Preface

WHEN I started work on this book it was my intention to give an account of the ancestry of William Pountney of Birmingham, as well as a history of his descendants. However, I found that the cost of tracing an English family was quite prohibitive, so I have been obliged to keep to an account of the descendants of William Pountney through two of his children. I have hopes that some time in the future it will be possible to supplement this book with a second volume tracing the pedigree of William.

Of the material contained in this book, the majority of it was collected from the various members of the family mentioned; while the list of the children of William and Alice Pountney was compiled for me by the firm of Parkhouse and Allee in Birmingham, who instituted a search of the registers of the various parishes in Birmingham and the vicinity. For the last mentioned work I am indebted to Philip Baldwin Bekeart of San Francisco, who retained the services of the firm for me. It was also through the financial support of Mr. Bekeart that the publication of this book was possible.

I might add, before going into the family of William Pountney, that the Pountney family is, in all likelihood, a branch of the Poultney family which was seated at Poultney-Misterton in Leicestershire. The first of this family was Nigel de Pultney in the time of King John, and the senior line resided at Poultney-Misterton down to the middle of the seventeenth century when the family died out in female issue. The present representative of the senior line is the Marquess of Crewe, a descendant of Sir Clippesby Crewe of Crewe (died in 1648), who married Jane, daughter and co-heiress of Sir John Poultney of Poultney-Misterton.

Of the junior lines one was represented in the 18th century by Sir William Poultney who was created Earl of Bath in 1742. This title became extinct in 1808 on the death of Henrietta Laura Johnstone-Poultney, Countess of Bath, a cousin of the first Earl.

The name, while originally Pultney, has been spelled by various branches of the family as Poultney and Pountney. To-day members of the family are to be found mainly in the west central counties of England, and around London. How they are all connected cannot be said as a complete pedigree of the English family has never been compiled.

The coat-of-arms of the Poultney family, which has been used since the time of Nigel de Pultney, and which it might be possible for the male descendants of William Pountney to assume, is: argent, on a fesse dancette gules, three leopards faces sable.

AN ACCOUNT OF THE DESCENDANTS OF WILLIAM POUNTNEY OF BIRMINGHAM

1st Generation

1. Of William Pountney, the first of this family, very little is known. It is likely that he was related to the many Poultney and Pountney families that resided in Birmingham in the 18th and 19th centuries, but it is evident that he was neither born or married in that city, since the church records, as far back as 1754, have no trace of him. However, it is known that he resided at Court Princess Street, and that he probably resided in Birmingham as early as 1791. It is likely that both he and his wife were alive in 1836-7.

Of William's wife, Alice, even less is known. It is possible that her daughter, Alice Childs Pountney was named for her, or that Powell, the middle name of her third son, was her maiden name. However, it will take further research to determine this.

William and Alice had the following children, all baptised at St. Martin's Church, Birmingham.

2. 1. William Henry, b. Sept. 17, 1793; bapt. Oct. 1, 1793.
2. Joseph, bapt. March 7, 1796.
3. John Powell, bapt. Dec. 24, 1798.
4. Thomas, bapt. May 8, 1801. He may have been the Thomas Pountney who mar. Ann Jones at St. Peter's and St. Paul's Church in Birmingham on Sept. 29, 1825.
5. Alice Childs, b. Dec. 12, 1803; bapt. June 18, 1805. She mar. Mr. Giles of Birmingham, according to tradition.
3. 6. Elizabeth, bapt. Jan. 24, 1805.
7. James, bapt. June 6, 1808. He may have been the James who had a dau., Mary Ann Moore Pountney, bapt. at St. Martin's on March 20, 1832, the dau. of his wife, Mary Ann.
8. Maria, bapt. March 30, 1813.
9. Ann, bapt. March 14, 1814. There was also an Ann, bapt. March 27, 1815, of the same parents. One of these may have been the Ann who mar. John Fox at St. Martin's on Jan. 28, 1834; or the Ann who mar. Joseph Baldwin, widower, at the same place on Sept. 21, 1835.
