A SCRAP OF HISTORY.

AS the ancestors of the McCormick family were of "Scotch-Irish" lineage and in their religious belief were strict Presbyterians, it is considered pertinent to the subject to preface it by a cursory glance at Scotch-Irish history, showing what trials they undoubtedly endured in their native land by reason of religious persecutions, which causes were mainly instrumental in inducing them to leave their country for a frontier life among the American Indians, in what were then the outskirts of civilization.

Referring to those who migrated hither from the North of Ireland, who were chiefly Presbyterians, Dr. Williamson, in his History of North Carolina, says: "The greater number of those people, or their ancestors, had formerly removed from Scotland. The Earls of Tyrone and Tyrconnel, in the Province of Ulster, having conspired against the government in the reign of James the First, fled from the kingdom to escape punishment. The two Earls were attainted by a process of outlawry, upon which their vast estates, about five hundred thousand acres of land, escheated to the crown. King James resolved, if possible, to improve a country that was covered by woods, desolated by war, infested by robbers, or inhabited by ignorant adherents to the Romish Church. For this purpose he divided the escheated lands into small tracts, and those he gave to adventurers, who were to settle them within four years with a certain number of sub-tenants. According to his advice, the preference was given in distributing the lands to adventurers from the West of Scotland. They were Protestants from his own country; they were industrious people, and the passage being very short, they might with the greater ease settle the land according to their contracts. The establishment of prelacy in Scotland in the year 1637, and afterwards in the year 1661, among people who had adopted the more simple form of Presbyterian worship, became the additional cause of numerous emigrations from that kingdom to the North of Ireland. The superior knowledge, industry and temperance of the Scotch farmers in a short time enabled them to supplant the natives among whom they lived, and six of the northern counties, by the end of the seventeenth century, were chiefly inhabited by the descendants of Scottish emigrants or the remains of Cromwell's army, but they were treated like aliens and strangers, with marks of distrust in their civil capacity, while they were depressed in their religious capacity by the spirit of intolerance, because they were not of the Established Church of Ireland. Men, who were thus degraded and vexed by incapacities and burdens, migrated in thousands to Pennsylvania, a province where the principles of civil and religious liberty had their full operation.

The arbitrary measures of James II., together with the apprehensions of a general massacre by the Papists, emboldened as they were by the undisguised partiality of the king, caused such multitudes, despairing of safety, to fly to foreign climes, that trade declined and the revenue languished. Successive emigrations from the North of Ireland continued to pour into Pennsylvania in such numbers, that by the year 1705 there were sufficient Presbyterian Churches in that province, in conjunction with those of the provinces contiguous, to constitute a Presbytery."

As early as 1730-31, Irish and Scotch emigrants crossed the Susquehanna at Paxton, and settled in Cumberland county, Pennsylvania, though the land was not, until 1736, purchased from the Indians by the proprietors of the province. The Indians had many towns and wigwams in various parts of the Cumberland Valley, yet the settlers conciliated them, and for a time natives and foreigners dwelt peaceably together. By the year 1736, when the lands of that beautiful valley were opened by the government for settlement, the homes already established by the advance guards dotted its entire length from the Susquehanna to the Maryland line.

Dr. Hawkes, in his lecture on The Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence, delivered before the New York Historical Society, Dec. 26, 1852, says, concerning the Scotch-Irish emigrants :

“ They reached the place of their settlement by two different avenues of approach, the one portion came into America by the Delaware River, landing at Philadelphia, and the other touched our shores at Charleston, in South Carolina. These latter struck at once into the fertile forests of the upper country, and approached their future homes from the South. The others occupied first the desirable localities in Pennsylvania, east of the Alleghanies, until finding need for increased room for their numbers, they passed down first into Virginia, and then into Carolina, and met the wave of emigration from the South. Sometimes the hut lifted its humble head from the dale, and seated on the sunny side of the hill, surrounded by the evidences of culture, it told in an unpretending way its little story of homely comfort and quiet seclusion. At first the log cabins, which betokened civilization, stood often in solitary seclusion. Eight, ten, fifteen miles were deemed distances that constituted quite a near neighbor, but scattered as were the people, there was an artificial feature in the landscape, which showed itself from the beginning. If you sought it in the spot most convenient to all, you were sure to find the meeting-house for the worship of God. It was, of course, at first an humble structure of logs, buried in the deep stillness of the forest, where it might be overshadowed by the brave old trees, and near it was commonly to be found, in some shaded little dell, or bursting from the hillside, the full and gushing fountain of water that nature had provided. Even to this day, the mouldering ruins and foundations of some of these rustic temples remain, and around them, protected commonly by a stone wall, are the green mounds and hillocks of the graveyards where ‘the rude forefathers of the hamlet sleep.’

Of the people, the most prominent feature in their general character was the intensity of their religious feeling. They seem to have united the impulsive ardor of the Irish with the keen and cool intellectual perception and shrewdness of the Scotch. The one tempered the other, they were eminently zealous, and at the same time eminently practical. They chose to understand a subject first, no matter whether it were religious or civil liberty, and when the mind once apprehended what they thought to be true and right, they threw themselves into the support of it with body and soul. They were as stern enthusiasts as the old Covenanters, but they knew better the ground of their enthusiasm. They lived more under the paternal direction of their spiritual instructors than under the control of the colonial government. And these guides were worthy of the place they filled; they were educated men, they established schools for their children, they taught the people faithfully, they were universally venerated, because they were unspotted in character; their opinion settled what was right or wrong, and no man better understood the principles of rational liberty. When the final struggle came, every one of these spiritual guides, to a man, was on the side of an oppressed people. Some of them bore arms, and their voices sent out among these hardy mountaineers with clear full sweep of a trumpet’s tone the sentiment, that the cause of national freedom was the cause of God and humanity.”

The McCormicks

Among the Early Settlers of Pennsylvania.

Relationship Unknown.

McCormick Family.

From the county records of Cumberland County, Pennsylvania, and from various other sources, it has been learned that there were a number of families, bearing the name of McCormick, residing in that county and its vicinity, prior to 1750.

Although no relationship has been traced between them, yet they were doubtless all of the same stock, as a North of Ireland nativity and a Presbyterian faith were common to them all.

John and Samuel McCormick paid taxes in East Pennsboro' Township in 1750. They were near neighbors of Thomas McCormick (1st), and may have been his brothers, but this relationship is only a matter of surmise.

In Rupp's "History of Cumberland County, Pennsylvania," there may be found a copy of a letter, dated August 24, 1756, addressed to the Secretary of the Colony in Philadelphia, advising him of the "melancholy state" in which the colonists found themselves by reason of the savage Indians. This letter was signed, among others, by John and Samuel McCormick.

In Rupp's History, mention is also made of "McCormick's Fort" at Conodoguinet, and again of the fact, that, by an Act of the Assembly of Jan. 27, 1750, John McCormick and four others, as trustees for the County of Cumberland, were authorized to purchase a piece of land in the said county, and thereon build a court house and a prison.

The name of John McCormick, with forty others, is also found signed to a document, bearing date June 27, 1768, guaranteeing to Rev. John Steel, "then minister at the Silvers Spring Church," his yearly stipend.

This John McCormick died in 1782, and his widow, Jane, in 1788. From her will it appears that they had five children, namely: John, Margaret, who married Hugh Quigley, Elizabeth, who became Mrs. Adams, and two daughters whose names are unknown.

Genealogy.

1. Richard Cunningham McCormick. (2nd.)

Son of Richard Cunningham McCormick (1st)

Grandson of Hugh McCormick (3rd)

Great grandson of James McCormick.

Great great grandson of Hugh McCormick (2nd)

Great great great grandson of Hugh McCormick (1st)

Born in New York City May 23, 1832.

Mr. McCormick received a classical education, with a view to entering Columbia College, (New York.) His health was not robust, and his father decided that, instead of going to college, he should travel extensively in Europe. This he did in 1854-5. His letters from the Crimea, where he spent some weeks, at the height of the Siege of Sebastopol, were published in book form in 1855; and in 1858-9 he edited the Young Men's Magazine, in New York, and was connected with various movements for the benefit of young men. In 1860 he was invited by Mr. William Cullen Bryant to a position in the editorial department of the Evening Post of that city. He went to Washington, upon the inauguration of President Lincoln, and in 1861-2 he was a war correspondent with the Army of the Potomac for the Post, and other New York Journals.

Mr. McCormick was well known to President Lincoln, and was by him made Secretary of Arizona, upon the organization of that Territory, serving 1863-6. He was Governor 1866-9, and was elected Delegate to Congress for three successive terms, 1869-75; making a record of which Mr. Blaine, who was Speaker of the House of Representatives for the same period, thus speaks in his book: "Twenty Years in Congress": "In Congress Richard C. McCormick became distinguished for the zeal and ability with which he guarded the interests of his constituents."

McCormick Family.

As Secretary and Governor of Arizona, Mr. McCormick took a leading part in the organization of the Territory, in the encouragement of the early settlers, in the opening of the mining districts, the construction of road and building of towns, as well as in the measures necessary, for years, for protection against the depredations of the hostile Apaches.

Mr. McCormick established the Arizona Miner in 1864, and the Arizona Citizen in 1870, journals still in existence. He was a Delegate from Arizona to the Republican National Conventions of 1872, 1876 and 1880, and was a Commissioner to the United States Centennial Exhibition 1873-6; First Assistant Secretary of the United States Treasury 1877, and Commissioner General to the Paris Exposition of 1878, when he was made a commander of the Legion of Honor by the French Government. In 1877 he was tendered the Mission to Brazil, and in 1879 that to Mexico, both of which he declined. In 1880 he retired from public life, and entered business in New York City, making his residence at the family home at Jamaica, Long Island, where he served first as President of the Board of Education, and secondly, as President of the State Normal School at that place.

In 1862 Mr. McCormick was nominated by the Republicans for Congress in the first District of New York (Long Island) and again nominated in 1886, but not elected, the district being heavily Democratic. In 1894 he was nominated and elected to the 54th Congress by a large majority; and thus returned to public life.

In addition to his volume on the Crimean War entitled "A Visit to the Camp before Sebastopol," Mr. McCormick published in 1860, "St. Paul's to St. Sophia," or, "Sketches of Travel in Europe." He is also the author of several political and historical pamphlets, and has written much for the press upon miscellaneous topics. He compiled the reports, (five volumes), of the United States Commissioners to the Paris Exposition of 1878. In his letter to Congress, submitting these reports, the Secretary of State, Mr. Evarts, said :

“The labor of planning and directing our national representation at the Exposition rested upon the Commissioner General, who accepted the responsibility at the special request of the President. It is a pleasing duty to say that the arduous trust devolved upon Mr. McCormick was not<sup>only</sup> fulfilled with exemplary diligence, ability and zeal, but it was due to his personal exertions that almost insurmountable difficulties were overcome, and that the credit of the people of the United States as exhibitors was not only maintained, but greatly advanced.”

Mr. McCormick married in October, 1865, Margaret G. Hunt, only daughter of Isaac L. Hunt, of Rahway, N. J. She died at Prescott, Arizona, in April, 1867. At Washington, D. C., in November, 1873, Mr. McCormick married Elizabeth, youngest daughter of Hon. Allen G. Thurman, of Columbus, Ohio, at that time a Senator of the United States.

In early life he was in business in that city, and, in 1845, became Secretary of the Atlantic Dock Company of Brooklyn, an office which he filled with great fidelity until his death in Brooklyn, January 6, 1890. For much of the time he was the executive officer of the company, and most of its docks and warehouses, among the first in the United States, were constructed under his direct supervision. He was quicksighted, systematic and energetic as a business man, and much respected for his intelligence and integrity. He managed the affairs of the company, and its large landed interests, with marked success.

McCormick Family.

(now The Outlook); 1877-82, and, later, an editor of the New York Observer. In 1890 he succeeded his father as secretary of the Atlantic Dock Company of Brooklyn, and filled that office most creditably until his death, at his summer home, at Noroton, Conn., October 10, 1891. Mr. McCormick was a ready writer. He made three tours of observation in Europe, during which he wrote charming descriptive letters for the Christian Union and Observer. The boys and girls were indebted to him for some of the best stories published in Wide Awake, and similar monthly publications, and his friends regret that he did not write more, as his stories, whether of real life, or romance, were peculiarly fascinating, pure and healthful. In New York he was a member of Dr. John Hall's Presbyterian Church, and for some years took a leading part in the Mission School work of that church. In Brooklyn he belonged to the Westminster Presbyterian Church, and was active in its interests and all good works.

Mr. McCormick married in 1888 Laura Case, daughter of Benjamin J. Brenton, of Jamaica, N. Y., and had issue: Theodora Eliot, born September 14, 1890.

In a sketch of Mr. McCormick's happy and useful life, his pastor, Dr. James M. Ludlow, wrote:

"A peculiar characteristic of Mr. McCormick was his loving disposition, and especially his love for boys. His Sabbath School class was always large and popular; he organized a Boys' club in Brooklyn, to which he gave his best thoughts and much of his time. The young people about him could not exhaust the patience with which he served them. The richest stores of his mind, his deepest sympathies, his practical and kindly counsel were always at their demand. More than one young man now advancing in honorable and successful life, regards his acquaintance with Mr. McCormick as among his chief blessings."

His cousin, Hon. Richard C. McCormick, has given this testimony: "Mr. McCormick was quiet and reserved in manner, and only those who knew him intimately and well could appreciate his fine gifts of mind and heart. To such his early death is a mystery ; closing as it does an earthly life true to every refined instinct and elevated sentiment, and giving promise of great usefulness and influence, and all that constitutes a noble manhood, enriched by a simple and unfaltering Christian faith."

His paternal grandfather was Robert Foresman, one of the pioneers of the White Deer Valley. He was reared under the parental roof, and remained with his parents until he was 26 years of age, assisting his father to support the family. He received a common school education, and taught two winter terms, and with the money thus acquired, he took a course of two years at Dickinson Seminary. In April, 1861, he enlisted in Co. D. 11th Pa. Volunteers; served four months, and then returned home to assist in tilling the farm. He afterwards went out with the Emergency men, during Lee's invasion of Pennsylvania. In 1876 the firm of Williams & Foresman was established. From that time, up to the present, they have carried on business very successfully, and are recognized as one of the prominent lumber firms of Williamsport. Mr. Foresman is also a member of Bowman, Foresman & Co., and of the Bowman Lumber Co., of West Virginia. He is a large stockholder in the Lycoming Rubber Co.; is an active supporter of the Board of Trade and a charter member of the Ross Club.

Mr. Foresman was married Dec. 9th, 1862, to Sallie E., daughter of Samuel Updegraff, of the "Long Reach," and has a family of two sons and two daughters, as follows: John H., George P., Laura B., wife of F. F. Robb, and Ruth Mac, (his first born, Margaret, having died in infancy).

McCormick Family.

The family are adherents of the Third Presbyterian Church, and Mr. Foresman has been a K. T. in the Masonic order for twenty-five years. He has always been a staunch Democrat and an unswerving advocate of democratic principles. In 1882 he was a candidate for legislative honors, and came within two votes of receiving the nomination. He is a member of the Select Council, and is now President of that body, and takes a very active interest in public affairs. Mr. Foresman gives his earnest support to every project that tends to the general welfare and prosperity of Williamsport.

Stephen McCormick.

Fauquier County, Virginia.

Stephen McCormick, the inventor of the McCormick plow, was born on his father's farm on the Upper Rappahannock, in Fauquier County, Virginia, August 26, 1784, and died in the same county, August 28, 1875, at the residence of his son-in-law, Mr. S. G. Catlett, of Catlett, Va. He is buried on his old farm, at Auburn, some five miles west of Warrenton,

Mr. McCormick was the youngest son of John McCormick and Elizabeth Morgan, his wife, and sprang from that family of McCormicks, who were present at the siege of Londonderry, and afterwards removed to Pennsylvania, and from thence to Virginia. His mother was of the family of the famous American General, Daniel Morgan.

It is said that young Stephen was a remarkably intelligent and handsome youth, fond of out-door sports, healthy, strong and well developed, for his age, and that when his father desired that he should make the law his profession, he flatly refused. His energetic mind and body, his mechanical and inventive genius sought delight in other active and congenial pursuits, so he preferred the farm and the shop.

He became greatly interested in the construction of a grist mill on his father's farm, and when a mere youth, made a number of successful experiments in the dressing of the nether millstone, which greatly increased the producing power of the mill. This was highly appreciated by the neighbors, who, at that day, depended entirely upon old-fashioned water mills for flour and meal.

About this time his father gave him a fine young horse, and coming upon him rather unexpectedly, one day, was greatly fretted to catch young Stephen engaged, with his young companions, in running a horse race. The old gentleman became irritated, ordered Stephen to the house, required him to hitch his horse to a plow and go to work, remarking to him that he would give him some more useful and profitable employment. Stephen took hold of the plow handles, ran a few furrows, and becoming so disgusted with the old clumsy wooden implement, ceased work, and declared he would make a better. He succeeded, after some years, and produced the scientific, shapely and valuable plow that bears his name.

The difference between the old and the new, among other things, consisted in changing the wooden mold-board, then in use, to a cast-iron one—the whole cast in one piece, and reaching from the share to the beam, and giving the new mold-board a new contour, or face, over which the earth would more easily pass. It decreased the draft, deepened the furrow, and pulverized the soil more thoroughly, thus increasing the amount of plowing that could be done in a day and improving the quality thereof.

This plow revolutionized the cultivation of the soil in the Piedmont and valley sections of Virginia, where the face of the country is generally rocky and hilly. It decreased the labor and added to the incomes of the farmers. It was first used about the year 1816, and patented about 1820; was largely manufactured in Virginia and elsewhere, and remained the standard for years. Slight changes in it were afterwards made, mostly to avoid the patent, yet the essential principles of the plan were retained, and it is still said of it: "The McCormick plow was a great invention; it was by far the best of its day, and, in fact, as successful as any made now."

When General LaFayette visited this country in 1824, Mr. McCormick presented him with a plow, which he carried to France and had entered in a plowing match at Paris, where it took the premium as the best.

The subject of this sketch was twice married. His first wife was

Genealogy.

Miss Sarah Barnett, of Fauquier, whom he married in February, 1807. To them were born three sons, viz :

L. James,
John Ambrose, and William,

All of whom left Virginia in their youth, James going to South Carolina, where he wrote and published a higher school arithmetic, which was highly appreciated and used in the schools there. The other two moved to Iowa and died many years ago. Their mother died about 1814, and is buried at Auburn, Virginia. The second wife was Miss Elizabeth M. Benson, third daughter of James Benson, Esq., and Dulciebella Berry, his wife, of Stafford County, Virginia. This marriage occurred on February 29, 1816, and by it were born to him,

Richard Henry,
Willis Berry,
Robert Lysander,
Agnes,
Judith,
Dulcie,
Mary,
Stephen and Elizabeth, (twins), and Virginia.

The sons all died, after reaching manhood, without issue, except Willis Berry, who, in 1840, married Miss Virginia Millan, only daughter of Capt. George Millan, of Fairfax County, Virginia. To them were born eight sons and daughters, and in 1858, he, with his family, removed to Texas, and settled in Colorado County, near to the spot, where now stands the flourishing little city of Weimar. He and his wife both departed this life a few years ago. The eldest son, George, resides now at Columbus, Texas, where he has been engaged in the practice of the law since the war. The second, Stephen, is at Weimar, and is the Postmaster of that city, under President Cleveland's appointment. Both married in Texas and have large families.

Of Stephen McCormick's daughters, Agnes married Judge Duncan, of Missouri; Judith, the Rev. Mr. Pratt, of Minnesota; Dulcie, the Rev. H. C. Cushing, of Prince William, Va.; Elizabeth, S. G. Catlett, of Catlett, Va.; Virginia, a Mr. Johnston, of Union, W. Va. Mary died when quite young and is buried in the family graveyard at Auburn, Va.

Stephen McCormick, as it were, inherited his religious belief from his ancestors. He was, for many years, a devoted Old School Presbyterian. He devotedly loved his native State and her institutions, and in his old age, used to laughingly boast that he "had voted for every democratic nominee for the Presidency, from Thomas Jefferson to Jefferson Davis."

His character was that of an honest, candid and fearless man. He neither sought difficulties nor avoided them. He was a kind and most humane master; the friend of the poor and the needy, and during the life of his last wife his home was noted for hospitality, and he and she, for their Christian charity.

On Oct. 9, 1861, he enlisted in Co. D., Eighth Regiment (Seventh Cavalry), and Nov. 18, 1861, was promoted to be Captain of Co. L. On Jan. 10, 1863, he became Colonel of the Regiment, and was brevetted Brigadier General, Mar. 13, 1865, for long, faithful and gallant service. He was mustered out, Aug. 23, 1865, and was promoted, after the war, to the rank of Major General of the National Guards of Pennsylvania. He fought in the Army of the Tennessee as a cavalryman, and was wounded at Bardstown, Kentucky, and Salam, Alabama. The bullets received at the latter place remained in his body until his death. He participated in the battles of Murfreesboro, Stone River, Alexandria, Chickamauga, Macon, Dallas, Atlanta, Columbia and Kenesaw Mountain. At the close of the war he returned to Milton and purchased an interest in the firm of Murray, Dougal & Co., car manufacturers, from which he retired in 1877.

Son of John and Isabella McCormick Walker.

Grandson of Thomas McCormick (2nd).

Great grandsno of Thomas McCormick (1st).

Few names are more identified with Northwestern Pennsylvania, and none more associated with Erie, than that of the lawyer and statesman now mentioned. He was one of eight children of John and Isabella (McCormick) Walker; born in Cumberland County, Pennsylvania, February 9th, 1800. His ancestors were of Scotch, Scotch Irish, and English origin, and among the very early settlers of Pennsylvania. His great grandfather, William Walker, came to Pennsylvania in 1710,—but eighteen years after William Penn. The Walkers settled in Lancaster County. His grandfather, William Walker, afterwards removed to Cumberland County, and his father, in 1817, removed from Cumberland to Washington County, Pennsylvania. His mother, Isabella McCormick, the daughter of Thomas and Jane (Oliver) McCormick, was born Dec. 29, 1759, on the present site of Philadelphia, Pa. They came from Ireland in 1737. They had two sons, John and William, and six daughters, of whom Isabella was the eldest.

The reference to Mr. Walker's ancestry and race, will explain his marked tenacity of purpose and rigid pertinacity, while the long identification of the family with Pennsylvania is mentioned as a reminder of his loyalty to her interests. Robert John Walker, U. S. Senator from Mississippi, and Secretary of the Treasury, under President Polk, was the son of John H. Walker's uncle, Jonathan Walker, and born, July 14, 1801.

Genealogy.

John H. Walker graduated at Washington College, in 1822. He studied law with an uncle at Pittsburg, and was the next year admitted to the bar. In 1824 he came to Erie to reside. From that time he was identified, for half a century, with Erie, as a lawyer and public man. He was an advocate of great power, and retained his place as one of the leading men of Northwestern Pennsylvania until his death. His professional career included an amount of continuous and arduous professional work, and a prominent, undisputed and well sustained leadership, which has few parallels in this State. He was thoroughly Pennsylvanian, by birth, lineage, education and residence. This was strikingly manifest in his conspicuous service in the Legislative bodies of the State. In these, his remarkable legislative career has three separate and distinctive but equally removed periods of service. His first four years in the Legislature commenced in 1832. The second, as Senator from 1849 to 1852. The third, as Delegate at Large, to the Constitutional Convention of 1872-4.

As his first service was in the prime of life, the second was in his full orb'd meridian, and the third, after he had passed the Psalmist's limit. Each period, was, in a measure, amid different surroundings of men and of questions. In each period of service his leadership was recognized; for, in the first, he was, as Chairman of Ways and Means Committee, leader of the House; in the second, Speaker of the Senate, and in the third, made President of the Constitutional Convention on the death of William M. Meredith, who, at the head of the Philadelphia bar and Secretary of the Treasury, under President Taylor, was of national renown. The agitating questions of these respective eras, were as different as were the personal surroundings. In the first, the creation of corporations and the construction of canals, were foremost. In the second, the building and regulating of railroads, were of absorbing interest; and in the third and final service, the restriction of corporations and the curbing of their powers, were uppermost in the minds of the framers of the Constitution. In all of the groups of men and variety of questions, Mr. Walker was a leader of leaders. Sound in his principles, clear in his views of public measures, and earnest in their support, he won admiration and commanded respect. In the halls of legislation, as before courts and juries, his presentation of facts was so clear, and his train of reasoning so cogent, that he generally carried his audience with him. He struck his sledge-hammer blows with tremendous power, and his sarcasm was withering. He seldom lost a cause. His heart was in his profession—there, his life-work. Having mastered its fundamental principles, believing its aim to be the enforcement of right and the repression of wrong, he devoted his great abilities to its practice. Though eminently fitted to grace public positions, he was not an office seeker. He despised the tricks of the politician. Three times, in his long career, he accepted public trusts—always to his pecuniary detriment. Each time it was in interruption of professional duties, to him, so much more congenial. Besides, circumstances and his own convictions, had placed him, in early life, in antagonism to the Democracy in their long and hardly intermitted control of Pennsylvania. Always their opponent, Mr. Walker, on each occasion of his appearance in public position, was found in the leadership of a party of a different name from that borne during his former service. In 1835, as the coadjutor of Governor Ritner, Thaddeus Stevens and Thomas H. Burrows, he was the leader of the anti-Masonic majority in the House of Representatives.

In 1851-2, as the elect of the Whigs, he presided in the State Senate, and in 1873-4, as the choice of the Republicans, as Meredith's successor in the President's chair, in a body, of which Governors Bigelow and Curtin, Judges Black and Dallas, were members. He had passed the meridian of his life when the Pennsylvania Democracy were overthrown, but in the "borrowed time" allotted him, after his three-score-and-ten, he aided in forming a

Genealogy.

Constitution to protect the people from mischiefs, which, as a legislator, he had perceived and deplored. He was a public spirited citizen, keenly alive to the interests of Erie and resolute in their defence. He did much to improve the city, having erected an industrial plant and many dwellings. While in the Legislature, he obtained from the State, the grant of the beautiful farm for the Alms House, and the "Third Section" of land in Mill Creek for improvement of Erie harbor. He was active in the development of the railroad system centering at Erie, and devoted much of time and means to maintain a plank road. His domestic relations were unusually happy. In 1831, he married Miss Catherine D. Kelley, a native of New Hampshire. Their home was in the imposing brick mansion on West Seventh street, erected in 1837, still identified with the family name. He was noted for his love of home, and though Mrs. Walker died in 1860, more than fourteen years preceding the death of her husband, the memory of her grace of manner and kindness of heart, lingers like a spell. After her death, Mr. Walker kept open his spacious, elegant home, and by his will, directed that for ten years, his home, with the furniture and pictures, with all their associations, should be continued as a family household.

His exertions in the Constitutional Convention told upon his strength. He returned home enfeebled, and, "full of years and honors," died on Jan. 25, 1875.

After graduation, at Princeton, he spent some years in the construction of railroads in Missouri and Illinois. Having returned to Erie, he was active in raising the 111th Regiment of Pennsylvania Volunteers, which served until the close of the war. No one was more identified with his regiment than General Walker. He entered as Major and rose to be its Colonel, and was, for his gallant conduct, brevetted Brigadier General. While Major, in the absence of the Colonel and Lieutenant-Colonel, he commanded the Regiment at the battles of Cedar Mountain and Antietam, and for his gallantry was presented with a splendid sword by the ladies of Erie. It was fitly said, by the Erie Dispatch, in speaking of the Regiment: "It has seen more hard fighting, done more active duty, and obtained a wider reputation, in proportion to its service, than almost any other in the country." His regiment was the first to enter Atlanta and the last to leave that city, while forming part of General Sherman's Army in his "March to the Sea." The visit of the 111th Regiment to Erie, in the winter of 1864, was the occasion of a public reception, and a great manifestation of affection and esteem for Col. Walker and his men. His military record was a glorious one. He returned, at the close of the war, and entered business in Erie. In 1870 he was elected Sheriff of Erie County. He was Chairman of the Republican County Committee, in 1868-69. He was appointed Robert Fleming Sample was born in the town of Corning, N. Y., Oct. 19, 1829.

After his mother's death in 1834, he was sent to school in Geneva, N. Y., and continued his studies in an academy at Milton, Pa., entering Jefferson College at Cannonsburg, Pa., during the presidency of the Rev. Robert J. Breckenridge, D. D., where he graduated with honor. During the last year of his theological course at Allegheny City, he was called to the First Presbyterian Church of Mercer, Pa., as successor to the Rev. Joseph T. Smith, D. D. His subsequent pastorates were in Bedford, Pa., Minneapolis, Minn., and New York City. His most important work was done in connection with the Westminster church of Minneapolis, where he ministered for nearly twenty years. The membership of the church had advanced to a thousand, and the congregation was worshipping in one of the finest church edifices in this country, when he resigned this interesting and beloved charge on account of ill-health, induced by overwork and the rigor of the climate. After a brief sojourn in the South, he accepted a call to the Westminster Church of New York city, where he still remains. In 1876 he received the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity from Wooster University, of Ohio. Dr. Sample has been a trustee of Macalister College, a director of McCormick Seminary, a member of the Presbyterian Board of Publication, and is at present a member of the Board of Church Erection, and a Trustee of Lincoln University. He was Moderator of the Presbytery of New York during the protracted discussion of the revision of the Westminster Confession of Faith, and was the only member of a committee of twelve, appointed to frame a paper on that subject, who voted against the radical changes proposed and afterwards rejected by the General Assembly. He was also a member of the prosecuting committee in the case of the Presbyterian Church against the Rev. C. A. Briggs, D. D., whose errors were condemned by the highest court of the church. He was a member of the Alliance, at Belfast, composed of delegates from all branches of the Presbyterian denomination throughout the world, and read one of the important papers before that body.

Dr. Sample is the author of "Beacon-Lights of the Reformation;" of the "Memoir of Rev. J. C. Thom;" of four anonymous books on "Christian Experience," and several hymns, incorporated in the hymnology of his own and other churches. He has also been a regular correspondent of "The Presbyterian" for nearly a third of a century; has written extensively of his travels in Europe and the East, and has furnished numerous articles for the leading magazines and reviews of this country. The Presbyterian Encyclopædia says of him: "Dr. Sample, as a preacher, is thoroughly evangelical, able, instructive, impressive; as a writer, he is graceful, vigorous and popular, and he wields a strong influence by his sound judgment earnest zeal and exemplary Christian character. He has a record of which any minister of the gospel might justly be proud."

Dr. Sample married, March 31, 1853, Nannie M. Bracken, of Cannonsburg, Pa.

then commenced reading for the bar. The year 1823 found him a member of the bar of Cumberland County, and 1825 a member of the bar of Dauphin County. Success crowned his every endeavor in public life. He was a member and President of the borough council of Harrisburg for some time, President of the Dauphin Deposit Bank, of the Harrisburg Bridge Co., and of the Harrisburg Cemetery. In his church connection he was for many years a trustee of the Pine Street Church.

Although totally blind for ten years before his death, his powers of mind were such that he was able to successfully manage his large estate, comprising rolling and flour mills, furnaces and farms.

James McCormick married, May 31, 1830, Eliza Buehler, a woman of noble character and active generosity, whose support was unflinchingly given to every worthy object.

a. Henry McCormick.

Son of James McCormick (4th).

Grandson of William McCormick.

Great grandson of James McCormick (1st).

Great great grandson of Thomas McCormick (1st).

B., in Harrisburg, Pa., Mar. 10, 1831.

After an early education received at the Public Schools, Harrisburg Academy, and Partridge's Military Institute, he entered Yale College, graduating from there in 1852.

The study of law, to which he early gave his attention, was not a sufficiently stirring occupation, and he accordingly gave it up, choosing instead the iron business at Reading Furnace. In 1857, he took the management of Paxtang Furnace, and nine years later that of the nail works at Fairview, Cumberland Co., Pa., which he conducted successfully for twenty-five years.

Long before the time when railroads crossed the continent, he traveled over the great plains and mountain ranges to the Pacific, and returned via the Isthmus.

On the outbreak of the war, he gathered together a company of volunteers, Company F, 25th Regiment P. V., of whom more than half served later as commissioned officers.

Having been made Colonel of the First Regiment, Pennsylvania Militia, he was later appointed to the command of the First Brigade by Major General John F. Reynolds, and after the Battle of Antietam brought home the whole division, Penna. Militia.

Governor Hartranft appointed him a Commissioner in the new Geological Survey of Pennsylvania, and he was later elected as its Treasurer.

He married Annie Criswell, Jan. 29, 1866.

McCormick Family.

4. Hugh McCormick (1st).

Son of Thomas McCormick (1st).

B., in N. of Ireland, 1735.

D., in Kentucky, Sept., 1779.

Hugh McCormick, with his two brothers, William and Robert, obtained land, about 1756, in Fermanagh township, Pa., and made several futile attempts to settle there, but were expelled by the Indians, until in 1788, Hugh McCormick built a large stone house, with windows at some height from the ground, so that, in event of another Indian attack, it might be a place of refuge.

A photograph of the house as it still stands, seemingly without any sign of decay, accompanies this sketch.

Hugh McCormick was a soldier in the Revolutionary war of 1776, and endured many privations.

With his wife and family, he located, about 1798, in Kentucky, where he died.

He married Catharine Sanderson, 1767.

Hon. Archibald Loudon Snowden was born in Cumberland County, Pa. On his father's side he traces his ancestry in America back to the earliest settlers in New England. His ancestor, William Snowden, under patents from the Duke of York, owned large bodies of land in Philadelphia, in 1669. John Snowden, the son of William, was no less distinguished for his enterprise and probity as a merchant than for his benevolence and high Christian character. He was one of the founders of the First Presbyterian Church in Philadelphia, and is believed to have been the first Elder of that denomination ordained in America. His son, Isaac, born in 1710, was one of the founders of the Second Presbyterian Church in the same city. His son, also named Isaac, born in 1740, was an Elder in the same church, and was a Commissioner appointed by Congress to issue Continental money. His son, Rev. Nathaniel Randolph Snowden, was born in Philadelphia, in 1770, and was the first Presbyterian clergyman over the first church in Harrisburg, the capital of the State.

His son, Dr. Isaac Wayne Snowden, the father of the subject of our sketch, was born in 1793. He entered the United States army as Assistant Surgeon, when he was under twenty years of age, served with distinction in the Seminole war under General Jackson, and was severely wounded at Fort Scott. He subsequently resigned from the army and settled in the beautiful Cumberland Valley, Pennsylvania, where he married Margery Bines Loudon, daughter of Archibald Loudon, granddaughter of Matthew and Elizabeth McCormick Loudon, and great great granddaughter of Thomas McCormick.

Col. Snowden, the subject of our sketch, received a preliminary education in the academies of Newville and Mechanicsburg, Pa., and completed his education at Jefferson, now Washington and Jefferson College, in Washington County, Pa. At this college, he twice represented his class as orator. On leaving college he studied law, accepting in the meantime the position of Registrar of the United States Mint in Philadelphia, during the directorship of his uncle, Hon. James Ross Snowden. On the outbreak of the war in 1861, he assisted in raising a regiment of infantry and was commissioned Lieutenant Colonel. Subsequently, Col. Snowden participated in the campaigns made by the First City Troop of Philadelphia, the oldest military organization, with a continuous history in the United States.

Genealogy.

It was the body-guard of Washington during the Revolution. Of this famous corps, after fifteen years of continuous service, Col. Snowden became the Commander. In the Mint service he was appointed, in 1866, the Chief Coiner by the President, and continued in that office until 1877, when he was appointed Postmaster of Philadelphia by President Grant. In 1878, he declined the office of Director of all the Mints of the United States, twice tendered him by President Hayes. In 1879, he accepted the Chief Executor's office in the Philadelphia Mint, where he remained until after the inauguration of President Cleveland, in 1885, when he resigned from the Mint service, being recognized everywhere as the best authority in America on all subjects relating to Mint, coins and coinage. He introduced important machinery from different parts of the world for the rapid and artistic production of our coinage. Among numerous articles relating to coinage and medalistic history, of which he is the author, may be mentioned his paper giving researches in relation to the history of the Great Seal of the United States, which obtained widespread attention and most favorable commendation. In 1879, he was designated by the Councils of Philadelphia to organize the great demonstration of Dec. 16, in honor of General Grant. This demonstration was most imposing, embracing 47,000 persons, and many thousand horses, in the street parade. In 1887, the Commission having in charge the appropriate celebration of the Centennial of the adoption of the Constitution framed in Philadelphia, requested Colonel Snowden to organize the industrial demonstration. This he did with consummate skill, and upon such broad lines, that it became the chief feature of the great celebration. Col. Snowden, in assuming charge of the work, resolved that all departments and branches of our industrial, intellectual and moral life, should be so illustrated, that the demonstration should be a great object lesson, illustrative of the progress made in a century of constitutional government. The ability and energy displayed by Col. Snowden in this important work received from the Commission, and the public, just recognition and hearty thanks.

In 1889, he was appointed United States Minister to Greece, Roumania and Servia. This mission was raised to that of the first-class, owing to his service in Athens.

In July, 1892, President Harrison transferred him as Minister Plenipotentiary to Madrid. Here, as our representative, he rendered most important service, for which he received the especial thanks of the State Department. In the business and social life of Philadelphia, he has been for a long period a conspicuous figure. For many years he presided most acceptably over the annual meetings of the stockholders of the Pennsylvania Railroad. He has also been largely interested in railroad and other business enterprises; was for many years President of the "United Fire Underwriters of America," an organization embracing nearly all the insurance companies doing business in this country. He is a Commissioner of Fairmount Park, a member of nearly all the social clubs of the city, of the Philosophical Society, the Union League, Pennsylvania Society Sons of the Revolution, and while a pronounced Republican in politics, and one of the most eloquent and effective speakers in the State, he, at the same time, enjoys to a marked degree, the respect and esteem of men of all shades of opinion.

5. Robert McCormick (1st).

Son of Thomas McCormick (1st).

B., in Lancaster Co., Pa., 1738.

D., in Rockbridge Co., Va., Oct. 12, 1818.

Robert McCormick (1737-Oct. 12, 1818), was born in Lancaster County, now Dauphin County, Pennsylvania. His father, Thomas McCormick, was born in the north of Ireland, in the Province of Ulster, in the year 1702, and died in East Pennsboro Township, Cumberland County, Pennsylvania, in 1762.

His grandfather, James McCormick, among other Scottish colonists, participated in the memorable defense of Londonderry when invested by James II, in 1689. The heroic defenders were reduced to the extremity of feeding upon the flesh of horses and of dogs, and finally to obtain nourishment from hides. In this desperate strait they were succored and the siege was abandoned.

About the year 1734, Thomas McCormick, and his brother Hugh, emigrated to America and settled in Pennsylvania, locating in Lancaster County, Thomas removing to Cumberland County in 1745. They were of Scotch-Irish descent and Presbyterians; were religious, strict in attendance at church, in the observance of family worship, and in asking God's blessing at table. Their children were taught the Catechism, and the Bible was read at school. They also committed to memory many of the Psalms.

Robert McCormick, the subject of this sketch, in 1755 removed to what is now Juniata County, Pennsylvania, and located near his brothers, Hugh and Thomas. They frequently suffered from incursions from the Indians, and on one occasion were driven from their homes. In 1787 his brother Hugh built a stone house, which is still standing, a print of which is shown on page

Robert McCormick moved with his family to Rockbridge County, Virginia, in 1779. He was a Revolutionary patriot; served in the

Genealogy.

Virginia line during the Carolina Campaign under General Nathaniel Greene, and was wounded at the battle of Guilford Court-House. While approaching the cover of a fence, a British officer cried out: "Shoot that damned Rebel."

He had many of the characteristics of the rugged and persevering race from whom he traced descent. In his private life he was pious, earnest and in all things honorable; in religion, a Presbyterian and an elder of the Old Providence Church, Augusta County, Virginia. As an illustration of his rigid piety, on one occasion, when the minister of the church gave out hymns to which he objected, instead of the Psalms of David, he deliberately took up his hat and left the church, followed by several of the congregation. They at once organized New Providence Church.

He was held in the highest esteem by his neighbors and associates, was exemplary in his habits, and his home and attire were marked with Colonial simplicity. Every Sabbath morning he held family prayers, and the day was set apart for rest, meditation and sacred uses.

It was his habit in walking to carry a stick five or six feet long, and though appearing somewhat grotesque, it was the outgrowth of habits acquired in early life when in the forests his stick was a ready weapon of defense.

He was a type of the Colonial and Revolutionary epochs, and of a people who brought into the New World those well known characteristics which have left so indelible an impress upon American civilization.

He married Martha Sanderson in 1770.

was educated, and in 1797, married Jane Steele, daughter of William David Steele, a Revolutionary patriot and soldier of Augusta County, Virginia.

Early in the present century, the pioneer spirit, which has so signalized the Scotch-Irish race in America, led George Elliot McCormick to seek a new home in the West, and in 1805, after a tour of inspection, he settled in Henderson Co., Ky., where he brought up a large family, who themselves and their descendants have ranked among the most prominent citizens of the community. He was known as an upright, pious, and God-serving man, universally esteemed and respected, and the oldest citizens yet speak of him, in his old age, as a grand old philosopher.

He survived his wife, who died in 1843, six years. The evening of his life was calm, philosophical and resigned. He was buried in the family burial ground.

f. Robert McCormick.

Son of Robert and Martha Sanderson McCormick.

Grandson of Thomas and Elizabeth Carruth McCormick.

B., at Walnut Grove, Rockbridge County, Virginia,
June 8, 1780.

M., Feb. 11, 1808, Mary Ann Hall, (daughter of Patrick and Susan McChesney Hall), who died June 1, 1853.

D., at Walnut Grove, July 4, 1846.

Robert McCormick, (1780-1846), to whose memory this work, in filial reverence, is dedicated, and whose genius has given a world-wide fame to his family, had many of the characteristics of his father, (p.     ).

He was a man of strong character, of a retiring disposition, and of refined and cultivated tastes. In religion, he was a Presbyterian, and in his life exemplary. He was held in high esteem and respect by his neighbors, and was always a ready friend of those in need of counsel or assistance. His home was typical of Virginia life following the Revolutionary epoch.

He came by inheritance into the old homestead—Walnut Grove. His wife was a devoted and self-sacrificing woman; like her husband, social and hospitable, and their home was a place where friends or strangers were always welcome. His character and disposition were worthy of praise and imitation, yet he never sought the praise of the world. Rev. James Morrison said of him: "He was a man of remarkable mind, and that from him he had gotten many beautiful and original thoughts on the Bible."

But it is of the life and work of a great inventor with which we are primarily concerned.

His inventive genius was practical, and in every instance directed to the amelioration of the conditions of the age in which he lived.

McCormick Family.

He invented a machine for breaking and cleaning hemp and flax which was used with much success in Virginia and Kentucky ; a threshing machine, which proved highly satisfactory ; a useful horse-power of novel design and skilful construction ; a hydraulic machine ; a clover sheller, and a blacksmith's bellows, which were introduced with general approval.

But his aspiring mind aimed at a still broader field of usefulness. For nearly forty years his life was devoted to one great, earnest purpose. It was his mechanical genius which conceived, devised and executed one of the greatest inventions which has assisted to carry forward American development. In 1809-10, he conceived and constructed a grain-cutting machine, which embodied the principles of the modern reaper, and may well be termed the foundation of the harvesting machine industry, since it combined the reel with which to carry the standing grain back to the cutting knife, and when cut, on to a platform, from which it was raked by a man walking alongside of the machine. This reaper embodied the combination of the reel, the cutting knife, the platform, the driving wheel, and the main frame to which the horses were attached. These, in connection with the revolving apron, for side delivery, which was added in 1816, make a combination of parts which form the vital principles of the perfected reaper of the present day. His original machine anticipated the inventions of Smith, of the Deansston Cotton Works, Perthshire, Scotland, Rev. Patrick Bell, Burrall, William and Thomas Schnebly, Randall and Hussey. When he improved his combination by supplying the vibrating sickle, the reaper became a practical invention, which he continued to manufacture and use until the time of his death in 1846. But, bent upon developing his inventions, and without regard to the benefit which might accrue from them to himself and family, he, like others of that time, neglected the important step of taking out letters patent.

In addition to his inventions, he displayed much administrative ability in the management of two thousand acres of land, operating at the same time a grist-mill and two saw-mills—the latter in connection with his manufacturing interests.

He was a man of marked individuality and versatility, and although his life-work led into the field of scientific inquiry, his mind was essentially practical and keenly alive to the current questions of his day.

In person he was of dignified bearing, of unassuming manners, of refined tastes, and numbered among his associates many of the leading men of his day.

William Sanderson McCormick was a man of attractive personality, and a strong character. From his youth up his mastery of detail, combined with great executive ability, attracted attention. These qualities first manifested themselves, in a marked degree, in the management of his father's large plantation in Virginia, and afterwards in the broader field which opened up to him when he came to Chicago to join his brothers in the manufacture of the Reaper. He assumed the management of the finances of the firm, handling them with consummate skill. He regulated the increasing annual purchases of stocks of lumber, coal, pig iron and other required supplies, as well as the credits to be extended to farmers.

At the outbreak of the war, foreseeing the magnitude of the impending conflict, and the dangers of a depreciated currency, he entered into contracts for material greatly beyond the immediate needs of the firm, and made large purchases of real estate and gold for account of the firm, which turned out most satisfactorily.

To his sagacity and untiring labors are largely due the proportions of the business at the time of his death, and the firm foundations which underlie it to this day. It was he who established the company's agency system, which still survives. No one contributed more to the early development of Chicago. He was a man of great original force, and in full sympathy with the spirit of progress, which inspired and still inspires, the upbuilders of the West. Systematic in business, he was yet a man of keen sympathies and generous disposition, and the affection and esteem in which his memory is cherished, at the end of thirty years, is the best testimony to his character. Stricken down in the prime of life and usefulness, his death was a distinct loss to the community, for had he lived he would have done much in recognition of the fortune which had already crowned his efforts.

His associates, who have survived him, and who are to-day in the front rank, say, that had he lived, he would still have been a recognized factor in Chicago's growth and progress. Though enjoying social life, he was domestic in his tastes—a loving parent and devoted husband. The world is better for having known such men as William S. McCormick. In him were all the elements of true manhood.

He married, July 11, 1848, Mary Ann Grigsby, (B., May 18, 1828; D., June 17, 1878), daughter of Captain Reuben Grigsby, a prominent Virginia planter, who resided on his handsome estate, Hickory Hill, in Rockbridge Co., Va., where Mrs. McCormick was born.

McCormick Family.

5. Mary Caroline McCormick.

Daughter of Robert McCormick.

Granddaughter of Robert McCormick.

Great granddaughter of Thomas McCormick (1st).

B., April 18, 1817, in Rockbridge Co., Va.

D., Mar. 18, 1888, at the residence of her son in Highland Park, Ill., and was buried in Graceland Cemetery, Chicago.

She was deeply imbued, from her infancy, with the religious spirit of her ancestry, and early converted to loving trust in Christ and devotion to His service.

She completed her education at Miss Sheffey's Academy, Staunton, Augusta Co., Va.

Shortly after leaving school she assumed the duties and cares of her mother's household affairs, and what these were, only those can know who are familiar with the responsibilities incident to providing, not only for the family, but for a large number of servants, and the management of a house where southern hospitality was dispensed with so open a hand. She was looked on by all as an indispensable member of the family.

Her early life was a preparation for the arduous duties, cares, anxieties and trials, that followed her in after years.

When she became the wife of Rev. James Shields, a minister of the United Presbyterian Church, their home was about a mile from Mexico, Juniata Co., Pa.

How much of her husband's success, in his ministerial labors, and of his delightful relations to all his people, was due to her blended sweetness and strength of Christian character, it would be impossible to measure, although easy for all who knew her to understand.

Fifteen years of union in life's most sacred toils and services, were allotted them, when, in 1862, her husband died while on his way to Minnesota in search of recuperation.

Genealogy.

In April, 1863, she removed with her two children to Chicago, built, and lived in a beautiful house, which was destroyed by the great fire of 1871.

She lost her home and her personal effects, escaping only with the clothing she wore. With her son and daughter, she spent the night on a steamer, which tied up to a pier near the light-house, and the next morning went up to Madison street on a tug; thence to the west division of the city.

She rebuilt her house and occupied it but a short time, after which she removed to Highland Park, and lived with her son, happy in her wide circle of kindred and friends, happy in her children, and thrice happy in her grandchildren.

During the last few years of her life she suffered much from bronchitis. She spent two seasons in the South; later she visited several Northern health resorts, but to no purpose, as the disease grew steadily upon her, and from it, she died.

Her last audible words were truly characteristic of her. In answer to the sentiment expressed by her daughter: "Mother, we will try and follow you," she replied, in whispered words, "Follow Christ."

Her remains were accompanied by her nephews and kindred to their last resting place.

In the spring of 1835 he was ordained pastor of the congregation of Fermanagh and Tuscarora, in Juniata Co., Pa., and continued to preach to the first named church until his death.

In July, 1862, at the solicitation of his brother-in-law, William S. McCormick, he left home for a season of recreation among the streams and lakes of Minnesota, but on reaching Prairie du Chien, he was taken seriously ill, and died of typhoid fever on the 19th of August, 1862.

The subject of this sketch is the only son, who lived beyond infancy, of the Rev. James Shields and Mary Caroline McCormick, his wife. He was born near the village of Mexico, Juniata Co., Pa., on June 1, 1849. His early life was spent in the home of his birth, from whence he attended, for two or three winters, the country district school, and during two winters, together with his sister, he was under the care and teaching of a governess, in the house. His father died, August 19, 1862, and the following spring his mother removed to Chicago. Very soon after his arrival in Chicago, his mother placed him in school at Palmer's Academy, corner of Congress street and Wabash avenue. From January to June, 1864, he attended Prof. Quackenboss' private school, on the North side. In the fall of 1864 he began his course of academical studies at the Chicago University, and was admitted to the Freshman class in 1867. Much against his mother's wishes he decided to enter upon a business career, and, therefore, left the University at the Christmas vacation, in 1867, and after a three months' course at a Commercial College, went into the office of his uncles, in April, 1868. Beginning in the capacity of an office boy he served the firm of C. H. & L. J. McCormick from this time on until November, 1882, (with the exception of about a year and a half, dating from August, 1873, during which time he was engaged in a manufacturing business on his own account). He filled various positions in the office, and at the time of his leaving the service of the Harvesting Machine Company he had charge of the supply department and the printing and advertising.

In February, 1883, he entered into a partnership under the name of Shields & Brown, for the manufacture and sale of a patented article of steam pipe and boiler coverings. Under careful and judicious management the business increased so that, at the end of four years, the house had a branch in New York, and was doing business in all parts of the United States. In the spring of '87, the Shields & Brown Co. was incorporated in New York State. This company, in turn, sold out to the H. W. Johns Mfg. Co., on the 1st of July, 1891, and Mr. Shields became the manager of the western branch, which position he now holds.

On October 17, 1878, Mr. Shields was married to Nellie Manville Culver, daughter of Charles E. Culver, of Chicago, and resided with his mother, at 380 Erie street, until the 1st of May, 1881, when he removed to 303 Huron street, a residence given to his wife by her father. In August, 1886, he went, with his family, to Highland Park, (a beautiful suburban city, twenty-three miles north of Chicago), to spend the summer, and finding the advantages so much superior to those of the city, for the health and comfort of their family, Mr. and Mrs. Shields exchanged their city home for a delightful and commodious residence, with extensive grounds, overlooking Lake Michigan.

Since his residence in Highland Park, Mr. Shields has taken an active interest in everything that pertained to the public welfare, and has taken a prominent place in public affairs. He served the city for two years in the Common Council, during which time he took a leading part on the most important committees, and accomplished much in the way of public and permanent improvements for the city. He also served for three years as a member of the Board of Education, during which time a new and elegant school house was built.

In 1865, Mr. Shields united with the North Presbyterian Church. He has always taken an active interest in Sunday School work, and has filled all positions in the Sunday School, in connection with his own church in the city and in Mission Schools. For several years past he has been Superintendent of the Sabbath School of the Highland Park Presbyterian Church, and also Chairman of the Board of Trustees of that church.

Genealogy.

In the fall of 1891, Mr. Shields and a few of his friends in Highland Park, held a meeting in his library, for the purpose of organizing a family social club in that city. On December 9th, 1893, the Highland Park Club opened its beautiful club house and extensive grounds, to its members, with Mr. Shields as president of the organization for the first two years. Much of the phenomenal success of this delightful addition to the various social phases of Highland Park, is due to the management of the club's first president.

Although Mr. Shields has been numbered among the original members of the Union, the Iroquois and the Wausaukee Clubs, and the Sons of the American Revolution, and was for several years a member of the University Club, all of Chicago, yet he is not very much of a club man, preferring rather the attractions of his own fireside, where, surrounded by his wife and nine children, he thinks there is no club on earth half so attractive; nor is there any hearthstone at which his friends or relatives will find a heartier welcome.

Leander James McCormick was brought up and educated in the Shenandoah Valley, Virginia, where, at the age of twenty-six years, he chose, as the companion of his life, one of its accomplished daughters. His health and physique are attributable to the salubrity of the climate and the out-door life of his early days. Although he removed to Chicago at the age of twenty-nine, his love for his native State continued, and to secure relief from business cares he often turned toward the associations of his youth, and sought recreation amid its mountain scenery and health from its restorative waters. He preserves the same quiet tastes which have led him to prefer the familiar scenes so dear to his youth. He has traveled extensively throughout Great Britain and Ireland, and on the continent of Europe: the effect of this has been to broaden and enlarge his views upon international affairs, as well as upon the political situation of his own country, and to give him a great fund of delightful remembrances of the galleries of art and monuments of historical interest.

The life-work of Leander has been identified with the McCormick Reaper. He inherited the inventive genius of his father, Robert McCormick, and during his life was associated with him in its development, in Virginia. Shortly after his death, in 1846, the three brothers, Cyrus H., William S. and Leander J., permanently established themselves in partnership in the city of Chicago, for the manufacture and introduction of the Reaper into the broad fields of the West, Leander assuming the management of the manufacturing department—a position which he held over thirty years. During, and previous to this time, he made many improvements of vital importance, without which it could not have been a completed machine, nor have become of world-wide fame. After the great fire of 1871, whereby the Reaper Works and other properties were destroyed, business suspended, and thousands of men thrown out of employment, by his decision and energy the works were immediately rebuilt, under his personal supervision and direction, according to his own selection of site and architectural designs. In 1879, the partnership was merged into a corporation, Leander retaining his interest until August, 1889, when he disposed of his entire stock to his nephew, Cyrus H. McCormick, and retired from business.

A firm believer in the great destiny of Chicago, he has become one of the largest individual owners of centrally located business property, and the attention to these buildings occupies his time, and interests him in his later years.

Amid all the calamities, which have befallen Chicago, he, like others, has suffered, especially in the great fire of 1871, when his palatial residence, on the corner of Rush and Ohio streets, was destroyed with all its contents, including pictures, other works of art, and ancestral souvenirs, and his family forced to escape at an early hour of the morning and take refuge in the West part of the city, where they remained, at 515 West Adams street, until April 7, 1875, when they returned to the North side.

In 1874, he presented to the University of Virginia a fully equipped Astronomical Observatory, including the largest refracting telescope in the world, at the time of donation.

His latest work is here submitted: His deep interest in the McCormick genealogy has led him to trace the lineage of his ancestors from the siege of Londonderry, to those, who, before and after the middle of the eighteenth century, established themselves in the United States, to follow the various branches to the present date, and to save the names of many, particularly of the past generation, from oblivion.

Henrietta, wife of Leander J. McCormick, and daughter of John and Elizabeth McNutt Hamilton, was born in Rockbridge Co., May 25, 1822, amid the romantic associations of the beautiful valley of Virginia.

The inspiration of her mountain home with its early opportunities for education and development, physically, intellectually and spiritually, were fitting preparations for the future which lay before her.

She was married at the parental homestead, Locust Hill, Oct. 22, 1845, and three years later, with her husband and infant son, Robert Hall, removed to Chicago, where her time has been employed in attending to family, social and charitable duties, and where she has made numerous charming friends and acquaintances. She has traveled much in the United States and in foreign countries, and has had many opportunities of seeing and enjoying the social life of England. The mission in life of Henrietta Hamilton McCormick has been faithfully and nobly discharged.

A woman, eminent for her great strength of character and devotion to duty in all the relations of life. The mother of a large family, and a queen in that most beautiful of all realms, the Christian home, over which she presided with a rare dignity, grace and gentleness. If we search for the sources and springs of her life—the secret of her strength of character and consistency of conduct—the guide and constraint of her even tempered gentleness and goodness, we find it all in her implicit faith in God. She knew whom she believed—she loved the word of God. It was the spiritual food upon which she daily and hourly fed. She loved the house of God and the assemblages for worship. In no ostentatious way, but with unfailing readiness, she exemplified the grace of Christian charity. Her hand of help was extended with prompt and wise sympathy to the needy and suffering. Her modesty of demeanor and her humbleness of spirit, together with her conscientious recognition of the claims of home, prevented her from taking that prominent part in the enterprises of public charity to which her position would entitle her; but her good deeds were none the less numerous though quietly performed.

She married, May 8, 1845, Hugh Adams, son of James Adams, who was born in Rockbridge County, Va., February 10, 1820, and died in Chicago, Ill., March 10, 1880.

The Adams' were from England, originally, descendants of Duncan Adams, who lived in the reign of King Robert Bruce. They were Presbyterians, and noted for their unswerving principles, both in religion and in politics.

From both father and mother, Hugh Adams inherited those qualities which made him at all times of his life a man highly honored, both in business and social relations, and a very successful merchant.

The early years, after marriage, were spent in Kerr's Creek, Rockbridge County, Va. In 1857 he removed to Chicago, and was the head of the firm, McCormick, Adams & Co. This house became one of the leading concerns in the great grain trade of the West, and was justly regarded as one of the strongest bulwarks of the business.

After the death of Hugh Adams, in 1880, the business descended to Cyrus H. Adams, Hugh L. Adams and Edward S. Adams, under the firm name of Cyrus H. Adams & Co.

Following the faith of his forefathers, Hugh Adams was a member of the Fourth Presbyterian Church of Chicago, in whose work he took a deep interest until his death.

The success of the business of the firm, McCormick, Adams & Co., after the Chicago fire of 1871, was due, largely, to the energy, ability and integrity of Cyrus H. Adams.

For a period of more than twenty years, Cyrus H. Adams was an active and influential member of the Board of Trade of Chicago. The reforms and radical changes made by Mr. Adams, almost

Statement
Giving a Brief Account of the Hall, McChesney and McCormick Families.
Made about the Year 1882,
by
Mrs. Mary Caroline McCormick Shields.

McCormick Family.

In the year 1770, there came to this country, from the North of Ireland, County Armagh, two families, Halls and McChesneys.

Of the McChesneys, there were James, Hugh, Robert, Susan and Martha; of the Halls, Patrick, William and Jane.

They crossed the ocean in a sailing vessel. There were also several cousins of the McChesney family in the party, by the name of Patterson, one of whom, a young lady, died by the way, and was buried at sea.

These, our ancestors and relations, were eleven weeks on the ocean. Soon after landing, they found homes in the counties of Rockbridge and Augusta, State of Virginia.

James McChesney married his cousin, Miss Patterson, before leaving Ireland, and located about two miles west of Brownsburg, Rockbridge Co., Va. His descendants still own the old homestead.

Hugh McChesney married Joanna Hanan, of Fredericksburg, Va., and settled in Brownsburg.

Robert McChesney had married Jane Hall before leaving Ireland, and he bought land and settled about six miles above Middlebrook, in Augusta county. His descendants, until recently, owned this old home of their fathers.

Martha McChesney never married.

Patrick Hall was engaged to be married, before leaving Ireland, to Susan McChesney, and had given her a betrothal ring, inside of which was engraved: "I have obtained whom God ordained." This ring I had, and lost it in the Chicago fire of 1871.

Patrick Hall bought a farm in Augusta county, and was married, in 1773, to Susan McChesney, by the Rev. John Brown, pastor of New Providence Church. My grandfather Hall served in the Revolutionary War, and was also a commissary in the war of 1812-14.

A paper, signed by Major Doak, giving him his commission for services in 1812, was burned in the Chicago fire of '71.

I have often heard my mother speak of conversations she had

with her parents regarding the privations they had to endure, and how they economized during the wars. Everything advanced in price, and all they could spare had to be given to support the army.

All the men were in service, while the women and the servants, cut the wheat with reap-hooks, and sowed flax, and the women spun, wove and made up the cloth worn by the men, boys and servants. They kept sheep, and carded, spun and wove, at home, all the winter apparel. They wore cotton dresses, beautifully colored. I saw a piece of calico, which my grandmother had, which cost one dollar a yard in Revolutionary times, and was a little heavier cloth than we now buy for ten cents per yard.

Our great grandparents were well-to-do; they brought their fortunes from Ireland, in linen, which they sold, and with the proceeds bought land. One of my grandmother's wedding-dresses was a lemon-colored satin, very heavy, with a white brocaded stripe in it.

The first children born to Patrick and Susan Hall, were twins, and when they were eight days old, the Rev. John Brown was sent for to baptize them. These children died in infancy.

The next child born was Patsy, who married her second cousin, Thomas McChesney, and went to live in Washington county, South-western Virginia. She had no children. She was buried in Green Spring Cemetery, six miles South of Abingdon, Washington county, Virginia.

The fourth child, Mary Ann, was born June 24, 1780.

Grandfather Hall had three other children, Robert, William and Joanna.

Robert died, a bachelor, in the winter of 1826. Joanna married a Mr. Brown, and a year after was buried, with her babe, in Old Providence grave-yard.

Uncle William Hall had a great desire to join the army in 1812. His parents and family opposed it, but he was very determined, and they finally yielded. He was under age when he joined the regular army, and went to Norfolk. How long he was there is not known, but, in the fall of 1814, grandfather had news that he was sick, and he took a covered conveyance and brought him home. He died soon after of yellow fever. My grandmother was soon prostrated with the fever. Father and mother went to wait on her; she lived but a few days, dying November 19, 1814. Grandmother's age was sixty-seven; she was two years older than grandfather. He was soon taken with the fever, and died November 23, 1814, aged sixty-five years.

Dr. McChesney, nephew of my grandparents, was the attending physician. A colored man belonging to my grandfather, died soon after; then a man belonging to father, took the fever and died, and it was with difficulty that he could be buried, so great was the fear of the disease. Brother Cyrus, then a boy five years of age, took the fever. Father saw that all who had been treated in the past had died, so he tried a different method, using a hot steam bath in which were bitter herbs and whisky. This treatment was successful, and no more cases occurred.

Grandfather and all the relatives who came over with him from Ireland, were religious people, strict in their attendance on church, in keeping family worship, in asking God's blessing at the table, and these things were not neglected by the women when the men were absent. The children were taught the catechism, and the Bible was the book all read in school. They also committed to memory a great many of the Psalms.

When our grand parents came to this country, they and their friends, connected with New Providence Church, Rockbridge County, Virginia.

At this time, the Psalms of David were used almost exclusively in all the churches. After some years, there came to the church, a minister who introduced Watts' hymns. Grandfather thought that nothing should be sung in the worship of God but the Psalms of

Genealogy.

David, and, as soon as the hymn was given out, he picked up his hat and left the church, and a number of others followed him.

They immediately determined to build a church in which worship should be to their minds, would be most acceptable to God, and prove to the building up and edification of His church. Grandfather proposed to give the ground off one side of his farm, the timber and stone also.

The church was built of limestone, and grandfather Hall was so zealous on the subject, that, in addition to what he had given, he boarded the workmen, part, if not all of the time that the church was in process of building. It is still standing and in good condition, being used for an academy for young ladies, while a short distance from it is a new red brick church, which takes its place and is called the Associate Reformed Church.

All my father's children were baptized in Old Providence Church. The small window, which may be seen at the left end of the church, was placed there by him, and was directly opposite the pew he and his family occupied.

Father's views becoming changed with regard to adhering exclusively to David's Psalms, and not liking the minister then in charge, he and my mother united with New Providence, five miles distant, of which Rev. James Morrison was pastor.

Grandfather Robert McCormick married Martha Sanderson, and lived in Cumberland county, Pennsylvania, until after the birth of five children, George, William, James, Elizabeth and Martha. In the year 1779, he sold his farm and removed to Rockbridge County, Virginia. He was for many years an elder in Old Providence Church; he was well instructed in the Scriptures, and tried to be faithful in following the teachings of God's word, and was strict in his observance of the Sabbath. The Bible was the chief book with those old Scotch Irish Presbyterians, and their other books were mostly religious.

OLD PROVIDENCE CHURCH, 1830, CO. VA. - R

McCormick Family.

Grandfather, on his arrival in Virginia, bought a farm of five hundred acres, which had on it a large log house. In this house, my father, Robert McCormick, Jr., was born, June 8, 1780.

His eldest brother, George McCormick, married Jane Steele, and moved to Henderson county, Kentucky.

Uncle James McCormick married Irene Rodgers, whose family lived near New Providence Church, and they moved to Gallipolis, Ohio.

Uncle William McCormick married Mary Steele, and lived near my father.

Aunt Elizabeth married Hugh Gibson, and moved to Kentucky.

Aunt Martha married Edward Bryant, and soon afterwards died.

Robert McCormick, my father, was married, February 11, 1808, to Mary Ann Hall, who was very near his own age, and also the same height, five feet, eight inches.

Grandfather continued to live with them, on the old homestead, until his decease, October 12, 1818, when eighty-one years of age. The property then became my father's, on condition of his paying a certain sum to the other heirs. In this old house there were born to Robert McCormick and Mary, his wife, eight children, of whom I am the fifth.

With good health, both full of energy and ambition, my parents started in their married life. The first misfortune that came to them, was a few years after marriage, the burning of a large barn, (which had been finished just in time to store away the year's crop), with all the wheat and other grains and hay needed for their stock; two horses were also burned in it. Shortly after this, in 1822, father built a brick house on his farm, to which he gave the name of Walnut Grove. I was, at that time, a child between five and six years of age, but though so young I can well remember how happy my mother was in making things for and furnishing her new house. She was a devoted, self-sacrificing mother, and my father a man of unswerving integrity of character; this was his reputation wherever he was known.

After the improvement of Walnut Grove, father bought a farm about a mile and a half east of his home-place, on which was a saw-mill, where he spent much of his time experimenting in its working.

His next investment was the purchase of another farm about nine miles south of Walnut Grove, on which there was also a saw-mill, and this farm father prized, as well as the other, on account of the South River running through it; this would enable the owner to have any kind of manufacturing establishment--the motive power abundant and inexpensive.

Father and mother were social and hospitable in their disposition, and their house was a place where friends, relatives and strangers were ever welcome.

Our parents had their losses and disappointments in various ways, but until June, 1826, father, mother and children, were all spared to be happy together. Dysentery prevailed in the neighborhood in the spring of 1826, of which, several children had died. Brother Robert was taken with this much dreaded malady, and lingered in great suffering about two weeks. Then sister Susan was taken ill with the same disease, Thursday morning, June 25; the following Sabbath, June 28, at 4 p. m., Susan died. She was buried, Monday, June 29, at noon, and that evening, about eight o'clock, brother Robert died. The death of these children was the greatest sorrow that had ever come to my parents. Robert Hall was their second child, and was about sixteen years of age. Sister Susan was the third child, and at her death, nearly thirteen years old. Beautiful, as all who knew her testified, and bright and intelligent beyond her years.

In the winter of 1845-1846, father took a severe cold, caused by hurrying out of bed in the night, half dressed, to assist in putting out a fire which had started in one of his shops. In March, he again contracted a severe chill, but continued to attend to business, his habits of industry being such that, although mother often begged him to take life more easily and to rest, he still kept up his interest in the works. Early in May, however, he gave up all further attention to business, and from that time was under the care of his physicians. We secured the best medical skill that could be had, but his stomach, liver and lungs, were all so involved, that all his devoted wife and children could do was of no avail, and after great suffering, he died on July 4, 1846, about nine o'clock in the morning, aged sixty-six years and twenty-six days.

His funeral sermon was preached by Rev. James Morrison, our pastor. His text was, "The righteous hath hope in his death." A little notice in our country paper read: "Died in the lower end of Rockbridge county, at 9 A. M., the 4th of July, Robert McCormick, a gentleman of great worth and respectability, and an honest man."

Father was a humble-minded Christian—a modest and rather diffident man. He had much in his disposition and character worthy of all praise and imitation, yet he neither sought nor desired the praise of the world.

In a conversation my mother had with Mr. Morrison, after father's death, our pastor said father was a man of remarkable mind, and that from him he had gotten many beautiful and original thoughts on the Bible.

In a letter from cousin William S. McCormick, of Patterson, Wayne County, Missouri, he said father was "the greatest natural genius he ever saw—the greatest natural mechanic—that he never failed to accomplish anything he undertook."

Memoranda
Concerning New Providence Church,
Compiled from the Written Statement of
Mrs. Mary Caroline McCormick Shields, and “Brief Biographical Accounts of many Members of the Houston Family.”
by
Rev. Samuel Rutherford Houston, D. D.

McCormick Family.

New Providence Church, near Brownsburg, Rockbridge County, Virginia, was organized in 1746.

Quoting from a letter of Samuel Houston, written about 1820, to Rev. James Morrison, then pastor of the church, the former speaks of his grandfather, John Houston, one of the first elders, and says :

“Nothing could be done in the way of building until the question of location should be settled. Several ineffectual meetings were held ; many became alarmed lest it should end like the Tower of Babel. Another meeting was called, which my grandfather attended, and he employed such conciliatory arguments as brought the stiff to yield, and to agree to the site, where the church now stands. After the agreement, it was proposed to give the church a name. My aged ancestor said : ‘Neighbors, we have heretofore had unpleasant and fruitless meetings, but to-day we have had an agreeable and successful one. We are indebted to Divine Providence for it. Let us call the church, Providence.’ To this all assented.”

The church was, shortly after, erected, and in 1753, its first pastor, Rev. John Brown, was called.

“He continued his labors there for more than forty years ; then removed to Kentucky. When New Providence Church was under his pastoral care, its territory embraced Rockbridge and Augusta counties.

Rev. Samuel Brown succeeded Rev. John Brown. Though they bore the same surname, they were not related. Rev. Samuel Brown died October 13, 1818.

Rev. James Morrison married Frances, daughter of Rev. Samuel Brown, and was called to succeed the latter. He continued to be pastor until his health failed, and was over New Providence Church nearly forty years, so that three pastors only occupied the pulpit for over one hundred years.”

“ Her mother died, in 1816, leaving upon her the care of seven children, her brothers and sisters, all younger than herself, and she but fourteen years of age. Her tender and excellent care of them won for her the esteem of all who knew her. She was for more than half a century a member of the Green Spring Presbyterian Church. Her uniform cheerfulness and kindness made her society attractive to all, and but few Christian women have lived to a better purpose for the honor of Christ and the benefit of her friends, and none were more uniformly beloved by a large circle of relatives and other friends.”

Great grandson of James McChesney.

B., near Brownsburg, Rockbridge Co., Va., Aug. 31, 1829.

He received his literary education under Rev. James Morrison, pastor of New Providence Church, and at Washington College, Lexington, Virginia.

Shortly after his graduation he located at Warm Springs, Bath County, Virginia, and on April 11, 1854, was united in marriage to Sallie Gatewood Moffett, of Pocahontas County, Virginia.

He was captain of the Bath Company, 11th Virginia Cavalry, Robinson's Brigade, C. S. A. At the end of one year, he resigned his commission to resume the practice of his profession among a devoted people and friends. In 1865, he returned with his family to Rockbridge County, whence he removed, in 1871, to Charleston, West Virginia, chartering a stage to carry his wife and nine children across the mountains. Here he had a large practice, standing in the front rank of his profession until his death, May 19, 1877, while on a visit to his eldest daughter, Mrs. Augustus Houston Hamilton, of Augusta County, Virginia.

He was a man of the purest heart, of undaunted courage, the strictest integrity, and rare mental gifts, and in his noble character left a priceless legacy to his children.

Robert McChesney was six feet two inches in height, of a well knit frame, and capable of great endurance.

He had a good business education and qualifications. He entered the Confederate army on the first call for troops, as First Lieutenant of cavalry, and served under General Garnet in West Virginia, taking an active part in the campaign until June 29, 1861, when he fell in a skirmish, near Rowlesburg, West Virginia. He was the first man killed in the war from Rockbridge County, Virginia, and died lamented and admired by his friends and honored by his foes, as the following letter, written by Colonel Irvine, who had command of the troops by whom he was killed, will attest.

The letter also shows Colonel Irvine to have been a brave man, for none but a brave man could deal so fairly and honorably with an enemy who had fallen in battle. The letter reads thus :

HEADQUARTERS 16TH REG'T OHIO VOLS., }
OAKLAND, MD., July 21, 1861. }

To the Friends of Lieut. Robert McChesney, 1st Lieut. Virginia Cavalry:

No opportunity having occurred, giving me a reasonable hope of reaching you before this time, is my excuse for not writing you sooner. You have no doubt learned long before this of the time and manner of Lieut. McChesney's death. I will, therefore, not speaking further of it, than to say that he bore himself gallantly, and my sympathies were greatly enlisted for him, when he fell. What should have been our common country lost a brave and gallant man.

JAMES IRVINE,

b. John McChesney.

Son of Robert McChesney.

Dr. John McChesney was born at Greenwood, the McChesney homestead, in Augusta County, Virginia, on Sept. 3, 1785.

His ancestors were of the vigorous, earnest, truth-loving and God-fearing people, the Scotch-Irish, who came from the North of Ireland, and who formed part of the first settlers of the upper valley of Virginia.

Dr. McChesney, after spending a long and useful life, the greater part in the home of his youth, practicing medicine in a large part of three counties, near the juncture of which was his home, fell asleep, May 19, 1877, in the ninety-second year of his age.

His early life antedates railroads, and, largely, stage coaches also, and in his day it was no light matter to go far from home, and to secure an education, such as a profession requires. Fortunately, for him, there was a school of high grade not many miles from his father's home, in Lexington, Virginia, "Washington College," then in its infancy, now "Washington and Lee University." Here he received his classical training. After this, he went to North Carolina, taught school, and began the study of medicine. Returning home, he continued his studies, preparatory for lectures, in the office of Dr. Boise, in Staunton, Virginia; then entered the University of Pennsylvania, at Philadelphia, where he graduated in the spring of 1816. His return home from the University, when so few stage routes were to be had, was full of incident, showing the force of his character. Before locating, he traveled, on horseback, through several of the southern and southwestern States, in search of a proper place, and concluded to locate in North Carolina.

Returning home to make his final arrangements, a providential circumstance located him for life in the home of his birth. A certain epidemic was prevailing in the neighborhood of his home at the time ; his medical skill was sought, and he was eminently successful in a number of cases, and in consequence, many of the people and his friends besought him to change his plans and locate in their midst, which he did, and made Greenwood, his father's house, his home.

On March 21, 1818, he married Jane F. T. Steel, of Rockbridge County, whose family was among the prominent citizens of that county.

He had a large family of nine children, and became known, far and wide, as a skilful physician and a genial, noble-hearted man. He was not only skilful in his profession, he was charitable in his life, modest and unassuming in his manners, studiously temperate in his habits, and was in every sense a man of honor and integrity. He was not capable of doing a known wrong or mean act, and would at all times have shrunk from doing anything that would have brought disgrace upon the name of McChesney, which he prized so highly.

Dr. McChesney's parents were members of the Old Providence Church in Rockbridge County, Va. He, in 1833, united with the New Providence Church, of which his wife was a member, and remained a consistent member to the time of his death. Yet he had always a warm side for Old Providence, and expressed it. And there now, in its venerable graveyard, rest his ashes, with those of his beloved wife and some of his children, waiting the resurrection of the last day.

Rev. Dr. J. O. Miller was born in Woodstock, Va., Dec. 30, 1822. His parents were of German and Huguenot origin, who came to this country before the Revolution. Their religious faith was that of the Reformed Church of Germany, in distinction from the Lutheran, and the Reformed Church of France. Whilst Dr. Miller was yet very young, his father's family removed to Reading, Pa. Here he spent his youth. He thought first of studying medicine, but before this was carried out his mind was directed to the Christian ministry. He entered the Sophomore class in Marshall College, Mercersburg, Pa., in 1845; graduated as valedictorian of his class in 1848; entered the Theological Seminary at the same place, and graduated in 1850. He was ordained to the ministry Oct. 13, 1850, by the Synod of the Reformed Church, convened at Martinsburg, Va. He was located at Winchester, Va., the same year, where he remained two years; was then called to York, Pa., where he has been Pastor of Trinity First Reformed Church for forty-two years, which church has greatly prospered under his ministry.

In 1853, the title of A. M. was conferred upon him by his Alma Mater, and in 1870 the Degree of Doctor of Divinity by Franklin and Marshall College, at Lancaster, Pa., of which institution he has been a trustee and chairman of its Committee of Instruction for more than a quarter of a century. He is now, and has been for twenty-five years, President of the Board of the Reformed Church in the United States.

1. Alexander Sanderson.

Emigrated from Scotland to America, and settled in Middleton Township, Cumberland County, Pa.

Previous to 1750, as is shown by the tax-lists, he was an elder in the Presbyterian Church at Dillsburg, York County, which church is known as "Old Monaughan," because of its antiquity, having been organized previous to 1745.

His will is dated Feb. 20, 1760, proven Dec. 11, 1760, and is on file at Carlisle, Pa. In it he appointed Patrick Watson, his brother-in-law, as guardian of his three younger children, James, Margaret and John, who were minors at the time of his death. He also directed that, should his son William die in his minority, the land bequeathed to him in Sherman's Valley should pass to his (William's) brother Alexander. He also appointed his son, George Sanderson, and John Stewart, executors, and these duly administered his will.

He married (possibly as a second wife) Jean Watson, who survived him, and was a legatee.

A deed, dated Nov. 13, 1824, transfers from James Sanderson to Charles Elliott, in trust for the English Presbyterian Church, of Saville Township, Perry County, Pa., sixty-eight perches of land.

James Sanderson's will, dated Dec. 29, 1824, provided that a certain tract of land, granted to him by patent, Nov. 12, 1812, should not be sold until the death of his wife Jane, which occurred previous to April 6, 1832.
