PREFACE.

†† It was said long ago "of making many books there is no † end." The saying has been so fully verified that one who ventures to add a book to those already in the world must needs give an excuse for so rash a deed.

About six years ago, while visiting my aunt, one of my cousins suggested that we write a record of our family while his mother was still with us. I agreed, and the work grew on our hands. We were compelled to seek information from many different sources. In almost every instance our letters met with such a kind response that we have tried to pursue the work to a close. Of course, there is much that is imperfect. The family is so large and so widely scattered that in some cases we have given them up altogether. Still, we hope to preserve such a record as will keep alive the memory of worthy ancestors in the hearts of their descendants.

INTRODUCTION.

§ HIS family, whose genealogy we wish to record, is of Swiss origin and have the characteristics which have distinguished that people : honesty, steadiness and bravery, together with a frankness and independence which belong to a people bred under a republican form of government. It has been said of the Swiss that "such is their integrity that in some parts of the country neither attorney nor notary is to be found, and doors are without locks because there are no thieves."

As far as our information serves the Newcomers are an industrious, frugal people, hospitable and generous.

The older members were Mennonites, and as a rule their descendants have adhered to the simplest forms of religion, many of them now belonging to the Dunkard organization, others to the Christians or Disciples of Christ.

Wolfgang Newcomer came to America from Switzerland in 1749, and landed with his parents in Philadelphia, where he worked at his trade of a carpenter.

He married Elizabeth Weller and had eight children ; three sons and five daughters. He moved to Lancaster county, Pennsylvania, and turned his attention to agriculture. Of the daughters I have no record. The sons Henry, Christian and Peter settled in Washington county, Maryland, where descendants of those three brothers are still to be found and continue to hold the respect and esteem of those among whom they live. Many of them are farmers and millers, but in so large a family all branches of labor are represented. Many have moved to the west and are men of prominence in the communities where they live.

FIRST GENERATION.

—: o :—

HENRY NEWCOMER married Barbara Garver and had children as follows:

Samuel,	Peter,	John—d,*	Barbara,
Henry,	Joel,	Joshua,—d	Sallie,
Christian,	Daniel,	Bettie,	Mary,
		Nancy.

CHRISTIAN NEWCOMER was a bishop of the United Brethren church, and spent his life in earnest christian work. It was from a diary of his that I learned the origin of this family. He married Elizabeth Baer and had four children:

Andrew,	Jacob,
David,	Elizabeth.

PETER N. married twice, his second wife being Miss Houser; 12 children:

B. F. NEWCOMER, one of the most prominent business men of Baltimore, was born in Washington county, Md., in 1827. At the early age of sixteen he was sent to Baltimore to represent his father in the house of Newcomer & Stonebraker, wholesale dealers in flour and grain. Two years later he purchased his father's entire interest, having at that period sole charge of the correspondence and financial department of the house. While laying the foundation of a great business house, he was not indifferent to the calls of benevolence and at the age of twenty-five he became one of the incorporators of the Maryland Institution for the Instruction of the Blind. This institution has done a noble work and is indebted to Mr. Newcomer for much of its past success and present prosperity. He was also one of the original promoters of the Corn and Flour Exchange. In association with Mr. Walters, he served as one of the finance commissioners of the city of Baltimore from '67 to '69, and discharged the duties of the position with signal judgment and ability. After the close of the war he acquired large interests in various railroads in North and South Carolina, and assisted with capital and energy in the development of the railway system which has opened up a new era of prosperity in the South. In 1868, Mr. Newcomer was elected president of the Safe Deposit and Trust Co., of Baltimore. This company has supplied a real need in Baltimore and under the able management of Mr. Newcomer is daily growing in public appreciation. With all his business capacity and talent, he possesses the rare virtue of modesty, and of all the positions he has been called upon to fill not one was ever sought by him. He has ever retained a warm affection for his native county and is constantly giving tangible proof of his interest, most notably of late, by his aid to her Orphans' Home at Hagerstown. He has frequently declared that whatever success he has achieved in life can be attributed to a good mother and a good wife in both of whom he has been peculiarly blessed.—Adapted from Scharf's History of Western Maryland.
