Since this was collected for them the names of their ancestors are written in capital letters that they can the more easily follow their lineage. It should not distract others interested in the record.

On the right hand page follow the lineage and history generation by generation. On the left hand page find the lineage of the companion in marriage, comments and references.

Imperfect as this manuscript is I would have been grateful if some one had prepared such a record for me.

PROLOGUE

SIX COUSINS

In the summer of 1963, six cousins met in LaGrange, Ind. at the home of Riley L. Case. We knew only that we all descended from a Smith who had lived in New Hampshire. Mabel Lovett came from Detroit, Michigan, where she had pioneered in research work of the Detroit Schools. Nettie (Hudson) Boosenbark and her sister Helen (Hudson) Morelock came from Bowling Green, O. Both had taught school and Helen was returning to the class room after being away for a number of years raising her family. John Milbourn, who lived in Arizona in the winter and summered at a lake in Indiana came with many stories he had heard told. He was the son of the eldest daughter of Phenira (Smith) Emerick. Our host Riley L. had been a vocational teacher, a principal of Shipshewana High School and for the last twenty or more years county Agent. His and my grandmother ANN (Smith) Case was a sister to Phenira and also to Nettie's and Helen's grandfather Conrad Smith. It was when I taught in South Milford 1921-1922 and Mabel was my principal that I learned from her that we were related. Her greatgrandmother, Lydia Ann Smith was a sister to my great grandfather, JOSIAH SMITH. She had explained that her Hutchins grandparents had been neighbors of JOSIAH and RACHEL (CLEMENTS) SMITH when they were all pioneers in Noble county Indiana.

We set off for Noble County. In Wayne township we climbed a high hill by a narrow path as it was the only means of ascent to Weston Chapel Hill Cemetery. We found there among others the graves with markers of JOSIAH SMITH (1806-1853) and RACHEL (SMITH) 1811-1860.

From there it was a short distance to the farm where JOSIAH and RACHEL had lived and where they died. To the astonished young proprietor of the farm, Richard Barker, we announced that we were all his relatives. His cousin John Milbourn explained that we were on an ancestor hunt and vouched for our partial sanity. A half mile beyond we passed the home of Phenira (Smith) Emerick, young Barkers great grandmother and John's grandmother. Near the Emerick farm was the Hutchins farm where Mabel's grandparents had lived.

Hoping to find some one who could answer our many questions we stopped at the home of John's aunt Inez (Emerick) McCullough born 1865. During the year she had suffered a stroke. Up to the time of the stroke she was alert and could have given us much information.

To check the present generation we called at Riley's son, the Reverend Riley E. Case in Ashley. Three beautiful children promise well for the future of the family. We also called at the home of Mabel's neice, Katherine (Perkins) Lewis. She was taking the day off from a regular job of nursing at the LaGrange Hospital. Her son and his wife were assisting her husband with the operation of a large farm. I mused to myself that it was like a Smith woman to quietly find a way to follow her own career.

The last call was at Veva (Randall) Tracey's home in Hudson. Since she had been forewarned she had family pictures and letters and notes on her branch of the family which was that of Rebecca (Smith) Eberhart, another sister of our grandparents.

As we returned to LaGrange we passed the farm where Riley and I grew up and which farm had been the home of ANN (SMITH) CASE. One mile beyond we visited the cemetery where she was buried and many many of her loved ones.

Over dinner at the Bir Hotel that evening we put together a few pieces of the picture of the early pioneer family of JOSIAH and RACHEL SMITH. We knew there were ten children, five boys and five girls. We could not account for the names of all ten, nor can we to this day. John recalled that they had told of two of the younger children being taken by his grandmother, Phenira. One of the two had fallen from a tree and killed in the fall. We wondered if it might have been malaria or tuberculosis that carried off the young parents. I recalled that grandmother ANN said there were swamps around the house, wet and cold with rattlesnakes. One bit her, and her mother who had just come in from milking set her foot in a pail of warm milk. Her mother had said at another time that she was glad to move from Maine where the boys before they were sixteen would run off to sea. Mabel felt sure that her Hawkins ancestors belonged to the great sea faring Hawkins family. Maine or midland we noted that five sons of Jonathan Smith had gone to California; Nettie's and Helen's grandfather, Conrad, and his two sons E.V. and Claud had preferred prospecting and adventuring in lumber to farming. The women found adventure in books and escape in reading; many were teachers, several were librarians. Pensive Welsh, quietly reflective or quietly gay the Smith's that I knew clasped tightly in their hearts their troubles which they never quite let go. As with their hurts and resentments they never forgot or completely forgave. As a consequence there was much of which they never spoke. JOSIAH and RACHEL'S children were left orphans and separated at an early age and did not have the advantage of oft told anecdotes of the family.

The picture that I had of my grandmother and also her sisters and reflected in their several offspring was women of a natural beauty, large black eyes that sparkled or snapped, marble white skin, black hair that waved or, if given a chance fell in ringlets. They were not tall women but I thought of them as tall and strong. They scorned recognition through beauty but sought to be recognized for intelligence and studious attainments. The grandmothers were strongly in favor of womens rights but each sagely ran her own campaign. School teachers turned mothers they were devoted mothers, permissive in individual development but strict in standards of attainment. We smiled at the success of Mira and ANN in making their sons lawyers when the education of the children was left to them after the fathers were gone.

Not inclined to join an organized religious group they may have appeared as dissenters but they were not paraders.

Strong in their own high moral standards they were more contemptuous of the weakness in erring than critical.

Perhaps down the corridor of years I did not see them clearly, only shadows. But if shadows what is that behind the chairs of each of us that causes our image to project in similar outline resembling the shadows?

As a result of the meeting of the cousins was the exchange of information. A representative from each branch sent her family genealogy. With some professional assistance we learned that our ancestor, progenitor of all of us was PETER SMITH. Records showed his wife to be HANNAH SANBORN,* from an old and distinguished New Hampshire family. RACHEL (CLEMENTS) SMITH came from an equally well known New Hampshire family. Of PETER SMITH we know only that he was born in Brentwood, N.H., lived in Exeter when married, served in the Revolutionary War, sired eleven children and died in Maine. We are greatly indebted to the DAR Records.

the Sanborn History in 1899 (reprinted 1969).

The frame of the ancestral mansion was built of White a 20 foot square room. A door from each room leads into the kitchen in which is a vast fireplace. The chimney was built of bricks brought over from England.

SKETCHES

New Hampshire was the first of the original states to form a government wholly independent of Great Britain. It served from Jan. 5, 1776 to June 2, 1784. The population of New Hampshire in 1770 at the outbreak of the Revolutionary War was 80,000 people, most of whom sympathized with the Whigs and the king. Population in 1790 was 141,885.

On Aug. 16, 1777 the important victory of Bennington was won largely by New Hampshire and Vermont troops and General Stark. New Hampshire after great opposition voted to ratify the constitution and become the 9th state. In 1819 the tax to support the Congregational Church was repealed.

Surrender of Burgoyne, Oct. 17, 1777. The British were permitted to stack their own arms and were promised transportation to England on the Condition that they must not serve again during the war. The number of men surrendered was 5,7999, with all the cannon muskets and munitions of the war, but the entire British losses from the beginning of the campaign exceeded 10,000 men. After the surrender the American army melted away as rapidly as it had assembled, leaving but a nucleus of regulars. Militia returned home, feeling confident that the cause of the war was past.

Henry Dearborn, American soldier and Secretary of War, born 1751, Hampton, N.H., died Roxbury, Mass., 1829. He left the practice of medicine to join the provincial forces and served as an officer at Battle of Bunker Hill, in Arnold's expedition to Quebec (where he was taken prisoner and exchanged), in Battle of Saratoga, Valley Forge, Battle of Monmouth, Sullivans expedition against the Indians, the seige of Yorktown. He kept a detailed journal throughout the war.

President Washington designated him U.S. Marshall of district of Maine. In 1792 he was elected to congress, served as a Republican two terms. He was Secretary of War through the administration of President Jefferson 1801-1809. In 1803 he issued orders to erect barracks and strong stocade at "Chikago". Jan. 1912, President Madison appointed him Major General of U.S. Army. He was relieved of command July 1813. In 1822 President Monroe appointed him minister to Portugal. He died 1829.

The purpose of this information is to make History and Genealogy more interesting.

SMITH

The following twelve pages give the information of the descendants of Lydia Ann (Smith) Hawkins.

The story of the family of her daughter, Eliza (Hawkins) Hutchins and that of her young brother, JOSIAH SMITH is one of pioneering together in Seneca County, Ohio. Later Eliza's son Roscoe and the Smiths moved to Noble County, Ind.

To give the present generation the significance of having a friend near in pioneer days read a page from Noble County History written in 1882-

"From the time of the earliest settlement until about the year 1858, Noble County and indeed all Northern Indiana, Southern Michigan and Northwestern Ohio, besides other localities was so infested by horsethieves, burglars, highwaymen, counterfitters, manufacturers of bogus coin, murderers and outlaws of every description, that no honest man with money or valuable possessions could say with assurance that either himself or his property was safe from attack. The entire period was one long reign of terror and apprehension. About the time Noble County was first settled, or from 1830 to 1840 the notorious counterfeiter of Summit County, O., James Brown, a man of great natural ability, and one of the most daring and audacious and successful 'blacklegs' in all the country at that time managed by adroitness and cunning to so surround himself and his company of kindred spirits with secrecy and mystery, that all efforts to shatter the organization were for many years defeated....."

RACHEL (CLEMENTS) SMITH had lived a widow in that neighborhood for seven years. When she died Nov. 30, 1860 her five youngest of ten were orphaned and scattered. Phenira married Nov. 3, 1860, John Emerick and remained in the neighborhood and reared a family of twelve near the Roscoe Hutchins'.

When I taught my first term of school in South Milford and Mabel was my principal we met as daughters of respected families of mutual interests. But her mother explained that our great grandparents were brother and sister, and the families later were welded in friendships by pressures and hardships of pioneers.

Today Col. Dale Perkins and Capt. Wayne Hughes will pass in Arlington Virginia without recognition; Ann Case Ulmer and Diane Lewis Smith may work in Riverview Hospital, Noblesville, Ind. and not even know the family tradition.

The following pages giving information of the descendants of Lydia Ann (Smith) Hawkins, the third child of PETER and HANNAH (SANBORN) SMITH was compiled by Mabel Lovett.

Mabel, one of the six cousins who met in LaGrange, Indiana in 1963, seeking information on our Smith ancestors, descended from Ann E. (Hutchins) Lovett; through Roscoe G. Hutchins; through Eliza B. (Hawkins) Hutchins; from Lydia Ann (Smith) Hawkins.

The pages are numbered (Lydia's) L1, L2 etc. The index designates the pages in this section also as L1 etc.

On one of his return voyages he came up the American Coast as far as Newfoundland. Conrad G. Smith, farmer, section 16, Ashland Twp. is the son of Josiah and Rachel Clemens^o Smith natives of Maine. They were married in the Pine Tree State and moved to Seneca County, Ohio. Here the son, Conrad, was born Oct. 20, 1834 and resided in that county until 1845^{}. Mr. Smith had reached the age of eleven years^{} when his parents went to Noble County, Indiana. He worked on the farm of his father until the death of the latter in the fall of 1851^{} which event brought him face to face with the realities of life so far as the world goes. He gave his attention heartily to the first opportunities that presented to earn a comfortable creditable livelihood.

He was married to Arvenoah, a daughter of Elisha and Sophia (McGuire O'Queen) Hagar. She was born in Oswego County, N.Y., March 25, 1843 and died in Orange Twp. Noble County, Ind., March 27, 1861 (diphtheria) leaving one son, Eugene V. Smith, born Sept. 4, 1859.

Mr. Smith found in the Civil War a field for his efforts and he became a soldier. He enlisted Aug. 25, 1861 in Company "M" second Indiana Corps. His regiment joined the army of the Cumberland, Gen. Buel, his commander. Mr. Smith underwent the oft recited experiences of the encounters of Morgan's Raids and was in the action between the noted guerrillas chief and Gen. Johnson at Gallitia, Tenn. The Union forces were repulsed on the third charge and while making the onset Mr. Smith received a shot across the right eye and another in the left leg. A pursuit followed and while reeling seven miles he was captured.

He was finally paroled and rejoined his command in Louisville and was sent thence to Indianapolis where he was discharged as disabled, Dec. 20, 1862. He returned to Noble County, Ind. In the spring of 1863 he went to Newago County, Michigan and purchased the tract of land where he is now established. He delayed entering upon the work of improving as the facilities for lumber seemed to offer paramount attractions and he was ready to settle in life. He was married to Sarah L. daughter of David and Lucinda Law, June 23, 1867. She was born Sept. 13, 1847 in Noble Co., Ind. Her father was born in Ohio and her mother in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith took possession of the farm, 160 acres of which are under good improvements and in a fine state of cultivation showing the industry and effort and judgement of the proprietor. Mr. Smith owns in addition $\frac{1}{2}$ section 20 in Ashland Twp.

To him and his wife the following children were born:

Claud D. Smith, born Feb. 3, 1771
Ann Ethel Smith, born Feb. 13, 1873

Mr. Smith belongs to the Greenback party in politics and is a member of the Blue Lodge no. 131 F&AM at Newago, Michigan.

* Note: Conrad spelled his mother's name, C l e m e n s; ANN, his sister, spelled it C l e m e n t s. Their aunt, his mother's sister Jane, spelled her name C l e m e n c e. I have accepted the spelling as in the records in Waldo, Maine-C l e m e n t s.

 Note: The Smiths moved to Indiana later, I think. His sister, ANN, was born in Seneca Co., O., March 1846.

NoteP His father's death is recorded on the grave stone in Weston Chapel Hill Cemetery as 1853.

ZOPHER CASE

Obituary.

Zopher Case was born Nov. 2, 1816, in Ashtabula county, Ohio. He was a son of Zopher and Annie Case, and a grandson of Captain Case, a member of the company that formed Washington's Body Guard in the Revolutionary war. His father enlisted and served with distinction as Major in the war of 1812; he died in 1833, and the widow and family came to Sturgis, Mich. There being no government land left in that vicinity, young Zopher Case came to the neighborhood where he afterward lived all his life and entered land. Mr. Case erected a cabin across the line in Milford township, and then returned to Michigan for his mother and the rest of the family. They soon located on the land which he occupied at his death. Mr. Case married Miss Nancy Highbargin in 1838, and to them were born five sons and five daughters, of whom five sons and one daughter survive the father. The mother died in 1866, and in 1868 Mr. Case married Miss Annie Smith, and to them were born three sons and one daughter, all of whom survive him. Mr. Case was a typical self-made man, whose perseverance, endurance and energy made him successful in everything he undertook. Few realize the self sacrifice of men who made this country what it is today, and who so fast are leaving us. After an illness of only about a week, Mr. Case died from the effects of grippe, Dec. 12, 1893, in the 78th year of his age. His funeral was held at Wright's Corners, Thursday Dec. 14. Rev. George A. Mackintosh, Presbyterian pastor at Kendallville, delivered an excellent sermon on the occasion, to a large audience of relatives, neighbors and sympathizing friends. The services were in charge of the Masonic order of Wolcottville, of which Mr. Case was a member. The music furnished was appropriate and well rendered by F. P. Sanders and wife and J. C. Schenler and wife, Mrs. Ettie Hunter presiding at the organ. Relatives present from a distance were, Leroy Case, of Chicago; George M. Case, of Iowa; Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Case, of Kendallville. Children absent, Riley Case and Miss Gay Case, in Oregon. Two very handsome floral pieces were presented by Mrs. Deal, Mrs. C. M. Case and other relatives. One a square and the other a large "at rest" pillow of white carnations, roses, violets, chrysanthemums and immortelles, also a cross of wax flowers, sheaf of Italian wheat and sickle, rested upon a fine draped casket, which was tenderly borne to its last resting place by N. B. Newnam and J. Weatherford, of Kendallville; A. Blackmun and P. E. Strawn, of South Milford; George Newnam and John Sherman, of Woodruff.

ANN SMITH -

b. March 17, 1846, Seneca County, Ohio.
 d. Dec. 10, 1921, Woodruff, Johnson Twp., LaGrange Co., Ind.
 ANN wrote in a memorandum to her children as if to leave them more information than she had of her family, "my mother's name was Clements before she married and that is all that I know about her family. I was the seventh child of ten, five boys and five girls; was left an orphan at fourteen, no father and no mother, not wanted by brother or sister, only dear kind generous brother Job never let a chance slide by to help me".

A neighbor, Wick Leonard and wife, gave her a home and allowed her the opportunity to attend school at Kendallville, Indiana. It was a walk of three or more miles night and morning. In three years she obtained a teaching certificate and at sixteen began teaching. This was Civil War times and money was scarce. The term ended when the money ran out. Terms were short, three weeks in this district and four weeks in another. Among her first pupils was her younger brother, Ed, who took it upon himself to be a problem pupil. Between terms she had to find a place to stay. Another family who befriended her and gave her a temporary home was Dr. Dancer family in Stroh.

For six years she taught school in LaGrange and Noble Counties. When she was twenty two she married a prosperous farmer, a widower with eight children. She had four of her own in time, each very special; RILEY because he was her first born, Gay because she was her only girl, Zopher because he seemed to need her most and Gaylord because he was her baby-a happy imaginative child and a studious companionable son later.

One sadness of which she never spoke, but nevertheless never got over, was the death of her daughter, Gay. Then three years before her own death she lost her son, Gaylord. This young lawyer was cut down in his early forties by influenza.

She was married to ZOPHER CASE on Dec., 1868, in South Milford, Indiana. He was born in Ashtabula County, Williamsfield, Ohio, on Nov. 3, 1816, the same year that Indiana came into the union. Both ANN and Zopher are buried in Woodruff Cemetery.

After the troubles of her husband's estate, after the first shock of her daughter's death, after she had seen her son through Ann Arbor Law School and married, grandmother ANN built a house on her eighty acre farm near her son RILEY in 1908. She planted fruit trees and a garden. She retained her driving horse which she had when living in South Bend. She took an orphan boy of eight to live with her. The evenings that we grandchildren spent with her she read from a serial in a thrice-a-week paper or from Dicken's David Copperfield, or we played cribbage and ate popcorn.

She was as dear a grandmother as ever a child could have. I did not remember her until she came to live near us and I was ten. Until she died when I was twenty-two she was as influential in my life as father and mother. If as a child I called on an errand she accorded me the honors of a guest. She might even leave her churning (a stone jar with a wooden paddle sitting in a tub of cold water) (my mother would not do that for anybody nor any other woman I knew). We would walk through the garden; she called all the flowers by name and gave me a bouquet.

When we read Oliver Twist she avoided certain parts but when we played cards she made me play Seven Up to win. She introduced me to Lovey Mary and Mrs. Wiggs in the Cabbage patch. When I was in college she and I exchanged views on H.G. Wells. She liked a stimulating discussion and she did not back down from an argument. Her sons teased and baited her but were respectful.

One day she looked up from her newspaper she was reading and said, What is a flapper? I replied that flappers were all us girls going around with our overshoes open.

She choose a few good friends and seemed impervious to public opinion. She leaned on her niece Addie Randall; and another great grief was Addie's death. When her horse ran away and threw her from the carriage the shock and fall caused a crippling arthritic condition. Later a broken hip confined her to a wheel chair. Through all this her mind remained clear and alert. She talked of the troubles of the times but not her own. One triumph that I could hardly understand was the day we loaded her chair into the wagon and took her to the polls to cast her first vote.

She died of a hemorrhage of the lungs in the home of her son RILEY.

Her brave spirit was a tribute to all who must grow old.

ENGLISH SANBORNS

English connection with the American Sanborn Family was not established when V.C.Sanborn wrote his Sanborn genealogy in 1899. He wrote page 58," There is no doubt that the American Sanborns are a branch of the ancient Wiltshire Family of Samborne, but absolute proof of connection has not yet come to light".

He thought probable because of associations of REV. STEPHEN BACHILER that we descended through Nicholas Samborne (son of WALTER). That branch is known as the Hampshire Sambournes.

The following references are offered as proof that ANN BACHILER married JOHN SANBORN, who descended from DREW SAMBOURNE (son of WALTER) and known as Berkshire Sambournes.

V.C.Sanborn wrote,"But JOHN SAMBOURNE of CHOLSEY, son of RICHARD OF WALLINGFORD, was born about 1591, and may have been the husband of ANN BACHILIER.

As indeed the following references establish ANN BACHILIER as wife of JOHN SAMBOURNE of CHOLSEY.

Ref: "The Pioneers of Massachusetts" by Charles Henry Pope, published at Boston, Mass. 1900, page 26-

" Rev.STEPHEN BACHILER, born about 1561, matriculated at St. John's College, Oxford, Nov.17, 1581,B.A.February 3, 1586/7 and Vicar of Wherwell, Hants,Jan.26,1587/8 to 1601; came in the William and Francis, June 5,1632,aged 71 years,with wife Helen and others of his family. He settled at Saugus(Lynn)....he returned to England not far from 1647. Deeded land 8:7m 1647 to his three grandsons John and WILLIAM and Nathaniel Bachiler,Jr.,all of Hampton....His children were:

Theodate, who married Christopher Hussey.

Deborah, married Rev. John King.

Stephen aged 16 on entering Oxford in 1610.

THE FAMILY NAME AND IT'S ORIGINS

by V.C. Sanborn

The name of SAMBORNE Or SANBORN with different variations is not uncommon in America...it is extremely rare in England....all evidences point to there having been one distinct family of the name from ancient times.

The earliest mention of the name in England(A.D. 1194) gives it as DESANDEBURNE, but as early as 1330 it is spelled SAMBORNE or SAMBOURNE. Since the fourteenth century the last two forms have been the accepted English spelling. Our first ancestors in America spelled their names SAMBORNE, and with or without the final e. Gradually the m was changed to n and the e dropped.

The original pronunciation in this country was Sahmbourn, with accent on the first syllable.

All American Sanborns are descended from the Hampton settlers of 1639 of that name except a few German and Swedes originally named Sandberg.

The most simple and evident derivative of the name is from the Anglo-Saxon words, sand and burma(a stream) evidently a place name, deriving its meaning from some sandy locality traversed by a stream....undoubtedly the surname of Samborne is local in its origin, deriving from some place or village of that name. Of surnames of local origins there are two classes: in the first the name was assumed by the bearer because, as lord of the manor or considerable landowner he was preeminently of the place; in the second, men of humbler birth acquired a place name for their surname because it was their place of origin. From the social status of the family in mediaeval times it seems probable that SAMBORNE belongs to the former class and there are indications that it originates from SAMBOURNE in Warminster, Wilts, situated on the Somerset boundry, twenty-one miles northwest from Salisbury and directly east of Frome, Somt. where the Sambornes owned property in seventeenth century.

As you will read in the lineage of the American Sanborns John, WILLIAM and Stephen through their English father JOHN of Cholsey, through RICHARD, through THOMAS, through HENRY through DREW, through WALTER, through, (Christian name not known) but son of NICHOLAS SAMBORNE, Jr. and to the first in our known pedigree, NICHOLAS SAMBORNE. Before him is mentioned in the Subsidy Rolls a D. Rico. Samborn, 1327, possibly his father as he lived in Wilts and early mention in Wiltshire of a Juliana De Sandeburne, 1194.

Again we mention that there are few Sambournes in England.

THE HERALDRY OF SAMBORNE
by V. C. Sanborn

"In many instances, American genealogies have given too little attention to the correct use of heraldry. In fact there is but one true Samborne coat-of-arms. Under the rules of British heraldry, coat -~~car~~mourne can be borne only by those who deduce a straight line from some ancestor of their name who bore it of right".

Through the Hampshire Sambornes of the sixteen h century, then we shall be entitled to bear the ancient Samborne arms only, if our name is Sanborn.

"A search at the Herald's College results in the following references"

(1) Samborne of Southcot, Berks. Quaterly (1) and (4) Samborn Argent, a chevron, sable, between three mullets gules, pierced or. Quaterly (2) Lushill of Wilts Argent, a pale fusilly, gules, within a bordure azure,bezantee. (3) Drew of Wilts, Berks and Devon; Ermine, a lion passant guardant, gules. No crest. This coat in 1566 was allowed and confirmed to THOMAS SAMBORNE of Sonning, Berks, grandson of DREW SAMBORNE of Southcot, who bore the quaterings above.

(2) Samborne of Timsbury, Somersetshire, although Nicholas Samborne had the same right to the Drew and Lushill quaterings as his brother, his descendants at Timsbury did not use them but bore the mullet as crest, which I (V.C. Sanborn) assume to have been a new crest, since Sir Barnaby Samborne's seal, affixed in 1590, to a document at Timsbury, shows no crest at all.

Q30 Sambourne of Mulsford, Berks. The same arms as (2) (Samborne of Timsbury) - a crest, a bull's head erased, sable armed or, holding in the mouth three wheat-ears of the last. This coat and crest were in 1665, confirmed and allowed to RICHARD SAMBOURNE OF Chosley, Berks, a great grandson of DREW SAMBOURNE, the crest being an allusion to his descent from the DREWS.

Our JOHN SAMBOURNE is the son of RICHARD, he is referred to as JOHN SAMBOURNE of Cholsey because his mother ELIZABETH was the daughter of RICHARD STAMPE of Cholsey.

SAMBOURNE, SAMBORNE, SANBORNE or SANBORN FAMILY IN ENGLAND
from Genealogy of V. C. Sanborn, printed 1899

JOHN SAMBOURNE of Cholsey from the Berkshire Sambournes was the son of RICHARD of Wallingford. JOHN born 1591, "may have been the husband of ANN BACHILER" wrote V. C. Sanborn. I accept from that and later proof of Pope, (1900); Pope and Stearns, (1908); and others that he was the father of John, WILLIAM and Stephan Samborne, founders of the Sanborn Family in America.

JOHN was baptized in 1609 (Stearns). It would be a baptism of conversion because he was married and had a son, John, born 1620. Son was Lt. John Sanborn of Hampton, N. H. ANN (BACHILLER) SANBORN was mentioned as a widow in 1630.

JOHN had an older brother, Richard, b. 1589, who lived and died in Cholsey. They were sons of:

RICHARD SAMBOURNE

RICHARD SAMBOURNE, born about 1557 is said in the Berkshire Visitation of 1665 to have lived at Stokes Farm, near Wokingham, Berks. Probable "this is an error for Stokes is in Oxfordshire, just across the Thames from Moulsoford. He seems to have lived near enough to Ipsden to have taken part in the proceedings which Sir Henry took in the distribution of Mary Sambourne's Estate."

RICHARD married ELIZABETH STAMPE, daughter of RICHARD STAMPE of Cholsey and his wife, CLEMENCE HARBOLD. After his death CLEMENCE married THOMAS SAMBOURNE, RICHARD'S father.

RICHARD'S older brothers were Henry and Lawrence, their father was:

THOMAS SAMBOURNE

THOMAS SAMBOURNE of Sonning, in Berks and Oxon, born about 1505 was a rich squire, leasing from the Bishop of Oxford several large manors in Sonning, Eye, and Dunsdon. In the "Memorials of Sonning" is some accounts of his difficulties with undertenants. THOMAS SAMBOURNE registered his pedigree in the Herald's Visitations of Oxfordshire in 1566.

He married (1) probably about 1540, Margaret Vennour who died in 1549, married (2) about 1550, Jane, daughter of Lawrence Stoughton, of Stoughton Hall, Surrey. She died about 1552. He married (3) about 1553, JOAN, widow of Hugh Beke, of Reading and daughter of HENRY POLSTEDE, of Albury in Surrey. She died 1562. He married (4) Blanch Burdett at Englefield, Berks in 1562. She is buried at Giles, Reading, 1570. He married (5) CLEMENCE (HARBOLD) STAMPE, widow of RICHARD STAMPE of Cholsey and daughter of ROGER HARBOLD, of Sefton, county Hereford. He had no issue by his last two wives.

He died 1584---his will---"Body to buried in Church of St. Andrew at Sonning, as near as possible to the body of my father, HENRY SAMBOURNE. To CLEMENCE SAMBOURNE my wife, 100 marks & c. To Mary Chandler, daut. of my brother, Edmund, 33s. 8d. To Elizabeth and Margaret Stampe my wife's daughters, gold rings. To Thomas Garnett, eldest son of my daughter, Frances, L6, 13s., 4d. to be used toward his education in learning. To Richard Garnet, second son of Daughter Frances, one bullock. Residue to Lawrence and RICHARD SAMBOURNE, my sons and Katherine Sambourne, my daughter, joint exrs. Richard Garnet, my son-in-law and Henry Samborne, my son, supervisors." CLEMENCE SAMBOURNE, widow at Wallingford, Berks, died on June 7, 1621.

THOMAS had nine children: Henry, Grace, Frances, Jean, Lawrence, Thomas, RICHARD, Katherine and Walter. The father of Thomas was:

HENRY SAMBOURNE

HENRY SAMBOURNE of Sonning, county Berks and Oxon, a lessee of the Bishop, holding the farms of Eye and Bishop's Lands, born 1478, Southcot House, ancient house of the Sambournes, Berks. He married ELIZABETH, daughter of _____ RICHARDS of Burfield (Burghfield) in Berks.

His will dated Jan., 31, 1549, is given in the Memorials of Sonning, "Body to be buried in St. Andrews Church at Sonning before our Lady's alter., 4s., 4d. to High Alter; 12d. to poor mens coffer. Wife ELIZABETH to enjoy farms of Eye and Bishops's Lands as long as she is a widow---son THOMAS and his children---to 40 poor householders at my funeral one ell of Hollandcloth to make them vayles, $\frac{1}{2}$ qr. wheat to be baked for the poor at months mind and 12 months mind, as much. My son, THOMAS, to mind his farming; 40L to be given him by his mother, and she not to meddle therein."

His children were THOMAS, Elizabeth, and Edmond. "Sonning--an ideal English village, situated on the Thames and frequented by artists and anglers--short drive between Southcot and Reading. Our day in Sonning is among the pleasantest with the ancient Church of St. Andrews, the impressiveness of the church and parsonage.

and the quaint old streets of Sonning, with their rose clad houses and irregular buildings, all form a picture not easily to be forgotten." He was the third son; William and Thomas older, Walter younger, four sons of:

DREW SAMBOURNE

DREW SAMBOURNE, born about 1440, lived at Southcot, Berks, a large landed proprietor. His wife's name was JOAN, who survived him.

The said Drugo died Jan. 3, 1507.

Will of DRUGO SAMBOURNE, Esq. of Redyng---body to be buried in Church of Our Ladye at Redyng, where my ancestors lie. To said church an image of St. Michael in alabaster. To mother church of Sarum lijs. i. v. d. Residue to wife, JOAN, sole executrix---brother Nicholas Sambourne, trustee give him xs for his trouble. To wife Johan, manor of Sothecote with appurtenance for one year.

He had given to his elder son and heir, William Sambourne b. 1470, and who lived at Fernham, Berks, and died Oct. 20, 1503 (before the death of DREW) enough that William's five year-old daughter, Margaret Sambourne was a "considerable Heiress." William's wife and Margaret's mother was Ann Copley, daughter of Roger Copley and granddaughter of Lord Hoo who was also the grandfather of Ann Boleyn, mother of Queen Elizabeth. The heiress Margaret Sambourne married the second Lord Windsor. Southcot House the ancient seat of the Sambournes is but a few miles from Reading. Berks and the drive from Reading through the beautiful Berkshire lanes to the old moated grange of Southcote is something to remember. The manor house is probably only partly the older one where the Sambournes and DREW livedabout 1600. Lord Windsor sold the entire manor of Southcot to John Blagrave of Reading.

DREW'S brother Nicholas was born 1450 and was the first of the Somersetshire Sambournes. These were the only children of:

WALTER SAMBOURNE

WALTER SAMBOURNE, born about 1420. He held Remman and Lushill manors but probably lived at Southcot House, near Reading, Berks. This later manor with the adjoining one of Pynson's (Pincent Farm) he held in the right of his wife, MARGARET, daughter of and co-heiress of THOMAS DREW of Seargy, Wilts.

The family DREW is of great antiquity. At Domesday Survey, Drogo Fitz Ponz held Seargy and other Wilts estates.

JOHN DREW OF SEAGRY

LAWRENCE DREW of Seagry and Southcot

THOMAS DREW of Seagry and Southcot

MARGARET DREW married WALTER SAMBOURNE

The only record of WALTER is one of sale of some property in Stokley, Chittleworth and Blakelowe, Wilts. WALTER died before his wife. She died Feb. 14, 1494. "DREW SAMBOURNE is her heir, aged 45 and more."

WALTER'S Father

_____ SAMBOURNE born about 1390. No record of his christian name nor any mention of him other than the husband of ELIZABETH, daughter and heir of THOMAS CRELELADE or CHICKLAUD Lord of the manors of Leigh, Studley and Ford, Wilts and Langridge, Somerset.

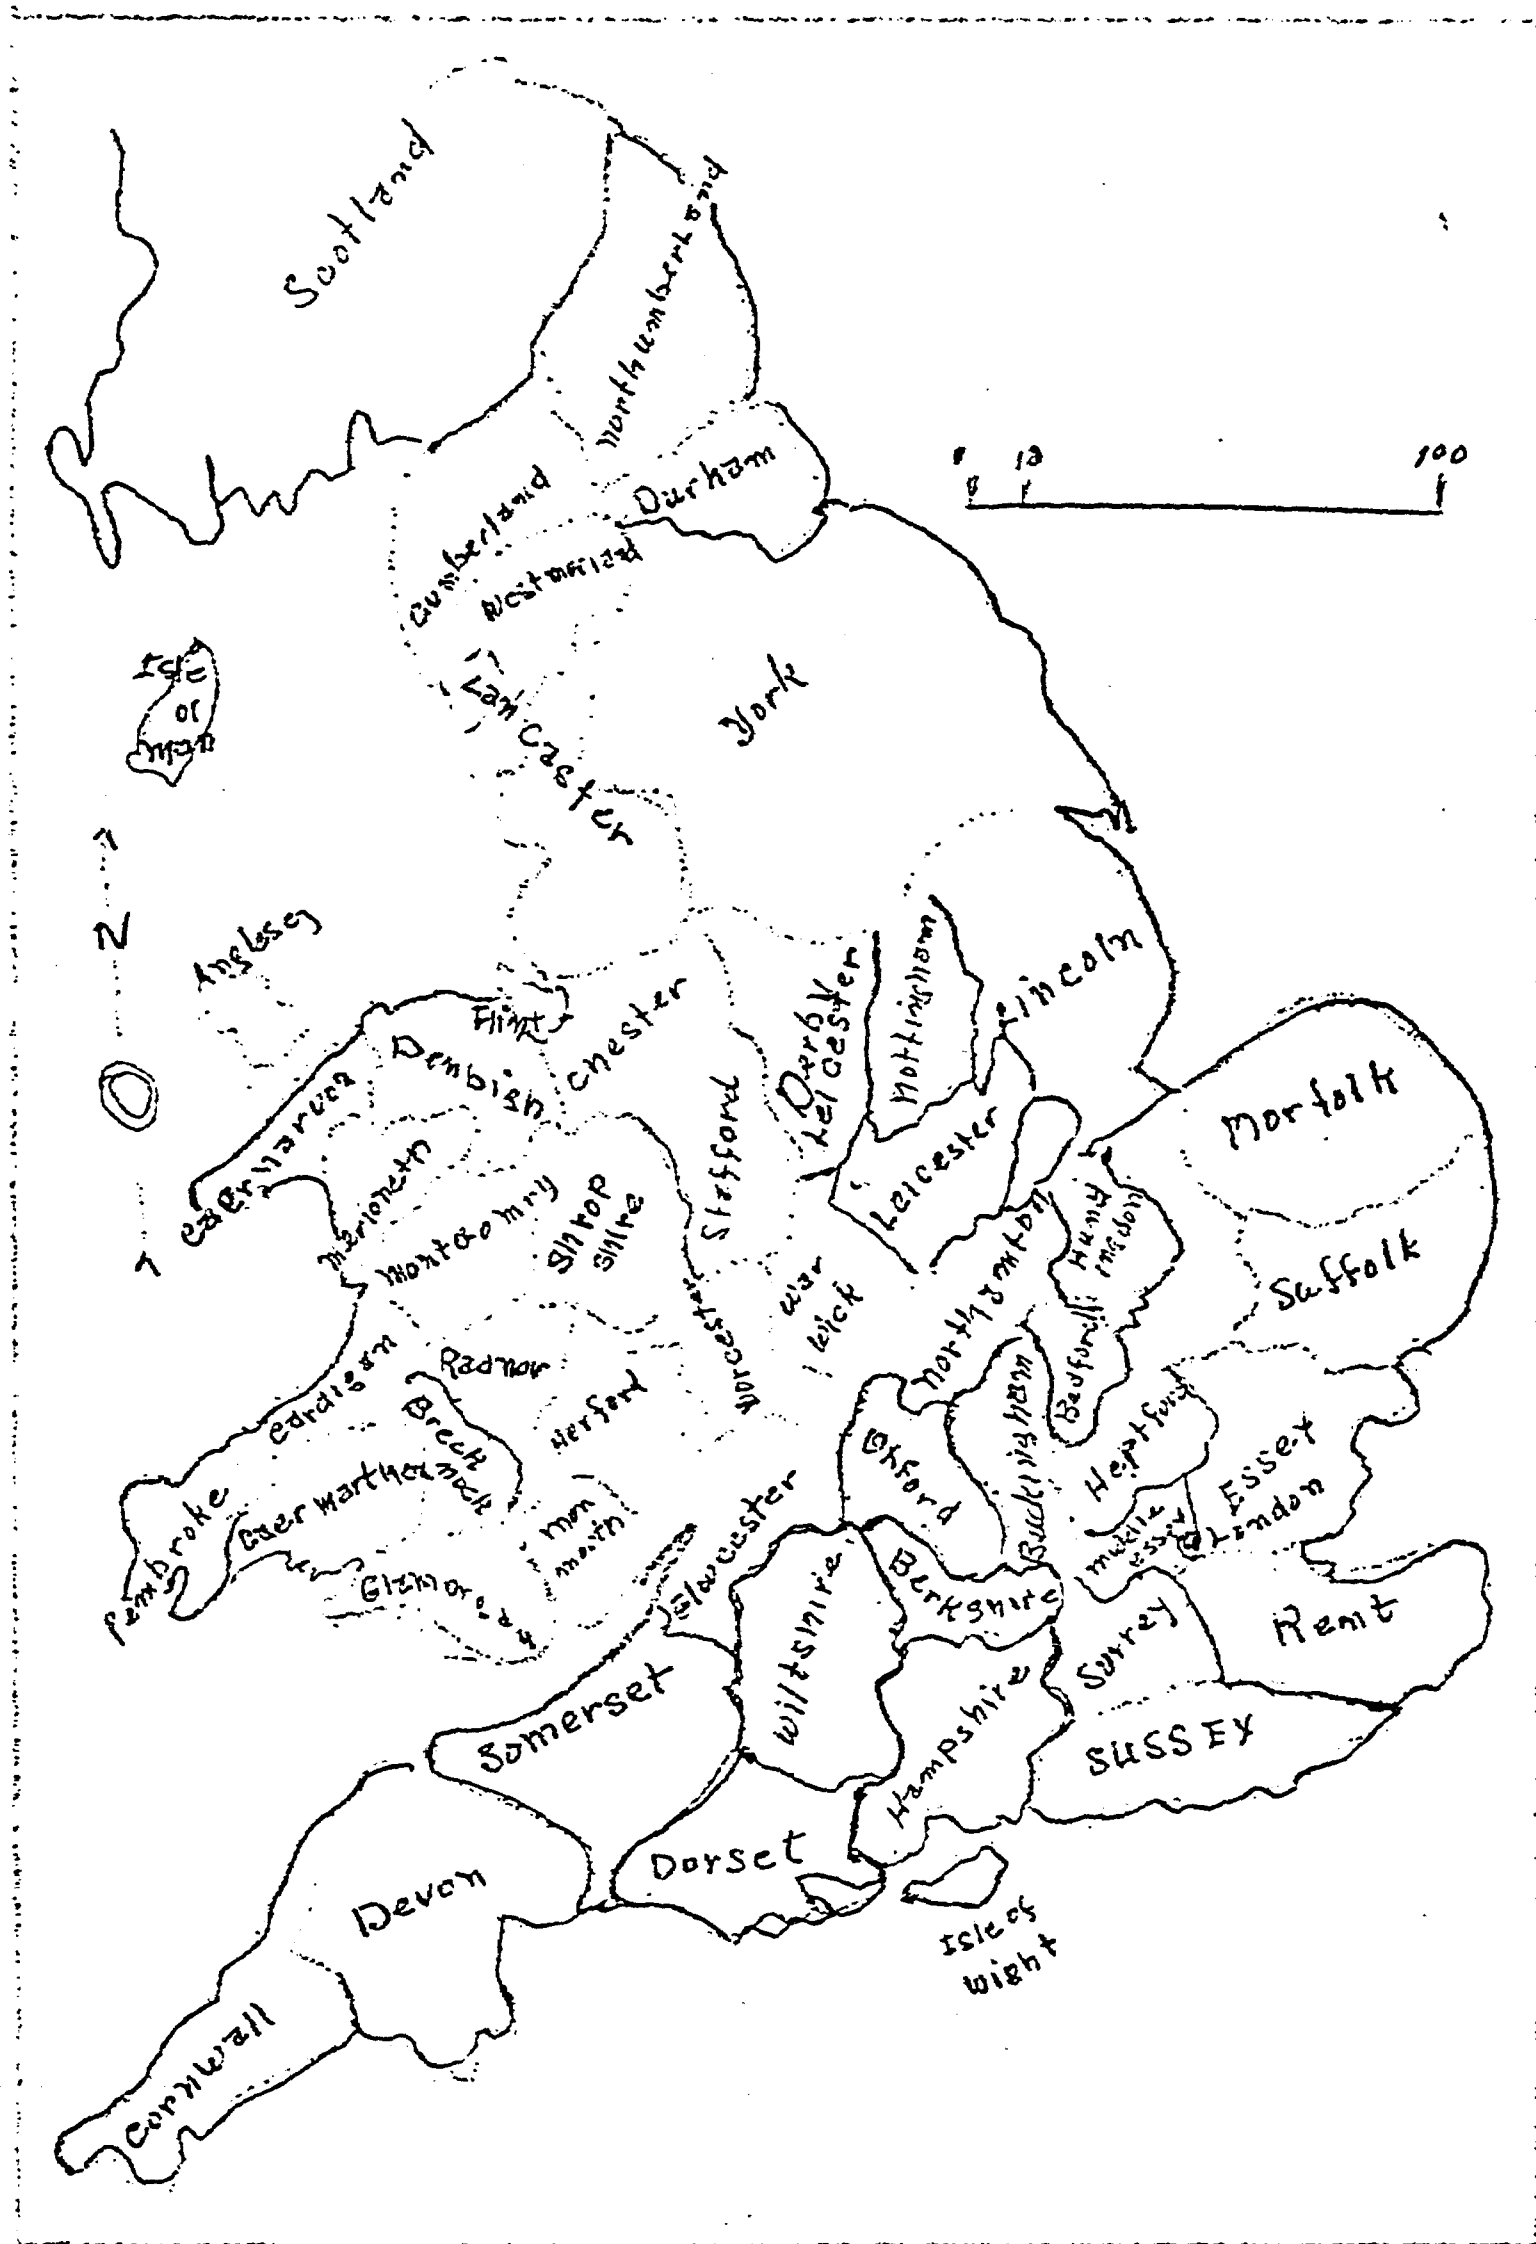

_____ SAMBOURNE was son and heir of

NICHOLAS SAMBORNE was born about 1350. From 1390 to 1404--NICHOLAS SAMBORNE held a part of the manor of Biddestone St. Nicholas, Wilts, the fourth part of a knight's fee. This fee, a part of the manor Castle Combe, was in 1309 bought by Lord Ballestere and descended to his daughter, Margaret, wife of Sir John Tipt of Tiding without male heir. In 1372 the premises were divided among four co-heiresses. The Biddestone lands probably passing to Millicent, wife of Sir John Fastolf with the manor of Castle Combe. Fastolf, the Sir John Falstaffe of Shakespeare, was a renowned Captain in the French Wars and is buried in Castle Combe Church. NICHOLAS SAMBORNE held Biddestone under the Lords of Castle Combe and as you see his father probably did before him. Biddestone is a small village of two parishes.

At the parliament held at Westminster, Jan. 27, 1393-4 NICHOLAS SAMBORNE, JR. with Hugh de Lynde represented Chippenham Bourough. A year later he represented Masmesbury Borough. In 1395 NICHOLAS SAMBORNE, JR. bought land in Whorton, Potterene, Hurst, Merston Fydington and Bishop's Lavinton. These hamlets and villages are a mile or so from Biddestone. In 1401, still called junior he bought lands in Malmesbury, Burton and Thornhill. In 1403 he bought from his nephew, William Sybille, one third of the manor of Lusteshull, Wilts.----quotes a license of 1409 to NICHOLAS SAMBURY (SIC) JR. and KATHERINE his wife, of Fernman and Lustershull, to erect an oratory.

KATHERINE the wife of NICHOLAS SAMBORNE was the youngest and co-heir of SIR JOHN LUSHILL or de LUSTERSHULL. This intermarriage with the Lushills, who were connected with or dependent upon the House of Lancaster was probably the means of advancing the Sambornes into a better position.

The father of NICHOLAS and first in our lineage:

NICHOLAS SAMBORNE

NICHOLAS SAMBORNE, born about 1320. Probably held the fourth part of a knight's fee in Biddestone St. Nicholas, Wilts. With Hugh de la Lynde, NICHOLAS SAMBORNE represented Bath City at the parliament held at Westminster, Nov. 3, 1391. An obit was held annually on Oct. 16, at the Priory of Kington st. Mar, Wilts, for the memory of NICHOLAS SAMBORNE and NICHOLAS, his son, benefactors of the Priory.

A thorough search of the Lay Subsidy Rolls for Wilts reveal 176 Edw. 111 (1327) Trowbrigge. D. Rico, Samborn .xiijd.

186 Edw. 111 (1333) Trowbigge. D. Rico. Saumburn .xiijd. This Richard Samborne (says V. C. Sanborn, author) I take to be the father of NICHOLAS who begins this pedigree.

*Note-Wiltshire, the most ancient mention occurs in the earliest "Eyre-roll" of the Norman Kings in England. On this roll occurs the name of Juliana De Sandeburne, defendant--case heard 1194 before five justices of Wilton--briefly a complaint that Juliana, Lady of the Wiltshire manor of Sandeburne of Samborne had disposed two tenants of hers, who failed to appear to prosecute so that she was allowed to hold in the King's peace. This seems to show the existance of a manor and lord thereof at Sambourne, Wilts in 1194.

Married (2) Judith, before 1657. She married after his death, John Whiting, of Watertown, Mass. At forty three ROBERT owned property at Cosby, Huncote, Ansley, and Witherly and possibly at other parishes. In 1617 he lived at Huncote in the parish of Narbaough, Leistershire, near Croft, Lrre, Sutton and Broughton Sastley. He removed to Ansley between 1620 and 1624. At all of these places he had relatives living." It seemed probable that ROBERT CLEMENTS belonged in the ranks of those forward thinking men whose spirit rebelled at the hampering guidance of the church. Financial gain could not have been his reason for emigrating as he was well established in England. He held property there throughout his life in the colonies. The death of LYDIA in 1642 may have been the final thing that decided him to go. Two months later he sold the lands at Witherly. The children born in England to LYDIA were: JOB, Lydia, John, Abraham, Daniel, Sarah, Robert, Mary.

JOB was the pioneer. He came before 1640. He returned and urged his father to come. His son, JOB, and second son, John, and youngest son Robert and two daughters, Sarah and Lydia came to America. Tradition is that ROBERT CLEMENTS came in his own boat. There is every reason to believe that Tristram Coffin who later became governor of Nantucket came on the same boat. After landing at Salisbury at the mouth of the Merrimac River, CLEMENTS and Tristram Coffin went up the Penntucket where the Rev. John Ward, Hugh Sheratt and others had preceeded them. Haverhill was the name of the town from Haverhill, England, the birthplace of the Rev. John Ward. History of Haverhill, "a man of rare ability and superior talents." In 1645 ROBERT CLEMENTS was made freeman, 1647 made commissioner to end causes in Haverhill, 1647 he served on a committee of trade, served as associate judge, 1649 appointed commissioner to lay out roads, licensed to sell wine in Hampton and Haverhill. When he was magistrate, he married his daughter, Mary, to Capt. John Osgood. Mary the baby left in England when ten. It was said that his wife, LYDIA, was a much revered wife and mother. Every one of her children named a daughter for her. One of LYDIA'S descendants had a bronze tablet set in the wall of the church at Ansley:

In Memory of
LYDIA CLEMENTS
Buried in this church yard 12 March 1642
The wife of ROBERT CLEMENTS who emigrated to
New England 1642
And became one of the founders of Haverhill, Mass.

ROBERT CLEMENTS left a large estate for that time, a grist mill valued at 30L, homestead at 55L, present worth (1927) $20,000. His estate in England is not considered in the inventory. The two sons, Abraham and Daniel, who did not come to America went to Ireland and started their own dynasty. We descend from his eldest son, JOB, and five more generations all JOBS.

JOB CLEMENTS (ROBERT; RICHARD; ROBERT; RICHARD)

b. in England, 1615

d. in Dover, N. H., Sept. 4, 1682 (age 67)

m. in Haverhill, Mass., Dec. 25, 1645

Married MARGARET DUMMER, who belonged to a family of great importance. Her sister, Jane Dummer, married Henry Sewall, mayor of Coventry, England. JOB came over before 1640. He was the pioneer of his family in Ipswich in 1640, from there to Pentucket (Haverhill); the same year with Tyler, Ladd and Merree as one of the twelve original settlers at Haverhill. A few yards north of the old cemetery he built the first house of the town of Haverhill. He, then, returned to England and encouraged his father to emigrate to New England with him. After joining with his father and his brother, John, in the sale of the land at Witherley, Leicestershire, he returned with his sisters, Lydia and Sarah. Nearly all of the early colonists prepared for their life in the new country by learning a trade. JOB CLEMENTS became a tanner and apparently the only one in Haverhill. In 1645 he was mentioned as one of the 32 landowners of Haverhill. In 1657-8 he sold his Haverhill property after having been constable in 1648, freeman in 1647, selectman of Haverhill in 1649. He moved to Dover in 1652 and made a freeman there in 1653. He was judge, commissioner and associate judge in 1667-68-69-70. When the jurisdiction of Mass. was declared invalid in New Hampshire, a commission issued by Charles II--JOB CLEMENTS was made a councillor.

JOB CLEMENTS (JOB; ROBERT; RICHARD; ROBERT; RICHARD)

b. April 17, 1648, Haverhill, Mass.

d. Dover, N. H. between Oct. 8 and Dec. 3, 1716

Married in Dover, Feb. 28, 1688-9 ABIGAIL HEARD, born in Ketterey, Maine. She was the daughter of JAMES and SUAH (CONLEY) HEARD, daughter of ABRAHAM CONLEY: Ref: New England Historic Genealogical Register. ABIGAIL died in Dover after April 23, 1734. JOB CLEMENTS was the only surviving son of the pioneer JOB. He inherited nearly all of his father's property and property from the estate of his grandfather. His holdings were further increased by an additional grant from the town of Dover, 1694. He was probably the richest bachelor in Dover when he married.

In 1678 JOB CLEMENTS served on the jury, 1681 he was a member of the grand jury. He served on the trial of Edmond Gove, 1682-3. In 1692 he was elected representative and along with others refused to take the prescribed oath objecting to its form; ordered that the oaths be administered to those that have so refused by lifting of hands. He was elected representative again 1693. He served on a commission of highways for the Province, 1694.

His children: JOB, 1691; James, 1693; John, 1696; Margaret, 1698; Daniel, 1700. Abigail died in 1706.

JOB CLEMENTS was a large landowner having property in Dover, Rochester, Canterbury, and Madbury. He was made Capt. in the Dover company and served against the Indians and French. JOB's and his sons Samuel and JOB names appear on a list of the Second Foot Company of Dover, 1741. In 1721 he was constable of Dover, in 1743 he was one of the men who obtained the twenty-five thousand pounds from the Province. His portion was twenty-five pounds. On March 26, 1748 the following order was given to him, JOB CLEMENTS, "You are hereby directed and empowered to impress or enlist into his Majesty's service thirty-five effective men of whom you are to take the command; six whereof you are to post at Barrington at Capt. STEPHEN BACHILER

The grandfather of John, WILLIAM and Stephen SANBORN

Concerning the life of STEPHEN BACHILER *few of the early Puritans were more widely known in their day and none had a more checkered career. BACHILER, as is said by a descendant of his, "had a real genius for opposing the majority". As a consequence his character has been much maligned. The truth is, he was a reformer with the strength and weakness of his kind. He was among the first to refuse conformity to the English Church. He came to America in his old age hoping to find here that liberty that was denied him at home. He rebelled at the strong Puritan union of church and state which the Puritan covenant enforced and in consequence found himself opposed to the party in power.

Perhaps the best proof of the striking character of STEPHEN BACHILER is the belief of many of his descendants that their abilities are derived from him. Daniel Webster so believed and also Caleb Cushing, William Pitt Fessenden and William Batchelder Greene.

STEPHEN Bachiler was born 1560. His parentage and birthplace unknown. Southern England was full of Bachilers - Hampshire Surrey Sussex, Kent while the Channel Islands were the home of a Bachiler family of French extraction.. Probably this French family migrated to Southampton and formed an important part of French Protestants Church, was the ancestral line of STEPHEN BACHILER.. His life long connections were with Hampshire.

At twenty, in 1581, he matriculated at the then new College of St. John, Oxford. He took his B.A. in 1586.. His life measured the Puritan Epoch. He was among the first clergy to be ejected and he died with the English Republic.

On July 15, 1587 he was instituted as Vicar of Wherwell, Hants. Presented to that living by Wm. Lord de la Warr, the ancestor of the nobleman from whom Delaware derived its name. In 1605 BACHILER was deprived of his living, probably by commission appointed by James I of which commission Lord de la Warra son of the nobleman who presented BACHILER was a member. From 1605 to 1622 we have no record, perhaps as was said he was in Holland. In 1622 we find him established in Newton Stacey, $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles from Wherwell. He bought land and preached the Puritan doctrine. He visited his son and widowed daughter, ANN SAMBORNE living in ye Strand of Holland. In this period is that grant of arms to STEPHEN BACHILER as first Pastor of Church of Lygonia in New England, the plow to signify his ploughing the fallow ground of their hearts, and the sun in allusion to his motto 'Sol Justitiae Exoritur'. In 1630 "The Plough Company of Husbandmen" was formed and obtained a patent to land near the mouth of Sagadahoc River, Maine. They chose BACHILER as their Pastor and he adventured a considerable sum in the enterprise, selling his Hampshire property. Through fraud, after Bachiler made preparations to come to New England, the company failed.

All of his children of whom we have record were by his first wife. He married a second time in England. His second wife, Helen, accompanied him to New England and she died in 1642.

On March 9, 1632, Bachiler sailed to New England in the William and Francis, landing at Boston on June 3, 1632. We presume that he brought his four grandsons, Nathaniel Bachiler and John, WILLIAM and Stephen Samborne. He accepted a call to the church in Saugus (Lynn) Mass. where his son-in-law, Christopher Hussey, resided. Soon afterwards he came in conflict with the authorities, ordered by general court to forbear his gifts as a pastor or teacher until some scandals were removed. The scandals were utterances of his against the authorities. On Feb. 1636 BACHILER Moved to Ipswich.

Early in the winter of 1638 BACHILER tried to form a settlement near Yarmouth on Cape Cod, where his Wing grandchildren afterwards lived. He walked there from Ipswich. Winthrop wrote "he and his companions being poor men gave it over and others took it over". Few men seventy-nine years of age would undertake to start a new settlement in the wilderness. BACHILER'S fellow petitioners and settlers were mostly from the counties of Hampshire and Wiltshire, among them were two of his old parishers in England but there were also some from Norfolk and Suffolk. On June 7, 1639 Winnicunnet was made a town. He gave a bell for their church and bound up his fortunes with the new settlement. A Suffolk clergyman, Dalton, arrived; a long period of strife followed; a slander thought to have been manufactured that BACHILER solicited the chastity of a member of his church. No charge was ever brought. BACHILER'S letter to Winthrop he charges Dalton with "having done all and been the cause of all the dishonor that hath accrewed to God, shame to myself and grief to all God's people by his irregular proceeding and abuse of the power of the church in his land; the main part cleaving to him being his countrymen and acquaintances in England."

In the fall of 1639 Winnicunnet was renamed at BACHILER'S request. It was named Hampton in honor of the city of Southampton, England. It was the third settlement of New Hampshire. He received a grant of 300 acres from the town.

Winthrop's account of the scandal censured Dalton. In 1643 the magistrates to whom the case was referred annulled the excommunication but did not restore BACHILER to his pastoral office. To show the general belief in BACHILER'S innocence, Casco on the north and Exeter on the West called him to be their minister. BACHILER set their calls before the magistrates and asked for a full hearing in the case against Dalton. The magistrates, in reply, advised him to leave town. He went to Exeter and the Massachusetts authorities would not allow them to gather a church. Hampton had paid him no salary, his wife died, his house and library of value of 200L were burned. Disheartened he sold his land in Hampton and moved to Portsmouth. He hired a good neighbor as housekeeper and in 1648, at age of 88, married her. The match proved most disastrous. In 1650 she was convicted of adultery. BACHILER sued for divorce, the court ordered them to live together. If either would desert, the marshall would apprehend both and bring them to Boston. The order was made to make impossible BACHILER'S remaining in Mass. Colony and the attempt was successful. About 1654 accompanied by his grandchild and godson, Stephen Samborne, BACHILER left the New World from which he had hoped so much. His children and grandchildren were well established under Cromwell. He spent his last days in peace. He died in 1660 in the 100th year of his age.

From Genealogy of Samborne or
Sanborn by V. C. Sanborn, 1899

Descended from the Reverend Stephen Bachiler

Caleb Cushing: 1800-1879, American statesman, lawyer. He was born in Salisbury, Mass., graduated at Harvard, tutor in mathematics; Democratic-Republican in state House of Representatives 1825; state senate 1826, in house again in 1828; House of Rep. 1833-1834. Elected by Whigs as representative, 1835-1843. In 1843 President Tyler nominated him as Sec. of Treasury but not confirmed; 1843 commissioner to China where he negotiated first treaty with China in 1844.

He raised funds and equipped a regiment and served as Colonel and later as Brigadier General of Volunteers in the Mexican War. He was associate justice of the Mass. Supreme Court 1852 and served in the administration of President Pierce (1853-1857) as United States Attorney General. In 1860 he presided over the Democratic National Convention. When the split came in the party, he presided over seceders who nominated Breckenridge. He supported the union and served in minor positions. In 1874-1877 he was the U. S. Minister to Spain. He died in Newburyport, Mass. 1879.

William Pitt Fessenden, 1806-1869, American statesman and financier, born Boscawen, N. H., graduated from Bowdoin College in 1823, studied law, settled in Portland, Me., associated with his father, Samuel Fessenden, 1784-1869.

He was representative in Maine legislature in 1854, chosen by the combined votes of Whigs and anti-slavery Democrats to U. S. Senate where he made a speech in opposition to slavery to the Kansas Nebraska bill. He was reelected as a republican, as chairman of committee on finance. His service was only second to President Lincoln and Sec. Solmen P. Chase in efforts to provide funds for the defense of the Union. In 1864 Fessenden succeeded Chase as Secretary of the Treasury--finances in critical condition--value of paper dollar was as low as 34¢. Fessenden's policy was to avoid further increase.. In spite of pressure paper currency was not increased during tenure of his office. 1865 was the first time in 4 years that Treasury was able to meet obligations. He was returned to senate; he opposed impeachment of President Johnson and voted for his acquittal. He died in Portland, Maine, in 1869.

Daniel Webster, 1782-1852, American statesman, born in Salisbury, New Hampshire on Jan. 18, 1782. "His mind seized the essence of things." These intellectual gifts were so manifest that his father sent him, at great sacrifice, to Phillips Academy, Exeter, then Dartmouth, and he was admitted to the bar in 1805. "His clear, massive, gorgeous, overwhelming eloquence carried juries with him as well as parliaments". He was a notable presence.

He served in the House of Representatives from 1813-1815. He delivered the bi-centennial speech at Plymouth. In general eloquence he never reached a greater height. Compared with Demosthenes and Burke. Delivered address on anniversary of the Battle of Bunker Hill in 1825. He gave eulogy on John Adam's and Thomas Jefferson. This speech contains famous words attributed to John Adam's, 'sink or swim, live or die'.

Anthony Jones, Lord Snowden.

1 In a recent clipping from The Chicago Tribune there was a picture and article on Lord Snowden. "He sits at lunch beneath an overgrown tree in a friendly restaurant. He's been up since six, working, and he's wearing old working denims- he almost always wears jeans. At his feet a fishing bag bursts with proof of forthcoming photographs, papers and even a tape recorder which he always carries on the job.....This totally professional attitude is strange in a country where people are content to get by on a family and privilege. Coming from some one married to Princess Margaret and in a position to allow privilege to work.....Snowden works hard and never allows himself to slip into complacency".

Lord Snowden is quoted, "I work for pleasure. I'm very proud of my background- straight professional people who were very creative". He goes on to say his great great grandfather, Linley Sambourne who was a political cartoonist for Punch during the last quarter of 19th century. Another, an uncle, Oliver Messel was a theatre designer and helped him in the 1950s. Another uncle was an architect in Darmstadt- "but I'm a failed architect" Snowden admits.

In V.C.Sanborn's Genealogy of the Samborne or Sambourne Family (1194-1898) on page 47 in what he calls as scattered links, I found a picture of Linley Sambourne, Esq. of London. He was educated at City of London school and Chester Colleges...intended for engineering professionbegan to draw for Punch 1867...now cartoonist with Sir John Tenniel well known as draughts man and designer".

Gibbons wrote of ancestors,
"The Authors of our Existence".

I can hear ANN(SMITH) CASE say to this comment, Authors of our existence perhaps but not the masters of our destiny.

In my imagination I can hear her son RILEY C.
CASE counter, I have bred live stock too many years to not respect some authority in our inheritance.

Grandmother", You have to do your own growing no matter how tall your grandfather was".

In hopes of reconciling the two view points as length and breadth granddaughter puts in a third dimension, "There are only two lasting I bequeaths that we can hope to give our children" (some one said) "the one is roots and the other wings".

C U R T A I N

Applause for the grandparents, SMITH,

Encore for the present generation, and Echoes will vibrate into the future.

FAMILY RECORD

Not only the planting and harvesting but their place in the sun.

All the flowers of tomorrow are in the seeds of today.
