PREFACE

THE following uncompleted History of the Kingman Family in America was compiled and prepared for the press by the author, and the work begun some years ago. Before one hundred pages were printed, Mr. Kingman died, leaving no manuscript which has been found relating to any generations of the family beyond the sixth, which is unfinished.

The sheets containing the valuable information concerning these earliest records have been stored for many years, and it is now thought advisable to bring the work to light by publishing it just as it was left by the author—leaving further compilation to be made later by other hands, and printed, if deemed best, at a future time.

SKETCH OF LIFE OF THE AUTHOR,

As contained in the "Memoirs of the New England Historic Genealogical Society" for 1904.

BRADFORD KINGMAN, the son of Josiah Washburn and Mary (Packard) Kingman, was born in the town of North Bridgewater, now the city of Brockton, January 5, 1831. He was a lineal descendant of Henry and Joanna Kingman, who came from Weymouth, England, in 1635, and were among the earliest settlers of Weymouth, Massachusetts. The line of descent is as follows: Henry¹ and Joanna (———), John² and Elizabeth (———), Henry³ and Bethia (Howard), Henry⁴ and Mary (Allen), Seth⁵ and Judith (Washburn), Josiah Washburn⁶ and Mary (Packard).

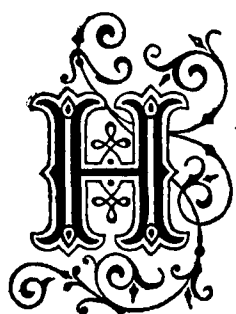

Young Kingman attended the public schools of his native town and the Adelpian Academy in North Bridgewater, and later was a student in Williston Seminary at East Hampton, Massachusetts. He studied law in the office of Lyman Mason, Esq., of Boston, attending lectures at Harvard Law School, and was admitted to the Suffolk bar, in April, 1863. He was appointed justice of the peace by Governor Andrew in January, 1864, and was trial justice for the trial of criminal cases for Norfolk county, many years; was notary public for the same county, and commissioner of deeds for several States. He removed to Brookline in May, 1856.

Mr. Kingman had from his youth a special fondness for historical and genealogical studies, and made them a specialty in connection with his legal profession. He gave much attention to local history and published several works, and was a contributor to many magazines and newspapers. Among these contributions may be mentioned "Historical Sketches of the Churches of North Bridgewater, Mass.," published in the Congregational Quarterly; "Memoir of Deacon Lewis Bradford," of Plympton, Massachusetts; "History of Andover" and "North Andover" in the History of Essex county; and "History of the City of Brockton" in the History of Plymouth county in 1884. In 1892 he published an illustrated volume on the Epitaphs of Burial Hill, Plymouth, containing twenty-three hundred inscriptions. In 1866 he published an elaborate History of North Bridgewater, Massachusetts, of about seven hundred pages, with extensive lists of families, and in 1889 he wrote a history of Brookline for the "History of Norfolk County." In 1894 he published the "History of Brockton." In October, 1870, Mr. Kingman became the pioneer in newspaper enterprise in Brookline by publishing the "Brookline Transcript," of which he was the editor and proprietor for nearly three years.

He was a life member of the New-England Historic Genealogical Society, elected in 1861; also a member of the Pilgrim Society, of Plymouth, of the Essex Institute, of Salem, of the Weymouth Historical Society, and of the Webster Historical Society, Boston. He was a corresponding member of the Maine and Wisconsin State Historical Societies, of the Bostonian Society, and of the Dedham, Old Colony, and Old Bridgewater Historical Societies. While Mr. Kingman was a local historian of note in his own country, he also had extensive opportunities of acquiring information from the records of many hundred towns in Europe, and gathered a large amount of material in the line of family history and genealogy in that country. In 1888 and '89 he spent some time in England for the sake of historical investigation. He died in Boston, July 19, 1903.

FIRST GENERATION.

HENRY KINGMAN was the ancestor of that portion of the KINGMAN family to which the author of this work belongs. The first definite information concerning him in this country is found in a list of passengers "Bound for New England," and known as the "Hull Party" or Company, under the leadership of Rev. Joseph Hull, a native of Somersetshire, England, a graduate of St. Mary's Hall, Oxford, a preacher of note in the south and west of England. This list was dated at a time when the eyes of all Europe were directed to this western world, to which so many had preceded them. Mr. Hull was a Rector of Northleigh in Devonshire, where he had labored for eleven years, and, in common with others in his immediate locality, was fired with zeal and enthusiasm to follow many of those who had already reached this new country.

A company was formed of one hundred and five members divided into twenty-one families, which set sail on the twentieth day of March, 1635, from Weymouth, Dorsetshire, an enterprising and thrifty town on the west coast of England.

At the end of forty-six days on the ocean and an uneventful passage, they sailed into Massachusetts Bay on the sixth of May, 1635, leaving the settlement of Hull on the left, and came to an anchorage before Governor's Winthrop's "little village" of Boston, where they remained until July 2d, waiting permission of the General Court to locate. After reconnoitring for some time they decided Wessaguscus was their best location. They immediately passed in among the numerous islands in the bay and entered Fore River, and came to anchor about four miles from the mouth of the same.

Here follows the list of those who composed the settlers of the year 1635, mentioned above.—

JOHN PORTER, Deputy
Cleark to EDW.
 THOROUGHGOOD.

Having arrived at the place of their choice, preparations were made for life in earnest. The most sheltered spot in the locality, afterwards and now known as Mill Creek, was selected. Rude shelters were erected at first, and these soon after gave way to more substantial dwellings on the farms. Of the wisdom of their choice for the purposes of permanent settlement we shall have no doubts, if we will read a description of the place as given by writers of that day.

Two years previous to their landing, Wood, in his "New England Prospect," describes the situation as follows:—

"This as yet is but a small village; yet it is very pleasant, and healthful, very good ground, and is well timbered, and hath good store of hay-ground. It hath a very spacious harbour for shipping before the town, the salt water being navigable for boats and pinnances two leagues. Here the inhabitants have good store of fish of all sorts, and swine, having acorns and clams at the time of year. Here is likewise an Alewife river."

During the early settlement of the place known as "Wessaguscus," Morton in his "New English Canaan," writes as follows:—

"And when I had more seriously considered of the bewty, of the place, with all her faire indowments, I did not thinke that in all the knowne world it could be paralel'd. For so many goodly groues of trees; dainty fine round rising hillucks; delicate faire large plaines, sweete cristall fountaines, and cleare running streames, that twine in fine meanders through the meads, making so sweete a mumering noise to heare, as would even lull the sences with delight a sleepe, so pleasantly doe they glide upon the pebble stones, jetting most jocundlly where they doe meete ; and hand in hand runne downe to Neptunes Court, to pay the yearely tribute, which they owe to him as Soveraigne Lord of all springs.”

Soon after Rev. Mr. Hull and his Company arrived in Weymouth and for eight years up to the time of the removal of Rev. Samuel Newman to Rehoboth in 1643 the town had gained rapidly and became one of the most important of any in the Massachusetts Colony. A record of the lands and their owners, while not perfect, is quite good, and serves to show who occupied the soil, with the number of acres held by them.

Among those who are mentioned in these lists we find the following :—

The Lands of Henry Kingman.

Twelve acres in the westernneck first giuen to John Whitmarsh bounded on East, with the land of Nicholas Oniseperus and Richard Whitmarsh, on the west & with the land of John Allin, the sea on the north, the land of Thomas Holbrooke on the south,

Three acres in the westernneck first giuen to William Smith, bounded on the East and south with the land of William Smith, on the north with the land of Thomas White, on the south with the comon.

Three acres first giuen to Edward Poole, bounded on the East with a highwaie, on the west with the land of William Hayard, on the north with the land of Enoch Hunt, on the south with the land of Ralph Allin.

ffower acres first giuen to George Allin bounded on the East with a high waie, on the west with the sea, his own land on the north, and the land of Ralph Allin on the south.

Three acres in the Easterneck of saltmarsh first giuen to M^r. Buslem bounded on the north with the bay, on the south with the back Riuer.

Two acres of salt marsh neere “burying Iland” first giuen to Aingell Holard bounded on the East and south with the land of Robert Martin, on the west wth the creeke, on the north with m^r Parkers marsh.

Six acres in the westernneck first giuen to Samuel Butterworth bounded on the East with the comon, on the west with a highwaie.

Mr. Kingman continued to add to his possessions from time to time, till he became what was called in that time a large owner.

The following deed is the first conveyance of land to Henry Kingman, which after a complete examination of both town and county records, we have been able to find :

Deed of Land from William Richards to Henry Kingman, situated in Weymouth, Mass.

W^m Richards of Waimouth, for and in consideration of Fifty Pounds to him in hand payd, did grant vnto HENRY KINGMAN of Waymouth, his dwelling house in Waymouth, together wth his lott adjoyning to it, being twenty Acres more or less, as also two Acres of salt marsh adjoyning to the upland and foureteene rodd of upland more joyneing to the forenamed vp-land more or less, being bounded on the north wth the sea, Thomas Streame south, the sea East, & Thomas Holbrooke, Junio'r & Henry Kingman west. Also one Acre salt marsh in the towne of Braintre lyeing close by the fferme house of M^r W^m Tyng together wth the fence thereto belonging wth the great lott, swamp lott & Comons of right belonging. This was by a deed of sale, dated 12, 3, 1648.

Sealed & dd in p^rsence of
W^m PERKINS, JOSEPH SHAWE,
WILLIAM ASPINWALL. WILLIAM RICHARDS & a Seale.

The settlement was made in that section of the town of Weymouth known as "Old Spain," or North Weymouth, on the lands extending from "Burial Hill" to the sea. On the second day of September, 1635, the name of the plantation was changed by order of the General Court to Weymouth, which name it has retained to the present day, and from whence the descendants of the families of that date have become numerous and widely scattered over every section of the United States, its Territories, the British Provinces and the Canadas. This town is, next to Plymouth, the oldest town in Massachusetts, and the oldest in Norfolk County, and has a history extending over two and three quarter centuries.

From that town those bearing the name of Kingman in this country originated, and are those of which we are writing.

Henry Kingman immediately entered upon the duties of citizenship, and was admitted a freeman of the Colony of Massachusetts Bay, March 3, 1636; this being conclusive evidence that he was a member of some Congregational church, as no person could exercise the right of suffrage or hold any public office until he was admitted a freeman by the General Court. At the same meeting of the General Court, he was licensed to keep a ferry, as appears by the following record:

"Thomas Aplegate was discharged of keepeing the fferry at Waymothe, and Henry Kingman lycensed to keepe the saide fferry during the pleasure of the Court. March 3, 1636."

"Henry Kingman, the ferryman, of Waymoth, is granted for this yeare to take twopence apiece for transportation of people, 12 March, 1637-8."

In addition to his other calling as ferryman, he was licensed to keep an inn, or house of entertainment.

His services were often called into requisition for the public, both in the town and colony, and his frequent appointment on committees in laying out roads and other public duties indicates the confidence placed in him as a reliable person, and of good judgment, and that his services were valuable and appreciated.

Mr. Kingman's attention was given largely to agricultural pursuits, very naturally, and necessarily incident to the life of a pioneer in a new and unsettled country ; and we find at an early date among the division of lands, that he received his share. The following list gives several tracts assigned to him at different dates, such as :

In 1636, 42 acres, near Fresh Pond, now "Whitman's Pond." In 1651, he is among the property owners (amount not stated). In 1663, 14 acres, Lot No. 34. In the second division, near Braintree line, 42 acres, Lot No. 38.

Mr. Kingman early exhibited an active and enterprising spirit, and entered into public affairs with energy, courage and an unceasing activity, and soon became one of the leaders in the colony ; a prominent and influential man, taking an active interest in all measures calculated to improve the town and enhance its prosperity. Many of his descendants have also inherited the same progressive spirit, and have been leaders in public affairs.

"At a General Court held at Newetowne the 2nd day of the 3rd month, 1638, for elections, Henry Kingman was chosen Deputy."

"Att a Court of Election held at Boston the 27th of the third month, anno 1652,

"Henry Kingman was chosen Deputy for Waymothe, Mass."

"At a Gennerall Courte of Elections, held at Boston, 26 May, 1657,

"The names of the Deputies retourned from the seuerall tounes to serve at this Generall Court were,

"Weimouth : Henry Kingman."

"25th Dec. 1648, Thomas Holbrooke, Henry Kingman, Nathell Adams, a committee of Waymouthe, Mass. and Stephen Kingsley & Samuel Bass of Braintry, were appointed a committe for laying out of a highway for the Country from Weymoth to Dorchester."

"The retourn of Tho Holbrooke, Henry Kingman, & Nathaniell Adams, of Weimouth, and Stephen Kingsley & Samuel Basse, of Braintree, as committe appointed by order of the Generall Courte ffor the laying out of the country highway betwene Weimouth & Dorchester wch the Court apprvd & confirmed to be recorded according to their agreement in the Court records : —

“ Itt is ordered, that the country highway from Weimoth to Dorchester shall lie thro psent wonted highway from Weimouth to Braintree meeting fower rods wide — and whereas at the said meeting house the said way house, cannot conveniently be had at one end thereof, that therefore the said way to runne there two rods at one end and two rods at the other end thereof, and then to fall fower rods againe, at a marked stump a little beyond the said meeting house, and so that breadth to a stump of a tree nere Henry Neales home house, and thence to be carryed the said breadth to the lott called Hudsons lott, rectifying the way which now is by taking it of through seuerall nookes, as it is markt, and through the said Hudsons lott the same breadth to the hill, going doune towards the brooke, and thence till tenn Poles beyond the brooke, six rods wyde, and then to Lye fflower rods wyde vnto Dorchester bounds, as it is markt by severall markes for that purpose. May 8, 1649.

Mr. Kingman died in Weymouth, Mass., July 5, 1667.

SECOND GENERATION.

EDWARD KINGMAN² (*Henry*¹), son of Henry and Joanna Kingman. He was born in England, about 1619, and came to this country with his parents in 1635, and settled in "Wessaguscus," now Weymouth, Mass. Of the personal history of this man our record is quite meagre. We do find, however, that in the will of his father, May 24 in 1666, he was left with the old homestead, orchards, lands, &c. Again, at a meeting of the Selectmen held December 14, 1663, "allotments of land were made to sundry persons, among whom was Edward Kingman. In the first division of land beginnunge on Brauntry Lyne, were 5 acres Lott Numbered 80, also in the Second Division Bounding on Brauntry lyne, Lott numbered 11, containing 15 acres."

The next we find of him is at the time of King Philip's War, when men were wanted for service in protecting our frontier towns. The town of Weymouth responded in a liberal manner, and when a call was made during the early part of 1675 and hostilities had begun and that town had been attacked, twelve of the young men, from among the most promising of that locality, entered promptly into the service, as volunteers, doing valiant service under the command of Capt. Isaac Johnson, as appears in a return made out at Dedham Plains, December 10, 1675, nine days previous to the destruction of the Narraganset fort.

JOANNA KINGMAN² (*Henry*¹), daughter of Henry and Joanna Kingman. She was born in England, about 1624; married THOMAS HOLBROOK, who was born in England and came to this country in the same ship with his wife. He was one of the earlier settlers of that portion of Weymouth, Mass., known as "Old Spain," and was an active, prominent and useful man, and often called to positions of responsibility in public affairs. He held the office of "townsman" (equivalent to selectman) for several years.

JOHN KINGMAN² (*Henry*¹), son of Henry and Joanna Kingman. He was born in England, 1633. Brother to Thomas above named, came over with the other members of the family and settled in Weymouth, Mass., in 1635. Here he was the owner of considerable land, and followed the occupation of farming, in which he was quite successful, and added to his possessions from time to time as he needed, till a new field opened before him and he removed to the then "West Parish" of Bridgewater, now known as West Bridgewater. He purchased a farm of Michael Bacon, Jr., of Billerica, Mass., which had formerly belonged to his uncle Daniel Bacon, in 1685, the farm on which Caleb Kingman afterward resided. He is the ancestor of nearly all, if not all of the name of Kingman who have resided in the four parishes of Bridgewater and other towns of the Old Colony and Cape Cod. His descendants have become numerous, and are scattered over every section of the country, a large number of whom have resided within a small radius of the old homestead in West Bridgewater—in East Bridgewater, Bridgewater, and North Bridgewater (now Brockton). Mr. Kingman was one of the first of the name to reside in Bridgewater. Coming to Weymouth, at the early age of two years, his early life and training was at that place, where he spent fifty years, and then removed to Bridgewater. He was a plain, honest farmer, firm and reliable, persevering in his labors, and became a large holder of land. Besides the lots purchased of Mr. Bacon, he was constantly having accessions by grants, in different localities.

His wife was ELIZABETH ———.

Here follows a Deed of Sale of land which John Kingman conveyed about the time he removed to Bridgewater, and it is supposed he sold out his possessions, having at that time expectation of removing his residence.

THOMAS KINGMAN³ (Thomas,² *Henry*¹), oldest son of Thomas and Rebecca Kingman, was born in Weymouth, Mass. He married MERCY, daughter of John and Mercy Randall of Weymouth, and had six children. His wife died March 19, 1737; and he then married, for his second wife, widow Mary Burrill, March 16, 1738. He died February 16, 1742; and his widow married, for her third husband, Mr. Ephraim Thayer of Braintree, December 20, 1863, who was in his 84th year, and she was in her 78th year. The following is taken from the Boston Evening Post of Monday, December 24, 1753: "We hear from Weymouth that on Thursday last was married there, at the hour of 12, Mr. Ephraim Thair of Braintree, being 84 years old, to Mrs. Mary Kingman, of that place, aged 78, it being about fifteen months since he buried his former wife (with whom he had lived sixty years in the married state), at which time he was father, grandfather and great-grandfather of sixty-six male and sixty-six female children, since when there has been an increase of twenty more. After the ceremony was over, he returned to his house in Braintree, attended with a great concourse of people. She was a pious, good Christian; and the tradition is, that her children provided for her comfort in her old age with dutiful affection. June 15, 1757, died Ephraim Thayer, suddenly, in the 88th year of his age, occasioned, as is supposed, by a violent blow in his forehead, with the sharp end of a rail, at the barn door, where he was found dead. A great concourse of people attended his funeral."

CAPT. DAVID KINGMAN⁶ (Lieut. David,⁴ John,³ John,² Henry¹), son of Lieut. David and Mary (Hayward) Kingman, was born in the East Parish of Bridgewater, now East Bridgewater, Mass., February 26, 1733. He married ABIGAIL HALL, in 1752. She died 1794, aged 62 years. He died May 11, 1805, at the age of 72 years.

Mr. Kingman, like his father, was a country merchant. On the twentieth of December, 1757, he was licensed to sell tea, coffee and china ware, all of which required a special license. About 1765, he removed from the "Robinson neighborhood" to Central Street, and resided in a house which stood where the late Daniel P. Edson lived and died. A short distance east of his house was his place of business. His store was a favorite resort, as the number of country merchants at that day was not large, and from these the Bridgewater soldiers of the Revolutionary army were supplied with ready-made clothing. At the commencement of the Revolution, he was elected commander of the local militia in the East District, or east half of the East Precinct of Bridgewater, and continued in that office till 1784. He was in command of a company in Col. Edward Mitchell's regiment "att the Alarm at Squantum or 'Brain-tree Farms' in March, 1776." In 1780 he represented Bridgewater at the General Court. He was an energetic business man, and interested in iron manufactures, was an owner in the forges of the East and South Parishes. He was of a cheerful disposition, complaisant, and had a great fondness for children, who always reciprocated his regard for them. His kindness to strangers was proverbial, many of whom could bear witness to his hospitality. Ardently attached to the clergy, he was gratified if he could lighten their labors or promote the welfare of the people. He was extremely fond of music, and was for many years a leader in that part of public worship. For many years he kept a diary of passing events.

Mr. Kingman was a farmer, and resided on the homestead where he was born, on Summer Street in North Bridgewater. In addition to his agricultural pursuits, he had what was very common in his day, a nail shop, in which nails had to be forged singly. Having a large family, and mostly boys, they were early learned to be efficient in that business, and he was a large manufacturer. Machines for cutting nails from iron plates had not been invented at that time. He also raised considerable tobacco for his own use and his neighbors. When the Revolutionary war broke out we find him in Capt. Nathan Packard's company, Major Eliphalet Cary's regiment, and marched on the Alarm to Rhode Island, July 22, 1780. He was also in Capt. John Thompson's company, in September, 1786. Previous to the division of the old town of Bridgewater, he was a member of the school committee in the North Parish. He was a man of robust constitution, of a humorous disposition, of a kindly, good nature, never giving offence, and fond of anything which contributed to merriment, always having a story on hand to tell with good effect. His company was much sought after by his friends and fellow townsmen, and his witty sayings are remembered, and often mentioned in social circles at the present day.

LEVI KINGMAN⁶ (Isaac,⁵ Isaac,⁴ John,³ John,² *Henry*¹), son of Isaac and Content (Packard) Kingman, was born in Goshen, Mass., June 14, 1789. He married first, THEODOTIA, 1817, daughter of Joshua and Philena (Richmond) Packard of that town. She was born January 9, 1798, and died June 22, 1829. About the time of their marriage they removed to Cummington, Mass. He married second, WEALTHY, daughter of Dea. Amos Cobb of that town. She died June 22, 1855. The father died February 7, 1880.

Isaac Kingman, the father of Levi, and his family removed from Worcester to Goshen, Mass., shortly after the Revolution, and settled on what was the "Shaw place." The subject of this sketch early removed to the East Village of Cummington and entered the store of Robert Dawes & Co., and soon became the successor of that firm. In 1820, he enlarged his store building, and in 1821 opened a public house, of which he was proprietor for a dozen years or more, when he retired from active mercantile business to attend to his agricultural interests, in which he was assisted by his boys. His house was always a favorite resort for the people of Cummington and others, and the large building near the "Old Elm Tree" will long be remembered by the travelling public. Mr. Kingman in his early life (1812-1814) was a successful manufacturer of what were well known as "Tuscarora Socks," a patent overshoe. They were a very popular and useful article, and had an extensive sale. Mr. Kingman was a public spirited man, and took a lively interest in every day life. One who knew him well, writes: "There was no stauncher abolitionist in western Massachusetts. He always had a prophet's chamber at the disposal of Garrison, or Phillips, or any one of their Guild. It was owing to him more than to any other person that Cummington was the best anti-slavery town in that section of the State. He was a man of remarkable self-control, and his life was a continual tendency from good to better things." He and the poet Bryant were boys together, the poet being five years the younger.

During the centennial year, Mr. Kingman invited his children home to unite in celebrating his eighty-seventh birthday. We take pleasure in giving the invitation a place in this connection.

An Aged Man Calling His Children Home.

My children are gone from the old house at home,
And I'm left to wander almost alone ;
It doth not become me to grieve and to mourn,
For children and bees have to leave their first home.

Now come back, my dear children, come home in the morn,
And celebrate the day your father was born ;
Be here in good season, precisely at noon,
And remember the day, the fourteenth of June.

If all my children should come home from the West,
It would make me feel happy, cheerful and blest.
Come then to the hills, the rocks and the earth,
And fill the old house, the place of your birth.

I know you dislike our rocks and our hills,
But we never shall swap them for your ague and chills ;
Come, feeble and sickly, come, see for yourself,
Come, make us a visit and get your good health.

The East and the West have no cause to complain,
One furnishes clothing and the other fine grain ;
I would not, if I could, alter either one mite,
For He that formed both has made them just right.

Don't be over anxious to get rich in a day,
For thieves may break in and steal it away ;
Rather give heed to what you've been told,
Which is better, far better, than bonds or fine gold.

To the widow and the fatherless be generous and true ;
Help the poor and the needy, wherever you be.
We can't do too much if we do all we can,
For the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man.

Eighty-seven years of my life's passed away,
It seems but a month, a week, or a day ;
While viewing the past I solemnly vow
That I'll trust in my Maker, who cares for me now.

If you are not ready and want longer to wait,
It may be with me forever too late ;
When your father calls, you may be deaf or be dumb,
But when my Father calls, I've got to go home.

LEVI KINGMAN.

CUMMINGTON, MASS., 1876.

In 1879, three years later, the celebration of the ninetieth birthday of the venerable Levi Kingman, the father of ex-Senator Kingman, at Cummington, on Saturday, June 14, was an event of much local interest. The company included all his children, three sons and three daughters, coming from five different States, and about seventy others, kindred and neighbors. A bountiful collation was served in the open air, at small tables, on the lawn, arranged with exquisite taste. The gathered group, with the blind patriarch for its central figure, formed a picture of rare beauty. Several congratulatory letters were read and a neat poem from Rev. John W. Chadwick. Among the letters was one from Gov. Talbot, who alluded playfully to the fact that Mr. Kingman offered him the village school when he was a student at the Cummington Academy. Brief addresses were made by Lorenzo Tower, W. W. Mitchell, Dr. Kimball, Landlord Babbitt, and by two of the sons, Augustus and Rolden. But the great speech of the occasion was made by the blind old man of ninety. With a strong and ringing voice he gave a sketch of his ninety years' journey. Its whole tone was cheerful, with touching allusions to the long-continued and tender care of his daughter Martha, and a reverent acknowledgment of that Providence which had guided his footsteps through all the years of his pilgrimage.

ABNER KINGMAN⁶ (Abner,⁵ John,⁴ John,³ John,² *Henry*¹), son of Abner and Susanna (Leonard) Kingman, was born June 20, 1772, in Middleboro', Mass. He married LYDIA, born 1770, daughter of Thomas Paddock of Middleboro', November 5, 1793.

This family resided at Warren, R. I., for a short time, and removed to Providence, R. I., in August, 1805, where he engaged in the shoe trade. Previous to this date, he had been a school teacher. He remained in Providence until the latter part of 1827, when he closed his business, and removed to Boston, Mass., in March, 1828, where he remained in broken health until the death of his wife, November 28, 1832. About a year later, while on a visit to his daughters in New Haven, Conn., he died, August 14, 1833, and then ended the earthly life of an exemplary Christian, an influential man, highly cultivated in mind and manners.

We know of no better way to give the personal history of this good man than by quoting from a religious newspaper, written a short time after his decease :

“He was a deacon in the church in Providence during the most of twenty-two years. His early advantages for mental and moral improvement were very limited, but what might be called an innate taste for mental culture and general elevation of character prevailed against obstacles. He became a Christian at the age of eighteen, but did not make a public profession of his faith until he was twenty-three. Few men during a Christian walk of forty years have made a happier exhibition of the fruits of divine grace. No one thing in the exhibition of his character was especially striking. In all the relations of life the supreme bent of his soul was manifest. In every scene he aimed to walk as one who had become a partaker of the divine nature and in whose soul the Spirit dwelt.

“Almost equally he discharged the duties that devolved upon him as a husband, a father, a member of Christ’s body, a citizen, a servant for Jesus’ sake. If more conspicuous in either relation, it was in his family ; next, in the church. His sabbath day observance was marked and special. He perpetually urged on all the members of the family the practical shining forth of Christian principle to regulate mutual, every day intercourse. As a member of the church, he was esteemed especially for his holy example, instructive council, and enlarged benevolence. With whatever church he became connected, he was calculated to excite reverence and esteem, and gradually, though unsought, yet by weight of character to become a pillar. He was deeply interested in the critical study of the scriptures, and in introducing the young to such acquaintance. His soul was constantly going forth out of self. In reformation of morals, in healthfulness of public sentiment, in all departments of general benevolence, he had a deep interest. His views on all subjects to which he gave his attention were clear and comprehensive. He had uncommon balance of mind. His social feelings were strong, tender, and widely branching out. His love for his children and his solicitude for their Christian welfare were most marked ; and it was his constant prayer that he might deeply feel his solemn obligations to train his children up for God.

BELA KINGMAN⁶ (Abner,⁵ John,⁴ John,³ John,² *Henry*¹), son of Abner and Susanna (Leonard) Kingman of Middleboro', Mass., was born May 2, 1781. He married LYDIA MACOMBER, daughter of Philip and Abigail (Macomber) Dean of Taunton, Mass., November 29, 1804. She was born July 6, 1786, and died December 12, 1860. Mr. Kingman was the son of a farmer and tanner, and followed the same occupation, and succeeded to the old homestead at North Middleboro', where he became the head of a family of twelve children. He held a major's commission in 1812; but, two persons holding the same office in the same regiment, he was excused from serving. He was a firm and consistent member of the Congregational Church in North Middleboro', and was its first sabbath school superintendent, in 1818. He was of a strong robust nature, and morally strong, of good judgment, and in all the positions he was called to fill he performed their duties in accordance with the saying, "Act well your part, there all the honor lies"; and here we may be permitted to quote from one who writes as follows concerning the characteristics of the Kingman family: "Strong attachment to and high admiration of each other; ambition, not in the acquisition of wealth or goodly apparel, but in the acquisition of knowledge." It may well be said, "A Kingman is a good friend and true, but not an enemy to be desired."

On the seventh day of March, 1848, there was held a family meeting at the old homestead, at which were present five generations, including Mrs. Dean, the mother of Mrs. Kingman, on which occasion Rev. Sylvester Holmes preached a sermon, and an original hymn appropriate to the occasion by Mrs. Fanny Dean Holmes, wife of the preacher, was sung:

Here, first we saw the early dawn,
 Here, first, the closing day,
 Here, first, our hearts were taught to love,
 Our infant lips to pray.

And now when years of joy and grief,
Of love and hope have fled;
With children gathered at our side,
Our hearts with others wed.

Here one unbroken band we come,
To this dear cherished home;
While, father, mother, both are here,
To welcome those who've roamed.

Then let our thanks like incense rise,
To him whose guardian love,
From shafts of death on every side,
Has shielded from above.

Oh, may our hearts to him be given,
The only poor return,
Which can be rendered to our God,
In this, our dark sojourn.

Then, tho' we part, we'll meet in Heaven,
Where partings never come;
There, one unbroken band, may all
Find an eternal home.

In the cemetery connected with the Wentworth Street Lutheran Church at Charleston, S. C., is the following inscription :

DAVID KINGMAN⁶ (*David,*⁵ *David,*⁴ *John,*³ *John,*² *Henry*¹), son of David and Abigail (Hall) Kingman, was born in the East Parish of Bridgewater, Mass., November 27, 1763. He married ELIZABETH, daughter of Col. Calvin Smith of Mendon, Mass., January 29, 1786. By Rev. Mr. Frost.

Mr. Kingman was a very active business man, and engaged in ship building. He resided in East Bridgewater in a house later occupied by Mr. Chamberlain, opposite the Common, and opposite the soldiers monument. He went to Hanover, Mass., in or about 1799, where he launched, in 1800, the ship "Miantinomo," 281 tons, of Norwich, Conn., named after a famous Narraganset sachem. She was seized by the Spanish, and condemned at Valparaiso in 1801. In 1801, he built the schooner "Union" for Mr. Jackson of Plymouth, Mass. In 1802, brigantine "Callisto," 190 tons, of Boston, Mass. In 1803, ship "Nanking," 290 tons, of Boston. In 1804, two ships. In 1805, three ships. In 1804, ship "Roller," 293 tons, of Boston; ship "Ann," 296 tons, of Baltimore, Md. In 1805, ship "Laura," 293 tons, of Boston; ship "Romeo," 312 tons, of Boston. During the same year, ship "Susan," 311 tons, of Plymouth. Of this latter ship, Mr. Kingman was the owner. It is said by L. Vernon Briggs, in his excellent and elaborate work on ship building on the North River at Hanover, Mass., that the vessels Mr. Kingman built averaged larger than those built at any other yard in Hanover, nearly all being over 300 tons. In 1806, Mr. Kingman built the ship "Charleston and Liverpool Packet," 325 tons, of Boston. In 1807, ship "Isabella," 308 tons, of Hingham, Mass. In 1808, Mr. Kingman formed a partnership with his son-in-law, Hon. Elijah Hayward, and they built in company until Mr. Kingman's death. In 1810, Mr. Kingman had built ship "America," 362 tons, in which he was owner. He also erected the well known tavern, afterward kept by Joseph Pocorny, Henry Costley, Frank Howard, William Rand and W. B. Ames, respectively. It is now known as the "Hanover House." Mr. Kingman was at one time engaged in ship building in Belfast, Me. After the decease of Rev. Samuel Angier at East Bridgewater, he purchased the Angier house and grounds, took down the old "manse" which had stood over eighty years, and erected a large dwelling house and several other buildings. He died April 27, 1812, aged 40 years. A few years after his decease the buildings were all removed, and the house, with some additions, constitute the "Hyland House" at Bridgewater, Mass.

POLLY KINGMAN⁶ (Marlboro,⁵ Ebenezer,⁴ John,³ John,² *Henry*¹), daughter of Marlboro and Sibyl (Haskell) Kingman, was born in Waterford, Me., November 18, 1797. The father when a boy assisted his father in clearing up a lot of land in Bridgton, and afterward learned the sailmaker's trade. Soon after his marriage, his father gave him a farm adjoining his own, in the cultivation of which he spent much of his time. His son Daniel removed to Mexico in 1841, where he married a Mexican girl. In 1861, he was shot by an Indian near Eagle Pass, Texas, leaving a wife and two daughters. Epps Burnham, accompanied by his son Charles, left Boston in the fall of 1852 for Galveston, Texas, to visit his son Daniel at Samona, Mexico. On his return, leaving Charles to follow next day at Houston, he took passage on the steamer "Farmer" which was racing, opposition to the steamer "Neptune," and when within four miles of port it blew to pieces. At the time of the explosion he was in his berth, and had one of his arms shattered by the opening and closing of timbers on him, rendering it necessary to amputate the arm. His baggage, clothing, money and all was lost, and he was obliged to enter the hospital at Galveston, where he received tolerable care. In a few months he started for home, after suffering much from sickness caused by the unhealthiness of the water he drank while on the Mississippi River, and at last arrived in New York. From thence he was taken to his son's, in Chelsea, Mass., where everything was done that could be; but he died in one week from the time he reached there. Mr. Burnham was an honest, Christian, kind hearted man, honored and respected by all.
