FOREWORD

THIS little volume is intended to show, as far as possible, the beginnings of the Jacques Le Roux (Laroe) family in New Jersey and New York, and to trace the one line in which I am particularly interested, to Upper Canada, after the Revolutionary war, and back again to the States—to Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota.

The spelling of all names has been retained exactly as found, and the publishing of the banns as finally registered has been taken for the marriage date.

In this work I have had the unstinted assistance of a descendant, Helen La Rue Chapin (Mrs. Fred H.) of Cleveland, Ohio, who personally visited New Jersey, New York and parts of Canada to procure records and pictures of old homesteads. It is through her generosity, also, that this book appears in print.

I wish to express my appreciation to Mr. M. H. Dubbs, as well, for his enthusiastic interest in the La Rue family by making available his collection of early wills and other valuable material.

Grateful recognition is due Mrs. Mary D. La Rue of Minneapolis for her active research work, and before her death in 1936, Mrs. Mattie M. Davis of Fargo, N. D. rendered invaluable service by furnishing early Bible records of the family, and, also, a rare old ambrotype of her grandfather, Samuel La Rue.

If the data herein recorded should help any of the descendants to prove their line back to this fine French Huguenot ancestor, my mission will have been happily fulfilled.

FIRST GENERATION

Jacques Le Roux first appears in the records of New Harlem, August 25, 1673, when he took the oath of allegiance as Jaco el Roey, a young man. He was also called Jeams, Jacobus, and Jacob. The surname is variously spelled, Le Roux, Laroe, Larue, La Rue, and Lereau.

The parents of Jacques Le Roux were probably Pierre and Jannetje (Peter and Jane). There is a tradition that the father died at sea on the voyage over and the mother landed in New Amsterdam about 1670, with three children, Jacques, Susanna, and Abraham. They undoubtedly came from France, stopping for a time at Mannheim in the Paltz, as was the custom of many of the French Huguenots. Jacques Le Roux was born in 1657. He married Wybrecht, daughter of Hendrick Teunisz Helling of Bergen, N. J., their certificate from Bergen, January 25, 1681, showing that he was from Mannheim in the Paltz and she was from Bergen.

On November 7, 1673, Jacques Le Roux was appointed one of the soldiers to serve on the night watch at New Harlem. In 1677 we find that he was a member of the Reformed Dutch Church in New York. From the beginning, there had been a close affiliation between him and the Demarest family of New Harlem. David Demarest, the head of this family, was a French Huguenot, also coming to the New World by way of Mannheim on the Rhine. After rendering prominent service in New Harlem for many years, he decided in 1678 to establish a French Colony on what was called the "French Patent," a short distance from the village of Hackensack, N. J. Jacques Le Roux accompanied him thither and assisted in forming a French Church in the new settlement. Unfortunately, none of the records of this church have ever been found but several of Jacques' children were undoubtedly baptized here, their marriage certificates disclosing that they were born in Hackensack.

After the death in 1693 of David Demarest, the patriarch of the colony, the church rapidly declined, and Jacques Le Roux took a letter to the Dutch Reformed Church of Hackensack, April 5, 1696, where his last six children were baptized. At his death, he left a large estate, including six hundred acres of land at Ramapo, N. J., upon which two of his sons, Hendrick and Samuel, were already settled. His will was dated at Hackensack, November 14, 1728 and proved September 2, 1730. His wife Wybrecht survived him.

Children:

2. Jannetie, born at Bergen, N. J.; married, Feb. 27, 1703, at Hackensack, N. J., Lucas Kierstede, born at Esopus. Both were living in 1721; no children.

THIRD GENERATION

33.

Jacobus Laroe (the spelling here changes to Larue or La Rue) was baptized, April 2, 1721, at Hackensack, N. J. He was married March 12, 1742, in the First Reformed Church of Passaic, N. J., to Rebecca Bertholf, daughter of Crynis (Quirinus) Bertholf (Rev. Guillian I) and Annetje Ryerson. The marriage record reads, "Married March 12, 1742, Jacobus La Row, y. m. Born up Rampoogh. Rebecca Bertholf. Single. Born up Hackensack. Living up Pompton."

Rebecca, the wife of Jacobus Larue, was baptized March 15, 1724, in the Dutch Reformed Church of Hackensack. The first child, Maria (Mary) was baptized in the First Reformed Church of Pompton Plains, N. J., Aug. 18, 1744, with Hendrick Leeru and Maritje (Maria or Mary), parents of Jacobus, as witnesses.

In June 1753, Jacobus was living on land at Ramapo, N. J., which afterward became his through the will of his father, Hendrick. But in 1765 he removed with his family to Warwick, Orange Co., N. Y., not far from the New Jersey line.

The Pension record of his son Hendrick (or Henry) states that he (Henry) was born Oct. 7, 1755, in Bergen County, N. J., and lived there until about 10 years of age, when his father moved to Warwick, N. Y.

Then we have the following from Bergen County Deeds, Vol. E; p. 113:—"25 March 1765, Jacobus Laroe of Ramapo, yeoman, and Rebecca, his wife, sell for £ 440 a house and lot at Ramapo, in the Precinct of Saddle River, being $\frac{1}{4}$ part of a tract of land of Hendrick Laroe, deceased, as may appear in his will of January 16, 1753.”

Jacobus and his wife are buried in the Locust Hill Cemetery near Warwick, the tombstone reading as follows:

Sacred

the memory of Jacobus Larue
Died October 1781
Aged 65 years, 4 months

Also his wife who died within 24 hours of him

Aged 62 years, 5 months

There were probably other children than the four above named. Wills at Goshen, N. Y., prior to 1787, were destroyed by fire.

Hendrick (or Henry) Laroe was born October 7, 1755, in Bergen Co., N. J., probably Ramapo. He married first, February 24, 1780, in Morris Co., N. J., Marritje (Mary) Mandeville, daughter of Peter Mandeville and Maria Bertholf of Pompton Plains, N. J. His wife Mary was born in Pompton Plains, November 9, 1753.

In 1765, at the age of ten years, Henry La Rue accompanied his father Jacobus to Warwick, N. Y., from which place he served during the Revolutionary war as a private in the Warwick regiment under Col. John Hathorn.

Five years after the close of the war, he removed with his family to the Township of Young, County of Leeds, in Upper Canada, probably attracted thither by the liberal inducements offered to settlers. Here he acquired land and remained until 1806, about which time it would seem that his wife Mary was deceased. Coming back to the States, he settled in Otsego Co., N. Y., and married second, April 10, 1808, in Kortright, N. Y., Betsey Emmons. While living in Oneonto, N. Y., he was granted a pension for services during the Revolution. Oct. 15, 1834, Otsego Co., N. Y.

Henry La Rue of Oneonto aged Born Bergen Co., N. J. Oct. 7, 1755 and resided there until about 10 years of age, when father moved to Warwick, Orange Co., N. Y. and resided there during Revolutionary war and until his death. Henry entered service there as a volunteer on last day of June or July 1st in Company of Capt. Peter Bertholf in Col. John Haythorn's Regt. Heard of Independence being declared while at the fort. About half of the Company was discharged, as there were twice as many men as were needed, Henry La Rue being of the number. Relates an incident which greatly impressed him (this being his first service). There was a spring between Fort and river at which a Continental was placed, with a small wooden dish therein. That his (Henry La Rue's) Capt.— Bertholf—instead of drinking out of the dish, attempted to dip up the water with his hat and received a rap over the head with a musket from said Continental.
That his Captain should be chastised by a private soldier made a strong impression upon Henry La Rue.

Due to a misinterpretation of the writing in the original text of Henry La Rue's pension record at Washington, D. C., the following corrections are hereby made: On page 34 Oneontoo should be Oneontaa; on page 35 Capt. Blaue should read Capt. Blanee, and Capt. David Ambler should read Capt. David McCamly. (E. D. C.)

On last of November marched with Capt. Bertholf's Company to Tappan, on Hudson River and continued in service until about Jan. 20th following. Was employed in scouting and protecting the property of the Whigs from the Tories and cowboys. In 1777 volunteered in Capt. Blaue's Company and went to the Ramapo River—6 weeks or more service on scouting duty. Were without provisions for 3 days. A steer with a bell on came out of the woods and the militia shot it, for which they were reprimanded by Col. Werner who was present.

In same year went on alarm of Indians to Delaware River with Capt. Bertholf—two weeks. Responded to such calls several times.

In Feb. 1779 joined Capt. Andrew Miller's Company and went to West Point. Worked on the Fort until taken ill and discharged a few days after—2 months service. In 1778—fall—served six weeks at Tappan in Capt. David Ambler's Company and in 1779 joined Capt. John Minthorn's Company as a volunteer. Service during years 1776 to 1781 being called out by approach of Indians or trouble with Indians, and estimates his entire service as not less than two years.

In 1788 he removed to the town of Young in Province of Upper Canada and remained until 1806, when he removed to Otsego County, N. Y. where he still lives. Is acquainted with Eliakim R. Tutt (?), Esq., Joseph Mumford, Esq., James Westcott, Esq., Ira Emmons, Esq., and Rev. William Clark.
