THE RODES FAMILY

This edition is limited to fifty copies of which this is No..7..

RODES arms as depicted above, is from an old heraldic description from Burke which reads—"arms (shield) a lion passant guardant, gules (red) between two acorns azure (blue) within two bendlets ermines. Crest—An arm couped at the elbow argent (silver) holding an oak branch or (gold) fructed azure."

FOREWORD

Believing that this concise record will prove of real and abiding interest to some of the descendants of the Rodes family in America, the author was prompted to gather the miscellaneous data contained herein so the present and future generations of this particular family may have at hand, for ready reference, facts and details which might otherwise prove more difficult to ascertain with the passing of time. The sources of information were many and varied. Some of it came from authoritative text books on local English history and genealogies, some of it came from letters in the immediate family as well as notations in the family Bibles, and some of it through the unfailing memory of certain lineal descendants. This small volume does not pretend to be exhaustive nor final, and it is sincerely hoped that those of the Rodes family who would add more, will be encouraged to do so, and perhaps a future volume will bear evidence of their increased interest.

Origin of the name Rodes

Before we launch into the genealogy of the Rodes family perhaps it would be desirable to discuss for a moment the etymology of the family name. It is frequently evident that the etymology of proper names is the only branch of the subject which in any sense can be called popular; for most men, even those who care not to inquire into the origin of the language they speak, feel some interest or curiosity in knowing the meaning of the names they bear. And justifiably too, for not one of the thousands of names have been given without reason. Deeds of valor, surpassing virtues, personal characteristics as well as many other sources served as a fountain from which names were drawn for generations of men. We find among the ancient Franks the equivalent of the name Rodes, which means, glory.

The dialects of the various tribes who came over to England were fused in one common language, which was Anglo-Saxon, but there was no such fusion of names. In all their dialectic variations the names of these early settlers, which they carried through Anglo-Saxon times, exist to the present day. The Franks, the name of a confederation of tribes, formed about the year 240 A.D., who eventually founded the modern country of France, are represented in the present family names of France and due to the emigration of the Frenchman into England an interchange of names resulted up to a comparatively recent period (the Revocation of the Edict of Nantes).^{*} In the Frankish dialect of the Merovingian period it is a peculiarity to change h at the beginning of a word to ch or sometimes to the simple c. Hence the names of the Me-

^{*} "Edict of Nantes, an edict of which on April 15th, 1598. Henry the Fourth of France granted toleration to his Protestant subjects. It was revoked on October the twenty-second, 1685 by Louis the Fourteenth; the unwise act causing expatriation of about fifty thousand Protestant families, who carried their industry to England and other lands. The loss to France was great as well as the gain to those countries which were wise and hospitable enough to afford an asylum to the refugees."

rovingan kings Childibert and Childeric for Hildibert and Hilderic. This peculiarity of the Frankish dialect has had the effect of prefixing c to many names beginning with l and r. So we have the same name spelt differently such as, Croad (Frankish) and Rode (English).

A common stem or simple form is rod and rot which appears since the fifth century. It was frequent among the Hessians, Alananni and Bavarians, but not so much among the Saxons. It is referred to in the old Norse word Lrodhr meaning glory, and a supposed corresponding Gothic word Lroths. It is probable that rod, rot and red also intermix. It will be of interest to observe additional forms of the name. For example, simple forms in old German are—Hrodo, Roado, Ruth, Rodi, Rudda, Chrudo; eighth century English simple forms are. Rodd, Roth, Wroth, Root, Rooth, Rudd and Rutt; modern German—Rhode and Rodde; in the French—Rode, Rodde, Rota, Rude, Rudeau, Ruteau. Inasmuch as we can trace the name Rodes back over a thousand years it is not unlikely that the family, too, originated at that time.

THE RODES FAMILY

The family of Rodes is one of great antiquity. We can easily trace records proving they flourished for several centuries in the Counties of Nottingham, Lincoln, York and Derby.

GERARD DE RODES is the first of the family in England to whom reference has been found. In Burke's "Commoners" we read the following: "As we find in Camden that the baroncy of Horn Castle was a soke or seigniory of thirteen lordships Gerard de Rodes was consequently 'A greater baron' and as ambassador he attained a still higher rank; his absence in that capacity will account for his name not occurring on the roll of Magna Charta. Gerard de Rodes was sent as ambassador to foreign parts 29th March in the 9th year of King John's reign.

It is probable that Gerard de Rodes was one of the family of the Counts d'Armagnac and Rodes (or Rhodes), mentioned by Froissart [Vol. X, p. 354], who came over with Henry II and Margaret, his mother, from Normandy; but as these Counts seem designated by the first title, D'Armagnac, it is equally and perhaps more probable, that his ancestor was de Rhodes, hereditary knight, of Flanders,* mentioned in Froissart [Vol. 1, p. 121 and elsewhere] among the nobility of Flanders, who came over with the Earl of Flanders and Tofti, Harold's brother, to assist William the Conqueror. There is no genealogical account of the extinction of the baronial title of Gerard de Rodes, but we find in Camden that the baroncy itself was given by Richard II to the Bishop of Carlisle and his successors (Camden's Britannia, Lincolnshire, p. 418)."

* "Flanders was at that period generally in alliance with England. We find in Froissart a Sir John de Rhodes among other knights, coming over to Yorkshire to serve in Edward's army against Bruce, (Vol. 1, p. 40). We, however, see subsequently (Page 125) the same knight, or his descendant, Sir John de Rhodes, laying down his life for his legitimate sovereign in the island of Cadsant, against a low usurper supported by the English." (Hume).

It would appear from the following quotations from Sir Walter Scott in "Old Ballads", that the family also had a seat either in Scotland, or somewhere on the borders nearer than Horncastle, Lincolnshire.

"The house of the Rhodes' on the hill—
The Gordon then his bugle blew,
And said, 'Awa, awa,'
The house of Rhodes is all on fire
I hold it time to 'ga'".

From Gerard de Rodes we proceed through a continuous line of descendants.

The Counties in England in which were the Rodes estates exist to this very day. The terms shire and county are so far synonymous in that they indicate a portion of land distinguished by a particular name; yet etymologically they are widely different. Although every shire is a county, it is not to every county to whose individual name the word shire may be added. The latter is essentially Anglo-Saxon, denoting a division of land possessed by an earl and wherever it occurs it points conclusively to the Saxon occupation of England. The England of the Saxons therefore is to be distinguished wherever the word shire appears as part of the county name.

Nottinghamshire is a contraction of Notingham, "the place of caves," so-called on account of the soft sand stone which so greatly facilitated the formation of caverns during the early history of England; e.g. "Mortimers hole." and the subterranean passage that lead thereto from Nottingham Castle in the reign of Edward the third. Lincolnshire is a contraction of the latin lindum-colonia, signifying the colony formed by the Romans on the Llyn-dun. The shire or county of York, in common with the majority of the midland and Welsh counties, is named after its chief town, or rather in this case the ancient city described in documents as Eurewic but pronounced Yorric. Derbyshire is a contraction of the Saxon Deer-by or wild beast village, doubtless so designated from its frequent invasion by strange animals, from that mountainous district, in search of prey. All of these countries feature in the history of the Rodes family and lie adjacent to each other.

Horn Castle was situated in Lincolnshire and the second ancestral home of the Rodes family, Staveley Woodthorpe, is in Derbyshire. This home was sold by John Rodes in the seventeenth century to the Duke of Portland. Barlborough Hall was built in 1583 by the Elizabethian judge, Francis Rodes, and was used by John Rodes and his heirs as their home after the sale of Staveley Woodthorpe. "This seat" says Pinkington, "is a handsome mansion of the age of Queen Elizabeth, having been built in her reign by Francis Rodes. The principal front of the house retains its original appearance, having projecting bows, terminating in octagonal embattled turrets; and large transom windows; the inside has been modernized; but in one of the lower rooms, taken out of the great chamber, is a very magnificent stone chimney-piece enriched with fluted Doric pillars supporting statues of Justice and Religion and coats of arms and various articles in bas-relief: in the upper part are the arms of Rodes, with these inscriptions, 'Francis Rodes serviens suae Reginae ad legem Anno Domini 1584, aetatis suae 50'.

In the lower part are two shields of the arms of Rodes with different empalments, the one supported by a judge on the dexter, and a lady on the sinister side, inscribed Elizabeth Sandford; the other with similar supporters inscribed Franciscus Rodes, Maria Charlton. At the bottom is this inscription, 'Constitutus Justiciarius in Banco Rommuni 30 Eliz.' On the sides are other inscriptions, more particularly describing the wives and their issues; the buff coat and sword of Sir Francis Rodes, worn in the time of Charles I, are preserved in this house; they are engraved in Grose's Ancient Armour, plate XXXIX."

SIR FRANCIS RODES died in March, 1675, and was s by his only son.

XII. SIR JOHN RODES died unmarried in Oct., 1743, and the baronetcy expired. The estates devolved upon his great nephew, Gilbert Heathcote, who assuming the name of Rodes became Gilbert Rodes, Esq., of Barlborough Hall. He died unm. in 1768 and was s by his nephew, Cornelius Heathcote who assumed the name of Rodes and died, a bachelor, at the age of 70 on March 6, 1825, when the estates passed to his nephew, the Rev. Cornelius Heathcote-Reaston, who assumed the surname of Rodes and was in 1837 at Barlborough Hall.

We read in "A Quaker Post Bag" the following:

"SIR JOHN RODES of Barlborough was the fourth and last baronet of his name, the first baronet being Sir Francis Rodes, who married Elizabeth, daughter and heir of Sir George Lascelles of Sturton and Gateford in Nottinghamshire. This Francis was the grandson of Judge Francis Rodes of Staveley-Woodthorpe, one of the judges of the Common Pleas in the reign of Elizabeth, to whom the practice of the law does not seem to have been unprofitable, for besides Barlborough Hall in Derbyshire, which he left to his eldest son, John, he also built two other houses, Hickleton, for his son Peter, and Great Houghton, in Yorkshire, for his son Godfrey, knighted in 1615, whose daughter Elizabeth was the third wife of the ill-fated Earl of Stratford. Judge Rodes's second son, Francis, was apparently passed over in this distribution of mansions. Possibly he was less worthy than the others, and early developed traits of character which, in later life, led to his being mentioned in certain family letters as having "hir'd three trusty fellows from Eckington to break into Brother Rodes's new house at Barlborough."

SIR JOHN RODES, the Quaker, was the only surviving son of the third Sir Francis, his mother being Martha Thornton, daughter of William Thornton of Grantham, in Lincolnshire, and sister of Cyprian Thornton, of Bloxham, in the same county. The Quakers, at that time, were mostly men of the humbler sort, and John Rodes was evidently of some account amongst them.*

SIR JOHN RODES died unmarried in October, 1743, when the baronetcy became extinct, and his estates in Derbyshire and Nottinghamshire passed to his great-nephew, Gilbert Heathcote, who assumed the surname of Rodes."

* The Society of Friends originally styled themselves Seekers, because they sought after the manner of Nicodemus, the Jewish ruler, as narrated in St. John iii 1-21. They were first designated Quakers by Justice Bennet of Derby, in 1650, in consequence of George Fox, the founder, having admonished him and all present to quake on hearing the word of the Lord. The Seekers first came into existence in 1646. The white Quakers who escaped from the main body were distinguished by their white clothing.

DEAR FRIEND,—I hope I shall allways be ready to show thee how much I desire thy prosperity every way. It is long I have travelled in my spirit for thee and knowing the temptations that would grow upon thee and the evill days by means thereof that must attend thee. I have prayed that thy faith fail not, and that thou faintest not by the way: for thou hast been called to a glorious mark, even that of an Heirship with the Beloved of God in Eternal Habitations. The Lord preserve thee to the end. Now as to wt I meant at C. Mars.¹ it is this: a Course or Method of life as far as we can be our own, I would divide my days of the week, and then the times of the day, and when I had Considered and divided my business I would proportion it to my time. Suppose, for example, thus: $\frac{1}{4}$ to Religion, in Waiting, Reading, Meditating &c. . . . $\frac{1}{4}$ to some generall study. $\frac{1}{4}$ to meals and some Bodily Labour as Gardening, or some Mathematical Exercise. $\frac{1}{4}$ to serve friends or neighbours and look after my Estate; It prevents consumption of time and confusion in Business. The books I spoke of that are most valuable for a moderate Library are as follows. For Religion the Bible, Friends' Books, of wch I advise an exact collection, binding the small up in vollumes together. The Books of Martyrs. For Controversy between Pap and Protestants Bp Jewel against Harding. Ld Faulkland of Infallibility, and Chillingworth. For Devotion the Scriptures, Friends' Epistles, Austin his City of God, his Soliloquies, Thom a Kempis, Bona, a late piece called Unum Necessarium, and a Voyce crying out of the Wilderness writt in Q Elizabeth's time; of Books forrunning Friends appearance, T. Saltmarsh, W. Dell, W. Erberry, Goad, Coppins, & Webster his Works. For Religious History Eusebius, Bp Usher's Annals, Cradock of the Apostles, History of the Waldenses, Sir Sam Morland's of the Persecutions in Piedmont. Of mixt & generall History Prideaux, thin quarto, Petavius, a thin folio. Afterwards Dr Howell late of Cambridge, not forgetting Sr W. Raleigh's for his Preface sake. For natural Philosophy Enchiridion Physical and some of Sqr Boyle's Works. For Mathematicks, Leyborn. For Physick, Riverius. For the Gall. Way. and for Chymistry le Faber, unless a Practitioner, then, Helmont, Glauber. Crollius, Hartman Scroder & Tibaut &c.; and for Improvements of Lands & Gardens Blith & Smith. Systema Agriculturæ. English and French Gardener. For Policy, above all Books, the Bible, that is, the old Testament writings. Thucydes. Tacitus. Council of Trent, Machievel, Thynanus. Grotius's Annals. Of our own Country Daniel and Trussel. Sr Fr. Bacon Life of H. 7th, Ld Herbert's H. 8th and Cambden Eliz. Sr. Thom. Moor's Utopia. Nat. Bacon. Hist. of the Gov. of E. Saddler's Rights of the Kingdom. Sr Rob Cotten's Works. the Pemphts since the Reformation pro et con. to be had at the Acorn. in Pauls Yard, to be bound up together, comprisable in about 6 quarto vollumes. Rushworths Collections.. tho large. are not unusefull, being particular, and our own History and the best since 30. wch is the chieftest time of Action. But I will add one more, the English Memorials, by the Lord Whitlock. a great man, and who dyed a Confessor to Truth. in wch thy Grand father is handsomely mentioned.¹ Thes for the main Body of a study will be sufficient and very accomplishing.

There are other Books of use and vallue. as Selden of Tythes. Tayler's Liberty of Prophecy. Goodwin's Antiquities. Cave's Primative Christianity. Morals of the Gentiles. Plutarch, Seneca. Epictetus, M.A. Antoninus. Also Lives. as Plutarch. Stanly's of the Philosophers. Lloyd's State Worthys, Clark's Lives and Winstanley's England's Worthys. There are 6 or 8. Books publisht by one R. B. as the History of England. S and J surprising Miracles, Admirable Curiositys & that have profitable diversion in them. But if I were to begin again, I would buy as I read, or but a few more at least, and in Reading have a Pencil, and wt is of Instruction or observable, mark it in the Margent with the most leading word and collect those memorandums with their Pages into a clean sheet put into the Book or a Pocket Book for that purpose. wch is the way to fasten wt one reads and to be master of other means sense.

Allways write thy name in the Title Pages, if not year and cost, that if lent, the Owner may be better remembered and found. Observe to put down in a Pocket-Book, for that purpose, all openings of moment wch are usually short, but full and lively; for I have few things to remember with more trouble then forgetting of such irrecoverable Thoughts and Reflections. I have lost a vollume of them. They come without toyle or beating the Brain, therefore the purer, and upon all subjects, Nature, Grace, and Art. Thou art young, now is the time and use it to the utmost profit. Oh! had I thy time in all likelihood to live, wt could I not do. Therefore, prize thy time. I am now 26 years beyond thy age. and tho I have done and suffered much, I could be a better Husband of that most precious Jewel. The Lord direct thee in thy walks, and he will, if thou take him for thy Guide, and if he be the Guide of thy Youth, to be sure he will not leave thee in thy old age. To him I committ thee and to the word of his Grace with wch is wisdom and a sound understanding that makes men Gentlemen indeed and accomlisht to inherit both Worlds, for the Earth is for the Meek, and Heaven for the Poor and Pure in Heart and spirit.

Give my love and respects to thy Mother and Relations; all your welfare in the Lord I wish and am affectionately Thy Cordial friend

My dear love salutes friends and J. Gr.¹ especially.

My indisposition with the toothache obliged me to use an other hand. Farewell.

I forgot Law Books, as the Statutes at Large and abridged—Doctors and Students, Horn's Mirror of Justice, Cook's Institutes, the Compleat Justice, Sheriff, Constable & Clark, and of Wills, Godolphin, Justinians Institute is an excellent book also.²

² Many of the books recommended by Penn to John Rodes are still in the library at Barlborough, and John did not forget to inscribe his name in all of them, but not, alas, the "year and cost."

William Penn, the founder of Pennsylvania and the most romantic figure in the whole Quaker history, was born in a house near the Tower of London in 1644. His father was Admiral Sir William Penn, a man of wealth and distinction, who was in great favour at Court, and his conversion to Quaker ideals meant breaking with all the old friends and the old life—but he never wavered, and perhaps the happiest of his days were those spent in the quiet Buckinghamshire home of Isaac Pennington's step-daughter, who afterwards became his wife.

Despairing of liberty of conscience in England, Penn carried out the "Holy Experiment," and obtained from the English Government (instead of a sum of £15,000, which was due to him at his father's death), a Charter for the ownership of a large tract of country in America, on the banks of the Ohio river and north of the province of Maryland. This was Pennsylvania, the "Forest of Penn," and here he chose the site of Philadelphia, the "City of Brotherly Love." Penn died in England, not in the land of which he was the governor and which was called after his name, and he was laid to rest in the quiet burying ground at Jordans, in Buckinghamshire, by the side of his first wife and his son Springett.

I wod have it A Grave Colour; It is A slight kind of a silk, and will not cost much. I would have as much as to make me A riding coat and petticoat; if it be a yard broad, 3 breadths will be enough for the Peticcoat. If S. B. does not understand wt silk I mean, he may call at Betty Ash and she can inform him wt is used for dust Coats, wt sort of silk—I write to thee since I recd S. Barker's letter and the inclosed printed papers, and I have despatched one to Henry Jacksons. R. Harrison and his wife was hear yesterday to see me, and desired to have their Dr loves and service to thee.

So with my own Dr and tender love to my Dr babe. I take leave of thee and remaine thy Affectionate Mother

M. RODES.

Thy sisters remembers their love to thee. I beseech God Almighty to bless and keep and preserve thee in thy jorny and ever more, so saith my soul. My Love my Love farewell. Adew.

I would have my Coat partly of this Colour, but rather sader. My respects and kind love to S. Mead and Cozen Moris . . .

* The letters copied in here have lain at Barlborough, in Derbyshire, for over two hundred years, in carved chestnut boxes. The Sir John Rodes to whom these letters were addressed, was a descendant of the Elizabethian judge, Francis Rodes, who built Barlborough Hall in 1583; a great grandson of the Sir Francis Rodes who fought for King Charles in Ireland and was made a Baronet; and great grandson of Sir Gervase Clifton, who, as William Penn points out in one of his letters, is "handsomely mentioned" in Whitelock's Memorials. Sir John himself has left no letters behind him, but in the Journal of Thomas Storey may be found references to him and the household at Barlborough Hall.

Sir John Rodes, and his mother, Lady Rodes, and his two married sisters, Ann Thornton and Frances Heathcote, the wife of Dr. Gilbert Heathcote, were in the inner circle of the Quakerdom of that day, and the intimate friends of William Penn.

Rodes Family In America

While positive proof has not yet been found that John Rodes, who was born in Virginia in 1697, was a son of Charles Rodes, who, we know, was living in Virginia at that time, yet the presumptive evidence is strong. The tradition in every branch of the family has been that this John Rodes was the son of the immigrant Charles; one of the reasons being that the name of Clifton has so frequently appeared both in the English family to which Charles Rodes belonged, and in the Virginia family descended from John. The fact that John Rodes was born in 1697 in or near what was then New Kent County, Va., makes it hardly doubtful that he was the son of the Charles Rodes whose daughter Mary's baptism (February 7, 1702,) is recorded in the register of St. Peter's Parish, New Kent County, Va. The birth of a son (John) in 1697, and of a daughter (Mary) in 1702 would accord very well with a marriage in 1695.

CHARLES RODES (1) who came to Virginia from England and was the first generation in this country, m. in 1695, and had the following children:

MARY (2)

CLIFTON (2) RODES was living in Virginia during the first half of the 18th century, who was a son of Charles Rodes. There is on record in York County, Va., a deed dated Dec. 20, 1740, conveying land in York County to Clifton Rodes of James City County (the James City records are unfortunately destroyed). The will of Clifton Rodes of York County and of course the same as of James City, were proved in York County, July 15, 1745. His legatees were his wife, Sarah, his son Francis and other children whom he does not name. If all of his children died during their minority, the property was to go to John and Elizabeth, the children of Francis Rodes, and to Clifton Rodes and his brother, the children of John Rodes of Hanover County.

JOHN (2) RODES, m. Mary, born 1703, da. of Capt. David Crawford of Amherst County, Va. He was born in the lower end of the present Hanover County, Nov. 6, 1697, died May 3, 1775. He moved to Louisa

Martha, wife of Sir Francis Rodes

County, and in September, 1765, was appointed a vestryman of Frederickville Parish. In October the next year, John Rodes, and Mary his wife, of Louisa County, made a deed to their son Clifton Rodes conveying lands they bought in 1727. He was a Justice of Albemarle County. The inventory of his personal estate amounting to £1,044.17.3, a large property for the time and county. John and Mary Rodes had issue

FROM THE LAWS OF KENTUCKY

An Act to explain and amend the act for establishing the town of Boonesborough, in the County of Kentucky, Virginia.

Passed the General Assembly Dec. 29, 1787.

1. Whereas it hath been represented to the present General Assembly that the Trustees formally appointed for the town of Boonesborough in the County of Madison, formerly Kentucky, have refused to act, it therefore enacted that Thomas Kennedy, Aaron Lewis, Robert Rodes, Green Clay, Archibald Woods, Benjamin Redford, John Sappington, William Irbine, David Crews and Giggerson Grubbs, gentlemen, shall be, and they are hereby appointed Trustees of the said town of Boonesborough in the room of those hereafter appointed.
2. AND Whereas doubts have arisen concerning the quantity of the land vested in the Trustees of the town aforesaid, BE it enacted that 640 acres of land shall be, and the same are hereby vested in the Trustees aforesaid, and their successors; 70 acres of which for the purpose of lots and streets, and the remainder for a common, to be laid off, and subject to like order and regulations that directs, establishing the town of Boonesborough.

INTERESTING OLD WILLS

The following are extracts of will books of Albemarle County, Virginia.

1. Will of John Rodes, Sr. (1) St. Anne's Parish, dated Feb. 12, 1771, recorded in October, 1775.

To his son Charles 382 acres, taken from the north end of testator's land on which he lives, beginning at David Glenn's corner on Pruitt's branch to another corner on the north side of Bark Creek, adjoining Bartholmew Ramsey's land; second, to his wife Mary Rodes, his real and personal estate during widowhood; if she should marry, then to be "put to her thirds", and after her death the land he lived on to be sold, proceeds to be divided amongst his four sons and five daughters. His slaves to be divided as they can agree but none to be sold out of the family. To Charles and John 5£ for extra services. Sons Charles and John appointed executors. Signed JOHN RODES, SR. witt: Thomas Paunell, Francis Montgomery,

William Maddox, John Wingfield.

Will Book No. 2, Page 325.

2. Will of John Rodes, Jr. (3) son of above and father of Tyree Rodes, dated July 6, 1804, recorded Aug. 6, 1810, Will Book No. 5, Page 75 at Charlottesville, Virginia:

First, to son Robert, 3 negroes naming them; second to daughter Henrietta 3 negroes, naming them; third to daughter Ann, 3 negroes, naming them; fourth to son John, 3 negroes, naming them; fifth to son Clifton, 3 negroes and tract of land on which he now lives, which he purchased of Wallace & Gooch; sixth to son Tyree, 3 negroes; seventh, to daughter Sally Harris, 3 negroes. All the land on which he resided and all adjoining same which he had purchased to be sold and proceeds divided one-third to daughter Henrietta, one-third to be put at interest and to be divided equally amongst children of daughter Ann. The rest of his estate to be divided amongst all his children; viz., Robert, Henrietta, John, Clifton, Tyree, Sally Harris, Ann; Ann Garth's share to be put at interest and divided amongst her children when they become of age or married. John and Clifton Rodes executors with B. Brown.

witt: Matthew Rodes, Robert McCulloch, Elizabeth Garth, Thomas Brown, Micajah Woods.

Proven and recorded. Test: John Nicholas, C.A.C.

The inventory was dated Feb. 4, 1811, Recorded Nov. 3, 1783. Clifton Rodes, gentleman, came into Court with his permission as Sheriff, signed by the Governor and dated the 6th, offering as securities John Rodes and Thomas Garth, giving bond for 10,000£, John Rodes, Jr., Deputy.

3. Will of David Rodes, dated June 9, 1790. Recorded the February Court, 1794, in which he wills

Lands and negroes derived through her to wife Susanna; farm known as "Pumgranate" to son John, 304 acres to Matthew, besides 500 acres in Madison County, Kentucky; to son Charles; tracts in Nelson County, Ky., on the waters of Green River, in all 1195 acres; 60£ to daughter Mary Douglas; all children to be made equal with daughter Elizabeth Goodman, the lands excepted; wife Susanna and Matthew executors.

witt: Jonathan Turner, John Rodes, Jr., John Ward, John Ballard; Matthew Rodes qualified with James Lewis, and David Ward securities. Inventory, Will Book No. 3, page 246. Legatees child John Rodes, Matthew Rodes, Charles Rodes, Mary Douglas, Elizabeth Goodman, Nancy Delaney, Ann Ballard, Lucy Rodes, Patsy Rodes and Milly Rodes.
