LOUIS ELLSWORTH LAFLIN

MY husband, Louis Ellsworth Laffin, patiently and persistently gathered the data for a Laffin genealogy, as opportunity offered, during the whole of our thirty-seven years together. I am to write a preface to a book that is private and intimate and yet will go into the possession of so many people unknown to either Louis or me and whose interest can only be a curiosity about relationship and a casual concern in the behavior of one Laffin. In my adoring love of Louis Laffin my impulse is to reverently eulogize the nobility and integrity of his life and character, but I will try to keep in mind our children's concern in family lore and give the facts in orderly fashion free from personal sentiment.

On New Year's day, 1861, in Pittsfield, Mass., Father (George Hinman Laffin) received from his two older children, Matthew, aged nine, and Grace, aged seven, a neatly bound pocket diary. In it he faithfully recorded the weather conditions and business matters with only three notable exceptions. Saturday, March 23, 1861, "warm and pleasant, went to Lee, returned at 4 P.M. Boy born at 5 P.M." So announced 1861 was Louis E. Laffin. The other entries were: Friday, May 24th, "Col. Ellsworth assassinated" and on Monday, June 3rd, "Judge Stephen A. Douglas died at eleven minutes past 9 A.M. The Bells all tolled. Flags dressed in black and at half mast. Stores also deeply draped in Black." This latter entry was made in Chicago whence Father had gone on a business trip from Pittsfield. These two stirring events dated Louis' advent with the civil war and the history of Illinois. When Louis was three years old, his family, George H. Laflin, Father; Mary B. Laflin, Mother, and four of their five children, Grace, George, Arthur and Louis, moved from their home on East Housatonic Street, Pittsfield, Mass., to a house on West Adams Street, Chicago. Mother described the place to me as very lonely and forlorn. It was in the midst of the prairie and they had no near neighbors. Those months, on the west side, were filled with sorrow and suffering. Matthew, the beloved oldest boy, was left with his grandparents, Dr. and Mrs. John Brewster, in Pittsfield. He contracted measles and died February 28, 1864. The other children were desperately ill in Chicago and Mother was unable to be with her beloved first born. That same year (1864) Father 1864 bought a house at 340 Wabash Avenue which was their home for eight years. The home at Pittsfield had been sold but the family returned there, for the summers, boarding here and there. Often they stopped at the American House and it was here that the children met "Aunt Fanny" Barrow, a writer of popular books for children. She described Louis as "a beautiful little boy with light golden curls and great blue eyes, who sang, to her delight, "Shouting the Battle 'Cried' of Freedom." The home on Wabash Avenue (known as 525 to 550 in 1929) was on the edge

1871 of the great fire of October, 1871. Of their household possessions, part had been removed to some haven farther south and the rest were in the yard ready to be moved when the wind of destiny changed and drove the flames back over the charred area. That night Father secured a steak for the family supper, their only article of food. They had no utensils with which to cut and divide the steak. Fortunately, a weary, homeless friend, Mr. Charles Counselman, came to them for shelter and his pocket knife served as carving knife for the meal which he shared. After the 1873 fire in 1873 Father bought a home at 585 Michigan Avenue, later numbered "1614." This was the family home as long as Louis' parents lived.

During the winter of 1871-72 and '73 Louis attended Babcock's Chicago Academy. During '74 and '75 he was at the Harvard School of Stanley Waters and in 1876 and '77 he attended Allen's Academy in 22nd Street. Louis must have been a faithful student for in September, 1878, he was going east to visit his brother Arthur 1878 for a few days at Williams College. On the train he met a Chicago acquaintance who was going to the Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute at Troy, N. Y. This boy induced Louis to stop off at Troy and "try" the entrance examinations, which were given September 12th and 13th. Louis passed the examinations and began recitations on the 16th and on the 17th joined the Theta Xi fraternity. This sudden plunge into college life caused his parents considerable anxiety. They consulted their ever faithful friend and adviser, Dr. Franklin W. Fisk, who for fifty years was president of the Chicago Theological Seminary (Congregational). Professor Fisk told them that they should be proud of a boy that could pass such examinations without cramming and to trust him to graduate with distinction. Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute gave Louis his de-

1882 gree of Civil Engineer, June 14, 1882. His intimate friends at college were Louis Gurley of Troy; Edwin Ford of Boston; Edwin Gillett of Chicago, now of Pasadena, and Stephen T. Hayt of Corning, N. Y. Palmer C. Ricketts, now president of the Institute, was an instructor in Louis' day. Louis greatly admired him and a friendship began between them that grew with increasing loyalty and affection through the years. That Mrs. Ricketts joined her husband in warm-hearted friendship and hospitality was ever a source of pride and comfort to Louis. From the time Louis became a trustee of the Institute, May 14,

1916 1916, his gown and cap were kept at the Ricketts' home, for he always visited them when he attended trustee meetings and at commencement. My first view of this regalia was during the ceremony at which Princeton University conferred a degree upon Dr. Einstein of relativity fame. Louis always politely invited me to go with him to the Commencements at Troy. The politeness was a shade overdone and

1922 I had always had the grace to decline. In June, 1922, the invitation was given as usual, but with such cordial insistence, it was a joy to accept. We went from New York to Troy on the night boat. A number of old graduates were on board. We sat on deck half the night, in the moonlight, listening to tales of Troy. The days that followed were delightful. To see Louis and his trustee procession partner, Mr. Stewart Johnston, of Pittsburgh, marching into the assembly room; to have names, long familiar, suddenly attached to personalities and become real; to see and hear, at first hand, all the doings of a Troy commencement presided over by our beloved Dr. and Mrs. Ricketts were precious experiences. It was Louis' fortieth and last commencement.

Louis Laflin made certain contributions to his Alma Mater. In 1914-15 and '17, he gave a sum known as the "Laflin Funds," the interest of which is to be applied for the purchase of materials or apparatus used by students or teachers in original research work in the laboratories of the Institute, and to present annually a prize for the student showing the greatest literary skill in his summer thesis, written during the vacation following the work of Division C. and another sum to be used for the betterment of the course in English. Francis Jeremiah Haley, M.A., is the "Louis E. Laflin Instructor in English" in 1929.

In the summer of 1879 some physician sent my father, Frederick Knowland, to Waukesha, Wis., to drink
 1879 the mineral waters. He was benefited and the next summer he suggested that we all spend a few weeks there. My sister and I rebelled for we preferred to spend our vacation in some resort in our own New Jersey, with our friends. Father's idea prevailed and west we went. We stopped at the Fountain Spring House, built and owned by Louis' grandfather, Matthew Laflin. A few days after our arrival, a dapper youth, wearing his college colors as a hat band, appeared and was presented to me by Henry Davis of Spring-
 1880 field, Ill., a very popular bachelor in those festive years of Waukesha's popularity. Mr. Davis had known of his coming and had warned me that Louis Laflin was handsome, popular and fascinating and I was to be on my guard against his beguiling ways. That was in 1880. The next summer Father had no balking daughters to contend with when he suggested going west. That year was Louis' senior year at Troy. He spent his little vacations, Washington's Birthday, Easter, etc., at our home in Plainfield, N. J.

1881 After his graduation in 1881, he became assistant engineer on the Chicago and Northwestern, and built a spur of that railroad that ran through Geneva and Batavia. Louis was deeply interested in his profession, but the corps of engineers to which he belonged was doing pioneer work and suffered many hardships and privations that cannot be realized by present dwellers in that well-developed part of northern Illinois. I have the full record of these years in delightful letters.

Soon after the holidays in 1885 my father, mother, sister and I went to the old Highland Park Hotel in Aiken, S. C. to spend the rest of the winter. Louis' father and mother planned their usual visit to Florida. This time they invited Louis to go with them for a short vacation. On his way back to Chicago he 1885 stopped in Aiken. We became engaged there February 5th and the following October 22nd we were married in my home. We spent a few months in Chicago, then returned to Plainfield where Louis was free to take a temporary business position in New York, for Father Laflin had insisted upon Louis giving up engineering when he was married. My parents and sister went to California for a long visit so we stayed in my home and there our twins were born, Lawrence and Florence. Our little girl lived only a few hours. We returned to Chicago and lived at 1840 Indiana Avenue, which was our home for five years. A distasteful business venture made it clear to Louis that a profession was more to his liking. To fulfill a long-treasured dream to travel and study architecture Louis

1892 sailed, with his small family, for England in April, 1902. After seven months in England and Scotland, we went to Paris and were soon settled in the Viscount Gassart's apartment, 49 Rue de Lille. Our few months there ended when Lawrence had a serious attack of diphtheria. For his recuperation we went to the Riviera. We spent a number of weeks at the Villa Trollope in Florence and continued a leisurely journey through Italy and Switzerland. Back in Paris we stayed at the Hotel Normandy while we furnished our new apartment at 4 Rue de Commailles. Louis had entered Atelier Redon in February, 1903, to study architecture. At that time the Beaux Arts would only admit students who could finish the full course before they attained a certain age. Louis did all the work under official criticism required by the Beaux Arts, but was barred from competitions, exhibitions and honors because he was a year or so over age. The work was most congenial and he made many friends among Beaux Arts men. In May, 1893, we came back home to see the World's Fair in 1893 Chicago. What a summer of dreams come true for Louis, Lawrence and me. We visited Father and Mother Laflin at 1614 Michigan Avenue. We met friends and relations, attracted by the Fair, that we might not have seen for years or ever. Louis' joy and pride in the Fair were unbounded. His parents and he were in such perfect accord. Their deep sympathetic understanding of each other was a beautiful revelation of family life. That summer a gratifying honor came to Louis. At the annual meeting of the Elgin National Watch Company, June 10, 1893, he was elected a director, the third generation to hold that office. Father and Mother Laffin had been a bit wistful about giving up their home in Housatonic Street, Pittsfield, Mass. After many years they bought it back and engaged the architect Henry Ives Cobb to reconstruct and enlarge it for a summer home, so that, to quote Father, "it would be large enough to hold all the children and grandchildren." The World's Fair summer they stayed late in Chicago, but they were at "The Gables" in Pittsfield in time to have us with them a few days before we sailed back to France. Before sailing we stopped at the old Fifth Avenue Hotel, New York. Father Laffin and my parents were with us there and drove to the steamer with us the night of August 11, 1893. Lawrence, just seven years old, sat between his two adoring grandfathers. Before we returned to our home in Paris we visited the Thomas L. Boyds at their beautiful estate, North Frith, Tunbridge, England. The next year Louis, Lawrence and I left Paris for Marseilles whence we sailed for Egypt and began a wonderful journey that took us to the Second Cataract, gave us a long stay at Shepherds in Cairo, then through the Holy Land by carriage under the faithful guidance of our dragoman, Melhem Ourdy. While at Shepherd's we met Mr. William G. Hibbard and his sons William and Frank, who had come from India; and the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Clinton Locke, all of Chicago. While in the Holy Land we had a delightful meeting with Dr.

William Bliss, President of Beirut College, and Mrs. Bliss. They were old friends of the Laffin family. Early in this journey Louis met Mr. James Kennedy and the Rev. Charles Moinet of London. Mr. Kennedy had been a divisional judge in India and was a noted archæologist. Louis spent much time with these congenial men in Egypt and later in Greece they made a journey to the Peloponnesus where they all had letters to Dr. Charles Waldstein who was in charge of the excavations and who later was professor in the American School of Classical Studies in Athens. The friendship with Mr. Kennedy was to last, with occasional visits and many delightful letters, until his death, near the end of the great war. There never was a better traveler than Louis Laffin. By continuous study of history, archæology, architecture and art, he was fitted for the keenest appreciation and enjoyment. He carefully planned ahead for all physical comforts. We never arrived any place unannounced or without accommodations. In spite of careful planning we sometimes encountered very poor inns. We had planned to spend five days in one place that had been misrepresented. I urged leaving at once, but Louis said, "No, we will stay as long as we planned to and then leave in a rage." He had a delightful sense of humor, added to a fair-minded, even disposition. He always held to a common sense balance between generosity and economy. He made no apologies and few explanations. He never offended and his righteous indignation was invariably deserved. His most marvelous quality was to sustain, in public and in private, a loyalty to all the circumstances of his home life—a quality which has his wife's undying gratitude.

The next year, 1895, we made another three months' journey in Switzerland, France, Algiers and Italy. We 1895 joined Mr. and Mrs. James R. Walker and their son Jack at Pau and we all went to Algiers where we spent a month together. The Walkers returned to Paris and we went on to Rome. A cable reached us there telling of the death of my Father, Frederick Knowland. We returned to Paris at once and soon after decided to go back to Chicago to make our home. We sublet our apartment, shipped our belongings and made a tour of Germany before we sailed for home. We lived for a year at 378 Ontario Street, then Louis

1897 bought a home at 369 Erie Street, Chicago, and we moved there July 13, 1897. There our sons, Louis Ellsworth Laffin, Jr., March 21, 1898, and Lloyd Alan Laffin, January 13, 1903, were born. Louis

1898 had hoped to take the necessary Illinois examinations in order to practice architecture but his brother Arthur and his cousins John and Albert said he must take his turn in the family real estate office and give them a chance to travel. It so happened that Louis maintained an office for all business connected with the family until a few weeks before his death. To give up architecture as a profession was a cruel disappointment, though expedient. The summers of 1898 and '99, the first two summers of the life of Louis, Jr., we spent at "Gable House," a delightful little fruit farm we rented at Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ontario, Canada. For the next seven years Louis was very much a part of Chicago life. He joined several of the prominent clubs, and became a trustee for the Chicago Latin School, which Lawrence attended. He was on the Board of the Academy of Sciences, a director of the Hamilton National Bank and Commercial Safety Deposit Company, and he was treasurer and trustee for Allendale Farm. The summer of 1901 Father and Mother Laffin went, as usual, to 1901 "The Gables" at Pittsfield and Louis and I with Lawrence and Louis Ellsworth, Jr., rented the Owen cottage in Stockbridge. September 3, 1901, Father and Mother celebrated their golden wedding. With them that day were their daughter Grace and her husband, Elisha Paxton Whitehead, and their children Mary, Rebecca, Jesse, Madeline and Virginia Whitehead; and Arthur King Laffin, at that time unmarried, and we four, Louis, our sons Lawrence and Louis, Jr., and I, making the family party. The day was filled with happiness, no one dreaming of the sorrow and separations so soon to follow. In September, Lawrence entered the Hill School at Pottstown, Pa. While he was at home for the holidays Mother Laffin died at 1614 Michigan Avenue, January 10, 1902. Lawrence, heart broken, returned to school and died there of pneumonia within a month, February 4th. Mother Laffin's death severed a close understanding sympathy between mother and son. Lawrence's death followed soon and ended a young life full of the joy of living, possessed of a wisdom far beyond his years and of rare and beautiful talents. The double sorrow Louis bore bravely and patiently, he was so gently considerate of his father and of me. He lavished tender care upon our second son, Louis Ellsworth, Jr., at that time very frail; and when within the year our third son, Lloyd Alan Laffin, was born, Louis welcomed him and planned for him with all the hope and joy the new life needed, never allowing himself the luxury of a heart-breaking grief. The autumn of 1903 we were ordered to California on 1903 Louis Jr.'s account. We had a cottage at 344 Bellefontaine Street, Pasadena. We spent a part of the next ten years there. The next summer we were in Waukesha, Wis., when word came to us of the death of Father George Hinman Laflin. He died July 24, 1904, at his summer home in Pittsfield, Mass. Fortunately the Whitehead family was spending the summer with him. On April 17, 1907, another great sorrow came to Louis in the death of Albert Smith Laflin, his cousin. Albert and Louis were devoted, understanding friends. The relationship was more nearly that of a brother than a cousin. Albert and his wife were traveling abroad and Albert was stricken while in Nice, France. Louis went from Pasadena to New York to meet Mrs. Laflin. Albert's body was brought to the Auditorium Hotel in Chicago, which had been his home before his marriage and residence in New York. He was buried May 7, 1907, at Rosehill Cemetery, Chicago. The next year, 1908, Louis' brother Arthur King Laflin died at his home in Paris, France. His wife sailed with the remains, April 11th, on the S.S. New Amsterdam and again Louis had a sad journey to New York to meet Mrs. Laflin and to receive his brother's remains. The funeral was held in Pittsfield, Mass., April 22, 1908, and the interment was in the Pittsfield Cemetery.

During the time our winter home was in Pasadena we made two short trips abroad and visited the Panama Canal with our small boys. During the first of these trips abroad, while we were staying for several months in Rome, Louis formed a delightful fellowship with

1910 Jesse Benedict Carter, head of the American School in Rome; James Kennedy of the Asiatic Society of London, and John Gray, an English-American resident of Rome, who has since been decorated by Mussolini with the title "Commendatori." These four men made a motor trip through historical regions of Italy which proved to be the most memorable experience of Louis' life—so keen was his interest, so

1907 absolutely congenial was the comradeship of these distinguished friends. The summers of 1905 and 1906 we rented houses in Lake Forest, Ill. and by 1907 we had sold our Chicago home and built "Ellsloyd" in Lake Forest. The architect for this house was Louis' close friend, Robert D. Kohn, of New York, a fellow student of Atelier Redon. They built the house together with all the enthusiasm of the Paris student days. The health of our small sons being established, their education became of first importance. We moved

1913 the California lares and penates to Princeton, N. J. and entered Louis, Jr., in the Lawrenceville School and Lloyd in Miss Fine's School in Princeton. Louis was invited by the Princeton University librarian, Dr. Richardson, to be one of the curators of the library. For the following nine years Louis conducted his business affairs intensively during the summers, commuting daily from Lake Forest to Chicago. His relaxation was golf, played nearly always with the same group of friends, Ambrose Cramer, Ernest A. Hamill, and George R. Fisher. The winters we spent at 117 Library Place, Princeton. The small part Louis held in the university, together with the hope that his sons would be educated there, quickened his interest in all civic and university matters and he became a helpful and deeply appreciated citizen. Then came the war. Louis' friend, Robert D. Kohn, was an important architect for the Shipping Board. A horde of people with personal interests swarmed in Washington and Mr. Kohn found that his time was wasted in useless interviews. He begged Louis to come to Washington to help organize the Shipping Board's offices and act as 1918 buffer for him. Louis' native tact and fair-mindedness were taxed to the limit, but his usefulness was praised by many people who knew of the unheralded work he was doing. To him was given the entire responsibility of moving the Shipping Board offices and personnel from Washington to Philadelphia. Every request he made to the U. S. Government was promptly ratified, but even with that splendid backing the labor was enormous and the responsibilities were unbelievable. When the work was accomplished Louis resigned from his dollar a year job and returned to Princeton spent and weary. Before resigning from the Shipping Board, Louis coveted the official recognition of being on the Government pay roll accorded to no lower priced men than those on the twelve dollar a year list, so he requested some high official of the Shipping Board to permit him to be listed with the dollar a month willing workers. The official asked Louis if he thought a raise from a dollar a year to twelve dollars a year would stand a congressional investigation, with which pleasantry the matter was dropped.

The winters we spent in Princeton, except for the crushing tragedy of his sister's death, were the happiest, most complete years of Louis' life. Grace Laflin Whitehead, Louis' only and dearly loved sister, and her daughter Virginia, were spending a few weeks at the Manhattan Hotel in New York. Grace was walking past Delmonico's on 44th Street, when a man fell from the roof, struck Grace and killed her instantly. That was April 28, 1919.

The years following were tired years. Louis refused to consult a doctor. He lived his usual, well-ordered life, spending many quiet hours wood carving and painting. He played chess with both professors and students to his entire satisfaction. He grew more silent and pathetically patient under some discomfort that he firmly refused to discuss with any physician or with me. In August, 1922, he suffered a slight stroke from which he seemed to recover in a few days. We learned at that time that he had high blood pressure. September 1st we had the happiest kind of a day together and early the next morning, September 2nd, he had a stroke of apoplexy while he slept and died without regaining consciousness.

Southwick, in which is situated all of the property mentioned in the deeds to and from Charles Lafin, was settled in 1734 and set off from Westfield as the district of Southwick in November, 1770. Under the act of Aug. 23, 1775, the district of Southwick became the town of Southwick by this general act. Hampden County was set off from Hampshire County in 1812.

“Reminiscences of Southwick,” by Mr. E. H. Saunders of Lee, in Lee Valley Gleaner.

“Southwick was formerly part of Westfield, from which it is five miles distant and was incorporated as a distinct town in 1770 (sic). The Congregational church was organized in 1773, and the first building was erected between the two villages, one mile from each. This was burned in 1823 and then each village wanted the new church. The preponderance was in favor of the Center proper. This displeased the villagers in the southern part, which lies in the notch, that you will perceive on the map, extends into the seat of Connecticut, and they erected another church there in 1824. But a divided society could not sustain two organizations and the church in the southern part of the town fell to the Methodists who have occupied it from the time to the present, and it looks like a Congregational church.

“Among the many noted preachers of this Congregational church was Rev. Thomas Fletcher who was installed in 1838 and labored there some ten years. It will be remembered by many of the elder ‘Gleaner’ readers that his accomplished daughter, Miss Harriet Fletcher, was for some time a teacher in the Lee Grammar school. She is now Mrs. L. R. Norton of Westfield. The Methodist church was closed during my recent visit there, the pastor was having his vacation, so my friends took me to the Congregational church and I thought it a remarkable coincidence that the sermon was from Hosea 10th. chapter, 12th. verse, ‘Sow to yourselves in righteousness, reap in mercy; break up your fallow ground’. The minister came to me after service and I told him that Rev. Thomas Fletcher preached from that same text over 50 years ago, that I remembered it well.

“The Methodist church was organized in 1816 with only six persons, and in 1824 they occupied the Congregational church of which I have heretofore spoken, and in looking over the records I find up to 1830 the same preacher over this flock and the same as over the Methodist churches in Lee and vicinity. At one time all New England was in one, ‘called’ continental conference. Membership about 70.

“The Baptist church in the Center proper was erected in 1822. Its membership was comprised of the solid yeomen who came several miles to worship. One of the many noted preachers of this church was Elder Charles Millit, who now sleeps in the Southwick cemetery.

“Mr. Richard Dickinson died in this town in 1824 and in his will gave $17,000.00 for a town school one half of which was to support the Grammar school. This gentleman also in his will gave some $1,000.00 to the Congregational church, in land and money. The Grammar school building looks just as it did in 1847, although the first was burned. They rebuilt another nearly like it. But the little red brick school house is gone and a more modern wooden building opposite the road.

"In 1837 there was powder manufacture to the value of $32,725.00. There is one powder mill there now. The New Haven & Northampton canal was built through this town in the early part of this century. The three Congamond lakes are some three miles in length, and these lakes are the highest point between Northampton on the north and New Haven on the south. The water in the lakes flows each way. At my advent in Southwick in 1838, canal boats and packets were in use, but soon declined when steam and railroads came in. The canal cost one million dollars and it was accounted a failure as soon as completed. The old tow path is distinctly seen around the eastern side of the lakes; in many places the old railroad bed is on the canal tow path. Bordering these lakes on the western side are now some extensive plains, once covered with large yellow pines and it was a famous Indian hunting ground. The pines were mostly gone in my day, but father used to set us plowing on these plains and I gathered quite a collection of flint arrow heads and some stone axes.

"As I sit in my brother's home overlooking the lakes, about seven miles distant can be distinctly seen the building at Copper Hill over which mines was at one time the Connecticut state prison, called 'New gate' after a famous prison in England. The buildings were fast decaying, but of late the state of Connecticut has made extensive repairs, and now ask admission fee.

"I went over to look at what was in my day the Laffin homestead, and in one corner was the building where the Mills of Lee lived and where I first became acquainted with them. The homestead and surroundings look just as they did when I first saw them in 1839, except that the house has been recently repainted. But this place is not the original homestead of the father of Matthew Laffin, who recently died in Chicago, it was some 1½ miles from the center of the village, not on a traveled road, but in a road to the common fields. It is said in Southwick that the Chicago Laffin was born in this place. They also say in Southwick that the original Laffin spelled his name Loughlin or Laughlin.

"It gave me unbounded pleasure to see the old place, its brooks, valleys, and its stately mountain on towards East Granville. There the new Hudson & Berkshire railroad will have to pass in one of its notches. Many of the old houses built in the last century have never been changed, only as time has changed them."

This article was probably printed about 1898.

Charles Laflin died in Westfield, according to the Vital records of that place, Dec. 29, 1762, and the death of his widow Agnes is recorded as follows: "Agnes Lafen y<sup>e</sup> widow of Charles Lafen Died Novem<sup>br</sup> 29: 1767." (Westfield Vital Records, B-61.)

3. CAPT. MATTHEW<sup>2</sup> LAFLIN (Charles<sup>1</sup>), son of Charles and Agnes Laflin, went with his parents to Westfield in 1749, at the age of 14. His gravestone in the Southwick Cemetery states that he was born June 13, 1735, and that he died Mar. 15, 1810. He married Nov. 5, 1761, Lucy Loomis, who was born in Westfield, Oct. 4, 1743, daughter of Benjamin and Elizabeth (Morley) Loomis. The death of Lucy (Loomis) Laflin is given on the Laflin monument as Nov. 16, 1805, though the records of the Southwick Church give the date as Nov. 21, 1805, aged 62. There is a gravestone in the Southwick Cemetery with the following inscription:

MATTHEW LAFLIN

The will of Benjamin Loomis of Southwick was dated Nov. 17, 1786, and proved Nov. 6, 1787. In it he mentions his wife Rachel, sons Enos, Israel, Amos, Benjamin and Nehemiah, daughter Lucy, now Lucy Laffin, daughter Elizabeth, now Elizabeth Noble, and makes Matthew Laffin, Nehemiah Loomis and Enos Loomis, Executors. (Will Book, Northampton, 15-305.)

This deed was acknowledged May 4, 1809, but was not recorded until Mar. 27, 1822. (Berkshire Deeds, Pittsfield, 64-325.)

From "A History of Berkshire County, Mass., by Gentlemen of the County. Pittsfield, 1829." 16 mo. pp. 465. Article on the town of Lee by Rev. Alvan Hyde, D.D.

"There was formerly an extensive powder factory, a short distance from the centre of the town, owned by Messrs. Laffin, Loomis & Co. where immense quantity of powder was manufactured every season. This factory was in operation many years. The average quantity of powder manufactured per day was 25 kegs, for which they found a ready market in the western part of the State of New York in the region of Lockport and elsewhere. This business was very profitable, while the excavations for the Erie Canal were in progress. The explosions at this establishment were frequent, greatly endangering the lives of the workmen, as well as the lives and houses of the inhabitants in their vicinity. These explosions might be attributed in some instances, perhaps, to carelessness of the workmen, and in others, to the manner in which business was pressed. In September, 1824, a scene of desolation was exhibited, which exceeds all description. At this time, it was estimated that there were about 5 tons of powder in the different buildings; and when the workmen on a very pleasant morning, thought all things were going securely on, in a moment, every building was rased from its foundation with a tremendous explosion. Three of the unfortunate workmen were instantly hurried into eternity, while a fourth, who was thrown into the river, lingered for a short time, but lingered in agony. 'Death came, like a friend to relieve him from pain'. The life of one of the proprietors was, for a few moments, in imminent danger from falling timbers, thrown to a great height in the air. Every house and building in the neighborhood were more or less injured, and every breast was shocked. Such was the consternation produced in the minds of the inhabitants, that they universally protested against the rebuilding of the mills. With this feeling of the public, the feeling of the proprietors coincided. They soon after sold their water privilege, and upon the ruins of this powder factory there has since been erected an extensive paper mill establishment, now owned by Messrs. J. & L. Church & Co. It contains 2 engines, employs 16 workmen, and manufactures between 3 and 4000 reams annually.**

"In the summer of 1826, Messrs. W. & W. & C. Laflin erected a Paper mill on a very extensive plan, in the centre of the town. The upright building is 100 feet by 35. The basement story is composed of stone, the next story of brick, and the upper part of wood. It has two wings on the east, one 50 by 24, the other 23 by 18, and one wing on the west, 30 by 30. They also erected, the same season, a brick boarding-house, 2 stories high, 68 by 30, with two wings divided into four tenements, sufficiently large to accommodate twenty persons in each tenement. The mill has four engines, carried by one water wheel, and it manufactures from 600 to 1000 lbs. of rags per day, and makes as much paper as four common mills with single engines. It gives employment to 20 men and 40 women. The water is brought from a distance of 140 rods above the mill, by a lateral cut running parallel with the river, 30 feet in width upon the surface, and of sufficient depth to receive the whole of the river, should so much water be needed, with a race-way from the mill 30 rods long and 25 feet wide, making the length of the excavation 170 rods. All this was accomplished in eight months. In connection with this mill, another was erected in 1827, three quarters of a mile up the river, sufficiently large to manufacture from 1000 to 1500 lbs. of rags per day, or from 24 to 60 reams of printing paper. It gave employment to 9 men and 8 women. Both mills, taken together, do the same work as two mills, with all the finishing apparatus attached, and manufacture annually $50,000 worth of paper. The whole establishment cost from 25 to 30,000 dollars."

Henry Dwight Laffin, born Feb. 12, 1830, said that his father, Luther Laffin, born Dec. 27, 1789, told him of his grandfather, Matthew Laffin II, born July 1, 1765, the following story:

"In the early days of Powder manufacturing the Laffin mill turned out about 10 kegs of powder or so per day and slaves were employed in handling the same. The powder was then worth about $20.00 per keg. The Laffin referred to had been missing powder for some time and eventually traced the theft to one of the slaves whom he took into the woods and aiming a gun or pistol at his head threatened to blow it off if he did not confess and make restitution, which the slave was but too glad to do under the circumstances."

Sophronia Perry Laffin, born Nov. 23, 1810, wife of Wells Laffin (No. 17), said the original Matthew Laffin "had a small powder mill at Southwick," etc. Clara Andrews quotes as follows: My grandmother, Sophronia Perry Laffin, said, "The first Matthew Laffin was a protestant Irishman, who had a little powder mill at the Ponds near Southwick, Mass., a very clever and respectable man."

H. W. Boies, born Feb. 5, 1867, says:

"I saw Oliver D. Laffin and his son Oliver E. Laffin yesterday. The 'Family Register' was made out on an old engraved sheet intended for such purpose, by Dolly (Dewey) Laffin, Oliver's mother (who wrote a very good hand) and continued after her death by Oliver. The notes are from extracts from old letters copied by Oliver E. In the 'Register' the names were spelled Laffen. Oliver explains the change to Laffin thus. He says that 'they' (supposedly Rowland and his father) had 'the largest paper mills in New England.' At one time they bought a Brass plate for use in Water-marking their paper which cost $500.00. The Engraver by mistake spelled the name Laffin and rather than get a new plate they continued that spelling."

Matthew Laffin was a subscriber of $150 towards building the Congregational Meeting House in Southwick on Jan. 22, 1824. The old edifice was burned. (Southwick Town Records, 2-225.)

Matthew Laffin had service in the Revolution, the official record being as follows:

“Matthew Laffen, Jr. Fifer, Capt. Silas Fowler’s co., Col. David Mosely’s regt.; engaged June 12, 1782; discharged June 17, 1782; service, 7 days; company probably mounted and stationed at Springfield and Northampton for defence of the government. Roll sworn to at Westfield.” (Mass. Soldiers & Sailors in the Rev., 9-410.)

Matthew Laffin died intestate, and John Mills and Luther Laffin were appointed administrators, at the request of the widow, Jan. 6, 1829. (Hampden Probate, Springfield, D-303.) The inventory of his estate, Feb. 3, 1829, showed Personal Estate $571.67, and Real Estate $6,168. (Ibid., Case No. 6688.)

MATTHEW<sup>4</sup> LAFLIN (Matthew<sup>3</sup>, Matthew<sup>2</sup>, Charles<sup>1</sup>), son of Matthew and Lydia (Rising) Laffin, was born in Southwick, Mass., Dec. 16, 1803, and died in Chicago, Ill., May 20, 1897. He married (1) in Lee, Mass., Feb. 8, 1827, Henrietta Armenia Hinman, who was born in Lee, June 20, 1805 (Lee Vital Records), and died in Canton, Conn., Feb. 12, 1834, daughter of Ransom and Mary (Battle) Hinman. Her gravestone in Fairmount Cemetery, Lee, has the following inscription: "Henrietta Armenia/ wife of/ Matthew Laffin/ daughter of Ransom & Mary/ Hinman/ who died suddenly/ Feb. 12, 1834/ while on a visit to her/ friends in Canton, Conn./ AE 27.

It matters little what hour of day
The righteous fall asleep. Death can not come
To Those untimely who are fit to die.
The loss of this cold world, the more of heaven;
The briefer life, the earlier immortality."

Matthew Laffin married (2) Catherine King, who was born Feb. 13, 1804, and died in Chicago, Ill., Dec. 12, 1891.

Matthew Laffin always began his reminiscences somewhat like this:

"When I started out in life a dollar was as big as a cartwheel and there were a hundred men after every dollar. My first year in business, selling powder, mostly trading powder for some other commodity, my wagon blew up and both horses were killed. This put me in debt $800.00 at the end of my first business year."

Matthew Laffin had become familiar with the manufacture of gunpowder on account of that being the occupation of his father in Southwick, Mass., and he started his career in that business as a salesman, later becoming associated with his brothers and others in the manufacture of gunpowder in Canton, Conn., Lee, Mass., and in Saugerties, N. Y. Representing that industry he came to Chicago in 1837, and becoming greatly impressed by the opportunities of the infant city, with a firm belief in its future, he decided to make it his home. As showing his faith in the future of the city he bought prairie land on the west side, and erected thereon a three-story frame building, which he called the "Bull's Head Hotel" and also barns, sheds and cattle pens, thus establishing the first stockyards in Chicago. He was also largely instrumental in establishing the first water-works system. He was at all times closely associated with the development of the city, investing largely in real estate, thereby laying the foundation of his large fortune. He became associated with the Elgin Watch Company and one of its largest stockholders, and was active in the development of Waukesha, Wis., as a watering resort.

An epitome of his long and useful life was well expressed at his death in an editorial in the Chicago Tribune: "The Story of Mr. Laffin's Life is the story of New England thrift and business sagacity grafted on western energy, enterprise and adventure. It is true he did not have the humble origin, or experience the early privations of some men, who have achieved success, but on the other hand not one in a thousand who have enjoyed his modest advantages have turned them to such excellent account. The wisdom, energy and success with which he pushed his way along are a study for American youths. Mr. Laffin was a typical Chicago man and, indeed, there is little doubt that he and a few other spirits like him were the real originators and fathers of Chicago's daring and enterprise."

14. ELECTA CAROLINE<sup>4</sup> LAFLIN (Matthew<sup>3</sup>, Matthew<sup>2</sup>, Charles<sup>1</sup>), daughter of Matthew and Lydia (Rising) Laflin, was born in Southwick, Mass., Apr. 3, 1811, and died at Saugerties, N. Y., Oct. 7, 1877. She married at Southwick, Mass., Nov. 18, 1834, Joseph Milton Boies, who was born in Blandford, Mass., Apr. 20, 1809, and died in Chicago, Ill., Apr. 22, 1891, son of David and Elizabeth (Gibbs) Boies, of Blandford, Mass. The gravestone of Joseph Milton Boies and his wife is in Mountain View Cemetery, Saugerties.

Joseph M. Boies started in business with Luther Laflin in Blandford, removing thence to Westfield. He was in partnership with Walter Laflin in the manufacture of paper in Lee, at the mill afterward operated for many years by Planter & Smith. Owing to the financial stress of the time, the firm was unable to sell its paper and finally shipped a cargo to New Orleans. Mr. Boies, to sell and collect, travelled by stages to the Ohio River, by boat to Cincinnati, and thence on horseback to New Orleans. After many adventures with Indians and highwaymen, he disposed of his paper in Texas in exchange for sugar, tobacco, furs and peltry, which he shipped to New York, and returned home by way of Chicago, where he visited his brother-in-law, Matthew Laflin, who had settled there in 1837.

He used to tell a story to the effect that Matthew Laflin took him out to ride one day over the waste and sand hills lying about where the first Illinois Central R. R. was built. After showing him the boundaries of a farm of about 100 acres, Matthew asked him how much money he had brought with him from New Orleans. Mr. Boies replied, about $1,500. "For that you can buy this farm," said Matthew. "There is a comfortable little house on it. Now you go back east and settle up your affairs and invest all you can spare in cigars; bring Electa and the baby (Henry M., b. Aug. 18, 1837,) back here and live in that house, smoke your cigars and you will make more money than by all the hard work you can do east." "Why, Matthew," Mr. Boies replied, "you could not raise a hill of white beans on that farm." So Joseph's experience on a farm in Blandford prevented his becoming a billionaire real estate owner in Chicago.

Returning to Lee he found the paper mill sold out, and he moved to Malden, near Saugerties, N. Y., and became a partner of Matthew, Winthrop and Luther Laffin and Solomon A. Smith in the manufacture of gunpowder at Saugerties and Kiskatom Mills, as "Laffin, Smith and Boies." Soon afterwards the firm was incorporated as the Laffin Powder Co., S. A. Smith having moved to Chicago as the western manager of the business, and J. M. Boies was made president. The Laffin Powder Co. was consolidated with Smith & Rand Powder Co. (incorporated from the firm of Smith and Rand, whose mills were at Kingston and Newburgh, N. Y.) as the Laffin and Rand Powder Co., Mr. Boies being a director and efficient member of the executive committee until his death, although he was never actively engaged in the business after the consolidation.

J. M. Boies used to relate another narrow escape which he had from being a millionaire partner of Singer, the inventor of the sewing machine. While the Boston & Albany R. R. was building, Mr. Singer invented a machine for boring tunnels by cutting out a core with revolving cutters, and persuaded Mr. Boies to take a half interest in the invention and business. They took a contract to bore a tunnel, in the prosecution of which Joseph lost all he had. When Singer invented the sewing machine, he offered Mr. Boies a half interest for $1,300, but a singed cat dreads the fire, and he would have no more of patents.

Mr. Boies organized and was president of the Saugerties Gas Co. He was also one of the organizers of the Saugerties Bank, a trustee of the Saugerties Savings Bank, and a trustee of the Saugerties Institute. In 1889 he went to live with his daughter, Mrs. Luther Laffin Mills, at Red Gate, Buena Park, Chicago, where he died Apr. 22, 1891.

15. CUTLER<sup>4</sup> LAFLIN (Heman<sup>3</sup>, Matthew<sup>2</sup>, Charles<sup>1</sup>), son of Maj. Heman and Clarissa (Rising) Laffin, was born in Southwick, Mass., Oct. 17, 1799, and died in Westfield, Oct. 2, 1877 (gravestone in Pine Hill Cemetery, Westfield). He married at Mount Morris, N. Y., Feb. 15, 1827, Mary Brainerd Whitney, who was born in Cayuga, N. Y., Sep. 12, 1801, and died in Westfield, Mass., Dec. 21, 1885 (gravestone in Pine Hill Cemetery, Westfield), daughter of Dr. Jonathan and Dolly (Smith) Whitney.

Cutler Laffin "from a clerkship at Suffield, Conn., went to Gorham, Me., and engaged in the powder business. Later he was in the fur trade in Montreal and Quebec. Disposing of this business, he returned to the States and engaged in the manufacture of paper at Lee, Mass. The business at Lee was finally discontinued, when Mr. Laffin opened a commission warehouse in New Orleans with a Mr. Steavens of New Marlboro, under the name of Laffin, Steavens & Co. This business was continued for some years, and he finally sold out to Mr. Steavens, his partner. He then became connected as special partner in the firm of C. Yale, Jr. & Co., in importation of silks. This business arrangement ceased somewhere about 1849, at which time he removed to Westfield in order to be near his father, who still lived in Westfield. In the fall of 1851, Mr. Laffin purchased the interest of Alexander Jessup in the Worronoco Mills for his son, G. L. Laffin, when the well-known, successful and popular firm of Jessup & Laffin was organized. Since going to Westfield, Mr. Laffin has never engaged in any active business. He was also one of the founders of the Westfield Savings Bank, in which he was for a long time a prominent and an active director. In 1864 he withdrew from the Old Westfield Bank, and in company with Mr. Jessup and his brother Heman Laffin, now of New Haven, and his son, Geo. L. Laffin, established the First National Bank of Westfield. After a successful existence of two years, the capital stock was increased from $100,000 to $250,000, and the Westfield Bank merged with it. He was always the largest stockholder of the bank, and as a director he was something more than a figure-head. He always, and wisely too, dictated the policy of the bank. In 1871, he was elected the president, a position which he held up to the time of his death. In all his transactions he was a man of integrity, upright in all his dealings." (Whitney Genealogy, 1895, p. 171.)

Cutler Laffin made his will, Feb. 10, 1873, and it was proved Nov. 7, 1877. In it he mentions his wife Mary B. Laffin; sister Mrs. Clarissa Field; Mrs. Fanny Thompson, sister of his wife; Mattie M. Laffin, wife of his son, Geo. L. Laffin; brothers Wells Laffin and Heman Laffin; and he left two bequests of $5,000 each to the Second Congregational Church of Westfield. He made his son, George L. Laffin, and Milton B. Whitney, executors. (Hampden Probate, 53-319; 60-352.)

who died in Chicago, Nov. 25, 1879, son of Solomon and Elizabeth Smith.

Solomon Albert Smith died at his residence, 377 Michigan Avenue, near 12th Street, Chicago. His father was a powder manufacturer, probably of the firm of Planter & Smith, of Lee, Mass., and his brother John was of the firm of Smith & Rand (A. T. Rand of Westfield) that was combined with the Laflin Powder Co. (a partnership between Matthew, Winthrop and Luther Laflin and Solomon A. Smith and Joseph M. Boies and incorporated as the Laflin & Rand Powder Co.).

Solomon Albert Smith lived in Saugerties, N. Y., until after the birth of his son, Byron Laflin Smith, when he moved to Chicago in about 1853 as western manager of the powder business. He was one of the original stockholders, together with Hon. John Wentworth, the Hon. (Judge) I. N. Arnold, J. H. Dunham, George Armour and Henry Farnum in the Merchants Savings Loan & Trust Co. organized in 1857. He became president in 1862 and held the office until his death in 1879, his history being the history of the bank. In 1873, he with Chauncey Blair of the Merchants National Bank acquired some unpopularity for refusing to agree to a temporary suspension following the New York banks.

He was conservative and would allow the bank to assume no risks. In the matter of interest the bank was accommodating, but in the matter of security it was stiff. A current jest in Chicago was, "Sol Smith's bank loans only when gold is put up for collateral." A safer banker never did business. He was a hard money man first, last and always. He was not given to imparting information to others. He lived in modest style and bought for investment and not for speculation. He was a stockholder in the Hide and Leather National Bank and placed his son there to learn banking.

Early in life he was a Whig, but allied himself with the Jacksonian democracy when still a young man. During the war he went a step further and was a decided "copperhead." He never took any part in politics, nor would he appear in public affairs beyond being treasurer of the Chicago Historical Society. He was a man of strong vitality and personal confidence. He attended the First Presbyterian Church under Dr. Mitchell. He was an affable man socially. He was not without the finer sensibilities, and with those whom he liked, he was generous, but he managed his bank to make money, and he accomplished this by taking no risks and showing no favors.

George Hinman Laffin, born in Canton, Conn., Jan. 19, 1828, was nine years of age when his father removed to Chicago, Ill. In 1840, he was sent to a preparatory school for boys in Lee, Mass., and in 1842 made the journey home alone by way of the Erie Canal and the lakes. His first business was as clerk in a grocery store on Clark Street, where he stayed for about a year. He was then a clerk in the general store of Wadsworth, Dyer & Chapin, where he remained until the spring of 1847, when at the age of nineteen he went to St. Louis for a couple of years, being connected with the powder business of Laffin & Smith. Returning to Chicago, he became secretary of the Chicago Hydraulic Co., in which his father was a director and large owner. This was a private corporation that put in the first water works and sold out to the City in 1853. He afterwards formed a partnership with his brother, under the name of G. H. and L. Laffin, establishing a paper business, which in 1865 was consolidated with a similar one carried on by J. W. Butler, the firm being Laffin, Butler & Co., which continued until the fire of 1870, when their place was burned out, and the firm was dissolved, but he reorganized it under the old name of G. H. & L. Laffin and so continued until the great fire of 1871, which destroyed all that part of the city in which they were located. After that time he was engaged with his father in looking after the large real estate interests of the latter and did not resume any line of business. A GREAT INJUSTICE DONE BY

YALE UNIVERSITY

June 29, 1920.

Mr. Miles Nixon, an undergraduate in 1874, informs me, nearly fifty years after the event, that he saw my brother, George Brewster Laffin, removed from the melée of the Sophomore-Freshman rush of 1874 in a state of insensibility. My brother never regained consciousness and died five days later in the arms of his parents who were informed by the Yale authorities and a New Haven doctor that death was due to typhoid fever.

My parents sent my brother, Arthur K. Laffin, to Williams College, and I was graduated at the Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute.

(Signed) Louis E. Laffin.

Notes by Mary Brewster Laffin, Sep. 24, 1898.

"I was born Jan. 24, 1832, in Lenox, Mass., the youngest of 10 children, and only one brother, John, is now living, an aged and infirm old man.

"When I was five years old my father moved to Pittsfield, Mass., where I lived until I was married Sep. 3, 1851. The house in which I lived stood where Russell Allen's house now stands."

She attended school and was graduated from Dr. Tyler's School, Maplewood, Pittsfield, in the spring of 1849. Her father, John M. Brewster, was descended from Elder William Brewster, and her mother, Philena Higley, was of Colonial Puritan stock.

Immediately after the wedding, Sep. 3, 1851, "We were one week en route to Chicago, stopping 3 days at Niagara Falls. We were obliged to cross Lakes Michigan and Erie because the railroads were not completed. Father Laffin at this time was living in a 1½ story cottage, in the half square at the corner of Michigan Ave. and Washington Street. This house had been brought from Michigan and set up here in the early 40's.

"In the fall (1851) father opened Bull's Head Hotel, with large cattle yards attached, corner of West Madison Street and what is now Ashland Avenue. This was the first accommodation provided for drovers (this is now the Washingtonian Home). This same fall, father started a line of omnibuses between this hotel and the old Market corner of State and Randolph Streets. Later Frank Parmelee bought this line and so commenced his business.

"The first winter ('51-'52) we spent in the Matteson House, a new hotel on Randolph Street, northwest corner of Dearborn St.

"In the spring of 1852 we moved to Bull's Head where we remained while our new home was completed. In June we moved into our own little home (on the prairie) on Adams Street, fronting north, between Laffin and Loomis Streets. Here Matty was born Sept. 8, 1852, and in the spring of 1853 I made my first visit home to Pittsfield with my beautiful boy.

"Matty was so ill, teething, in the spring of 1854 that we went East on a short visit, and Grace was born at my father's, Aug. 3. That fall, we moved from the west side to No. 5 Washington St., into a block father (M.L.) had built the year before on the old home lot (corner Michigan Ave. and Washington St.). This was the first brick residence block in Chicago. Here we lived until March, 1857, when we moved east into the house afterwards known as the 'Gables,' Pittsfield, which your father (G.H.L.) had purchased of Mrs. Augustus Gold, the fall before. What is now the dining room was then the nursery, and here George Brewster Laffin was born, June 19, 1857; Arthur King Laffin, Apr. 30, 1859, and Louis Ellsworth Laffin, Mar. 23, 1861.

"We remained in Pittsfield until the fall (October) of 1863, when your father (G.H.L.) sold the place, and we moved back to Chicago and lived during the winter in the first home, No. 478 West Adams St., while we were looking for a permanent home.

"In February, 1864, the children and nurse were very ill with measles; your father (G.H.L.) had gone East to purchase goods (he was then in the wholesale paper business) and taken Matty with him for a change, as he was not very robust that spring. He had the measles (we did not know that the children had been exposed to this disease) and died in Pittsfield, at his Uncle Oliver Brewster's, Feb. 28, 1864, and was buried in Pittsfield. After your father's homecoming (without my boy) we purchased 340 Wabash Avenue. That spring Lincoln was assassinated and the war was ended.

"In the big fire of Oct. 9, 1871, our house was left on the border of the fire district and father and mother Laffin came to live with us, and George and Arthur were sent to Pittsfield for the winter. Grace had gone to New York to school a month before the fire.

"In April, 1872, we purchased 1614 (then 585) Michigan Ave., and in a few weeks the children came home, while the grandparents remained until the fall. Then 6 Park Row became their home.
