FRANCES OLIVIA PLAISTED^s,

WHO, on the eighth day of March eighteen hundred and fifty-six, in the city of Portland, at the residence of Rev. George W. Bosworth,
D. D., in the presence of Mr. Samuel Sylvester Starbird and Miss Susan Elizabeth Plaisted, voluntarily resigned an honored family name, that she might honorably aid in perpetuating another, by becoming the loving and beloved wife of the compiler, who hopes "this work may ever be a lasting monument to THEE".

Portland, Me July 15, 1904.

Playstead.

We may well believe that proper names are coeval with expression and came into use not only for identification but also for information; the name probably being as nearly descriptive of the person as language would admit. The new name given in baptism by the Apostles to the Gentiles was apparently for identification only and to make the identification more complete the sire name was quite often added later.

Surnames were evidently introduced into England by the motley army of Duke William and were very generally applied to both conquerors and conquered, names not of their own choosing but an addition to the christen name, indicatory of prior or present residence, calling, servitude, peculiarity of person or disposition.

Family names were a natural sequence of sire and surnames but were little used in England prior to the thirteenth century, in fact there was little occasion until the right of every freeman to dispose of his goods according to his will, and that should he die intestate, his heirs should succeed to his estate, was guaranteed by the "Magna Charta."

Although the present system of family names is of comparatively recent origin, the variety of causes which gave birth to names, to say nothing of the too common practice of illiterates anglicising foreign names and the numerous changes, legal and otherwise, destroys the illusion that a common name is prima facie evidence of a common ancestor or even a common race.

The Dictionary of Family Names says that Playstead and Playstow are synonyms but we have found no mention of their use interchangeably in the same family although both are undoubtedly of Saxon origin. In mediæval times most large parishes had their play-stead or plays-stowe, a public resort for recreation and amusement; the agent or steward of such places would very properly be surnamed "de Playstead" or "de Playstow".

Burke makes no mention of any person bearing the name of Playstead or Playstow being raised to the peerage, although the Encyclopædia Heraldry credits armorials to:—

"Playsted (Suffolk and Sussex) ar. three boars' heads, couped, gu."

Also three of Playstow, in some parts alike but entirely unlike the Playsted's. Prior to the advent of self-sealing envelopes heraldic seals were in common use, very few were registered but many freely used escutcheons believed to be the "Family Coat of Arms", begging the question of right to use. In this connection we refer to a report of the Committee on Heraldry of the New England Historic Genealogical Society, published in 1877, a descriptive list of seals attached to the correspondence and papers of Daniel Jeffries, many years Treasurer of Boston. The seals of Ichabod and John Plaisted, also one of Mary Plaisted, wife of John are in the list but all are different and neither are suggestive to the writer.

As a family name Plaistow is infrequent on colonial records, although a town by that name was incorporated in New Hampshire in 1749: named for a parish in the county of Kent, Eng. now a part of the city of London, a locality that furnished a large quota of the early settlers of Piscataqua. At the Court of Assistants in Boston, March, 1630, it was ordered that Mr. Plaistow and five others be sent to England by the ship Lyon, or by some other vessel, "as persones unmeete to inhabit here". He may not have gone or perhaps there were two of a kind for the next year the Court ordered that Josias Plastow, for stealing four baskets of corn from the Indians, shall return to them eight baskets and be called Josias and not Mr. as heretofore. His two servants were ordered to be whipped.

Thomas Playsted, Esq. of Arlington, co. Sussex, had a daughter, Margaret, the wife of Charles, the 2d Baron Cornwallis. They were the ancestors of Charles, the 2d Earl Cornwallis, commander of the British forces in North America in the Revolution.

The pioneer Playstead in New England we conclude to have been Roger, whose first noted record is as one of the witnesses to the conveyance, Feb. 20, 1654, of a lot of land along the river side at Newgewanocke, by Richard Nayson, for and in behalf of John Beex & Co. merchants, of London, to George Leader. This document is signed Roger Playstead and his subsequent signatures adhere to the same orthography; his name, however, when written by others, has as many different spellings as the ear can suggest.

This publication is issued as a memorial of the tribe of Roger and as most of his descendants have modernized the spelling of the family name, we shall adopt their version in the second and succeeding generations.

The name of John Playstead appears in list of taxpayers in Boston in 1681 and one Thomas Playsted is mentioned as a merchant in Salem in 1690. These may have been brothers of Roger, although the compiler has no evidence except the tradition that "three brothers came over". Further mention of Thomas has not been noted, unless it was he who died in Boston, September 23, 1716.

JOHN and ELIZABETH PLAYSTEAD are credited on the Boston records with children as follows:—

Elizabeth, b. Nov. 7, 1678.

There was evidently an older son, for a tax-list Boston of 1695 shows the presence of Jno. Plaisted, sr and of Jno. Plaisted, jun. the records also show that:

JOHN PLAISTED and SARAH WORTHILAKE, both of Boston, were married March 25, 1698 and are credited with children as follows;—

Francis Plaisted arrived in Boston in the ship John & Dorothy, from Barbadoes, June 3, 1712; probably the Francis Plaisted, mariner of Boston, who's will was probated Jan. 23, 1742-3. He gave all of his estate to wife Hannah and made her and his uncle Francis Righton executors. The inventory names articles of clothing, furniture, navigation books, five divinity books etc., valuation, £207, 6.

FRANCIS and HANNAH PLAISTED are credited on the records of Boston, with children as follows:—

Francis, b. Dec. 27, 1710; prob. his estate that was entered for probate Sept. 19, 1732. The inventory of his estate taken in 1743, at Hopkinton and Boston by the same appraisers, includes a house and land in West Boston, now in the possession of Rev. W. Hooper, val. £1800., a negro man, sold for £100., etc. John Billings filed a bill for clothing furnished Francis, also for boarding and schooling William and Mehitable Plaisted; probably his children.

Hannah, b. March 19, 1712-3.

A child died April 19, 1714.

James, b. July 7, 1716.

ould any glory in their descent from a knight dubbed by royal hands a thousand years ago; here are our modern Sires, who received the favors of angels and the accolade of Jehovah: men exalted as far above Norman Barons as they were above their own villains; and through whom we have received our richest inheritance here and the hope of a better one hereafter”.

The learned writer, quoted above, was well qualified to judge of the character of our emigrant ancestors and certainly no knight in history or romance is credited with a braver act than that which resulted in the death of Roger Playstead and his two sons.

For more than a half century the colonists and aborigines lived together without any such collisions as would suggest a serious war between the races. True the English regarded the Indians as savages, maintained militia and established convenient places of rendezvous for defence against local outbreaks, and the Indians had, from the first, experienced, not always submissively, many of the barbarities of civilization.

Early in the year 1675, Metacum, alias King Philip, the most wily and sagacious chieftain of his race, incited by the spirit of revenge, induced his own and many neighboring tribes to engage in a war of extermination of the whites, and very soon the realization of a savage war began to be experienced throughout New England.

The following account of the first attack upon Kittery is from “A Narrative of the troubles with the Indians in New England”, written in 1677, by Rev. Wm. Hubbard.

“Upon the sixteenth of Octoder, being Saturday, about an hundred of the Indians were gathered together, to assault Newechewanick: they began with one named Tozer, half a mile from the Upper Garrison, at Salmon Falls. The said Tozer was presently killed, his son taken captive (but returned after some months restraint) several guns being shot at this assault, alarmed Lieut. Plaisted at the next Garrison, who like a man of publick spirit immediately sent out seven men from the Garrison under his command, to see what the matter was; but being met by an ambush laid in the way as they went, lost two or three of their company, the rest hardly escaped back to the place whence they came, whereupon the said Lieut. Plaisted immediatly dispatched away a messenger to Major Waldern at Quecheco, which because it seems to be the last time that ever that good and useful man set pen to paper, shall here be inserted.

Salmon Falls, October 16, 1675.

Mr. Richard Waldern and Lieut. Coffin, These are to inform you, that just now the Indians are engaging us with at least one hundred men, and have slain four of our men already, Richard Tozer, James Barney, Isaack Bottes, and Tozer's son, and burnt Benoni Hodsdens house; Sir, if ever you have any love for us, and the Country, now show yourself with men to help us, or else we are all in great Danger to be slain, unless our God wonderfully appear for our Deliverance.

They that cannot fight, let them pray; Nought else, but I rest,

Yours to serve you,

Roger Playstead,

George Broughton.

What answer was returned to this importunate and patheticall letter, is not fully known at present; most probably he that was most concerned in the contents of it, was either absent from home, or in no capacity to send the relief desired; which if it could have been had, might have prevented the said mischief that fell out the next day; when Lieut. Plaisted being more earnestly bent to perform that last office of love to his deceased friends, whom he could not by all his endeavours save from the danger of Death while they were in the land of the Living, would needs venture himself with twenty soldiers out of his Garrison, to fetch off the dead Bodies.

To that end he ordered a pair of oxen to be yoken to bring them to his Garrison, in order to their Christian buryal, not considering that the Indians lay sculking thereabouts, waiting for such opportunities. They went first to the furthest place, where they found Ro. Tozers body, and put it into their cart; but coming back to take up the other two bodies, which were fallen in a little swamp nearer the Garrison, they were set upon by an hundred and fifty of the enemy, that had hid themselves in the bushes, and under a stone-wall, and logs in the way, as they were to pass; by the sudden noise of the guns, the cattel being frighted, ran away to the Garrison with such of the dead as were first laid up thereon, (and possibly with one of them wounded at that instant) leaving their owners to fight it out with their Enemies. Lieut. Plaisted being thus desperately assaulted, he with his twenty men, was forced to retreat to a place of better advantage; but being there so hotly pursued, they were not able to abide it long; although they killed and mortally wounded several of the Indians, as themselves have since confessed; but they most of them being so much overmatched took the opportunity of a fair Retreat, and so got safe to their Garrison, while Lieut. Plaisted out of the height of his Courage, disdaining either to fly from or yield himself (for 'tis said the Indians were loth to kill him, but desirous rather to take him prisoner) into the hands of such cursed Caitiffs, did fight it out desperately, till he was slain upon the Place, his eldest son and another man were slain in their too late retreat; and his other son was sorely wounded, so that he dyed a few weeks after.

The Indians were contented with this mischief for the present (and indeed if all the English they had to deal with, had shewed the like Resolution with this Plaisted, they would not have done half the mischief that since hath been done by them) and slunk away into the woods before the next day, when Captain Frost came up from Sturgeon Creek, (a few miles below the river) with a party of his friends, and buried the Dead."

This testimony by the Reverend contemporary was not a selection from a funeral oration for probably: —

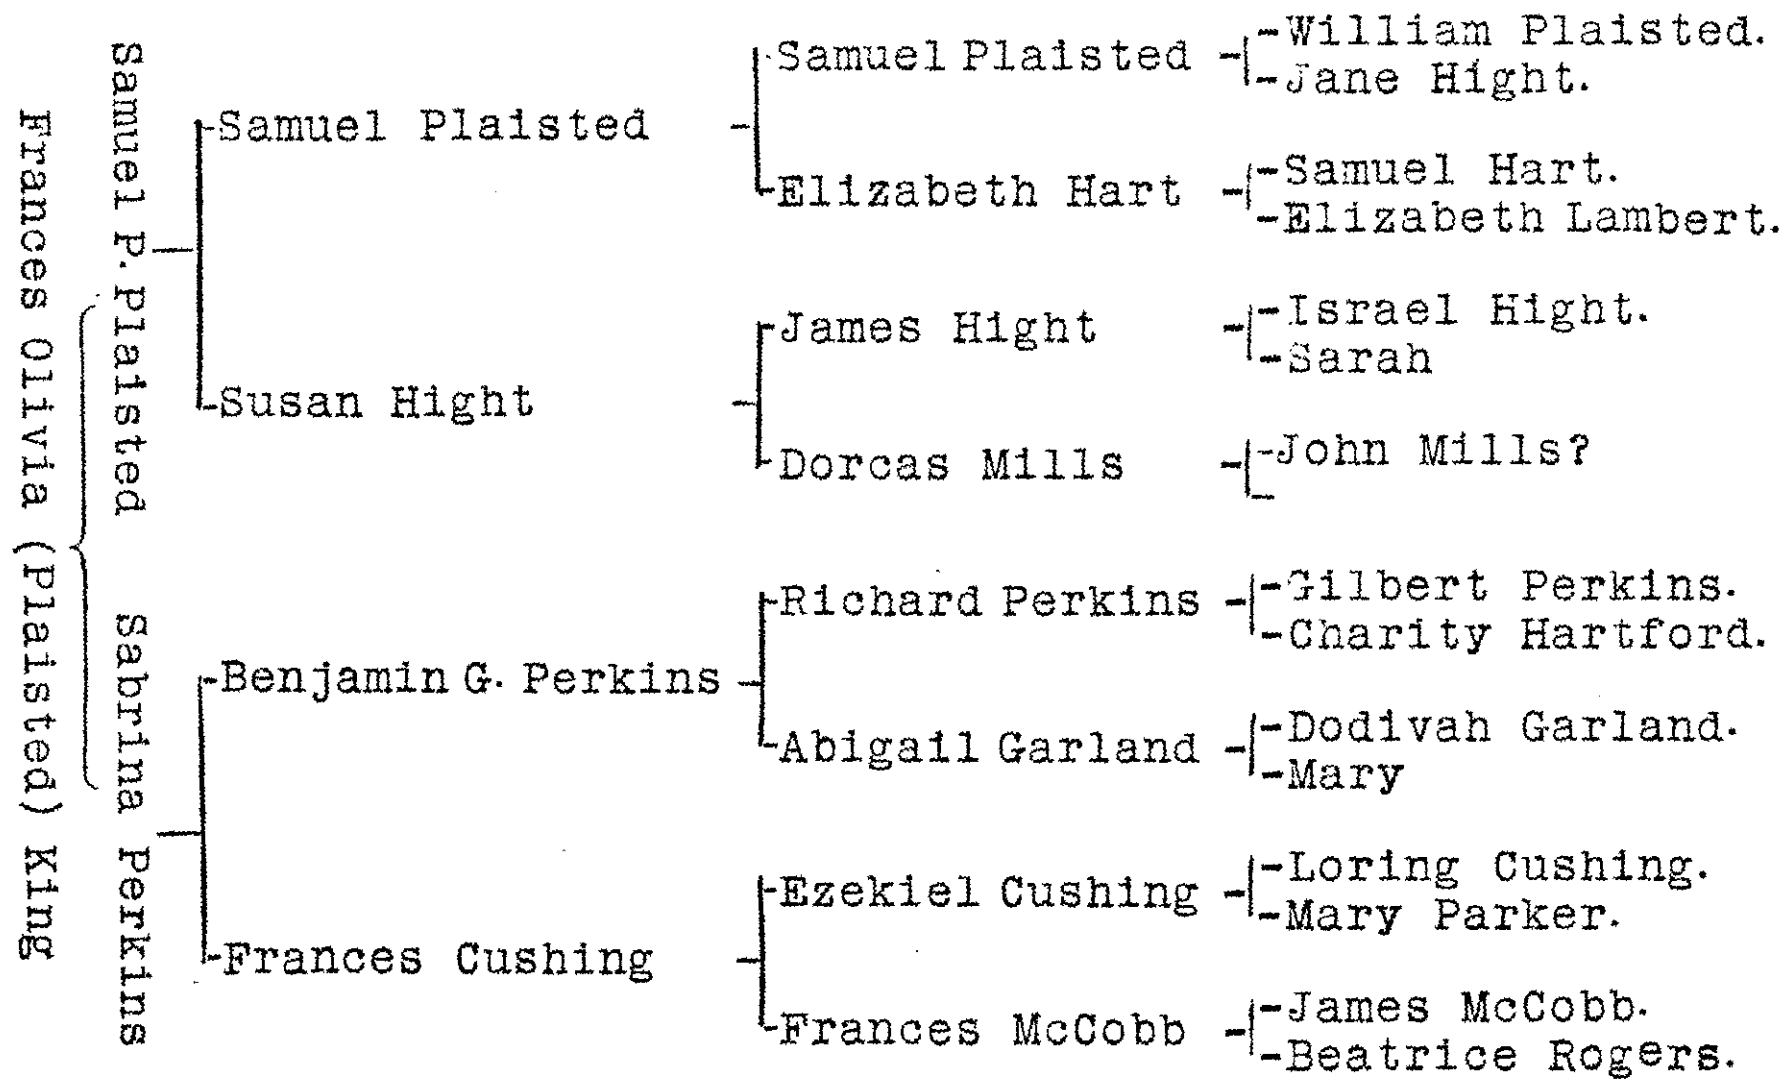

“Not a drum was heard, not a funeral note,

As his corse to the rampart was hurried;”

but a recital of one of the opening incidents of a conflict that was not ended until after an intermitting and most inhuman race war of more than half a century.

Possibly Mr. Hubbard may have been acquainted with Lieut. Playstead but certainly his "Narrative", which has been accepted as credible by Sullivan and later historians of the District, is evidence of his uncommon valor and that he was, as he says, "a good and useful man", is amply proven by those colony records that are preserved. Although Mr. Playstead's letter indicates that trust in God which is the basis of true religion, it is nowhere claimed that the early settlers of Maine and New Hampshire made themselves exiles for conscience sake, as did the Massachusetts Pilgrims and Puritans, but rather that they were moved by an ambition for a larger personal liberty and independence than was offered in the land of their birth. They, therefore, were willing to undergo temporary privation and even hazard their lives, that ultimately, they and their children should be "tenents to no man".

Where Roger Playstead was born or his whereabouts before his appearance in Kittery, now Berwick, we lack information, but probably he had not been long in the country when he witnessed the deed before mentioned. On the fifteenth of October, 1655, as per "York Deeds", one John Anger, at present of Kittery, acknowledged himself a debtor of Roger Playstead, of Quamphegon, in the sum of forty-two pounds, which he engaged to pay, in English goods, before the last day of September ensuing. In 1656 he was one of the petitioners to Oliver Cromwell, asking him to prohibit the heirs of Capt. Mason taking possession of the Maine lands. He had a grant on the north side of and adjoining Salmon Falls brook and bounded westerly by Salmon Falls river. Upon this tract he built his house, known as "The Garrison House", or the "Upper Garrison"; the "Lower Garrison" being at Capt. Frost's at Sturgeon Creek. The fact that the grant bears the date of 1659 is not evidence that he was not in actual possession prior to the date of official sanction. He had a pecuniary interest in the "Great Works Mills", which gives credence to the tradition that he came to Kittery to serve as the agent for John Beex & Co. of London, the proprietors of the mills and holders of considerable real estate in the vicinity. It is probable that Mr. Playstead utilized the power at Quamphigon Falls, being a part of his holdings, the mill at that point being operated by several generations of his descendants.

It has been suggested that the family had lived in Connecticut prior to their coming to Maine, this however seems improbable, although he is credited with an estate of 400 acres on the east side of the Pawcatucke river, evidently improved by him and perhaps occupied by one of his older sons. This land was a section of a township granted to Harvard College and others by the General Court of Mass. in May 1658 (Mr. P. had then been in Kittery more than three years). The lot was conveyed to Roger Playstead, yeoman of Kittery, by Edward Rawson (whilom Colonial Secretary), gent. of Boston, in 1672; the deed saying that Mr. P. had been many years in possession of the premises. It was in what is now the state of Rhode Island and when the grant was made, territorial lines, we conclude, had not been definitely established; for in 1666 Mr. Playstead made complaint to the Royal Commissioner's of the great injury done to him by the "Road Ylanders", who had taken possession of his lands and many of his cattle, resulting in an order in his favor for restoration. This however did not settle the troubles, for in May 1672, we find him and six others, original grantees or their representatives, petitioners to the General Court of Connecticut for protection from the people of Rhode Island for undue encroachment and many acts of violence, pulling down our houses, burning our fences, taking our grass and hay and divers other injuries and wrongs. Of the final of this contention we are not advised.

In 1661 and in 1662, Mr. Playstead served on the Grand Jury for York county and in 1661, '63 and '73, he was one of the Commissioners. In 1663 he was elected an Associate and to a seat in this Court he was annually reelected until his death. In 1668 when, the province of Maine came under the jurisdiction of Massachusetts, Charles Frost was commissioned Captain, Roger Playstead, Lieutenant and John Gattery, Ensign of the Kittery company; and Lieut. P. is credited with service in the General Court. The wife of ROGER PLAYSTEAD was OLIVE COLMAN, as we learn from the records of the church in Montreal where their daughter, Mrs. Mchitable Gooden, was baptized while in captivity. He was killed in battle, by the Indians, October 17, 1775, at the age of 48 years. His widow married 2d Capt. John Wincol, a prominent man in the province. He was a son of Thomas Wincol of Watertown, Mass. and had himself served on the board of Selectmen of that town before his settlement in Kittery. He was a surveyor and laid out many of the original grants, he had large interests in the timber lands above Salmon Falls also in the mills at the Falls. He was a Selectman of Kittery in 1652; he was Capt. in the militia and on duty with his company, at Scarborough. when his house, at the Falls, was burned by the Indians; he was a Justice of the Peace, served as Associate, Representative, Clerk of Courts, also as Register of Deeds and of Probate. He was killed by a fall from his horse Oct. 22, 1694; his wife Elizabeth was living in 1678.

Nov. 30, 1675, Olive Playstead and her eldest son, William, were granted letters of administration on the estate of Roger Playstead and June 2, 1676, Capt. John Davis and Capt. Frost, sureties on the bond of Olive, William and James Playstead, of £1000., were discharged; Mrs. Playstead agreeing to maintain her son Roger's wife and children "until she do change her condition". The inventory of the estate mentions house, mills and lands (250 acres) adjoining, £250.; total valuation, £597. 15s.

Sept. 16, 1682, Olive Wincol, William Playstead, James Playstead, John Playstead, Ichabod Playstead, Elizabeth Playstead and Mchitable Playstead signed an agreement of division of the estate in the presence of Daniel Smith and Thomas Goodwin. see york deeds, book VIII.

Children, part probably born in England, the others in Kittery, Maine.

2. ROGER, killed Oct. 17, 1675.

JOSEPH, prob. "the son who died of his wounds",

He was a private in Captain Samuel Mosely's company of volunteers in the Mount Hope campaign, during the summer of 1675.

WILLIAM, deposed in 1678 that he was 26 years old. He served on the Grand Jury in 1678 and in 1685; was Constable in 1681 and that year Geo. Broughton was fined, by the court, forty shillings "for striking him down". He escaped from Capt. Wincol's house when it was attacked by the Indians in March, 1690. He evidently had a wife, for the Rev. Joshua Moody, in a letter to Increase Mather says, "There are sundry reports among us of new things that seem to be matters of witchcraft", and gives a hearsay description of the appearance of a monstrosity born Sept. 5, 1683, to the wife of William Plaisted at Newichawanock. Nothing further of William or his family has been noted.

3 JAMES, settled in York.

4 JOHN, settled in Portsmouth.

ELISHA, married ELIZABETH HARVEY. His will, entered for probate at Boston, Dec. 6, 1690 was dated Oct. 26, 1690, names himself mariner of Piscataqua, sick and weak. He appoints wife, Elizabeth, executrix, and gives all his property to her, except his wearing clothes, which were to be distributed among his brethren. Mention is made of 100 acres of land at Piscataqua, (sold by her to John Plaisted in 1693,) buildings and household goods, a part of ship "The Friend", adventure 200 gals. of rum, 200 weight of cotton, a tun of molasses, a parcel of joiners tools, all of which were on board of said ship; also the wages due him on account of this voyage from Barbadoes this first of October. Both Elisha and wife spell their names "Playsted".

5 ICHABOD,

ELIZABETH,

MEHITABLE, b. April 30, 1670; m. before 1690
THOMAS GOODEN alias Goodwin, s. in Berwick, He was a son of Daniel and Margaret (Spencer) Gooden; his widow, Mehitable, administered his estate in 1714. In 1726 she sold to John Plaisted of Portsmouth, 25 acres of land in Berwick, this being one half of a lot granted in 1671 to Moses Spencer and by him sold to Daniel Goodin in 1674. She was living in 1740.

In March 1689/90 the town was devastated by the Indians, Mr. and Mrs. Gooden were carried into captivity and their infant son was barbarously murdered; for an account of their terrible sufferings, see Mather's Magnalia. Mrs. Gooden was sold in Montreal where she evidently made kind friends. She probably was uncertain of the fate of her husband and abandoned hope of return for May 11, 1693, she was solemnly baptized, Marie Esther, by the Vicar of the Bishop of Quebec, the Governor of Montreal standing as godfather. Her mistress in Montreal was Mlle. de Nauguiere, from whom she was ransomed in October 1695. Children born after their return from Canada; Thomas, b. July 20, 1697, m. Elizabeth Butler. Ichabod, b. June 1, 1700, m. Elizabeth Scammon. James, m. Margaret Wallingford. Olive, Mary and Bial.

ROGER^s PLASTED, Jr., killed Oct. 17, 1775, married HANNAH FURBER dau. of William and Elizabeth, of Dover. Hannah was appointed administratrix July 5, '76, her father standing bound with her in the sum of £120. that house, lands etc. be carefully improved for the benefit of herself and children. Estate appraised by John Wincol and Nyvan Agnew at £111. 02s. The estate of Roger, senior, was appraised by the same parties. In 1682 the court ordered a hearing on a revision of the settlement of the estate of Roger, sen. and afford some convenient portion for the children of Roger, jun., Wm. Furber to have notice. Later, Daniel Simpson of York was appointed administrator of the estate of his father-in-law, Roger Plaisted, Jr. The names of but two children have been noted and are as follows:—

FRANCES, — m. Daniel Simpson of York and is said to have had nine children. He died Oct. 5, and she Oct. 11, 1747.

ANIGAIL, — m. JOHN PARTRIDGE, Jr. of Portsmouth. In 1699 she, then his widow, conveyed to her father-in-law John Partridge of Portsmouth, land at Salmon Falls, that belonged to her father Roger Plaisted, Jr., in consideration of his keeping her youngest son, Joshua.

JAMES² PLAISTED, — Captain, Town Clerk of York and Representative. He was twice married, first with LYDIA HITCHCOCK, dau. of Richard and Lucretia (Williams) Hitchcock of Saco, who died before 1690, leaving two or more children. He was taken prisoner at Salmon Falls, and sent by the Indians to demand the surrender of the Holmes Garrison, thereby escaping.

He m. 2d about 1690, Mrs. MARY SAYWARD, widow of John and dau., b. 1660, of Edward and Susanna (Wheelwright) Rishworth of York. She with some of her children were taken prisoners, Feb. 1691/2, when York was sacked by the Indians and her infant child, then but a few days old was killed. The mid-winter camp through the wilderness to Montreal was attended with unspeakable suffering, many of the captives perishing by the way, but we have no report of their ill-treatment by the French after their arrival. Mrs. Plaisted and those of her children who were with her, were baptized at Montreal, Dec. 8, 1692 and were ransomed in Oct. 1695. Her children, by John Sayward, as recorded by Mr. Plaisted in the town books, were; Mary, b. April 4, 1681; known as Sister de Agnes of the Congregation Notre Dame; she died at Montreal, Mar. 28, 1717. Susanna, b. May 9, 1683, m. Abraham Preble. Esther, b. Mar. 7, 1685, remained in Canada. Hannah, b. June 20, 1687, m. John Swett. John, b. Jan. 2, 1689, m. Mary Dane. Mrs. Mary Plaisted administered the estate of John Sayward and Oct. 18, 1710 she was appointed administratrix of the estate of Capt. James Plaisted. Her account states that money was paid to Capt. Moody for her redemption from the Indians.

His children, by first wife, were:

of Boston. His will, on record in the Suffolk Registry, dated Jan. 5, 1707, represents him as sick, a resident of Boston and by occupation a mariner. He gives to his father, James Plaisted and brother Roger Plaisted, both of New England, each one guinea, all the rest to wife Hannah. Friends George Rowe of Parish of Saint Paul, Shadwell, co. Middlesex, cordwainer and John Hemar of New England, mariner, Exe'rs.

ROGER, — settled in Berwick and was one of its most influential citizens; next to his uncle Ichabod, he was the largest tax-payer in town. He was with the wedding party at Col. Wheelwright's when his cousin Elisha was taken prisoner. Administration was granted on his estate Oct. 12, 1767 to Tristram Jordan of Pepperellborough. The petition stated that he had neither wife, brother or sister and that they, the petitioners, were his heirs. Signed, Moses Merrill of Biddeford, clerk, and Hannah his wife, in her right; Rishworth Jordan of Biddeford; Samuel Jordan of Biddeford; Tristram Jordan of Pepperellborough; John Swett of York and Sarah his wife, in her right; John Plaisted of York; Ivory Hovey of Rochester, co. of Plymouth, clerk, and Olive his wife; William Clark of Berwick and Mary his wife, in her right; Cornelius Thayer of Boston and Sarah his wife, in her right.

By second wife:

A child killed by the Indians.

LYDIA, b. Jan. 4, 1696/7.

OLIVE, b. May 1, 1698; m. 1718, SAMUEL JORDAN son of Dominicus and Hannah (Tristram) Jordan of Spurwink. He d. Dec. 20, 1742, $\text{$}$ 58. She m. 2d, Mar. 1, 1744, Rev. THOMAS SMITH of Falmouth, his second wife. He was born in Boston Mar. 1701/2, son of Thos. and Mary (Curran) Smith and d. May 23, 1795 after a pastorate of 68 years. She d. Jan. 13, 1763, survived by children of Capt. Jordan, as follows: — Rishworth, b. 1719; Olive, b. 1722; Sarah, b. 1724; Hannah, Samuel, Tristram and Mary.

6 JOSEPH, — settled in York.

JOHN^s PLAISTED, — settled in Portsmouth before attaining his majority, where he engaged in trade. In partnership with his brother Ichabod, they built up a large business and accumulated considerable property. We conclude that masts and deals were leading articles in their trade, often being mentioned. One Bridges, Surveyor of the Woods of America, complained to Gov. Dudley that Plaisted was doing great damage in destroying the timber, cutting the largest masts etc.; claiming to be acting under a license from Queen Mary, dated 1691. Mr. Plaisted was not only a successful merchant but was prominent in the civic and military affairs in the colonies. He was Representative in the Provincial Assembly of New Hampshire in 1692 and for several succeeding years, being Speaker of the House in 1696, 1717 and 1727. In 1702 he was made a member of the Council, in which office he was continued fourteen years. In 1699 he qualified as a Judge of the Superior Court and was in attendance at every term until August 1716 when he was appointed Chief Justice. As Chief Justice he served but a single term. He was not a lawyer, at this time there were but few professional lawyers and they were seldom called to the Bench. He is credited with service in the Indian wars and was usually called "Colonel". A deed on record in Concord, N. H. bearing date Aug. 3, 1734, gives former residence, Portsmouth but now Berwick, says "In consideration of the parental affection, natural love and good will which I have for and do bear unto my well beloved son Elisha Plaisted of Berwick, Esq'r.". Gives to him, "all and singular my goods, chattels, debts, ready money, plate, jewels, rings, household stuff, utensils, brass, pewter, copper, bedding, horses, cows, sheep, hogs and all other things to me belonging and which I may claim as in right my own of what kind, nature, quality or condition soever the same may be or are and in what place or places soever the same may be found".

It might be inferred that by thus dispossessing himself of his property, that the old gentleman done so, not only to relieve himself from care but to provide maintenance for himself in his declining years, but the deed further says, "To have and to hold all and singular the above granted goods, chattels, debts and all other the aforesaid premises unto the said Elisha Plaisted, his exr's. adm's. and assigns from henceforth and forever as his and their proper goods, absolutely without any manner of condition". "Memor'd ye sd Jno. Plaisted put ye sd Elisha Plaisted In Peaceable & quiet Possession of all & Singular ye above sd premises by ye Delivery unto him at the Ensealing hereof one Silver Spoon".

In presence of Jeremiah Wise and Ellis Huske.

We conclude the transfer and perhaps change of residence were caused by some embarrassment in his business and perhaps the action of the Assembly, January, 1733/4, directing Col. John Plaisted and others to bring in before the next session the money remaining in their hands for exchanging old Province money had something to do with it. There was evidently a wide difference of opinion as to the amount due, for in 1741 the Assembly ordered John Plaisted to appear and abate the claim of £5384. At the same session Elisha appeared and gave bond for the payment of the amount due and his father, John Plaisted, Esq. was discharged from all demands as "Trustee for exchanging the old Cyphus money. In 1742 the Speaker reported to the Assembly that the sum of £85. 10s. had been paid by Col. John Plaisted, balance of money in his hands.

The date of Col. John's death has not been noted, or that his estate was offered for probate, but he evidently lived to be very aged; a deed, dated Oct. 29, 1746, signed by John and Sarah Plasted, is evidence of their being in Berwick at that date.

JOHN² PLAISTED and MARY PICKERING were united in marriage in 1681. She was a dau. of Capt. John and Mary (Stanyan) Pickering of Portsmouth and with her sons Elisha and James, and daughters Mary and Melitable, (des'd.) are mentioned in the will (1721) of her father. We conclude that she died before 1731, for in April of that year "Dame Sarah Plaisted" of Portsmouth, adm'x. of the estate of Mr. Nathaniel Rogers, petitioned the Assembly for an allowance for subsistence furnished the late Gov. Dudley. While we have not found the record of marriage, there seems little reason to doubt her being the second wife of Col. John Plaisted. She was a dau. of George and Sarah (Pemberton) Harkis and widow of Rev. Nathaniel Rogers, a grandson of Gov. Dudley and the pastor of the church at Portsmouth from 1699 until relieved by death Oct. 3d, 1723.

The estate of widow Sarah Plaisted was administered in Sept. 1749 by her son Daniel Rogers. The sum of £1006. 4. 8. was distributed to the natural heirs: Henry Sherburne, for the heirs of Nathaniel Rogers. Matthew Livermore, Dr. Joshua Gee and Mrs. Livermore, for the heirs of Mrs. Sarah Gee. Nicholas Gilman, for the heirs of Mrs. Elizabeth Taylor. Thomas Hutchinson and Mrs. Sarah Wellsted, for the heirs of George Rogers. Daniel Rogers.

JOHN, b. Jan. 6, 1682/3; m. Oct. 31, 1707 JANE PEMBERTON of Boston. She was b. Mar. 18, 1685/6, dau. of Dr. Thomas and Hannah (Phillips) Pemberton. He d. MARY, b. Mar. 29, 1687; m. Captain THOMAS PHIPPS, a graduate of Harvard College; Sheriff of the Province of New Hampshire in 1715.

7 ELISHA, settled in Berwick.

JAMES,

MEHITABLE, — m. BENJAMIN GERRISH of Portsmouth. She d. Jan. 3, 1715, Æ 21 years, leaving one son who went to live with his grandfather Plaisted.

ICHABOD² PLAISTED, in trade with his brother John at Portsmouth until July 24, 1704, when the partnership was dissolved by mutual consent, each retaining their undivided interest in the lands and estate of their late father Roger Plaisted. In 1706 he bought his brother James' interest in the old homestead and settled thereon.

During his residence in Portsmouth, he, as was his brother John, was prominent in civic and military circles. In 1698 the Assembly being informed the Earl of Bellomont had arrived at New York, they appointed Ichabod Plaisted Esq'r. their agent, with orders to wait upon the Earl and present their congratulations on his appointment as Governor of this Province, and to ascertain when he might be expected here. His bill for expense, £26: 13: was voted paid. The Indians had become a constant menace and as a soldier Capt. Plaisted was frequently employed scouting and defending the outposts; later he succeeded to the Colonelcy. He was Deputy Surveyor of his Majesty's Woods and Timber and after his return to Kittery, represented the town in the General Court; he also served in the Council, from 1706 until 1715. Both he and his brother John were with Gov. Dudley July 13, 1713, at the "Submission & Pacification of the Eastern Indians". In 1710 he succeeded Joseph Hammond as Judge of Probate and served during life; he was succeeded by Jno. Wheelwright. Williamson's History says: "No other name of his time in the Province of Maine was more distinguished in military matters and the service of the Province".

He may have twice married, but the evidence is not strong, although the Leighton genealogist says, he married a daughter of Maj. Charles Frost. One John Hill married Mary Frost and in a letter addressed to his Lieut. John Hill, dated in Mar. 1692/3, Capt. Plaisted subscribed himself: "Your Loving Brother"; a circumstance, but also suggests the probability that the wife of Lieut. Hill was Capt. Ichabod's sister Elizabeth.

ICHABOD² PLAISTED and MARY JOSE of Portsmouth were married Jan. 5, 1692/3. She was born Oct. 10, 1666, dau. of Christopher and Jane Jose; she m. second, John Brown of Salem, who d. before 1721. Oct. 19, 1731 Samuel Plaisted declined to administer the estate of his mother Mary Brown of Berwick and six days later Ichabod Plaisted, Capt. Ellis Huske and Dr. Nathaniel Rogers were appointed in his place.

Judge Ichabod Plaisted died Nov. 16, 1715: will, dated April 2, 1715, proved Feb. 29, following; mentions wife Mary, sons Samuel and Ichabod, daughters Mary and Olive, nephew Roger Plaisted and sister Mehitable Gooding. Wife Mary appointed executrix.

Children mentioned in his will.

SAMUEL, b. June 10, 1696; m. August 4, 1717, HANNAH WENTWORTH, b. July 4, 1700, dau. of Lieut. Gov. John and Sarah (Hunking) Wentworth of Portsmouth. She m. 2d. Sept. 4, 1732, Theodore Atkinson and died Dec. 12, 1769. Mr. Plaisted was grad. at Har. Col. in 1715; settled on the home farm; was Justice of the Peace etc. After the death of Capt. Brown, his mother returned to Berwick and lived with him in the "Great House" which was destroyed by fire, in 1735. There is a tombstone on the land which was Roger Plaisted's, upon which there is the following inscription:

"Here lies interred the body of Samuel Plaisted, Esq. who departed this life, March 20, 1731, æ 36. Near this place lies the body of Roger Plaisted, who was killed by the Indians Oct. 16, 1675, æ 48 years; also the body of his son, Mr. Roger Plaisted who was killed at the same time".

Ichabod Plaisted of Salem, administered the estate (appr'd. £1700.) of his brother Samuel; surities, Thomas Goodwin, yeoman and Ichabod Goodwin, blacksmith, both of Berwick. No ch'n.

8 ICHABOD, b. July 21, 1700; s. Salem.

He represented the town in the Assembly and was Speaker of the House. He m. 2d. a widow Rymes, nee Dorothy, dau. of Hon. Henry Sherburne and d. Nov. 15, 1746, leaving issue.

JOSEPH³ PLAISTED, son of Capt. James, (3) m. July 23, 1721, widow MARY CRAIGE, b. Feb. 17, 1697/8, dau. of Abraham, Jr. and Mary (Bragdon) Preble of York. Her will, dated Nov. 10, 1752, proved May 15, 1753, gives her thirds of her late husbands estate to her son John and her wearing apparel, to her daughter Sarah Swett. He evidently had his fathers home farm at York and his name appears on the roll of Capt. James Grant's company in a campaign in the fall of 1725. Oct. 17, 1752, Paul Nowell was appointed to administer his estate and at the same time, he was appointed guardian of his son John, a minor. Mr. Nowell died before completing his administration and was succeeded by Dr. John Swett in 1757. He was called "Esquire" and his estate was returned at £420:19:7.

ELISHA³ PLAISTED, son of Col. John, (4) m. Sept. 16, 1712, HANNAH WHEELWRIGHT, b. May 1, 1694, dau. of Col. John and Mary (Snell?) Wheelwright of Wells.

The wedding was a great occasion, Wheelwright's friends were numerous, many responded to his invitation and Plaisted came with a large escort from Portsmouth and vicinity. Though initiation to the conjugal union is a matter of deep solemnity, it never has and probably never will have any other character than that which it had when the world first began to marry and give in marriage. However impressive the services, fervent the prayers, and solemn the admonitions, on such occasions the hearts of all will rejoice and male and female will rush from prayers to the dance; from solemnity to festivity. On this occasion there was a change in the programme; whilst the festivities were going on within the garrison, there was gathering without a formidable army of malignant savages. But brave men were there, men born midst scenes of blood and rapine and experienced in indian warfare; a sortie drove away the Indians at the cost of several comrades killed and the bridegroom and one other, taken prisoners.

The first tidings of Plaisted came in a letter to his father, as follows:—

“Sir, I am in the hands of a great many Indians, with which there are six captains. The sum that they will have for me is fifty pounds, and thirty pounds for Tucker my fellow prisoner, in good goods, as broad-cloth and some provisions, some tobacco, pipes, pumicestone, stockings, and a little of all things. If you will come to Richmond’s Island in five days at farthest, for here two-hundred Indians, and they belong to Canada.

If you do not come in five days, you will not see me, for Captain Nathaniel, the Indian, will stay no longer, for the Canada Indian is not willing to sell me. Pray, Sir, don’t fail, for they have given one day, for the days were but four at first. Give my kind love to my dear wife.

This from your dutiful son till death,

ELISHA PLAISTEAD.”

The father promptly responded to the appeal and the lovers were soon reunited, and settled upon his father’s farm at Kittery. She was a g. grand-daughter, through a stalwart line, of that distinguished apostle of religious liberty, Rev. John Wheelwright, who submitted to exile rather than dictation from either church or puritan; a character transmitted to her descendants. Ten children were born to her, and they and theirs may in truth say, “she looked well to the ways of her household and eat not the bread of idleness; her children rise up and call her blessed”. Feb. 5, 1778, Samuel Emery was appointed administrator of the estate of Hannah, widow of the late Elisha Plaisted, Esq., John Plaisted, Olive Haley and Samuel Emery are named as creditors. This suggests a second marriage, for the will of Mary Wheelwright, dated Nov. 16, 1751, mentions "my three beloved Grand Daughters, the Daughters of my dear deceased Daughter Hannah Plaisted". Or perhaps the Hannah first mentioned may have been the wife of Elisha, Jr., of whom the compiler has birth record only.

Dec. 1, 1715, John and Mary Plaisted, in consideration of the natural love and affection for their son Elisha Plaisted of Berwick, conveyed to him one half part of the lands, housing, mills, streams of water, stock of cattle, sheep, swine, horse kind and utensils of all sorts, now in his possession but belonging to the said John Plaisted. The conditions were that Elisha should manage the whole farm to the best advantage, under his direction and deliver to him one quarter of the products. The estate not to be divided during their natural lives. By deed referred to on page 15, the whole estate came into Elisha's possession in 1734. He acquired titles to valuable properties, his name appears in a list of the proprietors of Scarborough. He represented Kittery in the General Court in 1713, was instrumental in procuring a division of the town and was on the first board of Selectmen of Berwick, 1714. He was a Justice of the Peace, Colonel of the Regiment and otherwise useful.

April 21, 1767, Ebenezer Ayer of Pepperellborough, was appointed guardian of Elisha Plaisted, Esq. of Berwick, who "by the Providence of God is no longer capable of taking care of himself or his property". Inventory, £1268: 12. Children.

sight. During his college life, he became interested in the writings of Paine and other sociologists, and whilst on his way to Charleston, he visited the "Sage of Montecello", whose magnetic personality intensified in his to sensual nature a philosophy that afforded no peace of mind for his cherished hopes destroyed. He returned despondent, almost cursing the day in which he was born, but under home influence a change came, from a pronounced skeptic, he became possessed with a strong desire to proclaim to others the riches of that grace by which he had been rescued.

He was licensed to preach and June 6, 1827 he was ordained pastor of a church in Rochester, Ms. where he continued until a severe cough put a stop to his preaching and he came home to die. He m. June 18, 1829, Rebecca Demick, b. Oct. 10, 1808, dau. of John and Eleanor (Holmes) Ingerson of Jefferson. Three brothers married three sisters. B. H., for several years, occupied the cottage near the Hart homestead, where his children were born. Acting upon a suggestion of his friend, Rev. Thomas Starr King of Boston, he built just prior to 1860, "The Waumbek," the first public house built in Jefferson. Mr. King was an ardent lover of the mountains and often a welcome guest at the Plaisted's; he was confident that there were multitudes, only waiting comfortable hotel accommodations, who would visit and enjoy the charming views from Mount Pliny and Jefferson Hill. Although neither Mr. or Mrs. Plaisted were experienced in hotel management, their success was marvelous, additions were made to the building, but not fast enough to supply the demand for more room and the more pretentious. "Plaisted House" was built. Mr. Plaisted caused a road to be built to the summit of Mount Pliny and changed its name to "Starr King", in honor of the man who's Boston Transcript letters had done so much in calling public attention to its charms. Other hotels sprang up around them and the quiet farming district has now become a famous resort for seekers of health and pleasure.

The old-time hospitality and generosity, together with the kindly interest of Mr. and Mrs. Plaisted in all their guests made hosts of friends and visits to them lingered long in memory. Mr. Plaisted died Dec. 16, 1881 and was buried with masonic honors. She quietly passed to her rest on the 10th day of March, 1890, at the Plaisted House, then kept by her son Philip.

SAMUEL POMEROY⁷ PLAISTED, son of Samuel, (39) was a housewright, settled first in Lancaster, N. H. where he built the Methodist Parsonage and for a time occupied rooms in it. He removed to Augusta, Me. at the time of the Madawaska war and was employed in the commissary department; later, he lived in Gardiner and in Lawrence, Mass. He came to Portland in May 1848 and as a foreman for George Worcester, superintended the building of a large brick school-house that was, later, taken down to give place for a residence for the Bishop of Portland. The next year he was employed by F. O. J. Smith as caretaker of his real estate, consisting of the Umpire Block, several stores and dwelling houses. The Umpire Block was on Union street and in it was the Theatre, Umpire Hall, a news-paper office, (The Umpire, a daily political, published by Mr. Smith.) the telegraph office, etc. Mr. Smith was early associated with Prof. Morse and contributed largely to the introduction of his system of telegraphy. He was the promoter of the first line between Boston and Portland: Mr. P. was employed in its construction and for twenty-six years continued to superintend the construction and repairs of telegraph lines, through various changes, up to his decease, at which time he was in the employ of the Western Union Co. The business gave him a large circle of acquaintances and he was very much beloved by all with whom he came in contact.

Mr. Plaisted was united in marriage, Nov. 1830, with Sabrina, born Oct. 10, 1812, dau. of Benjamin Garland and Frances (Cushing) Perkins. Few men have traveled as many miles by rail, and none were more familiar with the workings, or had a better practical knowledge of the science as then in use. Mr. Plaisted was a serg't. in the Portland Light Infantry, before the war and since has been one of the leaders of the White Coat association. He was Foreman of Dirigo Engine Co. No. 8, in the volunteer Fire Department, served two terms on the Board of Engineers and one term in the City Council; a mark of popular favor, for he was a Democrat and elected from a Republican stronghold. - IV SUSAN ELIZABETH, b. Augusta, June 6, 1838, m. Dec. 18, 1856, Samuel Sylvester, b. Sept. 28, 1833, son of George B. and Eliza (Beckett) Starbird of Portland. Mr. Starbird was a printer, for a time in the firm of Bearce, Starbird, Rich & Co. publishers of the State of Maine, a daily paper, edited by John A. Poor. He was a writer of considerable ability and while Clerk of the Portland Light Infantry, he published an interesting account of the company's visit to Montreal. He died July 24, 1861, after a short sickness, of quick consumption, brought on by over work and neglect of self whilst starting the Evening Courier of which he was the editor and publisher. At the time of his death the Courier claimed the largest daily circulation of any paper in Portland; Mr. Starbird put not only his property but his life into it, yet his family received no benefit.

On the day of his funeral the Courier devoted a half column of editorial to his memory from which we take abstracts as follows: —

“up to the hour of his death he wore the same kind, pleasant, genial look and smile which was so habitual to him in his intercourse with the unusually large circle of friends. A more honest, noble, large-hearted man than Mr. Starbird never breathed; generous to a fault, always full of life and animation, vigor and perseverance, if he had a single vice, we failed to perceive it. In all the years of our varied business connections we have never met the man in whose honor and integrity we had more implicit, unreserved confidence”. His widow died, at the home of her sister at South Portland, June 3, 1904.

He was for several years book keeper for the Chas. P. Kimball Manufacturing Co. and later, his health having become impaired, he devoted himself to landscape and historical painting, for which amateur efforts had shown him to have special gifts. He was a charter member of Bramhall Lodge K. of P., also of the Gr. Lodge of Me. and was its first Grand Scribe. "His zeal and efficient official services contributed much to the success of the Order in this State."

In 1856 he located in Bangor for the practice of law. Aug. 1861 he enlisted in the Eleventh Maine and went to the front as Lieut. Colonel, was with his regiment in several of the most important battles of the war and he was twice promoted for "gallant and meritorious conduct in the field". At the close of the war he reopened his law office in Bangor. Gen. Plaisted always took a lively interest in politics; his father being a Republican, he naturally adopted the principles of that party and as a Republican served three years on Gov. Morrill's Staff, twice represented the city of Bangor in the Legislature, was three times elected Attorney-General and in 1876, he was elected Representative to Congress to fill an unexpired term. It is said that his failure to secure a renomination embittered him against his old comrades and caused him to seek new political alliances. In 1880 he was elected Governor of Maine on what is known as the "Fusion Ticket" and was renominated for a second term but was defeated by the Republican nominee and thereafter as editor and publisher of the New Age, zealously devoted himself to the interest of the Democratic Party.

The preceding notes have been gleaned in a passive, "when seen make a note of it", sort of a way, with no thought, until quite recently, of printing, even now perhaps an apology is due for going to print with so little data. Whilst nothing has been here inserted (E. E.) without what was considered reasonable evidence of verity, yet it is advised that this work be not quoted without verification.

Since page eleven was printed we have found that a William Plaisted was paid by New Hampshire for service in Capt. Matthew Austin's company, from July 21, to Nov. 14, 1709, in an expedition to Canada. He may have been the son of Roger¹, although hardly probable, for he would then have been 57 years of age and suggests the idea of his having a son William³. The Ricker genealogy says, "Judith, b. Nov. 15, 1720, dau. of John and Hannah (Garland) Ricker, married William Plaisted"; family is not mentioned, but unless she was much younger than her husband, he must have been in the fourth generation. William and Judith appear to have lived in New Hampton, N. H. and to have had descendants in the towns of Ashland, Holderness and Merideth. William and Samuel, reported sons of William are credited with service in the Revolution, perhaps service credited to William⁶, p. 27, belongs to this family.
