EXPLANATION.

Style of type used for a person's number, and the column in which that number is found, both show that person's generation, thus: A Roman number in first column is second generation, a heavy face number in second column is third generation, an ordinary number in third column is fourth generation, and an italic number in fourth column is fifth generation. Numbers showing each person's descent are understood as being in each column before each person's number where such numbers are omitted.

b. born; d. died; *died married; †died unmarried.

CHICKIES ROCK, PENNSYLVANIA.

From information believed reliable, it appears that BENJAMIN LONG was born in a stone house owned in 1896 by Hon. Simon B. Cameron and about $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles west of Maytown, Lancaster County, Pa., on the road from that place to Bainbridge. Also that he was the twelfth of sixteen children of Harmon Long, late of that place. Also that MARY HERSHEY was born near Chickies Rock in that county. It seems probable that her early life, courtship and marriage were near this romantic spot. It is said that the highest point of this rock is about 300 feet above low water of the Susquehanna River that flows southwardly on the south-west. Westwardly is Chickies Creek running southwesterly into the river, and a canal and railroad are now between creek and rock. The westward side of this rock, a part of which side is shown in the above picture, is nearly perpendicular and is said to be about 200 feet high above canal bank. Westward about $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles is that part of Marietta formerly owned by them, and around are hills and lovely valleys. They removed to Tonawanda, N. Y., in Dec. 1828.

All of the pictures in this work, except the portraits, are made from photographs taken by the author, and all are made under his direction.

Since the first edition each date as herein given has been carefully verified, and although records admitted to be wrong have been found that conflict with some of within dates, this work is believed to be correct.

This work is not published to be sold.

Each copy of this work received from the author is presented free.

Hymn

BY

Benjamin Long,

late of Tonawanda, N. Y., deceased; uncle of Joseph Long, who died
Jan. 20, 1829. in Tonawanda, N. Y., 328 miles from his parents.

I am but twenty-one in years
And on my death-bed lie,
A question now with me appears:
Am I prepared to die?

O Lord, I now draw nigh to Thee,
And smite upon my breast,
And if there's mercy, Lord for me,
Let my poor Soul be blest.

As I lie on my dying bed
And view my past life over
Thy mercy Lord my soul has saved,
Or else must die for ever !

Come all ye young and dying men
And view my dying bed,
As you are now so I have been,
As I am you'll be laid.

Say not that I am quite too young
To seek a Saviour's face,
Although you're young you're old enough
To be denied God's grace.

Soon I shall leave you and my friends
Too in my youthful days;
And you will soon come after me,
Now ask a Saviour's grace.

Come father and come mother too,
Come ask for Jesus sake,
Come friends and all my brothers too,
Come ask for your Soul's sake.

Ask and it will be given you,
Seek while in health you'll find,
Knock and the door will open too
Or you'll be left behind.

Remember when you on me think
That you must die like I,
So that you hereby warning take
And to your Saviour fly.

In eighteen hundred twenty-nine
First month and twentieth day
At two o'clock P. M. was mine
Last time to ask and pray.

Come view my hands across my breast,
My cheeks, my eyes, my face;
And if you wish a Saviour's rest
Now ask for His rich grace.

Come view my shirt when I am dead
And both my stockings new;
My bandage that is round my head
Which closes my lips too.

Come view my shroud and view my gloves,
My handkerchief all bright,
My winding sheet my limbs inclose,
My raiment is all white.

Come view the eight young men that bear
My coffin to the grave;
Repent before in death you are
Your own dear soul to save.

Come view my situation now
As I sink in the grave,
Remember I have told you how
You may through grace be sav'd.

Come view my coffin made of wood
Which holds all in it fast,
My grave where in my coffin 's put
Is seen and that's the last.

An Memoriam

By Benjamin F. Thomas.

For those who mourn departed kin and friends as dead;
For those who courage wish for life's sorrows feared ahead;
These pages stand:

Less those who seem to die than we who live,
Receive the tribute that to them we'd give,
In worth ennobling, grand!

Each picture has a golden thought, a lesson good and true;
Oh that God's Holy Spirit may help them to thy view!
