FOREWORD

The material contained in these pages has been greatly condensed from a vast number of letters, documents, and records, collected during a period extending over ten years. No attempt has been made to present a complete history or to compile an entire genealogy, for be it remembered that in many cases we represent the tenth generation in America, and that there are literally thousands of descendants of the original Lester family of the Plymouth and Connecticut colonies.

This publication is offered with the hope that it may aid those of collateral lines who have occasion to seek guideposts in their search for vital records.

The author and compiler gratefully acknowledges his appreciation for the valued assistance received in the collecting of the material for this work from the following contributors: Mr. S. M. Fox, Mrs. Lotta Lester Dodge, Col. C. E. Lester, Miss Caroline Foote Lester, Professor Fred V. Lester, Miss Ruth V. Lester, Mrs. E. Barnum Power, Mr. F. C. Pellett, Mr. F. M. Steele, Miss Rose C. Swart, and Mrs. Emory Tiffany.

CHAPTER I

OUR BRITISH ANCESTRY

It is gratifying to learn that our forebears were of the sturdy American stock who lived frugally and righteously, and helped to develop this great country and to give it character.—Rose C. Swart, President of the Lester Association of America.

We learn from the "Genealogy and Family History of the State of Connecticut," page 414, that "The Lester family are of ancient English origin," and that "the family has produced many distinguished men."

The Lester family tree began taking definite form during the early part of the reign of James I, King of England (1603-1625); a time when those whose views did not conform to those of the ruling powers, gradually became segregated. One of the most outstanding of these groups was the band of Puritans, first under the leadership of Richard Clifton and John Robinson, and later, of William Brewster. The Pilgrimage in 1607, to Leyden, Holland, served to strengthen the bonds of those composing the band. Their voyage in 1620, by way of the Mayflower, and their subsequent privations, together with the frequent intermarriages among the early generations, so firmly bound them in both spirit and in flesh, that the Pilgrim party became virtually a family.

During the two decades following the arrival of the Mayflower, about 15,000 souls entered the colony. Among them were many forbears of our present generation. Scores of Lesters trace their descent from Elder William Brewster, Governor Bradford, and other Pilgrim and Puritan settlers of the Massachusetts and Connecticut colonies.

The first ancestor of our name and family in America, of whom we have definite record, was the Puritan, Andrew Lester, (also spelled Leycester, Leister, and Lister) who appeared at Gloucester, Mass., about 1642, and was admitted as a freeman in the Massachusetts Bay Colony, 1643.

Mr. W. Ferrend Felch, historian and genealogist, writes that Andrew Lester doubtless came to America about 1640, with a company of Welsh gentlemen headed by Governor Winthrop. This group was known as "The Blynman Party," the Reverend Blyman then being the spiritual leader of the flock. Andrew

Lester, though purporting to have come from Wales, probably was related to the Lesters of the neighboring county, Cheshire. Descendants of Jonathan Lester of Norwich, Connecticut and of Andrew (1) Lester, have traced the line back through the Lesters of Cheshire, to the time of the ruler, Constantine .

COAT-OF-ARMS

The coats-of-arms of the various families of Lesters of England were usually quite similar. That of Lester Garland, who took the name of Lester, was as follows:

“A fesse; ermines below two fleurs-de-lis, and caduces in base. Crest—a demi-griffin with claws extended; in claws a trident erect az., headed gold.” Motto: Favente Deo.”

CHAPTER II

LIFE IN THE COLONIES

According to tradition, Andrew Lester, with two of his brothers came to America early in the 17th century; they became separated and finally lost all trace of one another. The earliest record we have concerning him is that of the birth of his first child, born at Gloucester in 1642; the next is of his appointment, January 7, 1643, as constable—an office which at that time was one of importance.

"The History of the Town of Ledyard," page 142, under the title of "The Lester Family," states that Andrew Lester was licensed by the County Court, February 26 1648-49, to keep a house of entertainment; and Babson, in his "History of Gloucester," writes: "He sold his property in 1651, to Clement Colden, and left town with the company that went to Pequod, (New London)."

In the early part of that year, the Cape Ann Company opened up a new street named Cape Ann Lane, containing nine lots, of which Hugh Calkins owned No. 1; Hugh Roberts, No. 2; a Mr. Coit, No. 3; and Andrew Lester, No. 4. In April 1651, a company of promoters, then termed "undertakers," consisting of Hugh Calkins, Mr. Denison, John Elderkin and Andrew Lester, took over a tract of lowland bordering Alewine Cove, with a view of reclaiming it.

Andrew Lester was constable and collector at New London in 1668. Barbara, his first wife, died February 2, 1653-4; the record of her death being the first of that of a white woman at New London. This Barbara, whose maiden name we have not learned, was the mother of his first four children. His second marriage, to Joanna, the widow of Robert Hempstead, brought no issue. By his third wife, Hannah Fox, frequently called Anna, he had three sons. He died at New London, June 7, 1669.

Of the five sons of Andrew Lester, his namesake, Andrew 2d, was destined to be the most prominent. This Andrew 2d, it is claimed, was the first deacon of the first church of Groton. He was representative for eight years in the General Court. (See Colonial Records of Connecticut, Vol. IV). In the official roll of Deputies, 1704, he is listed as a sergeant in the New London Military Company. He was, according to tax records, one of the wealthiest men of Groton. He married first, a daughter of Nicholas Clark who was the first settler (1635) of Hartford, Conn., and a soldier of the Pequod War. Clark's name appears on a monument to pioneers at Hartford.

The will of Nicholas Clark, dated January 28, 1679, made no mention of his daughter, then deceased, but provided for his son-in-law, Lester, of New London.

Sergeant Andrew Lester married for his second wife, about 1676, Hannah, daughter of Peter and Elizabeth (Brewster) Bradley, by whom he had Jonathan, Samuel and Hannah. Elizabeth, wife of Peter Bradley, was a daughter of Jonathan Brewster, and grand-daughter of Elder William Brewster, leader of the Pilgrims.

The following abstract dated September 3, 1725, identifying Hannah Lester as a daughter of Peter and Elizabeth (Brewster) Bradley, and as a descendant of Elder William Brewster, has been accepted by the Society of Mayflower Descendants:

"I, Hannah Lester, of New London, widow, for £10 from Jonathan Bradley of Southold, L. I., sell to him in full all such estate, rights, etc., that I have, or ought to have in real estate in New London, which was my father's, Peter Bradley, alias Brawley, of New London, dec'd." Recorded November 15, 1725. Book 8 folio 285. (Copy certified by Martha H. Smith, notary public and genealogist.)

Sergeant Lester died about 1708 at Groton. His name may be found in histories of Gloucester, New London, Groton, and Ledyard.

CHAPTER III

THE PIONEER SPIRIT

The restlessness which characterized the pioneers soon became manifest in their children, who about the opening of the 18th century, began breaking away from their early environments. About 1690, Timothy (2) Lester disposed of his holdings at Groton and Stonington, and removed probably to Preston, where his name has been carried through successive families to the present generation. Captain Jonathan Lester founded a home at Norwich. Others of the family settled at Canaan, Canterbury, Colchester, Lyme, Plainfield and Preston.

After the experiences occasioned by the Revolutionary War had further accentuated the migratory spirit, the wide-spread movement to establish new homes was at its height. By the opening of the 19th century there were relatives of the New London group of Lesters, not only in the various parts of the mother state, but also in New York, Vermont, Pennsylvania, and elsewhere. A number of Lesters settled along the Hudson river in the counties of Albany, Dutchess, Columbia and Rensselaer, N. Y. Daniel, Ebenezer and Charles, sons of Thomas and Deborah Lester, settled about 1790, in Cayuga County, New York. Corporal Andrew Lester was at Rome, N. Y. Guy Lester, born 1758, resided at Chatham, and was for a time in Bradford, Canada. Numerous descendants of Lieut. Andrew and son Timothy Lester removed to New York City. Felix, of Troy, born 1775, who married Barbara Shutter, removed later to Weston, Vermont.

There was a large settlement of Lesters in Northeastern Pennsylvania, some of whom evidently settled there prior to the time of the Revolutionary War; others including Phineas and his family, went there in 1786. The Kennedies of Wayne County, who intermarried with the Lesters, have descendants in South America and Cuba; James H. Kennedy resided for many years at Sao Paulo, Brazil; Mrs. G. E. (Ruth) Sands, at Cardenas, Cuba. Daniel Lester, born 1794 in Connecticut, married 1820, Frances Gardner, and resided in Luzerne, and later in Wayne County. Colonel C. E. Lester, of Hilton Village, Virginia, is a descendant of this Daniel Lester; others of his descendants reside in the vicinity of Gays Mills, Wisconsin. John Pellet, father of Elizabeth who married Phineas Lester, was among the first settlers in that part of the Wyoming Valley which was set off, in 1814, as Pike County.

Descendants of these various families have scattered from coast to coast.

CHAPTER IV

MILITARY SERVICE

This country has probably had no war, since the landing of the Pilgrims to the present time, in which some of the ancestors of the present generation of Lesters or kindred families did not participate. A complete history of the part they took in the Revolutionary War alone, would supply material for an imposing volume. We can, then, only touch upon the military services rendered during the early conflicts.

In the Pequod War (1637), during which the tribe of Pequod Indians was all but exterminated, our family was represented by Nicholas Clark, of Hartford; and James Morgan, of Roxbury. Nearly a century later, March 20, 1720, Nicholas Street and Samuel Lester, together with Nehemiah Smith and Joshua Bill, of Groton, were signers of a land grant to the descendants of that unfortunate tribe of red men.

In King Phillip's War (1675-8), the Middlesex regiment of Massachusetts was commanded by Major Simon Willard. John Fiske, in "The Beginnings of New England" narrates the story of the attack by Indians on the town of Brookville and of its timely rescue by Major Willard and his forty-seven horsemen.

In the War of the Revolution, there were probably a score or more of Lesters; and of our kindred families bearing other names, there were many times that number.

As the list of names given herein of Lesters who served in this war was made up only of names that came incidently to our notice, it is obviously incomplete.

Lesters Who Served in the Revolutionary War

(A partial list)

Amos, of Groton	Guy, b. 1758, at New London
Andrew, Corp., of Preston	John, at Ft. Griswold
Asa, b. 1760, pensioned 1833 of Groton	Jonas, at Ft. Griswold
Christopher, of Groton, b. 1763	Nathan, at Groton
Daniel, B., at Ft. Griswold	Peter, Sr. at Groton
Daniel, D., at Fort Griswold	Phineas, of Canterbury, in Capt. Bacon's Co.
Ebenezer, Sgt., in Capt. Bacon's Co.	Wait, at Ft. Griswold
Elihu, of Conn.	William, Capt., of Norwich

Many names of Lesters are inscribed on the memorial at Groton, which was dedicated to the memory of soldiers who fell at Ft. Griswold.

Edward Lester, killed by Indians, 1779, near Wilkes Barre, Pa., during the Wyoming Massacre, probably was of the Connecticut family.

A large number of our relatives trace descent from the "Forty First-Settlers" and other pioneers of the Wyoming Valley. These pioneers fought in some of the most harrowing battles of the Revolutionary War. The history of the Massacre is logically a part of the history of our family. Miner's "History of Wyoming," a book long out of print, contains a graphic account of the tragedy.. The following list of early settlers is from this work:

A Partial List of Early Settlers of the Wyoming Valley of Pennsylvania

(Roll taken June 2, 1769)

Christopher Avery	James Forsythe
Elisha Gardner	Christopher Gardner
Elezeaz Carey	Cyprian Lothrop
James Dunham	John Lawrence
John Franklin	Phineas Stevens

Settlers of Lackaway Township—1772-'74

(In the present Pike County)

The first group following, is of settlers who returned to the valley after the Revolution; the second is of those who left permanently, many settling along the Hudson and Delaware rivers, in Pennsylvania and New York.

John Ansley	Walter Kimble
Hezekiah Bingham	John Killiam
Isiah Chapman	Capt. Zebulon Parrish
Abel Kimble	John Pellett, Sr.
Jacob Kimble	John Pellett, Jr.
Roger Clark	David Gates
James Dye	James Hallett
Charles Forsythe	Jonathan Haskell
Jasper Edwards	William Pellett

Note:—Among the signers to a petition addressed to the Assembly of Connecticut, March 29, 1753, asking for legal action in promoting the colonization of the Wyoming Tract, were John Pellett and son John, and Cyprian Stevens. (See Records of Windham County, Conn., Vol 2, p. 557.)

CHAPTER V

KINDRED FAMILIES

The members of the Plymouth and Connecticut colonies were mostly of Welsh and English extraction; and in many lines the original stock was maintained through several generations. Nearly all of our first families had their mottoes and coats-of-arms. Among the frequently recurring sir-names in our records of marriage, are: Allen, Avery, Hyde, Bigelow, Bradford, Brewster, Brooks, Clark, Felch, Fox, Lord, Partridge, Peck, Pellet, Stevens, Street, Warren, Willard and Yale. Often the parties to the marriage were of the same sir-name—Morgans married Morgans, Lesters married Lesters, and so on. A typical example of intermarriage is shown in the records of the Kennedy family:

Robert Kennedy, of Voluntown, father of David, married 1728, Sarah, daughter of John Morgan, Jr. Eunice, the wife of David Kennedy, was the daughter of Peter and Anna (Street) Lester; and Anna Street was the daughter of Nicholas and Jerusha (Morgan) Street. Both David Kennedy and his wife Eunice, were descended from Elder William Brewster.

This common practice in the various families contributed in a measure to their prosperity, for it induced a spirit of mutual interest and co-operation. Although the Lesters usually left large estates, they frequently left a large progeny as well, thus throwing the heirs to some extent upon their own resources. On November 1, 1665, Andrew (1) Lester divided 250 acres of land at Groton, between his sons, Daniel and Andrew. The estate of Sergeant Andrew Lester 2d, was exceptionally large, but many shared in his bequests. The estate of Lieut. Andrew Lester of Preston, left by will which was probated at Norwich in 1751, amounted to about $25,000. He had seven children, the most of whom were then living. Lydia, his wife, was the twelfth child of John Starkweather.

It would be difficult to determine whether or not the mental traits and physical characteristics peculiar to those of the more closely related lines, have been accentuated; but it is interesting to note that in the choice of vocations, there has been no great deviation. There are today, as there were in the days long past, among the members of these kindred families, a large proportion of business men, educators, authors, and public office holders.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCHES AND FAMILY RECORDS
