moments, in life's morning,
Here we spend from day to day;
May the light of science dawning,
Proudly shine upon our way.

Happy moments! Yet how fleeting,
Soon they all will disappear;
Let these days of youthful greeting,
Usefully be spent while here.

May we feel the obligation,
We to friends and kindred owe;
And no willful deviation,
From the path of duty show.

Happy moments! when departed,
May they leave no sting behind,
But the true, the faithful-hearted,
May they ever bring to mind.

Happy moments! when they're ended,
And from earth we're doomed to fly,
May our voices all be blended,
With the heavenly songs on high.

THE INDIAN'S GRAVE.

I stood in an ancient forest,
On a gentle summer day,
And a mound of earth was near me,
Where a son of the forest lay.

He had trod life's journey weary,
On many a summer day;
But his journey now was ended,
And his body 'neath the clay.

From toil and care he was resting,
On this pleasant summer day,
For his soul has made its exit
To the regions far away.

No more the chase would weary
When summer scenes were gay,
For his race of life was ended,
And his gun beside him lay.

And here he lay all lonely.
For his friends had gone away,
To return again as mourners

* * * * *

Once more, in that ancient forest,
When the spring had passed away,
Where the red man's corpse was buried,
I stood on a summer day.

But that charnel mound was open,
Where the quiet sleeper lay,
For a son of av'rice found him,
And had borne his arms away.

And there his bones lay scattered,
On this lonely summer day,
For his grave was left uncovered
When the robber went away.

* * * * *

Long years, with their wondrous changes
To the past had rolled away,
And the settler's ax had leveled
That forest, old and gray;

And spring, once more in beauty,
Had brought us the "Merry May,"
And the summer, with its roses,
Had come to us blithe and gay;

And the mower's scythe had severed
The grass, on that summer day,
And I, from the grave of the hunter
Was raking the new made hay;

And the burning sun was setting,
On that sultry summer day,
When the withered grass I gathered
Where the Indian hunter lay.

And near is a growing city,
Hard by the Milwaukee Bay,
And its busy din and murmur
Are heard on each summer day.

But by the "graves of his fathers,"
As the sunlight fades away,
The red man no longer lingers,
For, the Tribes have passed away.

And I pensively reflected,
That we, like a summer day,
Or, the flower in its faded beauty,
Are destined to pass away.

TO MY YOUNGEST SISTER.

Spring, with its verdure and its flowers,
Its bright warm days and sunny hours,
Its brooklets, wandering to the sea,
Its woodland birdsong symphony,
Its breezes, from the prairie driven,
Its gentle rain sent down from heaven,
Its verdant garments on the trees,
Its balmy odor on the breeze,
Once more has come, to charm and bless
Old age and infant loveliness.
And when the lovely spring appears,
It 'minds me of our childhood years;
And memory's mirror brings to view,
A picture well defined and true,
Of youthful scenes and youthful joy,
Which filled my heart while yet a boy.
The homestead, where our mother's voice
Made our young hearts in life rejoice,
With words of kindness, looks of love,
Pure as proceed from hearts above,
Is, to us still, a place most dear,
At any season of the year,
But doubly so when spring doth come,
And smile around our childhood's home;
For, in the springtime of the year,
God sent my youngest sister here.
New life, which nature then imparts,
Accords full well with youthful hearts,
And scenes of youth on memory's page,
All fresh appear in years of age.
While present scenes shall come and go,
Right onward as the rivers flow,
The scenes of my young life shall be,
Bright as the vernal flowers to me.
Though passing years have changed the maid,
Into the matron, prone to fade,
The boy, with auburn tresses fair,
To tottering age with whitened hair,
Yet, faces fair and eyes so bright
Have not yet faded from my sight,
And hearts, so warm, so kind, so good,
Have like a granite pillar stood.
But, when earth's blossoms all decay,
And from its scenes we pass away,
May flowers immortal round us bloom,
"Beyond the confines of the tomb;"
And one eternal spring be ours,
In heaven's amaranthine bowers.

IN MEMORY OF F. A. SMITH.

The trumpet of war was blown;
Such a war had ne'er been known
In our own dear native land;
But our country's call was heard,
And our young men drew the sword,
By the dear old flag to stand.

With a patriotic zeal,
From the college, young and leal,
He came to defend the right;
From the scenes of home he went
To the bivouac and the tent,
And the fearful bloody fight.

While myriads in the field,
In the throes of death, did yield
To insatiate war's demand;
It was his to come once more,
To the friends he loved before,
To the dear domestic band.

To a mother, faithful, true,
To an only sister too,
And to brothers left behind;
Save one who fell in the fight,
And had gone to realms of light,
To his father's will resigned.

At length, with his chosen wife,
He hopes that his future life
May be spent in joy and peace—
But our fondest hopes, alas!
Like a transient vapor, pass,
And our earthly pleasures cease.

In the pride of manhood now,
With a fair scholastic brow,
The visions of hope appear—
But the sable monster, strong,
Invites him to come along,
And visit his realms so drear.

Not alone where sabres clash,
Not alone where cannons flash,
Is the great destroyer found.
But diseases stalk abroad,
To deface the work of God,
And to strew their wreck around.

For a raging fever now,
Is flushing that manly brow,
And the quickened pulse's beat
Tells that death has claimed his prey,
And will bear him soon away,
To his gloomy dark retreat.

On a cool October day,
There was sadly borne away
To his rest—a cherished one—
From his labors he did cease,
In the grave he rests in peace,
For his earthly work is done.

He sleeps in a lonely grave,
Near by where the gentle wave
Throws its ripples on the shore.
His soul could no longer stay,
But calmly has passed away,
And the toils of life are o'er

In peace let him sweetly rest,
Till his Maker's high behest,
Shall summon his dust to rise;
Meanwhile, let us calmly wait,
And when opens the pearly gate,
May we meet him in the skies.

A HYMN.

The spring in beauty comes
With blossoms bright and fair,
Which shed around our rural homes
A fragrance rich and rare.

The great Creator's sun
Gives light and heat to all;
While on the evil and the good,
The raindrops freely fall.

To every helpless one
His aid is kindly given,
That he may say "Thy will be done,"
And choose the way to Heaven.

Let us poor mortals be Submissive to his will,
In all the acts of life may we
His righteous law fulfill.

Then, when life's labors cease,
And here no more we roam,
With holy joy and heavenly peace,
We shall be welcomed home.

THE NEW YEAR.

The old year now is past,
And the new is ushered in;
Shut out the follies of the last,
And with hope the new begin.

Begin with strong intent,
To shun the paths of evil;
Firmly, from wicked ways dissent,
And disappoint the devil.

Control your appetite,
Both when you eat and drink;
Then, you may sleep quite sound at night
And closely, and clearly, think.

Then, when the year grows old,
And he is about to die,
You can take his icy hand so cold,
And bid him a long good bye.

MUSINGS.

When solemn night with sable train, —
 Her mantle spread o'er hill and plain,
 And darkness did in silence reign,
     I mused awhile
 Upon life's journey woe and pain,
     And transient smile.

I saw the twinkling gems of night,
 As through the heavens they shed their light,
 And on the earth with splendor bright,
     They mildly shone;
 I gazed with rapture on the sight,
     While all alone.

In unknown space these mighty spheres,
 In harmony, roll on their years,
 While man, through dangers, toils and fears,
     Is doomed to go,
 A wanderer in this vale of tears,
     A child of woe.

What causes this, the querist cries,
 'Tis sin, the sacred muse replies,
 For man was holy, good, and wise,
     When first from God,
 In innocence he did arise,
     And Eden trod.

But since by sin came pain and woe,
 We're doomed to share it here below,
 Yet, is there nothing as we go
     To cheer life's way?
 Does consolation never flow,
     O, shall we say?

O, say it not, for life hath joy,
 Altho' 'tis mixed with time's alloy,
 And earthly woes our peace annoy,
     Yet, if we're wise,
 Far greater bliss we shall enjoy,

And while we're doomed to sojourn here,
 Our kindred and our friends so dear
 Shall share our joys, our souls shall cheer,
     Nay, fondly bless,
 And drop the sympathetic tear,
     While in distress.

Thus, Friendship blooms awhile on earth,—
 Altho' it is of heavenly birth,
 And will retain immortal worth
     Beyond the grave,
 When buried is the voice of mirth,
     By death's cold wave.

SPRING.

Winter's dreary reign is over,
 Spring's warm breath again is felt;
 Snowy wreaths, which late did cover
 Every landscape like a belt,
 When young spring o'er earth did hover,
 In her balmy smile did melt.

Birds are singing in the forest;
 Trees their leaflets now display;
 Gentle wild flowers, gay but modest,
 Greet you by the woodland way;
 Or, o'er prairie fields the broadest,
 Send their odors far away.

Now has come the busy seed-time.
 Farmers sow the early grain;
 In the groves we hear the bird-chime,
 After gentle showers of rain;
 O, it is the glorious springtime,
 But not long will it remain.

Spring, thy reign will soon be ended;
 Soon the summer queen will come,
 And thy charms with hers be blended
 Round the cotter's quiet home,
 While by fairy bands attended,
 Thou to other lands wilt roam.

TO A SOLDIER BOY—A FRAGMENT.

I write to you, dear Alvan,
 In measured lines this time,
 It may not pass for poetry,
 But surely it shall rhyme;
 If I could paint the homestead
 In words like pictures bright,
 I'd show you how things look here
 At morning, noon and night.
 The kitchen, ay, 'twould please you,
 Could you take a peep in there,
 And see the stove and wood-box,
 The clock, and old arm-chair,
 The whip, on the same nail hanging,
 Behind the outer door,
 Where you hung it, ere in battle
 You heard the cannon roar.
 And the hats and caps beneath it,
 All lying on the floor,
 And the pet pup there among them
 As he used to be before;
 And the table on the one side,
 As it used to stand, you know,
 And the mirror on the other,
 As it hung long time ago.
 And the inmates busy reading
 The papers of the day,
 Of bloody fights and sieges,
 In Dixie far away;
 While, at his post of duty,
 The soldier boy is found,
 With hard-tack for his rations,
 His bed the frozen ground.

"ABSENT, BUT NOT FORGOTTEN."

The days have passed slowly away,
The hours have quite tardily flown,
Most surely they ling'ringly stay,
For Mary, dear Mary has gone.

When we to our table repair,
At morning, at noon, and at eve,
Our eyes fall on one vacant chair,
Made vacant when Mary did leave.

When shadows of night gather round,
And the family circle have met,
All vacant her seat is still found,
And the vacancy all do regret.

The Sabbath again has returned,
Last Sabbath our Mary was here,
Now gone, and her absence is mourned,
For a season, no more she'll appear.

She's gone from her home in the West,
To New England, the land of the free,
Where her ancestors quietly rest—
That land will her future home be.

She's gone—may a future all bright,
With blessings before her arise;
May it ever be hers to do right,
And virtue and truth always prize.

She's gone—yet remembered by those
From whom she is parted awhile,
In memory, her worth will repose,
While fancy reveals her sweet smile.

She's absent—Forgotten? O never!
Her faults, we will lightly pass by,
Her worth, may it live on forever,
Till we all live forever on high.

THE CLOSE OF THE YEAR—A COM-PARISON.

The beauty of summer has faded,
The glory of autumn has passed,
And winter though lame and jaded,
Comes hurrying on at last.
Thus must wandering mortals,
Happy, or sad, or gay,
Pass through death's dark portals,
To the regions far away.
They must fade as the summer doth fade,
Like autumn their glory must pass;
For all, whom Jehovah has made,
Must go, to the grave, alas!

"MAN WAS MADE TO MOURN."

When buoyant, on the floating breeze
Of life's bright summer, we are borne,
When everything around doth please,
We hardly think we're made to mourn.

When lovely friends, with kindness dear,
To us their sympathies have shown,
But few the omens that appear,
To tell us, that we're made to mourn.

But when the ills of life are felt,
And life of its fond pleasure shorn,
And anguish deep the heart doth melt,
We truly feel, we're made to mourn.

When nature's beauties lose their charm,
And grief the weary soul has worn,
And sorrow sounds a deep alarm,
Alas! how natural 'tis to mourn.

And when our dearest friends have fled,
And by relentless death, are torn
From us, and numbered with the dead,
'Tis nature's precious boon, to mourn.

But when our friends have passed away,
And after them we too are borne,
If we have walked in "Wisdom's way,"
We shall forever cease to mourn.

THE EXIT.

Days and weeks, and months, and years,
Pass away as roll the spheres;
All things earthly hurry on,
Soon we mortals shall be gone.
Let us as we pass away,
Do the duties of each day,
Faithfully, the moments spend,
Persevering to the end.
Do the work we have to do,
Well, and faithfully, and true.
Then from toil, when life shall cease,
We shall have a sweet release.
Grief, and care, and labor o'er,
We shall reach the "Shining Shore."
There the weary ever rest,
With the holy and the blest.
