PREFACE.

After nearly four years of preparatory work this book is sent out to subscribers. Some, perhaps, have become a little impatient on account of delay and unfulfilled announcements at different times. If any blame for the non-appearance of the work at an earlier day is to be laid at the door of the genealogist he will endeavor to submit with meekness to an accusation which may be just. He is quite sure that with financial resources sufficient to enable one to give it undivided attention, also to visit correspondents who failed to reply, a work of this kind might be produced in one-third of the time. There have been vexatious delays on account of tardy correspondents. As this is a general failing with mankind it was not unexpected. Many were very prompt and always willing to furnish all the information they could. In some instances letter after letter was sent to the same persons, to which no response was returned, even when they contained a stamped and addressed envelope for reply. For this reason some should not be surprised if they are not as extensively noticed in this book as they think they should be. A very few refused to have anything to do with the work. A portion of this inconsiderable minority were probably affected with the erroneous impression that it was a money-making scheme. Such do not know that the actual cost of the book is more than nine dollars per copy.

On the other side, which is that of the great majority, the editor has received many words of commendation and encouragement, for which he here returns sincere thanks. He also wishes to express his gratitude to those who so generously aided financially. Among these are mentioned Chauncey Kilmer, of New York City ; J. M. Kilmer, Binghamton, N. Y. ; F. M. Kilmer, Boston, Mass. ; S. Andral Kilmer, M. D., Sanitaria Springs, N. Y. ; Geo. W. Kilmer, Towanda, Pa. ; Kilmer Manufacturing Company, Newburgh, N. Y. ; Washington Kilmer,

M. D., Orlando, Florida. Mentioning these only may seem unfair to some for the reason that two hundred dollars from one person would not represent any more good-will than two dollars from another in less fortunate circumstances. This is true, but without the aid of these mentioned it seems reasonable to say that this book would not have appeared. The work is also indebted to F. B. Kilmer, of New Brunswick, New Jersey, for valuable data secured at his personal expense.

In the circumstances it is a good thing that the book could not be issued when circular number four announced it would be. The delay has afforded opportunity for corrections and the grouping of some hitherto scattered lines. At best the work is imperfect and would be if double the time should be used. With this in view the pages have a wide margin for notations which any may desire to make.

The records for search have been very meagre. Bread-getting was paramount to genealogy in the early days of our ancestry, besides, their education, generally, was limited. Even with the best educated old English people, genealogy generally runs back into the fabulous or other forms of darkness. Queen Victoria traces her lineage back to Cerdic, King of the West-Saxons, said to have been the fifteenth in descent from Odin, whom tradition places about one hundred years before the Christian era, but the names of the fifteen are missing. For completeness in genealogical line we have to look in the Scriptures, where we find the genealogy of Christ as son of man given from Abraham down in Matthew, and as Son of God from Christ back to Adam in Luke. This marvelous record is without a parallel.

For our complete genealogy we will have to wait until the Resurrection, when all the tribes of earth will be gathered to their appointed place under their accredited standards and leaders.

Many are living now in Germany and Holland of whom we here know very little. The compiler was surprised to find the great number now living in this country. He is glad that it has not been necessary to search any prison records. Though none have gained great prominence as the world counts, it is his prayer that a great number may gain eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord.

INTRODUCTION.

Philip Kelmer and his family were probably the first bearing this name to place their feet on American soil. Their native place was Hesse-Cassell Germany, and they formed part of an army of men, women and children who were refugees from the German Palatinate, and arrived in this country in 1710.

It seems necessary to make at least some brief reference to the privations, sufferings and discouragements of this people in their flight from persecution and their early days here.

In September, 1688, Louis XIV. of France began the invasion of the German Palatinate, which he desolated with fire and sword. This invasion, together with his revocation of the Edict of Nantes, nearly three years previous, alarmed the Protestant inhabitants of the Palatinate, causing them to flee from their homes and seek refuge in Holland and England. The edict had been in force eighty-seven years and had given to the Huguenots left in France some liberties, but with these revoked the alarmed Palatines, fearing the same persecutions suffered by their Protestant neighbors would also be inflicted on them, quickly decided on a general exodus. The number of this mixed multitude cannot be estimated. It is on record that forty thousand of them were at one time encamped in the vicinity of London, and collections were taken for their relief in the Protestant churches of England. The English government thought it Christian duty to render still further aid to these suffering people so suddenly swept over on her domain. The plan was to colonize on her possessions on the American continent. It was foreseen that the emigrants must have some provision for their maintenance on their arrival as well as the furnishment of transportation.

English officers on this side had sent information to the home government that there were extensive pine forests in the province of New York along the Hudson river which might be utilized in the production of tar, resin, pitch and turpentine for the royal navy. At this time England was purchasing these supplies from Sweden, Norway and Russia, and it was considered wise policy to make provision for this important industry on her own territory.

For their transportation Queen Anne fitted an expensive fleet of ten ships, which set sail from Portsmouth on Christmas day, 1709. The voyage was long and tedious; some of the vessels reached New York in June following, and the last one did not arrive until the latter part of July. Much sickness on board had greatly reduced their number. They were landed on Governor's Island, and committed to the care and inspection of the governor of New York, Robert Hunter, who encamped them in tents and divided them into companies, over each of which a captain was placed, thus being under a kind of military rule, and evidently not regarded as free citizens.

Governor Hunter proceeded at once to carry out the plan of the English government and bought of Robert Livingston six thousand acres of land about one hundred and ten miles above the port of New York, on the east side of the Hudson. The tract was principally rocks and white pine trees. Upon this many Palatines located for the business of tar making. They scattered about in large groups of families and built their huts in villages. Their settlement where Germantown now is was called "The Camp," and was the home of Peter Kelmer. A house then was a pit dug in the ground, six or seven feet deep, shaped like a cellar. This was cased around with timber, and usually lined with the bark of trees, to prevent earth-caving. Plank was used for floors and ceiling. The roof was made of spars, covered with green sod or bark. This was the style of architecture for perhaps twenty years, when they began to build of stone.

The tar making business was not successful. The white pine did not furnish suitable material for the naval stores. Before the second year at the tar-camp was passed, they began to be in great need of provision and clothing. The five pounds in money they were to receive in advance, from the English government, they did not get—nor any portion. They were promised clothes, utensils, and tools belonging to husbandry as soon as settled here, but of these it appears they received but a very small quantity. These things were sent over with them, and the non-distribution greatly reflects on the provincial officers. The subsequent treatment of these destitute people by the governor tends to confirm this suspicion. Without their consent he took many of their children and bound them to the inhabitants of the province until twenty-one, depriving the parents, as cited from their complaint, of their comfort and company ; also the privilege of educating them, as well as the assistance they might reasonably expect to receive from them in a short time. In this second year of their occupancy of the manor of Livingston, orders came to detail three hundred able-bodied men to serve in the expedition against Canada, which they cheerfully obeyed. On their return their arms were taken from them, although by her majesty's express orders they should have kept them. Also, during this time of service they did not receive any wages, though the money was especially furnished, and the troops placed on the establishment of the New York province.

No one can tell all the hardships of these people in their early days of settlement here. We know they were severe. In the winter of 1712 and '13, we note much suffering as recorded in their grievances in documentary history, especially with the weaker portion, the women and children ; and in their pitiful destitution, without necessary food or clothing, they were obliged to seek relief from the Indians, by whom they were kindly received. Fifty families left camp and traveled through an unbroken wilderness over the Catskills to the Schoharie river, in the hope of better prospects. The wrongs and persecutions which these Palatines, who went to Schoharie, suffered from the hands of the officers of the province, seem to equal in severity the worst in history. They were hunted, robbed, dispossessed, and thrown into prison. We have not space to follow this out into detail, and besides, the fact that Philip Kelmer and family were not among the early Schoharie Palatines would make it somewhat irrelevant. Suffice it to say that the thoughtful reader of history will discover that the galling yoke of English oppression was placed on the necks of her subjects before the odious stamp acts. The spirit of independence uttered its feeble cry from these Palatines, and which, growing stronger with the years as they were able to establish themselves in more independent positions, became active in the valiant soldiery of their grand-children in 1776.

It will at least be charitable to say that the English government could not at that time be held as responsible for the acts of its subordinates, as it would be in these days of ocean cable and rapid transit.

The production of naval stores, promising by their representations adequate returns, was a disastrous experiment and cost the treasury of England a large sum of money.

Philip Kelmer remained on the manor with the sixty-three families, who received from the government the Patent of 1725 for six thousand acres of land. This document was for more than one hundred years among the archives of the Lutheran church at Germantown, but as it was in demand in the courts proving titles, it has been carelessly allowed to drift into the hands of some lawyer, no one knows exactly where. It should be returned to its proper place and put in safe keeping with the other ancient records of this church. In the summer of 1896 these valuable books were found on the top of a cupboard in an ice cream saloon. Therein is recorded, with hundreds of others, the marriages and baptisms of Philip Kelmer's children, grand-children and great-grand-children.

In Documentary History of New York Philip Kelmer's family, according to the descriptive numeration of that period, is thus described: "Two men, two lads from nine to fifteen, one boy from eight and under, one woman, and two maids, from nine to fifteen." The two men were probably Philip, the father, and the oldest son, named George. The two boys from nine to fifteen, Simon and John. The boy from eight and under, Abraham. The woman, his wife, and one of the two girls, Elizabeth.

As nearly as can be determined from the church records, which are the oldest, most authentic, and indeed about all we have for our guidance, George, oldest son of Philip, married Anna Margaret Falkenburg. His children were: Johannes, baptized October 7, 1725; Wilhelmus, baptized May 18, 1741; Maria, May 12, 1743; and Anna Margaret, August 30, 1747.

Simon, son of Philip, married Elizabeth Fonk. His children were: Elizabeth, baptized 1731; Simon, May 27, 1740; Adam, November 28, 1742; and George.

Johannes, son of Philip, married Anna Becker. His children were: Elizabeth, baptized 1732; Johannes, August 27, 1739; Wilhelmus, May, 1746; George, 1748; Catharine, August 13, 1749; Gertrude, December, 1751.

Elizabeth, daughter of Philip, married Nicholas Phickel. One child, Nicholas, baptized 1732, was found on the record.

Abraham, son of Philip, married Anna Eva Link. His children were: Nicholas, baptized December, 1741; Emerich, June, 1742; Elizabeth, February 5, 1744; Catharine, March 2, 1745; Adam, 1748; Wilhelmus, June 17, 1752.

It will be seen that the editor in his plan of the book does not strictly follow the chart. This refers principally to the center. He does not claim that his chart is absolutely correct from center to circumference. We cannot call back our great-grandfathers to prove or disprove. If they had done as much according to their facilities as we have done they would receive our thanks, as we hope to receive the thanks of our descendants. The chart will have to stand as it is until some one discovers documents to correct, or supply the missing links.

We have nothing concerning Philip Kelmer but his name as one of the Palatines and the number in his family. From the old church records we have been able to gather in groups some of his immediate descendants, as given in this introduction and placed on the chart.

From Documentary History of New York and church records we learn something about Johannes, supposed to be his son, and from nine to fifteen years old when they arrived at the camp. His name is recorded, Johannes Külmer, among those characterized as sober and industrious and willing to remain on the Manor after the failure of the "tarr" industry. He was nominated to the governor in 1724 by the surveyor general as one of four to whom was to be granted the six thousand acres of land in trust for the benefit of the sixty-three families remaining on Manor. The nomination was confirmed by order of the governor and council and Letters Patent granted, as here before noted, and comprising what is now Germantown, New York. Was an elder in the "Church of the Sanctity," now Reformed Church of Germantown, where his name appears frequently in his official capacity. Our inferences concerning his relation to Philip Kelmer, the Palatine, are supposed to be correct, yet we leave him out of our history as the progenitor of generations in order to make the entire plan of the book uniform, and start the generations with a head known to be correct by those now living.

Descendants of George and Simon, supposed sons of Philip Kelmer, the Palatine, so far cannot be traced, and our history begins with Johannes (m. Elizabeth Mickle), son of Johannes, (m. Anna Becker), son of Philip; followed by Wilhelmus (m. Gertrude Pulver), son of Johannes (m. Anna Becker), son of Philip; and the descendants of Abraham supposed to be the youngest son of Philip Kelmer.

GEORGE W. Born February 2, 1842, in Asylum, Bradford County, Pa.

His boyhood days were passed on his father's farm in Macedonia (same county), and in the public schools of the district. Afterward he attended the Susquehanna Collegeiate Institute for nearly two years ; or until the trumpet of war called him from the halls of learning to the camp and battle-field. His grandfather George served his country with credit in the second war for American Independence, and the grandson true to patriotic lineage was naturally stirred by the spirit of patriotism and love of the old Flag. He enlisted in Company I, 6th Pennsylvania Reserves, and went to Harrisburg, where he became unable by sickness to perform military service, was discharged from the hospital and returned home. At this time he was young, just past nineteen years. One year thereafter, during the formation of the "Bradford Regiment," known in service as the 141st Pennsylvania Volunteers, he again offered his services to his country. It is noteworthy that we find in referring to a history of this regiment, that he declined a commission that was offered, because he considered himself too young to accept a commissioned office. This decision, in contradistinction to the general trend of human ambition, speaks for itself without comment. He did, however, accept the next office to a commissioned office, and went out as First Sergeant of Company C. The 141st Pennsylvania Volunteers was known as one of the best fighting regiments in the war, participating in long and bloody series of battles, from Fredericksburg until the surrender of General Lee, among which were Chancellorsville, Wilderness, Spottsylvania C. H., Cold Harbor and Morris Farm. At Chancellorsville their loss was fifty per cent of the men engaged and at Gettysburg seventy-six per cent, and there was but one regiment, it is said, in the service where the loss was a greater per cent of the fighting men than this. On the 3rd of May, 1863, Sergeant Kilmer was promoted to First Lieutenant, for faithful and meritorious service, and at that time the youngest commissioned officer in the regiment. In the battles of the Wilderness, he received a wound in his right leg, but remained with his company in active service. His valor won for him another promotion, and on the 4th of July, 1864, he was made Captain of Company C. At the battle of Morris Farm, November 27, 1864, he was severely wounded in the head, was captured by the enemy and taken to Libby Prison. His captors, took his hat, coat, boots, and his six months' pay (over $1,000 in bright crisp greenbacks), just drawn. It is not the place here to speak of the horrors of the Southern Prison Pens. The sufferings of the captives were intense and beyond description. Fortunately a surgeon, who was his companion in captivity, dressed his wound and saved a life, which otherwise would have been another sacrifice to the horrible hospitality of the Rebels. February 18, 1865, he was paroled and sent to Annapolis, where he remained for a short time, then received a leave of absence for thirty days and came home. He returned to his regiment at the expiration of the time and remained with it until mustered out of service on the 28th day of May, 1865. After returning home he engaged in farming, and buying and selling cattle. In the fall of 1875 he was elected to the office of County Commissioner, proving an efficient and popular officer. It is not too much to say, that he is one of Bradford's most popular citizens and has frequently had conferred upon him by his townspeople offices of trust and responsibility, which he has always filled with remarkable fidelity. He is now President of the County Farmers' Alliance and Secretary of the Executive Board of the Pennsylvania State Farmers' Alliance and Industrial Union, and has been Steward in the M. E. Church for twenty-five years. His prominent characteristic is to carry on all things undertaken with persistent energy and unremitting activity. His home property consists of a well cultivated farm, new handsome residence and outbuildings, which together have cost him about $13,000.

This brief sketch of Mr. Kilmer's life would be incomplete without mentioning his noble wife, who is his valuable assistant and adviser. October 11, 1865, he married Helen A. Noble, whose acquaintance began at the Collegiate Institute, where she was a student and teacher. She afterward attended Mt. Holyoke Seminary.

SALOMA. Born December 22, 1863. Married Leroy Marshall, June 9th, 1869. They met a sad affliction by the death of Flossie, their youngest child, April 26, 1894, then eight years of age. The manner of death made it still sadder. The following regarding the accident is from a newspaper notice: "Flossie left home at eight o'clock on Thursday morning to go to her school, about one mile distant. Somewhere between eight and nine o'clock, a boy stopped at the house of Mr. Arnold, who lives in sight of the school house, and told him that as he was driving by, he saw what looked to be a child hanging from one of the windows. Mr. Arnold hastened to the spot and there found little Flossie Marshall hanging outside the building, her head just within, face downward and the window sash upon the back of her neck. He speedily removed the child from her terrible position, but help had come too late—she was dead. A board, one end upon the ground, the other resting against the building beneath the window, gave rise to the supposition that the child had slipped as she was endeavoring to gain admittance to the school-room through the open window, which by some means had fallen at the fateful moment and with such dreadful result.

REBECCA. Born at Barnerville, Schoharie county, N. Y. April 13, 1833. August 14, 1854, married Jacob N. Hager, who was in the hotel business a number of years. Mrs. Hager's church connection is Lutheran, and residence, Albany, N. Y.

EMILINE. Born October 6, 1835, in Cobleskill, N. Y., April 10, 1883, married Theodore Wood, a farmer. No children. Her church connection is Methodist Episcopal. Residence, Hobart, Delaware county, N. Y.

WASHINGTON, M. D. Born in Schoharie County, New York, April 5, 1838. He received his primary education in the common schools of his native town. His collegiate education was obtained at the Schoharie Academy, a school of wide reputation for a school of its class in that day. He received a full course of lectures at the Albany Medical College, graduating therefrom in 1860. On leaving the college, as a further means of perfecting himself in his profession, he accepted the position of resident physician of the City Infirmary of Albany, which institution then contained twelve hundred inmates and embraced the insane asylum, hospital and almshouse. In 1861, when the call was made for volunteer physicians, Dr. Kilmer went to Alexandria, Va., where he took charge of the Grace Church Hospital, and remained there three years. The last year of the war he was surgeon of the Sixteenth West Virginia Volunteers, located within the fortifications at Washington City. At the close of the war he remained in Washington and continued in the practice of his profession for three years, at the end of that time going to Ironton, Ohio, where he remained five years, in large and successful practice. On account of a general breaking down in physical ability, superinduced by his arduous professional labors, he decided in 1873, after having been given up for dead by several of his medical brethren, to make a journey on foot to Florida. He set out scarcely able to walk, but gathered strength as he proceeded, and a complete restoration to health, after tramping one thousand four hundred and fifty-three miles. During this time he was correspondent for the Cincinnati Commercial and contributed a number of interesting articles to that paper. He located in Altamont, Orange County, Florida, which name he gave to the locality. In October, 1864, he married Florence Davy, of Ironton, Ohio, who is a lineal descendant of Sir Humphrey Davy, the celebrated English chemist. During the doctor's residence in Orange county he has taken an active interest in all public questions, particularly in school matters. He has been chairman of the board of public instruction for eight years and has more than once championed the cause of good morals and religion in connection with the schools. In the fall of 1887, when the yellow fever was declared epidemic at Tampa, and a call was made by the physicians there for help, Dr. Kilmer volunteered his services, went down and gave the citizens of that place four weeks of unremitting labor, at the end of which time he became a victim of the disease and barely escaped death. When he returned home his fellow citizens presented him with a handsome gold watch, which bears this inscription: "Presented to Dr. W. Kilmer by the citizens of Orlando in appreciation of his services in the yellow fever epidemic at Tampa, November 24, 1887." The doctor still resides at Orlando, Florida, is interested in orange culture, and in active practice professionally, in which his skill is ununiversally recognized. For the past five years he has been surgeon of the Florida Central and Peninsular Railroad, the largest railway system in the state.

MARGARET.

JOSIAH.

DANIEL A. Born in Cobleskill, N. Y., December 11, 1832. In 1852 married Catharine Grum. He is an industrious farmer at Howe's Cave, N. Y., owning the excellent farm and buildings, where he has resided more than thirty years.

THOMAS J., M. D. Born Nov 22, 1833, at Cobleskill, N. Y. December 25, 1852, married Elmira Palmatier. Is a practicing physician at Schoharie, N. Y. A member of the Masonic order, and church connection, Methodist Episcopal.

ANDREW G. Born in Cobleskill, N. Y., January 5, 1836. He attended the district school, where he was known as a faithful scholar and afterward his father, encouraged by his close application to his studies, sent him to the Schoharie Academy, where he was under the special instruction of Prof. Geo. W. Briggs, its Principal.

At the age of 15 he taught a district school of 80 scholars, in which work he continued successfully for two years, and then resumed his studies, first at the Warnerville Seminary and afterward at the Perry Academy. Within a short time after entering the latter school he became a teacher in it and thus served in the double capacity of student and teacher until he had completed the full course of instruction, when he returned to his home and married Libbie Young, only daughter of David D. Young, in 1856.

He was known as a worthy, energetic young man, an enterprising citizen and a consistent member of the Lutheran Church, with which denomination his family has always been identified.

At the earnest solicitation of Prof. Briggs he became assistant Principal of the Schoharie Academy in 1867, and when Prof. Briggs terminated his connection with the Academy and became President of the Delaware Literary Institute at Franklin, N. Y., Prof. Kilmer was urged to remain as Principal of the Academy. The offer, however, he declined, and accepted the position of Vice-President of the Franklin Institute, which position he filled for four years, giving universal satisfaction.

In 1872 he became Principal of the graded school at Cobleskill and through his efforts the school was reorganized under the state Union Free School Act. The school was highly prosperous while under his charge, drawing a large patronage from the surrounding country. During the last year of his administration it numbered 93 non-resident students on its registry.

The village of Bainbridge, which had just erected a fine brick academy building, extended to him an invitation to become their Principal, which he accepted, remaining at the head of their school for three years.

After this he organized an academy at Schenevus, N. Y., where his efforts also met with a flattering success.

It will be seen that Prof. Kilmer's career as a teacher has been an important one, and that while he took high rank as an instructor, his ability as an organizer was especially marked and fully recognized by the various Boards of Education, by whom his services were secured. The several academies over which he presided as Principal were under the supervision of the Board of Regents of the state, and by them were specially complimented for their thorough and systematic course of instruction.

Prof. Kilmer carries many pleasant recollections of his work as a teacher, and the memory of many of his former pupils who have risen to positions of prominence in various professions, brings to him the encouragement and satisfaction of a useful and successful work.

In 1883 he gave up his life work as teacher and went to Binghamton, N. Y., and entered the business office of his brothers, Dr. Kilmer & Co., with whom he is still connected, being engaged at present at the Sanitarium owned by Dr. S. Andral Kilmer at Sanitaria Springs, N. Y., in the capacity of Assistant Superintendent.

S. ANDRAL, M. D. Born in the town of Cobleskill, Schoharie county, N. Y., December 19, 1840. He recalls even now in the multitude of his professional duties, with pleasant memories, the old log school house in Cobleskill where he first attended a district school. When he left these log walls he entered the halls of the Schoharie Academy, and afterward the Warnerville and Richmondville Seminaries. These he finished when he had reached the age of eighteen and entered the office of Dr. Scott, a prominent Allopathic physician in Schoharie county. Then, wishing to get outside the lines of the one-school idea, he studied with Dr. Downing, who has been called the successful pioneer of Homeopathy in the Schoharie region of New York State. Dr. Kilmer commenced the practice of medicine as a county physician at Barnerville, Schoharie county, N. Y. Although he aspired to rise in his profession, he found this to be too much up-hill work and abandoned his rides after about one and a half years' service. Following out the idea of a broad acquaintance with medicine and surgery he studied Eclectic and Botanic practice with Dr. Patrick of Wisconsin. But all these appeared to be but a beginning for he has documents that he attended the preliminary and regular course of the Bellevue Hospital and Medical College in New York City, where he had an opportunity for instruction at the Eye and Ear Infirmary on Blackwell's Island and other hospitals. A special practical course at the Philadelphia Lying-in-Charity Hospital, where instructions are given in practical Obstetrics and Diseases of Women ; at the Central Dispensary of Chicago, devoted to the same purpose ; at the Philadelphia School of Operative Surgery, under the special instruction of the noted physician, Dr. D. Hayes Agnew. Not only these, but there hangs in his office the diploma of the Bennett Medical College of Chicago.

After a successful tour of medical lectures and practice in the West, Dr. Kilmer settled in Binghamton, buying and building a residence on the plot where the extensive Kilmer Medicine Works are now located. He was first employed in visiting surrounding cities on advertised days, in which practice he was so famous and successful that he was soon enabled to commence the erection of his Laboratory buildings for the preparation of his remedies, which became necessary to supply the ever increasing demand.

From this modest, but well defined beginning, has grown up the present enormous business. The prominent success of the sale of Dr. Kilmer's remedies has been sustained by their growing reputation and merit. The verdict of the druggists throughout the country, is that these preparations have the largest sale of any proprietary remedies on the market.

During these years of increasing professional services far and wide, and astonishing growth of business, Dr. Kilmer was seeking somewhere in the United States some place most peculiarly favored by Nature for a Health Home and Hygienic Institute for suffering humanity. During this search he discovered the wonderful properties of the sulpho-phosphate spring in a place then called Osborne Hollow, ten miles northeast of the city of Binghamton, N. Y. Here he built, at an expense of $100,000, the New Sanitarium and Hydrotherapium. It is located in a gently mountainous region in the Blue Hill Tunnel Range, 2,000 feet above the sea level. Outside is a well arranged system of natural parks. The present buildings contain every modern convenience, including electric lights and bells, steam heaters, and elevators. Besides the principal waters of the sulphophosphate spring, there are ten others, which include the Blue Lithia, Red Iron, Black Magnetic, and Ferro-Manganese. All kinds of baths are in use summer and winter, including Sulphur, Turkish, Russian, and Electric. The marvelously beneficial results of the waters are supplemented by the skill of a physician who has treated more than half a million patients. If this article shall appear like an advertisement to any, it becomes such unavoidably, and the writer may say, unintentionally, in describing the life work of a successful member of the Kilmer Family.

CHAUNCEY C.

JONAS M. Born in Cobleskill, New York, April 11, 1843. At the age of twenty-two he went to New York City, where he remained thirteen years in the mercantile business. During this time he was connected as salesman with the large and well known houses of H. B. Claflin, E. S. Jaffrey and Company, and Cochrane, McLane and Company. In 1878 he went to Binghamton, New York, and engaged in the Medical Dispensary of his brother, Dr. S. Andral Kilmer. In 1881 he became an equal partner with his brother, and thus being more closely identified with the establishment, made plans for the increase of the business and gradually enlarged it from the comparatively small area of a few counties in the State to all parts of the United States and in South America and West Indies. In 1892 he bought the half interest of his brother, Dr. S. Andral Kilmer, and is now sole owner of all trade marks, copyrights, and the entire business of the manufacture of proprietary medicines. The buildings are on the corner of Chenango and Virgil streets, covering nearly one-fourth of a city square, with branch offices in New York, Chicago, Rio De Janeiro, U. S. of Brazil, S. A., and Kingston, Jamaica, West Indies.

An enterprise that has reached the extent and success that this has in a little more than a dozen years, seems to be proof of the merit of the remedies offered to the public, and of the able and energetic management of the business.

December 18, 1868, he married Julia E. Sharpe, daughter of Peter G. Sharpe of Sharon Springs, N. Y.

Mr. Kilmer is Police Commissioner, a member, with his wife, of the North Presbyterian Church, and a trustee in the same society. His first church connection was with the Talmage Tabernacle, in Brooklyn.

IRVING A. Born in Cobleskill, N. Y., June 8, 1850. March 23, 1893, he met a sudden and distressing death by swallowing carbolic acid by mistake. At the time of his death he was Vice-President and general mechanical engineer of the Kilmer Manufacturing Company. Without any disparagement to any of his brothers in their several executive and mechanical abilities, Irving had been called the inventive mind of the well-known Kilmer industry. It is said that he betrayed his mechanical genius at the early age of four years, when he dissected the household clock, and put it together again so that it kept time as well as before. During his brief and active life he conceived a number of inventions which were patented. Among these were three fasteners for bale ties known as Figure Eight, Adjustable and Arrowhead. He also devised machines for the manufacture of these inventions and also for barbed wire. February 15, 1876, married Mary Rifenberg. She died in 1887. His second wife, Emma Greatsinger of Newburg, N. Y., survives him.

ARTHUR M. Born July 10, 1851. February 15, 1876 married Kate Rockerfellow. He died July 4, 1880.

THALAS S. Born November 17, 1854. March 26, 1880, married Martha Quackenbush.

LUELLA. Born September 22, 1856. January 1, 1880, married Edward Davis.

MELVIN D. Born July 29, 1858. Married Mary F. Hoag. He is a thirty-second degree Mason.

ELMER E. Born May 4, 1860, in Schoharie county, N. Y. The subjoined sketch was prepared by one of his New York friends.

He has been engaged in the manufacture of wire since boyhood, and has a natural aptitude for inventions. In 1884 Mr. Kilmer located in Chicago and subsequently formed the Kilmer Bale Tie Company, which has a capital stock of $100,000, in which Company he is one of the largest stockholders. This Company has its offices at 21 Quincy Street in the City of Chicago, and its extensive factories are at Joliet, Illinois, a distance of about 40 miles from Chicago. It also has a branch at Cortland, N. Y., and to Mr. Kilmer's indomitable push and energy is due the great success which has marked this Company from the start. Mr. Kilmer is and has been since its inception, the President of the Company. The directors, appreciating his conservatism and unerring judgment wisely leave the entire direction of the Company to him, content with drawing their dividends.

He may justly point with pride to the fact that his Company has no liabilities. Besides the manufacture of Bale Ties of various kinds, his Company has recently entered into the field in the manufacture of Wire Fencing of different styles, and the reception which their fencing has received in the market has been most gratifying to all interested. The factories are a perfect bee hive of industry and an inspection of them is very interesting.

Personally Mr. Kilmer is a gentleman of culture and while he is devoted to his family, he is also very fond of society, enjoying having his friends spend the evenings at his handsome home at 5735 Indiana Avenue, Chicago. This house was erected by Mr. Kilmer in the year 1893 and is architecturally a fine structure. In the rear are commodious stables. Mr. Kilmer is fond of horses and drives a good one.

June 4th, 1885, he married Miss Ella Myers, a native of Schoharie County, N. Y., a lady of estimable character, but of frail constitution. She died about five years after their marriage.

January 19th, 1891, Mr. Kilmer married Anna Elkins, M. D., then a practicing physician and resident of Brooklyn, N. Y., who is a daughter of Horatio B. Elkins, D. D., a clergyman of the Methodist Episcopal Church. His wife is a very talented lady, she is a graduate of the New York Medical College and Hospital for Women. She is deeply read in medical practice and makes a specialty of diseases of women and children. Success has marked her course to such an extent that she has a large clientele and her patients are lavish in their praise of her skill, among whom can be numbered the writer of this sketch. She has never lost a child whom she has treated.

The union of Mr. and Dr. Kilmer has been a most happy one, for they are in every sense companions.

WILHELMUS KÜLMER.

Baptized at East Camp (now Germantown, N. Y.) in 1746. From tradition and records a few items pertaining to his personal history have been gathered, and though very meagre, are interesting to his living descendants.

Fortunately his grandson, Charles, rescued a note book used by his grandfather and found by him among the descendants of Wilhelmus, in Pennsylvania. It is made of white-birch bark, and is now in possession of Frederic B., son of Charles. The memoranda it contains is written in good German for that time, indicating that the owner possessed more than the average education, and contains some family record, and business transactions.

It seems evident that Wilhelmus was a prosperous farmer, a slave holder, and highly esteemed in his community.

October 27, 1767, he married Gertrude Pulver. The original record reads, Wilhelmus Kulmer mit Gertian Pulver. Some of his descendants now living in Pennsylvania say that he served in the Revolutionary War. In the last years of his life he lived in Carlisle, Schoharie county, N. Y.

FIRST GENERATION.

MARIA. Baptized August 21, 1768. Married Dr. Horn.

WILLIAM. Baptized February 7th, 1775. Left New York state and settled in Pennsylvania, near Dundaff, Susquehanna county, and for some reason his name was changed to Coleman. One version of his descendants concerning this change, is, that the Welch people, who had a colony in his neighborhood, could not well pronounce Kulmer and called it Kulman, which easily became Kolman and afterward Coleman. This, it must be admitted, was carelessness, through which family names have been easily corrupted. The editor remembers that in some places where his father's family resided we were often called Kilmore, and sometimes Gilmore. It does not require much backbone to hold on to the correct name. Another version of the change in William's name is the tradition, that he left New York for some trifling offense, and desired that the people there should be ignorant of his location.

ELIZABETH. Baptized May 4, 1777. Never married.

GERTRUDE. Baptized, 1781. Married Philip Clum. It is said that she accompanied the family of Robert R. Livingston, minister-plenipotentiary to France, about 1801-3, as companion and chaperon to Livingston's daughters.

PETER. Baptized September 2, 1785. The year of his birth is not known. In those days children were generally baptized a few months after birth. Occasionally one, two or three years might intervene where circumstances prevented. This statement is made here as especially fitting in his case, which can also be applied in a general way to others, where one might be particular about exact year of birth.

He married Mary Pulver evidently at early marriageable age. The greater portion of his life, lived at Copake, N. Y., and was a simple German farmer of the Palatine type.

His education was necessarily limited. Tradition tells us that he was a faithful student of the German Bible, and the possessor of books of German poetry. Was an attendant of the "Vedder Church" (Dutch Reformed), where his children were baptized.

JEREMIAH. Baptized April 20, 1788. Married Susanah T. Kinyon. Died about the middle of the year 1820, in consequence of injuries received by a falling tree. His widow married Thomas P. Clum, son of Jeremiah's sister, Gertrude.

PHILIP. Baptized April 18, 1790. The earliest known record places him at home, in the town of Carlisle, Schoharie county, N. Y. About 1818 he married Catharine Barner. In 1839 he sold his farm in Schoharie county and moved with his family to Greenfield, Lackawanna county, Pa. Here he purchased a farm, which is now owned and occupied by his grandson, Norman L.

ELSGEN. Baptized 1792. The only record of this child is in the birch-bark book. Traditionary information says she died young.

ALEXANDER. Born 1805. Died 1845. (Unmarried.)

WILLIAM H. Born 1807. Died 1850. (Unmarried.)

HARRIET. Married Taylor. (Frequently in those days a child was named after one who had died.)

CHARLES. Born in Copake, Columbia county, N. Y., September 6, 1812. His boyhood days were passed upon what has always been known as the "Kilmer Place," Livingston Manor.

In his boyhood home candles were considered a luxury and not to be wasted on such an unimportant thing as an education, but he was persevering and gathered pine knots for a light by which to work out sums in Daball's Arithmetic and sentences in Murray's Grammar.

When eighteen years of age, he left home with his effects tied in a bundle swung across his shoulders, for Ore Hill, Litchfield County, Connecticut, to work in the ore mines. In 1836 he married Angelina Hubbard, who, it is said, possessed a sweet disposition and an excellent Christian character. She died about a year after the marriage. (Buried in Town Hill Cemetery.) January 4th, 1836, he married Mary Ann Langdon, a daughter of Samuel Langdon and Mary Evarts. Samuel Langdon was the son of John Langdon, locally famous as "Quaker John." [See History Col. County Evarts and Ensign, 1878. Hughes American Ancestry, Columbia County, 1887.]

When a young man he was quite robust and athletic, and it is related that a storekeeper bantered him with the offer of a barrel of flour if he could carry it home on his back. He picked it up and went off whistling, not stopping until inside his door. In those days money was not a plentiful medium of exchange and he often carried home his wages in the form of a bushel of corn or some other commodity on his back. About 1845, in the Maxon Place, foot of Bird Mountain, he quarried lime stone and run a colliery, in company with Henry Bird, for supplying the iron works in the vicinity. In 1849 he moved to Mt. Washington, Connecticut. After about a year's stay he moved to Chapinsville, Conn., and was yardmaster for the Landon Iron Furnace, thence to Ore Hill, to engage in mining iron ore. While here, for a time he sold books for the then famous house of J. C. Derby, New York. In 1855 sold his place at Ore Hill and removed to Plymouth, Chenango County, New York, making the journey with his family by horse and wagon. At Plymouth he maintained a colliery for supplying the Norwich Iron Company with charcoal. In 1857 he removed to Kirkwood, Broome County New York. While here he resided for a time in a log cabin. Went to Binghamton in 1858 for the laudable purpose of giving his sons an opportunity of obtaining an education. About 1870 he purchased a stove and tin store, in which enterprise he continued until disease and failing strength, coupled with the illness of his wife, (who for seven years was a sufferer from paralysis), necessitated retirement from business activities

Though limited in early life in educational advantages, he acquired and retained a remarkable knowledge, particularly of the scriptures and ancient and modern history. He possessed a decisive character, was a devout member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, being at one time a "licensed exhorter" in that body. In politics he was a Whig, afterwards a Republican, and a firm supporter of the war for the Union. In his later years he espoused the cause of Prohibition and cast the first ballot for that party in Broome County, writing the ballot with his own hands, and in the returns proved the only one cast in the county for this ticket. During his life he was greatly interested in the Kilmer genealogy, and left notes which have been of great service in the compilation of this work.

Died at the residence of his son Frederick B. at New Brunswick, New Jersey, February 12, 1886. Buried in Glenwood Cemetery at Binghamton, N. Y.

CATHARINE. Born November 9, 1814, at Copake, N. Y.

MARIA. Born August 9, 1817. February 21, 1847, married Frederick Barnett. A few years after Mr. Barnett was killed by the caving in of an iron ore mine at Ore Hill, Ct. Mrs. Barnett was very industrious and frugal. The editor holds this aunt and Catharine above in very grateful remembrance on account of legacies left by them which greatly assisted in liquidating debts contracted during his preparation for the ministry. Mrs. Barnett died March 19, 1884.

In 1845 or '46 they went to Greenfield, Lackawanna county, Pa., where they finished their days. Mrs. Kilmer died in 1887, and Mr. Kilmer in 1888. Both are buried in the Vail Cemetery, about six miles west of the city of Carbondale. His life occupation was farming.

Children of Charles⁵, [Peter⁴, Wilhelmus³, Johannes², Philip¹.]

OLIVER AMERMAN. Born in Salisbury, Ct., November 20, 1838. Named after Rev. Oliver Amerman the officiating clergyman at the marriage ceremony of his parents.

At the age of twelve he was attending the district school in winter and in summer hauling iron-ore from Ore Hill, in Salisbury, to the blast furnaces in the vicinity. We mention incidentally that it was this Salisbury ore that supplied the furnace, or "forge" as it was then called, of Ethan Allen, (of Ticonderoga fame), at Furnace Village, Ct., which he built there and said to be the first blast furnace built in the state. Also that the ships Constellation and Old Ironsides, and the Battery in New York were armed with Salisbury cannon.

At the age of twenty he became a resident of Binghamton, N. Y., where he attended the Academy, and afterwards the Susquehanna Seminary, in summers, and taught school in the surrounding districts in winters.

In April 1861, when Southern hatred sent shot and shell at Fort Sumpter, and President Lincoln called for 75,000 men, he responded without delay. May be the apparition of Ethan Allen along the historic iron-ore transportation roads in Salisbury, or the far-away echo of Salisbury cannon, here manifested its fruit.

He enlisted in Company D., 27th N. Y. Volunteer Infantry as private, was promoted to corporal the November following, and in May following to first sergeant. He participated in all the battles of his regiment. This included Bull Run, West Point, Mechanicsville, Gaines Hill, Savage Station, White Oak Swamp, Malvern Hill, Crampton Pass, Antietam and Fredericksburg.

The record of this gallant regiment in which he served was not surpassed by any other. In the language of their corps commander, "They won for themselves a reputation in the Army of the Potomac and have nobly earned the gratitude of the Republic. You did your duty and did it to the satisfaction of your commander. When the histories of the regiments shall be made up, there will be no prouder record than your own."

May 15, 1863, he was mustered out of service with his regiment on account of expiration of term of service. In August, 1864, re-enlisted as private in the 1st Regiment of Veteran Cavalry N. Y. Volunteers. Was commissioned second lieutenant in this regiment September 12, 1864. Served with his regiment on detached service in the Kanawha Valley, W. Va., until their discharge on account of close of the war.

July 6, 1865, he married Ellen M. Hotchkiss, eldest daughter of Wm. D. Hotchkiss, then a resident of Binghamton. O. A., as he is familiarly known by his friends, was connected with the clerical force in the Binghamton post-office twenty-two years. Was deputy postmaster two years. Was superintendent of the North Presbyterian Sunday School in 1875 and afterward for a number of years the teacher of a large Bible class, from forty to fifty in number. Elected a deacon in the North Presbyterian Church in 1878, and ruling elder in 1892. His home is a comfortable and commodious residence, which he built at 35 Munsell street in the northern part of the city. At the present time he is accountant in the Long Island State Hospital.

MARTHA LORAIN. Born August 12, 1841. Died May 23, 1842. She was the only girl born in the family, and the four brothers, of which the editor was one, were deprived of the blessing of a sister in the household. Her mother always kept among her treasures a lock of her baby's hair, and was fond of little girls for her little one's sake. Just before the mother died (in 1881) she cried out, "She is there! My baby is there!"

CHARLES H. Born at the "Maxon Place" in the town of Salisbury, Ct., August 16, 1843. His common school education closed in the Pine Street School in Binghamton, N. Y., in the winter of 1858 and '59. In March following his father apprenticed him to learn the tinner's trade with Pratt, Booth & Lee in Binghamton. The War of Rebellion two years thereafter caused a depression in their business and manufacturing was suspended.

In the summer of 1862 he desired to enlist in the volunteer army, but the parents thought the two sons already in were enough, and acceding to their entreaties he remained at home.

Worked at his trade in different places until the winter of 1863 and '64, when he attended the select school taught by Prof. D. C. Vosbury in Binghamton.

August 26, 1864, he enlisted in Company M, First Regt. of Veteran Cavalry, N. Y. Volunteers, and served in the West Virginia Department of General Sheridan's command until the close of the war. His regiment was on detached service in the Kanawha Valley and a portion of the time he was clerk of the military prison at Charleston, W. Va, also of the general court-martial.

In the fall of 1865 he became a student in the Delaware Literary Institute at Franklin, N. Y. When through there he returned to the employ of Pratt & Booth. Was called from the bench to take charge of the select school for young men taught by Prof. O. B. Bruce, who was appointed superintendent of the Binghamton schools. In the Spring of 1867 he returned to Franklin, N. Y., to work in the tin department of Douglas & Stilson's hardware store. Was called from the bench to take the position of instructor of elocution in the Institute, which duty he performed in the afternoon portion of each school day until Principal Jones resigned in the summer of 1868. During the time he continued studies in the classics. June 13, 1867, married Mary Elizabeth Sawtelle at Binghamton, N. Y., in the First Presbyterian Church; Rev. G. N. Boardman, D. D., officiating, assisted by Rev. W. H. Sawtelle, brother of the bride.

Returned to Binghamton. Worked at his trade at different places.

In the Winter of 1872 was working at the bench in his father's establishment in the Crosby Block on Hawley street, in Binghamton. Was called from the bench to associate in the management of the Binghamton Daily Times, just started by Major D. E. Cronin.

In 1875 became successor of his father's business in Binghamton, which he continued until the Fall of 1880, when he went to Great Bend, Pa. to work at the bench for W. T. Estabrook & Co.

On Sunday, July 16, 1882, was called to enter the highest calling on earth, that of the ministry of the Gospel of our Lord and Savior. His first sermon was preached in the Presbyterian Church in Athens, Pa., where the Rev. W. H. Sawtelle was pastor, on Sunday, January 14, 1883. For four months following he supplied the Presbyterian Church at Hallstead, Pa., during the illness and absence of the pastor. In April of the same year he made application to be placed under the care of the Presbytery of Lackawanna, and after examination was granted a special license, and a course of theological study was arranged under Rev. Charles S. Dunning of Kingston, Pa. For six months following he worked at the bench, recited regularly in theology to the entire satisfaction of his instructor, and supplied the pulpit of the Presbyterian Church at Silver Lake, Pa. This was fourteen miles distant from his home and reached by horse and wagon conveyance.

March 1st, 1884, was called to the pastorate of the Congregational Church in Maine, Broome county, N. Y., and was ordained to the Gospel ministry by a Council held in Maine June 30. This body was composed of Rev. Thomas K. Beecher, Rev. Edward Taylor, D. D., of Binghamton, Rev. Dr. Bullock of Owego, Rev. J. White of Berkshire, and Rev. A. D. Stowell of Newark Valley, all of the Susquehanna Congregational Association; and the Revds. John McVey, D. D., of Binghamton, W. H. Sawtelle of Athens, Pa., together with lay delegates from different churches.

While at Maine he supplied for a time the Presbyterian Church at East Maine, which he abandoned after a time for a shorter ride to the Congregational Church at Union Center.

In the Fall of 1888 he was called to the Congregational Church at Richford, N. Y.

In October, 1889, he received a call from the Presbyterian Church in Canton, Pa. The people of Richford offered every inducement in their power for him to remain, but he went to Canton, where he remained until the summer of 1893. In the same season of this year settled over the joint charges of Breesport and Sullivanville, N. Y., where he remains up to the present writing.

One of the arduous and at the same time interesting labors of his life has been the compilation of the History of the Kilmer Family in America, continuing four years. Is one of the paid contributors of a religious journal published in New York City.

A member of the Chautauqua society of the Hall in the Grove; also of the American Academy of Political and Social Science at Philadelphia, and an associate member of the Victoria Institute, or Philosophical Society of Great Britain.

GEORGE L. Born in Salisbury, Ct., September 11, 1845. Residence, New York City. Wife, Emma T. Born, Whittemore at Bethlehem, Pa.

FREDERICK BARNETT. Born December 11, 1851, in Chapinville, Salisbury township, Connecticut. The following sketch was sent by his son Andy. If some think it over-faithful, it is certainly unique in the line of biographies and is inserted nearly as written. In the early spring of 1857 his father's family became residents of Kirkwood, N. Y., and there in a school house on the farm of his uncle David M. Langdon, he began his school days. As the Kirkwood farm did not exactly flow with milk and honey, it was necessary for him very early in life to take upon himself the task of self support as far as education and clothing were concerned. The Public School System was then in its infancy, and was not even a good infant. He attended largely the private schools. To meet these expenses, he worked every vacation driving cows, piling up bricks, carrying water to the gangs of laborers, pulling weeds on the then Binghamton Asylum farm (the family having in the fall of 1858 removed to Binghamton, N. Y.), doing errands for stores, etc. During one vacation, he was telegraph boy, then "devil" at different times for the Binghamton Republican and Binghamton Democrat, another vacation he was cash boy for Hirschman Bros. During his last common school days, (his money having run out) he left school to work in his brother's shoe factory. When he had money enough to meet his expenses, he went back to school in time to catch up and get promoted with his class in Wyoming Seminary. He still holds a receipt marked "Received payment in work." At this institution, he worked in the fields, rang bells, swept rooms and washed windows.

Early in life he determined to become a druggist, and the necessary pharmaceutical and chemical education was obtained in the same way. His first experience was at fourteen years of age in Maybury and Cleeve's drug store in Binghamton. He worked for the best men he could find at low wages, to get the privilege of being tutored, and the use of their text books. While working he took special courses in the New York College of Pharmacy and gave satisfaction to his preceptors. He was a drug clerk in Binghamton until 1870, when he went to Plymouth, Pa., to clerk in the drug store of D. K. Spry. He left Plymouth in 1871 for Schuylkill Haven and bought a drug store in company with W. R. Shuman. The venture was not successful and the stock was removed to Sunbury, Pa. He passed through the panic of 1873 with no greater vicissitudes than a somewhat monotonous diet of mashed potatoes, and in 1876 removed to Morristown where he clerked in Dr. Becker's drug store. While there he founded the Union Mission, which has since become an active church.

Dr. H. R. Baldwin of New Brunswick, hearing of his ability, made a personal trip to Morristown and offered him the Opera House drug store. On August 4th, 1879, Mr. Kilmer bought this store, having no capital but his experience. He speedily brought this store up from a nonentity to one well known and famed, all over the state. In 1887 he served an acceptable term as President of the New Jersey State Pharmaceutical Association. In 1888, he became interested in the business of Johnson and Johnson, Manufacturing Chemists, and in 1890 sold the Opera House drug store, and became their chemist.

During his connection with this corporation, his labors have aided them in acquiring a large business and an international reputation. Their business is in part the manufacture of Wound Dressings for Surgeons. In this work Mr. Kilmer has aided them in keeping not only abreast but in advance of Surgical Science. It is no exaggeration to say that his courage of leading his colleagues to adopt advanced methods has indirectly benefitted millions of wounded people. In the investigation of drugs belonging to the work in which he is engaged, he has devoted much time in research, and upon several lines has become an acknowledged authority. In such investigations, Mr. Kilmer has made several trips to the West India Islands. It is a peculiar feature of the business and profession in which he is engaged for both rival manufacturers and other authorities to attack any new statement or conclusion.

Mr. Kilmer, though a quiet, peaceful man, has shown himself upon such occasions to be a fighter of no mean order. His scientific conclusions have never been successfully assailed, but have been frequently confirmed and acknowledged by the highest authorities, until the name of his house is recognized as the foremost manufacturers in their line in the world.

To those who know the Kilmer ancestry, the result is not surprising. The old German spirit that will not give in is just the same, fighting the inroads of religious and political persecution in the Rhine Valley, fighting the inroads of provincial oppression in Columbia county or fighting for an education with a broom down in the picturesque Valley of Wyoming.

The scientific acumen of Mr. Kilmer has been recognized in many directions. On invitation he has contributed articles on the lines of Pharmaceutical Chemistry to the foremost scientific journals of the day.

He is a member of the New Jersey Microscopical Society ; member of the Philoclean Society of Rutgers College ; member of the American Civil Service Association ; ex-President of the American Pharmaceutical Association ; member of the Society of Chemical Industry of England ; member of the New Jersey Historical Society ; member of the Institute of Jamaica ; member of the Jamaica Agricultural Society ; member of the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy ; member of the American Association for the advancement of Science. He is a chemist to the Brunswick Pharmacal Company and chemist to the New Brunswick Board of Health ; charter member of the New Brunswick Board of Trade and Director of the Brunswick Pharmacal Company ; Past Master Workman A. O. O. W.

His habit of scientific thought unfits him for light topics. If the conversation has no practical bearing, he becomes abstracted at once. In his religious life, he is firm in his beliefs, but undemonstrative. He follows the Great Philosopher as near as he can, but is devoted more to the philanthropical side of religion rather than the emotional. For many years he has been a vestryman of Christ Episcopal Church of New Brunswick, and this church has seen him active as Sunday School Superintendent, founder of a Mission, President of Christ Church Club, etc. In personal appearance, Mr. Kilmer is above middle height, blue eyes, light hair and sandy moustache and beard. He is a strict abstainer from liquor, but uses tobacco. Clean personally, he is careless about his clothes. After he has once bought a suit, he forgets all about it. He does not know how old the suit is or how young it is, whether it should be worn at his factory or at church. He never seems to become fairly acquainted with a suit until he has made it a suit of many colors, by dipping it in acids and chemical mixtures of various degrees of strength.

December 25th, 1871, he married Annie E. Kilburn (see the history and antiquities of the name and family of Kilburn in its varied archeography—Dume and Reck, New Haven, 1856), the only daughter of Andy and Ellen L. Kilburn, which has been a happy union.

Probably his happiest hours are spent in his study. Book by book, he has built up a library and he knows every tome in it. After the day's business is over, it is his custom to go immediately to his library. His reading is confined almost wholly to science. He reads something light occasionally for relaxation, but it is a question if he enjoys it. His library is his home. Should his portrait ever be painted, there would be the place to catch him in his most pleasant mood—seated, under the lamp-light, among his silent, but familiar friends.

EDWARD J. Born November 26, 1843, in Carlisle township, Schoharie county, N. Y.

He relates that as a farmer's boy he had his share of "hoeing, haying and hickory." We might add hominy, hog, and high school on the hill, anyway the superstructure is good and the foundation must have been solid.

In 1859 he went to Fredonia, N. Y., with his aunt, Mrs. Emma Pond, where he remained a little more than a year, attending the school there, then returned to Greenfield, Pa.

April 21, 1862, he enlisted at Honesdale, Pa., as a member of Company G., 14 U. S. Infantry. Was with Gen. McClellan at Harrison's Landing, Va. Participated in the second battle of Bull Run. Soon after this he became very ill and was sent to Finlay Hospital at Washington. Soon after was transferred to the hospital at Point Lookout, Maryland, where the physicians pronounced him unable to perform further army service and he was discharged in January, 1863.

A few years after returning home he learned the carpenter and stair-builders' trade, which is his present business.

In August, 1867, he married Miss Frances A. Smith, daughter of Benjamin Smith of Auburn, Pa.

In 1881 he moved with his family to Corpus Christi, Texas, where they have since resided.

During the presidential campaign of 1896 Mr. Kilmer wrote an admirable treatise on the currency question wherein he covered debated points cleverly and clearly, demonstrating himself an attentive student of the subject. It was very favorably commented on by the local press, and was worthy of a wide circulation.

WILLIAM F. Born in Greenfield, Lackawanna county, Pa., May 20, 1851.

September 22, 1868, married Malinda Wayman. April 23, 1894, married Grace Estelle Goodrich. Is a farmer and a member of the Farmers' Alliance and Industrial Union. Church connection, Seventh Day Baptist.

CAROLINE M. Born in Greenfield, Pa., January 10, 1857. Educated in the public school and lived at home until her mother died in 1887, when she went to live with her sister, Mrs. Vandervoort at Wilkes-Barre, Pa. Was governess in the Home for Homeless Children a number of months, but the necessity of night-care of sick children was too much strain on her physical system and she resigned. Her brother says of her that "she is very industrious and frugal, has hoarded up some of this world's goods, which she expects to enjoy when the right man comes along, for she is still unmarried at this date." This the editor hesitated to insert, thinking it might cause some annoyance after this book is sent out by turning the rush of young men from the Klondyke gold region to Wilkes-Barre. However, he is assured of a safeguard to his fair cousin in those words, "The right man." She is proprietress of the Kilmer Manufacturing Company of Wilkes-Barre, manufacturers of cosmetics and hair tonic.

BENJAMIN H. Born in Greenfield in 1860. In October, 1881, married Alice H. Ide. His business is paper hanging and painting. He served seven and a half years in the Pennsylvania National Guards, and is an active member of the W. J. Bryan Council, No. 282, Junior Order of United American Mechanics, and holds the office of deputy state counselor. He has taken great interest in this book and has rendered to the compiler very efficient service in his vicinity. After receiving his picture we wrote that he was the handsomest Kilmer we had seen yet; this will not make him vain. Never have met him yet but know he is bright and active, and when he is due at a place in specified time he gets there.

SUSAN M. Born July 10, 1862. Lived a number of years with her brother, E. J. Kilmer in Wilkes-Barre, and went with his family to Corpus Christi, Texas, in November of the year 1881. Was married to C. F. Vandervoort July 5, 1882. Lived in Texas until September, 1883, when she came back with her husband to Greenfield, Pa., where she lived until March 27, 1885. Since that time has lived in Wilkes-Barre. Her husband is a painter. They have a son and daughter, ages ten and twelve, very bright children.

EMMA CATHARINE, Born December 28, 1866, in Greenfield, Pa. Lived at home and attended the public school until her mother died. From that time until she was married she made her home with her sister, Mrs. Vandervoort, in Wilkes-Barre, Pa. She married Hiram J. Hahn, March 12, 1890, then a young carpenter in Wilkes-Barre. The young couple started house-keeping in Philadelphia the same year, but soon bought property at Brighton Heights, N. J.

At this writing they are at Atlantic City, N. J. They have one child, Edward Lester, who is an invalid. The care and treatment of this child has cost a considerable amount of money and great anxiety, with no prospect of relief.

Died 1812.

SECOND GENERATION.

Children of John⁴ [Adam³, Abraham², Philip¹.]

ABRAHAM. Born in the town of Claverack, Columbia county, N. Y., March 4th, 1808. When he was about eight years old his mother married a man somewhere in Central New York, named Moon. At this time he was bound to a farmer named Mesick, with the agreement that he should have schooling and a comfortable living until fourteen years of age. But instead he did not have good clothes, nor food, nor schooling; was harshly treated and overworked, until at the age of nineteen, ascertaining that he had a right to leave, he very wisely bid farewell to the Mesick family. He went to West Stockbridge, Mass., where he found friends and employment. His first years in Stockbridge were with a farmer named Lewis. During this time he studied to obtain at least a part of that education he should have had with the Mesick family. After this he engaged in a marble mill in Stockbridge, where he arose to a responsible position in the service of the company. March, 1838, he married Sarah Eliza Johnson. Mrs. Kilmer died March 3, 1842. In February 1843, he married Elizabeth R. Wilkins of Stockridge. About this time Mr. Kilmer left Stockbridge to supervise work on the Boston Water Works, which he completed in eighteen months. Here he won high recommendations and gained a reputation as a skillful machinist and engineer. Mrs. Kilmer died in May, 1849. In May, 1850, he married Caroline Mills, of Needham, Mass. In May, 1851, he contracted for heavy rock excavations for opening a canal in Lewistown, Maine, and used here his steam drilling machines. He was known as the first inventor of steam rock-drilling machines. He completed his work here in about one year. In 1853 he removed to Niagara Falls, N. Y., to work his steam drills on the Hydraulic Canal. He left Niagara Falls soon after the commencement of the civil war, removing to Charles River Village, part of the town of Needham, Mass. Here he remained the remainder of his days, working as an expert millwright and machinist until his death, which occurred October 9, 1886. The following obituary notice is copied from a Needham newspaper: "We regret to record the death of Mr. Abraham Kilmer, which took place at his residence last Saturday, at the age of 78 years. He had been seriously ill for some time and was a great sufferer. Mr. Kilmer was highly esteemed by a large circle of friends and acquaintances and was an excellent citizen, fair and honest in his dealings. In the mechanical line he was at the head of his class, and his services were sought largely in cases of building mills and bridges, repairing machinery, moving buildings, or blasting rocks or ledges, where cool judgment and skill were required, and in all these trades he seemed equally good and practical.

The widow and children have much sympathy from many friends and in which the writer sincerely joins. The funeral took place from the house on Tuesday afternoon, the Rev. Mr. Clark of Needham officiating. The interment was at Needham.

THIRD GENERATION.

Children of Abraham⁵ [John⁴, Adam³, Abraham², Philip¹] and Sarah Eliza Johnson.

SAMUEL JOHNSON. Born March, 1839. Lived fourteen months.

SAMUEL FRANKLIN. Born February 28, 1842. In 1861 he enlisted in the U. S. Volunteer Army at Niagara Falls. At the close of the war he came home to see his father, who was at Charles River Village, Mass. In 1878 he started for the Black Hills, and nothing known of him since by the family.

Children of Abraham Kilmer and Caroline Mills.

FREDERICK MILLS. Born February 8, 1852, in Needham, Mass.

His ancestry on his mother's side is English Puritan. His mother's grandfather, David Mills, was a landholder in Needham before the Revolutionary war and as a "minute man" left work in the field to hurry on summons of the courier to take part in the battle of Lexington, and later with the Continental Army he fought in various engagements, and was present at the surrender of Burgoyne. When Frederick M. was eighteen months old, his father, who was at that time a contractor, moved to Niagara Falls, N. Y., being engaged with the original projectors of the Hydraulic Canal. When about twelve years of age the boy returned to Needham, Mass. His education did not extend beyond the High School. At the age of sixteen he began to learn the carpenter's trade and worked five years, then left it to attend a business college, from which he graduated in May, 1873. The conviction, doubtless inborn, yea, written in the Book of Providence when there was none of him, that he was not to always handle saw and hammer was here manifest. Not that he was ashamed to thus labor, for thus in the same trade for years did the lowly Nazarene, his Master and Redeemer, who was also Creator of all things in heaven and earth; but commendably aspired to greater usefulness in the world. They call it ambition. Be it so. The world needs more ambitious men of the same kind. You may say that in thus moralizing the editor has jumped off his horse. Very well. He'll get on again soon. It was his good fortune to meet Mr. Kilmer in the summer of 1895, and found him every inch a Christian gentleman, a scholar from the college of experiences and a bright business man. This may be anticipating. We remount and follow him up.

After leaving the business college he became bookkeeper and afterward salesman for a lumber company, and later served in the same capacity for Palmer, Parker and Company of Boston, manufacturers in veneer and mahogany.

January 1, 1881, he entered into partnership with George H. Derby, under the firm name of George H. Derby and Company, for manufacturing roll-top desks and office furniture. A year or two later the firm was changed in name and called the Derby and Kilmer Desk Company. In 1890 the firm became a corporation under the laws of Massachusetts with same name. From the beginning of the business Mr. Kilmer was in charge of the financial and clerical details, and when incorporated became its secretary and treasurer. In 1893 the Pond Desk Company became associated with them, and the name changed to Derby, Kilmer and Pond Desk Company, and in 1895 the Somerville Desk Company, when a new organization was formed from the union called the Derby Desk Company, Mr. Kilmer retaining the position of secretary and treasurer.

At the present time this company is the most extensive establishment in its line in the United States.

The factory is at Somerville, Mass., with main office and warerooms Portland street, Boston, and 114 Nassau street, New York City. Before going further we record an event which doubtless he considers a very important one in his life—next to his birth. This was his marriage, which occurred October 1, 1878, with Miss Alice Fredrika Higbee in Kalamazoo, Mich. Miss Higbee was born in Burlington, Vt. After serving one year in the Somerville City Council he was elected representative in the Massachusetts Legislature. The first year, 1890, was on the committee on drainage, and in 1891 on the committee on finance.

He is a member of the Winter Hill Baptist Church of Somerville, and has contributed largely toward its support and growth. Is trustee of the Boston Baptist Hospital, also of the Somerville City Hospital. Always interested in the promotion of the Temperance Cause, both locally and at large, and takes a deep interest in the welfare and growth of his resident city.

He has also taken great interest in the Kilmer Family History, and has been, through all its preparation, a substantial supporter.

HARRIET. Born March 4, 1846. Died January 14, 1897. Buried at Eagle Mills Cemetery.

The following memorial tribute to Harriet Kilmer Bott, beautiful in sentiment and excellent in composition, by her cousin, Charles E. Kilmer of New York City, was printed and sent out to relatives and friends as a souvenir :

Death under any circumstances brings sadness to the hearts of kindred and friends of the deceased, but when the destroyer enters a home and takes away wife and mother, it leaves a pang that cannot be assuaged by any earthly agency.

The death of Cousin Hattie at the time when life's charms were at their zenith—when home and family ties were welded together by a mother's love, is peculiarly sad. It has caused a breach in the home-life of the husband and motherless little ones that cannot be closed ; one in which amelioration can only be had by trusting in Him who doeth all things well.

Cousin Hattie was a devoted wife and loving mother, with all the blessings that tend to make life worth living. With a happy home, an affectionate husband, and two promising little children, her surroundings were such as to make her stay here desirable. Her sweet christian disposition and true devotion to the duties of her home, made all with whom she came in contact feel that she was striving to make the world better for her having lived in it.

The affliction attending the recent loss of her mother and the illness of her elder sister has augmented the grief of her family and friends. All through this trying ordeal Cousin Hattie displayed a fortitude that only characterizes a christian, and it was perhaps largely due to these unusual burdens at this time that her demise was hastened.

The large attendance and grief exhibited by the members of her church and associates, at the funeral, was an exemplification of the love, honor and respect they had for her.

In church work and charities of the community in which she lived, she was tireless.

Knowing her all my life and loving her for her purity of mind and gentle character, her loss to me is something more than that of a cousin.

Her body is now resting from all earthly troubles—asleep in the grave—her spirit is at rest in the eternal heavens—with the heavenly choir she is singing songs of love and praise, and enjoying that bliss that is the reward of those who are prepared to meet the Great Father.

Cousin Hattie, pure in mind, knew no fear when she neared the heavenly gates, which “stood ajar” to welcome her.

Children of Joseph⁶ [Philip⁴, William³, etc].

MARTIN ALBERT. Born at Greenbush, Rensselaer county, N. Y., September 24, 1841. Married Sarah Maria Sliter, December 29, 1866. Has been justice of the peace twelve years. Was connected with the United States Army from 1863 to 1870, notably in the Shenandoah Valley and with General Hunter in his raid to Lynchburg, through the battles of Winchester and Fisher's Hill, Piedmont and New Hope. After the mustering out of the troops he went to Raleigh, N. C., with Colonel T. P. Johnston assistant quartermaster, and took charge of the quartermaster's department of the Freedmen's Bureau, and from there went to Camp Russell, having charge of the quartermaster and commissary departments of the U. S. A. until 1871.

The editor judges from his letters that he is one of the Kilmers that get up in the morning and are alive all day.

CHARLES E. Born October 16th, 1846. He obtained his early education in the common schools and at the Fort Edward Collegiate Institute. In 1864 he left school and proceeded south to take part in the War of the Rebellion. Soon after his arrival he was appointed to a responsible position in the commissary and quartermaster's department of the government service, which position he filled with dignity and ability, as his testimonials from superior officers show. He retained his position with the government until 1870, when he returned home. In 1872 he was elected clerk of the board of superintendents of the poor of Rensselaer county, which position he held until January 1st, 1877. In 1878 he was engaged in the collar business in Troy, N. Y., in which he continued nine years and was quite successful. On account of ill health he sold out in 1887. December 1st, 1888, he accepted the position of corporation tax clerk in the office of the state comptroller in Albany, which he held until May 1st, 1894, when he resigned. During the incumbency of this last position nearly $10,000,000 passed through his hands into the state treasury, of which not one penny was lost or misappropriated. This is saying about all that need be said for Mr. Kilmer's ability and integrity.

He married Harriet N. Smith, February 11th, 1879.

After resigning the office of chief of the tax bureau in the state comptroller's office, he opened an office in New York city as an expert in tax matters in the interest of corporations. This specialty is his principal business and is conducted by him in his new offices in the Vanderbilt building, 132 Nassau street, New York.

Mr. Kilmer is a young man of energy and progressiveness ; we say young, for he has just turned the half century of life. He is the patentee and owner of a machine for oiling floors and washing floors and windows, manufactured by the Remlik Company, a New York corporation, with a capital of $100,000, of which he is president and treasurer. It must not be inferred that he is after the whole earth when it is added that he is also the secretary of the Southern Cotton Company, with $1,000,000 capital.

He continues his residence at Troy, N. Y.

HEINRICH KÜLMER.

Came to this country from Strasburg, Germany, in 1761, with two brothers, Philip and George. This statement is made by authority of his great-grandson, Schuyler V. Kilmer, of Syracuse, N. Y. It does not agree in all particulars with that of the immigrant's grandson, William H. Kilmer. The editor interviewed this grandson in the summer of 1894 at his home in Forestport, N. Y. He said his grandfather's name was George and came from Holland, that was about all he knew of the history of his grandsire. He was then in his eighty-eighth year and remarkably strong at his age physically and mentally. These conditions would give stronger claim for credence, but Schuyler has a longer account of the early history of the immigrant after his arrival here, and some of these incidents coincided with the memory of William H.

This German emigrant could have gone to Holland, as many did, thence to America. Or he might have been born in Holland of German parentage, or German and Holland combined. Schuyler calls him Henrich. The name would be Hendrik in Holland and Heinrich in German; each name anglicised is Henry. For the purpose of reconciling the two statements we might assume that his name was Heinrich George or George Heinrich, but if he had a brother George that would reasonably set that assumption aside.

The editor decides to follow Schuyler's statement as he has given it, which affords the only history we have of this foreign sire, and does not materially disagree with that of William excepting in name.

Heinrich located in Cloverick now Claverack, Columbia county, N. Y., where he bought a farm of Van Rensselaer, familiarly known as the Patroon of Albany. When the Revolutionary War commenced he took his gun and nobly served his adopted country to the end, then returned to his farm and married Miss Katy Hollenbeck. About 1797 he suffered the great misfortune of losing his farm. The government disputed Van Rensselaer's title to Hillsdale and Cloverick. Mr. Kilmer lost about all which he had labored to gain, a blow that undoubtedly hastened his death. He died soon after and his wife followed in 1800.

When he was twenty-three he went to Lowville, Lewis county, N. Y. Learned the carpenter and joiner's trade. Many houses and barns, built in the old-fashioned, honest manner, still stand as a proof of his work as an artisan in this line. In the year 1844 he went to Vienna, Oneida county, on the Oneida Lake, and engaged in the building of canal boats, which he followed, in connection with some farming, for six years. From Vienna he went to Ohio, Herkimer county, and took a large contract of hauling lumber, thence to South

Trenton, where he kept the South Trenton Hotel two years. Hurlburtville was the next stop, where he remained one year, thence to Forestport, Oneida county, and was engaged in the lumbering business until 1894. He held the office of assessor in Forestport, and justice of peace and highway commissioner in Ohio. A member of the Episcopal Church about fifteen years. January 28, 1828, he married Julia S. At the end of a year and a half he joined the rush of gold seekers in the Salmon River excitement in Washington and Idaho, and the same year of these journeyings found him in Nevada, where he remained thirteen years. At the age of twenty-two he was the owner of a boat, and made canal boating his principal business for about twenty-five years. In the year 1878 he bought a lumbering mill in the White Lake country and continued in this business for four years. After this he went to Forestport, N. Y., and engaged in the grocery trade. From this place moved to Old Forge, Herkimer county, N. Y., and erected a new building which served as a dwelling and a store. January 26, 1894, a fire destroyed his building and business, and he returned to Forestport, where he now resides. December 30, 1861, he married Elizabeth Benedict. NANCY. Married Henry Dunbar. Had a son, Charles, who was a sailor.

CHARLES BORLAND. Born in Syracuse, N. Y., October 1, 1829. He lived there until he reached the age of fifteen, when he went to sea. We would like to know how he commenced his sea life, then a mere boy, but he does not tell us. Among the many modest Kilmers, the Captain seems modest in the superlative degree, and is very reticent about giving any one his experience on the seas. The editor managed to get a few items but not from him, you may be sure.

He traversed the briny deep about twenty-three years, the greater portion on the waters of the Pacific, as captain of whaling ships, and is familiar with nearly all the Pacific islands. In addition to this he has been on nearly every sea on the globe. Passed two winters in the Arctic region, and mention is made of him and his ship in the Government History of Captain Hall's Arctic Exploration.

He quit the sea more than a score of years ago and bought an excellent farm eight miles northeast of Topeka, Kansas, on the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe R. R., at what is now Kilmer station, and named after him. As a farmer he was successful and still owns and rents the farm.

For a number of years he has been Right of Way Agent for the A., T. & St. Fe R. R., where the sums disbursed for his purchases and settlement are often very large. The occupancy of such a responsible position is proof of superior judgment and fidelity to the corporation.

The editor never has had the pleasure of meeting him, but his friends give us the most unfeigned assurance that he is of a very genial disposition, pleasant and affable in his relations with his fellow men and is held in very high estimation in the community where he lives.

He found his wife in Illinois. She was Mary A. Gray, and they were married November 24, 1863.

GEORGE KÜLMER.

Probably a brother of Heinrich. Born in Strasburg, Germany and came to America in 1761. Settled in Hillsdale, Columbia county, N. Y., near Heinrich's location. This is one good evidence in favor of his identity. Another is that George and Heinrich each had sons named Christopher, a name not found in any other branch of the family, and still another is, a son of George found his wife in Onondaga county living at the same place where a son of Heinrich settled.

He received his early education in the public schools of the city. At the age of fifteen he entered the service of J. Q. Preble & Company, manufacturers of envelopes, writing papers and blank books, located at 28 Beekman street, New York city.

He continued with this house during the remainder of their business career, which was twenty-nine years, and a part of this time he was a member of that firm. This alone gives the best evidence of his integrity and business capacity. In 1869 he married Elenor Stanley of New York city, who died May 26, 1891.

Mr. Kilmer is now with the Raynor and Perkins Envelope Company, 115 and 117 William and 59 John streets, New York city.

JOHN L. Born March 12, 1850, in New York city. Is New York agent for the London house of G. D. Peters and Company. The compiler called at Captain Kilmer's office in the Metropolitan Building, but at that time he was on the ocean. Much of his time is consumed by sea voyages. A number of letters were received from him in which he promised his picture and something of his record for this book but he failed in fulfilling the promise.

PETER KÜLMER.

Died in Holland somewhere between 1785 and 1800. The editor places him as son or grandson of one of the Palatines who in their flight from persecution settled in Holland. The name Kulmer from which Kilmer comes is distinctly German. The records of the New York Holland society do not contain the name. The descendants of Peter Kilmer have a close facial resemblance to the descendants of the Palatine Kilmers, and he is placed where best evidence directs. His widow came to this country with her children somewhere about the year 1800. His father's name was Peter.

FIRST GENERATION.

PETER. Born in Holland 1783. Married Ruth Carr December 31, 1805. Settled in Rock City Falls, Saratoga county, N. Y. He was a millright, which trade in those pioneering days required more natural ability and greater pluck for success than in these days. Died April 23, 1842.

SIMON. All we could learn of him is that he died somewhere down the river below Albany. One account said he died at Bethlehem.

NICHOLAS. Died at the age of eighteen years.

The four daughters married and settled in the town of Bethlehem about five miles down the river from Albany on the west side. One married William Clapper, one William Snyder and one a Lasher.

SECOND GENERATION.

Children of Peter², [Peter¹].

HARRY. Born August 1, 1809.

CYRUS. Born July 6, 1811.

PAMELIA. Born July 6, 1812.

HARLON. Born April 10, 1814.

CHAUNCEY. Born in Rock City Falls, Saratoga county,

N. Y., March 23, 1816. This little hamlet he still calls his home although his winters are spent at his residence in New York city.

The lad received a fair education at the public school, supplementing it in later years by extensive reading and his own activity in the great school of affairs. His father was a millwright. The boy learned this art, beginning life poor. He was engaged in building saw, grist and paper mills under contract for many years. He gave diligent attention to the details of every contract and became widely known as a competent and careful millwright. His thorough experience in building for others soon gave him a knowledge of the operations of the paper mills themselves, which afterwards proved of the greatest service.

In 1840 he was married to a childhood playmate, Miss Mary Jane Ashman, a daughter of the late John Ashman. This happy union brought them four sons and a daughter. A son and the daughter are now living.

Having saved enough money from his earnings for the purpose, Mr. Kilmer built a small printing-paper mill at Rock City Falls and began operations January 1, 1845. This mill was burned a short time after its construction, but Mr. Kilmer possessing native pluck, rebuilt and went on. In 1852 a new process was brought to his notice, which aimed at the making of printing paper from rye straw. He embarked in the venture, and built, in his lower mill, the first complete equipment in the United States for making printing paper from straw. Costly experiments were necessary, but Mr. Kilmer persevered. In 1855, after a long struggle, a quantity of straw printing paper was produced, which was used in one edition of The Saratoga Whig. It was not perfect in quality, but, little by little, the product was improved by Mr. Kilmer until sufficiently pliable for general use by newspapers.

A contract was then obtained from Moses Y. Beach of the New York Sun, whereby that prosperous newspaper agreed to take the entire product of the mill. With this powerful customer, the success of Mr. Kilmer was assured, and he has supplied The Sun Association continuously down to the present time. More than $7,000,000 worth of paper has now been shipped to The New York Sun and every dollar of it paid for.

From 1850 to 1857 Mr. Kilmer was interested in five different paper mills. They ran continuously day and night, every day of the year except Sunday. His success has been remarkable. He has met all panics bravely and has never passed a monthly pay day.

Although an acknowledged expert, Mr. Kilmer's straw paper enterprise was at first regarded as doubtful by his competitors. When it became a success, these competitors were glad to take out licences under the patents used by him. This is only one instance out of many, in which his sound judgment and unerring foresight have been strongly vindicated.

In 1865 Mr. Kilmer bought a controlling interest in the Congress and Empire Springs at Saratoga and united them under a stock company with $1,000,000 capital.

In 1869, The American Wood Paper Co., of Providence, R. I., paid him the high compliment of making him general manager of their whole system, in the manufacture of wood pulp and paper at their mammoth mills in Manayunk, Philadelphia and Royer's Ford, Pa.

Mr. Kilmer has invested some of his savings not only in Saratoga Springs, but in New York city, Chicago, New Mexico and elsewhere. In these later years he spends his time largely in the oversight of these investments. The manufacturing business is carried on at Rock City Falls and is managed at that place entirely. A superintendent is in charge, and acts under the daily advice of Mr. Kilmer when the latter is absent from the mill. Since writing the above he has disposed of his interest in the mills at Rock City Falls.

In 1871 he moved to New York city and built a beautiful house at 9 East 57th street. This is one of the occasional broad cross-town streets, in the best residence portion of the city and is filled with fine dwellings.

An upright, honorable man, with a spotless record of integrity and fair dealing, Mr. Kilmer has become one of the most valued citizens of this city and state. He is a man of fine presence and courteous manners, and is universally esteemed. For many years he has been a director in The First National Bank of Saratoga. At one time was tendered the presidency of Columbia Bank of New York city which he declined. His character is without a stain. His life is an illustration of the possibilities of this free Republic for young men of ambition.

In addition to the above sketch, of which the greater part was furnished, the editor records that he was the pioneer in the development of Saratoga Springs, as well as the pioneer in the manufacture of straw paper. He organized the Congress and Empire Spring Company in 1865, and was the first president and treasurer. Previous to this he had controlling interest in the Empire Spring, and the company was formed to avoid competition with the Congress.

The editor visited Mr. Kilmer, at his palatial home in the city and at his country seat at Rock City Falls, and found him very affable in his manner. He has taken much interest in this book and is the largest financial contributor to its success.

DAVID KILMER.

Born in Bethlehem, N. Y., August 1, 1809. He said he was a cousin of Chauncey³, that his father's name was David and his father was a brother of Chauncey's father, whose name was Peter. The records give us three sons of Peter, who died in Holland, namely: Peter, Simon, and Nicholas. If there was a David in the family the name was lost in the tradition preserved by Chauncey. The name of Simon could have been David Simon or Simon David. Nicholas died at eighteen, and probably did not marry. Simon probably married and had issue, concerning which nothing is known in finite record yet discovered. He died at Bethlehem, and David was born at the same place. This is some evidence that the families were closely connected.

The matter, therefore, will of necessity rest here by these statements, awaiting the revelation by the infinite records under the new theocracy.

When David was fourteen years old he went to New York City and worked for his brother Jeremiah as apprentice to the shoemaker's trade. He remained with his brother until he opened for himself a boot and shoe store on First avenue. Later he removed his store to 192 Third avenue, and retired from business in 1868. At one time he was collector of taxes.

An attendant of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and generous contributor to its support but not a member, and an attentive student of the Bible.

He is remembered as one who was very helpful to the needy.

He married Adelia Emiline Moore of New York City, November 28, 1832.

Their children were: William, born September 11, 1833, died June 19, 1881; Emiline, born January 29, 1840, died June 5, 1888; David, Jr., born September 7, 1844, died July 2, 1875. David, Jr., was a corporal in Company B, Fifth Regiment Heavy Artillery.

Mr. Kilmer died December 13, 1893.

May, daughter of David, Jr., is the only grand-daughter of David living. The compiler found her at the late residence of her grandfather, No. 331 East Twenty-fifth street. Since that time she married M. Edward Keefe. The event took place December 23, 1896. She was educated by her grandfather, and is a young woman of culture and refinement.

JOHN KÜLMER.

A son or grandson of a refugee from the Palatinate, and a brother of Peter¹, who died in Holland. He came to this country about 1880, and settled in Bethlehem, N. Y. Married Catharine Le Reaux, which event probably took place after his arrival here.

Ephraim George Squier, L.L.D. Born in Bethlehem June 17, 1821. In youth he was a school teacher and an engineer.

At the early age of nineteen he became editor of The Mechanic, published in Albany. The selection of one so young for this responsible position attests much for his abilities. In 1843 he became editor of the Hartford Journal, and later of the Sciota Gazette, in Ohio. Here his attention was attracted to the antiquities of the Sciota Valley, which he investigated, and afterward similar monuments through the Mississippi Valley, an account of which was published in 1848, forming the first volume of the Smithsonian Contribution to Knowledge. He made also explorations in New York and Connecticut, and when appointed Charge de Affairs to Guatemala and the other states of Central America he used his official position as a means of making extensive geographical archæological explorations in these interesting regions.

Visiting Europe in 1851 he was honored with the gold medal of the French Geographical Society, and made member of other societies of learning.

In 1853 he surveyed a railroad route through Honduras, and drew up the treaty between that country and England for the retrocession of the Bay Island.

Served at Yorktown, Williamsburg, Fair Oaks, Malvern Hill, Fredericksburg, Bristow Station and Chancellorsville. He distinguished himself for bravery at the battle of Williamsburg, for which he was promoted to captain.

Died in New York city, December 9, 1869, from injuries received on the Erie Railroad, while in the vigor of manhood and no ordinary promise for the future by his acknowledged abilities.

FRANK SQUIER. Born in Charlton, Saratoga County, N. Y., April 14, 1840. In 1864 he went to New York city and became connected with the paper trade, and is now a member of the firm of Perkins, Goodwin and Company, 66 and 68 Duane street.

In 1893 he was appointed, by Mayor Schieren, Commissioner of Parks for the City of Brooklyn. The many improvements to this beautiful resort during his administration, in additions, artistic designs and decorations are monuments to his energy, fidelity and ability.

JOHN. Born 1802. Died near Marseilles, Illinois, in April, 1891.

JAMES. Born in Galatin, Columbia county, N. Y., August 15, 1805.

At the age of twenty-three he went to Hyde Park, Pa., and was one of the pioneer settlers of that region. At that time the city of Scranton was a little hamlet with about a score of inhabitants, and called Slocum Hollow. Coal then was at least worth the digging from the beds that outcropped near the surface. The bed of the Lackawanna was considered public property as late as the year 1844. He told of prying out in the fall of this year enough coal from the bed of the river, above the present Lackawanna Avenue Bridge, to last through the winter. Coal was then used in large fireplace grates. The winter of 1839 was very severe and there was a coal famine in New York city. There were no railroads in those days and water navigation was closed. Mr. Kilmer and a neighbor made a bargain with a Providence (then Razorville) merchant to bring him dry goods from New York for ten shillings per hundred. Each loaded his sled with a ton of coal and started for the city, a distance of about one hundred and twenty-five miles. They went by way of Stroudsburg, were ferried across the Delaware at Water Gap, arrived in New York in a hail storm, and sold their coal for $13 per ton, returning with the dry goods. The trip of seven days amounted to $32—50 cents for each. Later he made another trip to New York, not as profitable, but having an interesting incident connected with it. "Joe" Griffin of Hyde Park, a somewhat eccentric gentleman, captured some wild turkeys, bred them, and one year as Christmas drew near found he had one hundred turkeys fit for the New York city market. "Uncle Joe," as he was called, conceived that he could drive the turkeys, and one day astonished the villagers by driving the entire lot up the main street on the way to New York. At Bucktown a dog frightened the flock and they flew in every direction. With the help of a score of men and boys they were nearly all caught and necks wrung. Mr. Griffin then hired Mr. Kilmer, at ten shillings per day, to take him and poultry to New York. Mr. Griffin received $2.50 each for his turkeys, with the exception of two male birds, for which he received $5 each.

In 1833 Mr. Kilmer purchased eighty acres of land, and soon after added twenty-five acres to his first purchase. Here on this tract he worked from daylight until dark, summer and winter, and built a house yet remaining. He lived on this farm twenty years and then sold it. This was in 1853, and even land with coal under was considered of but little more value than land without coal. He had purchased a farm of two hundred acres near Janesville, Wis. It was his intention to reserve three acres in the sale contract of the Hyde Park farm, to make a home for his remaining days if for any cause he should not settle in the West, but through neglect the reservation clause was omitted from the papers. And then in order to secure these three acres, he gave the coal under the whole place. Thus, without his knowledge at the time, allowing an immense fortune to pass through his hands.

In 1826 Mr. Kilmer married his first wife, Miss Catharine Snyder, who died in 1838. In 1839 he married Miss Helen Knickerbocker, a descendant of the New York State Knickerbockers.

The golden wedding was celebrated September 14th, 1889, at their home in Janesville, Wis. There were present on that occasion twenty grandchildren and thirty-two great-grandchildren. To the day of his death, July 23, 1893, at which time he was eighty-nine, Mr. Kilmer's eyesight was good, his mouth well filled with natural teeth, and his thick black locks scarcely touched with silver.

His early life was that of healthful activity and pleasant toil, such as comes to the children of a pioneer in the newest settlement.

He received his education at the Aylmer High School and Komoka College, also at the Toronto Normal School, where he received the teachers' training and a Provincial certificate. For some five years he was engaged in teaching.

In 1881 he entered a dental office as student, taking the full course of lectures and clinics in the Toronto School of Dentistry and graduated from that institution in 1884 with high honors, standing first in the honor list, and carrying away the gold medal.

After graduation he located in the city of St. Catharines, Ontario, where he has by careful and conscientious effort built up a large and remunerative practice. In 1889 he wrote at the examination in the Toronto University for the degree of Doctor of Dental Surgery, and was honored with that degree, standing second on the honor list.

He has been president of the Ontario Dental Society; examiner in the Dental Department of the Toronto University; also in the Toronto School of Dentistry. The positions tell us something of the esteem accorded to him by fellow dentists.

Dr. Kilmer is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and one of the trustees in the First Methodist Church in St. Catharines. A member and past master of several of the fraternal societies.

He is a supporter of all healthy and manly sports and games, is a lover of the gun and rod and quite a devotee of the bicycle.

In 1877 he married Miss Mary Harvey, eldest daughter of William Harvey, M. P. for East Elgin, and his home is to him, the one, of all places, most desirable.

PHILIP KILMER.

Born in the Mohawk Valley, N. Y., about 1781. Had brothers, Henry and Thomas. His father's name was Henry and married Patty Mullen. This is according to the statement of Philip's son, Peter, whom the compiler visited in 1895, and he was then in his eighty-eighth year.

During the war of 1812 Philip went to Canada, remaining a short time, then came back to New York, locating in Marcellus.

From this place he moved to Fox township, Pa., making the emigration with wagon and oxen, which in these days of rapid transit would be considered a decidedly slow method of transfer.

In Fox township, a wealthy Philadelphian, named Phineas Bond, owned a large tract of land and had made the offer of one hundred acres to each of the first ten settlers. This was undoubtedly a great attraction to Mr. Kilmer, who, with two of his sons, took this opportunity to get farms, and they entered into contract for one hundred acres each.

The country was then a wilderness and full of wild beasts. Muncy, thirty miles distant, was the nearest place to get their corn ground, until they accidentally discovered Canton, which was eighteen miles nearer. This discovery was made by Anthony, son of Philip Kilmer, and Joseph Hoagland, who followed the dogs on the track of a deer which they had wounded, until they came to a settlement on Towanda creek. This was Canton.

January 7, 1823. She, with her husband, were two of the original members of the M. E. Church, formed in Overton, Pa., about 1823. Her youngest son says: "My mother was an excellent woman. To her husband she was a helpmeet indeed. She never complained of the hardships of pioneer life, and was always ready to assist with her labor and counsel in transferring the wilderness into fertile fields. To her children she was all that the endearing name of mother implies. As a Christian she lived an exemplary life, her faith never faltering for a moment in the promises of God."

She died peacefully, January 23, 1889.

PHILIP. Died June 12, 1866.

Alexander Chauncey Haverly was born November 9, 1845. Taught school when young and intended to study law, but his parents were so anxious for him to stay with them, that he gave up the ambition of his life and engaged in farming. He writes that his heart was never in the business, and he has not.

been successful. It may have been for the best, yet it seems hard to be grinding in one place with the heart in another, in which position there cannot be much joyful labor, but many sighs. He has, however, he says, one thought to console him, and this is, that he was kind and true to his father and mother in their old age.

Politically, his heart and hand are together, and he is all right. A protective, sound money Republican, always ready to vote against the liquor traffic when there is a sensible opportunity to do so.

Though a zealous Republican he has never been an office-seeker. The only offices he has held are school director, and postmaster at Overton, Pa., 1882-83. While holding the latter office he was engaged in the mercantile business.

December 31, 1867, he married Elizabeth Place, of Wyoming county, Pa. Both, with part of the family of children, are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

He has been engaged in enough different kinds of business during his life to at least escape monotony. His first business after school days was carrying U. S. mail from Eaglesmere to Canton, going on horseback a distance of thirty-six miles through the wilderness. In 1867 he went to Iowa and engaged in farming. After one year at this he returned east to engage in carpenter work. Built at Granville and Minnequa Springs. The editor places here, as it is the nearest fitting, Adam Kilmer, M. D., of Ludlow, Vt. He was born in Essex county, N. Y. His father's name was Daniel and his grandfather was Adam. Mary Ann Kilmer Potter, of Illinois, granddaughter of Adam Kilmer in the line just closed, says her grandfather had a cousin Daniel. Her grandfather lived and died in Essex. His father was Nicholas. It is not improbable that our Dr. Adam Kilmer descends from a brother of Nicholas. He knows but little of his family history, as he was adopted when a baby by his uncle on his mother's side. He had two brothers, Reuben and George. Reuben is dead and George was reported killed in the War of the Rebellion. He was adopted by Mr. Grinnels, whom he supposed was his father until he was fifteen years old when he learned that his name should be Kilmer, and when he became of age he took his family name.

ADAM KILMER, M. D., son of DANIEL, (M. Cornelia Ray), son of ADAM, was born July 13, 1847. Served four and a half years in the Federal service in the War of the Rebellion. Married Miss Gertie A. Felt, April 30, 1877. Graduated from the Homeopathic College of Missouri in 1891. Is connected with the Methodist Episcopal Church. A Knight of Pythias. Then he engaged in wagon-making, which he followed for twelve years. In 1889 he entered the mercantile trade at Middlegrove, N. Y. January 1, 1894, he moved his business to Rock City Falls, same county, where he is now located. It has been his misfortune to suffer considerable loss in two fires. His wagon shop burned in 1885, where the loss was about $1,000, and his store at Rock City Falls, August 18, 1894, where his loss was over $2,000. To some this would not be considered a very heavy loss, but to others it is ; depends on circumstances. He is on his feet again and doing a good business at Rock City Falls. The compiler remained one night in his pleasant home. He was assessor three years, two terms supervisor, always a good Republican, and postmaster under Harrison. An Odd Fellow and Mason, and last but not least, a member of the Baptist Church at Middlegrove. Wherever known he is looked upon as an excellent citizen ; also a good business man and fair in dealing. He married Carrie G. Kilmer, daughter of John Henry Kilmer, who was his father's cousin. AMERICUS D. Born in Upper Sandusky, Ohio, October 17, 1855. Died in the same city, 1895, of consumption.

His father, Captain Kilmer, was one of the many heroes sacrificed in the Rebellion, which circumstance cut short the school days of Americus, by placing the support of a bereaved family upon his young shoulders. At the early age of nine years he apprenticed himself to L. A. Brunner, then editor of the Old Pioneer, where he learned the primary rudiments of the trade, which, for himself, afterward developed to the standard of an art. Subsequently he engaged in the Wyandot County Republican. While here the editor of the paper became Postmaster and Mr. Kilmer was made deputy. While serving in this capacity he was also foreman of the Republican office. He remained in that office ten years. In 1882 he opened a job printing office in the city. In this line he had the reputation of being one of the most painstaking artisans in his line in the state. He served a term of Deputy Sheriff, in which office he gave evidence of his abilities, and made many friends throughout the county. He was a member of the County Board of Elections, and his last official act was to sign his name to the certificates of the recent election, the day before his death. He was a charter member of the Benevolent Protective Order of Elks.

September 26th, 1889, Mr. Kilmer married Miss Emma Billhardt, daughter of Dr. A. Billhardt, now United States Consul to Moscow, Russia. The following extract, from the Wyandot Chief, shows something of the esteem he earned in his native city :

“Mr. Kilmer was one of the most popular young men of Upper Sandusky. He was everybody’s friend, and everybody was his friend, for he was a jovial, genial and companionable man, in whom there was no discrimination of friendships. To know him was to swear by him, for he was as near the ideal of popular citizenship as it is possible for man to approach. His character was always an open book, unmarred by sophistry or pretention, or anything that a correct person might fear the world to see or read. What he was yesterday he would be to-day, and to-morrow would be a repetition of both, so far as his personality was concerned. Frank, honest, cheerful, it was always a pleasure to meet him, and no matter when or where he was met he was always the same. Hence, is it any wonder that he was so highly regarded? Life, to him, in his daily associations, did not appear to have any castes or ranks, for he addressed all classes pleasantly and cheerfully. He was as affable in his greeting of a working man in his habiliments of toil, as he was to those in the more prosperous walks of life. He was always a gentleman in every respect—a man of exemplary habits, but not a bigot in any. He was not a man of sturdy physique, but though he had been a sufferer with that dread disease, consumption, for about a year, his good cheer and nerve in the face of the inevitable was something remarkable. He was confronted, not only by the hopelessness of his own condition, but by the sad condition of his family, having witnessed and wept over the passing away of his beloved mother and adored sisters, their deaths being caused by the same disease that he was sure was in store for him, the last member of the family. Heredity, in his case, was inevitable, yet whatever his mental anguish must have been in meditating over the matter, it was carefully concealed, and he always appeared as cheerful as if the contemplation of a near end had never occurred to him, and in this he was truly heroic. He deserved, by all the rules and ideas of reward, to have lived until that ripe old age when mortals are glad to surrender the decrepitude of humanity for the eternal youth, which we are hopeful of meriting in the great beyond."

Soon after the death of her husband Mrs. Kilmer went to Moscow, Russia, and remained there with her parents while her father continued in the office of Consul, which was until May, 1897. Afterward they visited a number of cities in Germany, and made an extensive tour through Switzerland, France and England, returning to America in September, 1897. She is a very bright woman, and among the pleasurable incidents to the compiler's work on this book is her interesting correspondence from the Russian Capital.

GEORGE. Born August 2, 1842, in Chemung, N. Y. His principal business has been farming. July 21, 1862, he enlisted in the 107th N. Y. Infantry. This was a new regiment formed under the first call for 300,000 volunteers made in July, 1862. New York State, through its executive, offered a silk banner, which should be suitably inscribed, to the first New York regiment which should be ready to proceed to the front under this call. This regiment, to which Mr. Kilmer belonged, won the banner. In seventeen days after leaving Elmira they were in the fight at Antietam, where Mr. Kilmer and the banner received their baptism of battle smoke and death-dealing shot and shell. Their beautiful banner was rent, but the young patriot came out unharmed. After this he participated in the battles of Gettysburg, Lost Mountain, Resaca, Kenesaw Mountain, New Hope Church, Peach Tree Creek, Atlanta, Savannah, Averysborough and Bentonville, making the exceptional and wonderful record of escaping without a wound. As he was entering the battle of Resaca he saw his brother John, who was in the 141st N. Y., coming out severely wounded. He did not see his brother again until the close of the war. At Elizabethtown, Kentucky, Mr. Kilmer was taken prisoner with 2,500 others, and guards were placed over them. After two weeks of this uncertain and uncomfortable duration in the enemy's hands, he made his escape in the night when the guards were asleep. He marched with Sherman from Atlanta to the sea, which was a tramp of three hundred miles. Altogether he marched with his regiment 2,600 miles. Their heaviest loss was at New Hope Church, May 15, 1864, where there were one hundred and sixty-eight casualties, of which forty-three were killed or died of wounds. He contracted malarial poison in the swamps of the South, and is one of the deserving men whose pension claim is well tied with red tape in Washington.

In January, 1867, he married Mary A. Houston of Baldwin. His wife died in 1887. In 1889 he married Miss Helen Park of Jasper, Steuben county, N. Y., who taught a select school in her neighborhood and music. At the present time she makes good use of her musical abilities in church and entertaining friends. Their residence is Lowmanville, N. Y.

CHARLES H. Born November 1, 1844, in Chemung, N. Y. His first business was veterinary practice and smithing. He was foreman of the smithing department of the Clipper Chilled Plow Company in Elmira for fourteen years. Is a natural mechanic, and has turned his attention to some valuable inventions. Is the inventor and owner of the valuable and handsome article of business office furniture called the Clip File. His patent cultivator, invented previously, is in the hands of the Clipper Chilled Plow Company.

His Fassett and Flower canes, used in the New York gubernatorial campaign of 1890, added much fervor to both contestants, and although successful as far as they reached during the brief time they were on the market, did not yield a fortune to the inventor. He has held three public offices worthy of mention: justice of peace, deputy sheriff, and postmaster at East Elmira in 1877, for the full term. He is charter member of the Southern Tier Masonic Relief Association, and has been a Freemason for twenty-eight years. Was a soldier in the Rebellion, belonging to the 107th regiment, N. Y. S. Vols., and was wounded at the battle of Antietam. Married Sarah E. Little, July 4, 1866. Residence, Elmira, N. Y.

twenty, to start himself in the cake, cracker and confectionery business. February 28, 1889, he married Susie E. Dennis.

After a few years he changed his business and entered into the wholesale manufacture of cigars, under the firm name of Naylor, Kilmer & Company, and afterward H. C. Kilmer & Company. Continued in this business until July, 1896, when he accepted the office of Supreme Secretary of the Order of Columbus, which he still holds, and may be found at the office of the Supreme Council, 120 North Liberty, Baltimore. He is also engaged in the real estate business.

He took a very active and prominent position in the temperance organization known as the Sons of Temperance, and worked for the suppression of the liquor traffic in the early settlement of his county. Is a member of the first Christian Church of Blountsville. A few years since he served one term as township trustee. FIRST GENERATION.

ISAAC. Born 1814, in Juniata county, Pa. After enduring the toils incident to the day and state of the country, in early manhood removed to Ashland county, Ohio. He lived there until 1853, when he removed to Elkhart county, Indiana, in a new country, on a heavily timbered tract of land of two hundred and forty acres, which he purchased and brought into a state of productive agriculture. Being energetic and frugal, he secured a competency of this world's goods, which he dispersed among his friends and neighbors with truly magnanimous spirit. He was one of the most widely known and influential citizens of the county. He married his cousin, Anna Kilmer, daughter of John Kilmer. She was a woman of singularly amiable disposition—no word of censure or criticism ever passing her lips—believing literally in the scriptural injunction "Judge not that ye be not judged." She died in Elkhart county at the age of eighty-one years.

Mr. Kilmer died in 1883. Both were lifelong members of the Mennonite Church, and lived consistent Christians.

SAMUEL.

PHILIP.

SECOND GENERATION.

Children of Isaac² [Isaac¹.]

MARY. Born May 24, 1841, in Ashland county, Ohio. September 15, 1861, married A. B. Holdeman. Member of the Mennonite Church. Her husband's business is farming and raising thoroughbred horses and Holstein cattle. Residence, Elkhart, Indiana.

SARAH. Born June 14, 1844. Married Jacob H. Wisler, January 26, 1868. Mr. Wisler is a farmer. Both are members of the Mennonite Church. Reside Nappanee, Indiana.

DAVID. Born October 5, 1846, in Ashland county, Ohio. March 19, 1868, married Mary Jones. His business is farming and stock raising.

SAMUEL L., M. D. Born April 12, 1849, in Ashland county, Ohio. When he was four years old his parents moved to Elkhart county, Indiana, settling on a heavily timbered tract of land, consisting of two hundred and forty acres, which was brought to a state of cultivation. Upon this farm Samuel grew to manhood, in the time availing himself of the meagre educational advantages of that day. After this he attended the Normal School in Goshen, Indiana, and afterward an academy at Smithville, Ohio. At the age of eighteen he began teaching school and taught district schools in Indiana for several succeeding seasons. As a teacher he was acknowledged to be successful, combining the practical instruction of useful knowledge with good discipline. In 1871 he graduated at the Northwestern Business College at Madison, Wisconsin. Later held the position of Professor of book-keeping in Bryant and Stratton's College of Philadelphia, and the Nelson of Cincinnati. After this, having by industry accumulated some funds, he began the study of medicine, graduating from Rush Medical College, Chicago, Illinois, in 1879. While in college he acted as assistant demonstrator of Anatomy, and during his last term there became prosector of anatomy under Prof. Charles T. Parkes. He was requested to remain in the College with the assurance of promotion to a regular professorship as rapidly as vacancies existed, but he declined and the next day after his graduation he left for his chosen field of labor, South Bend, Indiana, where he was associated with the well-known and skillful practitioner, Dr. J. A. Kettring, in the practice of medicine. This association was abruptly terminated when it became necessary for his partner to take Mrs. Kettring abroad for her health. Dr. Kilmer then entered on an independent professional career, and was very successful, especially in surgery, for which he had a preference, and to perfect himself in this branch he returned to Rush Medical College and devoted his time to the study of surgery and gynecology. Returning to South Bend he resumed his practice which he has very successfully followed unremittingly since, with the exception of one session of attendance at the Post-Graduate Medical School in New York City. His success as a physician is established, as he numbers his patients from many of the surrounding states, while his remedies have an established reputation and sale. He is a frequent contributor to medical journals and numerous publishers of medical literature have requested him to become a regular contributor to their publications. Professorships in medical colleges have been tendered to him, but he prefers the practice of medicine to the teaching of it and has always declined. He is the author of the Physician's Pocket Account Book, which gives universal satisfaction. Is treasurer and medical director of the firm of Dr. Kilmer & Company, who manufacture well-known remedies at South Bend. For years has been surgeon of the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railway and president of the South Bend Humane Society. Though not zealously active in politics, in two separate political campaigns he could have had the unanimous nomination for state senatorship his party (Republican) insisting upon his accepting it. Has also been requested to accept the nomination to the mayoralty of South Bend, but as it would interfere too much with his professional labors he declined all political honors. Although not a member of any church the doctor has a pew in the First Presbyterian Church, where he attends with his family. Dr. Kilmer was married in 1881 to Miss Margaret Knott, of Sumption Prairie, Indiana, a most estimable young lady and a member of one of the first families in the county. Their married life has been exceptionally happy.

JUSTUS KÜLMER.

His grandson, George H. Kilmer, M. D., of Williston, Ohio, says his grandfather "was born sometime in the latter part of the last century, and was one of the hirelings of King George of England in our country's strife for independence, and served with distinction, advancing from private to sergeant." If this was the War of 1776, he could not have been born much later than 1760. He died in 1856. It might have been the War of 1812. The reign of George III. ceased in fact on the day of the completion of the fiftieth year of his reign, October 25, 1810. Previous seasons of raving madness on that day culminated in the complete dethronement of reason. In law his reign lasted nine years longer, during which time affairs were under Prince of Wales, regent, afterward George IV. The editor has noted this historical reference as applying to the statement of Dr. Kilmer concerning his grandfather, thus affording two bases of estimate in the absence of precision. Justus Kulmer was buried in the cemetery at Bebra, Hessen Nassau, Germany. On the tombstone the name is Kullmer. Dr. Kilmer visited the grave of his grandfather, and, if the age was given on the stone, either failed to note it or give it to the compiler.

He had four children, one boy, Henry, and three girls, all of whom came to this country, settling in Cleveland, Ohio, in 1848. With the exception of one daughter, who in December, 1895, was still living, they are all dead.

HENRY. Was born in Bebra, Hessen Nassau, 1827. Soon after arriving at Cleveland, he married Knuigunde Schuchardt, also from Bebra. Their six children, whose names follow, were all born in Cleveland.

GEORGE H., M. D. Born November 8, 1852; is a physician, and that is all we are able to say of him. Eight letters, two at least containing stamped envelopes for answer, besides postal cards, brought one card and one letter. We would like to know more of him and his family. Sometime in the future all the tribes may be linked to one head.

CATHARINE. Was born November 16, 1854.

MAGDALENA. Was born in 1856.

SUPPLEMENT.

Considering the fact that the editor and compiler, in the plan of this work, has followed not less than thirty distinct lines, it will not appear strange from the view-point of the average person if mistakes and omissions occur. (The average person could not be inveigled into the writing of a family history as the present writer was, and therefore is not supposed to know much about the methods.) There are omissions for which, from his own view-point, he offers no excuse in defense. On his auxiliary chart, in the line of Johannes, he omitted to carry down the children of Maria, daughter of John, son of John I., son of Johannes; and the children of Margaret, daughter of Daniel, son of John I., son of Johannes. They should have been placed on page 35, between the children of Anna Margaret and Augustus, as follows:

Children of Maria⁶ [John⁵, John I.⁴, Johannes³] and John Baumus.

Rachael A. Baumus. Married Sagendorf. Residence, Howe's Cave, N. Y.

Schuyler Baumus. Grovner's Corner's, N. Y.

Charles W. Baumus. Grovner's Corners, N. Y.

Catherine Baumus. Married Richtmeyer. Carlyle Center, N. Y.

Martha E. Baumus. Married Richtmeyer. Newburgh, N. Y.

Adaline Baumus. Married Buck. Albany, N. Y.

Children of Margaret⁶ [Daniel⁵, John I.⁴, Johannes³] and Elijah Griffin.

Ford Griffin. Grovner's Corners, N. Y.

Mrs. William Wallace. High Bridge, Macombi Dam Road, New York City. To requests sent to Mrs. Wallace for information, no responses came back. Mr. Wallace is superintendent of the American Museum of Natural History at Central Park. He has taken much interest in this book, and is a liberal subscriber to the compilation fund.

Mrs. C. W. Karker. Lawyersville, N. Y.

Tardy correspondents are to be blamed for some of the incomplete records. We are sure they had plenty of time. Some additions are inserted here, which came too late to be put in their proper place. For mistakes of correspondents, or those which may have occurred through unintelligible chirography in any part of the book, the editor cannot be held responsible.

Catharine, daughter of Johannes, page 11, married Peter Sagendorf.

John I., son of Johannes, page 11, was born August 16, 1763. If this is correct, and the editor had known it in time, there would have been a transposition in the writing of this line. It is carried down with George as the older of the two brothers. The change is not essential, but would preserve regularity. He died January 27, 1849.

Elizabeth, daughter of Johannes, page 11, married Peter Henry. She died June 13, 1829.

Elizabeth, daughter of George, page 11, married Jesse Patrick.

Daniel, son of John I, page 13, married Maria Shafer.

Maria, daughter of John I, page 13, married Jacob Zimmer.

Margaret, daughter of Daniel, page 22, married Elijah Griffin, and it is the editor's fault that this and the item above were not recorded in the proper place.

Josiah, son of Daniel, page 22, married Amanda Rockefeller. This was news.

Matilda, daughter of Lewis, page 76, married Edson Hewitt.

Lewis Kilmer, page 75, was born March 9, 1817, was a farmer. Died January 11, 1878.

Harriet daughter of Lewis, page 76, married Joseph Bott.

Lewis, page 76, had another daughter whose name the compiler did not get until late. This was Evaline who married Wm. C. Van Valkenburg.

George, son of Henry in the middle of page 83, served in the war of 1812. He was born in Columbia county, N. Y., in 1791, and died at the residence of his son, Captain Kilmer, in Topeka, Kan., February 26, 1876.

Mrs. S. W. Sabin of Boonville, N. Y., page 91, died April 16, 1895.

The following came too late for insertion in their proper place. They are children of George H. Kilmer, son of Joseph, and belong on page 132.

Olive May Kilmer. Born May 22, 1882.

Allee Madora. Born October 22, 1883.

George Will. Born September 15, 1888.
Maudie Fern. Born October 23, 1893.
Myrtle S. A. April 26, 1896.

Likewise too late for insertion in proper place.

NORMA LOUISE

Child of Joseph and Eva McKinney Kilmer of Elmira, N. Y., born November 11, 1897.

This history goes back 200 years or thereabouts, but it is not all a "back number."

While the compiler was in attendance of the meeting of the Synod of New York in October, 1897, he was entertained at the home of Mr. Jones, a railroad postal clerk on the New York Central. Mr. J. mentioned an acquaintance, Norman F. Kilmer, a railroad postal clerk residing at Pine Plains, N. Y. An answer was received from him dated November 9, 1897, just as the last copy goes to the printer. He states that his father was Lewis Kilmer, and grandfather William, and that his sister has in her possession the family Bible which is nearly 300 years old. We regret we did not find him before.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The editor could not get records to connect the Kilmers under this head with any of the lines, long or short.

Edward Kilmer of Casa Blanca, Texas, is county commissioner.

His father's name was Jonas, and born in Cumberland county, N. J., July 4, 1819. He thinks his grandfather's name was Adam. Edward's father died in 1858, when Edward was seven years old. His mother died when he was about four, and it is not strange that he lost track of his ancestry. His father went to Texas in 1846. If any Kilmers can give him any light, address him as above.

Israel Kilmer, Shepard, Michigan. His father Isaac was born in Lancaster county, Pa., 1816, and his grandfather, Christian, was a native of the same state.

A. B. Kilmer, Wadsworth, Ohio, is a brother of Israel.

W. H. Kilmer, Winsted, Ct.

Jeremiah Kilmer, Neola, Iowa.

William Kilmer, Albany, N. Y.

William H. Kilmer, Auburn, N. Y.

John P. Kilmer, Bath, on Hudson, N. Y.

George Kilmer, Elimsport, Pa.

Peter Kilmer, Ottsville, Pa.

Thomas Kilmer, Point Pleasant, Pa.

Edward L. Kilmer, Stouchsburg, Pa.

Frank G. Kilmer, Rochester, Ind.

M. L. Kilmer, Jackson Corners, N. Y., son of Levi G., son of George W., son of William.

If some of the above had been enough interested to answer the letters sent to them possibly the compiler could have connected them somewhere.

William Kilmer, Tionesta, Pa., is a native of Germany, and said he could give interesting history of his ancestors from 1700 but failed to do so after repeated efforts of the compiler to get it.

F. B. Kilmer of New Brunswick, N. J., has expended considerable money and time in collecting old church records and has the transcript of a dozen churches or more in his possession. They were promised for insertion in this book, but are incomplete, needing revision and correction, and it would be folly to send them out as they are. His business demands so much of his time that he has not been able to arrange them for publication, but thinks that later on he will do so, and donate them to any Kilmer who wishes a copy.

EDITOR'S NOTES.

THE NAME.

In many of the old church records on Livingston Manor, where written in German script, it is Kulmer, which seems to be the original. Occasionally in these records it is written Kuelmer. In Documentary History of New York it is spelled Kelmer, Kilmer, Kilmore, Kilmor, Kolman and Kollman, all without much doubt belonging to the Kilmer family. In this documentary history some signatures are by cross-marks and the name was written by others from phonetic sound, often indistinct, which accounts for many of these changes. Wilhelmus in his birch-bark book, kept from 1767 to 1790, wrote it Kelmer. Rev. Joshua Kocherthal, the first Lutheran minister to the Palatines, who had a good German and English education, wrote in Kilmer in his church records as early as 1715. It is evident that the name in German is Kulmer and it is Kilmer in English. Robert Livingston had a way peculiar to himself and wrote it Kolmere. Modernly, for fifty years and more, it has been Killmer, Kilmore, Gillmore and Colman, with some members of the family. Thomas Kilmer, of Hudson, tells us that in his school days at Gallitanville on Livingston Manor, about 1840, some of the families spelled their name Killmer, others Killmore, and some Kilmer. One day the teacher called them up and told them the proper way to spell the name was K-I L-M-E-R, and hereafter on the school records it should be so spelled. The instruction of this wise schoolmaster concerning our name is passed along for the benefit of present and future generations.

PALATINE AND PALATINATE.

The word palatine is related to palace, and as a title dates from the time of the Merovingian kings of France, connected with whose court was a high judicial officer called the comes palatii, or master of the royal household.

When the sovereign chose to confer a peculiar mark of distinction upon the holder of any particular fief under him, he granted the right to exercise the same power within his province as the comes palatii exercised in the royal palace. With the function went the title of comes palatinus, or count palatine, and from the ruler the district under him became finally known as a palatinate.

The Upper and Lower Palatinate were two separate states of the old German empire, not contiguous, though under one ruler. Their territory is now comprised in that of Bavaria, Baden, Hesse Darmstadt and Prussia.

THE OLDEST BIBLE IN POSSESSION OF THE KILMERS.

As far as is known, the oldest heir-loom Bible now in existence, is in possession of Captain George W. Kilmer of Towanda, Pa. It is printed in German, in Martin Luther's translation. Very unfortunately, if there was ever any family record within its pages, it is gone. In it is a statement, written in German by J. Adam Eisenwine (born in Schaubach, District of Canstatt, Kingdom of Wurtemberg, 1821), once its possessor, that it is over three hundred years old. He had it from Miss or Mrs. Kilmer, who was nearly one hundred years old, and states that it came from Holland.

THE COAT OF ARMS.

The imposing emblem of nobility which is placed as a frontispiece to our history was reproduced from the archives of heraldry by W. H. Abbott, genealogist and heraldic draughtsman, now of Saugerties, N. Y. It belonged to Count Kulmer von Rosenpiche and Hohenstein, presumably in Saxony, which borders on the Palatinate, and he may have been a count palatine. We are not after his large estates, which have probably been scattered to the four winds, but it is not wild to think that we can be hitched on to the count. It seems to be the only escutcheon of the kind belonging to our name. To attempt a connection, it would be necessary for one to visit that country. If the editor lives to witness the incoming of the next century, two years hence, he may celebrate by crossing over to the soil of the old world. If he does not, some one else who is interested may go. Colors on the coat of arms are indicated by lines, which are on the card accompanying each book. These points in heraldry were kindly furnished by Mr. Abbott.

THE KILMER MANUFACTURING CO., OF NEWBURGH, N. Y.

We prepared a history of considerable length of this company, but as they were obliged to succumb to the financial pressure, that sketch would be inappropriate, and it only remains to place a brief monumental inscription in locus.

The business began in a small way on a farm in Schoharie county, in 1876. The implements first used in the manufacture of hay bale ties were a common vise and a twister attached to a carpenter's bit-brace. The first investment in stock was 100 pounds of wire. Soon after this the purchase of a ton brought in the neighbors, who anxiously inquired what the daring adventurers were going to do with so much wire. This was followed by several tons, and it was found after several months of business that the shop in the barn was so small that it cramped the wings of enterprise. In 1878 they moved to Schenectady, N. Y., in order to have better facilities for their increasing trade. In 1888 they moved to Newburgh. It was the privilege of the writer to visit the establishment there two or three times, and he could not help contrasting the vise and brace, with which one bundle or 250 ties could be made by steady application in one day, with a machine on which one boy could twist 120 bundles or 30,000 ties per day. Multiply this by the thirty-four machines of this kind then on their floors, and the output is 1,020,000 ties per day. If any of those friendly Schoharie farmers ever visited the establishment, they doubtless opened their eyes as wide as did the editor. They were manufacturing wire and using eighty tons of iron per day for that purpose. This process is wonderfully interesting, especially when witnessed for the first time. Billets of Bessamer steel were placed in furnaces heated by gas where they remained seven minutes, then drawn out at white heat. Then went quickly on arranged carriages operated by machinery from one machine to another, and with each process smaller in diameter and longer in length coiling through one channel then back to another, twisting and hissing like a monstrous serpent, and in less than one minute that billet was a coil of wire 1,400 feet long and still red hot.

They were then employing 450 men and running their works night and day, in the manufacture of hay bale ties, barbed wire and ornamental fencing. Their plant at that time had cost more than $500,000 and they appeared to be pressing steadily upward. But, sic transit gloria mundi.

It was a great loss to Newburg and a great blow to the company, to see this industry, standing first with the kind on the continent, and built up by brave spirits, busy minds and hands, facing many discouragements and much opposition of jealous manufacturers, thus suddenly collapse.

FINALE.

The editor and compiler acknowledges with heartfelt thanks letters of congratulation and commendation already received. The beratings which occasionally have come to him were, it is charitable to say, from persons who are ignorant of the situation.

This seems the only appropriate place as it was omitted in the preface, to acknowledge favors and helpful correspondence from George D. Hale, treasurer of the Interstate Land Company at Topeka, Kansas, and president of the Kansas Society Sons of the American Revolution. He is also an intimate friend of Captain C. B. Kilmer of Topeka.

The editor has prepared a special copy of our history with blank interleaves for the purpose of noting additional history, data, and corrections as they may appear in reference to the family, which will be left as a legacy to succeeding generations who may desire to issue another book. Matters of this kind will be solicited and searched for. His time is worth something, and inquiries for personal benefit involving outside correspondence or search in the voluminous records in the depository should enclose ten cents in stamps or silver. Letters of ordinary reference must enclose a two cent stamp to insure an answer.

He rejoices that the arduous work entrusted to him is so nearly out of his hands and into yours, and before dropping the pen from a weary hand he extends to all the sincere wish for their prosperity and happiness.

EXPLANATION.

The chart is not complete. A few of the shorter lines were necessarily left out ; also, the youngest generations, in most instances, were not added. A complete chart could easily have been made if there had been money enough. It would require a large plate and cost nearly as much again as the one we have printed.

It was announced that the chart would be in colors, and it was the intention to have the lines connecting the generations in red. The editor's draft was so made, but this would have cost at least $10.00 additional. We used double lines instead, which are equally as plain. As it is, the editor has paid nearly $17.00 out of his own pocket on the chart, and from the same source paid $13 00 for the coat of arms. Altogether he is about $100.00 behind if he succeeds in getting pay for all the books ordered. A large part of this shortage he expects to donate to the enterprise. One of the family in Florida, who has been a liberal contributor to the compilation fund, tells me to draw on him the first of June next for $20.00. This will help out considerable.

There are some errors and omission in the chart, which could have been remedied if the editor had requested a proof of the engraver's copy ; but he did not, for the reason that this would have necessitated three or four days' more delay, and he thought there had been delays enough already. As it is, it will pass for the purpose of showing the foundation lines and for the better comprehension of the history. The chart can be made perpetual, by individual families, for succeeding generations.

Fifty extra copies of the chart have been printed, and those wishing the names of their immediate connection that have not been carried out, inserted in fac simile lines and letters, can send names, enclosing ten cents in silver and a two-cent stamp, and a new chart will be forwarded to them, with the omissions supplied.

BREESPORT, N. Y., January 8, 1898.
