SISSON IN EUROPE

The Sisson lineage in Europe goes back to the beginning of the Middle Ages. Etymologically, various quite diverse explanations are given for the derivation of the name. As a surname, Susa Young Gates avers that it was derived from the ancient village of Siston or Syston, in Leicestershire, County Gloucester, England, but another authority, William R. Cutter, more logically states that the village itself probably derived its name from resident Sissons, one of whose original strongholds it was.

(Ref: Surname Book & Racial History, ed.by Susa Young Gates pub.by Church of Latter Day Saints, Salt Lake City, Utah, 1918; Genealogical & Family History of Northern N.Y. by Wm.R. Cutter, Vol.III, pub. Lewis Historical Pub.Co. N.Y. V., 1910).

Although the erudite Dr. S. Baring-Gould doubts it (Ref: Names & Their Story, by S. Baring-Gould, pub. Seeley & Co., London, 1910), the scholarly Canon Chas. Wareing Bardsley in his monumental Dictionary of English & Welsh Surnames (pub. Henry Frowde, Oxford University Press, London, 1901) and again in his English Surnames & Their Significations (pub. Chatto & Windus, Ltd., London, 1898), proffers the most likely explanation. He asserts that the Sisson surname is one of a lengthy list of medieval metronymics derived from the name or popular nickname of the parent and meaning "child of". The Sisson surname, he claims--demonstrating with numerous examples-- signifies "son of Cicely, or Cecilia", the prevalent English nickname for which up to the 16th Century was "Cise or "Sess", corresponding to our modern nickname "Cissy" for the same feminine baptismal name. In further support of this, Canon Bardsley calls attention to the fact that early Norman-English MSS. name the son of William the Conqueror's daughter Cicillon (Cecilia) -- 1027-1087 -- Johannes Sisson, i.e., John, the son of Cecilia. Sisson, Sison, Sissons, Sessions (modern surnames) all represent the identical family, he claims.

Other genealogists, among them Burke, the English heraldic authority, suggest the more immediately obvious (though more conjectural) theory that the Sisson surname is identified with original residence in or adherence to the city and medieval feudal county of Soissans or Soissons in France, which was celebrated as early as the time of the first Frankish kings. In his General Armory of England, Scotland and Wales, Sir Bernard Burke asserts that the family, "variously spelled Sisson, Sissons, Sysum, Sison, Session and Sessions...came originally from Normandy in northern France; settled at an early period in Ireland, and afterwards at Penrith, in Wales". Burke's statement of the Norman-French origin of the Sisson kindred is probably correct. One of the Norman knights who followed William the Conqueror on his invasion of Saxon England in 1066 had the surname Seizin. If Burke's theory of the surname's origin is valid, this adventurer possibly was the progenitor of the Welsh & English bearers of the names Sisson, Sissons, Session and Sessions.

We find the Sisson kindred populous in England and Wales as early as the 13th Century, particularly throughout south-central England. In the Poll Tax Returns for Howdenshire, and Yorkshire, for the year 1379, we find the names Robertus Cission (p.19), William Cisson (p.269), Joannes Sisson (p.21), Henricus Sisson (p.226), Thomas Cyson (p.269). Among the MSS. Wills and Inventories of York Minster (14th Century) the name of Henry Sysson occurs in one place, and Henry Session in another.

(Ref: Fabrick Rolls of York Minster, pub.by the Surtees Society, London 1904; English Surnames & Their Significations by Chas. Wareing Bardsley pub. Chatto & Windus, London, 1898).

A lengthy series of Sisson births, marriages, baptisms and deaths appear in the parish church registers of Gamford, Kirk Ella and Howden, County Durham, during the mid-18th Century. (Ref: Durham Register, 6; Yorkshire Register, ibid, 3, 31; Ref. to English Surnames in 1601, ed. by F.K. & S. Hitching, pub. Chas. A. Bernau, Ltd., Walton-on-Thames, England, 1910).

The will of Jacob Carr, of Cambridge, dated Apr. 17, 1593 names six persons owing money to him, one of them being "George Sisins", who was his debtor to the extent of 13 s, 4 d.

"Henry Sysson" and four others were named as executors of the will of William Carey, of Barwicke, under date of Mar. 25, 1593.

(Ref: Wills & Inventories of the Northern Counties (Durham Registry), pub. London, 1858, Vol. II).

The Westminster Registry, section on marriage licenses, contains the following entries:

"1677 -- Dec. 19th, James Sisson, of Spilsbury, Co. Lincoln Graziour, Bachl. abt. 26, & Lettice Story, of same Sp. abt. 25 and at own dispose; at Kale Co. Lincoln."

"1678 -- Thomas Sisson of St. Martin's Ludgate, London, Druggist, Bach. at 25, & Mrs. Sarah Delves, Spr. about 21; with consent of her father, Nicholas Delves, of Camberwell Co. Surrey, at St. Thomas's Southwark Co. Surrey."

(Ref: Allegations for Marriage Licenses Issued by the Dean and Chapter of Westminster, 1558-1699; & also by the Vicar-General of the Archbishop of Canterbury, 1660-1679, ed. by Joseph L. Chester & George J. Armytage, pub. by Harleian Society, London 1886, Vol. XXIII.)

In the Register Book of Marcy, Northants Co. under Marriages appear: "1578, Dec. 27, Robert Sison & Juliana Smith." And under Baptisms appear: "1577 -- Sept. 29, John S. of Robert Sison... 1579, Dec. 20, Jane d. of Robt. Sison... 1582, Mar. 25, Elizabeth d. of Robert Sison."

The variations in the spelling of the Sisson surname are quite typical of most other medieval petronymics. Linguistic difficulties in the pronunciation of personal proper names was natural when, as in the case of Sisson--, the name was translated from its original French into Welsh and English. Moreover, mediævally, sharply differentiated dialects were common throughout portions of even the same countries, as, indeed they still are in England. Hence in the 14th Century, when the English language first was becoming nationally standardized in orthography, wide varieties of spelling identical names resulted from differences in the vernacular speech of different parts of the country. Authors of the period determined their spelling more or less phonetically and even Chaucer spelled simple words in as many as three or four different ways, i, ie and y interchangeably. Therefore it is to be expected that the surname Sisson should appear in garbled forms, each determined by the dialect popularly prevalent in the particular locality where a branch of the Sisson kindred had settled.

Still another etymology of the Sisson name is given by the well-known genealogist, John Osborne Austin, in his 150 Allied Families of Rhode Island. "The significance of the name Sisson," he says, "May be traced through the fact that it is a corruption of Siston (name of the English village before mentioned), which in turn is a corruption of Seton, or Sea-Town."

Two different coats-of-arms are currently used by the Sissons of England. That which Burke's General Armory authoritatively names as strictly English, is heraldically described as:

Escutcheon: Or, three bends gules.
Crest: A stag, trippant, proper.
Motto: ~~(None mentioned)~~

The second coat-of-arms, identified by Burke as belonging exclusively to descendants of the Penrith, Wales, branch of the kindred, is described as:

Escutcheon: Per fess, embattled or and azure, three girffins heads erased, or.
Crest: A griffin's head erased, or, above a wreath of the colors.
Motto: Si monent tuboe paratus (Prepared when the trumpets warn).

Burke notes, extraordinarily, that a secondary motto also sometimes is used over the Crest, -- "Hope for the best"-- in addition to the conventional Latin motto on the ribbon beneath the escutcheon.

(Ref: General Armory of England, Scotland, Ireland and Wales, by Sir Bernard Burke, pub. London, 1884).

Fairbairn identifies the Fenrith, Wales, coat-of-arms as that of the Sissons family alone.

(Ref: Fairbairn's Crests of Great Britain & Ireland, ed. by Joseph Maclaren, pub. Thos. C. Jack, Ltd. Edinburgh & London, 1860. 2 Vols.)

It is not definitely known which of the two coat-of-arms was that of Richard Sisson (1), progenitor of the kindred in New England, although many modern descendants use the Penrith-Wales arms in America rather than the more exclusively English one. The Compendium of American Genealogy, Vol. VI, published in 1937 (ed. by Frederick A. Virkus, pub. Institute of American Genealogy, Chicago,) states positively that Richard Sisson (1) "came to America from Wales" which would make use of the Welsh arms correct by any American of his lineage.

It likewise is unknown which of the two coats-of-arms was borne by the earliest Virginia progenitors of the kindred, Thomas, 1623; George, 1634; James, 1635; or Capt. John, circa. 1650 (possibly a son of the foregoing John), all of whom antedate Richard Sisson (1), or Dartmouth, Mass., 1653.

It is interesting to note that branches of the Sisson family still remain settled in France, the original home of the kindred. Among the more prominent modern French members of the kinship may be mentioned François Thiebault Sisson, prominent parisian journalist and art critic, born in 1856. He was the author of, among other works, a celebrated critique on Claude Monet, published in Le Temps, Paris, 1900.

Distinguished English bearers of the name include:

Charles Jasper Sisson, born in 1885, author, lecturer, member of the British Academy (London), and eminent research authority on the early Elizabethan drama and dramatists. His published books include, Grafton and the London Grey Friars, (London, 1928); Keep the Widow Waking, a lost play by Dekker; Lost Plays of Shakespeare's Age (Cambridge, Eng., 1936); Marks as Signatures (London, 1929); The Mythical Sorrows of Shakespeare (London, 1934); Thomas Lodge & Other Elizabethans (Cambridge, U.S.A. 1933); The Plays of Phillip Massinger (London, 1928, etc.

In Canada, Charles Bruce Sisson, born in 1879, is the author of The Life of Egerton Ryerson (Toronto, Ont. 1937).

II

REASONS FOR SISSON EMIGRATION TO AMERICA

No written documents exist stating the specific reasons for emigration of the several Sisson kinsmen who first sought new homes for themselves in the New World. Inferentially, however, two explanations seem to be quite plain.

(a) Richard Sisson, Dartmouth, Mass. 1653,
Progenitor of the New England Lineages.

His advent in the Quaker community of Dartmouth and his shortly subsequent removal to Portsmouth, R.I., occurred only seven years prior to the restoration of the Stuarts to the English throne, while Oliver Cromwell and his grimly severe reformists were imposing their religious and social ideas upon England. All the earlier generations of the New England Sissons were members of the Society of Friends, and Puritan rule in the English homeland was even more intolerant toward Quakers than that of either the Catholic or Episcopalian "High" Church had previously been. Quaker persecutions were being actively prosecuted. Considering the date of Richard Sisson's (1) emigration from England, together with the fact that he himself then was past middle age and brought his wife and two sons with him to the new world, it seems indicated that he left because of dissatisfaction with English religious and social conditions rather than because he was moved by a spirit of adventure or sought to make a quick fortune in America. It is significant that he gave the already safe and populous centers of Puritan settlement in the Bay Colony a wide berth by establishing himself on its very frontier, as far away from Quaker-hating, intolerant Boston and Salem as possible. Very shortly afterwards he removed to Portsmouth, still a new frontier settlement which Roger Williams -- a Welshman like Richard Sisson himself -- had founded as a semi-sanctuary for colonists being religiously persecuted by the Puritan authorities of Boston. Possibly, even before time of Richard Sisson's sailing overseas, Roger Williams' colonial experiment in genuine non-sectarianism had won popular approbation in Wales and focused Richard Sisson's mind particularly upon Rhode Island as a preferable place of residence for himself and his family. Large numbers of Quakers were attracted to the Rhode Island and Providence Plantations, and there Richard Sisson (1) and his descendants thrived as humble but thrifty, simple and devout Quaker farmers. Notwithstanding their pacific Quaker faith, it is remarkable that so many of them enlisted for service with the continental army in the Revolutionary War. "They bore the Sisson name with honor and courage," says Wm. B. Cutter in his Genealogical & Family History of Northern New York (Vol. III, pub. Lewis Historical Pub. Co. N.Y. City 1910), "... and more than a few of the kindred have distinguished themselves in cultural, commercial and governmental lines throughout the history of the United States."

(b) ... The Virginia Progenitors and their lineages.

The very converse of the foregoing reasons seem to explain the emigration of the earliest Virginia Sissons. Why a man like Thomas Sisson, the London haberdasher, came to Virginia in 1623 is puzzling. We know nothing further of him, nor of any descent from him in the New World. Similar obscurity shrouds the motivation and fates of George "Session" 1634, who was already a middle-aged man, and John "Sessions", ... the latter a young man, whom the prospect of adventure might have allured to Barbados, which at that particular time (1635) was being tremendously propagandized throughout England by its Lords Proprietors as a literal heaven-on-earth for colonists. The aforesaid George and John are described in their respective ship's passenger lists as "persons of quality", which certainly a mere shopkeeper like the earlier Thomas could not have been. George and John emigrated as part of the very greatest exodus that England ever has known, a movement of such serious proportions that both King Charles I and Archbishop Laud did all in their power to restrain it with special legislation. This wholesale migration was fundamentally, but not altogether Puritan in religious complexion. During the year 1635 (exactly when George and John themselves came overseas) no fewer than 3,000 Englishmen emigrated to Massachusetts Bay Colony alone. That number included many men of social distinction and younger sons of Cavalier families, attracted to America by the glowing representations of its promise by the Lord Proprietors of the colonies.

This type of colonists particularly characterized Virginia and the other southern proprietaries. Most settlers there belonged to one of two widely-different social classes,-- either they were indentured "servants" of yeoman, or humble middle-class English origin, or they were distinctly gentlemen, who brought their fine manners, their Cavalier arrogance and Crown sympathies, and their adherence to the "high" State Church of England (Episcopalian) with them. They were, as a whole, loyal Stuart supporters; many of them men of considerable wealth and position in the Old World; --almost the antithesis of the typical nonconformist New England immigrant. This fact may indicate distantly-removed relationship between Richard Sisson (1), the Rhode Island Quaker, and his Virginia contemporary, Capt. John Sisson, (1), of the Tidewater Virginia and Ann Arundel County, Md. Only a person of "gentle" blood in those days was eligible to hold a commission in the royal army, as Capt. John (1) of Virginia did. Social lines were inflexibly drawn; hence it is noteworthy that Capt. John was the boon companion and esteemed visitor at the homes of the leading Virginians of his time, including the Royal Governor and members of the House of Burgesses. He founded the aristocratic Sisson lineage in "the Old Dominion." Whatever his reasons for leaving England may have been, certainly they were not antagonism toward either the State church or Stuart rule.

III

SISSON LINEAGES OF VIRGINIA

The Sisson kindred in America owe their origin to two widely separated pioneer lineages, dating from three (and possibly four) immigrant progenitors. All were indubitably of the same English or Welsh-English family group, possibly distant cousins, but it appears that they never met in the New World and that, even subsequently, the two major lineages never became intermingled.

The Sissons first made their American appearance in Virginia, emigrating probably via Wales, from southern England-- from London and the vicinity of Bristol. Four Virginia progenitors preceded the advent of the contemporaneous New England lineage at Dartmouth, Mass., in 1653.

The first bearer of the Sisson surname to sail from England for Virginia was--quoting the record verbatim--

"SISSON, THOS;" of London Towne, haberdasher."

He is of documentary record as resident in the Tidewater region of Virginia in 1623, among the very earliest settlers there. Nothing more than that is known of him, but it intrigues the imagination to fancy what may have prompted a man of his occupation to emigrate to the savage wilderness of the New World at that early date.

(Ref: Some Emigrants to Virginia, compiled from the records, by W.G. Standard, pub. by Bell Book & Stationery Co., Richmond, Va., 1911; also Virginia Magazine of History & Biography, p. 132).

From the earliest period of Virginia settlement it had been the law that all newcomers should register their names, birthplaces, occupations, and take the Oath of Allegiance. The law required that the commander of the fort at Point Comfort should go aboard all ships as soon as they arrived "and there require the commander, captayne or mayster, of the ship or shippesk to deliver up to him a True list of all such persons which were embarqued in theire ship, at their coming out of England, together with theire ages, cuntryes and townes where they were borne, and to keep record of the same; and be the sayd commander of the fort to administer unto them the Oathes of supremacy and Allegiance." (Ref: Henning's Statutes of Virginia Vol. I p.166).

Our only second reference to THOMAS SISSON(1) appears in the Minutes of the Council and General Court, 1622-1624, the original of which now is preserved in the Library of Congress at Washington, D.C. It reads:

"COURT held (torn) ... 1624

"L. Pott-- The oathes of Supremacy & Alleg.

"To these whose names are underwritten...

whereafter the list includes:

"THOS. SISSON of London, haberdasher."

All immigrants on this list (one of the two earliest extant for Virginia) arrived before Feb. 1622, because many of their names likewise appear in the Colonial census taken then.

(Ref: Virginia Magazine of Hist. & Biography, pub. by the Virginia Historical Society, Richmond, Va. 1911, Vol. XXIX)

The strict likelihood of this Thomas Sisson being the original progenitor of a Virginia lineage of unbroken descent will receive consideration shortly hereafter, in this Chapter.

- - - -

Two other relatives who set out upon the great New World adventure 19 years before the advent of the New England Sisson pioneers, are recorded in an Old English MSS. known as 9-10 Car. I,-- A Register of All Travellers to America Who Passed from Ye Part of London in the Yeares 1634-1635. This is a portion of a still larger collection entitled Original Lists of Persouns of Quality that Went as Emigrants to America, 1600-1700. In that old MSS. we read:

"LICENSES TO GO BEYOND YE SEAS:
Post festum Natalis Christi 1634, usqr.
ad festum Nat. Christi 1635.

"Secundo Januarii, 1634.

"Theis under written are to be transported to Virginea imbarqued in ye Mercht. Bonaventure, JAMES RICCOSTE, Mr., bound thither, have taken the oath of allegiance."

Then follows a list of 174 passengers, names and ages, of which one is:

"GEO. SISSON 40 years."

At another place in the official MSS. appears:

"3 Aprill, 1635, at Gravesend.

"In ye Peter Bonaventure, THOMAS HARMAN, Mr., bound for the Barbadoes, theis under written names p. order; they have taken ye Oath of supremacie and alleageance."

Then follows a list of the names and ages of 100 passengers, of which one was:

"JO. SESSIONS 22 Yeares."

The last-mentioned baptismal name given as "Jo." undoubtedly is intended as an abbreviation of John, since the commonest 17th Century abbreviation for Joseph was "Jos."

What ultimately became of either of these two Sissons, or "Sessions", is unknown. No George Session or Sisson appears in the official list of Early Virginia Immigrants, 1623-1666, nor in the surviving early colonial records of Barbados, in the West Indies. They both may have died on the voyage overseas, or, on the other hand, may actually have entered Virginia, as did representatives of many other families whose names somehow are lacking in extant records.

(Ref: Original Lists of Persons of Quality, Emigrating to America, 1600-1700 ed. by John Camden Hotten, Vol. II pub. by J.W. Bouton, N.Y. City, 1880; Early Virginia Immigrants, 1623-1666, ed. by Geo. Cabell Greer, Clerk of the Va. State Land Office, pub. by W.C. Hill Printing Co., Richmond, Va. 1912).

JUDITH SISSON is of documentary record as settled in Warwick Co. Va. in 1645. Although nothing more definite is known of her immediate family, the date may imply that she was either the widow or daughter of the aforesaid George Sisson, who sailed for Virginia as a middle aged man eleven years previously.

owing to carelessness and the general illiteracy of record clerks, in early colonial days, it is likely that certain of the early "Sessions" in due times became "Sissons". Such dialectic differences in pronunciation account for the medieval differentiation of the originally kindred family groups in England, and probably functioned in the same way in colonial America. In this consideration it is perhaps significant that the decidedly limited but continued existence of a Sessions lineage in Virginia and the Carolinas from the early colonial period onward shows complete lack of relationship with the quite definitely unified SESSIONS kindred of New England, whose lineal progenitor was Alexander Sessions, who settled at Andover, Mass. about 1669. Most Virginians of the "Sessions" form of the surname customarily spelled their name without the final s, which almost invariably characterized the New England form of the surname.

Of this southern Session lineage were THOMAS and JOHN SESSIONS, resident in 1771 in the Carolinas. They were either brothers or first cousins. Thomas Sessions married a Miss Winget at Wilmington, S.C., and by her became the father of eight children,-- John, Solomon, Thomas, Zey, Joseph, Hannah, Nancy and Sally.

JOHN SESSIONS was a mariner by profession, -- a reckless fellow, reputed at one time to have been a member of the notorious crew of the pirate Black Beard, who terrorized shipping throughout the Caribbean and the Atlantic seaboard during the first half of the 18th Century. He married and had, among other offspring, a son, RICHARD SESSIONS, who resided in Sampson Co. N. C.

RICHARD SESSIONS, son of John and the quondam pirate, married Esther Boone, who bore him, among other children, a son, WILLIAM, who himself subsequently removed residence to Texas. This Richard Sessions is undoubtedly the same individual as the one variously registered as Richard "Session" and "Sisson" on the Virginia militia muster rolls, as having served with the Continental army and received a land bounty warrant in 1781 at close of the war.

ISAAC SISSIONE, reported in the 1st Census of the U. S., 1790, as resident in the town of Fayetteville, in the Fayetteville District of North Carolina, was probably the brother of the aforesaid Richard and another son of John the pirate. Nothing is known of his antecedents save that in 1789 he was unmarried and lived alone in a house of his own.

The public records of Virginia are woefully incomplete as concern the entire period of its colonial history and the first 60 years after its organization as a State of the Union. This incompleteness applies both to governmental records of the region as a whole and to official documents, military muster rolls, and vital statistics of the component counties, townships and towns themselves. Even the registries of the parish churches either were haphazardly kept, altogether neglected, or have disappeared. Many of the originally extant records of both the colony and the counties were either destroyed or lost during periods of national war or periodic popular insurrections. Frequently the sectional censuses taken by various colonial governors from 1622 and even earlier were deliberately destroyed by insurgent settlers in order to hamper and confuse endeavors to tax them tyrannously. Many records were destroyed when Jamestown was deliberately burned by the revolted people during Bacon's Rebellion. It does not appear that there ever was any attempt made to compile and systematically maintain military rosters of the county Militia; and, even in most cases where counties did trouble to compile Muster Rolls in periods of temporary emergency, these rarely were turned over to the general authorities of the colony or the State for preservation in the official archives.

There is a tremendous contrast between the meticulous particularity and extreme detail with which the middle class systematic New England settlers took care to make written (and still existant) records of their every public and private transactions, and the apparently careless irregularity with which every-day matters were documented for future reference by the more affluent, socially-superior Cavaliers, gentlemen adventurers, subsequently enfranchized bondmen, French Huguenot, Scotch and German colonists of Virginia, particularly until well after the close of the Revolutionary War. The typical Virginian apparently did not see the importance of bothering with petty record-keeping as did the New Englanders invariably keep. Many records, of course, were inadvertantly destroyed during the Revolutionary War and the Civil War. Many important records of the southern states as a whole were lost during the War of 1812, as instance the loss of so large a portion of the original and only copies of the 1st U.S. Census of 1790 when the British burned the capitol at Washington in 1814. Indefatigable efforts on the part of State archivists, historians, antiquarians and both amateur and professional genealogists have been unable to resurrect more than a comparatively few fragments of all the missing records of Virginia, the Carolinas, Georgia, Tennessee and Kentucky.

Genealogical research has been further handicapped, especially as concerns vital statistics, by the rapidity of confusing obliteration, mergers and complicated subdivisions of most of the Virginia counties from the earliest colonial period forward,-- a factor not operative anywhere in New England. Charles River County, one of the earliest for instance, had its name changed in 1642 to York County; Old Rappahannock Co. (not to be confused with the later and differently located Rappahannock County) was formed from a portion of Lancaster Co. in 1656, and ceased to be a county name altogether in 1692, when the counties of Richmond and Essex were formed out of it. Spottsylvania Co. once the largest in the colony, was repeatedly partitioned. Orange Co. itself at first including immense territory, was one of the counties formed out of Spottsylvania in 1734; itself for long included Rockbridge and many adjoining western counties, extending far beyond the Blue Ridge Mountains, and even comprehending the whole of the present state of Kentucky within its boundaries. These may be taken as typical nomenclatural and territorial changes in the Virginia counties as a whole, making it seem that the average settler and his immediate family moved with erratic frequency and an irrationality which actually was not the case. In many instances we find a father located in a county of a certain name; later in a county of a different name; or perhaps the second generation of his immediate family may be of record as resident in three or four differently designated counties. Painstaking research, almost as frequently as not, will reveal that the family being investigated as a whole still remained resident in its original location, and that the only change was an arbitrary one in officially subdividing the portions of the original county.

Virginia was made a royal instead of a proprietary colony, as it theretofore had been, in 1624, the King appointing the Governor and Council, and the people electing land-owning members from among themselves to the House of Burgesses. Jamestown was the capital until 1698, when it was transferred to Williamsburg. The colony soon occupied most of the Tidewater and its midland border, whence we can understand the spread of the Sissons from Ann Arundel Co. Md., in Capt. John Sisson's time to Orange Co. in the time of Bryan Sisson. In 1718 Governor Spotswood crossed the Blue Ridge mountains and was the first white man to enter the Great Valley, which soon thereafter was occupied by large numbers of Scottish and some German and English settlers. We see this westward movement reflected in the migration of Caleb Sisson and his progeny from Orange to Rockbridge and Botetourt counties, and thence on into the Indian country of Kentucky and Missouri, whence in due time the descendants continued to move on northwards into southern Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, and further westwards into Texas and Kansas. In Virginia the great Indian massacres of 1622 and 1644 were followed by savage retaliatory wars of prolonged duration on the part of the settlers and ended in the practical extermination of many of the eastern Virginia Indian tribes. Fighting with the red men continued frequent throughout Virginia's history until the 19th century, however. The extension westward beyond the first limits of Tidewater settlement--the peninsulas of the James, York and Rappahannock rivers--brought the colonists into contact with new, fierce tribes and small forts were erected in series in various places and garrisoned with rangers, who for long guarded the head-of-tidewater frontier against Indian raids and uprisings.

Recurrent Indian troubles culminated in 1676 with Bacon's Rebellion. Nathaniel Bacon raised a force of some hundreds of men to punish the savages for persistent depredations and finally crushed the Indians power east of the Blue Ridge. Shortly after this campaign he was obliged to turn his arms against Governor Sir William Berkeley, who resented his popularity and raising troops without proper governmental authority. In the ensuing curious little civil war, a large part of the able bodied population of Virginia served on one side or the other. Undoubtedly therefore, a representative number of Sissons must have been born arms in this revolt of the commonalty against Berkley's tyranny, but we have no record of them for the reason that the Muster Rolls of the Virginia colonial militia never seem to have been turned in to the colonial or State departments of archives, and--if any such muster rolls still exist in anything except fragmentary form--they are admittedly unbeknown to the contemporary State authorities.

In 1744 Virginia purchased from the Indians the right to make settlements to the Ohio River, and built a fort where Pittsburgh, Pa. now stands. The French captured this in 1754, renaming it Fort Duquesne. The lengthy French and Indian War followed, concluding in 1761 with the treaty of Paris, which made the western boundary of Virginia the Mississippi River. During that war in 1755, the British General Braddock was defeated and in 1758 Fort Duquesne was captured and renamed Fort Pitt.

Between the period of the early Indian wars in the Tidewater region and that of concerted expansion beyond the Blue Ridge, the theretofore characteristic military spirit of Virginia dwindled until the colony at length became an ultra-peaceable Cavalier-Quaker community, of entirely different type from the rigid contentious, always-suspicious and god-fearing New England. Virginia's large Quaker population was religiously opposed to bloodshed, and the descendants of original Cavalier settlers--now comfortably and very prosperously established on their large tobacco and cotton-raising plantations--were of a temperament to let life drift pleasantly past without greatly disturbing themselves over either matters of personal conscience or European politics. It was not until the time of the Revolutionary War that the old-time military spirit revived fierily in Virginia and thereafter it continued to play one of the most conspicuous and patriotic parts in the development of the new nation.

In the War of 1812 Virginia bore a notable part, as also in the Mexican War of 1846-47. The Civil War, 1861-1865 was more disastrous to Virginia than to any other state of the Union. Tens of thousands of its best men were killed in battle, its territory was dismembered, and more than 300 million dollars worth of property was destroyed. During the Civil War numerous Sissons were enlisted in the armies of both Union and Confederacy.

As aforesaid, THOMAS SISSON (1) emigrated from London, where he had been a haberdasher, to Virginia, shortly before 1622. Nothing else concerning his personal career is known, but it is assumed that he was the father of Capt. John (2), Robert (2), Daniel (2) Mary (2) and Nicholas (2). No record exists showing that any of these five Sissons were born outside the colony. Certainly, had they been, the names of at least one or more of the five would appear on one of the still extant ships-passenger lists from Bristol or London, or upon one of the carefully kept Virginia immigration lists, which were maintained partly in connection with administration of the oath of allegiance, and partly to record the identity of the settler importing indentured servants, ultimate liberation from whose tenure of "bondage" in Virginia was determined by documentary proof of their immigration dates.

Captain John Sisson (2) appears as an officer in the royal colonial army and the comrade of wealthy tobacco planters and large landholders of the Tidewater region. Capt. Cornelius Howard, a brother army officer and himself a wealthy planter on the Severn River, who in 1671-1675 represented Ann Arundel Co., Md. in the Colonial Assembly, in his will affectionately names "Capt. John Sisson" as "my brother" (i.e. in friendship) and appointed him executor of his will, than which no greater proof of confidence could have been given in those troublous days. This will is dated in 1663.

(Ref: Founders of Ann Arundel & Howard Counties Md. ed. by J. D. Warfield, pub. by Kohn & Pollock, Baltimore, Md. 1905.)

ROBERT SISSON (2) appears as already a man of substance by the middle of the 17th Century. He was one of the witnesses to the will of Thomas Wright, dated Oct. 23, 1661, and probated Mar. 10, 1666; and also was a witness to the will of Roger Williams, dated Feb. 26, 1675, which was probated Jan. 6, 1677. For a time he was resident in Goochland county; later of Henrico Co. He married and had offspring of whom more hereafter.

(Ref: Virginia Co. Records Vol. VI, ed. by Wm. A. Crozier, pub. The Genealogical Assn. Hasbrouck Heights, N.J., 1887)

DANIEL SISSON (2) resided in Westmoreland Co. He received a bequest in the will of James Baldridge, dated Nov. 26, 1658, which was probated Jan. 10, 1659. Later he removed to Appomatox Co. He married and among other offspring had Frances Butler Sisson (3). He was famous as official interpreter to the Indians, but, being unschooled, had to sign his name with an "x".

FRANCES SISSON (3) was born at Appomatox Co. and later removed to Westmoreland Co. Evidently of strong family affections, she specified in her will, dated Feb. 11, 1697 (Old Style), and probated Feb. 23, 1697 (Old Style) that she be "buried near my father and mother in Appomatox; coz. Nath. Pope; godson Lewis Pope, son of Nathaniel; coz. Lewis Nicholas; children of my friend Law. Washington Sr. and he to be exor."

(Ref: Virginia Co. Records Vol. 1 ed. by Wm. A. Crozier, pub. The Genealogical Society, Hasbrouck Heights, N.J. 1911-- Westmoreland Co. Va. Wills Book 1).

MARY SISSON (2), sister of Daniel and presumable daughter of Thomas, lived in Westmoreland Co. Before 1660 she married Nathaniel Jr. second son of the famous Col. Nathaniel and Lucy Pope, of Westmoreland Co., to whom she bore an only son, Nathaniel (3-c). Nathaniel, her husband dying early without a will, and Mary (Sisson) Pope thereupon marrying.... Bridges, her son by her first union, became known as Nathaniel Pope "alias Bridges." Mary (Sisson) Pope's second husband also dying soon after their marriage, without begetting issue, she took her third husband, Lewis Nicholas, of Westmoreland Co., by whom she had a son, Lewis Jr. (3-c). Then being widowed for a third time, Mary (Sisson) Pope took for her fourth husband David Whitliffe (or Wickliffe), who was the first white Protestant child born in Maryland, and whom, at time of his acquaintance with Mary (Sisson) Pope, Bridges, Nicholas, had become a refugee in Virginia from religious persecution. By David Whitliffe (or Wickliffe) Mary Sisson became the mother of two sons and a daughter,--David (3-c), Robert (3-c) and Deborah (3-c).

Nathaniel Pope (Alias Bridges) her son by her first husband (3-c) became a lawyer. He served as King's attorney for Westmoreland Co., later was Clerk of Stafford Co. Va. held various other offices of public trust, and died in 1719. He married Jane, daughter of Original and Jane (Brooks) Brown, who bore him seven children: William (4-c), Mary (4-c), Lewis (4-c), John (4-c), Jane (4-c), Worden (4-c), and Elizabeth (4-c).

NICHOLAS SISSON (2), brother of Mary and Daniel, and presumable son of Thomas, resided in Westmoreland Co. He married and among other children, had a son who married into the famous French Huguenot-Virginia Muse family, as did several generations of Sisson thereafter.

WILLIAM Sisson (4), of Westmoreland Co. grandson of Nicholas, same Co. married Betty Muse, daughter of Daniel of Westmoreland Co., a descendant of the Marquis de la Muse, leader of the great French Huguenot immigration of more than 700 Virginia refugees in 1700-----Sisson (4) died soon after this union, without begetting issue, whereafter his widow took for her second husband.....Moxly, to whom she bore a son before 1784. The will of her father, Daniel Muse, dated Jan. 28, 1783, and probated Dec. 6, 1784, names as beneficiaries, "my daughter Betty Muse Sisson and her son, James Noxly."

Ref: Westmoreland Co.Va.Will Book No. 7; William and Mary College Quarterly Hist.Magazine Vol.XVII (pub. 1909)

WILLIAM Sisson (4), brother of the aforesaid..... and grandson of Nicholas, shortly after the death of Daniel Muse and filing of the before mentioned will, paid court to Peggy Muse, the younger sister of his brother's wife, who at that time still was below the legal age of consent. Approbation of the widowed mother was secured, however, hence the following entry in the Westmoreland Co.Marriages:

"Dec. 16, 1789, William Sisson and Peggy Muse, Susanna Muse, her mother, give her consent."
(Ref: Va. Co. Records Vol. IV ed. by Wm. A. Crozier, Ibid, Early Va. Marriages.)

Peggy bore William Sisson (4), among other children, Winny (5) Peggy, (5) Sally, and Barrett (5). Peggy 2nd and Sally were twins and subsequently both married in the same year, although on different dates. Another dau. undoubtedly was Ann (5).

ANN Sisson (5), dau. of William and Peggy was born in Westmoreland Co. Va. and on June 21, 1792, married Thomas Morse.

(Ref: Va.Co. Records Vol. IV, Westmoreland Marriages Rolls, ed. by Crozier, Ibid.)

PEGGY Sisson (5), dau. of William and Peggy was born in Westmoreland Co. Va. and there on Feb. 10, 1807, married Gerard McKenney (Ref: Va. Co. Records Vol. IV, Ibid)

SALLY Sisson (5), dau. of William and Peggy was born in Westmoreland Co. Va. and there on Dec. 11, 1807, married Edward Spence, brother of her elder sister Winny's husband. Her name appears erroneously as "Sissin", in one place in the County Records.

WINNY Sisson (5) dau. of William & Peggy was born in Westmoreland Co. Va., and there on June 9, 1809, married William Spence, a near neighbor. (Ref: Va.Co. Records Vol. IV.)

BARRETT Sisson (5), son of William & Peggy was born in Westmoreland Co. Va. and there on June 9, 1809 married Frances Brown. (Ref: Va.Co.Rec.Vol.IV ibid.)

SALLY SISSON (4), sister of William of Westmoreland Co. on Mar. 16, 1789, married Richard Moxley, a neighbor in the same county. Her brother... Sisson (4)'s wife, Betty Muse, first married Richard Moxley's brother. (Ref: Westmoreland Co. Marriage Rolls (Va.Co. Records Vol. IV, Ibid.)

The Sisson family was peculiarly identified with Dinwiddie Co. Va. (later Price George Co.) from the earliest period of its history. Their names several times occurs on the records misspelled "Sissom." (Ref: Va. Mag. of Hist. & Biography Ibid Vol. IV.)

WILLIAM SISSON (3), apparently the son of Robert of Goochland Co. (Q.V.) was resident in Rappahannock Co. in 1680. He was one of two witnesses to the will of Bridget Richards, dated Apr. 10, 1685, which was proved May 24, 1685. SHE was the wife of Lewis Richards, a close friend of William Sisson.

(Ref: Rappahannock Co. Wills (Va.Co.Rec.Vol.VII Ibid).)

William Sisson (3) married and had among other children, William Jr. (4) and Bryan (4), Elizabeth (4).

ELIZABETH SISSON (4), dau. of William, removed to Essex Co. Va. where she was one of three witnesses to the will of John Edmundson, of Essex Co. dated Jan. 28, 1728,, and proven Feb. 17, 1729.

(Ref: Tyler's Magazine, Historical & Genealogical, Quarterly, Vol. VII, ed. by Lyon G. Tyler, pub. Richmond, Va., 1926.)

WILLIAM SISSON (4), 2nd son of William, married and had progeny, among whom were William, 3rd (5), Jane (5) and Thomas (5).

WILLIAM SISSON, 3rd (5) son of William, together with Sam Brousch served as witnesses to the signing of the marriage contract of John Wills with Ann Childers, in Norfolk Co. Jan. 24, 1759.

(Ref: Abstracts from Norfolk Co. Wills in Lower Norfolk Co. Antiquary, Vol. IV ed. by Edward W. James, pub. Friedenwald Press, Baltimore, Md.)

JANE SISSON (5) apparently a daughter of William, 3rd, on Feb. 7, 1774, married Robert McCully in Norfolk Co. Va.

(Ref: Norfolk Co. Marriages Bonds records in lower Norfolk Co. Antiquary, ibid, Vol. IV)

THOMAS SISSON (5), son of William, 3rd removed to 12

Brunswick Co., where on February 17, 1769, he married Martha Parker, dau. of William Parham, (deceased) (Ref: Sussex Co. Marriage Bonds in Vol. XII, Va. Co. Records, 1st Series). They later removed to Surrey Co., where Thomas Sisson became involved in financial difficulties with his neighbors, the Poythress family. The matter was carried to the colonial courts, where a judgment was secured against Thomas Sisson (5). However, Robert and Thomas Poythress the complaintants, and Thomas Sisson (5) all died before the matter was adjudicated. The heirs of the aforesaid plaintiffs, unable to get any satisfaction from Thomas Sisson's "relict" (i.e. widow), then took legal means to seize whatever they could of his estate as witness the following document from the Records of Surrey Co.

"May 15, 1750...attachment obtained by Peter and Elizabeth Poythress executors of Robert Poythress, deceased, and Joshua Poythress, executor of Thomas Poythress, dec. against the estate of Thomas Sisson."

(Ref: Order Bk of the Court, Vol. XIX & XXIII, Va. Co. Records IBID pub. 1911 and 1915.)

Thomas Sisson's financial difficulties resulted from his activities as a land speculator, with which for a while he was apparently quite successful and at one time controlled extensive parcels of farm land in Brunswick and adjoining counties. The Index to Land Grants, Bk. XIII for Brunswick Co. Va. contains the following typical entries illustrative of Thomas Sisson's enterprise:

"No. 47 -- Thos. Sisson, 1726.... 336 acres.

"No. 427-- Thos. Sisson, 1728.... 300 acres.

(Ref: Va. Co. Records, ibid).

Thomas Sisson's offspring included Lucy (6), John (6) William (6), David (6) and Joshua (6). The last four of these children took up residence in Union Co. Va. during the Revolutionary War period, and their descendants continued to reside in the vicinity until the time of the Civil War.

LUCY SISSON (6), dau. of Thomas, on Dec. 30, 1790, (Dec. 39th old Style calendar reckoning,) married John Johnson of Greenville, Co. Va. The ceremony was recorded by "Sterling Sledge, Sec."

(Ref: Reg. of Marriage Bonds of Greenville Co. 1781-1808; Tyler's Hist. & Gen. Quarterly, ed. by Lyon G. Tyler Vol. II ibid; also Va. Magazine of Hist. & Biog. Vol. XXIV pub. 1916, ibid.)

ABSCLOM E. SISSON (5), either another son of Thomas, or a descendant of Daniel Sisson (2) of Westmoreland and later Appomatox Co.Va., appears on the U.S. War Dept. rolls as having served with the Va. Militia in 1776, at the outbreak of the Revolutionary War. Nothing else is known of him.

(Ref: Index of Revolutionary Records in Va. State Archives, compiled by Dr. H. J. Eckenrode, pub. by the State, Richmond, Va. 1912-14.)

Another member of the kindred whose exact relationship is seemingly indefinable is "JOHN SISSON". He appears as one of the numerous signatories to an earnest petition of the settlers on the over-mountain western Virginia frontier (1742), that they be allowed official sanction to organize their own military for self-protection. The document carries peculiar interest as illustrative of how rapidly the literacy of Virginia settlers had degenerated within only a few generations, owing to the dearth of formal schooling.

BRYAN SISSON (4) also spelled Bryon, Briat and Bryant on various records -- son of William Sisson of Rappahannock and Richmond Counties, Va. was named as a beneficiary in the will of Richard White, of Richmond Co., whose phraseology at the same time positively confirms Bryan Sisson's parentage. The document is found in the Richmond Co. Will Book:

"White, Richard, Parish of Sittenburn Feb. 5, 1702, proved June 2, 1703. Bequests as stated to my godson Bryan, son of William Sisson; godson Richard, son of Edward Jones; my wife Katherine to be executrix. Witnesses: William Talbot and John Doyle."

(Ref: Va. Co. Records Vol. VII, ibid)

The Orange Co. Tithe Lists for the year 1734 mentions "Briant Sisson" as subject to 3 tithes, which was a personal levy and not, in those days a tax of real property. This list is dated the same year that Orange Co. first was created out of the western most part of Spottsylvania Co. and was the new county's first attempt to determine its taxable potentialities. From this fact it may be inferred that Bryan Sisson (4) already had been resident in that district for some time.

(Ref: William & Mary College Quarterly Hist. Mag. Vol. XXVII, 1st Series ibid)

The List of Military Commissions for Orange Co. under date of 1740 includes "Bryan Sisson" in its enumeration of Captains of the Co. Militia.

(Ref: Hist. of Orange Co. Va. Appendix F. by W. W. Scott)

Bryan Sisson (4) married Rachel---, who bore him four children... William (5), George (5), Caleb (5), and Hannah (5). He died in Aug. 1771. His will, dated June 21st that same year, names his three sons executors, and mentions his wife and all four children as surviving him. The will was admitted to probate Aug. 22, 1771. The accompanying appraisement of his estate names considerable real estate holdings and possession of nine slaves.

WILLIAM SISSON (5) Son of Capt. Bryan, of Orange Co. Va. and his brother GEORGE SISSON (5) are of record as furnishing supplies to the American army during the Revolutionary War. (Ref: Va. Archives q.v.)

CALEB SISSON (5) son of Capt. Bryan, was born in Orange Co. Va. before 1750. The Hist. of James Nourse & His Desc. incorrectly states that Caleb was born in England, evidently being unaware of his descent from Bryan Sisson. He inherited considerable landholdings from his father, whence he was popularly known as "the Squire", although he later adopted the vocation of a minister of the gospel. Until middle age, he devoted himself largely to farming. During the Revolution he served with the Orange Co. Militia. Is recorded as an Ensign in Capt. Moore's Co. under date of Feb. 25, 1779. Took the Oath of loyalty on Apr. 22, 1779.

(Ref: Hist. Register of Va. in the Revolution by John H. Gwathmey, pub. Dietz Press, Richmond, Va. 1938).

CALEB SISSON married (1) Milly Branham on July 20, 1771, and (2) married Sarah Roach some time prior to 1789. By his first wife he had Stanley (6) and possibly others, and by his second wife he had six more children -- Jesse (6), Abner (6), Armistead (6), John (6), Polly (6), and James (6). Caleb died Sept. 17, 1807, in Rockbridge Co. which originally was a southern west part of Orange Co. (Ref: William & Mary Coll. Quarterly Vol. IV, 1st Series).

STANLEY SISSON (6) son of Caleb was born in Rockbridge Co. Va. In 1796 he married Catherine Kirkwood and removed to a farm homestead near Louisville, Ky. where he died while still comparatively young.

JESSE SISSON (6), son of Caleb, was born in Rockbridge Co. Va. Aug. 7, 1789. By profession he was a miller and a farmer. On June 1, 1815, he married Elizabeth H. Chapline, by whom he had numerous offspring, of whom more hereafter. He removed to Rockingham Co. Va. first and thence, after selling his property to Brook Co. W. Va. There, after a time, he again sold his holdings and on Mar. 21, 1842, set out for a new home in Missouri. In that state he settled in Clark Co. He died in Nov. 27, 1864 on his farm there. During the war of 1812 he enlisted against the British, as witness the following excerpt from a letter sent by Jesse Sisson to his brother Abner, dated Aug. 9, 1812:

"...I have joined the Light Infantry, at Martinsburg (i.e. Morton's Gap, in Hopkins Co. Ky.) and expect to be called upon soon. General Hull has given up all of our Army at Detroit to the British. There is another Army now raising which will be under the command of General Harrison in Kentucky."

JESSE SISSON'S wife, Elizabeth was the dau. of Jeremiah and Elizabeth (Nourse) Chapline. She was born near Hagerstown, Md. July 15, 1798, and died in Clark Co.

Mo. Dec. 3, 1864. She and Jesse Sisson were married near Hagerstown, Md. and became the parents of eight daughters and four sons...Asbury Chapline (7), Elizabeth Sarah (7), Martha Ann Mary (7), Abner Morgan, (7), Almyra, Susan (7), John Milton (7), Ruhanna Catherine (7), Amanda Malvina (7), Evaline Samantha (7), Emily Minerva (7), Mississippi Susan (7), Strother Washington (7). ABNER SISSON (6), son of Caleb was born in Botstourt Co. Va. in 1790. By profession he was both a tanner and a farmer. Some time before Sept. 16, 1823, he removed to a farm in Jefferson Co. Ky. not far from Louisville, where he married Susanna Hardy, daughter of a neighbor. Later the family moved to Macoupin Co. Ill. where Abner Sisson (6) finally died.

JOHN WESLEY (?) SISSON (6), son of Caleb was born in Rockbridge Co. Va. He was a saddlemaker by trade and served as a Capt. during the War of 1812. He married in Kentucky, later removing to a farm near Louisville, Ky. and thence to Clark Co. Mo., where he finally died.

JAMES SISSON (6), son of Caleb was born in Rockbridge Co. Va. With his half-brother Stanley (6) and other members of the family, he removed to a farm near Louisville, Ky. He died young without marrying, after having served as a private in the army during the War of 1812.

ARMISTEAD SISSON (6), son of Caleb was born in 1785 in Rockbridge Co. Va. and also served as a private in the army during the war of 1812. In 1812 he married Anna, dau. of Thomas Hardy, near Hagerstown, Md. and later removed with other members of the family to a farm homestead near Louisville, Ky., where he died in 1836-37. His wife was the sister of Susanna Hardy, wife of his brother Abner Sisson. She bore Armistead seven children--Harriet (7), Allen (7), Ferdinand (7), Mary Ann (7), James (7), Strother (7), and Martha (7).

STROTHER SISSON (7), son of Armistead was born Jan. 10, 1820 in Botetourt Co. Va. and died Jan. 26, 1889 in Henderson Co. Ky. Sometime prior to 1850 he married in Henderson Co. Ky. HENRY Sissons, erroneously entered "Sissons" on the record---served as a member of the colonial Grand Jury for Richmond Co. in one of the most sensational and scandalous trials of his day,--the indictment of an ordained minister of the gospel by his parishioners. The Rev. Thomas Bluitt (also entered as Pruitt on other records) was, it appears, a lusty soul, quite addicted to conviviality and the use of especially forceful language in dealing with the rough-and-ready frontiersmen, who were his parishioners. His rugged individuality of character and habits, decidedly unconventional to one of his "Cloth", embroiled him first in serious disputes over his conduct with his fellow workers in the church. When the Rev. Bluitt flouted both their own shocked protests and said "Public opinion be damned," wardens of the church indignantly carried their complaints into the colonial court in the endeavor to oust him from office and end the scandal he had become to the more sober, straightlaced members of the community. Even then the Rev. Bluitt, continued unrepentant, refused to reform or be in anyway intimidated. In the following document we see the case at public trial:

Presentment of the Rev. Thos. Bluitt, for Drunkenness & Swearing

"May 3, 1742--At a Court held for Richmond Co. in the third day of May, 1742

"The Grand Jury, John Tarpley, Foreman ec. "they having Received their charges were sent out" returned--The Rev. "We present the Rev. Mr. Thos. Bluitt ec. for being Drunk within six months last year ec."

Certainly a quaint and unexpected document out of the past.

The Journal of the House of Burgesses of Va. presents an account of a little legal and financial episode in the life of HENRY SISSON of Richmond Co. Quoting the minutes:

"SESSION OF WEDNESDAY the 8th of Nov. 10 GEORGE III, 1769."

"A Petition of Henry Sisson and John Eidson, Inspectors at Cat Point Warehouse, in the Co. of Richmond, Va. was presented to the House and read; setting forth, that the Petitioners had been obliged to make good Two Thousand and Four Hundred Pounds of Crop Tobacco, stolen out of the said Warehouse, and from under prize there, to the Owners thereof and praying to be relived.

"Ordered, that the said Petition be referred to the Committee of Public Claims, and that they do examine the Matter thereof, and report the same, with their Opinion thereupon to the House."

"And then the House adjourned till to-morrow morning Eleven of the Clock."

THURSDAY, the 9th of NOVEMBER, 10 GEORGE III, 1769"

"Mr. Archibald Cary reported from the Committee of Public Claims that they had had under their Consideration several Petitioners to them referred, and had come to several Resolutions thereupon; which he read in his place, and afterwards delivered in at the Clerk's Table, where the same were read, and are as followeth, viz:

"Resolved, that it is the Opinion of this Committee that so much of the Petition of Henry Sisson and John Eidson, Inspectors of Tobacco at Cat Point Warehouse in Richmond Co. as relates to the Hogshead of Tobacco, Nett 1131 lb. of the Property of John Gordon, which was stolen out of the said Warehouse, is reasonable and that they ought to be reimbursed the sume of eleven pounds, six shillings, and two pence half-penny, for the same, and that that part of the petition relating to the Hogshead of Tobacco stolen from under the Prize be rejected."

Evenly divided luck for Henry Sisson, of Richmond Co.

GEORGE SISSON during the Revolutionary War enlisted with the Richmond Co. Militia and rose to the rank of Capt. The government having appropriated a portion of his property for use during war emergency--as it also did with certain property of JOHN SISSON--both men filed military claim for redemption in the court for Richmond Co. and their claims were presented at the session of Apr. 3, 1782. Minutes of this meeting include a list of "men with claims against the Commonwealth of Virginia under the Act for "adjusting claims for property impressed by the government for public service." The names of both Capt. George Sisson and John Sisson appear on this list.

Capt. George Sisson, early in 1781 while scouting at the mouth of the Currytoman River in a small boat was captured by roving British privateersmen; was held prisoner for several weeks, and then finally escaped with military information of such value that it was especially transmitted to the Governor of the State. His official deposition of experience was as follows:

"May 3rd, Richmond County --

"The Deposition of George Sisson of the Co. of Richmond cc. declares: That he was captured on the fifteenth day of Feb. past in Currytoman River, by the Cornwallis Brig. Capt. Downey in company with the Sloop Hybernia, Jno. Disney, The Trimmer Schooner, Phillips, and another Schooner, Commanded by a Capt. Thomas. I was on board the Brig. only about half an hour, then sent on board the Hybernia, where I continued until the fourteenth of Mar. The next day after I was made prisoner, the Hybernia and Trimmer in company attacked a Baltimore Brig. of fourteen and sixteen guns off the mouth of Rappahannock. The action continued a considerable time very sharp and bloody before they quitted her and run. During the whole, myself and other prisoners on board, were forced upon the quarter Deck, and then ordered to take up arms against our Countrymen -- We begged and entreated the Capt. to excuse us from a Service of this sort, but all in vain. He answered it was what all the prisoners should doe, taken by him, but it so happened none of us got hurt. The Brig. fairly drubbed them both & chased us almost into Hampton Roads. We proceeded afterwards to Portsmouth -- then up the Bay again as far as the mouth of Peanketank, when we fell in with a small schooner Boat, loaded with Alum, Salt and Sugar--this vessel as I understand was the property of one of my Countrymen, whose name I cannot learn, employed by Gen. Arnold and bound up Rappok, as far as Port Royal, to purchase flour and fresh provisions--the Skipper showed his pass from General Arnold, and went off--The plan of trading with the Inhabitants I understood was greatly practised in divers places, and that the Enemy got great plenty of provisions of almost every kind--during our stay at Portsmouth, and on a Cruise up the Bay, I saw George Keeble, son of Walter Keeble, who appeared an active man, and acted in character of a first Lieut. on board a Whale Boat.

"Mar. 31, RICHMOND CO.

"Wm. Peachey to GOV. Jefferson:

"Sir,

"By a Captain of Militia of this County (George Sysson by name) who was captured near the mouth of the Rappahannock River, in a river craft, and who lately made his escape after some weeks detention on board of the Kybernia Sloop, privateer from N.Y., I am informed that the Enemy, having adopted a new mode of getting supplies, which is by fitting out small vessels with a few hands and a cargo of Alum, Salt, brown sugar, etc. with which they run up the different rivers, and trade as friends for flower, wheat bread, Indian corn, peas & brandy. Capt. Sysson says that the shores, as well on the Eastern and Western side of the Bay, have been lately so well guarded, as to prevent the privateers from getting any supplies, so that they began to be greatly distressed for both provisions & spirits. The vessel on board of which he was kept, went twice into Portsmouth Harbor, and he understood that the troops under Arnold were at short allowance, and the inhabitants of Portsmouth almost famished for want of Bread, and none of them suffered to go out.

"He says that Keeble (or Hibble) the pilot on Gwin's Island, he is satisfied supplies the Enemy; has seen him on board, and he knows that his son has been employed in one of their whale boats, saw him in their cap and dress on board one at the Tangier Islands. Capt. Sysson further says, that in an Engagement the Kybernia and a Schooner had, with a Baltimore Brigg, off the Mouth of Rappahannock, the officers of the privateer obliged himself and an old pilot, of the name of Bass, they had taken, to take a muskett in hand and keep the quarter deck during the action. That they grow short of hands by deaths, desertions and losses both by water and land. Concludes--This account I thought my duty to transmit to the Executive, if it will answer any good purpose I have my reward."

The events of, and leading up to revolt of the American colonies against their mother country are too familiarly known to require orderly or detailed explanation herein. A representative number of Sisson kinsmen served with the American military forces, enlisting both with the Continental Line (i.e. regular standing army), for the duration of the conflict, and with various units of the State militia regiments, enlistment with which usually was a period of three months each, so as to allow militia men opportunity between intervals of fighting to return home and attend to their individual farm crops or other non-combatant duties.

V - FIRST CENSUS OF THE U.S., 1790

The first census of the newly-formed United States of America was taken by the government in 1790, and reveals interesting statistics relative to the Sisson kindred and its particular environment. The tremendous depletion of men by the Revolutionary War and the consequent superabundance of women--approximately two females to every male surviving -- is readily apparent from the official records of the country as a whole. The 1st census included the states of Connecticut, Delaware, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Maine, New York, New Hampshire, Kentucky, Georgia, North Carolina, Virginia, South Carolina, Pennsylvania, Maryland, New Jersey, Vermont and Tennessee. Schedules of all these states are not known as extant, for the returns for Delaware, Georgia, Kentucky, New Jersey, Tennessee, and Virginia (the last-named partially) were destroyed when the British burned the Capital at Washington during the War of 1812. Approximately 400,000 names thus were lost to record. Returns of only 39 out of the total of 78 Virginia counties still are extant. The total population of the United States in 1790, exclusive of slaves, as shown by the schedule, was 3,331,533.

The returns for the state of Georgia, missing from the remains of the 1st U.S.Census, are, however, largely replaced by the book-collections, Some Early Tax Digests of Georgia, covering the period from 1790-1818, collected and edited by Ruth Blair, State Historian, and published by the Ga. Dept. of Archives & History, in 1926. The existence of this collection is comparatively unknown to genealogists. It here serves merely to prove that no Sisson kindred were resident in Georgia between the dates covered by these tax digests.

The 1st National Census concerns itself with identifying citizens by name only where such happened to be the heads of families at the time. The following excerpts from the 1st Census record the number of living Sissons according to their places of residence, ages, sex and social status; in some instances, according to occupations.

(Ref: Heads of Families; 1st Census of the U.S.A. 1790, pub. by the U.S.Dept. of Commerce & Labor, Bureau of Census, Washington, D.C.1909, 14 vols.)

Sisson kindred in 1790 are scheduled as resident in all states for which the returns still exist, with the exception of Vermont, Maine, N. H. and Georgia. Through carelessness or illiteracy of the census-takers, or through error in transcription, the R. I. returns mention Gideon Sisson as "Session"; in the South Carolina return Frederic "Sison" appears; the North Carolina record misspells Isaac's name as "Sissions"; and the N.Y. return misspells Jorom "Sison" and John "Soisson," and Peleg "Sisson." The Conn. return gives William "Sissen" in one place. The government-printed edition of the 1st Census itself takes care of stating in a footnote that "no attempt has been made in this publication to correct mistakes in spelling made by the assistants, and the names have been reproduced exactly as they appear upon the State lists."

A total of 84 separate Sisson households are listed in the Census of 1790. Aside from these 84 heads of families, 337 other bearers of the Sisson name are specified, amounting to a total of 421 Sissons flourishing in the U.S. By the fifth generation in descent from Richard Sisson (1), of Dartmouth, Mass. and Portsmouth, R.I. or possibly the sixth generation from John Sisson (1) of Virginia and Ann Arundel Co. Md. This number would of course probably be considerably larger were the lost returns of the five additional states still extant, and available for study.

Six of these Sissons families possessed a total of 43 black slaves, Gideon Sisson (Newport, R.I.) single slave being the only one held by any member of the kindred in New England.

Computation from the Census returns, as we have them, shows an average of 5 persons per Sisson family, including the father and mother.

The 1790 census returns reveal 5 heads of Sisson households as widows, all of them living with quite numerous progeny at home, invariably with one or more sons older than 16 years of age.
