THE loss of Family Bibles and Records, the death of all the members of the preceding generation known to the writer and the dispersion of the different branches of the family in seeking new homes prior to this century, combine to leave only as a tradition much of the early history of our family.

The within narrative has been prepared for the benefit of the generation that follows us, and in the hope that it may lead to the production of much of the detail of the family history, the existence of which is now not known to the

SIXTH GENERATION.

September, 1890.

THE above referred to sketch was privately distributed, and brought to the writer some additional information, the most important being a genealogical record of Andrew Patterson and his descendants, prepared many years since by Mr. D. Williams Patterson, of Newark Valley, New York, who, though not a descendant of Andrew, had with great care, collected and arranged his record, of which the writer of this paper has availed himself in its preparation. He regrets that it is still so incomplete, because of the many missing details of family succession, particularly since the Fifth Generation, with which, therefore, this paper closes.

April, 1892.

THE impression left upon the mind of the student of the history of the period of Andrew Patterson's life in Scotland, would appear to be, that he and very many with him, known sometimes as "Whigs," and generally as "Covenanters," were actuated in their conduct as much by their patriotism as Scotchmen, a race never conquered, as by their aversion to Episcopacy in their religious views, and while resisting the efforts to force upon them religious forms and practices objectionable to them, they also realized that their national independence was at issue, and fought accordingly. There are reasons for believing that all of his name, in his vicinity, were known as "Covenanters" and Nationalists. Their monuments still exist in that vicinity, the best known one being in the churchyard in the old town of Strathaven, near Hamilton, reading:

"Here Lyes The Corpses Of William Paterson And John Barrie Who Was Shot To Death For Their Adhering To The Word Of God And Our Couenants Anno 1685.

"Here lys tuo martyrs seuerally, who fell by Captains Inglels and by bloody Bell. Posterity shall knou theyre shot to death as sacrifices un to popish wrath."

On its pedestal:

"Renewed by the Reformers of Avondale at the passing of the Reform Bill Anno Domini 1832."

The above named William Paterson was the son of Robert, who was killed in the fight at Airdsmoss, July 22, 1680.

"He, with thirteen others, had been gathered together for religious exercises at a place called Charon-lieugh, upon the Lord's day. Ten of them escaped, but Paterson and the other three were taken. The three took the Abjuration Oath, which Paterson refused, and the soldiers carried him away to Strathaven Castle, where, in the afternoon of the same Sabbath, without trial, he was shot by a Captain Bell."

The date of this occurrence would appear to have been in April, 1685.

ANDREW PATTERSON, born 1659, a native and resident of Hamilton, a Borough of Lanarkshire, Scotland, came to America in December, 1685, and died at Stratford, Connecticut, in 1746.

The story of his expatriation is derived from historical sources, which give no clue to his previous life or surroundings, but it is certain that he was conspicuous as a "Covenanter" and probable that he was in the fight at Bothwell Bridge in 1679. The record is distinct, in that, he suffered with those Scotch Presbyterians who refused to acknowledge the Supremacy of the King in matters of religion, to abjure their religious faith, or to waver in their loyalty to "Christ's Crown and The Covenant,"* and was among those who, escaping the gallows or mutilation,† were banished to the American plantations in the brief reign of King James the Second, and shortly after his accession. It is very probable that he was among those who underwent the horrors of Dunnotter Castle, though the available records first refer to him by name, as a prisoner confined in the Tolbooth at Leith, August 17, 1685.

Intimately connected with the story of his expatriation and final settlement in New England, is Mr. George Scot, Laird of Pitlochrie, who, frequently heavily fined and imprisoned for his attendance at the religious services of his faith, from his last confinement in the Bass petitioned for his release, offering in that event, to expatriate himself. This petition was acted upon April 1, 1684, and Scot was once more at liberty.

†"Those thus marked were among a large number who, on July 31st, were sentenced to have their left ears cut off by the common executioner on the ensuing 4th of August."

“This liberty was employed by him in preparing the Model of the Government of East New Jersey, in America, to which we are indebted for a large portion of the information which has come down to us, respecting the condition of East Jersey at that time, the character of the settlers, and the circumstances which attended their emigration from Scotland. His position in society, his connection with many of the first families of the kingdom, and the persecutions to which he had been subjected, all tended to secure for his work much more consideration from his countrymen than would have been the case had the author been less distinguished, and when adding example to precept, he announced his intention of embarking with his family for the newly discovered asylum for the oppressed, it is not surprising that many should have associated themselves with him in the undertaking.”

The approbation of those in authority was obtained and his arrangements were made, based upon the following permission:

By the Right Honorable Earl of Perth, Lord High Chancellor of Scotland, etc.:

These are permitting and allowing Mr. George Scot, of Pitlochie, with his lady, children and family, and such other persons as he shall ingage, to pass from this Kingdom, either by sea or land, to any of his Majesties Foreign plantations, providing such persons to be transported by him be not declared Traitors, Rebels, Fugitives, and that without any let, impediment or molestation from any person whatever, they always behaving themselves peaceably and according to law. Given at Edinburgh, the first of January, 1685. For all magistrates, officers and souldiers within the Kingdom of Scotland, whom these do or may concern.

PERTH, CANCELL.

Patterson was not included in this permission to Scot, and this much space is given to Scot's history, because of the insight it gives of the time and its men, and because of his direct connection with and bearing upon the future of Patterson.

Scot evidently desired to found a colony larger in numbers than were purely emigrants, and February 11, 1685, the Council authorized Scot, by warrant, to transport to the plantations one hundred of the prisoners confined at Glasgow, Edinburgh and Stirling, "if they were willing to go." Of these it would appear that he engaged fifty. August 7th he asked the Council to transfer to him a large number of prisoners who had been banished to Jamaica, but only twelve were granted him. August 17th, 21st and 25th, one hundred and five persons who had refused the oath of allegiance to the king, or had been previously banished and were then in the Tolbooth of Leith, were ordered to be delivered to Scot, to be transported to East Jersey, on his giving security to land them there, as, by a certificate from the governor or deputy governor, might be made to appear, prior to September, 1686, the penalty to be five hundred merks in case of failure in any instance. Patterson was included in those banished by the decree of the Privy Council of August 17, 1685, the text of which is as follows:

Forasmuch as the persons underwritten, viz: * * *

Andrew Paterson * * * at present prisoners in the Tolbooth at Leith, being convened before the Lords of His Majesty's Privy Council, at the instance of His Majesty's advocate, for several crimes and irregularities—refusing the Oath of Allegiance, or to own the King's authority, or to take the Oath of Abjuration, in manner at length libelled, and all the said persons being men, have judicially, in the presence of the Council, refused to take or sign the Oath of Allegiance, and the women above said having altogether refused to own His Majesty's authority, or to take the Oath of Abjuration, the Lords of His Majesty's Privy Council have banished, and do hereby banish, the hail forenamed persons, men and women, conform to the Act of Parliament,* to His Majesty's plantations abroad, and discharge them ever to return to his kingdom hereafter without the King's or Council's special license, under the pain of death, to be inflicted upon them without mercy. And further ordain the haill forenamed persons, as also the persons underwritten, formerly sentenced to the plantations and now prisoners at the Tolbooth at Leith, viz: * * to be delivered to Mr. George Scot, of Pitlochie, and by him transported to His Majesty's plantations in East New Jersey, in the ship lying in the Road of Leith, now bounding thither."

The vessel referred to was the Henry and Francis, of Newcastle, "a ship of three hundred and fifty tun and twenty great guns, Richard Hutton, master," chartered by Scot in May, but the vessel did not leave the harbor of Leith until September 5th. In the trepidation of the authorities over the rumored expedition of Argyle from Holland, they had removed, on the 18th of May, 1685, all the prisoners held for their religious views, to the Castle of Dunnottar, on the N. E. coast of Scotland. The story of the sufferings on the march, of that body of men and women, about 200 in number, and of the horrors of their imprisonment in the castle dungeons, has been briefly told by Scott in his introduction to “Old Mortality,” and in his “Tales of a Grandfather,” and is fully narrated in “The Martyr Graves of Scotland.” Those surviving, who resolutely refused to take the oath of allegiance with the acknowledgement of the King’s supremacy in ecclesiastical matters, were marched back in August to Leith.

WODROW tells the story from thence onward, and from it is selected the material features relating to the voyage and landing, as follows:

WODROW’S HISTORY, VOL. 2, PP. 565–567.

SECT. XII. “Having in the former section given the history of the sufferings of these good people who were taken to Dunnottar this summer, I am now to follow a good many of them to America.

Argyle's invasion being now over, and no more fears from that Airt, the Councils began to weary of the prisoners at Dunnotter, and brought them back to Leith, as we have seen, where another essay was made to bring them to comply with the impositions now put on people in their circumstances, and upon their refusal, they resolved to send good numbers of them to the plantations, and so rid themselves of any more trouble about them. Accordingly, after nearly three month's severe treatment at Dunnotter, they came to Leith.

“The Council were pleased to come down to Leith, and sit in the Tolbooth there, and spent some time in the Re-examination of the prisoners. It was but very few complied with their impositions, and they were dismissed. Others, who were very weakly and had some friends to intercede, got off upon a Bond of Compearance when called, as Mr. William McMillan, who gave bond as above, under the penalty of five thousand Merks. The most part of them refusing the oaths, and to satisfy in other particulars, were perpetually banished to America, and many of them gifted to the Laird of Pitlochy, to be carried thither.

“Several of their testimonies and letters they wrote to their friends toward the end of August, are before me, and particularly an original letter from about twenty-eight of them, dated Leith Road, August 28, 1685, directed to their friends, too long to be here insert. In short they signify, ‘That now being to leave their own native and covenanted land by an unjust sentence of banishment, for owning truth, and holding by duty, and studying to keep their covenant engagements and baptismal vows, whereby they stand obliged to resist and testify against all that is contrary to the word of God and their covenants, and that their sentence of banishment ran chiefly because they refused the oath of allegiance, which in conscience they would not take, because in so doing they thought they utterly declined the Lord Jesus Christ from having any power in his own house, and practically would, by taking it, say he was not king and head of his church, and over their consciences, and on the contrary, this was to take and put in his room a man whose breath is in his nostrils; yea, a man that is a sworn enemy to religion, an avowed papist whom by our covenants we are bound to withstand and disown, and that agreeably to the Scripture, Deut. xvii, 14, 15.' They go on to leave their testimony against the evils of the times, and for the reading of the gospel in the fields and homes, and sign as follows:

* * * Andrew Paterson, * * *

- “The prisoners lay some time in the Road of Leith before all was ready, and sailed the 5th of September. Informations before me bear that Pitlochy tampered with some of them, particularly James Forsyth, to get money before they sailed, offering for five pounds sterling, paid now, to let him at liberty as soon as they came to land. But James answered he would give no Money to carry him out of his native Land, adding, he had done nothing worthy of Banishment.
- “After they had turned the Land End, the Fever began to rage in the ship, especially among such who had been in the great Vault of Dunnotter. Not a few of them were sick when they came aboard, and no wonder, considering the Barbarous Treatment they had met with.
- “In a Month's Time the Fever turned malignant, and few or none in the ship escaped it, in so much that it was usual to cast over Board Three or Four dead bodies in one Day. Most of the Ship's crew except the Captain and Boatswain, died. Pitlochie, who had freighted the ship, with his excellent Lady, died likewise, and so enjoyed nothing of the Produce of near a hundred Prisoners gifted him by the Council, and near seventy persons died at sea.
- “Many were the Disasters of this Voyage. The ship was at the utmost Hazard by the breaking up of a Leak of two several Times. They had several Calms and some pretty severe storms.
- “Very much for the Advantage of the passengers and Prisoners, the Wind turned straight for New-jersey and they were forced to sail with it. There they arrived about the middle of December, after they had been about Fifteen Weeks at Sea. At their landing many of them were sick; and Mr. Frazer observes that a worthy Gentleman from the West of Scotland Died among their Hands as they were carrying him ashore. The same Person observes, that partly of such who voluntarily offered themselves to go abroad from the Kingdom of Scotland, and partly of such who were persecuted by Banishment, there were upwards of 60 died at Sea whose Blood (adds he) will be found in the Skirts of Enemies, as really as if they had died at the Cross and Grass-market of Edinburgh.

- “ Before the Prisoners came ashore, it was once intended by Mr. Johnstoun, to whom Pitlochie had made them over, to stop their getting out of the Ship, till they should all of them, under their Hand, sign a voluntary Declaration, as it was called, that they offered Four Years’ Service at that Place. But this they would not yield unto; yea, a considerable number of them joyned in a Protestation against their Banishment, with a large narrative of the Hardships they endured during their Voyage, and formerly, for Conscience sake.
- “ A little way up the Country there was a Town where there was a Minister settled, and the Inhabitants there were very kind to them. When they had Information of the Prisoners’ Circumstances, they invited all who were able to travel, to come and live with them, and sent Horses for such as were not, and entertained them that Winter freely, and with much Kindness.
- “ In the following Spring Mr. Johnstoun, upon his Father-in-Law’s Gift of the Prisoners, pursued them, and got them all cited before the Court of that Province. After hearing both Sides, the Governor called a Jury to sit and cognosce upon the Affair. They found that the Pannels had not of their own accord come to that Ship, nor bargained with Pitlochie for Money or Service, and therefore according to the Laws of the Country, they were assoiled, upon which most of the Prisoners returned to New-england, where they were kindly entertained, and imployed according to their different Stations and Capacities.

“A good many of the Passengers and Prisoners died in the Plantations, the rest returned to their native Country at the happy Revolution.” (1688–89.)

THUS, on the 18th of December, 1685 (according to the diary of his fellow passenger, Robert McEwen), Andrew Patterson, at 26 years of age, landed at Perth Amboy. They were received coldly by the loyalist residents of that place, and for a short time enjoyed the hospitality of the people of the town of (probably) Woodbridge. Patterson and McEwen, having heard in Scotland of the greater degree of religious freedom enjoyed in Connecticut, proceeded there on foot, and on the 18th of July, 1686, arrived at and made their future home in "ye old Town of Stratford."

Nov. 20, 1691, he bought of Richard Blackleach sixteen acres of land on "the west side of Stonibrook Hill," and from that time until 1740 his name often occurs in the Stratford records in the purchase or sale of land.

In the Town records he, as Sergt. Andrew Patterson, is recorded as School Committeeman in 1717. He and his sons William and John were Town "proprietors," and drew their proportion of undivided land, November, 1738. February 19, 1690, at 31 years of age, he married Elizabeth Peet, of Stratford (b. Feb. 19, 1669), a granddaughter of John Peet, who came from Derby in England in 1635. He died at Stratford, and, with a granddaughter and grandson, lies in the old Congregational Burying Place, the inscription on his memorial stone reading:

"Here lies ye body of
Mr. Andrew Patterson, who departed this Life, December ye 2d, Anno Domni 1746. Aged 87 years."

After his death his wife accompanied her son John to his new home in Cornwall, Connecticut, where she died in the 96th year of her age. (1765.)

Dexter's "Yale Annals" (1885) makes record of John as follows:

"John Patterson was the seventh and youngest child of Andrew Patterson, one of a shipload of Scotch emigrants who had refused to take the oath of allegiance and were consequently banished from their homes and arrived at Perth Amboy, New Jersey, in December, 1685; thence, in the following summer, he removed to Stratford, Connecticut, where he married Elizabeth Peet, in 1691, and where his son was born, June 24, 1711. At the age of nineteen, or two years after graduation, he married Mary, daughter of Captain Josiah and Mary Curtiss, of Stratford, two years his junior.* In 1746 he was enrolled as

*The Curtiss family record makes her of the same age as her husband, as does the date of her death and age there given,

Lieutenant in the expedition proposed against the French. He resided in Stratford until about 1753, when he removed to Cornwall, Litchfield county, and thence, after 1760, to Westminster, on the west bank of the Connecticut River, in what is now Windham County, Vermont. He finally settled, shortly before the outbreak of the Revolution, in Piermont, a new town some sixty miles further north, on the New Hampshire side of the river. Here his wife died, July 18, 1789, in her 78th year, and here he himself died Jan. 20, 1806, in his 95th year, having been for six years the oldest graduate. He retained in a remarkable degree all his faculties to the day of his death. He was active and regular in his habits, very fond of gardening, and had charge of a large garden the year before his death. He had ten children born in Stratford."

The land records of Litchfield and Cornwall show that John was of Stratford until Sept. 26, 1753; of Litchfield, June 13, 1754, and May 20, 1755, and of Cornwall, July 25, 1755. He lived at Cornwall Centre, was Town Clerk and Justice, and his residence was where, in 1860, Mr. George Wheaton was living. He removed about 1760 to Westminster (now in Vermont). From there, Jan. 27, 1771, he, with his sons Isaac and Benjamin, were petitioners to the King, that he would declare the New Hampshire grants not to belong to New York.

Dec. 17, 1772, he from there petitions Gov. Tryon, of New York, that the people of Cumberland county might elect a representative to the General Assembly. With two of his sons he was at Crown Point and took part in the French war.

About 1773 he removed to Piermont (settled in 1768), New Hampshire. In the Minutes of the Colonial Council of Connecticut it is recorded in May, 1775:

"John Patterson, Esquire, of Piermont, of the Province of New Hampshire, Agent of said Town, preferred a petition in favor of said Piermont, stating its exposed situation to Quebec at that alarming period, and expecting an attack by the French and Indians from Canada; that said Town had voted to supply themselves with arms and ammunition, of which they were nearly destitute, and being without money in the infant state of the Town, prayed the Colony of Connecticut to sell them fifty pounds of powder, offering their note with security, to be paid in May, 1776, with interest, and signed by John Patterson, Agent.

“A resolution was passed directing the powder to be delivered, and to take said Patterson’s note for the same, payable the 1st day of May, 1776, with interest.”

His great-grandson, Ashbel Patterson, of Ithaca, New York, said of him: “In person, he was rather below the middle size of men, had a finely shaped head, blue eyes, an intelligent and agreeable countenance, and a very retentive memory. He possessed a great fund of anecdote relating to his college life, the history of Stratford, and the Indian, French and Revolutionary wars. These were the never-failing themes of winter evening entertainments.”

His grandson, Isaac Patterson, of Bath, N. H., who lived in the house with him until he was fourteen years of age, said of him: “He never studied any profession. He was reputed a good scholar and retained his knowledge of the Latin till the close of his life. He retained his powers, mental and physical, in a remarkable degree, until within a few days of his death. His habits were regular and active for his years, and he had a great memory.”

Mary his wife, died at Piermont, July 18, 1789, aged 78. He died at Piermont, Jan. 20, 1806, aged 95.

The Connecticut Journal of Feb. 6, 1806, said of him:

“Died, at Piermont, N. H., on the 20th ult., John Patterson, Esq., æt. 94, who remarkably retained his mental and bodily faculties till the day of his death. If correct habits and a perseverance in all the Christian virtues are of any consequence to morals, he has left an example to posterity truly worthy of imitation. He graduated at Yale College in the year 1728."

RECORD OF MILITARY SERVICE

DURING WAR OF THE REVOLUTION, OBTAINED FROM OFFICIAL RECORDS SINCE THE PRECEDING FAMILY RECORDS WERE PUT IN TYPE.

ABRAHAM PATTERSON, page 16,

Was a private in Col. Canfield's Regiment of Connecticut Militia, in service at West Point, N. Y., in 1781.

SAMUEL PATTERSON, page 17,

Was Lieutenant in Captain Olmsted's Company, Col. Beebe's Regiment, Connecticut Troops.

EPHRAIM PATTERSON, page 21,

First enlisted Aug. 14, 1776; was Sergeant of Captain John Strong's Company, in Hoisington's "Rangers," raised in "Cumberland County," N. Y. This was part of the present State of Vermont, then known as the "New Hampshire Grants," and claimed by both New York and New Hampshire. Its troops were recorded as "Rangers," "Green Mountain Boys" and "Cumberland County Minute Men," and were generally authorized and commissioned by Congress, and not formally accredited to either of the claimant States. This service would indicate his removal to Piermont, New Hampshire, at a date later than given in the family records, probably early in 1777, as he entered the service from that State in July of that year.

MATTHEW PATTERSON, page 22,

First enlisted in April, 1775; was Ensign in Capt. John Sedgwick's 8th Company, 4th Regiment, Connecticut (Continental), Col. Hinman. Was Lieutenant, 1776-77, of Capt. John Stevens' Company of Col. Burrall's Connecticut (Continental) Regiment, and in the siege of Quebec he was taken prisoner in the affair at "The Cedars," near Montreal, May 19, 1776.

Was a Lieutenant in Vermont (New Hampshire Grants) troops prior to his removal to Piermont, New Hampshire, and service in that State. No rolls have been preserved giving the detail of his service.

BENJAMIN PATTERSON, page 23,

Was a private in Capt. Samuel Young's Company, of Col. Bedell's New Hampshire Regiment, December, 1777.

Was a private, June, 1778, in the Company in Col. Bedell's New Hampshire Regiment of which his brother Ephraim was Lieutenant.

ner" of the family record, was Thomas Tanner, of Cornwall, the Lieutenant of Capt. Smith's Company, and the "Col. McGaw," therein mentioned, refers to Col. Megaw, of the Pennsylvania Line, who was in command of the garrison at Fort Washington at that time.

ICHABOD PATTERSON, page 30,

Was a private (aged 15), in April, 1778, in the Company in Col. Bedell's New Hampshire Regiment of which his father Ephraim was the Lieutenant.
