PREFACE.

The title of this book may be misleading and perhaps cause disappointment to many who expect to find a detailed history of every branch of the POST family in America. I trust its opening pages, giving an account of the POST family in Europe, may prove a compensation, as those bearing the name in all parts of the United States must be interested to know something of their common origin.

A history of the POST family in America would be a web almost impossible to disentangle, owing, not only to the fact that there are descendants of those who came from Holland and those who came from England about the same time—not to speak of the more recent arrivals from Germany—but the records in those early days were so badly kept on Long Island and elsewhere that it has been a most difficult undertaking to procure the material necessary for the single chain of JOTHAM POST'S descent from Lieutenant RICHARD POST, of Southampton. Thompson, in his history of Long Island, says:

“Another and more formidable embarrassment presented itself in the progress of the compiler's researches, which was in great measure unexpected, and had well nigh persuaded him to relinquish his further labor after a considerable mass of material had been collected. This arose from the peculiar condition and deficiency of the records of many of the twenty-one towns which he examined. In general, they are almost entirely wanting in matters of antiquity, and in others have been so negligently kept as to be in great measure incapable of being understood."

It often happens that one who marries into a family and makes a point of studying relationships knows more on the subject than the actual born members. These take no thought on the subject until a wedding or funeral brings a family gathering, when the younger members are sure to question how they are related to heretofore ignored cousins.

This work was begun with no other object than to answer oft-put questions.

Taking JOTHAM POST, the founder of the New York branch, as a common ancestor, I wrote down a history of his descendants. With the help of all the elder members of the family, who kindly gave me their records from family Bibles and papers, I was soon in possession of a full history of this part of the POST family. Writing it was a pleasure and comparatively easy, but the interest grew in proportion as the work progressed, and it seemed unfinished if a history of JOTHAM POST's descendants were not preceded by a history of his ancestors.

Climbing the ladder was far more difficult than descending it, and I realized the truth of Thompson's words when the task began of searching records. Many times I stopped, discouraged, feeling it was hopeless to work on, but help always came, sometimes in the most unexpected way. At last the history is finished and complete, but I owe the result to the assistance given me by Miss PHEBE POST, a descendant of HENRY POST (elder brother of JOTHAM POST) who, being a member of the Society of Friends, was able to procure for me (and worked indefatigably to do so) the Quaker Records that established the complete chain of descent of JOTHAM POST and his brothers from Lieutenant RICHARD POST, of Southampton.

Though this introduction begins with the assertion that this volume is confined exclusively to a history of JOTHAM POST'S descendants, I have made a point of inserting all information in regard to other branches which came to me in the course of my work. There is information, though limited, about the POSTS who came from Holland to New Amsterdam, and many more data about STEPHEN POST who came to Massachusetts in 1634 from England.

The labor of years is finished, and this volume is dedicated to the family with the hope that each member will continue his personal records on the blank pages provided for the purpose.

THE POST FAMILY.

RESEARCHES CONCERNING THE POST FAMILY IN EUROPE FROM VARIOUS SOURCES.

The POST family is one of the oldest families, of which we have any authentic records.

It is mentioned as early as 980 A. D., when Nettelburg, which later became known as Schaumburg, was besieged and taken by a Von Palingsleben, who became founder of the great and important family, the Counts Von Schaumburg. He assumed the Nettelburg arms: three thistles, while the Von Palingsleben arms were assumed by the "Herren VON POST," who had taken active and prominent part in the attack on Nettelburg. ADOLPH POST, a "Ritter" (knight), was a member of the "Reichstag" of Minden in 1030, and appeared in 1273 as witnesses to a deed by which several mansions belonging to the Counts Gerhardt and Johann of Holstein and Schaumburg were sold to the Cloister or Abbey Marienbode near Hildesheim.

This Heinrich was progenitor of a prominent family of this surname, of which we shall have occasion to refer only to the Goossen branch. Before we give the history of that branch, it might be of interest to follow the development of the other branches. HEINRICH POST'S grandson, WALTHER POST, had, in 1399, land granted to him in Braunschweig, and from him descended

GENERAL HERMAN LOTHAR, FREIHERR VON POST, who was of Bosfeld, Emsink and Bockholt, and married the only daughter of Johann von Herdings and Anna von Hoen. He died in 1674 on the field of battle near Ensiskerin, Elsass, and in the Munster of Strassburg can be found a magnificent monument to his memory. His youngest son, followed as Hessische Hofmarshall, etc., the Princess Leonore von Hessen, who afterward became Queen of Sweden, to Stockholm, and was breveted Colonel, in 1617, in the battle of Lansskrona. He was founder of the Swedish line, while the Danish line descends from one WOLTERUS DICTUS POST, with armory: Azure, a lion rampant argent, and descended also from the Schaumburg house, in 1337.

WILLIAM MORITZ VON POST,

GEORGE ARNOLD VON POST,

1. MAJOR PETER LASSON VON POST,
of Broksoe, near Nestved,
and

FREIHERR IGNAZ PHILIP,
of Lude and Oldendorf, who married Wilhelmina, Countess von Zedtwitz, who died in 1857. He died 1821, leaving son

COL. FREIHERR JOSEPH VON POST, born in 1803, of Oldendorf and Kurhessen, who, in 1831, married Marie, Countess von Hardegg, born in 1802, and with four daughters had a son,

FREIHERR MAXIMILIAN VON POST,
born in 1835.

I. GOOSSEN POST,*

who is mentioned, in 1376, as one of the "anzienlijkste Arnheemsche burgers," was a descendant of HEINRICH POST, who, in 1273, appears as a witness to a deed, as referred to on previous page.

Arnhem is in that part of Netherland that is called Gelderland. He had wife, Jantje Van Zul, a daughter of Peter Van Zul and Jane Rapalje, having issue:

Hist. Gen. de Rapalje, II., 63.

1. PETER, of whom presently,

2. GEORGE,

* GOOSSEN POST belonged to the most prominent citizens of Arnheim. With the consent of the latter, mayor, aldermen and counsellors of the above city, resolved on Friday after St. Jacob's Day, 1376: "That outside of the walls of the city (Arnheim) and as far as the jurisdiction of the city extends, nobody should henceforth be allowed to erect houses or small farms." II. PETER POST had land in 1399 in or near Elspet, and appears to have married Annatie Suydam, daughter of George Suydam and Else Meyers, of Zwolle (Swolle), having issue:

Jean le Carpentier Coll.

1. PETER ARNOLD,
2. GEORGE,
3. JAN.

Of these, it is said, that George emigrated to England, settling down near Sandwich, Kent, about 1473, from where he went to Ulcomb, Co. Kent, becoming the progenitor of that branch of the family. (His will, dated 1502, is in the archives of Canterbury.) See Appendix A.

Ibid Chartres Particulieres.

The grandnephew of this GEORGE POST, PANWELL,* "of Oudenarde, and Leyden," Holland, emigrated to Kent, also, marrying in the Dutch Church, London, and his brother, Jan, had a daughter, Sarah, who married in Maidstone, Kent, in 1607, to which place the Ulcomb branch of the family had removed shortly before. GEORGE POST, of Elspet and Ulcomb, Co. Kent, had with wife, Eleanor, son Thomas, who had several sons, of which WILLIAM POST was of Maidstone, Kent.

* The direct ancestor of Richard, of Southampton.

III. PETER ARNOLD VAN DER POEST, born in 1500, married September 13, 1539, Margrietje Bogert, daughter of Jan Bogert, and had issue:

2. PANWELL, of whom presently,

IV. PANWEL VAN DER POEST

married, February 7, 1571, Susannah, daughter of Abraham Van Gelder, and had issue:

Dutch Church, Austin Friars, London.

1. ABRAHAM, bapt. Oct. 6, 1573, in London,
2. SARAH, bapt. Oct. 6, 1573, in London.
3. SUSANNA, bapt. Jan. 18, 1578, in London,
4. JAN, bapt. Nov. 5, 1579, of whom presently,
5. ARTHUR, bapt. Aug. 26, 1580, married Bennet Lambe in Maidstone, Kent.

Of these, JAN VAN DER POEST, of Oudendarde, married, June 18, 1594, Tanneken van Mulken, of Smerghen. 2d, as JAN POST, of Leyden, June 13,

1596, Elizabeth de Cock, of Lokeren, and, 3d, Oct. 22, 1598, Sarah de Coninck, "of London," in the Dutch Church, Austin Friars, having issue:

1. JOANNES, bapt. Sept. 16, 1599,
2. DAVID, bapt. Feb. 17, 1601, as son of J. DE Post,
3. JOANNES, bapt. Aug. 22, 1624,
4. SAMUEL, bapt. July 30, 1626,
5. ELIZABETH, bapt. Nov. 12, 1629.

PANWELL VAN DER POEST was a "bezitter van ijzersmelterijen (iron founder) in Oudenarde," and had (with his first wife) "uit zijn eerste huwelijk, dat met Tanneken van Haersolte, een zoon (one son), Jan Ludolf," who, evidently died young.

V. ARTHUR POST,*

born and baptized August 26, 1580, married, February 2, 1614, in Maidstone, Kent, Bennet Lambe, daughter of Richard Lambe, and had issue:

1. RICHARD, born Feb. 4, 1617, of whom presently,
2. STEPHEN, born Nov. 27, 1618,
3. PANWELL, born Sept. 3, 1619.

Lambert Coll., ix, 43.

* Arthur, calls himself Post like his ancestors, whilst his father, Panwell, and grandfather, Peter Arnold, were ——— van der Poest.

ARTHUR POST, in a deed dated June 14, 1644, "being of grete age," gives to "my cousin, Richard van Mulken, ten pounds within six months; my second son Stephen and his wife, Margaret, all my lands, tenements and hereditaments in Estling, formerly in the possession of my eldest son, Richard, being now of New England or some parts beyond the seas, Panwel, my youngest son, to have all my wearing apparel."

Phillips Coll. Mss., in Mulken Gen. Mss., XXII, 4.

The RICHARD POST, here referred to, I take to be identical with the early settler of Southampton, L. I., who had a grant of land May, 1643, as no further records can be found, as to the above RICHARD POST, of Maidstone, although both his brothers are mentioned as having left issue.

VI. RICHARD POST,

POST.

POST, a noble family of Lower Saxony, especially from the bishopric of Paderborn; originally they came from the county of Schaumburg, and according to ancient printed and written documents it is shown that some members were already greatly esteemed in the times of Conrad Salico, the Roman Emperor, on account of their special reputed qualities. At least one of the family was already in olden times a celebrated knight; he attended the Imperial Diet in Minden, in 1030, together with Adolph von Palingsleben, Von Bardeleben, Von Busch, etc. He was named ADOLPH and all the VON POSTS derive their noble descent from him. He had a son, named FREDERIC, who was alive in 1026; he was in the service of a Count Schaumburg and left an only son. Only from the year 1272, when HENRY and LUDWIG POST were living, authentic reports can be given. These two went over to the city of Itzehoe in Danish Holstein together with Gerhard and Johann, Counts of Schaumburg, and there is yet a document of the year 1272 attached by all the seals of the above-mentioned. According to that document, the Counts made a donation of some domains to the Abbot of Itzehoe.

All the POSTS in existence to-day are, however, derived from the above named HENRY. He left as son and heir his oldest son, RICHARD, who was an Imperial colonel and counselor, alive in 1363; he again was followed by Johann, who signs as a witness in 1377, when Count Henry Sternberg and his son Johann sold the earldom of Sternberg with all its privileges to Otto, Count of Holstein-Schaumburg and his heirs.

JOHANN POST married MECHTILD, a daughter of Adolph von Busche; his son, WALTHER POST, was high-sheriff in Varenholtz; he was the first who received grant of lands by Duke Frederic of Braunschweig and Luneburg in the year 1399; he married Agnes Von Wend, who formerly was a baroness Kratzenstein. FREDERIC VON POST was a counsellor of the Elector of Cologne and of Count Schaumburg; he had great quarrels with Philip, then Count of Spiegelberg, and the brothers of FREDERIC POST, above mentioned probably were JOACHIM-WERNER, JOHANN and CLANS POST.

WERNER, another son of FREDERIC POST, happily brought the above-named controversies to an end. He died in 1503.

STANTIUS VON POST married CATHARINE VON BAHR, a daughter of Johann Bahr, counselor and captain in the service of Mansfield Statius, received confirmation of grant of the ancestral estates by Albert, Duke of Brunswick, in 1484, and by Henry, Duke of Brunswick, in 1529. When he died, his sons made the following partition of the inherited estates:

1. JOACHIM, the oldest son, received the estates and castle of Holtensen, half a mile distant from Hameln, hard by the frontier of Schaumburg; further the domain of Boden-Enger in the county of Schaumburg, and a farm and estate in the city of Rinteln.
2. WERNER received Oldendorff.
3. JOHANN received Buckenburg.
4. NICHOLAS obtained Luden in the bishopric of Paderborn, and Postholtz.

From JOACHIM, above named, derive the branches of POST-HOLTENSEN and POST-RINTELN. He was a counselor at Brunswick-Luneburg and high-sheriff of Uslar in Schaumburg. He died in 1577.

He founded a family vault in the church of Saint Nicholas in Rinteln for his descendants, and there is a document still in existence wherein the mayor and the aldermen of Rinteln affirm this foundation to the heirs of the POSTS. Among the signatures of this document can also be found an ADOLPH VON POST.

JOACHIM had two sons, JOHANN, senior, and JOACHIM; they divided the estates anew.

JOHANN received Holtensen, and JOACHIM obtained Boden-Enger and the estates in Rinteln. JOHANN was hereditary lord of Holtensen and Post-holtz. He obtained confirmation of the estates and concessions by various Dukes of Brunswick; some of the estates, however, were disputed of him by his relatives. He was married twice:

1. With Ilsa von Bardeleben, and
2. With Anna von Haselhorst.

His oldest son was JOHANN DEDERIK, who received confirmation of grant of the inherited estates by Duke Christian Ludwig, of Brunswick-Luneburg. Another son was STATIUS-FREDERIC VON POST, counselor of Brunswick-Luneburg, high-sheriff, and governor of the Institute for Noblemen in St. Michael. He was born in 1607 and died in 1671. He had the following children:

1. AGNES ELIZABETH, born 1659. She was married to Ernst-Christian Von Staffhorst, principal master of the Hunt in Zell. She died November 5, 1718.
2. CHRISTIAN-LUDWIG, born March 22, 1661, died December 30, 1707.
3. AUGUST-FREDERIC, born 7 September, 1662, died 1663.

CHRISTIAN-LUDWIG was married to Dorothea-Elizabeth von Reden. They had the following children:

1. ELEONORA-ELIZABETH, born January 9, 1689.
2. FREDERIC-CHRISTIAN, died January 21, 1719.
3. WERNER-ERNST, died 1700.
4. AUGUST-OTTO.

5. SOPHIA-AMALIA, born June 28, 1698, died July 13, 1698.
6. ELIZABETH-JULIANA, born September 30, 1697, married February 14, 1726, to Henry von Grote, Royal Great Britain and Hanoverian stateminister.
7. DEDERIK-WILLIAM-CHRISTIAN, born December 13, 1698, died September 3, 1700.
8. LUDWIG-CHRISTIAN, born August 27, 1700.
9. JOACHIM-WILLIAM, and
10. GEORGE-WILLIAM, born 1707.

The branch of POST-LUDEN became extinct in 1672 with BERNHARD, a grandson of NICHOLAS, above named, and all the hereditary estates came legitimately to CHRISTIAN-LUDWIG.

JOACHIM, junior, of the branch of POST-RINTELEN, left WILLIAM-MORITZ, a colonel in the service of Sweden. He married Catherina von Schilt and they had various children.

The arms of the family of POST are:

Azure, a lion rampant, argent, crowned or.

Crest: A post, gules, before the post stands the lion of the field, crowned as above; the post is surmounted by three ostrich plumes, proper.

From the German of "Zedler's Grosses Universal-Lexikon" (1741), vol. XXVIII, pp. 1788 to 1790.

POST.

GERMANY, AUSTRIA, SWEDEN, ALSACE.

The POSTS are noble, also are they barons. They belong to the Bohemian nobility, too, as per a diploma given to AUGUST OTTO VON POST, Imperial and Royal Austrian Captain in the Army.

The family comes originally from Lower-Saxony and Westphalia, namely from the province of Schaumburg. There is a tradition, but probably mythical, that the house was existing already in 980. At that time (it is claimed) there was a fortress by the name of Nettelberg (later called Schaumburg). The inhabitants had rioted against Emperor and Empire, and therefore the fortified place was forcibly taken by storm by a certain nobleman, named Von Palingsleben. The victor took possession of the castle as the owner, who had heretofore lived there lost his life during the siege. It is claimed also that this conqueror became the ancestor of the Counts of Schaumburg. He took up the Arms of Nettelberg, consisting of three nettle leaves, and the fortress henceforth was called Schaumburg. He granted his own Arms, heretofore adopted by him, to the POST family, members of which, at the siege and capture of Nettelberg had assisted and prominently distinguished themselves.

ADOLPH POST, Knight, was at the Reichstag in Minden, in 1030; LUDWIG and HEINRICH POST appear documentary in 1273, namely as witnesses in a contract, wherein Counts Gerhard and Johann von Holstein and Schaumburg sell some estates to the cloister Marienrode near Hildesheim. The uninterrupted descentance commences with HEINRICH above named. His grandson was a certain "WALTHER.". He came to the land of Brunswick in the XIV century, and continued the branch; the oldest charter being dated "Grubenhagen, 1399."

It is claimed that the ancestor of all the actually living BARON POSTS was in the XXth generation.

HERMAN LOTHAR BARON POST, Lord of Bosfeld, Emsinck and Bockholt, Imperial Royal Austrian and also Spanish Colonel, further a General in the service of Munster as also Upper-Sheriff of Trent. He was married to the only daughter of Johann Von Herding and Anna Von Hoen. He died in 1674 in the camp at Ensisheim in Alsace. A most magnificent monument is erected to him in the Minster in Strassburg, Alsace. His younger son, WILLIAM MORITZ, was a Court Chamberlain at the Court of Princess Leonore, of Hessen, who later on became Queen of Sweden. He accompanied her to Stockholm, entered the Swedish service and was killed in the battle of Landskrona, in 1617. (There is evidently an error of misprint in the dates, as it is impossible that the father was killed in 1674 and the son in 1617. Translator.) He was the founder of the Swedish Branch. His oldest son, GEORGE ARNOLD, died in 1709. He was Lord of Lude and Emsinck a Royal Danish Captain of Horse. He continued the branch and his successor was ERICH ISVARD POST, Lord of Lude. His grandson was BARON IGNATZ PHILIP VON POST, Lord of Lude and Oldendorf, proprietor of the estates-in-fee in Hanover and Waldeck. He died anno 1821. He was married to Wilhelmina Countess Zedtwitz of the house of Schonbach. She died 1857. They had:

BARON JOSEPH, born 1803, Lord of the Estates-in-Fee Oldendorf in the Electorate of Hessen; also proprietor of the formerly independent estate of Ober-Puttgau in Lower-Styria, Imperial and Royal Colonel in the Austrian army. He married, in 1831, Mary, Countess Hartegg, born 1802. They again had five daughters and one son:

BARON MAXIMILIAN, born 1835.

The oldest of the four daughters,

MARY, married, in 1862, Julius, Count of Attems, Lord of Pragerhof in Lower Styria, Imperial and Royal First Lieutenant in the Austrian army.

BIOGRAPHICAL NOTES.

POST FAMILY OF HOLLAND.

ELIZABETH MARY POST was born in 1735.

(This seems to be a mistake; compare below. I think it should read 1755. Translator.)

In 1788 appeared by her, but anonymously, an exceedingly clever work under the title: "Het Land," (the country) in the form of letters, with an introduction greatly in her favor, by A. van den Berg, a minister in Arnhem. This story went through four editions. A second work "Voor Eenzamen" (For Solitaries) was soon after published. In this book she gave her real name and also divulged the fact that she was the author of "Het Land." Then followed "Reinhart, of Natuur en Godsdienst" (Reinhart, or Nature and Religion) in three parts, plates and portrait, Amsterdam, 1793, written in a simple, and yet beautiful style.

MISS POST was already the favorite of the public when she published (Rotterdam, 1793): "Mijne Kinderlijke Tranen" (My Childish Tears), wherein she mourned the demise of her mother, as she had mourned the death of her father in her "Vor Eenzamen."

In 1794 she married Mr. Overdorp, a clergyman of Nordwijk. At that occasion was published her "Gezangen der Liefde" (Songs of Love), Groningen, 1794. Then followed: "Gezelschap en Eenzaamheid" (Society and Solitariness), Groningen; "Het waar genot der Lebens" (The real Delight of Life), in letter-form with plates. (Amsterdam, 1796.)

G. W. C. Starke "Tafereelen nit het huiselijk leven," (Pictures from Domestic Life), translated from the High-German, Amsterdam, 1804, 2 parts; "Don Carlos, crown prince of Spain," translated from the High-German of Schiller (Amsterdam, royal 8o); "Frederica Weisz and her daughters," from the High-German (Amsterdam, 1806), and finally: "Ontwaakte Zanglust" (Awakened Joy of Song). The Hague, 1807.

In 1810 were privately printed for her friends: "Ter gedachtenis van mijnen waardigen broeder H. H. POST, in 1809, to Demerara overleden." (In memory of my worthy brother, H. H. POST, deceased in Demerara in 1809.)

This is the brother she has formerly depicted in her "Reinhard."

She died in Epe in 1812, aged 57.

Her portrait is engraved by Vinkeles.

G. POST, a minor poet in the beginning of the 18th century. He was yet alive in 1716.

H. POST was a poet in the first half of the 18th century. He published in 1754:

"Lofoffer, toegenvijdt aan het Pan Batavum van A. van Halen." (Praise-Offerings, dedicated to the Pan Batavum of A. van Halen.)

JAN POST was a son of HERMANUS POST and EVARINA VAN RIEMSDIJK, born in Tiel, August 28, 1778. He entered military service as a cadet of calvary in 1796, was appointed second-lieutenant in 1803 and assigned to the Second Regiment of (Batavian) Hussars in 1805. When Holland became a part of the French Empire he entered the French service as a Captain of Lancers of the Guard, and did not return to his native country until 1814. He was promoted to Lieutenant-Colonel in the Regiment of Hussars No. 6, and subsequently became Commander of the Regiment of Cuirassiers No. 3. In 1826 he was promoted Major-General and charged with the inspection of heavy Cavalry, and after the Belgian Revolution he became Commander of the First Brigade of Cavalry. In 1836 he was put in non-activity and pensioned three years later.

POST, in various ranks, took part in the following expeditions: Northern Holland, 1806; Austria, 1805; Prussia, 1806; Zealand, 1809, and Russia, 1812. He further was in Germany in the war of 1813, wounded in the battle of Leipsic; France 1814; the Netherlands, 1815.

He was decorated with the order of the Legion of Honor; the military order of William (3d class), and the Order of the Netherlandish Lion.

GENERAL POST died in Utrecht, September 18, 1841.

H. POST, Engraver, lived in the first half of the XVIII century. He was the artist, who, amongst others, engraved the plate:

"The Clergy and Government, compelled to leave Amsterdam in 1578." This picture was executed in 1728. He was also the engraver of a "New Map of Gooiland," in copper.

JAN POST, a painter on glass in Haarlem. He died there November 11, 1614.

He was the father of FRANS POST and PIETER POST, who follow:

FRANS POST, son of JAN POST, above, brother of PIETER POST, who follows, was born towards 1620 in Haarlem.

(There is another discrepancy, as the father died in 1614, the son naturally could not have been born in 1620. This is probably a misprint for 1600. Translator.)

He became acquainted, through his brother, with Prince Maurice, who, in 1637, took him along to the West Indies, where he sketched and painted many landscapes, and also the customs and manners of the inhabitants. He returned with the Prince in 1644, and adorned, in 1668, the palace of Rijksdorp near Wassenaar with some paintings of the above subject. Another large picture by his brush was to be seen in Honsholredijk.

In 1816 eighteen pictures by him were sold at an auction in Haarlem by Vincent van der Vinne; all of them West Indian landscapes.

It is reliably stated that FRANS POST was buried in the Great Church of Haarlem, February 17, 1680.

His portrait is variously taken. There exists a drawing by Cornelis Visscher; a painting of him by Frans Hals; an engraving by J. Suyderhof.

PIETER POST, son of JAN POST, was a celebrated architect. He was born in Haarlem in 1608.

He became a favorite of Count Johan Maurice, and accompanied him in his expedition to Brazil, where he erected the churches and principal buildings in Olinda, and also constructed the fortress and some houses in Maurits-stad (Fernambuco).

Returning to his native country he erected also various excellent edifices, for instance, the palace of Zwanenburg, near the ferry in Haarlem; the City-

Hall of Maastricht (1659-63); the Public Stores (Scales) in Gouda; Castle Vredenburg, in North Holland; Prince Maurice House in The Hague; Orange-Hall in the House in the Bush, The Hague, etc., etc.

He was appointed architect and painter to his Highness Prince Frederic-Henry, whose funeral he depicted in 29 plates, Amsterdam, 1655. He wrote books on Architecture, published Leiden, 1715, and was also favorably known as a painter.

His residence was at the Amsterdam Wharves in The Hague, where he must have died in or before 1669, as his books, plates, prints, etc., were sold there on December 17, 1669.

His daughter was married to Fredericus Ruysch.

TOBIAS POST, navigating officer of Adriaan De Haese, Admiral of our fleet.

He distinguished himself in the war with England in 1672, and when Haese was killed at a naval battle, his successor, Du Bois, promoted POST Captain of the fleet.

J. POST was an author. He published works in Amsterdam in 1734.

P. POST wrote some poetical pieces, last half of the XVIII century.

SEBASTIAN POST, portraitist, born in Tiel in 1777. He gave drawing lessons in Nijmegen.

MARGARETHA VAN DEN POST was the mother of the Bastards Filip and David, Counts of Burgundy, both later celebrated bishops of Utrecht.

JOHANNES ROBERTUS POST (BRAN POST), portrait painter, born April 1, 1811, in The Hague. His master was C. Kruseman. POST emigrated to Curacao, 1843, where, in 1848, he was yet a successful portraitist.

POST.

ENGLAND.

GEORGE POST, son of PETER POST and ANNATIE SUYDAM (see page 5) left Holland to settle in England, where his descendants are to this day.

GEORGE POST settled near Sandwich, Kent, about 1473, from whence he went to Ulcomb Co., Kent. His will, dated 1502, is in the archives of Canterbury.

(See Appendix A).

It was not the direct descendants of GEORGE POST who came to New England in 1633-34, but those of his great-nephew PANWELL. This nephew followed the example of his great-uncle and left Holland to settle in Kent (Maidstone). See page 5.)

The Coat of Arms on opposite page is that of GEORGE POST'S descendants. They bore arms: "Or, a fesse azure." Crest: "On a chapeau, azure, turned up ermine, a demi eagle, wings expanded, beaked, azure."

COATS OF ARMS AND CRESTS.

Armorial Bearings.

ARMORIAL BEARINGS.

In examining the various POST coats of arms, it is noticeable that those of Leiden, in Holland, vary in every respect from the others, keeping no single distinctive part of the original or German arms. All the others have the azure, or the ostrich feathers, or the play on the word POST with a post, or posthorn.

The Arms of Hanover, Prussia, Hamburg, Bremen and Lubeck are exactly like the original German, with the lions crowned on arms and crests, and the ostrich feathers on crest, but the color of the post on the crest is different, azure in the original, Gules (red) in the others.

The Arms of Hesse, Denmark, Norway and Sweden, have the lions uncrowned, and the same difference in the colors of the posts, Hesse being azure and the others gules, but Hesse retains the ostrich feathers, while Denmark, Norway and Sweden have adopted peacock feathers on the crest, and the post is crowned instead of the lion.

In the arms of Holland are found the azure, but the play on the word post is shown in posthorn and postilions, instead of a column.*

In England they kept the azure in the fesse of the shield.

* Since writing the above I have ascertained that there is a species of fish called Pos in Dutch. Hence the presence of the Pos or fish on the Dutch coats of arms. Several of the Posrs who first came to New Amsterdam spelled the name Pos. See page 46.

Whether PANWELL POST, of Leiden, greatnephew of GEORGE POST (founder of the English branch), who also settled in England, carried his uncle's arms or those of the Leiden family, to which he was probably entitled, does not appear from the records.

None of these arms or crests, as far as can be ascertained, were ever carried by any of the POSTS who settled in America.

These emigrants, the majority of whom fled from religious persecution, thought only of joining a colony where each man brought the simple worth of his individual work. All class distinctions were left behind. It is pretty nearly certain that the Richard, of Southampton, hereinafter referred to, never carried a crest.

Many of RICHARD POST'S descendants became Quakers, the tenets of whose faith inspire still greater dislike to aristocratic emblems. For five generations the POSTS lived in their new country satisfied with competency or wealth acquired in mercantile or agricultural pursuits, or occupying with credit official positions to which they were elected, unambitious of carrying armorial bearings.

There is, therefore, no record of any arms having been carried by the family in America until the beginning of the 19th century.

About that time the descendants of JOTHAM POST, in New York, carried and placed upon certain pieces of family silver a coat of arms which has been generally adopted by those of the name. (See frontispiece)

The origin of these armorial bearings is uncertain. They are identical, save in the colors of the lions, with the arms of the Poston family, of England, which are described in "Burke's General Armory," and also in "Fairbank's Crests," (vol. 1, 362), as: "Argent, on a fesse between three arches, gules, a lion passant or, inter two bezants."

Crest: "A demi-lion or, supporting an arch gules."

Whether the name Poston derived its origin from the POSTS of Germany and Holland, we are unable to say. The family seems to be extinct, and searches in England throw no light upon the matter.

From the striking similarity it is presumed that both are derived from the same source.

It is probable that the arms, almost similar to the Postons, were not assumed, nearly one hundred years ago, by the POSTS of America without authority. What that authority was it is impossible to say after the lapse of so many years. For four generations they have been used and accepted by the New York branch of the POST family, and will be found upon all of their old family silver, books, etc., etc.

They are registered in the College of Heraldry, of New York, as:

Arms: "Argent, on a fesse gules a lion passant between two roundels of this first between three arches with columns of the second."

Crest: "A demi lion p. p. r. tongued gules resting his sinister paw on an arch with columns gules."

Motto: "In me mea spes omnis."

(See frontispiece).

HERALDIC TERMS USED IN CONNECTION WITH THE POST ARMS:

Or, gold, indicated by hatched points.....

Argent, silver, indicated by plain white.....

Gules, red, indicated by vertical lines.....

Azure, blue, indicated by horizontal lines....

Sable, black, indicated by lines in squares, horizontal and vertical.....

Proper or p. p. r. natural color.

Fesse or fess, a strip placed horizontally across the middle of the shield. It takes up about a third of the shield.

Chevron (cauterius) from its resemblance to the main rafters or principals of a roof.

Saltire (sautoir) is known as the cross of St. Andrews

Cross, (croix, crux). In heraldry is usually the Greek cross, or that of equal arms.....

Lion rampant. Lion standing as if climbing.

Lion passant. Lion walking, passing.

Roundel. If of metal is a simple disk. If "or" it is convex, half a globe. It is named especially from its color. "Or" (gold) a "bezant from a coin of that name in the East. Sable, "a pellet;" Argent, a "Plate;" Azure, a "Hurt;" Gules, a "Tortreau." Although bezants, plates, hurts, tortreaux, are given in early rolls of arms, their names do not always carry their color. They are blazoned as "roundels d'or, pelottes d'argent."

The pellets often stand for the roundels.

Chief. Upper third of the shield.

Put in Pale. Upright in the middle line of shield.

Put in Saltire. Put as the St. Andrews cross...

The above are Heraldic figures.

Beasts, birds, fishes, etc., on shields are called Charges. When marked or placed on shields; "three arches"—or "three swans, etc., 2-1," it means two in chief, on the upper third of the shield and one at the point.....

"Two in pale" would be one over the other and upright.

"Two swans or other device in flank and one in point," means one on each side of the middle third of the shield and one at the point, thus:.....

The Shield is considered divided in three parts.

The husband and wife's arms joined are called "impaled."

CRESTS.

Strictly speaking, the armorial bearings are confined to the contents of the shield; and heralds have never regarded the appendages as of the same importance. These include whatever is borne outside the shield, as the crest, badge, motto, supporters, helmet, etc.

The crest was the ornament of the head-piece, and offered protection against a blow. In early rolls of arms it is not noticed. In early seals when it appears it is rarely heraldic.

With the crest is usually combined some flowing drapery, known as panache, mantling or lambrequin.

HELMETS.

The helmet indicates the rank of the wearer. It is placed above the shield and beneath the crest. The sovereign and the royal family bear the helmet full faced with six bars, all of gold.

Those of dukes or marquises are of gold with five steel bars. The lesser nobles have silver helmets borne in profile with gold ornaments and four silver bars.

Those of baronets and knights are of steel, full faced and open.

An Esquire's helmet is of steel represented in profile with visor closed.

At the risk of much reiteration I have given on the preceding pages all the genealogical and biographical information from European sources concerning the POST family, which I thought would prove of interest. It will be seen that it originated in Germany. From there it branched out into Sweden, Denmark, Bremen (where there are VON POSTS to-day), Hamburg, Lubeck, Prussia, Hesse, Hanover, Alsace, Holland, England, and I believe into Switzerland.

From Holland and England, POSTS came to New Amsterdam and Massachusetts, and the descendants of these early Dutch and English settlers have now carried the name into almost every part of the United States.

The RICHARD POST, son of ARTHUR POST, mentioned in his father's will as "my eldest son, Richard, being now of New England or some parts beyond the seas" (see page 8), was one of the first settlers (1640) of Southampton, known in its records as LIEUT. RICHARD POST. It is his history, and that of his descendants, which concerns us the most, as he was the ancestor of JOTHAM POST,—but before proceeding with Richard's history it would be of interest to many to read the information procured concerning the other POST immigrants of those early times, from whom are descended so many of that name.

THE DUTCH POSTS OF NEW AMSTERDAM.

Bolton's "History of Westchester County," vol. II, (Yonkers), mentions several POSTS, among others, MARTIN POST, "Washington's faithful guide," and in his Appendix A is the genealogy of POSTS of Yonkers "who came from Holland."

Mrs. Martha J. Lamb, in her history of New York City, states that "Governor Minuit organized the province as soon as he had obtained the title deed to Manhattan Island, May 6, 1626, . . . with an advisory council of five of the best men in the colony," one of whom was SIMON DERCKSEN POS. (In the early records the names POS and POST were both used also POAST and POSTE.)

In the Memorial History of New York, by James Grant Wilson, it is stated that SIMON DIRKSON POS was one of five councilors that came over from Holland with Governor Minuit on the ship Sea Mew.

LUDOWICK POS is mentioned in the N. Y. Genealogical and Historical Magazine, vol. V, p. 151. On page 180 is LUDOWICK POST and ANIETJE. In vol. VIII, p. 26, is ANIETJE POST (April 7, 1672).

Tunis G. Bergen, in his work, "The Early Settlers of King's County, N. Y." (p. 228), and in the Documentary History of N. Y. (pp. 659-660), says that WILLIAM POST (or POS) took the oath of allegiance in 1687 as a native, and of New York.

Tunis G. Bergen gives some of his children, viz.:

1. WILLIAM, born July 20, 1680.
2. AGNETJI, born February 7, 1683.
3. BARBARA, born February 21, 1689.
4. JANETJE, born April 17, 1698.

This group appears in the census of Hemstead, Long Island, in 1698. They probably moved and settled there, just before JEREMIAH and RICHARD POST (of the English POSTS) came to Hempstead from Southampton.* These Dutch POSTS left Hempstead and settled in New Jersey. WILLIAM'S will was administred in Perth Amboy in 1724.

In a magazine article ("Our Home," Somerville, New Jersey, 1873, p. 462), the same writer says that THEMIS and WILLIAM POST, . . . of the vicinity of the Raritans in 1707, and JOHANNES POST, of Monmouth County, were probably sons of WILLIAM POST above mentioned. And in his "Early Settlers," p. 228, he says that the first WILLIAM was probably a son of CAPTAIN ADRAIN POST, an early immigrant, who finally settled in Bergen, New Jersey.

In "Liber 3, deeds," in the State House, in Trenton, New Jersey, p. 5, is a record of the fact that CAPTAIN ADRIAN POST took the oath of allegiance as a citizen of Bergen, November 22, 1665.

* Of JEREMIAH and RICHARD we give the history later among the descendants of Lieutenant RICHARD POST.

Some records of the Dutch POSTS can be found in the records of the old Dutch church in the "Genealogical History of New York," at the Lenox Library. The following names are from the list of church members, and their residences in 1686, kept by the Rev. Henricus Selyns, pastor of the Dutch Reformed Church.

MERETJE CORNELIUS H. V. VAN ELIAS POST, living Breede Weg (Broadway).

AGNETJE BOUEN H. V. LUDOWICK POST, living Heeren Gracht (West Zide), (Broad Street, West Side).

In Dutch records, the initials "h. v. van," means "Wife of."

It was to New Jersey that most of the Dutch POSTS of New Amsterdam seem to have removed, and from there to have sent branches back into New York State in the counties of Westchester and Warwick. Not only in Trenton are to be found their records, but also in Hackensack and Schraalenburg. Here in New Jersey, among others, is the name of GARRIT POST. Later we find in Warwick County, New York, the following POSTS.

Col. GARRET POST, born in Warwick County, New York, died there March 12, 1825; married June 7, 1782, Martinche Bertolf. Col. POST was the son of Major JACOBUS POST, a revolutionary soldier.

COL. GARRET POST commanded the 30th Regiment of the 19th Brigade of Infantry, in the war of 1812 (see p. 630 of Military papers of Gov. Daniel D. Tompkins, of New York, 1807-17, published 1898.)

Col. GARRET POSTS'S son, PETER SCHUYLER POST, of Florida, Orange County, New York, was born in Warwick County, New York, August 15, 1795,* and was a soldier in the war of 1812 and later Brigadier General of New York militia.

The son of General PETER SCHUYLER POST was General PHILIP SIDNEY POST, whose brilliant record in the civil war is as follows:

†General PHILIP SIDNEY POST, born in Florida, Orange County, New York, March 19, 1833, was graduated from Union College in 1855, and afterward studied law and was admitted to the bar.

He then traveled through the North-West and lived in Kansas, where he practised law and established a newspaper. At the opening of the Civil War he was chosen Second Lieutenant in the 59th Illinois infantry, and in 1862 became its Colonel. He was severely wounded at the battle of Pea Ridge, and made his way, with much suffering, to St. Louis.

*General PETER SCHUYLER POST died in Galesburg, Ill., September 5, 1861. He married, June 21, 1820, Mary D. Coe, daughter of Hon. John D. Coe.

†Appleton's Cyclopædia America Biography, vol. V, p. 84.

Before fully recovering he joined his regiment in front of Corinth, Mississippi, and was assigned to command of a brigade. From May, 1862, to close of war, he was constantly at the front. In the Army of the Cumberland, as first organized, he commanded the first brigade, first division of the 20th Army Corps, from its formation to its dissolution. He began the battle of Stone River, drove back the enemy several miles, and captured Lectown.

During Atlanta campaign he was transferred to Wood's Division of the 4th Army Corps, and when that General was wounded at Lovejoy's Station, POST took charge of the division, and with it opposed the progress of the Confederates toward the North. On November 16, 1864, in a charge on Overton Hill, a grape shot crushed through his hip, making what for some time was supposed to be a mortal wound. On December 16, 1864, he was brevetted Brigadier-General of Volunteers. After the surrender at Appomattox, he was appointed to the command of the western district of Texas, where there was then a concentration of troops at the Mexican border. He remained till 1866, when the withdrawal of the French from Mexico removed all danger of military complications.

In 1866 he was appointed U. S. Consul at Vienna, and in 1874 Consul-General. His official reports have been quoted as authority. In 1878 he tendered his resignation, which was not accepted until 1879. He then resided at Galesburg, Ill., and in 1886 was elected to Congress as a Republican.

Was Department Commander to G. A. R.

General POST married, May 24, 1866, CORNELIA ALMIRA POST, daughter of Hon. WILLIAM TOWNSEND POST, member of the Assembly; great-granddaughter of Col. GARRET POST.

The children of General PHILIP SIDNEY POST are:

HARRIETTE HELENA POST.

PHILIP SIDNEY POST, JR.

WILLIAM SCHUYLER POST.

JOHN COE POST.

The name, GARRET POST, is spelled in various ways in the Hackensack records published by the Holland Society, pp. 161, 198, 209, 214. It is given as GERRIT, GERRID and GERRET.. In Governor Tompkins' papers it is spelled GARRIT POST. Appleton's Cyclopædia American Biography has it GARRET POST, so also has "American Ancestry," vol. IX, p. 40.

POSTS FROM ENGLAND.

We have seen by a deed of ARTHUR POST, of Maidstone, Kent, drawn June 14, 1644, that he gives: . . . "my second son, STEPHEN, and his wife, MARGARET, all my lands, tenements and hereditaments in Estling, formerly in the possession of my eldest son, RICHARD, being now of New England or some parts beyond the seas."

Now there were in New England (at the time the deed was drawn) RICHARD POST and a STEPHEN POST, whom it was natural to suppose were brothers, as they emigrated about the same time. The above extract, however, from ARTHUR POST'S deed or will, shows his son STEPHEN, RICHARD'S younger brother, was at home.

According to a comparison of dates, RICHARD POST, born February 4, 1617, was twenty-seven years old when his father disinherited him in 1644, and his brother, STEPHEN, eighteen months younger.

The STEPHEN POST of whom we are about to speak was in Cambridge (Newtown) in 1634, and was then father of a family, one at least of his children having been born in England. This STEPHEN, then, so much older than our RICHARD, must have been a cousin, or perhaps an uncle. It is natural to suppose they were nearly related. This STEPHEN is the progenitor of those generally called the Connecticut POSTS, and we will give his history before beginning that of RICHARD, whose history and that of one branch of his descendants is the object of this work.

THE POSTS OF CONNECTICUT.

STEPHEN POST.

The following account of STEPHEN POST is from notes collected with great care by one of his descendants, the late MR. WILLIAM A. POSTE (who kept the terminal e to his name), at one time Deputy Attorney-General of the State of New York.*

"There are in the United States, both Connecticut POSTS and Long Island POSTS.† The former are descendants from STEPHEN POST, of Saybrook; the latter have for their common progenitor RICHARD POST, who was at Southampton, Long Island, about 1640.

"It is the natural supposition that STEPHEN, of Saybrook, and RICHARD, of Southampton, were brothers, but there is no proof to be found in any known records that sustain this theory. There is a vague tradition that there were two or even three brothers of the name, who came from England to America at about the same time. STEPHEN POST'S

* I am greatly indebted to the widow of Mr. POSTE for kindly allowing me to copy all his notes. I print them as they were written by him, and am not responsible if there are any errors. I verified nothing by documentary research, as MR. POSTE had already done so, and my work lay in the history of RICHARD POST, and not of STEPHEN POST.

† Mr. POSTE seems to ignore the POSTS descended from the Dutch POSTS, of New Amsterdam.

M. C. P.

name appears for the first time in America in the list of freemen of Newtown, now Cambridge, Massachusetts, in 1634.* He had certainly four children: JOHN, born 1627; CATHERINE, THOMAS and ABRAHAM.

"The family is of English origin pure and simple. The suggestions or surmises of German, Scotch, Dutch or Welsh descent are utterly unfounded and unwarranted by any facts whatever.†

"Among the Canterbury archives is recorded the will of GEORGE POST, of Ulcombe, Kent, who died in 1504. He had many descendants, and some of them are in Kent†† to this day. The name is spelled in England both with and without a terminal "e". The writing of the name with the unnecessary letter finds some precedents in the old records. Such records were, however, engrossed at a time when words were written with a terminal "e", long since discarded.

* From Pratt's History of Cambridge, Mass. "POST, STEPHEN, (otherwise POAST) owned house and twelve acres of land on south side of river, 1635. He removed with Hooker to Hartford, where he was constable, 1641. Some of the family moved down the river." (Quotes Hinman).

† Again Mr. POSTE was ignorant of the German origin of the family, as shown by the documents that introduce the work, the results of more recent investigation.

†† An additional corroboration of RICHARD POST, being a near relation of STEPHEN is that STEPHEN came from Kent, and the fellow colonists of RICHARD to Southampton were mostly Kentish men. At any rate, in Howell's History of Southampton, it says:

"That they were men of intelligence is seen in their free charter, their just laws, and liberal institutions. They secured in their patent, land tenure by gavelkind (Blackston, 24) which had from time immemorial prevailed in the county of Kent, in England."

"STEPHEN POST was a member of the congregation of the Reverend Thomas Hooker, of Chelmsford, Essex. Hooker was a noted non-conformist minister. He was compelled by the persecution of the government to partake himself to Holland in 1620-30.

"Many of his people then came to this country. Soon after their arrival they sent word to him to come to them. With about two hundred of his former congregation, he came over in the 'Griffin,' and landed in Massachusetts September 4, 1633. It is not certain whether STEPHEN POST was of the first or second party, but probably of the latter.

"For some reason or other, Mr. Hooker and his people migrated in a body, in 1635 or 1636, from Massachusetts Bay southwesterly to the Connecticut River. They founded the city of Hartford in 1636. STEPHEN POST was one of the original proprietors.

"In 1649 he sold his land at Hartford to one Thomas Gridley, and removed to Saybrook, where he spent the remainder of his life until his death, August 16, 1659.

"It is probable that all the children, except ABRAHAM, the youngest, were born in England. The name of STEPHEN POST'S wife is not known with certainty. It is supposed that an entry in the Saybrook records relates to her, viz.: 'ELLENOR POST departed this life November 13, 1670.'

"JOHN and THOMAS, sons of STEPHEN POST, were among the first settlers of Norwich, Connecticut. ABRAHAM, the youngest son of STEPHEN, remained at Saybrook. CATHARINE, daughter of STEPHEN POST, was married to Alexander Chalker in September, 1649.*

"In May, 1680, ABRAHAM POST, son of STEPHEN, was appointed Lieutenant in command of the Saybrook fort. In 1685 he was deputy to the Assembly. He died in 1690. Little is known of his wife, save that her name was MARY. ABRAHAM and MARY POST had eleven children, most of whom remained in Saybrook. STEPHEN, the eldest, removed to what is now the town of Hebron, Connecticut (to lands given to ABRAHAM POST by the will of the Indian Sachem Uncas), in the year 1707 or 1708. He had a numerous family. His descendants for a generation more or less remained in the vicinity of Hebron. OLIVER POST his grandson, removed in the early part of the century to Hinesburg, Vermont. Hence his sons emigrated westward—OLIVER to Northern New York; STEPHEN and JOSEPH to Ohio, then to Indiana, and Iowa. ALSON, the youngest, alone remained in Hinesburg."

To the above records should be added the following: "JOHN POST, eldest son of STEPHEN POST, born in England in 1627, married March, 1652, Hester Hyde, daughter of William Hyde, of Norwich, Connecticut, who was cousin of Anne Hyde, wife of James II. of England when he was Duke of York, and mother of the Queens Mary and Anne.

JOHN POST settled in Saybrook, where four of his nine children were born. He moved to Norwich, Connecticut, in 1660, and was an active and influential man in the town. His wife died at Norwich November 13, 1703, and he died there February 10, 1711, aged 83 years.

For a full list of the descendants of JOHN POST and Hester Hyde, see "Hyde Genealogy," by Walworth,* pp. 11, 12, 13, 56, 57, 58, 201, 203, 1033, 1039.

OF
SOUTHAMPTON, LONG ISLAND.

LIEUTENANT RICHARD POST,
OF SOUTHAMPTON, LONG ISLAND.

We now come to the history of RICHARD POST, of Southampton, and his descendants; the RICHARD POST disinherited by his father, ARTHUR POST, of Maidstone, Kent (see page 7). This ARTHUR, as has already been related, in a deed dated June 4, 1644, "being of grete age," gives to "my cousin, Richard van Mulhen, ten pounds within six months; my second son STEPHEN, and his wife Margaret, all my lands, tenements and hereditaments in Estling, formerly in the possession of my eldest son, RICHARD, being now of New England or some parts beyond the seas, etc., etc."

It has been impossible to trace RICHARD'S whereabouts before his arrival in Southampton. The old town records of Lynn were burned in 1863. There, perhaps, might have been found a clue to his history from the time of his arrival in Massachusetts until we pick up his record with that of the other settlers of Southampton in 1640. It is almost certain that RICHARD was nearly related to STEPHEN POST, who was in Newtown (Cambridge) in 1634.* STEPHEN was among the non-conformists fleeing from persecution in England. That one of the same name should come to Massachusetts about the same time, presumes they were of the same blood, and the fact that RICHARD was much younger than STEPHEN, and was disinherited by his father, would lead to the probability that the younger man followed the elder, and being under his religious influence, wished to share his fate in the life "beyond the seas."

When STEPHEN POST and others, migrating to Connecticut with the Rev. Thomas Hooker, founded the town of Hartford, RICHARD POST evidently preferred to join the band going to Southampton, and from that time, 1640 on, we have his complete history.

In 1640, RICHARD POST, called Lieutenant RICHARD POST, came to Southampton, Long Island, from Lynn, Massachusetts.

The names of the settlers who arrived during the first twelve months, were as follows:

Daniel Howe,	Christopher Foster,
William Harker,	Joseph Raynor,
Thomas Goldsmith,	Ellis Cook,
John Oldfields,	Abraham Pierson,
Samuel Dayton,	Edward Needham,
Thomas Burnet,	Samuel James,
John Howell,	John Gosman,
Thomas Sayre,	Benjamin Haynes,
Edward Howell,	John White,
William Odell,	William Payne,

Thomas Topping,	John Bishop,
John Woodruff,	Henry Walton,
Henry Pierson,	Allen Breed,
RICHARD POST,	Edmund ffarington,
Job Sayre,	Isaac Willman,
George Wells,	John Cooper,
John Jessup,	George Woods,
Josiah Howe,	John Jagger,
Obediah Rogers,	Richard Smith,
John Fordham,	Thomas Hildreth,
John Lum,	John Hampton,
Samuel Osman,	Joshua Barnes,
John Rose,	John Jennings.
James Herrick,

Most of the names mentioned above will be found in the histories of Lynn and other places, in the vicinity of Boston. Many of the persons probably came to Boston with Governor Winthrop, some years before their removal to Long Island. They were generally of a superior class, and of greater intelligence than some who came subsequently to other towns, being both respectable in character and education.

“Edward Howell was the owner of 500 acres at Lynn, and possessed a large estate here at his death, leaving a family whose posterity are very numerous at this day. The same may be said of Sayre, Halsey,

Cooper, POST, Rogers, White, Rose, Wells, Foster and Pierson."

(Thompson's "History of Long Island," vol. I, p. 327-328.)

Among the first records of RICHARD POST is one in May, 1643, when he receives an allotment of land in addition to what he had already received.

His name appears often in the records of the early history of the settlement.

The — of October, 1650, RICHARD POST was chosen Sergeant of the (trained) band.

"Upon the sixth day of October, 1651, at the same court, was chosen for constable and marshal, RICHARD POST, who was sworne to his office the 9th of October, 1651."

October 6, 1657, "At the court of election it was voted and concluded by the maior part that RICHARD POST and John Howell should stand officers according as they were chosen by the souldiers." (RICHARD was chosen.)

"It is uncertain whether any patent was granted to this town (Southampton) previous to 1676, the same having been purchased and settled under a conveyance from the agent of the Earl of Sterling; for which reason the inhabitants did not consider themselves bound by the act of 1665, requiring the towns within the jurisdiction to procure patents for their lands. They found themselves mistaken, however, in the opinion of the Governor and Council, who (October 8, 1670) declared the title to their lands forfeited, unless they should apply for a patent within a limited period. The matter was deferred under various pretexts, till the recapture of New York by the Dutch in 1673, when they despatched deputies to Connecticut requesting again to be taken under their jurisdiction, and to be furnished with assistance should the Dutch attempt their subjugation. October 9, 1673, the court referred their application to a committee to do what might be considered for the mutual advantage of both parties. They were received, accordingly, together with the towns of Easthampton and Southhold, which were thereupon erected into a shire or county, in which a county court was established, judges, and other civil, as well as military officers appointed, and a force sent over for their protection. The Dutch used both persuasion and threats to bring them under subjection, in which they were unsuccessful. After the surrender of the province again to the English, in 1674, these towns were anxious to preserve their alliance with Connecticut, and even appointed a committee to petition the King for that purpose. But Sir Edmund Andros having arrived, required said towns to submit to the government of His Royal Highness the Duke of York, which, as they declined to do, his Excellency on the 18th of November, 1674, peremptorily demanded of them that the former overseers and constables should be restored to their offices, "Under the penalty of being declared rebels"; and he ordered the deputies who had signed a memorial to him on behalf of said towns, namely: John Mulford, John Youngs, and John Howells, to appear and answer before the council,—“on the like penalty.”*

A patent of confirmation for their purchases was subsequently accepted by them, bearing date November 1, 1676, as follows:

PATENT OF GOVERNOR EDMUND ANDROS, 1676.

RICHARD POST must have had some trouble with his hand in advancing years, either through accident or paralysis, for whereas the early deeds bear his full signature, the later ones are signed RICHARD ^{His} ~~X~~ _{Mark} POST.

The later deeds are conveyances of property before his death to his sons, JOHN and JOSEPH POST, his daughter, MARTHA, wife of Benjamin Foster, and his grandson, Benjamin Foster, Jr.

Deed dated April 17, 1688.

The original homestead of RICHARD POST was on the East side of Main Street, and owned in recent years by Capt. Charles Howells. His house was remodeled and the circle has returned to its beginning, for it is now owned by HENRY POST, and the present buildings are known as the "Post Block."

RICHARD POST died about 1689.

He married Dorothy Johnson* and left issue:

1. MARTHA POST, married to Benjamin Foster.
2. THOMAS POST. No record of marriage or issue:
3. JOSEPH POST. A power of attorney given by him in 1675 shows that he had been engaged in business in Talbot County, Maryland. He returned from there, lived and died in Southampton, November 10, 1721. Aged about 72. (For description of his grave, the first in the second burying ground, see Appendix B.)

His name appears in the tax list of 1696. He married Sarah —, but left no issue. His will, dated August 7, 1717, was probated August 12, 1723.

4. JOHN POST, who left, as by his will (for abstract of will see Appendix C) eight children, five daughters and three sons. These sons were (Capt.) JOHN POST, JEREMIAH POST and RICHARD POST II.

Capt. JOHN POST* was the progenitor of all the POSTS at the East end of Long Island; (for these descendants see Charts A and B, Appendix D) those of Montrose and Honesdale, Pa.; Palmyra and Newburgh, N. Y., and California.

The homestead of JOHN POST, bequeathed to his son (Capt.) JOHN POST, was on the East side of Main Street, Southampton. The railroad station now stands on part of it.

JEREMIAH POST, second son of JOHN POST, settled in Hempstead. He had left Southampton before the census of 1698, as his name is not therein mentioned; neither is it mentioned in that of Hemp-stead of 1698, where some POSTS of Dutch descent are recorded. (These were WILLIAM, BARBARA, ANIETJE,* etc. These POSTS moved away and settled in New Jersey. WILLIAM'S will was administered in Perth Amboy in 1724.)

JEREMIAH'S name begins to appear in the Hempstead records in 1700.

The homestead of JEREMIAH POST, in Southampton, was probably sold by him (on leaving Southampton) to his brother, Capt. JOHN POST, who left it to his son JOSEPH POST, and from him to his son JEREMIAH II, who left it to his son SAMUEL POST, who had an only daughter, ELIZABETH, who married Albert Reeves. They had a son, Samuel Post Reeves (lost at sea), and a daughter, ELIZABETH, who married Lemuel Wicks. They had no children, and she left all her property to her cousin on her father's side, Harriet, wife of Capt. Peter R. Rogers, and sister of Hon. James H. Pierson.

*See page 46, about the Dutch Posts.

RICHARD POST II, youngest son of JOHN POST, born about 1684, was a minor child at the time of his father's will, drawn in 1685. The census of Southampton of 1698, gives the name of RICHARD as being there at that time, when he was about fourteen or fifteen years of age. In the same household were his mother, MARY, his sisters, MARY, JR., DEBORAH, SARAH, DOROTHY, MARTHA, and his brother, (Capt.) JOHN POST. After that there is no record of RICHARD in Southampton, and in 1711 his name begins to appear in those of Hempstead as having inherited his brother JEREMIAH'S cattle "ear mark." He became a Quaker and was the grandfather of JOTHAM POST.

The personal peculiarities of the family may be expressed by the Southampton saying: "There never was a POST that wasn't honest."

It will be noticed that JEREMIAH and RICHARD POST'S arrival in Hempstead brought the English branch to settle where the Dutch POSTS had already been for some time, and thus probably began the confusion about their origins, continued later when Richard's grandson, JOTHAM, settled in New York.

RICHARD had become a Quaker, and in the Quaker records we find records of him, of his sons, RICHARD POST, JR. (III), JOSEPH POST, JOHN POST, and his daughter, PHEBE.

Also of his grandsons, the sons of RICHARD POST (III), HENRY, RICHARD (IV), JOTHAM, and others.

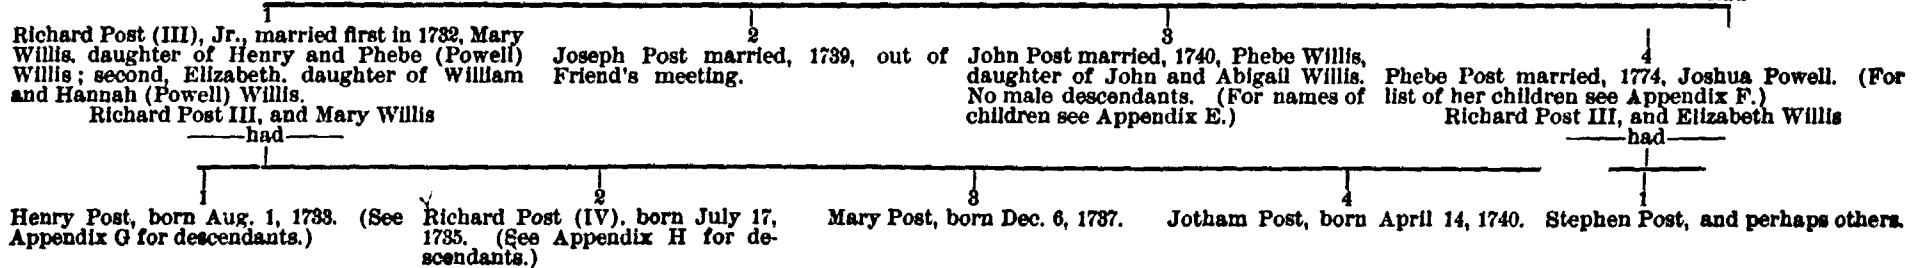

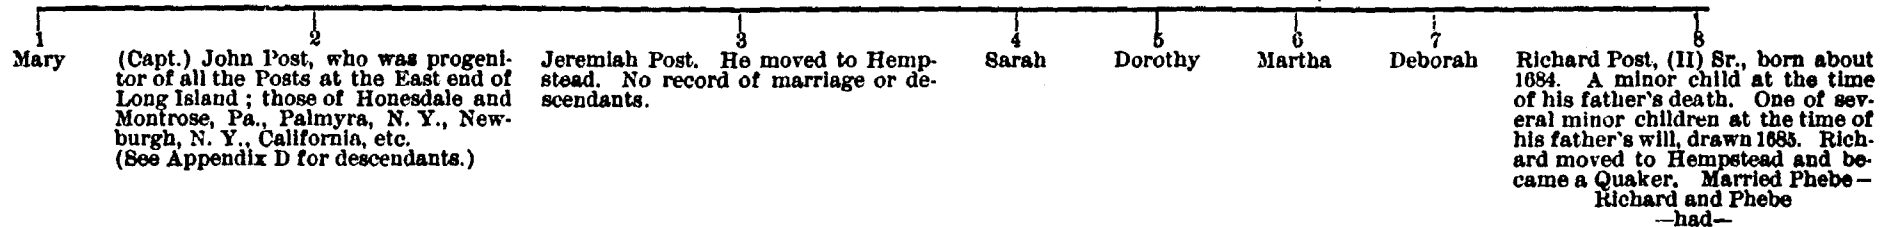

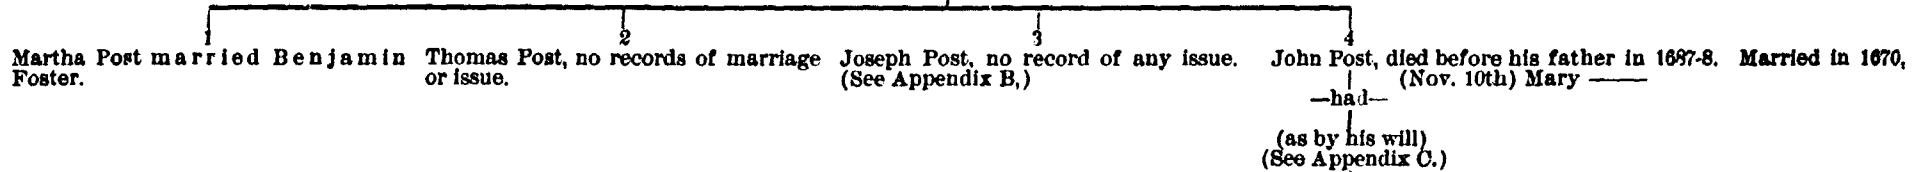

This book aims at giving principally the history of the descendants of JOTHAM POST, but a history of the "POSTS of Queens County," that is, of RICHARD POST (II), and his sons, will be interesting.

THE POSTS IN QUEENS COUNTY.

In the records of the town of Hempstead, before the division (1784) into North and South Hempstead, we find the first record of the brothers JEREMIAH and RICHARD POST, after they came there from Southampton.

For more than two hundred years they and their descendants have dwelt in that part of old Queens that is now Nassau County. Here and there one could find the tradition of visits from their kinsfolk near Southampton; just as remembrance of visits of far-off cousins from Queens County has been told to this generation by one of the Southampton POSTS. Leaving tradition, we find in the town records of the year 1700:

"JEREMIAH POST his (cattle) eare marcke is one half peni on yt C, entered May ye 20, 1700."

In a deed we read, "as witness owre hands and seles ye 9 of October and year 1703.

"JEREMIAH POST."

Under date of 19 February 1704,

"Hempstead in Queen's County on Nawsaw island in the Province of New York." . . . "The third part of a hundred acar Lot of Land Lying on ye north side of ye hills at ye head of ye beavill w't sd third part of hundred acars of Land my brother sold to JEREMIAH POST," is ratified and confirmed.

Beavel or Bevvel hill is about two and a half miles west of Westbury Meeting-house; and this piece of land was owned by EDMUND POST, Senior, within the memory of those now living. It may well have been some of the first land bought by his great-great-uncle, JEREMIAH.

Cattle grazed in common on "the plains," as indeed they did, not so long ago. But to the marks of ownership, which were kept by the town, we owe the first mention of RICHARD POST since his name was given in the census list in Suffolk County thirteen years before.

"RICHARD POST his Ear-marke is the antient marke of his brother JEREMIAH POST . . . , Recorded the 16 day of the fourth month June 1711,

"by mee,

"WILLIAM WILLIS CLARKE."

This is the last time that the name JEREMIAH POST appears in the town records, except a mark recorded in 1747.

The Queens County address to the Howes, October 21, 1776, has among the signers JEREMIAH POST and JOHN POST.

In the "Colonial Series of the Report of the New York State Historian, vol. I, p. 497."

"Captain Tredwell's Train Band Hempstead, September 17, 1715," in "list of train Souldiers."

"RICHARD POST."

RICHARD POST, however, and his son, RICHARD, Junior, are mentioned several times in the Hempstead (town) records. Sometimes it is difficult to tell which is meant.

"RICHARD POSTT Juner his ear mark is a slitt in the near ear and two half penneys on the fore side of ear.

"Entered November 5, 1723."

RICHARD POST, JR., was witness to a deed in 1728.

RICHARD POST. Earmark entered 1731. He was chosen one of the "Surveyors or Overseers of High Ways" in 1744, 1745 and 1747. In March, 1744-5, he requested "a highway Laid out." The names of RICHARD and JOHN POST are signed to a paper concerning this road in 1745.

In 1744, when RICHARD POST, JR., affixed his signature as witness, the record adds that he affirmed. For they were now friends. (Quakers.) We find their names in old leather-bound manuscript volumes, one of the oldest having as its title page:

book of Records of concerns belonging to friends of the Monthly Meeting at Westbury containing a Record of the affairs of friends in four parts began in the year 1730."

It was not strange that they should be moved by the rising wave of the new form of faith that had established itself in Westbury (1697) just before their coming, and that was later to become the prevailing form for that region. Though the lists of those admitted were not kept at that early date, it is certain that in June, 1727, RICHARD POST was a member of the Society of Friends; and in 1728 we find the names of both RICHARD POST and RICHARD, JR., appended to one of the documents signed at the meeting.

There is an inference that the former chose a Quaker wife, and accepted her faith for that reason: for the rule was inexorable that marriage must not be allowed with one not also a Friend.

In Mrs. Bunker's "Early Long Island Families," there is a note of a sale of land by RICHARD and PHEBE POST in 1729. This land must then have been the dower of RICHARD'S wife; for otherwise it was not customary for her to sign the deed.

In 1744, at the marriage of "PHEBE POST, daughter of RICHARD POST, of Westbury, of Township of Hempstead," the first woman to sign the marriage certificate as witness was PHEBE POST. That place was usually given to the mother of the bride.

The name of the place had been changed to Westbury from the unborrowed, descriptive name of Wood-edge. It was too good to keep. One reads, "Also it is adjudged that a meeting shall be kept at the Woodedge." The present year (1903) is the two-hundredth since the quarterly meeting was first held at Woodedge. It is thought that RICHARD POST, the first who came to Queens County, had other sons besides RICHARD, namely: JOSEPH and JOHN. It is certain that he had a daughter, for we have the record of her marriage in "9th mo. 1744," PHEBE POST, daughter of RICHARD POST, SR., of Westbury, to Joshua Powell, son of Thomas Powell, of Bethpage. (See Appendix F).

JOSEPH'S name is earlier mentioned, 1732. Also the next year in record of earmarks.

Both JOSEPH and JOHN were married before 1737; for the meeting then appointed a committee "to speak to JOSEPH and JOHN POST about their going and marrying from amongst Friends." Two or three years later their condemnation was accepted, JOSEPH, also for "bearing arms." There is mention of JOHN in the town records in 1745, when a road was laid out and carefully described. JOHN was disowned by Friends in 1760 for bearing arms. He had two daughters, PHEBE, who married John Powell, of Flushing, and ABIGAIL, who married Henry Pearsall, son of Rowland Pearsall, of Oyster Bay, in 1780. Of those who witnessed this marriage certificate were two JOHN POSTS and JACOB POST.

Lastly, in 1776, JOHN and JEREMIAH POST were found on the address to the Howes.*

RICHARD POST, Junior, married first, Mary Willis, daughter of Henry Willis, in 1732. It was not till three years later that the Friends wrote, "ye 29th day of ye 8th mo. 1735, RICHARD POST and MARY POST gave in each of them a paper condemning their running out from the Order of Friends, and without the consent and knowledge of their parents and being married by a Justice and Friends received them and ordered them to be recorded."

In another volume is the record of their children, with the half-finished date that one wishes the clerk had filled in.

"The Age of RICHARD POST Junr. and his Children, ye sd RICHARD POST was born ye Day of mo 17

"HENRY POST (ye son of ye sd RICHARD POST) was born the first Day of ye 8mo 1733.

"RICHARD POST (ye Son of ye sd RICHARD POST) was born ye 17th Day of ye 5 mo 1735.

"MARY POST (Daughter of Said RICHARD POST) was Born the 6th day of 12 mo in the year 1737-8.

"JOTHAM POST (son of the aforesaid RICHARD POST) was Born the 14th Day of the 4 mo 1740."

"MARY POST wife of RICHARD POST and daughter

* Lord and Sir William Howe.

of Henry Willis died 13th day of 5 mo 1744 in unity with Friends."

RICHARD POST, Junior, married second, Elizabeth Willis, daughter of William Willis. Their children were STEPHEN, SARAH, and perhaps others. STEPHEN removed to Nine Partners,* where we lose the trace when "he Rather chose" to leave the Friends.

But RICHARD POST, not remaining among the Friends, there is an interval till the time of the eldest son, only filled by the order of his going.

"29th day of 11 mo 1745-6." "At the aforesaid meeting . . . were appointed to speak with RICHARD POST concerning his laying of wagers and horse-racing and to endeavor to bring him to a sense of his Misstep."

"26th of 1st mo 1746." "They had treated with RICHARD POST about his lay'g of wagers on Horse Races, and that he seemingly condemned it by word of mouth, but he having been spoke to on that account several times before and he hath not condemned it underhand therefore it is the sense of this meeting not to receive it as a satisfactory Account until he doth refrain and condemn ye same more fully."

spoke with him and that he desired to consider of it till the next monthly meeting." When the chronicle reads, "he was disowned."

HENRY POST, the eldest son of RICHARD POST, lived a long life from 1733 to 1816, in the vicinity of Westbury. The memories of his personality that have been handed down relate to his later days; so that these gleanings from his younger energy are valuable. The enthusiasm of the Colonial Wars had sway when he was a young man. In 1759, the meeting expressed disapproval of Henry Post for being Captain of Militia for one year.

Further we read, "21 of 5 mo 1759. To the mo. mtg. at Westbury. Dear friends, these lines may inform you that I was educated partly under the care and Direction in my very young years until the Decease of my mother and then I was left much to my own Liberty and after I came to the Estate and Condition of a man I was led away into Company and Inlisted in the malitia Service and there Exercised myself in that practice for about the space of one year . . . and had great uneasiness of mind until I could not any Longer Comply to use the Discipline of War . . . I desire to come under care of friends,

"HENRY POST.

"ye 21st of ye 5 mo. 1759."

This was satisfactory. One may note, too, that the war was about over. His first home was where an old cellar long marked the site, just southeast of "Westbury pond" and near the present home of CATHERINE POST WILLIS. This land was recently found to have been his father's. (Tradition fancied his father lived near Wheatly.) This old deed is extremely interesting from its marking a fact not known before,—that he was not the first of the name to follow the alternate occupation of a weaver. I have been told that Westbury was famed for some sorts of fine weaving, and that people came from a distance to have it done. At any rate, some of the napery is at New Utrecht to this day.*

"To all christian people to whom these Presents shall come, Greeting, know ye that I RICHARD POST of Hempstead in Queen's County on Nassau Island weaver for and in the Consideration of the full and just Sum of Eighteen Pounds of Good Current and Lawfull money of the Province of New York to me in hand well and Truly paid by HENRY POST of Westbury in the Town and Island aforesaid Weaver the receipt whereof.....on a certain messuage and small Plot of ground Lying situate and being in Westbuary Lying in the fork or Devision of the Highway Leading from Wheatly Leading Down by John Willis his house and is bounded on south by Thomas Carmons Land on the East North

"RICHARD POST (S)"

"Memorandum that on the day and date within written I RICHARD POST received the full payment and satisfaction for the consideration money within mentioned."

HENRY lived there two or three years, then bought a farm farther west, and much better, he thought. Here the remainder of his life was spent, and after him it was the lifelong home of his youngest son, JAMES.

In 4th month, 1761, HENRY POST and Mary Titus (daughter of Edmund Titus, deceased,) declared their intentions of marriage." On 6 mo. 3, 1761, "HENRY POST, son of RICHARD POST, of Hempstead, in Queen's County, on Nassau Island," married Mary Titus. Among the witnesses were MARY, ELIZABETH, RICHARD and JOTHAM POST. And afterward William Loines and Thomas Seaman made report (to the meeting) "that it was accomplished orderly and well."

From the granddaughters we have pleasant descriptions of this old house, part of which is still standing.

Here his six sons grew to manhood. The eldest son, at the outbreak of the Revolution, is described as "a noble-looking lad, tall and athletic, and of a high spirit,"—doubtless partook of the more positive hereditary temperament. There is a story of him when an old man, bending his keen, dark eyes to the cradles of his blue-eyed grandchildren and saying, "no black eyes yet!"

The British occupation of New York colored the Revolutionary experiences of the Long Island town.

There were English officers and soldiers who were quartered in the house. Major Crief died there. His body-servant, Jack, who remained in the vicinity, became a picturesque reminder of 'old war times.' "

"The Hessians cut down the saplings, then, by pressing teams and wagons, carted them away to forts and barracks. It is a serious loss: in a few years our farms will be without wood for use."

They suffered much loss and annoyance; but after a while it was over. Only "the blood-stains in the old East-room remained."

A great-grandson, now living, says: "Once, Grandfather HENRY POST was coming home from

New York, when, down where Bedford woods used to be, the soldiers took his horse and wagon away. He regained it next day over by the Sound."

On the other hand, they could not voluntarily give support to the American army. The Friends recorded their "sufferings."

"On the 5 mo. 1774 Then came Nehemiah Sammis to my house and Demanded of me five Shillings for not Appearing at a General Training and Upon my refusing to pay it he Took a Table cloth worth 18 shillings.

"Dated 1776.

HENRY POST."

"18th of 2nd. mo. 1778. Took from me 17s and 4 pence for not appearing to stand guard. In 10 mo. 1778, 1-9s-4d."

"On ye 16th of 1 mo. Daniel Toffe and Obediah Valentine Sergeants Under Captain Cornell and Demanded 5 l 5s in Order to pay Some charges in building the Fort at Brooklyn and Pay the Guard as they say and I Being from home they found Money and took 4-5-0.

"HENRY POST."

There are other similar entries, the last in 1780. It was in this year that, his granddaughter relates, he went with some other Friends to Nine Partners. On reaching the Continental lines they were stopped; but on asking to see General Washington they were released, after he had granted them an interview, when he made close inquiry relating to the British force on the island. "They very candidly told him all they knew, and acquainted him with some facts before unknown to him." On their return they were again received, their account listened to, and passed through the lines." The charming character of HENRY POST is drawn as "Henry Pattison," in a little volume called "The Recollections of the American Revolution," written by his granddaughter, LYDIA POST (daughter of his son HENRY) under the name of "Grace Barclay." This book, praised by LYDIA POST's friend, Washington Irving, was printed for private circulation.

HENRY POST was called the "peacemaker" from his success in settling disputes for his neighbors. The wife of HENRY POST was of an early Long Island family. She was a descendant of Edmund and Martha Titus, whose "memorials" are kept in manuscript by so many of their descendants. They both lived to great age, and Edmund Titus was one of the first settlers in Westbury. Born in England, in 1630, in the "register of all the passengers which passed from ye Port of London for one whole yeare ending at Christmas 1635." And as embarkers in the ship Hopewell are "Robert Titus of St. Katherines age 35, uxor Hanna Titus 31. Jo. Titus 8, Edmund 5." Doubtless it was "a chaste, zealous and godly life that was revived by their granddaughter." MARY POST, widow of HENRY POST, died "13th of 10th mo. 1823 aged 82 years."

The second RICHARD POST, JR. (RICHARD IV), was the second son of RICHARD POST, JR., and Mary Willis. Less is known of him.

The marriage bond of RICHARD POST and Hannah Beddle bears date August 31, 1757. "At a meeting at Westbury ye 25 of ye 2nd month 1761, RICHARD POST Jr. of Nine Partners requested some account from us concerning his conduct from his Youth, and so upwards to the Time he removed away from the Island to Nine Partners, which relation was drawn up and read," "and sent. It was perhaps not quite what he hoped for, and rather unusual." It was the sense and judgment of this meeting yt. we could not properly give him any Certificate, because he was not taken under the care of Friends by request before he removed from us," but the clerk was to "write to the Monthly Meeting at the Nine Partners and give them a brief relation of the reasons, and of his wild Conduct, when young, and of his return to be more sober, some Time before he left us." But in 12 mo. 1774 RICHARD POST was admitted a Friend at Nine Partners. A Removal Certificate was sent from Nine Partners to New York, in 1793, for RICHARD POST "removed to New York." Another was sent, in 1797, to Saratoga, for RICHARD POST. Whether he had gone back to Nine Partners we do not know. Other POSTS removed to Saratoga about this time. One, HENRY POST, a minister, in 1794.

RECAPITULATION.

RICHARD (III), CALLED "RICHARD, JR."

RICHARD POST III, of North Hempstead, Long Island, sometimes spoken of in the Society of Friends (Quakers) as RICHARD, Jr. His first marriage to Mary Willis was against consent of parents, but "29th day of 8th month, RICHARD and MARY POST professed sorrow for having been married by a Justice and not according to Friends' order and without the consent and knowledge of their parents."

Friends received them again as members and ordered them recorded. (Extract from Friends' records).

RICHARD POST (III) and Mary Willis, his first wife, had—

1. HENRY POST, born August 1, 1733. Married 1761, to Mary Titus. (For account of HENRY POST see page 83 and for chart of descendants see Appendix G.)

*MARY (Willis) POST died in 1744, May 13th.

* Henry Willis, the common ancestor of the families bearing that name upon the Island, was born at Westbury in Wiltshire, England, September 14, 1628, where he married Mary Peace, in 1654. On account of his predilections in favor of the sect called Quakers, he was unable to enjoy the liberty he desired, and therefore resolved to try his fortunes in America. He arrived here about the year 1670, and made a purchase of land in a part of the town, which he called, from the place of his nativity, Westbury.—(Thompson's "History of Long Island," note to P. 53, Vol. II.)

2. RICHARD POST, born May 17, 1735. Married Hannah Bedle, August 31, 1757. (For marriage bond see "Marriage Bonds," vol. I: 627 in New York State Library, Albany.) Died August 8, 1813; buried in New York. Hannah Bedle was born August 28, 1734. (For account of RICHARD POST (IV) see page 89 and for descendants see Appendix H.)

3. MARY POST, born December 6, 1737-8.

4. JOTHAM POST, born April 14, 1740. Married Winifred Wright, April 20, 1763. (For marriage bond see New York State Library, Albany. "Marriage Bonds," 7:114.)

RICHARD POST III. and Elizabeth Willis, his second wife, had—

STEPHEN, SARAH, and perhaps others. (STEPHEN removed to Nine Partners, where the Quaker records lost trace of him, when "he rather chose to leave the Friends.")

JOTHAM POST,

BORN 1740,

AND HIS DESCENDANTS.

JOTHAM POST.

Third son of RICHARD POST III and Mary Willis, was born in Westbury, North Hempstead, April 14, 1740. Died in New York, January 25, 1817. Married April 20, 1763, Winifred Wright, daughter of Benjamin Wright, of Oyster Bay, descendant of Peter Wright.*

Winifred Wright was born April 12, 1745. Died May 29, 1811.

In the volume, "Records of First Church, Huntington, Long Island, 1723-1779," is the following record of marriage:

"Huntington, 1763, April 20. JOTHAM POST—Winifred Wright. JOTHAM POST, of Queen's County; Winifred Wright, of Suffolk County.

Baptized 1768, July 22. WRIGHT POST."

JOTHAM POST was a Quaker, but on account of his marriage with one not a member of the Society of Friends, he was expelled from the Society, and probably soon after moved to New York. In his marriage bond (in New York State Library, Albany, "Marriage Bonds," 7:114.) JOTHAM POST

* The first actual transfer of land in the township of Oyster Bay was by an Indian deed given in 1653 to Peter Wright, Samuel Mayo and William Leveredge, with whom were soon associated William Washburn and his son John. ("Early Long Island," by Martha Bockee Flint, p. 189.)

states his occupation as weaver, for in the Society of Friends every member was obliged to learn a trade (see page 90), and the community at Hempstead were principally weavers. As soon as he left the Society, he adopted other pursuits, and raised cattle, droves of which were regularly sent to market. In the history of the "Old Fly Market" he is spoken of as follows:

"JOTHAM POST, another prominent character, was in his day considered one of the most scientific men in the business. He studied the anatomy of the animals which the men converted into food, as the surgeon studies that of men. He was a man of education, yet his kind and truthful disposition, oftentimes by the unscrupulous, led him to be imposed upon.

"In the year 1768, we find him named as one of the executors to the estate of Susan Wright.

"After the Revolution had begun, he removed to Brooklyn, for better protection, as he was a man of peace, and therefore not called upon to take up arms; he was, however, obliged to swear allegiance to King George the third.

"While living in Brooklyn, there were many occasions offered during the war by which he could display the kindness of his heart, in the relief of the sick and needy, or the poor afflicted prisoner. Soon after peace was proclaimed, he removed to New York, in Cherry Street.*

"In 1795 he gave up business, having been induced to accept the office of Assistant Alderman of the Fifth Ward, during the years 1796 to 1800. Alderman POST is yet spoken of as having been an honest, conscientious and humane magistrate.

"He was one of the governors of the New York hospital in 1795 and 1796, and again in 1801 and 1802."

WRIGHT POST, M. D.,

BORN 1766,

AND HIS DESCENDANTS.

SECOND BRANCH.

WRIGHT POST, M. D.

This gentleman, so justly ranked among the most eminent surgeons and physicians of the United States, was the son of JOTHAM, and grandson of RICHARD POST, of North Hempstead, L. I., where he was born February 19, 1766. His mother was a daughter of Benjamin Wright, of Oyster Bay. He is said to have possessed, from childhood, a remarkably quiet, amiable and accommodating temper, yet was resolute and firm of purpose, industrious and active, both in mind and in body. He was never known to engage in the mischievous sports and dangerous intrigues so common at country schools; and his mother has been heard to say that his conduct was never such as to occasion her any uneasiness on his account. Little is known of his early instruction or pursuits. While a boy, he was placed under the tuition of Master David Beatty, in the village of Hempstead, from whom he received the primary elements of an English education; casual opportunities for improvement enabled him to add to his village instruction, by an attendance on other teachers of higher attainments.

In 1781 young POST was placed under the superintendence of Dr. Richard Bayley, at that time the most celebrated and skilful surgeon in the city of New York. With this eminent man, he prosecuted his studies with great zeal and success,—the limited anatomical collection of his preceptor giving him a tolerably fair opportunity of securing a substantial proficiency in a knowledge of the human structure, and his surgical science being tested by practical expositions in the hands of his master. Yet finding that his professional attainments might be greatly increased by foreign travel, he repaired to London in 1784, then only eighteen years old, and became a house pupil of the far-famed Sheldon, whose reputation as a teacher of anatomy and surgery was deservedly high. The zeal of the master was felt by the pupil, and his progress was great. He also attended the valuable lectures of John Hunter and George Fordyce.

That these great opportunities of acquiring knowledge were not lost upon him, we have the evidence, in the lessons of general anatomy and surgery, which he afterwards delivered to admiring students, upon his return to his own country in the fall of 1786. His skill in the practical display of his subjects, by the scalpel, was a means of adding much to the value of his oral communications. Having spent, as we have seen, about two years and a half abroad, during all which period he was closely engaged in anatomical and physiological pursuits, and in hospital practice, he commenced his profession in the city of New

SECOND BRANCH.

York, and in the following year delivered his first course of lectures on anatomy in the unappropriated apartments of the New York hospital, while surgery was taught by Dr. Bayley.

But owing to the imprudent exposure of an anatomical specimen by some pupils, the business of instruction was interrupted, the building itself broken into, by what is well remembered as the "Doctors' Mob," and the cabinet of anatomical preparations of his first preceptor, heaped into carts, carried off, and triumphantly buried.

In 1790 he married the daughter of Dr. Bayley, who now advised him to repair again to London, in order still further to carry into successful operation his intentions of a teacher of anatomy and surgery, by procuring a suitable anatomical museum. In this interesting object he was eminently successful, as he brought out with him, in 1793, a collection of sound and morbid specimens, which was deservedly considered the largest and rarest in this country. It was during this second visit to Europe, that he availed himself of the valuable instructions of Cruickshank and the late Dr. Matthew Baillie. Under them, Dr. POST prepared some of the first and most beautiful injections of the absorbent system which were ever seen.

SECOND BRANCH.

Upon the reorganization of the medical schools of New York, after the Revolutionary contest, by the trustees of Columbia College, Dr. POST was appointed, by that body, to the department of surgery, while Dr. Bayley held that of anatomy; but on his return, in 1793, an exchange took place, and consequently he assumed the responsibilities of teacher of anatomy. Some of his surgical operations were of the most extraordinary nature, and attended with wonderful success. His fame increased with age and experience; and from this time till 1813,—a period of twenty years,—he discharged the duties of professor of anatomy and physiology in this institution with unexampled success, while he had for associates, in other departments of the healing art, such men as Bayley, Mitchell, Hammersley, Hosack, Francis, Stringham, Rogers, Smith, Macneven and Mott, which, upon the union of the medical faculty of Columbia College with the College of Physicians and Surgeons, and the State medical school of the regents of the university, now embracing, under one head, the faculties of the two rival institutions, presented a confederacy of names, several of which had been long conspicuous in the various departments of physical science.

While anatomy was taught by POST and Dr. John Augustine Smith, surgery received its best illustrations by Mott, the practice of physic its soundest doctrines by Hosack, juridical medicine, now first taught in this country, by Stringham, and the collateral branches of the healing art imparted by the lectures of Professors Macneven, Mitchell and Francis.

SECOND BRANCH.

The health of Dr. POST was always delicate, and for the purpose of recruiting it, he made a third voyage to Europe in 1815, and returning the next year with renewed vigor, he resumed his professional duties. In 1816 he was chosen a trustee of Columbia College, which office he held during the residue of his life. He was also a member of the Literary and Philosophical Society of New York, and a counsellor for several years, while he was, for more than thirty-five years, a surgeon of the New York Hospital.

Upon the decease of Dr. Bard, in 1821, he was appointed his successor as president of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, which he retained till 1826, when he resigned his several offices in the university, and confined himself to the practice of his art until a short time before his death, which took place at his country seat at Throgg's Neck, June 14, 1828, and a suitable tablet was afterward erected to his memory in Grace Church, New York, of which church he was vestryman for a number of years.

SECOND BRANCH.

From this hasty outline, it will be perceived that Dr. POST was engaged for a period of nearly forty years as teacher of anatomy; and his reputation as such has rarely been surpassed. His surgical fame will mainly rest on his distinguished operation for tying the subclavian artery above the clavicle, on the scapular side of the scaleni muscles, for a brachial aneurism, situated so high in the axilla as to make it expedient to tie this artery.

With other advantages in early life, and a more devoted taste for literary acquisitions, he might have shone with greater brilliancy. But he was, neither from education, nor from his natural or acquired habits of reflection, qualified to distinguish himself in the ranks of medical literature; and except for a very few papers descriptive of some of his most interesting surgical cases, he has left nothing as an evidence of literary talent. There is reason to believe that he was greatly averse to the exercise of writing. His introductory lectures seldom exhibited proofs of originality of thought, nor did his anatomical and physiological lectures evince any great research, beyond the plain and obvious trait which duty and decency prescribed.

SECOND BRANCH.

Nevertheless, as a teacher, his lectures were characterized by judgment, accuracy and minuteness, and few have rivaled him as the expositor of anatomical science. His general learning was, however, very limited, and he was too indifferent to the improvements which the investigations of modern physiologists and pathologists have made. (Thompson's "History of Long Island," Appendix, vol. II.)

"Probably the most noted surgeon of the beginning of the century, and one most frequently quoted in the annals of the city (New York), was WRIGHT POST (1766-1828), one of the first American pupils of John Hunter, in London, being one of a class of ten from different parts of the world. He became professor of surgery, and subsequently of anatomy, in Columbia College. He was a careful, slow, and elegant operator, the first in America to tie the subclavian artery above the clavicle or collar-bone."

(Memorial History of New York.

by James Wilson.)

The records of the New York Hospital state that Doctor WRIGHT POST served the institution thirty-six years; from 1792 to 1821, as surgeon; from 1821 to 1828 (the year of his death), as Consulting Surgeon.

SECOND BRANCH.

WRIGHT POST, M. D.

Born February 19th, 1766. Died June 14, 1828. Married in 1790, Mary Magdalen, daughter of Richard Bayley, M. D. She died April 9, 1856.

Of Mary Bayley's parentage, the following account is interesting; it is taken from "An old family, or the Setons of Scotland," by Monsignor Seton (Robert Seton, D. D.)

"The first who came to the Colonies was William Bayley, a younger son of the Bayleys of 'Haddes-ton,' in Hertfordshire, England, whose arms were: 'Argent, three torteaux—two and one—a chief gules.' He sailed from Lynn Regis for New York in 1726. He was a gentleman of means and education, and came originally only on his travels, but falling in love with Susannah, the beautiful daughter of William Le Compte, or Le Conte as he always wrote it, of the French settlement at New Rochelle, New York, he married her and remained there. The family of William Bayley's wife, Susannah Le Conte, is said in Baird's "History of the Huguenot Emigration to America" (vol. II, p. 75), to derive from Guillaume Le Conte, who was born in Rouen, March 6, 1659, and died in New York in 1720. There is a family tradition that he was descended on his mother's or grandmother's side from the Barons de Nonant. Guillaume Le Conte married, February 17, 1701, Margaret de Valteau, daughter of Pierre Joyeaux de Valteau, of the Island of Martinique, who died soon after, leaving one child, a son, called William, born December 3, 1701. (He was married twice, and his first wife was Grace, daughter of George Walrond, Esq., of the Island of Barbadoes, whose father was a distinguished Royalist Commander in the Civil War in England, and had been created, in 1653, by Philip IV of Spain, 'Marquis de Vallads, etc.' The title continued in the family, and is found among other 'Foreign titles of Nobility' at the end of 'Burk's Peerage.')

SECOND BRANCH.

"William Le Conte married Ann Besly, of New Rochelle, and had two daughters, the younger of whom, Susannah, married William Bayley. William Bayley had two sons by this marriage, Richard Bayley, born at Fairfield, Connecticut, about 1744 (the church records were burnt during the Revolution, hence the uncertainty of the exact date), and William Bayley, born at New Rochelle, August 8, 1745.

"Richard Bayley married twice, first in 1767, Catherine Charlton, daughter of Rev. Richard Charlton, and Mary Bayeux, his wife. Mrs. Richard Bayley died at Newtown, Long Island, in May, 1777, leaving two daughters, Mary, who married Dr. WRIGHT POST, and Elizabeth Ann, who married William Seton.

SECOND BRANCH.

"The Rev. Richard Charlton, mentioned above, was descended from a family of distinction in Ireland. One of his daughters (sister of Catherine, wife of Richard Bayley,) married Lord Dongan, Governor of the Province of New York, afterwards Earl of Limerick. Rev. Richard Charlton was at one time assistant minister of Trinity Church, New York, from 1732 to 1747.

"Richard Bayley married the second time, June 16, 1778, Charlotte Amelia Barclay, daughter of Andrew Barclay and Helen Roosevelt. They had a large family of sons and daughters, one of whom, Guy Carleton Bayley born 1786, married Grace Roosevelt November 14, 1813, and their eldest son was Archbishop Bayley, of Baltimore, Maryland.

"Charlotte Amelia Barclay, second wife and widow of Richard Bayley, and sister-in-law of Augustus van Cortland, Sr., is buried near the Van Cortland Manor house, on 'Vault Hill,' where the inscription reads:

Charlotte Amelia Bayley, relict of Doctor Richard Bayley, who died the 1st day of Sept., 1805."

SECOND BRANCH.

Rev. RICHARD BAYLEY POST married February 13, 1866, Eliza Dean Arden, daughter of Colonel Thomas B. Arden.

Colonel Arden was born at Yorkville, July 27, 1813. Entered West Point in 1831, graduated in 1835, and was assigned to the 7th Infantry. After graduation, he immediately entered on active service and was sent out to the Indian frontier. He was engaged in the Seminole War. He returned to the Academy at West Point as assistant instructor of infantry tactics, resigned in 1842, taking up his residence on his father's estate, occupying the old Beverly Robinson house, once Arnold's headquarters while in command at West Point. Shortly before his father's death he removed to the homestead, Ardenia, in 1866.

At the outbreak of the Rebellion, in 1861, he offered his services to the United States Government through General Scott, and, not hearing from Washington, he was requested to serve as aide to Major-General Sandford, which he consented to do (with the rank of major), and went through the Patterson campaign. On the return of that body, at the instance and advice of Major-General Richard Delafield, U. S. Army, Governor Edwin D. Morgan appointed him his military adviser and aide with the rank of colonel. In this latter capacity he rendered his best and most efficient service, both to his country and State; for, while nominally but an aide-de-camp, he was the Board of Examination for all officers desiring commands in all branches of the service, and was constantly occupied visiting the camps of volunteers in various parts of the State. Afterward he was detailed to be near the United States Government and look after the general interests of our troops in field, camp and hospital, especially the Army of the Potomac and its adjacent commands.

On the expiration of Governor Morgan's administration Colonel Arden returned to private life, and to the resumption of the quiet retirement on his estate and the pleasures and tastes of the old-time country gentleman, where he always found abundant amusement as well as resource. For many years he kept a meteorological journal for the benefit of the Smithsonian Institute. He was interested in the Putnam County Agricultural Society, and in this connection was the assistant of our government in the introduction of many seeds of various vegetables to the neighboring farmers. Colonel Arden took a great interest in the beautiful little parish church of St. Philip's, in the Highlands, and had special charge of the grounds surrounding it, serving for a long time as both vestryman and warden.

Colonel Arden married Jane de Peyster, a direct descendant of Hon. Johannes de Peyster.

"When the great Civil War broke out JOHN EAGER HOWARD POST joined the Confederate Army. He left Baltimore, Maryland, September 3, 1861, and enlisted first as a private in Company A, 1st Maryland Infantry, C. S. Army, serving in this capacity in all the battles in which the 1st Maryland Infantry was engaged, and when his term of service expired, he joined the 1st Maryland Cavalry Regiment, C. S. Army, and was shortly after elected 1st Lieutenant of Company C. He served with distinction and was soon after chosen adjutant of same regiment with rank of lieutenant, and afterward rank of captain, which he held to the close of the war. He fought in most of the great battles,—was with "Ashby," "Ewell," "J. E. B. Stewart," and in the "Stonewall Brigade," and with General R. E. Lee's army. Among other battles, he was present at Gettysburg. He was a gallant and accomplished soldier, and readily won the love, respect and esteem of all who knew him.

After the close of the war he returned to his home in Baltimore, in May, 1865, and soon after engaged in mercantile pursuits.

SECOND BRANCH.

When the "Fifth Maryland Regiment" was organized he was one of the first to join and was chosen first lieutenant of Company K, and afterward elected captain of the same company, which position he held at the time of his death. His teacher in Florence was the celebrated Prof. Domengé, member of the French Academy, who after 1849 left France to settle in Florence, where for forty years the Institute Domengé was one of the great educational centres. He graduated in 1891 among the first in his class. He returned to Baltimore, September, 1891, and entered the "Johns Hopkins University," October, 1891, from which he graduated, taking his degree of B. A. in June, 1894.

In 1895 he went abroad with his mother and half-brother, Lloyd Shippen, for a year's travel. Returned to the University in October, 1896, to take a Ph.D. in French, but his health broke down during the winter of 1896-97 and he was obliged to leave college. ALFRED CHARLES POST, M. D.

ALFRED CHARLES POST, M. D., fifth child of JOEL POST and Elizabeth Browne, was born January 13, 1806; died February 7, 1886; married April 13, 1831, to Harriet Beers. The following is among the very many obituary notices of Dr. POST:

"Dr. ALFRED C. POST, the well-known surgeon, died yesterday (February 7, 1886,) at his residence, No. 291 Madison Avenue, in the eighty-first year of his age.

"Dr. POST was the son of JOEL POST, an eminent merchant of the old firm of J. & J. POST, formerly of Hanover Square. JOEL POST in his lifetime occupied as his country seat the property known as Claremont, now forming in part the Riverside Park, and embracing the site of General Grant's tomb. Much of this property still remains in the ownership of the family. Dr. POST entered Columbia College when less than fourteen years old, and, in fact, was prepared to enter college two years earlier. After his graduation, in 1822, he became a medical student in the office of his uncle, Dr. WRIGHT POST, an eminent surgeon of a former generation. He also took the course of instruction in the College of Physicians and Surgeons, where he graduated in 1827. He then went to Europe to complete his medical education, studying in Paris, Berlin and Edinburgh. On his return, in 1829, he began the active practice of his profession in this city (New York) and continued it until the week before his death, a period of nearly fifty-seven years. He had a preference for surgical practice, and in that department he won his greatest fame. In his operations he exhibited marked precision and dexterity, and great mechanical ingenuity in devising instruments and appliances. He first in America operated for stammering, and as early as 1840 devised a new method of performing bilateral lithotomy. His love for surgery kept him in active practice as a surgeon after he reached eighty years of age, a later period of active practice than that reached by any other surgeon in this city.

THIRD BRANCH.

"Dr. POST as early as 1836 was made one of the attending surgeons at the New York Hospital,* and more recently was connected with the medical staff of St. Luke's and the Presbyterian Hospital. He was one of the founders of the medical department of the University of the City of New York, taking the chair of surgery and pathological anatomy, and at the time of his death was President of the Medical Faculty and Emeritus Professor of Clinical Surgery in that institution. His skill and devotion gave him early distinction in his profession, and he was widely known in this country and in Europe.

* Dr. Alfred C. Post, according to the records of the New York Hospital, served that institution fifty years. He was surgeon from 1836 to 1853, and consulting surgeon from 1853 until his death in 1886.

THIRD BRANCH.

"Aside from his mechanical skill in operations, perhaps Dr. POST'S greatest eminence was due to his encyclopedic knowledge. His memory was apparently never at fault, and all manner of learning and statistical information, together with the choicest treasures of literature, seemed to be at all times subject to his instant command. He was very active in the usual medical meetings and conventions, reading many important papers on these occasions. None of his writings, however, were published in book form, except some early publications on strabismus, club feet and stammering. In late years he labored much in the line of plastic surgery, and made important reports of operations in that line. From early life he was a devoted and consistent Christian. He was connected with many of the theological, religious, and charitable societies of this city, giving largely of his time and of his means in this direction. At the time of his death he was President of the New York Medical Missionary Association, one of the Directors of the Union Theological Seminary, and an Elder in the Church of the Covenant. About the year 1831 Dr. POST married Harriet, a daughter of Cyrenius Beers, whom he survived nearly nine years. Of their children, three sons and four daughters survive their father. One of his sons, GEORGE E. POST, of the Presbyterian Mission, at Beirut, Syria, has also reached distinction as a surgeon."

Appointed Professor of Surgery in the Syrian Protestant College 1867; and later made President of the college.

All his studies and degrees taken in various branches of learning were intended to fit him for missionary work, where knowledge of medicine, dentistry and surgery are as important as theology.

THIRD BRANCH.

After his marriage, in 1863, GEORGE POST went to Syria as a missionary under the American Board, but when the "Syrian Protestant College" was founded in Beirut he accepted a call to the chair of "Surgery and Diseases of the Eye and Ear," and has held that position ever since. In connection with his work as professor he holds two clinics a week at the "Johanniter Hospital," of Beirut, at which he treats from seventy-five to one hundred day patients in surgery, reserving the heavy cases for operation and regular treatment in the wards of the hospital. He also carries on a private city practice, which he uses as a means of giving further training to his surgical students.

He has written in the Arabic language, text books on surgery, physiology and natural history; and prepared an Arabic Concordance and an Arabic Bible Dictionary, besides many articles for scientific and religious papers in English. His last work is the completion of his "Flora of Syria and Palestine," the result of thirty years' study and fifteen years' actual preparation, and this work has been done only in recreation hours in addition to his regular work. He has kept up his preaching, holding a regular Sunday service at the Hospital, and preaching something like once in three weeks either at the College Chapel or at other places of worship.

Abby Church and Clementine Church (wife of EDWARD POST, and afterward of WRIGHT E. He captured Annawon, the great Indian Chief, and put an end to "King Philip's War."

Colonel Benjamin Church was born at Duxbury, near Plymouth, in 1639. He settled after the war in Rhode Island, first at Bristol, then at Fall River, lastly at Seconet.

GEORGE BROWNE POST.

Eldest son of JOEL BROWNE POST and grandson of JOEL POST, was born in New York, December 15, 1837. After leaving Mr. Churchill's Military School he studied at the University of the City of New York and graduated in the class of Civil Engineering in 1858. Immediately after his graduation he began the study of architecture under the late Richard Morris Hunt, a man whose name will remain famous in the annals of the profession in this country not only for his own noble works, but for the influence he exerted upon his art and the many noted leaders of architecture in America who were his pupils.

At the outbreak of the Civil War, in 1861, GEORGE POST had just begun the practice of his profession. He, however, laid aside his chosen career, entered the army as Captain of the 22d N. G. N. Y.—he had previously been Captain of the Regiment of Union Greys, which had been organized for home service, from which the 22d Regiment was formed.

GEORGE POST'S record during the service of the 22d Regiment in the field is as follows:

Captain, commissioned September 24, 1861, commanding Company C during the first campaign in Maryland and Virginia, and second campaign, in

THIRD BRANCH.

1863, in Pennsylvania and Maryland, and New York during the riots.

He served as Captain and volunteer aid to General Burnside, commanding the Army of the Potomac, at the time of the battle of Fredericksburg, and was thanked on leaving the staff, "for distinguished services" in special orders.

On November 3, 1863, GEORGE POST was elected Major of the 22d Regiment.

Lieutenant-Colonel, January 12, 1866.

Colonel, February 8, 1867.

Resigned September 12, 1868. Honorably discharged January 9, 1869.

To quote from a biographical article on GEORGE BROWNE POST, the following is added:

"Among the great architects, not only of the United States but of the modern world, Mr. GEORGE B. POST occupies a position of singular prominence.

THIRD BRANCH.

It is a fact recognized by the public as well as by his own profession, and it may further be said that no individual has done so much to beautify and adorn the metropolis. It would be impossible to even suggest the number of architectural works now adorning New York and other cities that are due to his genius. The long list of public and private constructions include many of the most famous residences in the city, together with such notable features of New York as the Equitable, the Mills, the Times, the Havemeyer and Post buildings, the New York Hospital, the Produce and Cotton Exchanges, Chickering Hall; the residences of Mr. Cornelius Vanderbilt and Mr. C. P. Huntington. At the World's Fair, in Chicago, in 1893, he was the architect of the Manufacturers and Arts Building. While Mr. POST has been a successful and exceedingly busy man, he has also been a public-spirited citizen, giving his advice and experience ungrudgingly for the benefit of his city upon matters of an artistic or professional character."

GEORGE BROWNE POST was President of the Architectural League and of the American Institute of Architects; also President of the Fine Arts Federation of New York. He is a member of many of the principal sporting clubs in the country and the principal social clubs of New York.

THIRD BRANCH.

DINNER TO GEORGE B. POST.

"The Vanderbilt gallery in the Fine Arts Building has been the scene of many important gatherings, but of none more interesting than the dinner given last night by the Architectural League to GEORGE B. POST, the architect. It was a memorable occasion in every way. Four hundred men sat down to the table, representing not only architecture, sculpture, and decoration, but writers upon these subjects, and laymen who are interested in them, with a fair sprinkling of visitors from other cities, lay and professional."

"The whole affair was characterized by a genuine and spontaneous enthusiasm. The occasion was primarily intended to honor a man who is a leader of the architectural profession in this city. But it meant even more than this. It was a recognition of the part which the architects, as a body, have played in the general progress of the past quarter of a century; the stimulus which they have given to the sister arts of sculpture and painting; and the debt which all who are interested in national and civic improvement owe to them."

"American architecture is as distinctively American as our constitution. It has had to face conditions of its own, and to meet them by methods which it has been obliged to discover for itself. For example, the use of wrought iron and steel construction has revolutionized architecture just as much as it has revolutionized ship-building. It has greatly increased the scope of knowledge-necessary to an architect. He needs to be much of an engineer also. And here is found the special appropriateness of coupling Mr. POST's name with the movement."

"He was brought up as a civil engineer, so that since he has practised architecture, he has been able, as an expert, to exercise a strong direction over the new combination. As a matter of fact, the first use of iron construction in a building was made by him. In the Produce Exchange Building, in this city, some nineteen years ago, he built for the central courtyard wall a cage of cast and wrought iron, with panels of brickwork; the precursor of the present steel cage. Since then the 'epidemic of steel construction' has spread wide and high, and the number of problems it has presented for immediate solution is incalculable. To mention only one: the relative responsibility of the frame-work and of the masonry in supporting weight is a most important one. Mr. POST has always contended for the conservative view, making his masonry sufficiently thick to provide an adequate protection to the steel, and also strong enough to support itself and to resist the tendency to expand in case of conflagration."

THIRD BRANCH.

"Moreover, in the encouragement of mural painting and sculpture, Mr. POST has done much. The World's Fair was certainly most important in the opportunity it gave to sculptors and painters to work in connection with architecture. Messrs. McKim, Mead & White probably designed the Agricultural Building with a view to exterior color; at any rate, it entered early into their scheme. But in the pavilion of the Manufactures Building there was no such need of figure compositions on the ceilings. They were a luxury, and probably no one but Mr. POST could have secured them. He simply assumed that there could be no doubt about their advisability, and over rode the opposition."

"The considerations thus roughly outlined formed the framework around which the various speeches of the evening were built. Mr. Russel Sturgis went over much of the ground, dwelling especially upon the interior decoration which Mr. POST had been instrumental in introducing into private mansions. Notable speeches were made by non-professional men: the Rev. Thomas Hastings; Mr. Beck, a lawyer, of Philadelphia; and Judge Howland. Mr. Beck made the hit of the evening, when he said that Philadelphians have the advantage over New Yorkers in that from their distance of ninety miles off they alone could view New York sky-scrapers in their proper perspective. Judge Howland made a witty speech, in which he recited the war experience of Mr. POST and himself."

THIRD BRANCH.

"The reception gallery was hung with drawings of some of the most important buildings for which Mr. POST has been responsible; the place of honor being occupied by drawings and blueprints of the famous Manufactures' Building at the World's Fair. This colossal structure, the largest of the kind ever constructed, was perhaps typical of Mr. POST's general work: big, well adapted to utilitarian needs, and possessing a large measure of dignity. Around the walls of the Vanderbilt gallery were hung specimens of mural paintings executed for Mr. POST's buildings, including the detail drawing of Mr. Lathrop's ceiling in Mr. C. P. Huntington's New York house, and Mr. Millet's tympanum, that soon will be placed in the Agricultural Bank of Pittsburg, as a companion to Mr. Blashfield's, which is already in place."

"The gathering was presided over by Mr. Bruce Price, and will be memorable, not only as a personal tribute, but as an object lesson of the strength of the art movement in this city."

"From the 'Evening Post,' December 16, 1897."

CHARLES ALFRED POST.

CHARLES ALFRED POST, born in New York City, January 6, 1844, is the second son of JOEL BROWNE POST, and a grandson of JOEL POST.

He entered Columbia College at the age of fifteen years, and at the end of his sophomore year was given the prize for oratory.

In 1861, he joined the 22d Regiment as a private, and during the space of one year held the positions of corporal, second sergeant, first sergeant, color sergeant, and sergeant major.

During the Civil War campaign of 1862 he was promoted in the field to the grade of second lieutenant of Company C. On the return of the one hundred day troops, he resigned his commission and started his senior year at Columbia College. Before the end of the first term, however, he received the offer of an appointment in the Navy, upon a vessel commanded by Captain John P. Bankhead, a friend of his father. He therefore applied to the college authorities and received an honorable discharge, signed by the president, Charles A. King, which stated that he had creditly performed his college duties and was withdrawn with the regret of the faculty.

THIRD BRANCH.

His next service, therefore, was upon the U. S. S. "Florida," commanded by John P. Bankhead, attached to the North Atlantic Squadron, and stationed off Wilmington, N.-C.

During this period of his service, the Florida participated in a number of minor engagements and captured several prizes. Captain Bankhead was finally invalided and sent to New York. The darkest days of the war had passed, and, at the earnest solicitation of his parents, CHARLES A. POST sent in his resignation and entered the Columbia College Law School, from which he graduated with the degree of LL.B. He actively practised the profession of law but a short time, various important family interests soon demanding his undivided attention.

On November 18, 1874, he received the commission of captain upon the staff of General Alexander Shaler, commanding the First Division of New York State troops. In this service he was promoted, March 27, 1876, to the grade of major, and on the 26th of December, 1877, to that of lieutenant-colonel and chief of ordnance.

His early naval training left a taste for the sea, and he became deeply interested in yachting. When the idea of a National Naval Reserve was first agitated, he, in company with a number of well-known yachtsmen, with the idea of preparing themselves to pass the examination prescribed in a bill then before Congress, studied practical navigation and received his diploma as navigator. The knowledge of nautical astronomy, thus acquired, awakened a deep interest in the subject and led to a wider study of the science of astronomy.

THIRD BRANCH.

He, therefore, at his country seat, Strandhome, Bayport, Long Island, built and equipped an astronomical observatory, and soon became widely known as an amateur astronomer, and at the annual commencement of 1900, Columbia University, in recognition of his scientific work, conferred upon him the honorary degree of Master of Arts. During the same year he was appointed one of the astronomers attached to the Eclipse Expedition of the U. S. Naval Observatory, and he accompanied that expedition to Barnsville, Georgia, in charge of instruments, which he loaned the government for that occasion.

Mr. POST is a member of the Naval Order of the United States, a Fellow of the Royal Astronomical Society, a Fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, a Fellow of the New York Academy of Sciences, a Fellow of the Astronomical and Astrophysical Society, and a member of the Astronomical Society of the Pacific, and many

CHARLES ALFRED POST married October 28, 1875, MARIE CAROLINE DE TROBRIAND POST, daughter of the Comte Philippe Régis de Trobriand, who served with distinction in the U. S. Army during the Civil War, and attained the rank of major-general, the highest rank ever held in the U. S. Army by any Frenchman, except Lafayette. With his brothers, JOEL and ALLISON, he founded the drug importing firm of J. & J. & A. POST, and made a large fortune.

He was director of the New York Hospital, 1798-1802; member of Common Council of the City of New York; member of New York Assembly, 1795, 1805-8, and member of Congress from 1813-15.

JOTHAM POST, Jr., was married twice. His first wife was Magdalen Blaau, of Dutch origin, daughter of Waldron Blaau and Eleanor Cresson.* They were married by the Rev. Dr. McKnight, on August 10, 1792. Magdalen Blaau was born August 14, 1771, and died May 29, 1811. She was always called by her husband Lanah, by which name her death is entered in his family Bible (now in possession of his granddaughter, Mrs. Edward Anthon), and by which name, or its initial L, he always writes of her in his diary, kept from day to day in 1792-93. This diary, begun in 1792, when he was twenty-one, just one month married, and studying medicine, is most interesting. He writes every evening the events of the day, and comments on the lectures heard; expresses his hesitancy on whether after taking his degree he will practise medicine, or, following the advice of the great Dr. Bayley, his instructor, he will send to England for trained clerks and drugs and found a much-needed business in New York in that day, the importation of drugs by wholesale. He also describes the efforts made to obtain the restoration to his widowed (Tory) mother-in-law, Mrs. Blaau, of her confiscated property. This diary is now in the possession of his great-great-grandson, WALDRON KINTZING POST, eldest son of ALBERT KINTZING POST, son of ABRAHAM KINTZING POST, eldest son of WALDRON BLAAU POST, eldest son of JOTHAM POST, Jr.

JOTHAM POST, Jr.'s second wife was Julia Strong,* widow of George Wattles. She was born March 17, 1777. They were married by the Rev. Dr. Romeyn, on the 2d of October, 1815. A touching part of JOTHAM POST, Jr.'s, diary mentioned above, is his evident adoration for his father, whom he never fails to visit every day, and of whom he always speaks with expressions of the deepest affection. He died three months after this much-beloved father: JOTHAM POST I's death occurring January 25, 1817, and JOTHAM POST, Jr.'s, on May 15, 1817.

*"Julia Strong, born March 17th, 1777; married George Wattles, and after his decease, JOTHAM POST, JR., member of New York Assembly for four years, graduate at Columbia College in 1792, and member of Congress from New York (1813-15). No issue from either marriage."

WALDRON BLAAU POST.

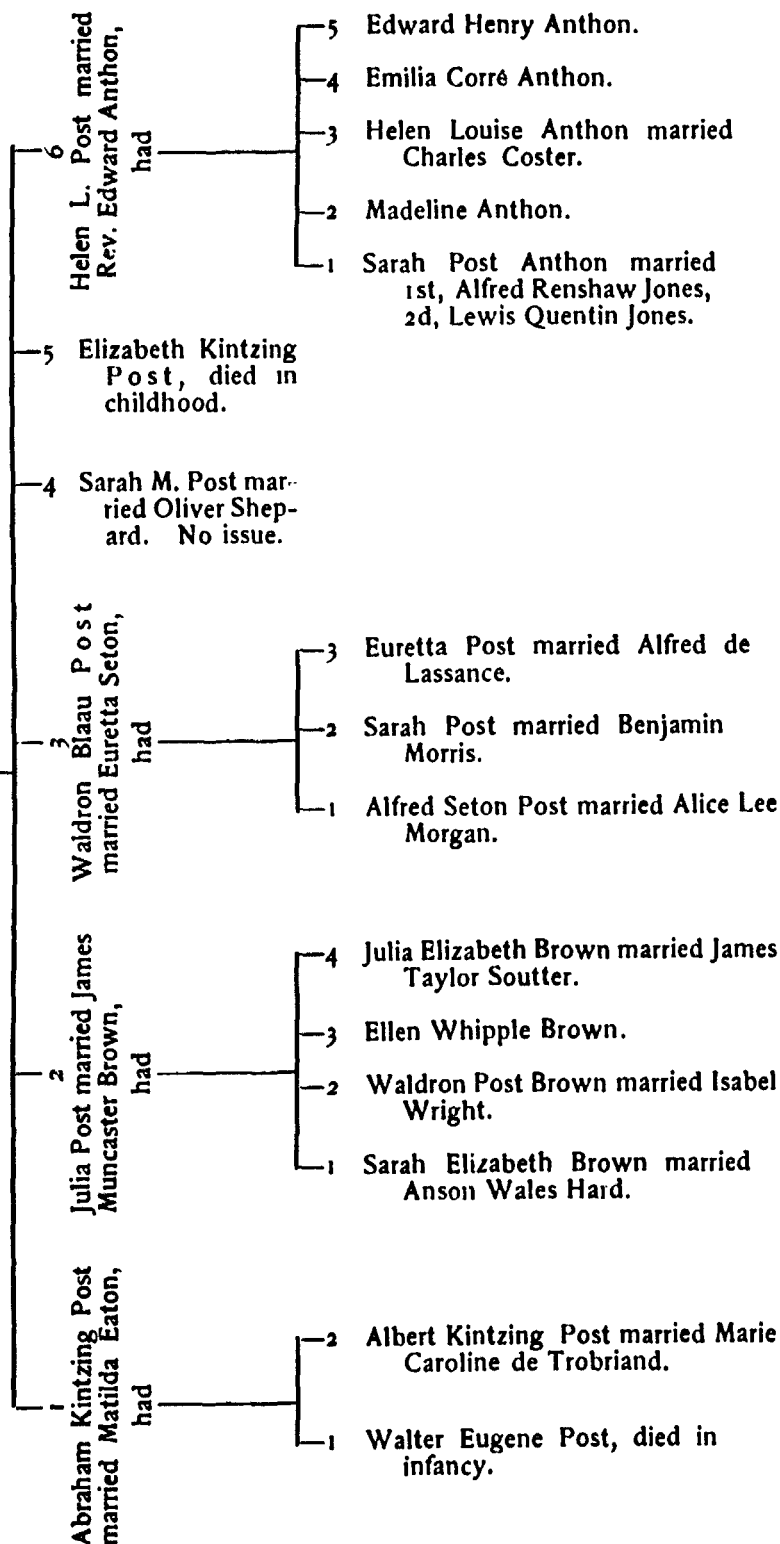

WALDRON BLAAU POST, first child of JOTHAM POST II, was born May 30, 1793; died July 31, 1874; married, on December 11, 1816, to Sarah Elizabeth Parker, born July 5, 1793, daughter of an English officer, who, unable to look after his child, as her mother was dead, left her in the care of a relation or friend, Miss Elizabeth Kintzing, of Philadelphia, who adopted the little girl and brought her up. Miss Kintzing married Elisha Kane, of Philadelphia, the father of John Kane, the Arctic explorer.

WALDRON BLAAU POST and Sarah Parker were married in Philadelphia by the Rev. Dr. Janeway.

WALDRON BLAAU POST graduated from Columbia College in 1810, when seventeen years old. It is said he was ready for college at twelve years of age. On leaving college he went into the wholesale drug business, in the firm of his father and uncles, JOTHAM, JOEL and ALLISON POST. He retired from business at the age of twenty-five, but retained for a time an interest in the firm.

Matilda Eaton was a great niece of John Hancock, Governor of Massachusetts; President of the Provincial Congress, and first signer of the Declaration of Independence.

ABRAHAM KINTZING POST did not go to college, his father wishing him to go into business. He died of pneumonia in his twenty-ninth year. Of three sons born to ABRAHAM KINTZING POST, the eldest, WALTER EUGENE POST, born February 14, 1841, died October 13, 1842. The third son was a posthumous child and lived a very short time. The second son, ALBERT KINTZING POST, grew to manhood.

FOURTH BRANCH.

ALBERT KINTZING POST.

Born January 5, 1843; died July 5, 1872. In 1845 his father, ABRAHAM KINTZING POST, died. His mother married again, her second husband being the Count Armand de MaCarty. Business interests obliging M. de MaCarty to live in Matanzas, Cuba, he moved there with his wife and step-son. The latter, however, did not remain in the island after he was old enough to go to school, but was sent to the school of Mr. Calthrop, at Bridgeport, in Connecticut.

He entered Harvard College in 1859. While there he was identified with many of the undergraduate traditions of the time. At the "Burial of the Football," in 1860, he acted as chaplain; he was poet of the Hasty Pudding Club, and his name appears on several playbills of the Pudding theatricals. In 1862, in his junior year, at nineteen years of age, he went to the war as a second lieutenant in the 45th Regiment of Massachusetts Volunteers, which was raised in response to the call for nine months men. The regiment served in North Carolina, taking part in the battles of Kinston and Goldsboro and some lesser operations about Newbern, where it was stationed most of the time.

FOURTH BRANCH.

After leaving the army he received his degree of A. B. from Harvard, and then went into business for a short time. His tastes, however, made art and literature more congenial occupations to him, and he devoted himself to cultivating his talents in those directions. He would undoubtedly have made a career in these pursuits had he not met an early and sudden death.

On July 5, 1872, at Westhampton, Long Island, he was bathing in the surf when a young boy, carried off by the undertow, called for help. He swam to the rescue, but his efforts were unavailing and both were drowned.

On January 25, 1866, ALBERT KINTZING POST married Marie Caroline Denis de Keredern de Trobriand, daughter of General Comte de Trobriand, U. S. Army. The Trobriands belonged to the old nobility of Brittany, France. Their first ancestor, Miles Denis, Esquire), an Irishman, came with the English forces asked to help Jean de Montfort regain his crown of Brittany. When the cause was won, Miles Denis remained in Brittany, where he and his son, in 1384, received their titles of nobility and the fiefs of Keredern and Trobriand. Their descendants were hereditary members of the Parliament of Brittany, and were identified with the history of that great province, taking, on sea and land, part in all her wars. During the wars of Napoleon two brothers became generals; one was chief of staff of Marechal Lobeau, the other on the staff of Marechal Davout. The former, General Joseph de Trobriand, for a most brilliant and daring action which saved the battle of Bautzen and turned it into a victory, was created Baron by Napoleon (his elder brother was Comte); the title of Baron was confirmed to General Joseph de Trobriand by Louis XVIII. after the "Restauration."

His son, Philippe Regis Denis de Keredern de Trobriand, inherited the title of Baron, and afterward of Comte, from the elder branch, which became extinct.

In 1841 the Baron de Trobriand came to America to visit the country, and met in New York Miss Mary Mason Jones, granddaughter of John Mason, founder and first president of the Chemical Bank, and daughter of Isaac Jones, second president of that institution. They were engaged and married in Paris, in 1843. For several years they lived in Venice, attached to the court of the exiled Bourbon King of France, Henri V.

While in Venice, in 1845, October 15, their daughter, Marie Caroline, was born. She was named after her godmother, Henri V.'s mother, the famous Duchess de Berry, ex-Regent of France, who held the child in her arms during the whole ceremony of baptism, which took place in the private chapel of her palace, the Palazzo Vendramin.

After a sojourn of two years in New York, from 1848 to 1851, and a return to France of several years, the Trobriands returned again to New York in 1854, to reside permanently; for when the war broke out, in 1861, the Baron de Trobriand became an American citizen and offered his services to the Northern cause. He served with distinction during the war, took part in all the battles of the Army of the Potomac, and in the taking of Richmond, and retired with the rank of major-general.

In 1867 he was offered the colonelcy of the 31st U. S. Infantry, and in 1869 that of the 13th U. S. Infantry, which he commanded until he was retired in 1879. During those years General de Trobriand commanded in Dakota, Montana, Utah, Wyoming and Louisiana.

January 25, 1866, Marie Caroline de Trobriand was married to ALBERT KINTZING POST, in Trinity Chapel, New York, by Rev. Edward Anthon.

In 1875, at Ascension Church, by Rev. Dr. Morgan Dix, she was married to CHARLES ALFRED POST, descendant of JOEL POST, of the third branch.

On July 24, 1903, when Rex, as he is called, was six years old, the following interesting event occurred: President Theodore Roosevelt, being in the neighborhood of Bayport for the day, visiting his uncle, Hon. Robert B. Roosevelt, heard that Mrs. REGIS POST was ill. The President drove to Littlewood (the name of their place) to inquire for her, but Mrs. POST, feeling better that day, had gone out for a drive. From his nursery window Master REX saw the visitor and called out: "Hallo! my muddie is out; who are you?" The answer came, "I am the President, and glad to meet you; tell your mother I called to inquire how she was, and am sorry not to see her." "All right," condescendingly called out the small highness.

HENRY ALBERTSON VAN ZO POST.

Born, in New York City, May 16, 1832. Went to M. Churchill's Military School, at Sing Sing, New York; from there he went to the "Novelty Iron Works," Brooklyn, where he learned his profession of mechanical engineer. He was for eleven years connected with the firm as expert engineer.

In 1861 he was mustred in as Lieutenant-Colonel, Second U. S. Sharpshooters, and on January 1, 1862, became Colonel of the same regiment. He was wounded at the battle of Antietam, and granted leave of absence on surgeon's certificate of disability, September 23, 1862, and upon expiration of its extension rejoined on or about November 6, and commanded his regiment in the Army of the Potomac, until ordered on detached service, November 11, 1862, by Special Orders of that date from Headquarters Army of the Potomac. He was honorably discharged upon the tender of his resignation, to date November 16, 1862. In 1864 he went to Cincinnati as a partner in Perkins, Livingston & Post. Established there a large manufacturing business of railroad supplies as "POST & Co." In 1870 he returned to New York, and later established "POST, Martin & Co." and "POST & Pomeroy."

HENRY ALBERTSON VAN ZO POST was twice married, his first wife was Maria Farquhar Taylor. She was born February 25, 1832; married H. A. V. POST, FOURTH BRANCH.

November 22, 1853, in Calvary Church, New York. Died in Newport, Rhode Island, July 27, 1860.

HENRY POST'S second wife was Caroline Burnet McLean, of Cincinnati, daughter of General Nathaniel McLean, and granddaughter of Justice John McLean, of the Supreme Court of the United States.

Caroline Burnet McLean was also a granddaughter of Justice Burnet, of the Supreme Court of Ohio, and United States Senator from that State. She was born in Cincinnati, Ohio, July 14, 1843. Was married to H. A. V. POST, in Glendale, Ohio, by the Rev. Frank L. B. Robbins, October 16, 1865.

The father of Mrs. POST, General McLean, son of Hon. John McLean, of Ohio, Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, was born February 2, 1818. At sixteen years of age he graduated at Augusta College, Kentucky, went immediately to Harvard College, where he passed through the studies of the Senior Class as a resident graduate; then entered the Law School. After completing this course, he returned to his home in Ohio and commenced the practice of law in Cincinnati.

At the breaking out of the War of the Rebellion, under orders received from General Fremont, he commenced the organization of the Seventy-fifth Ohio Regiment; he was commissioned its colonel September 18, 1861. In January, 1862, he was ordered with his regiment to West Virginia, and commanded it personally in all its service under Generals Milroy, Schenck and Fremont, up to and through the battle of Cross Keys, when he was promoted to the command of a brigade consisting of four Ohio regiments. He commanded this brigade through the campaign of General Pope in Virginia, through the second battle of Bull Run, and the retreat upon Washington. On the 29th of November, 1862, he was commissioned as brigadier-general. He remained in the Army of the Potomac in command of a division in active service under Generals McClellan, Burnside and Hooker, and through the battle of Chancellorsville. He then asked to be relieved, and was ordered to report to General Burnside in the Department of the Ohio. When General Burnside was relieved by General Schofield, he was ordered to the command of a brigade in the field in Tennessee, where he joined the corps of General Schofield and served actively under General Sherman. After the battles of Kenesaw and Lost Mountain, he was ordered to Kentucky and placed in command of a district. He was subsequently ordered to Tennessee, when our army under General Thomas was pushed up the Tennessee River, when the command was ordered to North Carolina. From Fort Fisher they formed a junction with General Sherman. When the surrender of Lee ended the war, General

FOURTH BRANCH.

McLean sent in his resignation and returned to his home, Glendale, near Cincinnati, Ohio. During the whole war of four years General McLean was off duty only thirty days.

General McLean was the son of Judge John McLean, born in Morris County, New Jersey, 1785; died, in Cincinnati, April, 1861. In 1812 Judge McLean was elected to Congress; re-elected in 1814. 1816 resigned to accept a seat on the supreme bench of Ohio. 1822 Commissioner of Land Office. 1823 Postmaster-General under President Monroe, and continued through the administration of John Quincy Adams. 1829 resigned as Postmaster-General, declined War and Navy Department. Same year was appointed Associate Justice Supreme Court of the United States, which position he held until his death, over thirty-two years.

In 1848, and in 1852 and 1856, he was prominently spoken of for President of the United States. In the last-named year he received a formidable support in the convention, and came near, on the first ballot, beating Colonel Fremont. Had it not been for his advanced age he would probably have been nominated for President instead of Abraham Lincoln by the Chicago convention.

Vol. 10, Am. Cyclopedia, has an account of his life; also other histories.

FOURTH BRANCH.

The mother of Caroline Burnet McLean (wife of H. A. V. POST), was the first wife of General Nathaniel McLean, Caroline Thew Burnet, daughter of Judge Jacob Burnet.

Judge Jacob Burnet was an eminent lawyer, author of the first Constitution of the State of Ohio, a Judge of the Supreme Court of Ohio, and a United States Senator during the administration of President Jackson.

A noteworthy incident in the history of Judge Burnet's Senatorship occurred during the debate, as it was called, between Daniel Webster and Colonel Hayne, of South Carolina. Mr. March, of Boston, in his reminiscences of Congress, published in 1850, states that during the debate there was a case of importance on argument before the Supreme Court in which Mr. Webster was retained as counsel. Compelled to watch its progress, he had not been able to command more than an occasional presence in the Senate Chamber, and requested that the further consideration of the resolution might be postponed till the following Monday. The request was refused by Colonel Hayne, who in evident agitation and excitement demanded that the debate should go on without postponement. Colonel Hayne was to make his second speech the following day. Mr. Webster, after a moment's consultation with Judge

FOURTH BRANCH.

Burnet, in which the latter consented to take notes of Colonel Hayne's speech for him, then rose, and, to use the words of a distinguished member of Congress from the Southern State who was present on the occasion, his person seemed to become taller and larger, his chest expanded, and his eyeballs dilated. Folding his arms in a composed, firm and most expressive manner, he exclaimed: "Let the discussion proceed; I am ready."

In 1850 the City of Boston ordered from Healy a picture which now hangs in Faneuil Hall representing Mr. Webster replying to Colonel Hayne in the U. S. Senate. The artist, on being asked why he had given so prominent a position in the foreground to the portrait of Judge Burnet, replied that it was Mr. Webster's special request, on account, not only of their long friendship, but also because Judge Burnet had at his request taken notes of Colonel Hayne's speech, and from those notes chiefly he had composed his speech in reply. In this picture is also represented Judge McLean, of the Supreme Court, and Mrs. Burnet is represented seated in the gallery—so Mrs. POST has two grandfathers and a grandmother painted in that picture.

It may be added here, as a matter of interest, that Mrs. H. A. V. POST is descended from Oliver Cromwell in the following direct line:

Lambert Blackwell Larking, Mr. Charles, Mr. Clement Smythe, Mr. Pretty, the late curator of the Museum, and Mr. John Newington Hughes, all of whom have passed away before him. Mr. POSTE was an early member of the Archæological Association of Great Britain, and contributed several learned papers to their journal; and on the establishment of the Kent Archæological Society he took an active part in its foundation, and regularly attended the meetings of the Council, and one of his last papers was contributed to the society's journal, Archæologia Cantiana, on the site of ancient Roman Maidstone, which contains a mass of valuable and interesting information respecting the early history of the town. In 1847 Mr. POSTE published a valuable "History of the Church and College of All Saints, Maidstone," which was followed in 1853 by "Britannic Researches, or new facts and Rectifications of Ancient British History." Mr. POSTE married in early life Mary Jane, daughter of the late John Cousens, Esq., of Westbourne, who died two years

APPENDIX I.

Peter Hawes (son-in-law of Jotham Post) was born in 1768. He graduated from the Rhode Island College (now Brown University) with high honors and as salutatorian of his class in 1791. The following year he came to New York City.

In the "New York Directory and Register" for 1795 appears the name of "Peter Hawes, student of law, 91 Beekman Street." The same year he was admitted to the bar; his license to practise was signed by Richard Varick, Mayor of the City.

Thus did Peter Hawes begin his illustrious career at the bar of New York one hundred years ago. He rapidly rose to prominence, and by his native talent and ability, as well as by his industry and integrity, he soon acquired a large clientele. As evidence of this it may be mentioned that he organized one of the first fire insurance companies of the United States, the old 'Washington Insurance Comapny,' and remained its secretary up to the time of his death in 1829. He was also a member of the New England Society, and served as its secretary from 1807 to 1809. From 1809 to 1812 he was a member of the Common Council, or Board of Aldermen, of this city. The office of Alderman was then reserved as an honor for the most distinguished and worthy citizens, and the name of 'City Father' was not inaptly bestowed.

APPENDIX I.

"The 'Memorial History' of New York makes
"mention of the fact that Peter Hawes was appointed,
"with other members of the Common Council, as a
" 'Committee of Defense,' on December 2, 1811, and "served with honor and distinction three years, look"ing after and protecting the interests of the citizens
"of New York during the period of the War of 1812
"with Great Britain.

"But Peter Hawes did not spend all his time in "poring over Blackstone, and Coke on Littleton. He "also found opportunity to seek divine afflatus, and "cultivate the muse of poetry. With other bright
"young fellows of the Knickerbocker period, he
"founded the Calliopean Society, which flourished
"several years from October 1, 1793, to February 3,
"1799. They had regular meetings at which poems
"and essays were read.

"Some years ago, a descendant of Peter Hawes
"came across an original autograph poem of his
"grandfather's which needs a word of explanation.
"It is entitled 'The Belles of Cherry Street.' Cherry
"Street was then the Court end of town, and filled
"with elegant and fashionable residences. Conspicu-
"ous among these was the house built by JOTHAM
"POST, a respected and wealthy citizen. The doors
"were of solid mahogany, with silver knobs, solid
"mahogany balusters, etc. His daughter, Nancy, was "acknowledged to be the handsomest girl on Manhat“tan Island, and the Belle of New York. Many were

“the suiters that thronged her father’s house, and “sought to carry off the prize. But sad to say she was “inclined to be coquettish, as maidens sometimes are “even to this day. Scores of broken hearts were laid
“at her feet, but still she did not relent. Serenades
“were sung before her window, and sonnets composed
“to her beauty and charms, but without avail. At last “Peter, who was a persistent man, and quite set in his “ways, like his Puritan ancestors, determined that he “must win her. He wrote a number of verses which “did not have the effect desired of securing his lady’s “affections. She only laughed him to scorn. Finally “he prepared his chef d’oeuvre wherein she is apos-
“trophised under the pseudonym of ‘Eliza,’ the name
“by which she was known in all these effusions. All
“the other belles of Cherry Street are mentioned in “turn, only to be rejected. The final verse sets forth
“the pre-eminent attractions of ‘Eliza.’ There are “many personal allusions which cannot be appre“ciated at this distant day. But the poem is sprightly
“and clever. Whether it was this poem which caused
“her to smile upon him with favor, deponent saith
“not. But certain it is that after a long and arduous “courtship, on the 11th day of May, 1797, Peter “Hawes was able to lead NANCY POST, a fair and “blushing bride, to the altar, and the twain were “made one.”

APPENDIX I.

THE BELLES OF CHERRY STREET.

Erato, sweetest Muse, assist my lays,
While I advent'rous sound the chord of praise,
Or dare proclaim the beauties of the fair,
The winning Virtues, or the modest air,
The matchless persons, and their forms replete,
With ev'ry grace, who dwell in Ch - - - y S - - - t,

Rash Youth, forbear. Methinks the Muse reply'd,
Nor dare each beauty to describe;
Tho' sweet th' employ, with worth to fill the page,
To count E - - - 's charms would cost an age.
Life is too short to sound her praises forth,
Volumes too small to mention half her worth;
Still would I rashly the fond theme pursue,
And strive to paint those beauties to the view;
For this, once more, oh, Muse, thy pow'r I ask,
Then aid my fancy in this pleasing task.

But, say, whose beauties first wilt thou rehearse,
Who most from virtuous merit claim thy verse?
Or her, whose face, whose form in ev'ry part
Proclaims her nature's master-piece of art?
Or wilt thou, like yon glorious orb of light,
That forms our day, or points our path by night
Rise in the East, and, with descriptive force,
Pursue the street, as he pursues his course?

APPENDIX I.

Thee, first, oh, Jane. Thy beauties meet our eyes,
Beauties which B - - n knows how much to prize,
And while he fondly gazes on thy charms,
The rapturous glow of love his bosom warms;
Thy gentle manners void of ev'ry art,
Thy graceful smile has bound his generous heart;
Intent on these he knows no other fair,
Thou art his life, his thoughts, his joy, his care.

Next Ellen, whom the muses oft have sung,
Whose charms so oft thro' the museum rung;
Who flippant Crito, anxious for to please,
Portray'd with "grace, wit, sense and sparkling ease,"
But well might Crito thus exulting praise,
And proudly tune his best, his fondest lays,
For Ellen, such thy face, thy form, thy air,
Few greater beauties boast, few half so fair.
Whoe'er those lovely sable tresses sees,
In graceful ringlets kiss the passing breeze;
Thy form angelic, or those lovely eyes,
Feels the warm wish, the fond effusion rise.

But why 'midst those who to thy beauty bow,
Has no fond Youth proffered the nuptial vow,
Why not, enraptur'd by thy winning charms,
Sigh'd to enclose you in his longing arms;
Do they inconstant from the nuptial bow'r,
Fly off like insect when they taste the flow'r?

APPENDIX I.

Or can no sighs or tears, your pity move,
Warm your cold heart, or wake your soul to love:
Consider, Ellen, lest those vain delays,
Should waste your charms and steal your youthful days,
And thou be doomed in Pluto's drear domain
To lead a cap'ring ape in silken chain.

But hark, what cruel nymph could cause to rise,
Those piercing groans, or wake those mournful sighs,
Rebecca, say, art thou the cruel fair,
And M - - - e the swain that rends with sighs the air?
Ah, Hog, too much I fear this mournful strain,
Those sighs, those tears, alas, are all in vain:
You gaze in vain with rapture on her charms—
In vain your bosom beats to soft alarms:
Some happier Youth possesses all her care,
Her love—and leaves thee nought but sad despair,
Since then is banished ev'ry ray of hope,
Use that cure for love—an end of rope.

Miss - - - now with measured pace is seen,
With tortur'd features, studied gait and mien;
Of self—importance, affectation full,
Formal and serious, phlegmatic and dull,
Pity, alas! That we so often find,
Vain affectation taint the female mind.

APPENDIX I.

Lovely as morn that ushers in the day
When choirs of warblers hail returning May;
And Nature lavish, o'er her carpet strews
Her opening flowers of various hues;
Blythe as the lark that wakes to early love,
Meek as the lamb, and harmless as the dove,
Does lovely R - d - n meet our wandering eyes,
Raise the fond wish, and fill us with surprise.

Those baneful passions which so often are Unhap'ly nurs'd in bosoms of the fair,
In that dear breast could ne'er an entrance find,
Nor e'er contaminate that virtuous mind;
Not affectation with her stiffen'd mien,
And tortur'd features, ever could be seen;
But following nature, all her actions tend
To charm the lover, or to fix a friend,
These praises, Nancy, equally thy due,
For all the gentler Virtues dwell with you;
Thy form is grace replete in ev'ry part,
But far much nobler graces fill thy heart;
These, these shall far outlive frail beauty's ray,
Smile e'en in age, and never know decay.

Eliza, formed with every charm to please,
Wins the soft heart and moulds it at her ease,
Now claims my lay—had I Pope's tuneful lyre,
His fertile genius, his poetic fire,

APPENDIX I.

The sweetest voice of love should fondly flow,
The heart exult, the best ideals glow,
To paint that fair, that lovely blushing cheek,
Those beauteous eyes that eloquently speak;
That modest front where candor dwells,
Where smiling innocence each art repels,
Those nectar lips, with tints of glowing red,
Which are with sense and goodness ever fed;
That skin, pure, spotless, and of dazzling hue,
Prone to betray the bright ethereal blue;
That lovely neck, that shape, that grace, that air,
Those thousand nameless charms that deck the fair,
These when the muse in brightest numbers drew,
Would be but faintly pictured to the view;
Then sure no pen howe'er sublime, no art
Can paint the richer beauties of her heart.

APPENDIX I.

Five children were the result of this marriage, William Post, Susan, Matilda, William Post II, and Matilda II.

NANCY POST died July 4, 1806, and on June 16, 1808, Peter Hawes married for his second wife Margarette Ray, by whom he had nine children, Eliza Ray, Nancy Post, Charles Robert, Mary Louisa, Rufus King (named after his particular friend), Rufus King II, Peter Augustus, Gardiner Spring, and Julia Lynch. All these fourteen children are now dead except one daughter. The only descendants in the male line remaining in this country are the two sons of Peter Augustus, of whom the writer of this paper is one.

William Post Hawes graduated from Columbia College in 1821, at the age of eighteen years. He was admitted to the bar in New York City in 1824. He served in the New York State Militia from the grade of ensign, in January, 1825, through all the successive ranks to that of colonel of the Twenty-second Regiment of Infantry, in January, 1836. He was secretary of the New England Society, 1824-29. He commenced literary work in 1827, by contributing articles to the "American Monthly Magazine," "The Mirror," "New York Times," "Standard," "N. Y. Spirit of the Times and Turf Register," etc., which displayed a great love of nature, a facile pen, graceful style, and wonderful descriptive powers.

APPENDIX I.

Some of these stories, poems, etc., were collected and published in two volumes by Henry William Herbert ("Frank Forester") in 1834, under the title of "Sporting Scenes and Sundry Sketches, being the miscellaneous writings of J. Cypress, Jr.," which also includes a most touching and appreciative notice of his dead friend, cut off in his prime, at the age of 38.

(The above account of Peter Hawes is taken from a lecture delivered before the Genealogical Society of New York, by a descendant of Peter Hawes, Gilbert Ray Hawes, Esq.)

THE WALDRON FAMILY.

"Joseph and Resolved Waldron, sons of Resolved Waldron, of Amsterdam, were book printers. The family was English—the name of repute in England from the time of the Conquest, had spread through nearly all its southern tiers of counties.

"But born and raised at Amsterdam, these brothers had acquired all the characteristics of Hollanders, having also married Dutch wives, the sisters Aethe and Rebecca Hendricks, whose father, Hendrick Koch, was a respectable Amsterdam burgher.

"Joseph Waldron came to America two years before his brother, with his second wife, Annetie Daniels, but 25 when he married her at Amsterdam, April 4, 1649.

"Joseph Waldron had a son, Rutgers Waldron, who had a daughter, Cornelia Waldron, who married Jaurian Blaau, sometimes spelled Blaaua. Their son, Waldron Blaau, married Eleanor Cresson (called Neltje). Their daughter, Magdalen Blaau, married JOTHAM POST, Jr." (Riker's History of the New Netherlands.)

"Waldron Blaau, of New York. In 1776 an addressor of Lord and Sir William Howe; in 1782 captain in the Third Battalion, New Jersey Volunteers. Went to St. Johns, New Brunswick, in 1783, and died five days after landing there. His house and lands in the City of New York were confiscated, but restored to his widow and daughter." ("Biographical Sketches of Loyalists of the American Revolution," by Lorenzo Sabine.)

"Resolved Waldron (brother of Joseph), who had been in the printing business at Amsterdam, emigrated with his family to New Netherlands in 1654, and in the same year Governor Stuyvesant made a grant of that portion of Manhattan Island lying between Eighty-second and One Hundred and Ninth Streets, and extending from the North to the East River, to Baron Waldron and two others. In 1657 Resolved Waldron was admitted a burgher, and in 1658 he was appointed deputy sheriff and to the schout-fiscal (attorney-general) de Sille. In 1659 he was sent with Augustine Heermans to Maryland to vindicate the Dutch title on the Delaware. On the accession of the English, Waldron took the oath of allegiance (1664) and retired to private life in Harlem. He was one of the five patentees named in Nicoll's patent. He died in 1690, his inventory embracing lands, slaves, farm stock, etc. He married first, Rebecca Hendricks, and second, Janneke Nagel." (Riker's Harlem and Annals of Newtown.)

APPENDIX J.

"Resolved Waldron, the most noted, as he was one of the most intelligent of the Harlem settlers, needed not the titular dignity of Baron, which some of poetic humor claim for him; yet might he have well graced the title. As we have seen, he had been in the printing business at Amsterdam, and emigrated with his family to New Netherlands late in 1654." (Washington Irving's "Knickerbocker History of New York.")

"On the council records of January 8, 1661, it is stated that the Governor (Stuyvesant) addressed the people of Jamaica, informing them that he had received their petition for a minister to baptize some of their children; and their information that Quakers and other sects held private conventicals. He tells them that he had dispatched his deputy-sheriff, Resolved Waldron, and one of his clerks, Nicholas Bayard, to take notice thereof, and requiring the inhabitants to give exact information where and in what house such unlawful conventicals were kept; what persons had exercised therein, what men or women had been present; who called the meeting, and of all the circumstances appertaining thereunto." ("Thompson's History of Long Island," vol. II, p. 292.)

APPENDIX J.

BLAAU.

"Johannes Blaau (w) was a native of Amsterdam, and the oldest son of William or Willem Jansy Blaau (w), the celebrated printer. He succeeded his father in business in 1638, and in 1651 was chosen schepen or mayor and one of the thirty-six city councillors.

"His world-renowned printing establishment, which stood in the rear of the Neuw Kerk, was burned to the ground on the 22d of February, 1672, and the plates and letter press of his celebrated Atlas were unfortunately consumed at the same time. His losses were esteemed at 328,200 guilders, or $131,200. He did not long survive the misfortune, having died on the 20th of December, 1673. He was the celebrated cartographer." (From "Holland Documents.")

"Resolution of the Common Council of the City of Amsterdam 24th of Oct., 1663:

"The Burgomasters have submitted to the council some proposals of Commissioners and Directors of the City's Colony in New Netherland respecting its maintenance and advancement and what to that end should at present be taken by the hand and put in operation, according to the aforesaid proposal con-

Dr. Joan Blaau was appointed on a Committee to consider in what manner the Colonies of the City of Amsterdam, New Netherlands, could be separated from the West India Co. The better to forward the prosperity of the Colonies." (Riker's "History of the New Netherlands.")

CRESSON.

Pierre Cresson was a Huguenot exile.

"Their ancient family seat was Misnil la Cresson (Cresson Manor) near Abbeville Picardy.

"Pierre Cresson, a Picard Protestant, born in 1609, fled into Holland, and there remained an exile seventeen years; part of this time at Sluis, Delft, Leyden and Ryswich; in the early part of this period acted as gardener to the 'Prince of Orange,' and was ever afterwards called 'Pierre le Jardinier'; with his family emigrated to America, 1657, settled at Harlem, of which town he was one of the first Magistrates in 1660. He removed to Staten Island in 1678; died about 1684."

Pierre Cresson married Rachel Cloos, also a French Huguenot. "She joins with her husband in making a will in 1673." They were members of the Reformed Church.

Their great-granddaughter, Eleanor (called (Meethe) Neeltje) Cresson, married Waldron Blaau. Their daughter, Magdalen Blaau, married JOTHAM POST, Jr.
