GEORGE HOSMER.

SARAH (LATHROP) HOSMER.

Respectfully dedicated to the father and mother who gave me a good wife, whose loving devotion has been unceasing, whether sunshine or clouds surrounded us.

INTRODUCTION.

In commencing the genealogy of the ancestors and descendants of Daniel Lothrop Sr., I know of nothing more appropriate than a quotation from the pen of Daniel Webster: "There is a moral and philosophical respect for our ancestors which elevates the character and improves the heart." Also the following from Lord Lindsay: "An affectionate regard for the memory of our forefathers is natural to the heart; it is an emotion totally distinct from pride. If the virtues of strangers be so attractive to us, how infinitely more so should be those of our own kindred."

The family name undoubtedly came from Lowthorpe, a small parish in the Wapentake of Dickering, East Riding of Yorkshire, England. In and near this small parish lived the earliest known Lothrops, who seem to have spelled the name as pleased their individual fancy. The direct line of ancestry here given dates back to John Lowthroppe, 1545, as given on page 6, and his style of spelling seems to have been used by his son Robert and grandson Thomas, while his great-grandson, Rev. John, the emigrant, changed it to Lothropp, and the next generation, (Samuel), brought it down to the simplest form—Lothrop. This latter spelling was used by four succeeding generations, including Daniel Sr., while five of his sons changed it again to what we may term the American form—Lathrop—the balance retaining the old style. In this connection it will be noted that these records only include the direct line of ancestors from John¹ to Daniel,⁹ making no attempt to cover the ancestral branches, being quite extensive and confusing.

While the earliest known ancestor of Daniel Lothrop Sr. came before the public somewhat prominently early in the sixteenth century, as noted above, there are occasional records concerning persons of the name as having lived in that section of England at much earlier dates, indicating a very ancient origin of the family name. In 1216 Walter de Lowthorpe was elected sheriff of Yorkshire. In 1292 another Walter de Lowthorpe was summoned to answer to King Edward I for a minor alleged offence. August 3, 1474, Robert Lowthorp, of Bridlington, made his will, giving his landed estate to his relatives in Lowthorpe and Cherry Burton. It is noteworthy as being the earliest will now preserved in the registry at York, of any person of the name of Lowthorp. It is written in the abbreviated Latin peculiar to that period, and names his wife, Catherine, as executrix.

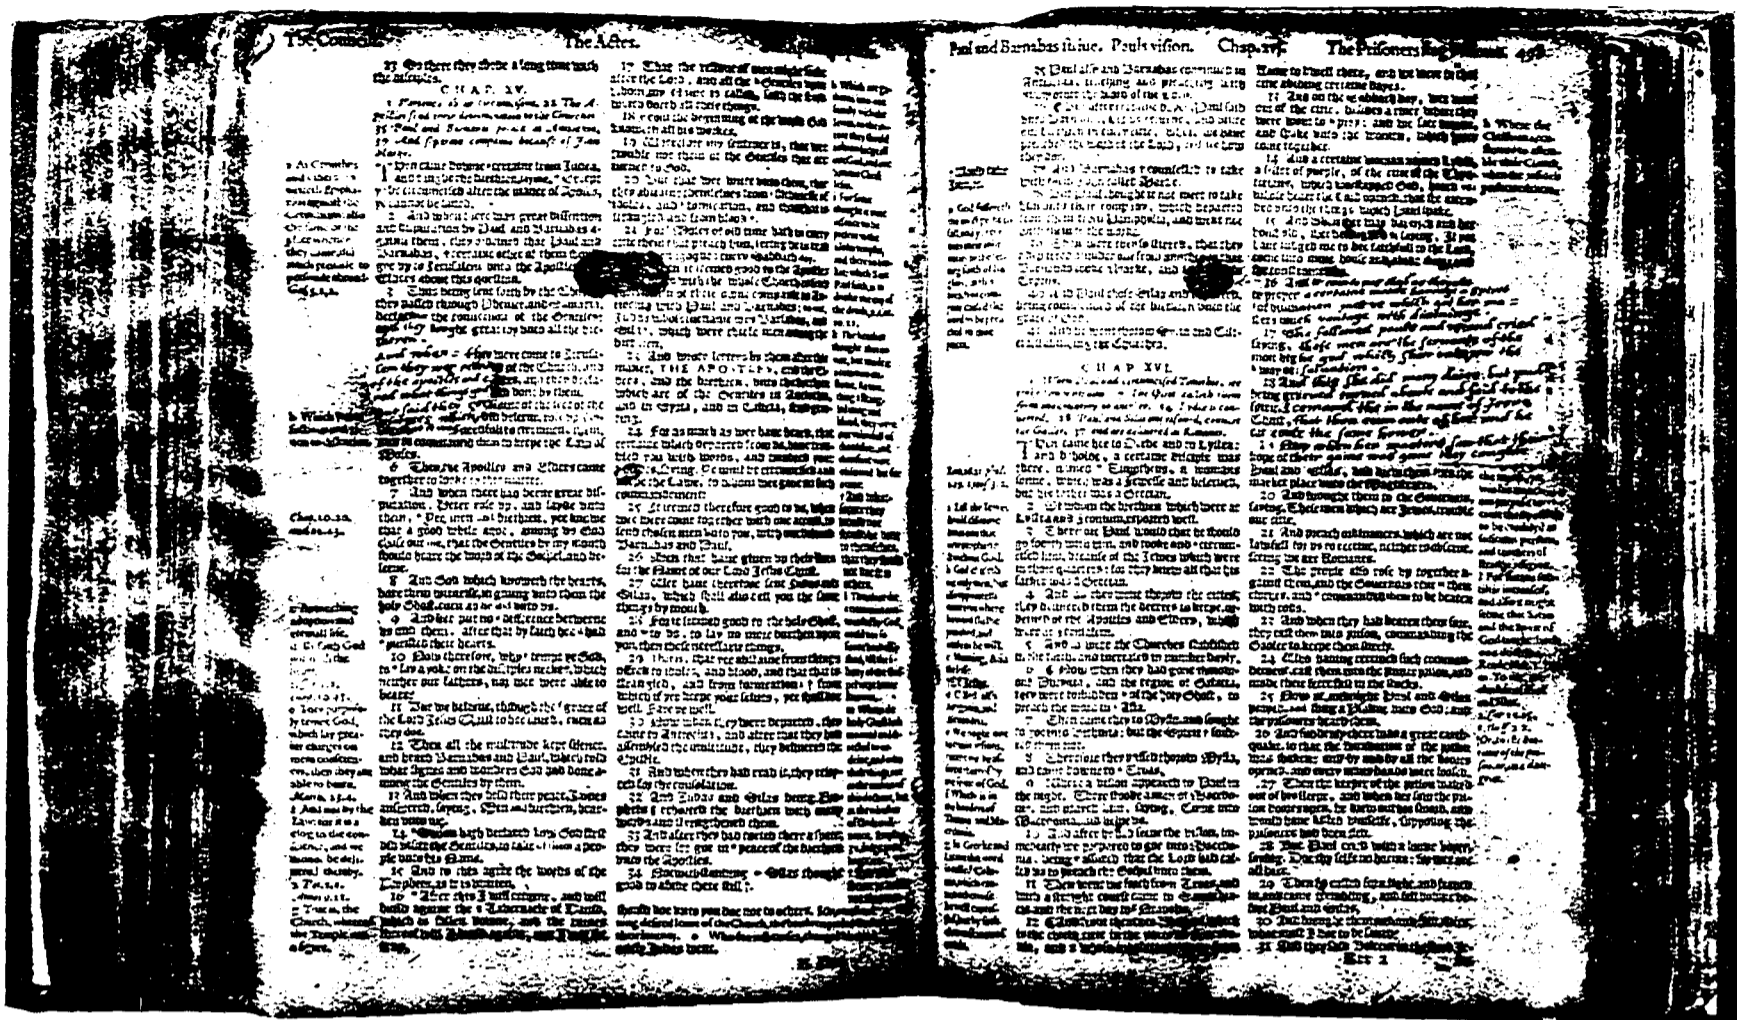

As shown in the engraving, we have one substantial monument to connect us with the ancestors of long ago—the Collegiate Church of Saint Martin, in Lowthorpe, dating from the time of Edward III, who reigned from 1327 to 1377. Its tower, which is in good repair and covered with ivy, commands a view of the little hamlet of one hundred and fifty persons, which is included in a perpetual curacy of the archdeaconry of York. The eastern portion of the nave is now in ruins and also covered with ivy; the present nave is shortened and there is no east window; the chancel, of which no remains are left, doubtless fell into ruins and disappeared in the sixteenth century, soon after the dissolution of the collegiate body at Lowthorpe. The church had for one of its chaplains in the reign of Richard II, Robert de Louthorp.

Rev. John Lothropp, the twelfth of twenty-two children of Thomas Lowthroppe, (by three wives), was the pioneer of the Lothrop and Lathrop families in America. He was educated in Queen's College, Cambridge, where he was admitted to membership in 1601, graduated B.A. in 1605, and M.A. in 1609, and became curate of Egerton, County Kent, forty-eight miles south-east of London, in 1611, proving, no doubt, a very acceptable minister of the English Church. But in 1623 his judgment could no longer approve the ritual and government of the church of his youth, to which he bade adieu, and with no misgivings subscribed to the cause of the Independents. During the next year he was called to the First Independent Church in London. They had no place of worship, their meetings being illegal, yet in such places as they could stealthily occupy, they held together and were comforted and instructed by Rev. John. They succeeded in their desire to worship after their own manner for about eight years, but the persistent efforts of their persecutors finally located their retreat, and on April 22, 1632, Rev. John and forty-two others were cast into prison. In the spring of 1634 all but Mr. Lothrop were released on bail, but he was considered too dangerous to be set at liberty, and he was given no hope of release. During his confinement his wife was taken sick, and he was granted permission to visit her before her death. He returned to prison, but the bishop finally took pity on the miserable condition of his children, and he was released and reached America September 18, 1634.

A portion of his London flock had preceded him, and located in Scituate, Mass., where he repaired in nine days after his arrival, welcomed to a new home where they could all worship their Creator according to their own ways, unfettered by the harsh laws of the old country. A kindly reception was extended to him, and the cordial greetings were most gratifying. His followers quickly built a crude house for his temporary home, a shelter from the storm, a place that he could call his own. He married his second wife, Anna, some time previous to June 14, 1635. It is probable her maiden name was Hammond, possibly a daughter of William Hammond, of Watertown. She was undoubtedly the mother of all his six children born in America, eight having been born in England. He removed to Barnstable, Mass., in October, 1639, with a large company from Scituate, where four acres for a house-lot were assigned him. His first house proved to be too small and a more substantial building was made ready for occupancy in 1644, and being built of solid and enduring material its frame still stands, but it has undergone many outward transformations. The house stands on a level plot of ground, but a few feet east of the house is a hill fifteen to twenty feet high, against which a bank wall was erected, leaving a driveway from the road to rear of house. After more than two hundred and fifty years the style and interior finish of the rooms below and above are still retained. The large cased beam across the front room, (the modern parlor), from east to west, and the corner posts of the framing projecting into the room, as in the chamber over it, but unlike the room below, the beam runs north and south, both giving solidity to the structure. The front rooms measure about sixteen and one-half feet square, but other rooms are of varying sizes to adapt them to domestic needs and convenience. The ground floor plan covers an area of over eight hundred square feet, the height of ceiling being seven feet for first story and six and one-half feet above. About the year 1800 the house was remodeled and enlarged by moving the west end fourteen feet and lengthening the rafters six feet, giving a steeper pitch to and making both roofs alike, by removing a corresponding portion of the rear part of the house, a change that took away the interesting and characteristic feature of this and other like houses of the period, viz.: the long back roof reaching to within a few feet of the ground. Buildings of this ancient style of the Pilgrim age, with few exceptions, have disappeared. This historic house is now occupied as a parsonage and public library, a worthy monument of those stout-hearted and truth-loving pioneers. The illustration shows the house as originally constructed. The Bible which Rev. John brought with him from England, (also illustrated), was taken to Norwich, Conn., in 1668 by his son Samuel,⁶ and passed successively to Samuel Jr.,⁶ (brother of John 3rd⁶), Nathaniel,⁷ Azariah,⁸ Charles,⁹ (third cousin to Daniel Sr.⁹), and Daniel W.,¹⁰ grandfather of the present owner, Miss Helen Bliss Dunham,¹² of New York City. It was printed in London in 1605, in type of same style as used on dedication page of this volume. During the voyage to America Mr. Lothrop dropped a spark of fire on one of its pages, while reading at evening devotion. He fell asleep with the book partially closed, but awakened by the heat, he found that a hole had been burned through several pages. Before the voyage was completed he had repaired the burned places and supplied the missing words on most pages, from memory, with pen and ink in the old English text. It was undoubtedly his companion during his imprisonment in London. The engraving shows the Bible open at one of the burned pages.

Amos Otis Jr., a remarkably prolific writer and diligent student, contributed a large number of valuable and interesting articles to the "Barnstable Patriot" concerning the early families of that historic town. In Nos. 230 and 245 he wrote: "Rev. John Lothrop and his followers were held by the people to be martyrs in the cause of Independency. No persecutions, no severity that their enemies could inflict, caused him, or one of his followers, to waver. They submitted without a murmur to loss of property, to imprisonment in loathsome jails, and to be separated for two years from their families and friends, rather than subscribe to the forms of worship that King Charles and his bigoted prelates endeavored to force on their consciences. * * * Mr. Lothrop was as distinguished for his worldly wisdom as for his piety. It is the men that make a place, and to Mr. Lothrop's in early times, Barnstable was more indebted than to any other family. He was a good and true man, an independent thinker, and a man who held opinions in advance of his times. He fearlessly proclaimed in Old and New England the great truth that man is not responsible to his fellow man in matters of faith and conscience. Differences of opinion he tolerated. During the fourteen years that he was pastor of the Barnstable church, such was his influence over the people that the power of the civil magistrate was not needed to restrain crime. No pastor was ever more beloved by his people, none ever had a greater influence for good. * * * To become a member of his church, no applicant was compelled to sign a creed or confession of faith. He retained his freedom, and simply professed his faith in God and promised that it should be his constant endeavor to keep His commandments, live a pure life and walk in love with his brethren."

Samuel Lothrop, son of Rev. John Lothrop, came to Scituate with his father, and also removed to Barnstable, where he married Elizabeth Scudder, of Boston, in his father's house above mentioned. They moved to New London, Conn., in 1648. He was judge of a local court in Pequot, Conn., in 1649. They moved to Norwich, Conn., in 1668, and built a house there on the main street some time previous to 1670. Their great-grandson, Dr. Daniel Lothrop, (second-cousin of John Lothrop 5th, mentioned on page 7), also built one there in 1745, probably on the same site. The latter is now standing, (1901), and owned by Misses Maria Perit Gilman, Emily Serena Gilman and Mrs. Louisa (Gilman) Lane, great-granddaughters of Lydia (Lothrop) Coit, a sister of Dr. Daniel Lothrop. The additions and improvements and the immaculate care and taste of the present occupants take away most every thought of the house being so very old. Samuel Lothrop was constable there in 1673 and 1682, and townsman in 1685. In 1734 his descendants are said to have numbered three hundred and sixty-five people.

Daughters of the following families have married descendants of Daniel Lothrop Sr., of various names: Allen, Andrews, Arey, Blain, Bowers, Brown (4), Casey, Chandler (2), Clark (3), Cleaves, Couch, Crumrine, Dennen, Dorcey, Douglass, Facemyer, Field, French, Gifford, Gilman, Grove, Harwood, Hauser, Hendrick, Hepler, Hill, Hinckley, Hobbs, House, Hutchinson, Johnson, Judson, Keyser, Kinkead, Kloppenburg, Langdon, Lee, Leininger, Long, Mansell, Mansur, Martin, Mayo, Merry, Mitchell, Morrison, Newell, Osborn, Page, Porter (3), Potter, Pratt, Richardson, Robinson (2), Rood, Sampson, Schoonover, Seymour, Shively, Shove, Simmons, Snell, Spalding, Stanley, Sterling, Stewart, Stone, Wagner, Ward (2), Warren, Wheelock, Wilkins, Willard and Woodman—eighty-four in all, sixty-two having been blessed with children.

Descendant daughters of Daniel Lothrop Sr. have married into the following families: Albert, Allen, Atwood, Bartlett, Baum, Bent, Blin, Blower, Bradley, Brittingham, Burgher, Camm, Camp, Chapin, Clough, Coburn, Cortis, Cowan, Daggett, Darnold, Day, Doane, Dresser, Eager, Ellis, Ewin, French, Hatch, Hawkes, Holcomb, Holmes, Horning, Hosmer, Howe (3), Hubbard, Hutchinson, Inman, Johnson, Judd, Judkins, Kane, Kendall, Kroessen, Lambert, Lanphear, Lary, Lewis, Lillibridge (2), Lincoln, McDonald, Merrill, Nichols, Obermire, Peterson, Porter, Pratt, Pringle, Rackett, Ramsdell, Record, Reynolds, Richardson, Riley, Roberts, Sharp, Shaw, Skeen, Smith, Squares, Steadman, Stephens, Sterling, Stone, Taylor, Utech, Ward, Weber, Whitman, Wilson, Witt and Wood—eighty-four in all, sixty-nine having been blessed with children.

The result of these numerous marriages has been sixty grandchildren, one hundred and fifty-six great-grandchildren, one hundred and seventy-one great-great-grandchildren and eleven great-great-great-grandchildren, a total of four hundred and seven descendants, of whom two hundred and ninety are now living, in various parts of our glorious country, from Maine to California. While intended primarily as a complete record of the births, marriages and deaths of the descendants of Erastus Lathrop, oldest child of Daniel Lothrop Sr. and Lucy Smith, the desire to include at least the names of the descendants of other branches led me to broaden the plan and compile it as here presented, and I trust it will be pleasing to all.

With kind wishes to all the relatives herein mentioned, I remain,

Cordially,

GEORGE DAVID READ HUBBARD.

CONTEMPORANEOUS HISTORY.

The type used on the dedication page and cover was designed by William Caxton, the first English printer, and first used by him in 1477, or about the time when John Lowthroppe¹ was a boy! This was during the reign of King Edward IV, and he lived successively under Edward V, Richard III, Henry VII and Henry VIII. His son Robert² died about the time that Queen Elizabeth began to reign. The next generation, Thomas,³ died while James I was on the throne of England. His son, Rev. John,⁴ the emigrant, was born during the reign of Queen Elizabeth, and was about six years old when the telescope was invented, 1590. While the hard-hearted, creed-bound King Charles I was reigning, Rev. John⁴ emigrated to America, and died in Barnstable, Mass., but a few years before New York was taken from the Dutch. The first newspaper printed in America appeared in Boston in 1690, only ten years before the death of Samuel Lothrop,⁵ in Barnstable. His son, John Lothrop 3rd,⁶ and Ruth Royce were married while King Charles II held sway over the American colonies. Their son, John Lothrop 4th,⁷ was married to Lydia Palmeter during the reign of George I. Their son, John Lothrop 5th,⁸ was born when George II was King of England, and married to Sarah Peck while King George III was dictator to the colonies who soon threw off the yoke, and the next generation, Daniel Lothrop Sr.,⁹ lived under eight American presidents from Washington to Van Buren. The steam engine was a new invention when Daniel⁹ was five years old. The cotton gin was invented the same year that Erastus Lathrop Sr.¹⁰ was born, and the modern printing press came into existence when John Lothrop 6th¹⁰ was an infant.

EXPLANATION.

These family records cover fourteen generations from John Lowthroppe¹ to the youngest descendants of the present day, the latter being great-great-great-grandchildren of Daniel Lothrop Sr.⁹ I have arranged the names in an entirely new form, so that the younger generations are shown in close proximity to their near ancestors. The generation to which a descendant belongs is indicated by small figures at the end of each name, and each generation is further distinguished by appearing in a distinctive style of type, as follows:

Those of the tenth generation appear in BOLDFACE CAPITALS.

Those of the eleventh generation appear in Boldface Capitals and Small Letters.

Those of the twelfth generation appear in PLAIN CAPITALS.

Those of the thirteenth generation appear in CAPITALS AND SMALL CAPITALS.

Those of the fourteenth generation appear in Italic.

The children of each family which are of the eleventh generation are numbered at the left of each name in boldface figures, 1, 2, 3, 4, etc., and are first-cousins to those of the same generation in any other branch.

The children of each family which are of the twelfth generation are numbered at the left of each name in Italic roman numerals, i, ii, iii, iv, etc., and are second-cousins to those of the same generation in any other branch.

The children of each family which are of the thirteenth generation are marked at the left of each name in Italic a, b, c, d, etc., and are second-cousins to those of the same generation, whose parents are of different families in the same branch—but are third-cousins to those of the same generation in any other branch.

The children of each family which are of the fourteenth generation are marked at the left of each name in Italic a1, a2, etc., or b1, b2, etc., and are third-cousins to those of the same generation, whose grandparents, (marked ¹²), are of different families in the same branch—but fourth-cousins to those of the same generation in any other branch.

By different "branches" I mean the descendants of Erastus, James, Lucy, Pamela, Daniel Jr., Sabra, Albert, Alfred or John 6th, as the case may be. Lothrop and Lathrop are treated as one name, so that we find Daniel Lothrop Sr. as father of Daniel Lathrop Jr., etc.

Independent of the small figures after each name, indicating the generation, the various Johns are numbered as John Lowthroppe,¹ Rev. John 2nd, and John 3rd, 4th, 5th and 6th.

The addresses of those living are given, as far as known, at the extreme right of each page. Unless otherwise specified all unmarried descendants reside with their parents.

Those not marked with an asterisk, (*), as deceased, (see foot-notes at bottom of each page from 17 to 29 inclusive), and not designated as "unmarried," may be understood to be under age. The asterisk is only used to indicate decease after marriage, all other deaths being specified as in infancy, young, or unmarried.

In the above guide as to the various degrees of cousinhood contained in these records I have used the definitions given by the Webster and Funk & Wagnalls Dictionaries, both being standard authorities. From the latter I quote: "COUSIN. One collaterally related by descent from a common ancestor, but not a brother or sister. The children of brothers and sisters are first-cousins; the children of first-cousins are second-cousins, etc. A first-cousin once removed is the child of one's first-cousin. A first-cousin twice removed is the grandchild of one's first-cousin, etc. A second-cousin once removed is the child of one's second-cousin. etc."

By an act of the English Parliament in 1751, the Gregorian amendment of the Julian calendar went into effect September 3, 1752, which day, by its provisions, reckoned as the 14th, to cancel the eleven days difference between Old Style and New Style dates. This act applied to Great Britain and her colonies, and of course changed our American chronology. It has been a common but not uniform practice to make a correction once for all the century in which a date occurs, so that during the nineteenth century the difference was twelve days, but during the present century we must add thirteen days to all dates previous to September 14, 1752, in order to know the exact anniversary of any event of interest.

"Pride of ancestry is a natural and ennobling sentiment; and the man who does not feel it will contribute nothing of which posterity will be able to boast."—Thomas Kinsella.

"This is the true pride of ancestry: It is founded in the tenderness with which the child regards the father, and in the romance that time sheds upon history."—George William Curtis.

"I think every man would like to come from an ancient and honorable race; as you like your father to be an honorable man, why not your grandfather and his ancestors before him?"—W. M. Thackeray.

"Let us now praise famous men, and our fathers who begat us. The Lord hath wrought great glory by them, through His great power from the beginning. Leaders of the people by their counsels, and by their knowledge of learning meet for the people, wise and eloquent in their instructions. All these were honored in their generations, and were the glory of their times. There be of them that have left a name behind them, that their praises might be reported. And some there be which have no memorial; * * * but these were merciful men whose righteousness hath not been forgotten. CAPT. THOMAS LOTHROP.

While not an ancestor of Daniel Lothrop Sr., a slight mention of this colonial patriot will be of interest. His parentage can not be established, but he was probably a near kinsman of Rev. John Lothrop, and preceded him to America by some months, being admitted as freeman in Salem, Mass., May 14, 1634, while Rev. John did not arrive until September. For many years he was deputy from that historic town to the General Court. He returned to England about 1650 and brought back with him his sister Ellen, who married Ezekiel Cheever, the great schoolmaster, who taught for over seventy years in New Haven, Ipswich, Charlestown and Boston. Capt. Lothrop was more or less engaged in military service, in arduous, difficult and dangerous operations, occasionally being sent to distant places, commanding expeditions to the eastward as far as Port Royal, Nova Scotia.

When the last struggle with King Philip was approaching, and aid was needed from the eastern part of the colony to rescue the settlement on the Connecticut River from destruction, the "flower of Essex county" was summoned, a choice body of about one hundred men, with Thomas Lothrop as their captain. September 18, 1675, he started with his company from Deerfield for Hadley. While on the march, near the foot of Sugar Loaf Mountain, not apprehending any immediate danger, they were suddenly assailed, the contest lasting several hours. A monument marks the location of that terrible battle, inscribed as follows: "On this ground Capt. Thomas Lothrop and eighty-four men under his command, including eighteen teamsters from Deerfield, conveying stores from that town to Hadley, were ambuscaded by about seven hundred Indians, and the Captain and seventy-six men were slain September 18, 1675, (old style)." Not far away, level with the ground and partially covered with grass, is a coarse brown stone, about three by seven feet, rudely inscribed: "Grave of Capt. Lothrop and men slain by the Indians, 1675." A small stream near-by has been known as "Bloody Brook" since that day. Capt. Lothrop is spoken of by historians as brave, gentle, generous and just, of large estate for that time. Always ready for every good word or work, he had a rare and remarkable hold on the confidence and affection of the community in which he lived. He left no children.

*Deceased.

‡Change of spelling adopted at time of his second marriage.

†Sarah Dexter Robinson was a sister of Deborah Ann Robinson, first wife of Rev. Alfred Lothrop.¹⁰ See page 27. Their mother, Mary (Ward) Robinson, was related to Rebeckah and Sally Ward, wives of Erastus¹⁰ and James Smith Lathrop¹⁰—see pages 9 and 17—but the exact cousinhood can not be definitely ascertained.

Mrs. Mary Ella (Hosmer) Stone, Oakville, Conn.

"I am very much pleased with the books. I think it is truly wonderful how you have been able to find out so much of our past history. I prize mine highly, and am sure I can speak for my children, that they will be of the same mind. I think all the relatives ought to send a vote of thanks to you. I should think all would want a book."

Mrs. Frances Adrianna (Lothrop) Stephens, Pasadena, Cali.

"I am much pleased with the book. I think it very nice, and arranged nicely. I, for one, prize it highly. I assure you I appreciate it and am very sure I shall enjoy reading it, in more ways than one; learning of those long passed away. Not only that, but thinking you have spent so many, many hours in writing it. I certainly should be very ungrateful if I did not."

Mrs. Sarah (Lathrop) Hosmer, Springfield, Mass.
