PREFATORY.

In 1889 the writer began to record history and tradition of his family. In 1897 his brother, Theodore, urged completion and publication, and gave $50 for that purpose. Hundreds of letters have been written to friends on both sides of the Atlantic. The work has been greatly retarded by the procrastination of many and by failure to make reply. If errors are found, consider that the editor's work is gratuitous.

The engraver was paid his highest price for the highest quality of work. We do not know whether his failure is owing to incompetence or ———. [ED.]

THE NAME

Is probably derived from an ancestor who had returned from military service on the island of Rhodes. The first of the tribe recorded in English annals was Gerard De Rhodes, who was sent by King John as foreign ambassador. He was probably descended from the Counts De Rhodes (Froissart, vol. 1, p. 121), who came from Flanders under William the Conqueror—his son Thomas, h. s. William, h. s. John, h. s. John, h. s. Robert, h. s. John, high sheriff, 1591; h. s. Francis, who built Barlboro Hall, 1583; h. s. Godfrey (his daught. wife of ill-fated Earl of Strafford), h. s. Edward, knight; h. s. William. Coat of Arms of Sir Francis R., 1641: Quarters 1st and 4th arg., a lion passant guardant in bend gu., between two acorns az., within as many cotises ermines; 2nd and 3rd quarters, arg. on a chev. gu., between three rudders, az three cinquefoils. The fourth Baron of Barlboro died 1743. (See Burke's Commoners, Vol. III., p. 563, for above.)

The cradle of the tribe is pretty surely the West Riding of Yorkshire, the ratio of Rhodeses there being 44 per 10,000; in Lancashire, 25; in Nottingham, 18; in Derbyshire, 9.

PLAN OF WORK.

We sought to obtain for each person these details: Full name, date and place of each birth, marriage, death and cause of death; education; changes of business and of residence; relations to church, lodge, politics, offices and army record; work done in science, art, literature, invention or reform; habits as to drinks, tobacco and amusements. All specially interesting incidents.

HISTORY AND TRADITIONS.

Persistent traditions both sides the sea assert that Thomas Rhodes¹ (born 1695?), about 1720-25, with his two brothers, emigrated from Yorkshire, England, to Rhode Island; that he there married a Mary Button, but that not liking the country he returned and settled in Queens County, Ireland, probably on the old estate of Cooraclevon, and died about 1760?, aged 66 years.

RELIGION.

Since many generations up to date have been Quakers, we believe he was a Quaker. This would account for his desire to leave Yorkshire, where Quakers were bitterly persecuted, for Rhode Island, which was then famous for religious toleration.

OCCUPATION.

Since, several generations were artisans and dealers in woolens, and since Leeds, ? his home ? was the center of English woolen industry, we believe that his pursuit. This would explain his dislike of Rhode Island, where there were no sheep and no manufacturing.

WHY CHOOSE IRELAND?

For centuries Ireland was a hotbed of treason. Successive rebellions were quelled by fire and sword, wide sections depopulated, and the confiscated lands given Protestant settlers from England and Scotland.

Perhaps such an inducement caused him to settle among the outraged, robbed, and revengeful Romanists. Tradition says that he, his son and grandson all died aged 66. Of his children we know of but one, viz:

2. WILLIAM RHODES,² born 1727. He was a Quaker. April 17, 1755, married Eliza White, who died February 6, 1763. He married second, January 16, 1754, Mary Dudley.

CHILDREN.

3. MARY RHODES,³ born May 5, 1756; died May 27, 1794.

4. JOHN RHODES,³ born April 26, 1759.

5. WILLIAM RHODES,³ born August 23, 1761; died May, 1762. His son (5a), WILLIAM DUDLEY RHODES,³ November 17, 1769; married Lydia Carter, 1797; had fifteen children. Two sons and four daughters lived to marry, namely:

6. ROBERT RHODES, born 1801, died 1882.

7. SAMUEL RHODES, born 1812, died 18—?

8. ANNE, LYDIA, ELLEN, FANNIE.

6. ROBERT RHODES left two sons, viz.:

9. { THOMAS RHODES, of Roscrea, now of Dublin.

10. { HENRY P. RHODES, of Bristol, England, who died 1891-2? His family moved to Glasgow, Scotland.

7. SAMUEL RHODES' widow, 1889, lived at Roscrea. Two of her sons and two daughters live near Dublin.

8. RICHARD F. RHODES, son of Samuel, 1798, is carrying on the old business, Main street, Roscrea.

9. THOMAS RHODES resides at 29 Highfield Road, Rathgar, County Dublin. He writes, December 10, 1897: "None of the descendants of William D. Rhodes ever did anything worth recording, that I know of—always been honest, hard working traders. None of them ever became conspicuous or joined any of the professions, except a cousin, an M. D., now in Australia. For generations they have have been spoken of as Very Honest Men."

Richard F. Rhodes, Roscrea, Ireland, January 17, 1898, writes (in part): "The Rhodes family of eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries were members of Society of Friends, and so erected no monuments to their dead. They were quiet, well behaved, honorable citizens, who tried to do their duty to God and man. Evidently they wished their memory to remain in obscurity. Why disturb all this for the sake of an earthly vanity?"

AMERICAN BRANCH.

11. JOHN RHODES,³ born April 26, 1759, Cooracleven, near Roscrea, County Queens, Ireland. Quaker parents forbade him entering any meeting of the then despised and persecuted Methodists. The sound of singing tempted him in, but he resolved to leave at the first indication of heresy. Finding their belief the same as his own, he at length found the new birth, and joining the little band, continued a fervent and faithful Methodist until death. In 1796 the Papist conspiracy, aided and abetted by France, was nearing an outbreak. A French fleet of forty-three sail, and 15,000 troops sailed December, 1796, to aid this rebellion. They reached the Irish coast, but terrific gales drove them home so shattered that they did not renew their effort. Secret meetings were nightly held in churches for many weeks. At length a Catholic servant notified her Protestant employees that on a certain night they must "beware of their lives." The Protestants took up arms. For three nights John Rhodes³ stood on guard with his gun, while making hasty preparations to escape. August 26, 1796, he, with many other refugees, started for America. Soon he settled at Ash Grove, N. Y., (Hamlet of Pumpkin Hook), where, amid a colony of Methodist pioneers, he conducted wool carding and cloth dressing—the farmers doing the spinning and weaving. 1810 he bought woolen works at Clinton, N. Y., his son-in-law, Thomas Sutliff, partner. February, 15, 1816, he bought of Robert Dier, his brother-in-law, a half interest in factory and water power, just below stone bridge, Marcellus, N. Y., paying $2,550. Mr. Dier promised to pay mortgage of $1,125, but not fulfilling, the property was sold by foreclosure in 1817 for $1,400, leaving him in poverty. For two years the large family endured privation, living in an old log house, where the children could see the stars shining through the roof. He raised corn and potatoes on shares for two seasons. During this trying season he was cheerful, hopeful and happy, his wife tearful and despondent. In 1819 he resumed work at Marcellus Falls in factory owned by his friend Henry S. Platt. In 1824, with son

William, he bought this property (present site of Pearl Barley Mills at Marcellus Falls), putting in looms, etc. At his death, 1826. his son Joseph succeeded him. Mr. Fisher, of Ash Grove, told the writer in 1857 that "he was so honest that he believed everybody honest." This made him a victim of the crafty. A fervent Christian, his life was always serene and joyous. They were members of the first Methodist class at Marcellus. Height about 5 feet 8 inches, spare, Roman nose, full lips, energetic and quick. He married Hester Jackson of Mountrath, Ireland, July, 1790. She was quite robust, brunette complexion, black hair and eyes—before marriage clerk in her father's store at Mountrath. Born 1772, died November 12, 1831, apoplexy.

"MY DEAR BROTHER,—I have read thine of 13th of 3d month last. It has been a great satisfaction and consolation, to find thee and thine so mercifully preserved. * * * I rejoice with thee, that communication can now be had between these countries by the blessing of peace restored, * * * though we are again alarmed by the sound of war, Bonaparte having re-entered France. The powers of Europe seem to wish to crush him, but how it will end the All Wise * * * only knows. I am glad to find thy daughter Rachel (Sutliff) comfortably married, but thee failed mentioning his name. Thee mentioned his being in partnership with thee * * * in a factory. Is it your own? * * * What town is it near, or river, is it village or country? I am glad to hear of thee and thy son coming over. * * * Cooracleven is out of lease this time twelve month. I advertised but could get no tenant—for only one year lease). Since the peace (the price of) land has greatly fallen. I am rather alarmed that thee does not mention sister Hettie's name. I hope there is nothing amiss. Nor does thee mention brother Thomas. Note. (He died at his sister's, Deborah Rhodes, wife of Henry M. McDowell, Norfolk, Va. She died May 24, 1810. McDowell was a wealthy merchant.) Brother Joseph, and our friend William Sharpless, will see thee. They left with intent of sailing in the first vessel. * * * My love to Hetty and children. I believe to be thine and ever.

WILLIAM D. RHODES."

OLD LETTER.—(ABSTRACT OF).—"Roscrea, Ireland, July 12, 1814. From William Rhodes⁴ to John Rhodes,³ Marcellus, N. Y., says that he had to wait three weeks in New York for a vessel. Was very sick eight days. The 21st day out was taken with smallpox. In thirty-six days landed at Dublin. Staid there seven days sick at his uncle's, James Jackson's. Says that he had advertised Cooracleven, but times so bad expects it will bring no more than $1,200. Says that June 21, at Roscrea fair, twenty fat cattle sold for £20. He thinks that Michael McCormick will return with him, also his uncle William D. Rhodes. The latter has eight children living and seven dead. Names of the living are Ann, Lydia, Robert, John, Samuel, William and Thomas. Found Thomas Sutliff's friends well. (McCormick came back with William Rhodes,⁴ but we believe no others came.)

William Rhodes started to return home in June, 1818, but was overtaken on the road by a cousin with the tidings that his sister Rachel had fallen in love with him, and was in terrible distress. He turned back and consoled the damsel by making her his bride. Her father a merchant, James Jackson of Mountrath, gave them $500 in gold as part dowry. They came all the way by water via Quebec to Oswego. From thence to Salt Point, Syracuse, in a boat or batteau. A hired team brought them to Camillus. Then, there being no valley road built, they went south to the foot of the lime ledge into a great forest, where darkness compelled them to remain until morning. Imagine the state of mind of the poor girl, sitting sleepless out there in the gloomy blackness, listening to the screechings and hootings of the night birds, and the howling of wolves—mayhaps weeping for the home and loved ones, never again to meet her in this life. (See page .) William worked several years in woolen factories, and as partner at Marcellus Falls. 1836 he bought farm at Marcellus Falls. 1864 sold to son William James and settled at Marcellus, where he died of apoplexy April 8, 1865. His wife Rachel died January 5, 1870, of pneumonia. Both were earnest and devoted Methodists, spare, very quick, black hair and eyes, excessive smoker, but ceased at fifty years, as it caused severe dyspepsia. Republican, official in church many years, influential and respected.

123. JOHN JACKSON RHODES,⁵ William,⁴ John,³ William, Thomas,¹ educated Elbridge Academy. Taught school several winters, married, May, 1842, Francis Augusta Andrews, and settled on farm of 80 acres South Camillus. 1853 sold and bought a fine farm of 100 acres one mile west of Camillus, his home until death by consumption April 22, 1894. An energetic and successful farmer. Republican, granger, assessor nine years. Winning, social, modest, and the soul of honor. Many years attendant and supporter of Methodist church. His wife was gifted with beauty of person, energetic, winning, amiable, and skilled in needlework and embroidery. A charming couple, a happy family, and a delightful home. Augusta died of heart failure September 8, 1894, 71 years.
