PREFACE.

Among the papers of my father, the late Lewis H. Steiner, were several pages of notes towards a genealogy of our family. These have been taken up and much amplified, and the work is now issued, as it is not likely that further delay would elicit many more facts of importance. It has been a pleasant task to me to search out the various branches of the family tree.

Almost all to whom application was made have been helpful; but especial thanks are due for time spent and interest shown in the work, to Miss Alice V. Derr, Mrs. Marcus A. Woodward, Miss Ola Michaels, Gen. John A. Steiner, Mr. Thomas C. Stoner, Mrs. Wm. H. Lewis, Miss Rachel L. Eader, Mr. Edward T. Schultz, Mr. John G. Wilson, Mr. Charles A. S. Steiner and Mr. Paul Wisenall. We have not been famous; but, to quote my father's words, we have been a "family whose members have lived and died as plain, honest, law-abiding, citizens."

BERNARD C. STEINER.

PART I.

SKETCHES FROM THE EARLY HISTORY OF THE STEINER FAMILY IN GERMANY.

(Translated by Lewis H. Steiner.)

The family arms of the family of Steiner von Steindorf consist of a silver shield, in the middle of which is displayed a red bear in an erect posture. A closed helmet covers the shield, having, as a crest, a red bear's head looking to the left. The ornaments of the arms consist of foliage, half red and half gold, the same being placed on a red stelle with small white pearls. Below the shield there sweeps a white band (Wappenband) with a red back, bearing the name Maxmylian Steiner in red ecclesiastical letters. The whole constitutes a true representation of the arms which Ludwig of Bavaria presented to the ancestor of the Steiner family at the tournament of Goslar.

The diploma of nobility, as well as the letters, which were confirmed by Emperor Sigismund in 1397 and announced at Erfurt, July 26, 1397, are to be found in the original in the Imperial Chamber at Wetzlar. A copy is in the archives of family arms (Familien-Wappen-Archiv) at Vienna.

The imperial archives of the nobility of the empire at Wetzlar, and registry office of family ancestry and arms at Vienna, contain, with reference to the origin of the noble family of Steiner, the following material, the correctness of which is made clear and evident by reference to the books of heraldry and tournaments at Speyer and Frankfort-on-the-Main.

These show that the family of Steiner appears for the first time as a noble house in one of the archives of the Reichskammer of the Elector of Saxony, which is dated "Regensburg, 22d of the month of August in the year of our Saviour 1340." As the cause of this record appear the decrees of the Criminal Court (Halsgerichtsordnung), from which it appears that Ludwig von Steindorf had been cited from his family seat at Steindorf in the Oberlausitz in consequence of a quarrel with Uffo von Bonkenburg, by the Superior Court at Regensburg, for a breach of the Landfriede, and that, through the management of Anselm, the Bishop of Würzburg, who was a brother of Uffo von Bonkenburg, he was placed under the imperial ban, and, in consequence of this, his family castle was confiscated and the possession of the same was adjudged to the complainant Uffo.

Ludwig von Steindorf went into a monastery at Goslar and died in the same, March 27, 1342, from grief and anguish at the rendition of so unjust a judgment. It appears that after some months, the Emperor, by a decree of December 31, 1341, three months before the death of the condemned, had annulled the imperial ban. But the edict was concealed and held back by the trickery of the revengeful Bishop of Würzburg, who bore the responsibility of the same readily on account of the great influence he possessed at court.

It appears from the records of this court that the father of Ludwig von Steindorf—the head of a family (Stammvater) so widely distributed—was named

I. MAXIMILIAN STEINER.<sup>1</sup>

He was made a knight (Ritter) on the 26th of November, 1311, by Ludwig of Bavaria. A singular occurrence was to be thanked for this good fortune. He was a squire (Knappe) of the Count of Mannsfeld, and saved the life of his royal highness, Ludwig of Bavaria, in a bear-hunt, having freed him from great peril of life by seizing a bear that rushed at him and strangling it with both hands. The king created him knight (Ritter) at Goslar, at the next tournament, and presented him with a silver armor (Rüstung) and a costly shield, the arms of which exhibited a red bear on a silver field. But as Maximilian was without property and possessed nothing besides his gigantic strength and bravery, his brave and fearless heart, his king and lord gave him a knight's castle which he had won from Günther, the Bishop of Würzburg, at (Brettspiele) draughts. This Maximilian made his family castle (Stammschloss), and changed its name from Günthersburg, which it had been called before, to Steindorf.

He married shortly afterwards Margaretha von Bassenheim, the daughter of his neighbor, Gottfried von Bassenheim. But in the midst of the happy days of his marriage, the duty of gratitude and the voice of his fatherland called him to the battle-field for his king. He collected from his neighborhood a small company (Fahnleinschaft) of 60 brave lancemen, and, as their captain (Feldhauptmann), fought under His Majesty Ludwig, and fell in the battle given against Frederick of Austria at Mühlendorf at the head of his faithful followers. His widow renounced the pleasures of the world and entered the nunnery of Wunsiedl, known as Maria Schutz, where, in a short time, she gave birth to a son, to whom she gave, at baptism, the name of the king in whose cause her faithful spouse had fallen. Grief for her lost husband did not permit her to live to see the coming year, and she died, December 29, 1312.

Her only son,

II. LUDWIG,<sup>2</sup>

in accordance with the wish of his grandfather, was surrendered to the same, who managed also most faithfully his castle of Steindorf. But Ludwig had scarcely attained the age of youth when this grandfather, Gottfried von Bassenheim, died, and, as no other heirs had legal claims, the knight's estate of Bassenheim fell to him. Uffo von Bonkenburg set up unfounded and illegal claims to a part of the landed property belonging to Bassenheim, which Ludwig would not recognize. This state of affairs led to much quarrelling and contention. His antagonist at length knavishly played the part of peace-maker, and declared that all ill-will should be done away with and all claims be relinquished if Ludwig von Steindorf would marry Gertrude, the only daughter of Uffo. But Steindorf married a poor but virtuous maiden, the daughter of the sacristan (Küster) of the cathedral of Sancta Clara, and gave, as a bridal gift and as dower at the same time, the castle of Bassenheim with all its enclosures, grounds and cattle. From this time on the quarrel with his ancient and irrecconcilable enemy broke out anew.

Ludwig's spouse, Adelgunde, bore him three sons—Ludwig, Bernhardt and Roland—and died at the birth of the last two, who were twins. As if anticipating her own death, she bequeathed to her children, two days before the day of their birth and her death, the castle of Bassenheim with all the grounds thereto belonging, by a will written by the abbess of the Sancta Clara Chapter. Her corpse was scarcely interred in the convent vault when Uffo von Bonkenburg once more broke his solemn oath with Ludwig von Steindorf, and he, the continual disturber of the Landfriede, relying on the power which, at that time, his brother Anselm, the Bishop of Würzburg, possessed with the court, stepped forth as complainant, knowing he could not affect his courageous opponent by force of arms. As was mentioned before, Ludwig lost, by the declaration of the imperial ban, his family possessions, and these fell, by the cunning influence of the Bishop of Würzburg, to his brother Uffo, whilst Ludwig died in the cloister. Before he had determined to carry out this so incomprehensible resolution—to terminate his life within the walls of a monastery—he committed the care of his children to the abbess of the neighboring convent of Sancta Clara, and the superintendence of their education to his tried friend Oscar Bentivoglio, whom he constituted guardian of the same, and who, for some years, had been castellan of the castle at Steindorf. He faithfully performed his duty as friend, and died at an advanced age, after he had experienced the pleasure of having the twins that had been entrusted to his care educated and accomplished in tournaments and the use of arms.

III. LUDWIG,<sup>s</sup>

the eldest of the sons, on the day of his wedding with Agnes von Hohenberg-Kolbina, gave his lawful name of Steindorf to the castle heretofore called Bassenheim. He had with his consort two daughters and one male heir, who studied jurisprudence in Worms, sold the castle of Steindorf and died unmarried.

VI. WILHELM,<sup>4</sup>

The castle of Steindorf was afterwards owned by the Lord von Kitzbüchel, and was later, in the religious wars, entirely destroyed.

The name of the family Steiner was only perpetuated by Roland, as IV. Bernhardt<sup>3</sup> died without leaving male offspring by his spouse Octavia Fehland.

V. ROLAND STEINER<sup>5</sup> filled the office, for some years in Speyer, of Stadthauptmann, a very respectable position sought after by many of the most patrician citizens. He was sent as deputy to the imperial election at Ghent, when Carl IV. was elected. The coronation took place in Aachen, and Roland was presented by the emperor with a gold chain of honor, to which his portrait was attached. He was immediately married to Conradine Schauenstein, to whom he had already been affianced. The burghers of the city gave him a banquet of honor, which was celebrated with princely splendor and lasted for three days. His offspring consisted of two sons and three daughters. He died in the year 1374, and his wife followed him in the same year.

VII. ALOYSIUS,<sup>4</sup>

the eldest son, withdrew from the world and took the place of monastery steward (Klostervogt) in Speyer. He married Gertrude von der Mühlen, the daughter of a Holland merchant, and met his death in 1403 in the waters of the Rhine, his boat, during a night passage, having been dashed on a concealed rock and sunk. He left two sons; a third, X. Johann or Hans by name, was abducted from the paternal mansion when a child without any one afterwards being able to secure information as to his enigmatical disappearance or his further fate.

IX. ANDREAS GOTTFRIED<sup>5</sup>

was the younger son, and died as Dean of the Cathedral in Mayence. He stood in high estimation on account of his learning, and was for a long time the right hand of the Archbishop.

VIII. THEODOR,<sup>5</sup>

the eldest son of Aloysius Steiner, married Antonia Splinter, and as even in his early years he showed a taste for military life, entered in the imperial service; fought later in the Hussitenkriege, and died in the year 1449, in a fall from his horse. He left behind three sons, who, on account of their numerous offspring, deserve to be called the proper (Stammhalter) heads of the Steiner family afterward so numerous.

XI. FRIEDERICH THEODOR,<sup>6</sup>

the eldest son, studied law in Vienna, entered into the Austrian imperial service, and was afterwards made Imperial Councillor (Kaisersrath). He married Maria Schweppe, daughter of the burgomaster at Vienna, and had four sons. After she died, in 1460, Friederich married the young widow Amalie, Baroness von Einsiedel, who bore him five other sons, named XIII. Ernst,<sup>7</sup> XIV. Julius,<sup>7</sup> XV. Ludwig,<sup>7</sup> XVI. Winfried<sup>7</sup> and XVII. Christian;<sup>7</sup> Ernst and Julius entered the army, the others and XVIII. Friederich,<sup>7</sup> XIX. Johann<sup>7</sup> and XX. Leopold,<sup>7</sup> of the first marriage, dispersed to Bavaria, Suabia, and on the Rhine, so that we are unable to find any further connected information about them.

XII. GEORG<sup>6</sup>

was the younger brother of Friederich Theodor, and the second son of Theodor; he entered the service as page (Leibpage) at the court of "Charles the Bold"—Duke of Burgundy, and as the latter made him a knight, he remained in his train. He married Elisabeth Durand, the daughter of a rich merchant of Ghent, and perished at the battle of Nancy, 1477. He left three small sons, XXII. Georg,<sup>7</sup> XXIII. Ludwig<sup>7</sup> and XXIV. Herrmann,<sup>7</sup> who moved with their mother to Ghent.

XXIX. WILHELM,<sup>6</sup>

the youngest son of Theodor, remained in Speyer; owned a very extensive commercial business, and was the president (Vor-stand) of the Merchants' Guild. His wife, Isabella Horst, lamented for years the loss of her husband, who died, in consequence of a cold, on his return from a business excursion to the Netherlands, at Aachen, in 1480, leaving two sons,

XXX. ADOLF' AND XXXI. MARTIN.'

The former died some weeks after his marriage. Martin, having learned the business of goldsmith, went to Coblenz and settled there as a jeweller. On a journey to Suabia, Leopold Bernauer released him from the hands of highway robbers, who attacked him with the view of plunder. He formed the most intimate friendship with his deliverer, purchased a small estate for him, and married his sister Amalie, to whose family the celebrated Agnes Bernauer, who met an unfortunate death in the Donau, belonged. Martin afterwards went to Brazil and enriched himself in the then newly-discovered diamond diggings. Shortly after his return he died in 1498, and left his large family considerable possessions. (This story is, of course, incorrect, but I know not how to correct it.—B. C. S.) He had five sons—Martin,<sup>8</sup> Albert,<sup>8</sup> Friedrich,<sup>8</sup> Moritz<sup>8</sup> and Adalbert.<sup>8</sup>

XXXII. MARTIN<sup>8</sup>

was established as a goldsmith in Nürnberg, where he died, 1509, a mysterious death, and when his corpse was examined it appeared that he had been poisoned. Very weighty and unequivocal grounds of suspicion rested on his wife, who had had secret intercourse with a Doctor Bonefacius, who was universally feared in Nürnberg. Public opinion designated him as a magician, and every one shunned his neighborhood. But satisfactory evidence could not be produced; even the application of torture wrung no confession from her. She was banished by public opinion from the country; all the costly stones and ingots of gold secretly put away by her at the death of her husband were taken from her and she was driven over the borders. The people attacked the house of the doctor, tore it down, burnt the great books out of which he, as they asserted, invoked the evil spirits, and hunted him with dogs from the precincts of the imperial city. Martin left a son—XXXVII. Gotthardt<sup>o</sup>—who, however, died before he had attained his majority. The very considerable property left behind melted away under the fearful law costs, which were only terminated after 60 years, during which more than 30 Steiners von Steindorf, male and female bearers of the name, were claimants for the treasures of the inheritance.

XXXIII. ALBERT<sup>o</sup>

lived first in Frankfort-on-the-Main, and came to Cologne-on-the-Rhine, where he died, 1516. He left seven sons and five daughters, of whom the former, after the death of their father, mostly left Cologne without our being able to give an account of them. XXXVIII. Markus<sup>o</sup> Edler was one of them.

XXXIV. FRIEDRICH<sup>o</sup> had early studied theology at Meissen and distinguished himself by his spirited defense of the principles of the Lutheran faith at the Diet called by the Elector John of Saxony at Schmalkalden. He died in Meissen, having only one son, Oswald,<sup>o</sup> who dedicated himself likewise to the theological profession, and, while pastor in Lützen, was killed in a revolt of the peasants.

XXXV. MORITZ<sup>o</sup> entered into military service after he had squandered his estate in Italy. He stood in great favor with the Princess of Anhalt, and very different accounts were given in those days of the nature of the connection in which he stood to her. He had many love intrigues, through which he was involved almost weekly in duels, but always came off victor. In the battle of Pavia, 1525, he very particularly distinguished himself, and it was attributed principally to him that the king, Francis I., was taken in the same. He married Bianca Graselli of Brescia, celebrated for her beauty, and from that time forward changed his dissolute mode of life. He lived several years in Lothringen and died, 1555, at Colmar, where he had been a widower for four years before his death. He left four sons, concerning whose career no records are left.

XXXVI. ADALBERT<sup>6</sup>

was the youngest brother, and Consistorialrath in Augsburg. From the deepest and most sincere conviction of evangelical truth, went to Wittenberg; was a friend of Luther's, and was in correspondence with him long afterwards, when he returned to Augsburg. He contributed very much towards the religious peace determined at Nürnberg, 1552, and was, until his death, the court theologian (Hoftheologe) of Moritz of Saxony. He fell in the last capacity in the battle of Seivorshausen, in 1554, leaving five sons, Adalbert,<sup>6</sup> Johann,<sup>6</sup> Carl,<sup>6</sup> Leopold<sup>6</sup> and Adolph.<sup>6</sup> The first two settled at Tübingen; Carl died without male offspring in Würzburg, and the younger brothers died without our being able to find anything further about them, notwithstanding the zealous searches of their brothers. Nothing is extant also with reference to the families of the two eldest.

Hitherto we have only been able to give the succession of the heads of the Steiner family; the following notices are with reference to separate persons, but are based on personal searches.

XVIII. FRIEDRICH VON STEINER<sup>7</sup> was professor of medicine in the university founded at Tübingen on October 9, 1477, by Count Eberhardt mit dem Bart. He was afterwards rector of this high school, and died in 1491. He left only two sons, but many daughters. From his family papers, which were in possession of his sons, it appeared that he was a son of Friederich Theodor Steiner von Steindorf. Both of his children, one of whom was named lived for some years in Tübingen, which is all that is known of them. His name does not appear on the baptismal register, whence it is to be supposed that they were not born in Tübingen. Their mother died some years before their father.

There lived in Fulda, quite retired from the world, an old man, concerning whose family no one had any knowledge. He died in 1479 and left a considerable estate. He was in possession of a small house, never suffering himself to be seen, and holding no communication with his fellow-men, appearing to live as though he had an aversion to the living. He gave no alms to the poor, and was only known by the name of "der alte Steinmarder." It was discovered after his death that his name was and that he had been enticed away from his parents' house by a woman when a boy five years old and taken to Poland. Here he was educated and travelled to Palestine, Jerusalem, Egypt, from whence, thirty years before his death, he came to Fulda and lived secluded from the world. Who removed him from his father's house, if he ever had a wife, whence came his wealth, why he shunned mankind with so much enmity, and why he never returned to his home,—a veil enshrouded these questions and no one ever learned the answer to them. He owned many Eastern manuscripts which no one could understand. It is an undeniable fact that he was the son of Aloysius Steiner—the Klostervogt who died in 1403—who, when a child at Speyer, had disappeared in so mysterious a manner. As Hans von Steiner died without a will, considerable property fell to the exchequer, since no heirs appeared.

In 1520, forty years after this, there arrived at Fulda a (Rittersmann) young knight,

XLI. LUDWIG VON STEINER,*

and proved from his baptismal certificate (Taufschein) and other documents that he was a relative of the deceased Hans von Steiner, and then instituted a process for the inheritance so long unclaimed. Some of the most distinguished jurists appeared on his side, but that which the exchequer ever seizes is not given up for slight reasons. Ludwig carried his case to the Emperor, Charles V., at the Imperial Diet of Worms. We learn that Ludwig himself was afterwards murdered, and the suit thus naturally came to an end. With reference to the mode of his death, the following appears in an old chronicle of Worms. At Worms, at the Imperial Diet, which was opened April 18, 1521, a Ludwig Steiner von Steindorf was present, who was so transported by the defense of Luther that he embraced Luther, and, in the fullness of his conviction, cried out: "Man of God! from now on shall my heart and my sword hearken unto thy doctrines, and may I be condemned (verflucht soll Ich sein) if I do otherwise than I say and feel!" Two days later Ludwig was found with five stabs in his body, murdered on his bed at the inn, and his corpse was denied a lodgment in consecrated ground. From various letters and other papers it appeared that his grandfather was XI. Friedrich Theodor<sup>6</sup> von Steiner—the Rathsherr who died at Vienna, May 3, 1468—and that his father lived in Torgau. He had six brothers and four sisters; of the former nothing definite is known, excepting of one, a true adherent of Sickingen,

XLII. BERNHART VON STEINER.<sup>6</sup>

It is known that this one was a brother of the murdered Ludwig, and that Bernhart fell—1523—by the side of Sickingen, who was shot in his castle of Landstuhl when beleaguered by the Elector of Treves.

XXII. GEORG TRAU GOTT STEINER.<sup>7</sup>

A cathedral scholastic, was for many years in the Chapter at Regensburg and died there, 1522. It was ascertained from his papers that he was the eldest son of XII. Georg von Steindorf,<sup>6</sup> who fell in the fight at Nancy, and that his two brothers, XXIII. Ludwig<sup>7</sup> and XXIV. Herrmann,<sup>7</sup> lived in Aschaffenburg. Ludwig was City Syndic (Stadtsyndicus) at that place and afterwards Burgomaster of Aschaffenburg. Herrmann was the head manager (Oberverwalter) of the possessions of Thurn and Taxis. From the church records it is seen that Ludwig had no male heirs; Herrmann, however, had two sons, of whom Carl,<sup>8</sup> the elder, died when a boy, and the younger, whose name was moved to Nürnberg and there became a merchant. In the church books of that place is found the record of his wedding day, when he married Kunigunda Gebhardt of Anspach; he permitted his spouse, however, in a few weeks to separate from him, because he went over to the Evangelical confession of faith. He had no children, and, moreover, did not marry again. He was forced to take refuge in flight—1582—with many others, in consequence of animosities. Nothing further was heard of him, and his very large property was confiscated.

XXVI. HEINRICH,<sup>8</sup>

The Margrave of Anspach had a physician-in-ordinary by the name of who often declared that his grandmother was the sister of the celebrated Agnes Bernauerin, but he was in possession of no particular account of his family, and only knew that his father had died at Cologne in 1516. When Markus von Steiner died, it was discovered from his papers that he had several brothers, of whom two lived in Regensburg; another, XXXIX. Thomas<sup>9</sup> in Zweibrücken and XL. Reinhardt<sup>9</sup> Steiner in Strasburg, the last one being likewise a doctor, and many letters were found from him. We conclude from these facts that Markus was one of the sons of XXXIII. Albert von Steiner<sup>8</sup> and a grandson of XXXI. Martin<sup>7</sup> Steiner, who died at Coblentz. During the religious wars, and particularly the Thirty Years War, many of the Steiner descendants were driven from their estates, and, in those times, most of the records and church registers were destroyed in the pillaging and conflagrations of the churches and town-houses, whence also many genealogical tables were destroyed or made defective.

At the siege of Magdeburg, under General Tilly, and the massacre connected with it, May 10, 1631,

XLIII. ERNST VON STEINER,<sup>10</sup>

a prominent burgher and Rathsassessor, came to his end in a terrible manner. He was suspected of being a Protestant, and the brutal Walloons literally quartered him. His head was stuck on a halberd, which was planted with a great many others before the town-house. The slaughter was so terrible that of 38,000 inhabitants scarcely 5000 were left alive. The wife of the murdered man saved nothing but her life, and fled, after an infant had been torn from her breast and stabbed before her eyes, with the four remaining children. Nothing further is known of the unhappy family. Some of the old burghers said that the grandfather of Ernst von Steiner had lost his life in a horrible way in Worms, so that it is to be presumed that this Ernst was a descendant of one of the six sons of XLI. Ludwig<sup>8</sup> von Steiner, who, during the Imperial Diet at Worms, in 1521, was assassinated.

From some Swedish sources, as well as from extracts of chronicles, which different students of history had collected, there are old manuscripts in the archives of Vienna which date 1640, 1642, 1645, wherein several Steiners von Steindorf are mentioned, who fought in the Swedish army under Gustavus Adolphus against Germany, being driven by a detestable persecution to this course. Indeed, it is founded on history that the so-called "Blauen Dragoner"—an universally feared regiment of horse—was commanded and led by a German named

WINFRIED " VON STEINER.

When Wallenstein, in 1628, made a fruitless attack on Stralsund, the same Winfried, whom the Swedes, from this time on, called the "Deutschen Eisenfresser," fell in such a manner upon the flank of Wallenstein's army, that the soldiery, otherwise so victorious, were obliged to enter upon a swift retreat, and in a renewed attack were completely put to flight with great loss. The same regiment, under the command of Winfried, who bore the title of a Field-Colonel (Feldobersten), in an invasion of Upper Silesia, took a large number of prisoners. A foolhardy leader of a small but courageous band rushed upon Winfried, and, notwithstanding the smallness of his squad, the former was cut to pieces in a moment, and its leader, accompanied by a few, was forced, with desperate opposition, even to the outside of the camp of the enemy. When he had succeeded in getting within sword's reach, the leader threw the murderous weapon that he had drawn on the chief away from him and threw himself in the arms of his parent with the exclamation: "Great God! my father!" It was the son of Winfried. There live at present, both in Stockholm and Nykiöbing, in Sweden, several families which have descended from this period. Winfried died in 1650 at Stockholm in very prosperous circumstances, and left only one son—Friedrich. Notwithstanding his zealous investigations as to the fate of his other two sons—Johann and Heinrich—who had been left in Germany, nothing could be learned. Winfried at the close of this mischievous war took a journey to Hahnheim at Amberg in Luzern, where he owned large estates, but the whole Steiner family, which had existed there, was deceased, and the mournful mounds which he met there were the only sad testimonies of their former happy past. An only daughter, who was married to a butcher (Metzger) named Huber, who had perished likewise in the desolations of the war, he found at Baireuth, and she asserted that both her brothers, Johann and Heinrich, were killed in the Saxon battles. Winfried returned to Sweden without being able to bring along with him satisfactory information as to his relatives. So much is only known of his own descent, that he was descended from XXXIII. Albert von Steiner,<sup>8</sup> who was his great-great-grandfather. Winfried's father was Johann,<sup>11</sup> and was established in Tübingen, where he died in 1604, and Winfried acted as merchant in Amberg after his father's death.

Friedrich, his son, married a Swede and had several children, whose descendants still live in Sweden. A Steiner possesses at present important iron-works in that country, and has considerable commercial transactions with Russia and England.

At the end of the Thirty Years' War, whose bloody effects left traces for more than half a century afterwards, a general census was taken in Germany, and it appears from various summaries and registers that there then lived, 1652, in the German States, 94 male and 109 female owners of the name of Steiner von Steindorf.

The desolation produced by the French towards the end of the 17th century, and especially the invasions into the Rhinelands in 1686, called forth such horrors as all wars are accompanied with. Among the unfortunate who lost their property and estates and were obliged to seek their safety in flight were to be found many descendants of the Steiner family; many of these fled to Switzerland, and at the present time some of this family still live there.

Furthermore, these are to be met with very numerous in Bavaria, Württemberg, Saxony, Rhine-Prussia and in the Austrian monarchy; but the numerous researches which have been conducted by separate members of the Steiner family can detect no connected line of descent, as most of these had lost their records in the war periods since 1625. It appears from old documents that many of the Steiner family living in the Rhine Palatinate, as well as in Austria and Steiermark, at the end of the last century or the beginning of this, emigrated to America.

The separate notices which have been collected together in this narrative are partly the result of labor and investigations into extracts from old documents and family papers, into verbal copies of chronicles where descendants of the Steiner family are named. They relate to persons who have been prominent, although it is further known that many unfortunate members of the Steiner family, in consequence of misfortune, have been forced to occupy themselves with agriculture and have lived in the darkness of obscurity.<sup>1</sup>

Between the years 1680 and 1685 there lived a large number of the Steiner family scattered about in the Rhine Palatinate, at Worms, in the country along the Neckar and in Hesse. But when the horrible devastations of the French threw the firebrand of bloody war among the peaceful provinces, when the castle of Heidelberg was blown into the air, Worms and Speyer burnt, and murder, robbery and pillage drove thousands of families away, then the Steiner family also was so scattered that any further connected account of it cannot be given.

Many Germans from the different crown-lands of the monarchy wandered into Austria under the Empress Maria Theresa, as well as under the government of Joseph II., and also from Württemberg to Hungary, where several families yet live having the name of Steiner. From partial notices which have been handed down from children to children, as well as from genealogical tables found in a Bible which had been owned for over 200 years by a Steiner family, it is to be concluded that most of the owners of this name were descendants of Rathsherr Friedrich Theodor von Steiner, who died in Vienna, 1468. But the most of these had emigrated from necessity and during the war periods, and under no prosperous circumstances, partly country people or mechanics, who were securing for themselves a new asylum by their activity and diligence.

PART II.

EARLY STEINER SETTLERS IN AMERICA WHO MAY HAVE BEEN RELATED TO JACOB STEINER.

Christian Steiner<sup>1</sup> was naturalized October 14, 1729. He bought land in Strasburg Township, Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, and built a mill there, which, in 1730, was one of three in the county. He also kept a house of entertainment and sold rum "by the small." He came to this country<sup>2</sup> as early as 1720.

In his will<sup>3</sup> he is described as of Lampeter Township, yeoman. He gave his son Christian his mills and divided his land at "Conawagga," York County, equally among all his children. Either the father or son of the name Christian<sup>4</sup> sold land in 1750 and 1763. He mentions sons Jacob, John and Christian in his will, dated September 30, 1758.

Abraham Steiner<sup>5</sup> settled in Lancaster County and had land granted him on October 7, 1735, and in Lebanon Township received a grant of other land<sup>6</sup> on December 12, 1739. His wife was Mary ———. She gave bond as administratrix<sup>7</sup> of his estate in 1741, and put in a final account on June 10, 1743. He was never naturalized.<sup>8</sup> His wife could not write. His son Abraham married Salome ——— and removed to Bethlehem, Northampton County.<sup>9</sup> He sold land in Lancaster County in 1762. Both he

In 1755, John Stoner, miller, sells land in Lancaster County to John Newcomer.

In 1756, John Stoner, of "Connestogoe," having died, his children execute a deed of partition of the father's land. Their names were Abram (described as yeoman), Christian, Catharine and John.

Abraham Steiner<sup>1</sup> bought 63 acres of land on Conestoga Manor, Lancaster County, on May 3, 1740, and 200 acres in 1762. In the same place Christian Steiner bought 244 acres in 1761.

Christian<sup>2</sup> or Christopher Steiner, a blacksmith, had house in Fredericktown in 1768.

John, David, and Abraham Steiner,<sup>3</sup> described as farmers, and as of Antrim Township, Cumberland County, Penn., owned land in Frederick County. ## PART III.

JACOB STEINER, OF FREDERICK COUNTY, MARYLAND, AND HIS DESCENDANTS.

1. Jacob Stoner, or Steiner, was born ———, 1713, and died 1748, according to the dates on a tombstone in the old German Reformed graveyard in Frederick, which stone is probably that of our ancestor. It is quite probable that he was the Jacob Steiner who arrived at Philadelphia in the vessel Pennsylvania, Merchant, from Rotterdam on Sept. 11, 1731 (Rupp's List, p. 20). He had settled in Frederick County before 1736. On June 11 of that year Benjamin Tasker covenanted to convey a tract of land known as Tasker's Chance, lying on the Monocacy, to Abraham Miller, Daniel France, John George Lay, Joseph Smith, Peter Laney and Jacob Stoner for the sum of two thousand pounds. They were unable to raise the money and the sale fell through. In 1744 Daniel Dulany bought Tasker's Chance, probably as agent and attorney for the actual settlers. On July 28, 1746, Dulany transferred to the settlers most of the tract, on which he had laid out the town of Frederick. Jacob Stoner received the following tracts: "The Barrens," 103 acres for 25 pounds, beginning 160 perches from the Monocacy; "Indian Field," 202 acres for 15 pounds; "Mill Pond," 292 acres, on the Tuscarora Creek where it empties into the Monocacy, where Jacob Stoner's house and mill were; and "Bear's Den," or "Durburg," on the Tuscarora below "Mill Pond," 172½ acres, 25 pounds. The last two tracts adjoined the lands of Stephen Ramsburg and Abraham Miller. In 1742 he signed a petition to have Prince George parish divided and a new one established. He was evidently a man of some means and prominence in the community. He left no will and his estate was never administered upon (Land Records J, 1193, W. R. 17, 234, L. 1). He married ——— on ———. Jacob Steiner's land was divided in 1767. If we assume this was done at the attaining majority of his youngest son, Benedict, which is quite probable, we shall have Benedict as born in 1746.

Children of Jacob Steiner<sup>1</sup> and ——— ———:

2. John Steiner,<sup>2</sup> b. ———, 17— (5). d. Sept., 1798.
3. Henry Steiner,<sup>2</sup> b. ———, 17— (16). d. Sept., 1780.
4. Benedict Steiner,<sup>2</sup> b. ———, 17— (18). d. Sept., 1796.

2. Captain John Stoner,<sup>2</sup> or Steiner, married Catharine Elizabeth Ramsburg ———, 175—. She was born June 29, 1739, and died Jan. 29, 1792.

He inherited from his father the Mill Pond estate and carried on the business of a miller, while conducting farming operations at the same time. He was very successful and possessed a large fortune for those days.

Family tradition has reported that he was a soldier in the French and Indian war. Col. F. B. Steiner states that in 1838 he was told by an old Revolutionary soldier, then ninety-six years of age, that Capt. Stoner served in Braddock's campaign and that he was in the quartermaster's department of the Continental Army during the Revolution. He was a prominent citizen, being captain of militia in 1775. He served as a member of the Committee of Observation for the Middle District of Frederick County.

On November 2, 1779, he was one of the bondsmen of the sheriff of the county.

He probably was somewhat older than his brothers, and is said to have brought up them, as well as the only son of his brother Henry.

He first appears on the land records of Frederick County on August 19, 1767, when he divides his father's land, and is described as "miller, son and heir of Jacob Stoner" (L. 1). He also appears on the same day in connection with his brothers Benedict (K. 1435) and Henry (L. 2). His chief property, Mill Pond, was situated on Tuscarora Creek, and his mill was probably situated where Worman's Mill now stands, about ——— miles north of Fredericktown on the ——— road. Thence he rode into town, transacted business, and attended the German Reformed Church, of which the most of the family have been members.

On October 13, 1770, he bought Knave's Disappointment, situated in Georgetown, now in the District of Columbia (N. 401). Three years later, he and his neighbor and father-in-law, Stephen Ramsburg, agreed that over Ramsburg's land, known as Mortality, John Stoner might continue to carry his mill-race and water-course, carrying water from the Tuscarora Creek to his mill. He paid £10 currency for this privilege, and agreed to provide flood-gates and to keep the race in repair to prevent any injury to Ramsburg's land. Both parties bind themselves to keep the contract under penalty of £100. The whole proceeding is evidently a friendly one to prevent possible future "controversies and disputes" (V. 2). With Ramsburg and others, he joins in a petition on November 22, 1781, to have their bounds perpetuated (W. R. 2, 1083), and again five years later he petitions for the same thing (W. R. 6, 407).

In 1787, Capt. Stoner considerably enlarged his estate by buying portions of the confiscated property of Dulany (W. R. 7; 551, 650). He owned now land down to the Monocacy, and indeed on both sides of the stream. Between the banks of the Monocacy he conducted a ferry, adding this to his other occupations. Three years later he bought still more of the Dulany estate (W. R. 9, 258). He was now a large landowner; but he was getting old, and, in 1792, the loneliness of his advancing years was increased by his wife's death.

On Dec. 3, 1792, nearly a year after his wife's death, he began to dispose of his lands (W. R. 11, 232), and on May 4, 1795, he bought a lot on Second Street in Fredericktown (W. R. 13, 239), possibly moving there for his last years. A month later he made his last purchase of land (W. R. 13, 384), buying "Caspar's Inheritance." He sold land near the Mill Pond estate on June 16, 1796 (W. R. 14, 304). On Feb. 26, 1798, he sold at auction much of his farm equipment, disposing of two good mares, a number of sheep, steers and hogs, a negro boy, a good wagon and gears, an excellent house clock, and a variety of farming utensils (Bartgis's Federal Gazette). During the summer of 1798 his strength was gradually failing. On Aug. 23 he made his will. It is a rather long one, and disposes of personal property found by the executors to amount to £6999 17s 9d, a sum, roughly speaking, equal to $20,000, a very large estate for that time and place. The will is one that exhibits its maker in a favorable light. While stating he is of sound and disposing mind, he interjects, "Praised be God for it." He was a slaveholder, as most men of means then were; but was evidently a merciful master, for he directs all his "children to contribute equally towards maintaining and supporting my old negro woman, named Fan, during her life, as she is old and infirm and, at present, incapable of supporting herself." His negro man, Frank, about twenty-five years old, he gives to his son Henry, who has already been using his services; but, when Frank arrives at the age of thirty-two, "he shall be free and emancipated from slavery." A negro girl, Sally, aged eleven, is given to his daughter, Catharine Derr, and a negro boy, Bill, aged five, to his son Stephen.

The personal estate is directed to be sold by the executors, who were his sons Henry and Stephen. They were also to sell part of the land bought from the Dulany estate, to pay any debts he might have. The property was to be divided equally among his seven surviving children. The five children of his eldest son John, who had recently died, were to receive the share of their father, less £618, which had been advanced their father during his life. Their property was to be turned over to them as they reached the age of twenty-one. In the distribution of the estate it was found that each of the surviving children received £833 5s 7d, and each of the five children of John £43 1s 1½d currency.

A few days before making the will, he transferred his town house to his son Stephen (W. R. 17, 201), and a week after it, on Aug. 29, 1798, he sold for £5247, to William Potts, the Mill Pond estate, the rights over Ramsburg's land, the ferry, with an acre of ground across the Monocacy, where it landed, and a portion of the land confiscated by the State from Dulany. It will be thus seen that John Stoner had turned most of his property into personalty. He lived only a few days after this last sale, and was dead before September 10, when his executors brought the will into the Orphans' Court.

The estate was not settled until June 10, 1802. We find the personal property had been sold at auction for £500 4s 1d. John Buckias received £2 12s 6d for "crying the sale," and Philip Rohr £1 17s 6d for acting as clerk at the sale. Dr. John Tyler had been paid £5 for attendance on Capt. Stoner, and Dr. Lewis Weltzheimer 6s 8d for drugs and medicines. Conrad Doll made the coffin for the burial for £4 10s (high price as compared with others), George Littlejohn received £1 for shaving Capt. Stoner after death, and Adam Strickstuck dug his grave for 15s. Capt. John Stoner was an ancestor of whom we may well be proud; a faithful, conscientious, honored, Christian citizen.

Captain Stephen Ramsburg, the father-in-law of John Stoner, on July 28, 1746, bought "Mortality," 473 acres, part of Tasker's Chance, from Daniel Dulany, for 15 pounds. He bought on Oct. 1, 1753, from Daniel Dulany the estate of Dearbought, containing 307¼ acres. He paid £100 for it (Frederick Co. Land Records, E. 278). On July 3, 1755, he sold the property to Sebastian Derr, whose son John married a daughter of Capt. John Stoner (E. 764). On Aug. 25, 1758, he bought a tract of 100 acres, being part of Dulany's Lott (F. 566), and on Nov. 29, 1758, he bought 50 acres more of Dulany's Lott (F. 608). On May 11, 1761, he sold to Jacob Crist 190 acres of land on Ruess's (Reese's) Branch, which runs into the Monocacy (G. 6). He sold lots 28 and 29 in Fredericktown on July 14, 1761 (G. 106). These lots he bought from Daniel Dulany, and had his title confirmed to them by Dulany's executor on May 14 and June 23, 1762 (H. 51, 52, 82; G. 502).

He was a farmer and miller, and on Oct. 1, 1762, made an agreement with his neighbor William Durm with regard to a proposed mill-dam, which would cause the overflow of some of Durm's land. In return for the damage he agreed to pay £45 (H. 135). Shortly afterwards he served as executor for his friend Jacob Storm (J. 1184) and bought 114 acres of land, being the Resurvey on Nutt Spring (J. 1245). On Aug. 16, 1768, he sold the Resurvey on Stoney Hill and Shoemaker's Choice, comprising 111 acres (L. 398). On April 6, 1770, he sold his eldest son, John Ramsburg, for £250, the part of Dulany's Lott which he owned (L. 628). The second son, Jacob, received the remainder of his father's property in the Resurvey on Stoney Hill and Shoemaker's Choice on July 4, 1770 (N. 231). Fourteen years later, on Dec. 30, 1784 (W. R. 5, 271), he transferred part of Tasker's Chance, known as Mortality, comprising 62½ acres, to his third son, Elias Ramsburg.

His wife was Catharine Brunner, whom he must have married soon after 1730, who was alive in 1770, but dead before 1784. Their children were: John; Catharine Elizabeth, who married Captain John Stoner; Jacob; Elias; Anna Margaret, who married Christopher Myers, and was great-grandmother of Lewis H. Steiner; Henry; and Christian. He was for many years an elder of the Evangelical Reformed Church of Frederick, and as such bought land for the church (G. 368, J. 362, M. 43). In 1768, with the other elders, he made an agreement with Rev. Bennet Allen, Rector of All Saints parish, "for the more general comfort and edification of that part of the parishioners who are Germans." For this and other good causes and considerations and the sum of two shillings, Allen grants to the elders, while he shall be incumbent of All Saints, £25 current money, yearly, provided they apply it to the payment of a "minister that is received of and approved" by the Reformed Calvinists.

On Jan. 25, 1785, he manumitted (W. R. 5, 290) his negro slave Nan, aged about 40; John Stoner was witness to the deed. To the same woman, who took care of him during the last years of his life, he willed "the bed and bedding that she now uses at my house," and for "her past services and attention" he bequeathed her an annuity of £6 current money. Out of his personal estate £100 were to be reserved during her life for the payment of this annuity. His will was dated April 19, 1788, and describes him as "far advanced in years." He died on March 7, 1789, and on March 21 the will was presented for probate. He signed his name to it in German script. He left his son John, whom he made executor, a tract of 27 acres in Washington County, known as Adventure, and a bond of £43 3s 1d due from Capt. John Stoner. He also gave him "my two negroe boys, named Jack and Bill, untill they arrive at the age of 26 years, at which ages respectively, I have by deed duly executed, acknowledged, and to be recorded, manumitted and set them free, the said devise and bequest of the negroes to John to be on the express condition that he, his executors or administrators, do and shall, before their arrival at the ages at which they are manumitted by deed as aforesaid, instruct or cause the said negroe boys to be instructed and taught some good trade, whereby they may be at those ages the better enabled to support themselves."

Christian, the youngest son, received the family bible and two tracts of land in Frederick County: one, Chestnut Hill, of 50 acres; and the other, Mortality, of 200 acres. In return for these he is to pay £150 to Catharine Stoner. She also to have the "use and labour of a negroe woman named Sarah, now 18 years old, untill the said negro shall arrive at the age of 24 years, at which period her manumission, by deed bearing equal date herewith," is to take place. Stephen Ramsburg was born Oct. 11, 1711, and died March 7, 1789. The residue of the personal estate is to be divided equally among the children. The final account of the executor was rendered Aug. 10, 1792. He stated the personal estate amounted to £434 10s 8d. He charged the estate, among other items, with the following: Coffin and sundries for the funeral, £7 3d; Lawrence Brengle, clerk of the vendue, £1 10s; Jacob Miller, crier at vendue, 15s; nine gallons rum for vendue, £1 13s 9d.

Mrs. Ramsburg was a daughter of Joseph Brunner, who came from Schiefferstadt in Germany on the ——— in ———, 1729. With him came his son-in-law Christian Getzendanner, who married Anna Barbara Brunner (Rupp, 30,000 Names, p. 16). Joseph Brunner settled on a tract of land of about 1000 acres, immediately west of the present town of Frederick. This tract he divided into four farms: for his four sons, Jacob, John, Elias, and Henry, so that each farm should cross Carroll Creek and afford access to that stream for watering the cattle. On Jan. 17, 1753, he transferred to his third son Elias the homestead "Sheverstadt," which he had purchased from Dulany on July 28, 1746, and on which the present house was probably already built. He probably died soon thereafter (Frederick Co. Land Records E., p. 68, 104).

15. Maria Magdalena Steiner,<sup>3</sup> (?) b. Sept. 24, 1780. d. young (if child of Capt. John and Catharine).

3. Henry Steiner<sup>2</sup> married Elizabeth Link on ———, 177—. He was brought up by his elder brother John, according to family tradition. On Aug. 19, 1767, John transferred to him Stoner's Chance, a tract of land on the Tuscarora (L. 2). A part, at least, of this land he sold to Balzer Getzendanner on Apr. 5, 1770, when he was still unmarried. He was a farmer. His brother John administered his estate, which amounted to £252 19s 3½d, of which personal property was worth £212 6s 5½d, and debts due the estate £40 12s 10d. From there being no distribution of the estate recorded, it is possible that his wife and daughter were already dead.

Children of Henry Steiner and Elizabeth Link:

16. Elizabeth Steiner,<sup>3</sup> b. July 16, 1772, bap. Aug. 10, 1772. d. young (?).

17. John Steiner,<sup>3</sup> b. Mch. 12, 1774 (80). d. Dec. 3, 1854.

4. Benedic: Stoner,<sup>2</sup> or Steiner, married <sup>1</sup>Maria Sibilla Loy on ———, 177—, and <sup>2</sup>Anna Barbara Thomas on ———, 1775. He was a farmer, and lived on an estate containing 250 $\frac{3}{4}$  acres on the Monocacy, about two miles from Fredericktown. Of his farm, about 90 acres were under cultivation, a good proportion was meadow land and the rest was heavily timbered. On the place was a large and never failing spring, and good apple and peach orchards. After his death the property was sold pursuant to a decree of court (Bartgis' Federal Gazette).

On Mch. 22, 1792, he bought a part of the tract known as Spring Garden (W. R. 10, 510).

18. <sup>1</sup> Benedict Steiner,<sup>3</sup> bap. May 10, 1772 (90). d. ———.

19. <sup>2</sup> Mary Steiner,<sup>3</sup> b. ———, 177— (91). d. ———.

The children of Benedict Steiner <sup>2</sup> and Anna B. Thomas were:

20. Elizabeth Steiner,<sup>3</sup> b. May 7, 1776, bap. Oct. 1, 1776 (92). d. June 13, 1857.

21. Mary Magdalen Steiner,<sup>3</sup> b. Feb. 22, 1778. d. Jan. 22, 1793.

22. Henry Steiner,<sup>3</sup> b. Dec. 10, 1780, bap. Sept. 12, 1781 (94). d. ———.

23. Anna Barbara Steiner,<sup>3</sup> b. Feb. 20, 1783 (95). d. Jan. 30, 1814.

24. Susanna Steiner,<sup>3</sup> b. Nov. 25, 1785. Single. Lived with Jacob. d. Mch. 3, 1866.

25. Christian Steiner,<sup>3</sup> b. ———. d. ———.

26. Jacob Steiner,<sup>3</sup> b. Mch. 22, 1789 (98). d. Aug. 2, 1870.

27. David Eshebman Steiner,<sup>3</sup> b. Oct. 23, 1790 (103). d. ———.

28. Christina Steiner,<sup>3</sup> b. Oct. 23, 1790 (104). d. Feb. 19, 1866.

29. Charlotte Steiner,<sup>3</sup> b. ———. d. ———, 1814.

6. John Steiner <sup>3</sup> married Elizabeth Plank on June 27, 1785. She was born ———, 1755, and died Aug. 30, 1833. He studied medicine, and was known as "Doctor." He lived for a time in Virginia (father's will), and then in Creagerstown, where he probably died. His widow bought land in Creagerstown on May 15, 1798 (W. R. 16, 522). His brother Stephen was his administrator, and sold at auction, in Creagerstown, on Nov. 17, 1797, his household furniture, valuable mare, silver watch, joiner's and turner's tools, etc. His estate was not settled until May 17, 1802. He left a personal estate of £854 15s 1d. Of this the widow received £50 for education of the children after their father's death, and £260 as her portion, each child received £104.

Children of Dr. John Steiner <sup>3</sup> and Elizabeth Plank:

30. Frederick Steiner,<sup>4</sup> b. ———, 1786. Probably single. d. in Chambersburg, Pa.

31. David Steiner,<sup>4</sup> b. Aug. 27, 1789 (107). d. May 21, 1868.
32. Infant daughter,<sup>4</sup> b. ———, 179— . d. young.
33. Catharine Steiner,<sup>4</sup> b. ———, 179— . d. infant.
34. Elizabeth Steiner,<sup>4</sup> b. ———, 1792. Unmarried. d. ———, 1809.
35. Solomon Steiner,<sup>4</sup> b. Mch. 15, 1796 (115). d. Nov. 26, 1856.
36. Hannah Steiner,<sup>4</sup> b. Mch. 15, 1796 (121). d. Mch. 28, 1862.

7. Henry Steiner<sup>3</sup> married Elizabeth Bregel Oct. 13, 1787. She was born Dec. 19, 1767, and baptized on May 29, 1768, and was the daughter of Jacob Bregel and Gertrude Bell. She died Apr. 17, 1833, leaving a personal estate of $190.52, which was swallowed up by debts. Henry Steiner by will left everything to his wife. He was a farmer, and lived on the Woodsborough road in Frederick County. He died in Frederick City (W. R. 9, 553). He was a dignified, quiet man.

Jacob Bregel probably married three times, the name of his first wife being unknown, and that of his third wife being Margaret. He married Gertrude Bell June 30, 1761. He was a farmer, and lived near Walkersville. He probably died in Jan., 1784, leaving a will and a personal estate of £495 17s 5d. Besides Mrs. Steiner, he had George and Christian, who settled in Kentucky; Lawrence, who became mayor of Frederick; and Catharine, wife of John Scholl. His third wife was probably a sister of the second, and both were probably children of John Bell, or Beall (Fred'k Land Records, Liber W. R. 2, 1073).

37. Ezra Steiner,<sup>4</sup> b. June 22, 1788 (122). d. May 23, 1828.
38. Henry Steiner,<sup>4</sup> b. Mch. 3, 1790 (127). d. Feb. 26, 1868.
39. Still-born son,<sup>4</sup> b. Oct. 3, 1791. d. Oct. 3, 1791.

Col. Steiner was an architect, and built the steeple of the old German Reformed Church in Frederick in 1808 and the Stone Tavern in Bentztown (Frederick). His son, Mr. F. B. Steiner, states that he was told by Sergeant Lawrence Everhart that Col. Steiner, when 14 years of age, was of man's size and strength, and was enrolled as one of the guard over the Hessian prisoners, the most of the able-bodied men being absent from Frederick. In 1814 he raised the first company of volunteers in Western Maryland, and was attached with his company to the 16th militia regiment, Col. Ragan's. At the defeat of Bladensburg, Col. Ragan was wounded and taken prisoner. Col. Steiner then took command of the regiment. He was present with his troops at the battle of North Point, but was not brought into action.

In the latter part of her life this most estimable lady resided with the family of Dr. Lewis H. Steiner.

42. Christian<sup>4</sup> Steiner married his second cousin Rebecca Weltzheimer on Dec. 7, 1823. Mrs. Steiner was born on April 20, 1802, and died April 21, 1862. She was the elder of the two daughters of Dr. Lewis Weltzheimer, of Frederick City, and Margaret Meyer, of Sheverstadt, near Frederick. Margaret Meyer was born Oct. 15, 1772, and baptized Feb. 28, 1773, and was the daughter of Christopher Meyer and Anna Margaret Ramsburg, the daughter of Stephen. Christopher Meyer was confirmed in the Reformed Church in 1754, and bought the estate of Sheverstadt from Elias Brunner, his wife's uncle, in 1771. The farm is still in the possession of the family, being owned by the estate of the late Lewis H. Steiner. Christopher Meyer's mother's name was Anna Barbara. She died in 1789. He was often known as "Stoffel." His father was Caspar Myer, who bought part of Tasker's Chance from Daniel Dulany on July 28, 1746, and sold land in Frederick County on Feb. 3, 1759 (Liber F, 641). He died in 1773. Lewis Weltzheimer was the son of John Philip Weltzheimer and Maria Magdalena Straszer, and was born July 16, 1769, at Pirmasens, now a part of Rhenish Bavaria; but, at that time, a part of the possessions of Hesse Darmstadt. From that early home in the Vosges of the Palatinate, he emigrated to America with his brother Philip, who settled in Shepherdstown, W. Va. On May 5, 1796, Lewis Weltzheimer opened the first apothecary's store in Fredericktown. His advertisement in Bartgis's Federal Gazette reads as follows: "Fresh Drugs and Medicines. Lewis Weltzheimer informs the public in general and his friends in particular that he has just opened a New Medicinal Store next door to Mr. Francis Kleinerd's, at the sign of the Golden Mortar in Fredericktown, near the gaol, where he intends to sell and will be constantly supplied with a general assortment of genuine Drugs and Medicines, together with all sorts of Painter's Colours and Paints." Dr. Weltzheimer was an educated man. At the baptism of his daughter Rebecca, the sponsors were John Jacob Rohr and his wife Catharine. There was a second daughter, Caroline, born July 16, 1807, who married Adam Wolfe. Lewis Weltzheimer died Dec. 10, 1834.

Christian Steiner was one of a large family and early had to start in business for himself. He was for some time clerk in a store at Mechanicstown (now Thurmont). Later he removed to Frederick, married, and in ———, 1824, at the age of twenty-seven, opened a general store on Market Street, just above Fourth Street. He was a uniformly successful merchant, respected by all men for his probity and uprightness of character. His rule of life may well be summed up in a sentence from a letter to his son, on May 10, 1854: "When I commenced the world, I resolved (as I was poor and success depended upon an upright course) that I never would do an unworthy act knowingly." Having amassed a modest competence, he sold out his business to Joshua Doub and Joseph G. Miller for $6114 on Sept. 21, 1842. He then retired from active business and spent his time in caring for his property and in the conduct of various institutions in which he was interested. He was long a director in the Fredericktown Savings Institution, and was one of the founders and first trustees of the Frederick Female Seminary. He was a consistent member of the Evangelical Reformed Church of Frederick, in which he was confirmed in 1821 and in whose service he several times held the office of elder. In politics he was an ardent Whig. His kindness and thoughtfulness towards his wife, who was an invalid during the latter years of her life, are worthy of special mention.

Norman, on June 6, 1877 (b. ———, 18—). He was confirmed in the Frederick Reformed Church by Rev. J. H. Schmaltz in 1832, and that year entered the Reformed High School at York, Pa. After studying there and at the Reformed Theological Seminary, and graduating from the latter June, 1837, he preached near Trenton, N. J., as a licentiate for a year. In 1838 he was ordained by Susquehanna Classis of the Reformed Church and placed in charge of three congregations in Northumberland Co., Penn. He preached there until 1841. From then to 1843 he had no charge. In 1844 he removed to Ohio and became pastor of seven congregations at and near Lancaster in that State. In 1846 he removed to the Fairfield charge, composed of four congregations, in the Miami classis, and in 1852 to Union charge of four congregations in the same classis, living in Springfield, Ohio. In 1856 he became pastor of the Congregational Church at Peoria, Ill., in the Illinois Central Association. In 1858 he returned to Maryland and lived at Walkersville, Frederick County, in charge of the Glade Church. This charge he retained until 1867, when he accepted a call to the Taneytown charge in Carroll County, Md. In 1872 he returned to Ohio and, settling at Ashland, served the Shenandoah charge of five congregations in the Tuscarawas classis. This church he left in 1875 to become pastor of the St. Paul's charge of three congregations in the Miami classis in Champaign Co., Ohio. In 1877 he removed to Greenville, Ohio, and had charge of the New Madison Church. Two years later he settled without charge on a farm two miles from Millerstown, Champaign Co., Ohio. In 1882 he returned to the ministry and took the Bunker Hill charge of three congregations in Williams Co., Ohio, residing at Pulaski. In 1885 he again retired from active service and spent his remaining years on his farm near Millerstown. He was an active and zealous man, positive and decided in his views, and a fluent and forceful speaker, rarely using notes. He favored emotional religion, had a strong and vivid imagination, was a clear thinker, a logical reasoner and a ready debater, being well versed in parliamentary law. He told his friend Rev. I. H. Reiter: "If you ever write my biography say Jesse Steiner was a radical." The friend adds: "He was a man of strong intellectual endowments, had a penetrating mind, was quick of perception and creditably educated . . . and well versed in the Holy Scriptures and the general doctrines of the church."

129. Gen. John A. Steiner<sup>s</sup> m. <sup>1</sup>Sophia Myers (b. Mch. 27, 1819; d. Aug. 26, 1842) on Apr. 13, 1837; <sup>2</sup>on Sept. 19, 1844, Mary Ann Brunner (b. Feb. 9, 1823; d. Mch. 8, 1894). He received his education at the Frederick Academy (now Frederick College) and private schools in Frederick City and County. He learned the trade of boot and shoe making, and followed the trade for a number of years. Then he engaged in the lumber and brick business, during which time he was appointed clerk to the County Commissioners for Frederick County, organizing the office, it being then separated from the office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court of the county. He was for several terms elected as one of the Board of Common Council, a part of the corporate authorities of Frederick City. In early life he became a member of the Evangelical Reformed Church of Frederick, where he was engaged as teacher, manager, and superintendent of the Sunday school for more than sixty years, and very frequently was elected by the congregation as deacon and elder. He was often delegate to classis and synods of that denomination and was elected vice-president of the Synod of the Potomac at its session held at Carlisle, Pennsylvania, in 1890. When the rebellion of the Southern States occurred, he volunteered and entered the service as the major of the 1st Regiment Potomac Home Brigade Volunteers; was promoted to the lieutenant-colonelcy, and was honorably discharged, upon resignation, June, 1863, just before the enemy crossed the Potomac River into Maryland. He refused to receive his discharge until the enemy was driven from the State, volunteered and with his regiment fought through the battle of Gettysburg, Pennsylvania, where the regiment was attached to 12th (Slocum's) Corps and Lockwood's Maryland Brigade. The history of the war records the service of the brigade at several most important points during the engagements of the battle. After the enemy was defeated and driven into Virginia, he accepted his discharge and returned to his family in Frederick. For this volunteer service, the Senate of the United States breveted him to a full colonelcy and brevet brigadier-general U. S. volunteers. At the fall election of 1863, he was elected sheriff of Frederick County, which office he filled during its term of two years. At the election of 1866, he was elected as one of the delegates from Frederick County to General Assembly of Maryland, and there served on several important committees, among which was the committee on claims and corporations. Upon his return from Annapolis, after serving in the House of Delegates, he resumed the manufacture of brick, later retiring from that business he returned to his former trade, boot and shoe making. In July, 1882, he received from Col. E. H. Webster, collector of customs for the port of Baltimore, an appointment of day inspector of customs, and as such served until 1888, mainly as chief of debenture department. After Mr. Cleveland reached the presidency of the United States, he was retired to make place for a democrat. Shortly after his return home, Dr. George Diehl purchased the "Examiner" printing office and selected him as his office editor, in which capacity he served until advancing age forced him to retire to private life. General Steiner was connected with a number of organizations. For more than fifty years he was a member of the Junior Steam Engine Company No. 1 of Frederick, and served as a director and vice-president in the company. He was connected with Columbia Lodge, F. and A. M., Odd Fellows, Improved Order of Red Men, Knights of Pythias, and for many years was a director in the Young Men's Bible Society of Frederick County. By his zeal and willing service he usually became prominent in the organizations to which he was attached.

Lewis H. Steiner was fitted for college at the Frederick Academy, whence he entered the Sophomore class of Marshall College, at which institution he was graduated in 1846. During his college course he was much influenced by his contact with such professors as J. W. Nevin, D. D., Philip Schaff, D. D., and Traill Green, M. D. He then pursued the study of medicine in the office of a Frederick physician and at the Medical Department of the University of Pennsylvania, where he received the degree of M. D. in 1849. In the same year Marshall College gave him the degree of A. M. in course. He received the same degree (honoris causa) from the College of St. James in 1854 and from Yale College in 1869.

He began the practice of medicine in Frederick, but in 1852 removed to Baltimore to assist Dr. John R. W. Dunbar in the conduct of a private medical institute. He continued in that position until 1855. His attention was early directed to natural science, particularly to botany and chemistry, and he soon gave up the active practice of medicine to devote his time to teaching these sciences. He was one of the earliest physiological chemists in the country, and his monograph on strychnia is well known. From 1853 to 1856 he was professor of chemistry and natural history at the Columbian University, as well as professor of chemistry and pharmacy and dean of the National Medical College. He was lecturer on chemistry and physics at the College of St. James from 1854 to 1859. In 1855 and 1856 he was Swann lecturer on applied chemistry in the Maryland Institute, and in the latter year was one of those who reorganized the Maryland College of Pharmacy, in which institution he served as professor of chemistry until 1861. During this period he also lectured on chemistry and botany in many private schools for girls in and near Baltimore. In particular, he was one of the incorporators and professors in the Mt. Washington Female College. He was Librarian of the Maryland Historical Society from 1856 to 1861. At the outbreak of the Civil War Dr. Steiner returned to Frederick and entered the U. S. Sanitary Commission as one of its inspectors. In 1863 he was promoted to the position of Chief Inspector for the Army of the Potomac and placed in full charge of the field relief work. In recognition of his valuable services in the war, the New York Commandery of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the United States elected him a companion of the third class in 1868.

In 1865 he was chosen President of the School Board of Frederick County, and acting as such until 1868, he thoroughly organized the school system of that county. In 1871 he was elected, on the Republican ticket, as the member from Frederick County of the State Senate, in which body he was for a session the only representative of his party. He was re-elected in 1875 and 1879, but defeated in 1883. While in that body he was usually a member of the committee on rules, on engrossed bills, and other important committees. In 1876 he was a member of the National Republican Convention, which nominated Gen. R. B. Hayes to the presidency. From 1873 until 1884, he was political editor of the Fredrick Examiner.

In November, 1884, he was chosen Librarian of the Enoch Pratt Free Library of Baltimore City. He organized the library, which was opened at the beginning of 1886, with 20,000 volumes and a central and four branch libraries. A fifth branch library was opened in 1888, and the books owned by the library were over 100,000 at Dr. Steiner's death in 1892. Under Dr. Steiner's administration, the library circulated about 450,000 books annually among the people of Baltimore.

In 1853 he was chosen a Fellow of the Medical and Chirurgical Faculty of Maryland; in 1853 Member and in 1874 Fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science; in 1852, Member of the American Medical Association; in 1855, Correspondent of the Philadelphia Academy of Natural Science; in 1869, Corresponding Member of the Maryland Academy of Sciences; in 1872, Member and in 1876 Vice-President of the American Public Health Association; in 1876, Corresponding Member of the New Haven Colony Historical Society; in 1878, Trustee of the Hampton Normal and Agricultural Institute; in 1891, Vice-President of the American Library Association; in 1856, he was made an honorary member of the Alpha of New York of the  $\Phi \Psi \chi$  Fraternity; in 1853, a member of the Maryland Historical Society; in 1876, a member of the International Medical Congress in Philadelphia; and in 1881, Corresponding Member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society. In 1876 he was one of the founders of the American Academy of Medicine, of which he was vice-president in 1876 and 1877 and president in 1878. In 1886 he was one of the original members of the Society for the History of the Germans in Maryland. He was assistant editor of the American Medical Monthly from 1858 to 1861.

He received the degree of LL. D. from Delaware College in 1884, and that of Litt. D. in 1887 from Franklin and Marshall, at which time he delivered the oration at the celebration of the centennial of the founding of the college.

His first publication was an address delivered in 1851 before the Goethean Literary Society of Marshall College, of which he was a member. He translated Wills' "Chemical Analysis" with Dr. D. Breed in 1854, and between 1865 and 1880 translated nearly a dozen works of German fiction for the Reformed Church Publication House. He contributed numerous monographs and reviews to medical and scientific journals, and published many addresses, and scientific and other reports.

In 1876 he edited the History of Guilford, Connecticut, left in manuscript by his father-in-law, the Hon. R. D. Smyth, and in 1889 he acted as one of the Committee of Arrangements for the Quarto Millennial Celebration of the settlement of that town.

He was a prominent member of the Reformed Church in the United States, and served several times as elder in the Evangelical Reformed Church at Frederick and as treasurer of the Potomac Synod. In 1863 he was one of the secretaries of the Tercentenary Celebration of the Heidelberg Catechism; in 1866, a member of the committee to prepare an "Order of Worship" for the church; in 1874, a member of a committee to prepare a "Hymn Book"; from 1878 to 1883, a member of the Peace Commission, and a member of a committee to prepare a "Directory of Worship" in 1883. Together with Prof. Henry Schwing, he prepared two hymn books: "Cantate Domino" in 1859 and "Tunes for Worship" in 1884.
