MATSON.

2. * JOHN MATSON, the emigrant, perhaps brother of Sergeant Thomas Matson, was admitted freeman in Boston, Nov. 5, 1633. (Savage's Genealogical Dictionary and Farmer's Genealogical Register).

* The references given above and the context which <sup>herein</sup> follows, seems to show that Thomas rather than John was the emigrant ancestor of the line which follows - Jervis

11. THOMAS MATSON, JR.<sup>2</sup>, eldest son of Sergeant Thomas Matson, the emigrant, and Amy* Chambers, his wife, was born in Boston and baptized Oct. 27, 1633. "Thomas Matson was married to MARY READ widow 14th August 1660 By Tho. Danforth." (New England Historical and Genealogical Register, Vol. 19, P. 31). He was freeman in 1666, and titled junior prison keeper in 1674 and for several years. He died in Boston, 1690. (Farmer's Genealogical Register).

* Savage gives wife of Thomas the emigrant, as "Anne" sister of Abigail the first wife of Theodore Atkinson rather than "Amy". The maiden name "Chambers" may be right but no evidence is seen in the references quoted, though Pope shows that Thomas<sup>①</sup> and his wife Anne accepted in 1640 to "their sister-in-law Mrs Chambers, widow of Thomas Chambers" of London. However additional evidence is necessary to prove Anne or Amy to have been born "Chambers" rather than to have been related to "widow Thomas Chambers". Pope makes spelling in will of Thomas<sup>②</sup> to be "Amy" and she had grand daughters named both "Amy" and "Anne".

14. ABIGAIL MATSON<sup>2</sup>, only daughter of Sergeant Thomas Matson, the emigrant, and Amy Chambers, his wife, married LYONEL WHEATLEY of Boston and had several children. (Boston Records). There was a Deed of gift from Theodore Atkinson, Apr. 13, 1670. to Thomas, John, Joshua and Abigail Matson. (Pope's Pioneers of Massachusetts, p. 306).

Will of Lyonel Wheatley:

Imp. I give to my three youngest children by Abigail, my last wife, viz: Martha, William, & Abigail, £50 apiece, besides the land given by my Father-in-law, Thomas Matson, and my uncle, Theodore Atkinson, to my said wife and her heirs, namely the children aforesaid, and also what shall be the part of my father-in-law Matson's estate after the death of my mother-in-law. (After mention of three children by first wife, he gives:) To Abigail, Martha, & William one guiney of gold and two rings; (also to Abigail) five pewter dishes, which are in the hands of my mother-in-law Matson.

Lyonell Wheatley.

Dated Sept. 5, 1677. Probated Nov. 2.

143. . ABIGAIL WHEATLEY<sup>3</sup>, daughter of Lyonel Wheatley and his second wife , Abigail Matson, born Jun. 9, 1677, was married by Mr. Benjamin Coleman, Aug. 28, 1701, to CAPTAIN SIMON SLOCOMB. They had two children. She died in 1707, and, Nov. 11, 1708, he married Elizabeth Cashier. Captain Simon Slocomb was a seaman and commander of the sloop "Seaflower", used as a transport in his majesty's service. He served from Dec. 27, 1723 to Apr. 24, 1724, and from Nov. 20, 1724 to Sept. 2, 1725.

Eastern expedition. Journal of Colonel Thomas Westbrook, 1723-5:

1723, May 8. Sailed (from Falmouth) for Winter Harbor, Captain Slocomb being left shore sick.

May 15, proceeded to Casco in a whale-boat.

May 16, Slocomb's sloop came in from Biddeford.

May 30, 1723, Georgetown , about Noon, arrived with Mr. Slocum from Casco Bay.

Letters from Colonel Thomas Westbrook:

Falmouth, Sept. 8, 1724, * * * Captain Slocum arrived the 7th curr<sup>t</sup> with 24 fierlocks, w<sup>ch</sup> was not as many as wee wanted and sundry necessaries, as Blanketts, shoes, stockings, &c., which the men could not march before they had y<sup>m</sup>, &c. * * *

Fort Mary, Feb'y 16, 1725. * * * I am dispatching Captn. Slocum immediately with capt. Bean for georges, their Being an interpreter wanting.

Falmouth, 22d June, 1725. * * * I would have sent Capt. Slocum with the Hostages before this had there been any winds, tho' loth to part with the sloop till another sloop arrived, it being of absolute necessity to have one constantly here, we having frequent occasion to remove Provision from place to place according to our marches. * * *

W H E A T L E Y.

Falmouth, July 8, 1725. * * * If Capt. Slocum be not sailed, it would be for the service to send him (Mr. Bell, a pilot) with Slocum, & if he be, to send him by the first; wee very much want Slocum.

Letter from Commissioners John Stoddard and John Wainwright:

On Board the Sloop Merry-Meeting, at New Castle, Jun 28th, 1725.

* * * Since we wrote, Capt. Slocum came into this Harbour with two Indians.

P. S. - This goes by captn. Slocum, who we desire may be dispatched to Casco Bay, as soon as may be, where we shall leave directions where we may be found. * * *

Letter from Wm. Dunmer to Commrs. Stoddard and Wainwright:

July 9, 1725. * * * I hope ere this you'll receive my letter by Capt. Heath, who sailed yesterday Morning in Capt. Slocum.

Col. Westbrook writes from Falmouth, July 13, 1725, stating Capt. Heath arrived on the 11th, and again from York, August 25, 1725, saying "Capt. Slocum arrived here last night from Falmouth."

The sloop Seaflower was about "60 Tonns, wth 4 Guns."

By his second wife, Elizabeth Cashier, Captain Simon Slocumb had six children: 3. John, born Sept. 22, 1709, died young; 4. Elizabeth, born Aug. 4, 1711; 5. Mary, born May 19, 1714, married ..... 1431. CAPTAIN SIMON SLOCOMB, JR.<sup>d</sup>, son of Captain Simon Slocomb and his first wife, Abigail Wheatley, born in Boston, Jul. 26, 1705, married ABIGAIL METCALF, daughter of Eleazer Metcalf of Wrentham, Mass. His name appears on a petition to the General Court, June, 1736, for a separate church in Wrentham. This was granted Feb. 16, 1738, and the deed for an acre of land for the meeting-house was put in his charge. He was precinct clerk in Franklin, Mass., in 1740-3, 1748, and 1752, and moved to Medway, Mass. later. A deed dated Nov. 5, 1758, gives his residence as Medway. Their first four children were born at Wrentham.

In the expedition against Canada, he commanded a company in Colonel Hoseph William's regiment. May 25, 1757, the soldiers receipt in full for their billeting money. May 23, 1758, there is a list of men enlisted to serve under him. His company served till June 26, 1760.

Provence of the Massachusetts Bay.

To the Honorable Thomas Hutchinson, Esqr., Lieut-Gouverner and Commander-in-Chief in and over His Majestie's Province of the Massechus-etts Bay in New England, to the Honorable his Majestie's Council and of Representatives in General Court assembled, at Boston, the 16th day of June, 1760.

The Memoral of Simon Slocomb in Behalf of the Soldiers that were Rased in this Province in the spring of the year fifty-nine, for the releif of the Garison at Fort Cumberland in Nova Scotia, and are Continued Not only beyond their expectations, but as they think Contrary to the Promis Maid them when they Enlisted, which makes them very uneasy and Discontentd. Your Memorialist had the Honouer of Commanding a Company of Men Rased in the Gouverment, Nor Men that have done their Duty Beter, but their not being Relieved according as they expected has made them very uneasy, and I fear they will be left to take some indirect Measures for their own Relief, which I should be very sorry for, as I very much expect will be the case Except some Method be taken to Make them More Easy than they appear to be at present. Many of these Soldiers are men of Substance, having farms of their own, which must in a Grate Measure now Lie unimproved, so that they are sinking in their estates beyond what their wages will amount to. Which not only hurts the Men and their families, but the Publick also, for as the Men in 59 were Rased by a Levey, these Men went to Do their own turn in the War, with a full Expectation of being relieved the first of November last, Relying on the faith of the Gouvernement.

Therefor your Memorialist Prays that this Hon<sup>ble</sup> Court, on whose Patarnal Care and Conduct the Soldier depends, would take the Case and Curcumstances of these Poor Soldiers into your wise and Prudent consideration, and in your wisdom Contrive Some Way that these Poor Discontented Soldiers may be relieved, and your Memorialist, as in Duty Bound, Shall Ever Pray.

Simon Slocomb.

She married REMICK WAITE, eldest son of Richard and Rebecca Waite, who was born Apr. 10, 1758 and died Sept. 20, 1830, aged 72. They were married in 1786. Remick Waite was a farmer and occupied the farm left by his father, with some additions made to it, near Fourmile River. For several years he was one of the Selectmen and one of the Justices of the Peace of the town. He sustained the reputation of an honest and upright man. His wife, Susanna Waite, was a woman of very superior native talents. Indeed the Matson family, to which she belonged, had very few if any superiors, in that respect in the town. Her mother died when she was young, and being the eldest child, the care of her father's family for a number of years, devolved upon her. Her own children were numerous, and to the promotion of their welfare her whole life was ardently devoted. She however lived to a very advanced age, retaining her mental faculties in great vigor, until a few months before her death. She lived to see all her children, except the one that died in infancy, married and settled. Remick Waite was eldest son of Richard Waite and Rebecca Higgins, his wife.

Samuel Buckingham was a prosperous farmer in Lebanon and the owner of a shad fishery at the mouth of the Connecticut River. The town of Saybrook had been the residence of his family since the immigration of their ancestor, Thomas Buckingham, who left England in 1637. His youngest son, Thomas, direct ancestor of Samuel Buckingham, was born in Milford, Conn., in 1646, and became pastor of the church in Saybrook. He was also moderator of the synod which founded the system of doctrine and government under which the churches of Connecticut were organized, historically known as the "Saybrook Platform". Samuel Buckingham was fifth in descent from this ancestor, whose intermediate descendants resided in Saybrook until 1803, when Samuel Buckingham removed to Lebanon.

183311. HENRY MATSON WAITE, eldest son of Remick Waite and Susanna Matson, his wife, born Feb. 9, 1787, married Jan. 26, 1816, aged 28, MARIA SELDEN, fourth daughter of Richard E. Selden, born Mar. 30<sup>1</sup>, 1791, aged 24. She was his fourth cousin through the Elys. He died Dec. 14, 1869, aged 83.
She died Dec. 7<sup>6</sup>, 1866, aged 75. Henry M. Waite commenced his classical studies in Apr. 1805, at Bacon Academy, under the instruction of John Adams, the preceptor, entered the Sophomore class in Yale College in 1806, and graduated in 1809. In the summer of 1809 he taught a small select school in New Rochelle, New York, for about three months. Among his pupils were William Delancey, afterwards Bishop of the northern Diocese in New York, and several sons of Dr. Matson Smith who afterwards became prominent physicians and merchants in New York. After he graduated he kept, for about the same period of time, a private school in the family of the Hon. John Davenport of Stamford, Conn. then a member of congress.
Early in the year 1810 he commenced the study of law at Blackhall, Lyme, under the instruction of the Hon. Matthew Griswold, one of the Judges of the County Court, assisted by his brother the Hon. Roger Griswold, during a part of the time Governor of the State. William Hungerford of Hartford, a classmate with him in college, was a student with him, as was also, a part of the time, the Hon. Ebenezer Lane, afterwards Chief Judge of the Supreme Court of Ohio. In the winter of 1811 and 1812 he taught school in Westchester, Colchester, and in the summer of 1812 in the second branch of Bacon Academy. He was admitted to the practice of the law at the December term of the county Court, holden at Norwich in 1812, and soon after settled in Lyme, his native town. In the Spring of 1814 he removed to Middletown but it was during the war when there was but little business done there and in the fall of that year he returned to Lyme. In the Spring of 1815, he was elected a Representative to the General Assembly, and, on Jan. 23, 1816, was married to Maria Selden, a daughter of Richard E. Selden. He was also a Representative in the General Assembly in the years 1825 and 1826, and a Senator in the years 1832 and 1833. In 1820 he was appointed a justice of the peace in the place of his father, Remick Waite. In May, 1834, he was appointed an associate Judge of the Supreme Court of Errors of the State of Connecticut and entered upon the duties of that office on the 30th of December of that year, upon the promotion of Judge Williams to the office of Chief Judge in the place of Judge Daggett who had become seventy years of age. In 1854, by nearly a unanimous vote of the two Houses of the General Assembly, he was appointed Chief Judge of that Court, and entered upon the duties of that office on the 13th of September of that year, upon the death of Judge Church. In 1855 the Corporation of Yale College, unsolicited, conferred upon him the honorary degree of LL. D.

133373.      HONORABLE WILLIAM ALFRED BUCKINGHAM<sup>6</sup>, GOVERNOR OF CONNECTICUT, UNITED STATES SENATOR FROM CONNECTICUT, son of Samuel Buckingham and Joanna Matson, his wife, was born at Lebanon, New London Co., Conn., May 28, 1804. His early education was obtained at the local schools and at Bacon Academy, Colchester, Conn. He taught in the district school for one winter, and worked on his father's farm three years, when, in 1822, he took a clerkship in a store in Norwich, whither, in 1826, after a short service as clerk in New York, he returned and engaged in the dry goods business for himself. In 1830 he added the manufacture of ingrain carpets, and piloted his business successfully through the great crisis of 1837. In 1848, he, with two or three associates, began the manufacture of rubber shoes, with which he was connected through the remainder of his life. He was mayor of Norwich in 1849, 1850, 1856 and 1857; presidential elector in 1856; and was elected governor in 1858, to which office he was chosen for eight consecutive terms, for the last of which he received a majority unprecedented in the history of the state.

BUCKINGHAM.

Governor Buckingham was married at Norwich, Sept. 27, 1830, to ELIZA RIPLEY, daughter of Doctor Dwight Ripley and Eliza Coit, his wife, by whom he had two children, one of whom, a daughter, still survives. Mrs. Buckingham died Apr. 19, 1868. The family life of Governor Buckingham was most attractive, the spirit of the household being one of cheerfulness, kindness and boundless hospitality. He died at his home in Norwich, Conn., Feb. 5, 1875, a short time before his senatorial term was completed. The day of his funeral was observed in the state, and was one of general mourning in the city of his residence. His hospitable home, which had included among its guests Lincoln, Grant, Garfield, and many other notable men, was thronged for hours by a ceaseless procession of the high and the lowly, to take a last look at the face they had loved and revered. Upon his monument in Yantic cemetery in Norwich is this inscription: "William Alfred Buckingham, governor of Connecticut (1858-1866), U. S. Senator (1869-1875). His courage was dauntless. His will inflexible. His devotion to duty supreme. His faith in God absolute." In 1898 the home of the "war governor" was bought by Sedgwick post, No. 1, G. A. R., to be known as the "Buckingham Memorial." Previously the Connecticut branch, Sons of the American Revolution, had bought, as a memorial of the "war governor of the revolution", Trumbull's "war office" at Lebanon.

WAITE.

1333111. HONORABLE MORRISON REMICK
WAITE, LL.D.,<sup>7</sup> CHIEF JUSTICE OF THE UNITED STATES SUPREME COURT, son of Honorable Henry Matson Waite and Maria Selden, his wife, born at Lyme, Conn., Nov. 29, 1816, died at Washington, D.C., Mar. 23, 1888. He married Sept. 21, ~~1837~~ 1840, aged 23, AMELIA CHAMPLIN WARNER, who was born Aug. 24, 1820, and died Feb. 21, 1896. She was daughter of Samuel B. Warner, and was second cousin to her husband through the Selden family. He was educated at Yale College, where he was graduated in 1837, in the same class with William M. Evarts, Benjamin Tillman, Edwards Pierpont, and Samuel J. Tilden. He studied law in his father's office, and subsequently at Maumee City, O., in the office of Samuel L. Young, by whom he was taken into partnership on his admission to the bar in 1839. The firm stood high, and enjoyed a lucrative practice, but in 1850 it removed to Toledo, O., where it had a wider field, and soon acquired a state reputation, Mr. Haite, especially, distinguishing himself for his great industry and ability to grasp all the details of intricate cases. It was not long before he ranked at the Ohio bar second only to Allen G. Thurman, and it was the latter's enthusiastic testimony to his high character and great abilities which overcame the eloquent opposition of Charles Sumner to his confirmation as Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court. After Mr. Thurman's elevation to the bench, Mr. Haite became the acknowledged leader of the Ohio bar, and he so continued until he retired from it twenty-three years later. In politics he was first a Whig and then a Republican; but he was never a politician, though, during the years 1849 and 1850, he served in the Ohio Senate, and in 1862 was the head of an unsuccessful revolt of the republicans of his district against the nomination of James M. Ashley for congress. His selection as a candidate was due to his high standing in his home community, and not to any party zeal he had at any time manifested. In 1871 he was selected, in connection with William M. Evarts and Caleb Cushing, to represent the United States before the tribunal of arbitration at Geneva. His services there were very important, though they were overshadowed in the popular mind by the great reputation of his associate, who made the arguments. But his preparation of the American case won the universal commendation of the legal profession, and it was the reputation he acquired by it which led President Grant to subsequently tender to him the position of Chief Justice. In 1874 he presided over the Ohio constitutional convention, having been chosen a delegate by both political parties, and on the death of Chief Justice Chase, in the same year, he was nominated and confirmed as Chief Justice of the United States. The nomination was opposed in the Senate, as has been said, by Mr. Sumner, but when actually put to vote there was not a dissenting voice. Nevertheless, it was a surprise and disappointment to the country. Outside of his own state he had scarcely been heard of, and his appointment was at once set down as one of the mistakes of the Grant administration; but Judge Sherman and the entire press of Ohio predicted that Mr. Waite would prove every way worthy of the high position. His administration vindicated this judgment, and confirmed the reputation he had achieved at the bar of Ohio. Other judges have shown more legal erudition, but none has excelled him as a presiding officer, nor performed the functions of the chief justiceship with greater dignity or impartiality. The constitutional amendments which have been adopted since the Civil War have greatly extended the powers of the federal government, and he was called upon to act upon some of the larger questions, concerning its rights in relation to those of the states. All these questions he decided ably, holding an even balance between the states and the federal government, protecting the former from encroachment, and checking the tendency toward centralization in the latter. The personal as well as the professional life of Chief Justice Waite was of unsullied purity and it was doubtless as much his high character as his great legal ability that gave weight to his decisions. He was for many years a trustee for the Peabody Educational Fund. The degree of Ph. D. was conferred on him by Kenyon College in 1874, and by the Ohio University in 1879.

WAITE.

WAITE.

1333111.

1333113.      GEORGE CHAPMAN WAITE,<sup>7</sup> third son of Henry Matson Waite and Maria Selden, his wife, was born Aug. 13, 1820, and died Aug. 11, 1849, aged 29. The following biographical notice is contained in a note to the 19th volume of Day's Connecticut Reports of cases in Litchfield County, page 533:—"Judge Waite's absence from the Court, during the whole of this term was occasioned by the illness of his son George C. Waite, Esq., and his expected return to his native place. His father wished to be at home to receive him; and he was not deprived of this melancholy satisfaction. The young man returned with a fatal disease fastened upon his lungs. He languished until the 11th of August, when he died. 'Purpureus voluti gumm flos succisus aratro languescit moriens. He was born in Lyme, Aug. 13, 1820, and was graduated at Yale College in 1840. He read law in his father's office about a year and a half, and then removed to Troy, N. Y. and completed his studies under the instruction of George Gould, Esq., a son of the late Judge Gould. He was admitted to the bar in the state of New York in 1844 and immediately afterwards entered upon the practice of the law in Troy. Although he began his professional career among strangers, without patronage, and in a crowded profession, yet by his industry, integrity, and amiable deportment, he soon rose to an honorable rank among his brethren and obtained a fair proportion of business. He won also the respect and confidence of his associates at the bar. During his residence in Troy, he was an active and efficient member of the board of education, and to him is that city mainly indebted for its present free school system, which promises so much benefit to the rising generation.

W A I T E.

"His memory will long be cherished and his loss mourned, not only by his immediate relatives but by all with whom he was acquainted. On hearing of his death the members of the bar of the County of Rensselaer held a meeting at the Court house in Troy, the Hon. Abram B. Olin in the chair, expressing their grief at his departure, and their high appreciation of his professional and private character, of the soundness of his understanding, and the goodness of his heart, with a tender of their condolence and sympathies to his parents and other relatives."

Among his papers, after his decease, a memorandum was found containing the following rules evidently written for his private use.

"Therefore to succeed

- "1. I must practice economy in every possible way.
- "2. Must improve every moment by study.
- "3. Must make every honorable effort to get business.
- "4. Must do in private as I would do in public.
- "5. Must improve every opportunity to speak in public.
- "6. Must practice speaking when alone.
- "7. Must rise early in the morning.
- "8. Must extend my acquaintance as fast and as far as practicable.
- "9. Must endeavor to make myself sociable and popular among my associates.
- "10. Must improve every opportunity to cultivate the art of conversation.
- "11. And last, though by no means least, must do nothing of which I should be ashamed if the whole world should find it out, keeping in mind that passage of scripture which says, 'Know ye, that for all these things God shall, one day, bring thee to judgment.' "

W A I T E.

1333114.        HENRY WAITE,<sup>7</sup> fourth son of Henry Matson Waite and Maria Selden, his wife, born Jan. 23, 1822, after having acquired some knowledge of mercantile business at Norwich and Hartford, went into the store of Alfred L. Wells at Utica, N. Y., where he resided until the early part of the year 1845, when he was compelled, by declining health, to leave for home. He died Nov. 10, 1845, at the age of 23. His disorder was the hip complaint which came upon him at about the age of nine years, and made him lame for the remainder of his life. He was, however, able to attend to business the greater part of the time, and, before he left Utica, had made arrangements to go into partnership with Mr. Wells in a large dry goods store to commence the spring before his death. These arrangements were not carried into effect in consequence of his declining health.

12272561.      REVEREND LEWIS EMMONS MATSON,<sup>8</sup> eldest son of Newell Matson, and his first wife Pluma Emmons, was pastor of Plymouth Church, Chicago, Ill., and died in Lyons, France, Jun. 21, 1868. A young man of rare intellectual gifts and a heart altogether consecrated to Christ, he fell a prey to consumption, superinduced by his zeal and incessant application. His church was dedicated only the Fall before his death, to accommodate the increasing numbers who sought his ministry. It is a large and costly edifice on Wabash Ave. A graduate of Yale and Andover, an accurate scholar, abounding in gifts and graces, pure-hearted, true and brave, able and attractive as a sermonizer, eloquent as a speaker, a lover of man, and popular as a pastor, he left a vacancy most difficult to fill. The Rev. William Alvin Bartlett, pastor of the Elm Place Congregational Church, Brooklyn, N. Y. preached his memorial sermon at Plymouth Church. He briefly and beautifully traced the life of the deceased clergyman from the time he was converted to Jesus at the age of 14; then his college life at Andover; his labors in the ministry at Racine and ~~Milwaukee~~<sup>Madison</sup>, and his crowning efforts in Chicago, down to the day of his death on a foreign soil. He died at the age of 29 years. He married, 186__, HELEN FLANDERS,<sup>born Sept. 11 - 1838</sup> daughter of Walter P. Flanders of Milwaukee. The marriage occurred at Milwaukee.

THANKSGIVING DISCOURSE. - The Presbyterian Church in this city was densely crowded on Thanksgiving Day, and the services of more than usual interest. The singing by the choir, assisted by members of other churches, showed the benefits to be derived from having such a teacher as Prof. Fargo visit the city occasionally.

The discourse was delivered by Rev. L. E. Matson, pastor of the Congregational Church, and was one of the most appropriate and eloquent Sermons to which we ever listened. It ought to be printed in pamphlet form and given a more enduring place in the history of the times than the fleeting memories of those who heard it on Thanksgiving day.

PLYMOUTH CHURCH. - The first ordinary Sabbath service in this church, which was formally dedicated on the 13th instant, was held yesterday. The attendance was large, and there is every prospect that the spacious auditorum will be none too ample to meet the wants of the society. The luxurious elegance and exquisite taste of the church make it an attractive place of worship, but the rare eloquence of the young pastor, (Lewis E. Matson) constitutes the chief attraction. Freedom from affectation, originality of thought, earnestness of purpose and thorough sympathy with the advanced ideas of the age are demanded in the modern pulpit, and it is but just to add that this demand is met nowhere more fully than in Chicago, and that the pastor of Plymouth is the peer of our best pulpit orators. This city is now hardly less famous for its religious than its business enterprise, and it is to be hoped that the two will always characterize it.

MEMORIAL SERVICE. - A service in memory of the late Rev. Lewis E. Matson will be held next Sunday morning, August 9th, at 10:30 A. M., at Plymouth Church, Chicago, of which Mr. Matson was pastor at the time of his death.

A memorial sermon will be preached by the Rev. W. A. Bartlett, brother-in-law of the deceased, pastor of the Elm Place Congregational Church, Brooklyn, N. Y. A cordial invitation is extended by Plymouth Church to friends in this city to be present on that occasion.--- Milwaukee Sentinel

92. THOMAS MATSON, JR., son of Thomas Matson and his first wife Rachel Fox, born in Glastonbury, married, Jan. 14, 1767, MARY GOODRICH, born Nov. 18, 1745, daughter of William Goodrich and Rachel Savage, his wife. In 1767 the town voted to grant Thomas Matson, Jr., to build a saw mill near his house, provided it did not obstruct the highway. This was near the mouth of Roaring Brook. Thomas Matson was in the lumber business, and went up the river and bought logs and rafted them down the river to a place they called log landing. Thomas Matson's second wife was widow MARY KILBORN PRATT, who died in 1794. His third wife was widow of Abijah Collins. He sold out his lumber business in Glastonbury about 1801 and removed to Owego, Tioga Co., N. Y., with his three sons and three daughters. Thomas Matson, Jr.'s., granddaughter, Mrs. Frances Mary Hurd, thus describes their migration and settlement:

"They moved in wagons covered over, and took their provisions with them, and when they ran short would stop at some farm house and bake a new supply. In one place they were asked where they were going; when told to Owego, they said they were going right into hell. The two oldest brothers, George and Reuben, were married before they moved to Owego. They bought a farm in company and settled down in old log houses and all worked together and each had a share. They built a grist and sawmill and built or bought a clothing mill, with a carding machine, the first in the country up to that time".

Thomas Matson, Jr., lived with his son Reuben. They did a good deal of business with the saw mill every spring and sometimes, in the summer; they made rafts and floated them down to Baltimore, sold their lumber and then had to walk home over the mountains. About 1812 Thomas Matson had a paralytic stroke, which was the cause of his death.

328. NANCY MATSON, daughter of Thomas Matson, Jr., and his second wife, widow Mary Kilborn Pratt, was born in Glastonbury, Conn., Jun. 9, 1791. Her mother died when she was three years old and when she was ten she was taken to Owego, N. Y. by her father, who had married again. Nancy Matson had an uncle Elizur Tryon, whose wife was sister of her mother, Mary Kilborn Pratt. Elizur Tryon was very wealthy. He was a vessel builder and had ships at sea. He and his wife wanted Thomas Matson, Jr. to leave the little girls - Nancy and Fanny - with them, but he would not leave them. They thought it was too bad to take them to a new wild country. In Owego Nancy Matson was sent to school long enough to learn to read and write and that had to finish up her education. She lived with her brother Reuben for a while and did a large share of the work. Her father also lived with Reuben. Afterwards she stayed about one year in Madison, N. Y., with her half-sister Amelia Risley, then returned to her father in Owego. After her father's death she became acquainted with and married LUMAN BROWN, Sept. 4, 1818. They lived near the village about one and one-half years, then moved to Augusta, Oneida Co., N. Y., where he worked at his trade, cabinet work, and in the latter part of the winter making spinning wheels. They lived in Augusta until 1838, when Luman Brown got the western fever. He started for Chicago but settled finally at Conneaut, Ohio.

3253. NORMAN MATSON, son of William Matson and Temperance Taylor, his wife, born in Owego, N. Y., Apr. 4, 1818, removed with his parents to Conneaut, Ohio, in 1833. He married Jan. 1, 1840, CHARLOTTE ADELAIDE VIETS, daughter of Roswell Viets and Arabella Granger, his wife. They were married at the residence of her father, on the lake shore, at Conneaut, Ohio. Roswell Viets was born in Connecticut Dec. 30, 1784, and died Feb. 28, 1864, at Conneaut, Ohio. He married Sept. 27, 1814, Arabella Granger, who died May 27, 1824 at Conneaut. About 1847 Norman Matson, with his wife, Charlotte, and two young children, went west, settled at Ottawa, La Salle, Co., Ill. At that time the land upon which the city of Chicago now stands could have been bought for one dollar and a quarter an acre. Charlotte, his wife, died of typhoid fever, at her home, September, 21, 1859, and was buried in the South Ottawa cemetery, leaving four children. In the fall of 1861 Norman enlisted in the 52nd regiment of Illinois Volunteers; served nine months in the army when he received an honorable discharge, having lost his health. He suffered all the remaining years of his life with rheumatism; died September 30, 1892, of heart failure, in his seventy-fourth year, and was buried at Conneaut cemetery by the side of his parents. He was an honored member of the G. A. R.

4231. COLONEL COURTLAND C. MATSON, eldest son of John Allen Matson and his first wife Margaretta Melvina Welper, was born at Brookville, Ind., Apr. 25, 1841. He was graduated at Asbury University, Indiana, in 1862. He served in the federal army throughout the civil war, filling all grades up to that of colonel. In 1866 he began the study of law in his father's office at Greencastle, Ind., and was admitted to practice in 1868. He was three times elected prosecuting attorney of different courts in Indiana, and distinguished himself as an able and painstaking lawyer. He also took an active part in politics as a Democrat, was a frequent speaker in campaigns and a delegate to numerous local and state conventions. In 1880 he was elected to represent the 5th Indiana district in Congress, and was re-elected in 1882, 1884 and 1886. While in Congress he was one of the most forceful and influential representatives of his party. In the 50th Congress he rendered exceptional service as chairman on the committee of invalid pensions. In 1888 he was nominated without opposition as the Democratic candidate for governor of Indiana, but was defeated after a close and exciting contest that attracted national attention. Since that date he has practiced his profession in Greencastle, Ind. He married in 1871, MARY FARROW, who died.
