MEMORANDA

OF THE

Preston Family.

1870.

P R E F A C E .

The following pages are but little more than an amplification of the notes published in 1842, by my deceased uncle, Col. ORLANDO BROWN. The idea was suggested to him by some papers left by my grandfather, and was executed, so far as material availed him, by the joint endeavor of himself and NATHANIEL HART, of Woodford county, Kentucky.

I found it pleasant to trace the different branches of our family tree as they developed into a more numerous progeny, and, from time to time, made notes of such information as I could collect. As I prosecuted my inquiries, it became apparent to me, that our kindred felt much desire that the collected materials might be published.

Without further apology, therefore, I offer the following memoranda, for private distribution among the family.

JOHN MASON BROWN.

LEXINGTON, KENTUCKY, JULY, 1870.

OF

THE PRESTON FAMILY.

JOHN PRESTON, the first of the family who came to America, was born in Ireland, in the city of Londonderry. His father and three uncles were Englishmen, who served under King William, and aided in the defense of Londonderry, when that city was besieged by King James. He was a Protestant, of the Presbyterian denomination, a man of strong mind and correct principles. He married ELIZABETH PATTON, a sister of Colonel JAMES PATTON, of Donegal, with whom he removed to Virginia in 1740. Col. PATTON had for some years commanded a merchant ship, and was a man of property, enterprise, and influence. He obtained an order of Council from the Governor of Virginia, under which there were appropriated, to himself and his associates, 120,000 acres of the best lands lying above the Blue Ridge in that State, several valuable tracts of which fell to the share of his descendants. He was killed by Indians at Smithfield, Virginia, in the year 1753. Col. PATTON left two daughters, one of whom married Capt. WILLIAM THOMPSON, and the other Col. JOHN BUCHANAN. From the last named are descended JOHN FLOYD, late member of Congress and Governor of Virginia, JAMES D. BRECKINRIDGE, of Louisville, Kentucky, late member of Congress, and the late Col. W. P. ANDERSON, of the United States Army.

JOHN PRESTON, on the passage from Ireland, lost part of his property in a storm; but being an associate, he obtained, under the order of Council before mentioned, a valuable tract of land called "Robinson's," which descended to his son, and, until recently, remained in the family.

JOHN PRESTON's first residence in Virginia was at Spring Hill, in Augusta county; but about the year 1743 he purchased, and with his family, settled upon a tract of land adjoining Staunton, on the north side of that town. He died soon after, and was buried at the Tinkling Spring Meeting-house. He left a widow and five children. Mrs. PRESTON exhibited great energy and strength of character, continuing to reside upon and manage the plantation they had purchased, until her children were all educated and married. She then removed to Greenfield, the seat of her son, Col. WILLIAM PRESTON, where she died in 1776, aged seventy-six years.
