Preface.

The "Loveland Genealogy," in three large octavo volumes, by J. B. Loveland, of Fremont, Ohio, deserves more than a passing notice. It commends itself to all Loveland descendants for its comprehensiveness, admirable arrangement of family records, beautiful typography, superior quality of paper, substantial binding and numerous family portraits. It would be remarkable if, in so voluminous a work, collected wholly by correspondence, there should be no omission of the descendants of any one bearing the Loveland name. We feel that the omission of the descendants of Eliza Loveland and Reuben Beard from the second volume is no fault of the editor of this valuable work. It therefore affords us great pleasure to place before members of the Beard family this brief and somewhat imperfect supplement. But those who wish to know of Eliza Lovelands ancestors to earliest colonial days, their revolutionary and other service to their country, must consult the second volume of the "Loveland Genealogy." We sincerely commend this volume to the descendants of Eliza Loveland and Reuben Beard. Another supplement of "family 60," of the second volume, should be made, including the families of Harriet (6), Louicy, Lucinda, Aurora and Asel (6). Brothers and sisters of Eliza Loveland Beard. Many of their descendants in Vienna Township, Trumbull County, Ohio, and vicinity, could well afford to undertake the task, and thus help to perpetuate the memories of their ancestors. You could consult J. B. Loveland, the author of the Loveland Genealogy, who is a gentleman, a scholar, and a very accommodating man.

We thank the editor of these great family books for assistance kindly given, and we also thank the relatives and friends for their generous help. This little work we dedicate, as a fitting tribute to the memory of Eliza Loveland and Reuben Beard, who have passed the gates and left a record of fragrant Christian graces.

ELIZA (6) LOVELAND, [Aaron (5), Elizur (4), Lot (3), Robert (2), Thomas (1)], was b. in Glastonbury, Conn., Nov.

15, 1811 (See Loveland Genealogy, Vol. II, p. 73, family 60) The Beard family have her b. in Hartford, Conn., Oct. 19, 1810. She came to Ohio with her parents in 1814. They settled in Trumbull County near Nilestown. Here Eliza spent her youthful days, and here are buried her parents and many other relatives.

At the age of sixteen she went to live with her brother, David Loveland in Bennington township, Delaware (now Morrow), County, Ohio, where she formed the acquaintance of Reuben Beard, whom she married March 5, 1828. He was b. in the State of New York, June 2, 1805. Soon after marriage they bought fifty acres of land in Bennington township, erected thereon a log cabin, and commenced the active duties of pioneer life, setting aside the forest to give place to the cultivated fields. Afterwards bought 33 acres more. They endured all the hardships and privations of the early settlers. The wheat and corn for the family bread was taken to a mill on horseback. The mill in question was Thomas Osborn's, a tread-mill, propelled by oxen, and was many miles away. Mrs. Beard spun and wove with hand wheels and loom, the wool and flax to clothe the family. The wool was carded at a tread-mill owned by Thomas Hance. Mr. and Mrs. Beard had only the common school education of pioneer times, but they were intelligent in all that pertained to the essentials of pioneer life ; honest and upright, and endowed with clear convictions of right and wrong, and members of the Christian Church. May their descendants emulate their virtues, and use their opportunities and privileges as faithfully as this worthy pair.

Reuben Beard died Jany. 13, 1870, and his wife Eliza died May 9, 1895; both dying at the old homestead.

IN MEMORY OF DEAR GRAND-MOTHER

Eliza Loveland Beard.

The following are extracts from the funeral sermon of my grand-mother, Mrs. Eliza Loveland Beard, delivered by Rev. Crawford:

Song.—“Jesus Lover of My Soul Let Me to Thy Bosom Fly.”

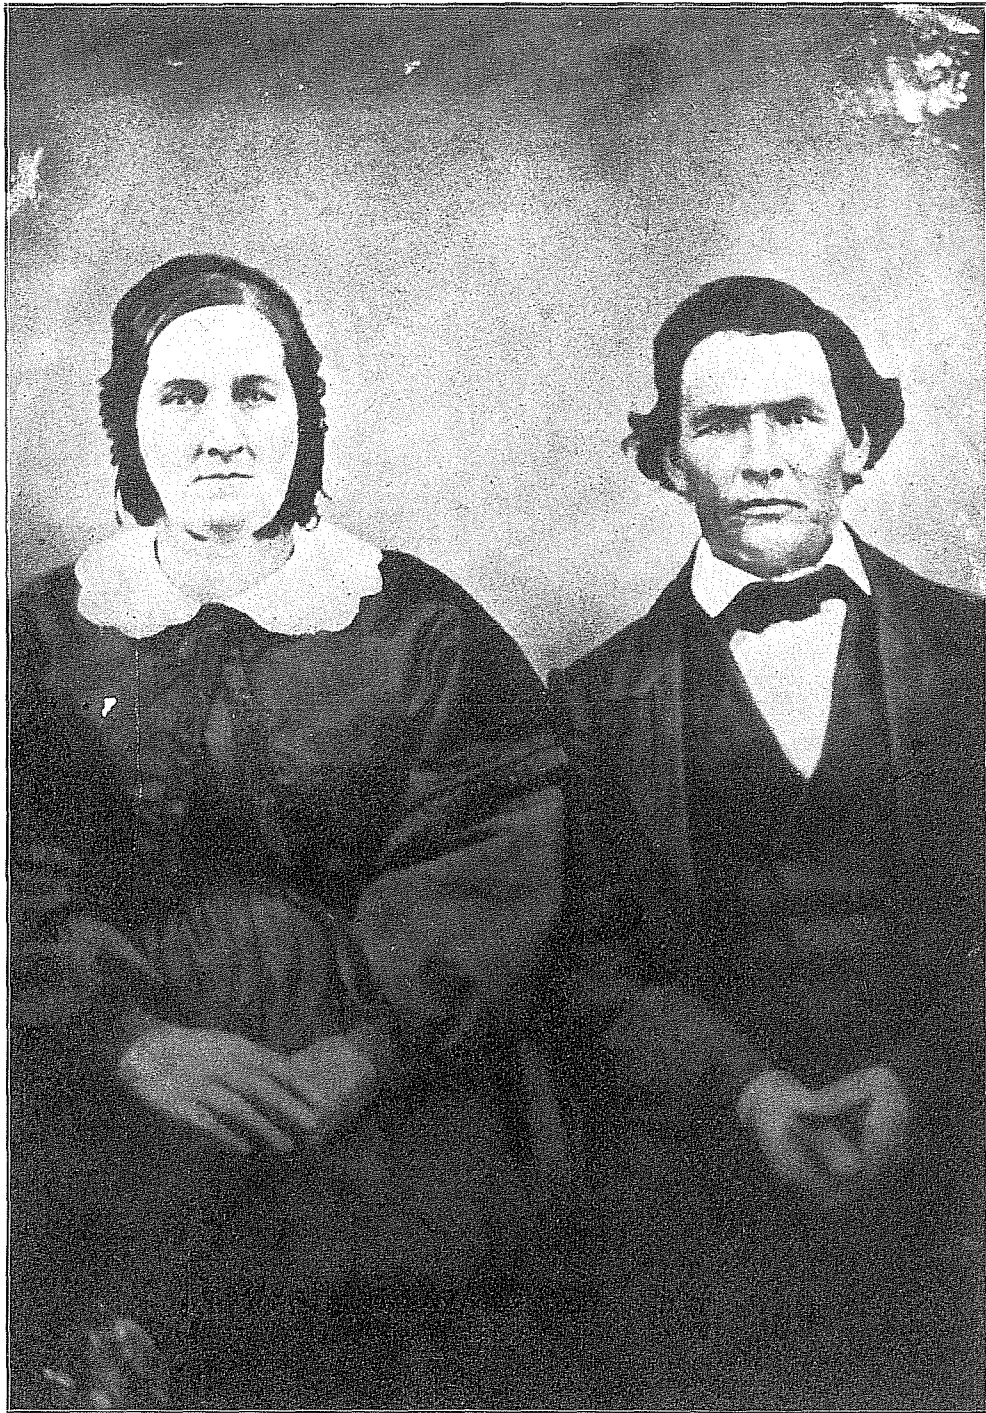

Prayer. Song—“Guide Me, Oh! Thou Great Jehovah.”

On occasions like this, the thoughtful, turn to the Word of God for counsel, and for comfort. It is an unfailing source of consolation. With this in mind I have chosen three passages from the Old and New Testament, more for the purpose of advice to the living than for thoughts concerning death.

35 Psalm; 14 verse.—“I bowed down heavily, as one that mourneth for his mother.” Isaiah 46: 4.—“And even to your old age I am He, and even to hoary hairs, will I carry you.” John 5: 25.—“Verily, verily, I say unto you, the hour is coming and now is, when the dead shall hear the voice of the Son of God. And they that hear shall live.”

David had in mind the value of a true mother, when he made use of the language, “I bowed down heavily as one that mourneth for his mother.” He knew that there was no deeper grief than that of a child mourning for his mother. There is a reason for this, for no friend, however earnest and true, can be as unselfish, abiding and loyal as a mother. Our mothers spend wakeful nights for us, when in infancy, watching with deepest interest every step of childhood, and guard with solicitude the words and conduct of man and womanhood. Few children realize the value of a mother until their youth is passed. How many now feel a pang of regret, when they call to mind the thoughtless and unkind expressions they would gladly recall if they could, and how many tell us they would have been much better men or women had they always heeded their mothers’ counsel. With these reflections in mind we can grasp the meaning of the Psalmist when he says, “I bowed down heavily as one that mourneth for his mother.” It is said, the meaning is, “I forgot myself ;” an illusion to the self forgetfulness or neglect caused by grief.

We next turn to the comforting thought that God does not allow our aged friends to suffer unsupported, but proposes to bear them up and to deliver them. This passage is one of God’s precious promises to the children of Israel, which have always given the faithful great encouragement :

"Even to your old age I am he, and even to hoary hairs I will carry you."

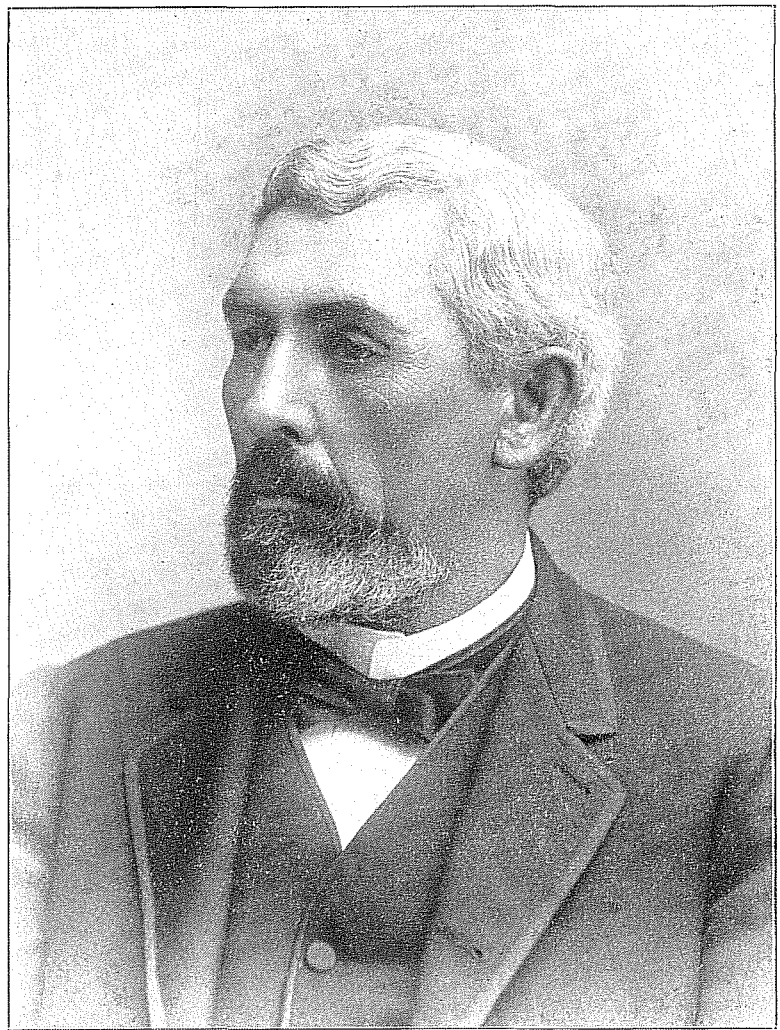

What can be more beautiful than the simple faith of an aged man or woman? They take comfort not in theory, not in history, not in science, not in learning, but in an unshaken belief that God will do as he plans and promises.

Paul says, "The world by wisdom know not God." And he preached, "Christ Crucified," that their faith should not stand in the wisdom of man, but in the power of God. He who takes God at His word and as He is revealed in His word, is wise and strongest.

I have frequently seen young skeptics sneer at the faith of simple-minded old people, but he or she who lives a life founded on the "Ten Commandments and the "Sermon on the Mount," can afford to let them sneer, for these pillars of strength will never give way. They will stand in this and the "eternal world."

The happy assurance of this life consists not so much in what we know, as the wise use we make of our knowledge.

I may be able to give the scientific names of these flowers, and tell how each corolla is set in the calyx adorned with petals, but it may be no more fragrant to me than to one who does not notice these things. I may be able to speak of the stamens and filaments to the anthers, the stigmas and tell of the mysterious pollen that has the power to form the seed, and yet it is no more to me than to that person who says God made it, and looks at it as one of God's creations. A most satisfying reason for the existence of all that we see is, that God placed them here, and he, who believes simply in the power of God, is wiser than he who has knowledge of science, and does not believe in God.

We next turn to the language of Our Saviour, and He speaks to us, and for our comfort, when he says: "The hour is coming and now is when the dead shall hear the voice of the Son of God, and they that hear shall live." This comes to us in the present, the hour is not afar off, but now is, so that we will not have centuries to wait, but we may soon be with the dear ones gone before.

The Saviour came into the world to save the world, and to make mankind better. He knew that one of our great troubles is the thought of death, and the thought of separation. He knew that we take pleasure in the hope of life, and therefore, He held it before us as one of the chief incentives for right doing.

Standing at the grave of Lazarus He called him forth a living person, so standing at the side of our dead, at the present time, he can call them forth a living person.

Mary visited the grave of what she supposed a dead Christ, but found there a living Saviour. We may go to our death, as the birds go to their rest at night, they go forth the next morning with brighter plumage and stronger wings. Even so may we arise, from death, with brighter plumage and stronger wings.

We will now turn to a few thoughts concerning the dead, and of the useful Christian life she has lived.

Eliza Loveland was born Oct. 19, 1810, died May 9, 1895, age 84 years 6 months 20 days. She was married to Reuben Beard March 5, 1828. He died Jan. 13, 1870, To this union was given 6 children, three sons and three daughters. One son and one daughter preceeded her to a better life. Two sons and two daughters are left to mourn one of the best of mothers.

Shortly after her marriage, she with her husband, experienced religion and joined the "Christian Church," of which, she ever remained a faithful member, and her life has ever been a living witness for Christ.

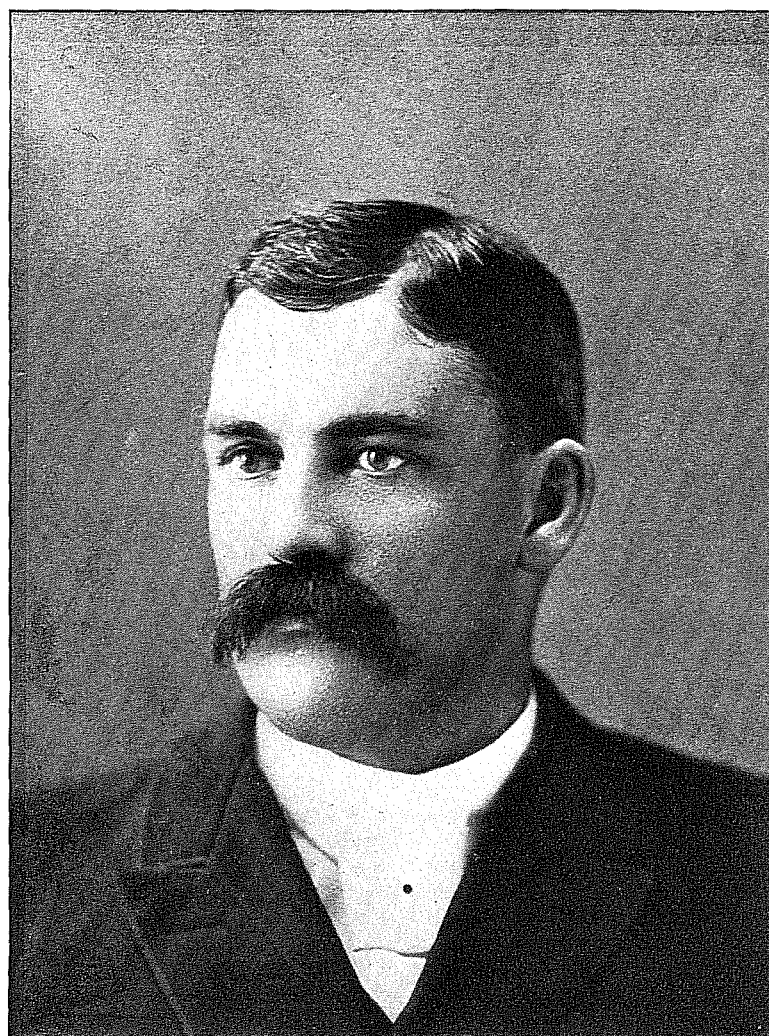

Closing Song.—"Oh, Think of the Home Over There."

After P. C. Beard's second term had expired as Justices of the Peace, he was admitted to practice law in the State and United States Courts: He practiced law in Morrow county until May 1878, during which time A. W. Needles practicing law now at Columbus, Ohio and R. A. Beard a son of P. C. Beard, studied law with him and were admitted to the bar. P. C. In early life P. C. Beard was a Republican and on account of his strong anti-slavery proclivities was one of the active Lieutenants of the "Under Ground Railroad" running from Cincinnati through Morrow county, Ohio, with stations at Wm. Messinger's, Thomas Hance's, and in the Benedict settlement, with other stations by the way of Oberlin, Cleveland and across to Canada where it carried slaves, fathers, mothers and children, in spite of the "Fugitive Slave Law," where they enjoyed their liberty to some extent under the protection of the British Lion.

Rev. Edward Smith of Harmony township, Morrow Co., Ohio, was for many years president of the road. Rev. Smith was many times notified that if he went south of "Masons & Dickson's line" "he would cease to be president of the road." More than once he was egged because of his anti-slavery proclivities, but desiring to be true to his religion and his politics he ignored the "Fugitive Slave Law" and declared, "There was no property in man." That made he of one blood all nations that dwelt upon the face of the earth."

President Lincoln's "Emancipation Proclamation" knocked the business trade out of the road, which went into liquidation and settled up, paid a hundred cents on the dollar, besides large dividends to its stockholders, all of which was approved by the friends of humanity and the "Ruler of the Universe" which presides over the destiny of nations.
