P R E F A C E .

The compiler of this little volume has had the work in contemplation for many years, and had it not been for the many and frequent inquiries for it, and the love of kindred, the work would have been abandoned. The labor of compiling and publishing a genealogy of the descendants of any of the early families of New England is necessarily long and tedious. Some take little or no interest in the work, and others furnish the desired information only after repeated requests. As a literary effort it has its faults; and doubtless there are errors, both clerical and typographical, which have been overlooked, a few of the latter, however, have been noted in the Errata and Emendations.

The genealogical record is nearly or quite complete, but very few names and dates are wanting. It is hoped that it will prove acceptable to the members of the family, and a just tribute to the memory of those who have departed.

INTRODUCTORY CHAPTER.

The first family bearing the name of SEAGRAVE, emigrating to America, it is conjectured, came from Leicestershire and adjacent counties in England, in the early part of the last century, probably between the years 1725 and 1730. There is no documentary record extant, which has come to the knowledge of the compiler, of the exact year of their emigration; neither can the connecting link between the families of England and those of America be made with any degree of certainty, on account of the absence of early records and data. He has therefore to rely largely on traditionary evidence for what is known of their emigration and the first years of residence in New England.

The inferential evidence of family connexion with those of the name in England is, the frequent similarity of the Christian or given names, such as Edward, John, William, etc., from a very early date.

With reference to their emigration to America, a tradition extant is, that originally two brothers came to this country from England, that one settled in New England and the other in the "Jerseys." If this tradition refers to one of the brothers, whose family landed in Boston, Mass., and from whom the living families have descended, there can be no doubt but that his name was JOHN. Another tradition is, that the widow Sarah Seagrave, and four children, named respectively Edward, John, Sarah and Mary, landed in Boston, and that the husband and father died on the passage from England. This latter tradition was narrated to the compiler by a great-granddaughter of Sarah Seagrave, the mother of Capt. Edward, who died in 1786, when the narrator was seven years of age; and the same tradition must also have been repeated to her by her grandfather, Capt. Edward Seagrave, who died in 1793. The tradition is without doubt true, for no record is found of John Seagrave ever having lived or died in Boston while mention is made of his widow, Sarah Seagrave, who was a resident of Boston, as late as 1774, and possibly 1776. There can be no question but that her husband's name was John, for there is a record of the baptism of "Mary, daughter of John and Sarah Seagrave, March 25, 1732," in the clerk's book of Christ Church, Salem-st., Boston; this fact would seem to settle the matter of the name of our ancestor. The history of the family as contained in this volume is based upon this last tradition, and the subsequent record.

Referring again to the first tradition, nothing is known to the writer, of the name and place of settlement in the "Jerseys" of the other brother. There are families of the name in Pennsylvania and the Southern States, whose given names are borne by their own kindred, and who are known not to have descended from the families in the Northern States. In the latter part of the last century, there lived in N

Jersey, one Rev. Artis Seagrave, who was born in 1755, at Pittsgrove in that State. It is fair to presume that the last named person and the families in Pennsylvania and the South, descended from the brother who settled in the "Jerseys."

The family of Seagrave have an honored ancestry, and their history may be traced back in England to A. D. 519. Some of them were created Lords and Peers, and in accordance with the prevailing custom, they bore coats of arms. The coat of arms adopted by the families in America, as the one supposed to have been borne by their ancestors in England, is discribed in the language of heraldry as follows: the shield, sa., with fesse between three wheat sheaves, or. CREST—a dexter hand holding a palm branch, ppr. This and other coats of arms and crests belonging to different families are discribed in Appendix B.

So little is known of the first family of the name, that what is written of their character and social position, or whether they were rich or poor, must, in a great measure, be conjectured; but so far as we can judge, however, they descended from respectable and honored families in England, and that they did not deteriorate from or lose the character and good name which they had inherited.

The sons, Edward and John, the former a patriot-captain, served the Colonies by repeated enlistments in their service during the revolutionary war, as also his two sons John and Joseph; and John, his brother, served his king in the old French war, in which he lost his life by hardship or disease contracted therein. The descendants of Capt. Edward have also done good and faithful service for our beloved country, and made, in their turn, honorable records of loyalty and patriotism and manifested a true love for the land of their birth.

In religious belief, the first family was doubtless identified with the Episcopal church—the church of their ancestors, and their descendants are connected by membership or affiliation with that and the various other Christian sects.

Their social position in society has been creditable and honorable in a good degree, and so far as wealth and poverty are concerned, there are but few who are very rich and none who are abjectly poor, but all have gained an honest and respectable livelihood and made with a measure of success commensurate with the talents and attainments.

DESCENDANTS OF JOHN AND SARAH SEAGRAVE OF ENGLAND.

1725-30.

CHAPTER SECOND.

John and Sarah Seagrave.

1. JOHN SEAGRAVE and Sarah, his wife, tradition says, emigrated to America from England, about the years 1725-30, with four children. The father died on the passage, the widow and children landed safely in Boston. The names of the children were:

2—EDWARD, born in England about the year 1722. See Appendices D, E, and G, for Military Record, deeds, will, etc.

3—JOHN, born in England, about 1724. See Appendix C.

4—SARAH, born in England, about the year 1728; never married; lived with her mother and sister in Boston, and died there June 30, 1802.

5—MARY, probably born in Boston sometime in the years 1731-2. Among the records of baptisms in the Clerk's book of old Christ Church, Salem-st., Boston, is found the following entry:—"March 25, 1732. Baptised Mary, daughter to John and Sarah Seagrave." By Rev. Timothy Cutler, D. D., who was settled as Rector over this Parish, Dec. 29, 1723, and officiated as such till his decease, Aug. 7, 1765.

She married John Dorrington of Boston, a sea captain, date of marriage unknown. They had no children. See Appendix F, for a brief genealogy of the Dorrington Family, etc.

"Widow Mary Dorrington died prior to Dec. 13, 1776."—Continental Journal.

Records and tradition are not fruitful in facts and data in relation to their circumstances and surroundings. The widow, Sarah Seagrave, continued to reside in Boston, her two daughters remaining with her until the marriage of Mary to John Dorrington, a sea captain, after which the mother and daughter Sarah, who never married, probably lived with the married sister till January, 1774, when she went to Uxbridge, and remained there while Boston was in siege, as appears by the following from the town records of Uxbridge:

Then I brought Sarah Seagrave from Boston into the Town of Uxbridge,

EDWARD SEAGRAVE.

Entered by me, SIMEON WHEELLOCK, Town Clerk.

How long she remained in Uxbridge is not known, probably till after the evacuation of Boston by the British, March 17, 1776. She returned to Boston and resided there for a time, as may be inferred from the fact that in 1776, she was appointed administratrix of the estate of her daughter, widow Mary Dorrington, who had deceased in 1776, her husband having died in 1772. She subsequently returned to Uxbridge and resided with her son, Capt. Edward Seagrave, who had married and settled there, till her death in 1786, at an advanced age.

Tradition says in relation to the two sons, Edward and John, who were about 4 and 5 years of age, that they were sent to Uxbridge, and there bound out to service during their minority, to Mr. Aaron Taft, the grandfather of Zadock A. Taft, Esq., the present owner of the ancestral homestead. But this cannot be correct, for the reason that Mr. Aaron Taft was about the same age as Edward and John. It was probab-

Joseph Taft, the father of Aaron, to whom they were bound to service, although Mr. Taft had nine children of his own—five sons and four daughters.

Edward and Lois (White) Seagrave.

2. EDWARD SEAGRAVE, (John<sup>1</sup>,) b. in England about 1722; farmer; patriot-captain; settled in Uxbridge. There appears upon the records of the town of Uxbridge, among the Intentions of Marriage in 1756, the following: "Edward Seagrave and Lois White." Also, the following record of their marriage: "Edward Seagrave to Lois White, January 6, 1757." She was daughter of Joseph and Judith White, of Uxbridge. They had these eleven children:

6—JOHN, b. Nov. 6, 1757; m. Sarah Dorrington of Boston.

7—LOIS, b. Nov. 5, 1759; m. Orin Keyes of Uxbridge, farmer; had a son and several daughters. She died March 8, 1819.

8—JOSEPH, b. Dec. 26, 1761; m. 1st, Anna Fletcher; 2d, Nancy Bacon of Boston, and she married again.

9—MARY, b. April 1, 1764; died in 1777, aged 13 years.

10—BEZALEEL, b. Dec. 14, 1766; m. 1st, Mary (Molly) Aldrich, Feb. 19, 1789, she died Nov. 5, 1805; m. 2d, Jemima Aldrich, December, 1806, she died Jan. 29, 1862.

11—SARAH, (Sally,) b. Dec. 31, 1768; m. Joel Bolster; lived in Upton, Mass., and afterwards in Guilford, Vt.; had children; dates of their marriage and deaths unknown.

12—CALEB, b. March 14, 1771; m. Eunice Wood, (b. in Uxbridge, Jan. 4, 1781,) June 20, 1802.

13—JOSIAH, b. Oct. 14, 1773; m. 1st, Lois Taft, (b. in Uxbridge, Aug. 27, 1780,) Dec. 25, 1798; she died April 27, 1854; m. 2d, Mary Larned, of Oxford, Aug. 31, 1854; she died in her native town, July 2, 1878, at the advanced age of 88 yrs. 9 mos. and 28 days.

- 14—EDWARD, b. Nov. 9, 1776; lived with his brother, Dr. Joseph Seagrave, in Chester, Vt., and died there July 31, 1797. The following is the inscription on his tombstone: "In memory of Edw. Seagrave, Jun., son of Mr. Edward Seagrave & Lozis his wife of Uxbridge, who died July 31, 1797, in the 21 year of his age."

" Diseases laid him down | upon a dying bed ; |
 No help was for his body found ; | He's number'd with the dead. |
 He's laid into the ground : | He's left his earthly pain, |
 He'll rise when the last trumpet sounds | And meet with us again."

- 15—OLIVE, b. April 17, 1779; m. 1st, Stephen Sprague of Douglas, Sept. 25, 1796; 2d, Benjamin French of Dedham; had no children by either husband; dates of deaths unknown.

- 16—SAMUEL, b. Feb. 3, 1782; m. Betsey Murdock, Sept. 13, 1804, of Uxbridge.

Edward Seagrave<sup>2</sup> died May 18–20, 1793.

Lois, (White) his wife, died Jan. 7–8, 1806.

At the breaking out of the war of the Revolution, on the alarm of April 19, 1775, he marched from Uxbridge as first lieutenant of a company of patriots of which Samuel Read was captain, and proved his loyalty to the colonies by continued service.

On the 25th of September, 1775, he was commissioned captain in Col. Read's regiment, the 20th Regiment of foot, in the Massachusetts 8 months' service. He was subsequently commissioned captain of the 9th company, 3d Worcester Co. Regiment. Also, re-commissioned captain of the same company and regiment, Jan. 30, 1778. He was again commissioned captain, July 12, 1778, in Col. Wade's regiment. Service in Rhode Island.

As an illustration of the bravery and self-possession of Captain Seagrave, it is related, that at the battle of White Plains in New York, in 1776, the Uxbridge company being under his command, he saved to the patriot army one of the most important points. The British had captured a portion of the company, and were pressing upon our troops, when the colonel in command, (Colonel Read,) gave orders to retreat. In an instant the commander of the Uxbridge company, waving his sword above his head, shouted, "Let cowards retreat, but brave men to the rescue of their comrades!" and calling out to companies near him to turn bayonet, they charged upon the jubilant British, drove them in rout, from their position, and recaptured their friends. For this act, the captain was offered a colonelship, which he modestly declined.

It was narrated to the writer many years ago by the venerable Samuel Murdock, a member of Capt. Seagrave's company, long since deceased, that while laying in ambush behind a stone wall, firing upon the British, a bullet from the enemy, came through the stone barrier and entered the cartridge-box of the captain, but doing him nor the narrator, who was crouched by his side, no harm.

He was an honorable man, a brave and patriotic officer, and a true and loyal friend of the colonies. His descendants may with commendable pride revere the names and cherish the memories of Capt. Edward and his two sons, John and Joseph, the latter hardly fifteen years of age, who, inspired by the love of freedom and right, but too young to carry a musket, enlisted as a fifer in his father's company to serve his country as best he might.

His farm is now owned by H. G. Taft, Esq., son of the late Hon. Bezaleel Taft. His dwelling-house stood upon the site now enclosed and set out to spruce trees, nearly opposite to the dwelling-house of Mr. Taft, in which all of his children were born.

John, son of John and Sarah Seagrave.

3. JOHN SEAGRAVE, (John<sup>r</sup>.) b. in England about 1724, came to this country with his brother Edward, when about 5 years of age. What his avocation was, is not known, but probably it was that of a farmer. Neither is it known whether he ever married; but it appears that he contemplated such a step, by the following extract from the records of the town of Uxbridge of Intentions of Marriage for 1757: "John Seagrave to Elizabeth Johnson." No record of their marriage however is found.

During the French war, as it was called, 1755-63, he enlisted into the army and served as a private, till his decease during the winter of 1760-1, the precise date of which cannot be ascertained. He was stationed at Crown Point and vicinity during his term of service. Tradition says that he fell sick of small-pox during the march of the army over the Green Mountains, and was left to die there. Inferring from records extant,* it would appear that he died in "the country of the upper Ashuelot," now embracing Keene and vicinity in the State of New Hampshire, and that his remains were removed to Uxbridge by his brother Edward, and there interred. The probability is that he died from fatigue and exposure, or from some disease contracted in the army, other than from small-pox, which, from the superstition of the times, would preclude the removal of his remains to any great distance.

It is said that he was a man of large stature, and of almost gigantic strength.

APPENDIX A.

HISTORICAL AND BIOGRAPHICAL NOTES OF SEAGRAVES IN ENGLAND AND AMERICA NOT GIVEN IN THE RECORD.

ROBERT SEAGRAVE, b. Surryford, Leicestershire, 1693, graduated at Clare Hall, Cambridge, 1718; Sunday evening Lecturer at Lorimer's Hall in London, 1739; and subsequently preached at the Tabernacle in connection with the Calvinistic Methodists. (1.) The clergy of Thirty-nine Articles, London, 1738, 8vo. (2.) Bishop Gibson's Pastoral Letter, 1739, 4to. See also Remarks on Mr. Seagrave's Conduct and Writings, 4to. (3.) Hymns for Christian Worship, 1742, 8vo.; 1748, original and selected. Fifty Hymns from his pen were published under the title of "Hymns and Spiritual Songs for Christian Worship, with a Sketch of the Author; edited by Daniel Sedgwick (infra) 1860, 12mo," (4.) The Principles of Liberty, 1755, 8vo.

REV. ARTIS SEAGRAVE, b. at Pittsgrove, Salem Co., N. J., Feb. 1, 1755; was there ordained by Rev. Messrs. Kelsay, Vanhorn and Worth, (Baptists,) in 1782; became pastor of the church in Cape May, in 1785, and resigned in 1788 to go to Oldman's Creek, where in 1792 he was engaged in practising medicine and preaching to a branch of the Pittsgrove church. Mr. Morgan Edwards, author of "Materials towards a History of the Baptists in Jersey," in 1792, says of him, that "he was much thought of at the Cape till he began to preach up the extravagant vagaries of the Rellites!" This means that he had begun to preach the Doctrine of Universal Salvation. He became an earnest and faithful preacher of the new faith he had embraced, and was the author of some twenty or more hymns as a contribution to the second Collection of Hymns, published in 1792-3, for the use of the Universalist denomination. He was quite active in the conventions, conferences, etc., until his decease in the early part of the present century. He married Elizabeth Shinn, by whom he had children as late as 1792; their names were Martha, Sarah, Mary, and Hannah.

HAYLEY'S LIFE OF WILLIAM COWPER, Esq., 3 Vols. 4to.—Chichester : Printed by J. Seagrave, for J. Johnson, St. Paul's Churchyard, London, 1803-4.

HERALDIC COATS OF ARMS AND CRESTS BORNE BY FAMILIES OF SEAGRAVES IN ENGLAND.

The family name was first spelled Seagrave, then in early Anglo-Saxon times, Seegraf, Seagrove, and finally Segrave and Seagrave. Grave is old German for Graf=Counr. Also, some think it comes from grave, Saxon for grove, or woodlands on the seashore. It is more probably the former, being one of the now extinct titles of Ancient Germany—Landgrave, (still extant), Seagrave, Margrave, and Burgrave. Members of this family came with Cerdec to England, A. D. 519, and settled in and about Hampshire and Leicestershire. We find towns bearing the name, Burton-Seagrave, near Kettering in Hampshire, and Seagrave in Leicestershire. The former is celebrated for the remains of a pure Gothic church, and old manor, also for the magnificent Hall built by Van Brugh under Queen Anne, on the ruins of the castle, destroyed by fire. The parks and gardens are considered very fine; the latter for its church, and for being the residence of BURTON, the author of the Anatomy of Melancholy.

The family of BURTON-SEAGRAVE prospered until the reign of Edward I., who gave his granddaughter, Lady Suffolk, daughter of the Duke of Suffolk, to Sir JOHN SEGRAVE to wife. This Sir John, a general, was defeated with a large army in Scotland, and committed suicide in his fear of the King's wrath. His wife, with her son and daughter, sought her grandfather's protection, and thus saved the estates for her son. Two of this daughter's descendants, years after, married a Boleyn, and a Parr, and thus Henry VIII. claimed that his second and his last wives were of royal descent, as well as the first. The full Coat of Arms is as follows :

Upper dexter and lower sinister, three sheaves of wheat, or, crossed by a bar, or, (conferred by Edward I. for bravery in battle,) on a field, sable. Upper sinister and lower dexter, lower half-field gules, upper azure, on which a lion emerging from a crown, and holding a Maltese cross, all or. The helmet is of steel with three bars, the plumes, black and green. The Crest is a dexter hand holding a palm branch. There has never been a family motto, each member having chosen one to suit his family traits, or himself.

The second quartering, viz: the lion emerging from a royal crown, was adopted by Sir John Seagrave on his marriage with Lady Elizabeth Suffolk.

Mention is made in English history of Nicholas (Lord) Seagrave who was 13th Lord of England in 1308, and Thomas Plantagenet, of Brotherton, Earl of Norfolk, in right of his wife, daughter and heir of Lord Seagrave, was 14th Lord in 1315. We find among the extinct Peerages of England, the names of several Seagraves whose titles severally became extinct in 1319, 1322, 1351, and 1355.

Worcester, March 18, 1762.

It will be seen by the above, that the assets of the estate, after paying the expenses of burial and the legal settlement of the estate, were but £4, and the claims of creditors amounted to more than £16, hence the decree of the Judge, declaring a dividend of 5 shillings on a pound to the creditors.

*From this item of expenses incurred, it may be inferred that the deceased died in that locality—Upper Ashuelot, rather than in the mountains, as stated from tradition. See page 14 of preceding Record.

APPENDIX E.

THE DORRINGTON FAMILY.

The following record is appended to the Genealogical Record of the Seagrave Family by reason of the intermarriage of the families, that those bearing the name of Dorrington may know from what source they received their names. These records are gathered from various sources, traditionary and documentary, and it is believed that they are substantially correct, and can be relied on.

Among the "Intentions of Marriage," in the town records of Boston, is found the following:—WILLIAM DORRINGTON to DAMARIS BRUF, Jan'y 27, 1722," and it is presumed that they were married soon after, though no record of the fact is found. They had these children:

1—WILLIAM, b. in 1724; m. Betsey Fitzgerald.

2—MARY, b. Aug. 14, 1726; m. John Merritt of Boston, (b. Feb. 24, 1731,) Dec. 9, 1762; armorer or gunsmith.

John Merritt, gunsmith, Adams-st., house head of Hancock's Wharf.—Boston Directory, 1789.

John Merritt died Sept. 29, 1799.

Mary (Dorrington) Merritt, his wife, died May 4, 1812.

3—JOHN, b. in 1728; m. Mary Seagrave, dau. of 1 John Seagrave.

WILLIAM DORRINGTON, (1 William,) b. in 1724; cordwainer; m. Betsey Fitzgerald. They had these children:

1—SARAH, b. in Boston, April 7, 1755; m. 6 John Seagrave of Uxbridge. She died Sept. 19, 1831.

2—BETSEY, b. in 1757, at Boston; m. James Tilly; lived in Uxbridge several years. She died Oct. 16, 1840.

3-POLLY, b. in Boston, —; died in Roxbury, at the age of 18.

4-HANNAH, b. in Boston, —; m. a Mr. Palmer, and 2d, a Capt. Heard; went to Halifax, N. S.

5-WILLIAM, b. in Boston, —; and died there when a young man. Tradition says that he and his sister, Polly, were buried in one grave, from this, it may be inferred, that they died about the same time.

6-JOHN, b. in Boston, —; died there when a young man.

William Dorrington, 2d, was a cordwainer by trade, died in Boston previous to Jan. 10, 1777; left a son John, a minor above 14 years of age, and Mr. John Merritt, (his uncle,) armorer, of Boston, was appointed as Guardian, with Thomas Pophims, witesmith, and Jonathan Blaisdell, armorer, of Boston, as bondsmen.

Feb. 28, 1778, John Merritt was appointed administrator of the estate of William Dorrington, late of Boston, deceased. An inventory of the estate was made soon after, of £52 19 0; James Bayley, John Tilly, appraisers.

John Dorrington, 1st, born in 1728, son of William Dorrington, 1st, was captain of a vessel plying between Boston and English ports, so says tradition, and this statement is corroborated in part, by the fact, that in the inventory of his estate, a mariner's compass is mentioned. He married as before stated, Mary Seagrave, dau. of 1 John Seagrave. They resided on Fleet-st., at the north end of old Boston, for about three years previous to his death in 1772, as appears from the Suffolk Co. Registry of Deeds, book 115, page 255, that John Dorrington, mariner, purchased a certain messuage of one Joseph Breck, taylor, and Hannah Breck, his wife, for the sum of £240, lawful money, the deed of which bears date, Nov. 8, 1769, and the following is an extract from that document:

“A certain messuage with the land thereto belonging, situate in the northerly part of Boston, and bounded as follows: Southerly on Fleet Street, thence 25 ft. westerly on land of Nathaniel Hodgson, measuring 50 ft. southerly again, with a small return, westerly on said Hodgson's land 21 ft. and 6 in., northerly on an alley or passage way lying between the land hereby granted, and the land of John Baker, then measuring 28 ft. and 2 in., easterly on land of Daniel Bullard in part and on land of Old North Church in part, thence measuring 71 feet more or less, or however otherwise bounded, with the perpetual use and privilege of said alley or passage way in common with others.”

Capt. John Dorrington died in Boston, March 14, 1772.

This property and his personal property was willed to his widow who probably occupied the premises until her decease in 1776, the will bearing date, Feb. 15, 1772, and she named as the sole executrix.

The following inscription is found on the tombstone over the grave of Capt. John Dorrington, and copied from Whitmore's Inscriptions in the Copp's Hill Burial Ground, in Boston, No. 622:

"Here lies buried the Body of Capt. John Dorrington, | Obiit 14th March 1772. Aetatis 44."

Widow Mary Dorrington having deceased, Sarah Seagrave, widow, of Boston, (her mother,) was appointed administratrix of her estate, the appointment bearing date Nov. 11, 1776, with John Merritt, armorer, and Isaac Greenwood, turner, both of Boston, as bondsmen.

An Inventory of the estate of (Widow) Mary Dorrington was made, Nov. 18, 1776, consisting of dwelling-house, land, etc., £300, Sundries, £132 7s=£432 7s., which was about the same amount as she received from her husband's estate in 1772.

The following notice appeared in the Continental Journal, (Boston,) Dec. 5, 1776:

"All persons that have any demands on the estate of Mary Dorrington, late of Boston, deceased, are desired to send in their claims to Sarah Seagrave, administratrix of said deceased's estate; also, all persons who are indebted to said estate are desired to make speedy payment."

This same estate was conveyed by deed, Oct. 14, 1788, from John Merritt, armorer, and Mary, his wife, who had come into possession of it either by inheritance or purchase, to James Bayley, housewright, which act transferred the property to parties out of the family. The same estate was assigned to Mary Langdon, Sept. 5, 1794, as security for a sum of money loaned. The same estate was taken possession of by one Redford Webster, Sept. 2, 1812, and was owned by him and his heirs, with property adjoining, for many years after, it is said.

APPENDIX F.

MILITARY RECORD OF CAPT. EDWARD SEAGRAVE, AND HIS TWO SONS,
JOHN AND JOSEPH SEAGRAVE—APRIL 19, 1775—1781.

The following Certifications of Records of Military Services rendered during the War for National Independence were obtained from the Secretary of State, and the custodian of the Revolutionary Documents:

L. S.      Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

I Hereby Certify, That from an examination of the Books and Documents relating to Military Services in the War of the Revolution, which remain in this department, it appears that the name of EDWARD SEAGRAVE is borne upon "a Muster Roll of the Militia Company that marched from Uxbridge on the alarm on the 19th of April, 1775, under the command of Capt. Samuel Read." Service as First Lieutenant, 7 days.

It is borne again upon "A Return of Capt. Seagrave's Company, Col. (Jos.) Read's Regiment, the Twentieth Regiment of Foot in the Massachusetts 8 months Service." Service as a captain, roll dated Sept. 25, 1775.

The name of Edward Seagrave is found in "A Record of Officers, commissioned from 1776 to 1780." Commissioned as captain of the 9th Company, in the 3d Worcester County Regiment. Date of the Commission not given.

Also, on a List of commissioned Officers for Worcester County. Commissioned as Captain of 9th Company, 3d Regiment, Jan. 30, 1778.

The name of Edward Seagrave is borne again upon the Pay Roll of a Company commanded by himself, in Col. Wade's Regiment. Service in Rhode Island as a Captain, 26 days from July 12, 1778.

On file in this office is an order of which the following is a copy :

To Thomas Ivers, Esq., Treasurer of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts :

Please pay to Mr. Benjamin Green, the pay due to me, the subscriber, on my Pay Roll lodged in your office, for service done in Col. Wade's Regiment in Rhode Island in the year 1778, and this shall be your discharge for the same.

EDWARD SEAGRAVE.

Uxbridge, June ye 1, 1784.

OLIVER WARNER,
Secretary of the Commonwealth.

L. S.      Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Secretary's Office, Boston, March 12, 1862.

I Hereby Certify, That from an examination of the Books and Documents relating to Military Services in the War of the Revolution, which remain in this Department, it appears that the name of JOSEPH SEAGRAVE of Uxbridge is borne upon a Return of Capt. Edward Seagrave's Company, Col. Read's Regiment of Eight Months men. Service as a fifer.

Also, on Coat Roll of same Company, dated Roxbury, December 21, 1775.

The name of Joseph Seagrave is borne upon a Pay Roll of Capt. Benjamin Read's Company, Col. John Rand's Regiment of new levies from the County of Worcester, raised for three months to reinforce the Continental Army and stationed at West Point. Service as a fife major, 3 months and 7 days from July 14, 1780.

The name of Joseph Seagrave is borne upon a Pay Roll of Capt. Job Knapp's Company which marched to Rhode Island agreeable to an order from the General Court of the 28th of February, 1781, and continued in service until regularly discharged. Service as a fifer, 17 days from March 2d, 1781.

OLIVER WARNER,
Secretary of the Commonwealth.

State House, Boston, March 27, 1862.

DEAR SIR:

A thorough examination of the Revolutionary Rolls brings to light but one additional name connected with the Seagrave Family that of JOHN SEAGRAVE.

I find his name on "A Pay Roal of the non-commissioned officers and priver solders belonging to Capt. Benj'n Farrar's company in Col. Benj'n Haws' Regiment for the Bounty granted by a Lait Act of the General Cort of the Massachusetts Bay, to those engaged in the secret expedition, so called, in the Stait of Rhodisland, in the months of September and October, 1777." Service as a private, one month and fifteen days from September 27, 1777.

I find it again upon "A pay roll of Capt. Caleb Whitney's company, in Col. Benjamin Haws' regiment, while in service in the expedition against the Island of Rhode Island, from ye 20th of July, 1778, to ye 12th of September inclusive, allowing one day to return home." Service as a fifer, one month and fifteen days. * * *

Yours truly,

ALANSON HAWLEY.

Daniel Seagrave, Esq., Worcester.

APPENDIX G.

I EDWARD SEAGRAVE'S WILL—1793.

In the Name of God, Amen.

I EDWARD SEAGRAVE of Uxbridge, in the County of Worcester and Commonwealth of Massachusetts, Gentleman, being at this present time in a weak and low state of bodily Health, but Blessed be God of a sound disposing Mind and Memory—but calling to mind the Mortality of my Body, and knowing that it is appointed for all men once to die, do make, ordain, and declare this my last will and Testament in manner and form following, viz: First, I give and Commend my Soul into the Hands of God who gave it, hoping through the meritts, Death and Passion of my Savior Jesus Christ to obtain a full and free pardon and forgiveness of all my sins and to inherit eternal Life—and my body I commit unto the Earth to be Buried in a Christian like and decent manner at the discretion of my Executor hereinafter named; and as Touching such worldly Estate wherewith it hath pleased God to bless me with in this life and world, I give, demise and dispose of in manner following: that is to say, First, my Will is that all my just debts that I owe to any manner of person or persons whatsoever shall be well and truly paid by my Executor hereinafter named in Convenient time after my decease, after which I Give and Bequeath unto my well Beloved and lawfull Wife, Louice Seagrave the Improvement of one third part of my Homelace and buildings thereon standing, and of the Twenty Acre Wood lot so called lying on the southerly side of the Road beyond Solomon Tyler's, so long as she may remain my Widow, allso, I give and bequeath unto my said Wife and to be to her sole use and disposal, one third part of all my personal Estate of any name or nature whatsoever, (which may remain after the discharge of my debts as aforesaid,) except what is herein after particularly described and disposed of.

Allso, I give and bequeath unto my five Youngest and beloved sons, (viz;) Bezaleel Seagrave, Caleb Seagrave, Josiah Seagrave, Edward Seagrave and Samuel Seagrave, all my Real Estate both land and buildings, lying and being in Uxbridge aforesaid or elsewhere, likewise the remaining two thirds of all my personal Estate of any name or nature whatsoever, except what is herein after particularly described and disposed of—and to be equally divided betwixt them.

Also, I give and Bequeath unto my well beloved and eldest son, John Seagrave, the one half of all my Sawmill Irons which is all I now give him, he having received his portion out my Estate heretofore.

Also, I give and Bequeath unto my well beloved son, Joseph Seagrave, the sum of Sixty pounds Lawfull Money, to be paid him by my Executor. hereinafter named, in Convenient time after my decease and to be taken or Raised out of the Value of what I have bequeathed unto my aforesaid five youngest sons before the division betwixt them. ### MILITARY ROLL OF HONOR

OF THOSE OF THE NAME WHO SERVED THEIR COUNTRY IN THE GREAT REBELLION OF 1861—1866.

CHARLES STOWE SEAGRAVE, Co. H., 25th Reg. Mass. Vols.

Enlisted as a private, on the 19th of September, 1861, to serve for three years or during the war. Promoted Corporal Sept. 19, 1861; promoted Sergeant June 13, 1862; promoted 1st Sergeant Nov. 5, 1862; and was discharged at Newport News, Va., Jan. 17, 1864, by reason of re-enlistment. Was commissioned 1st Lieutenant Oct. 21, 1864; and was discharged at Charlotte, N. C., July 13, 1865, and mustered out of service at Readville, Mass., at the close of the war.

In June, 1863, while stationed at Newbern, N. C., a furlough of ten days was granted him to visit his home. On returning to his regiment via New York City, he was detained there several days, on account of a riot, and, while there, was placed in charge of the N. Y. Evening Post, for its protection against the rioters. May 14, 1865, he was again detailed to select 27 men and take charge of the rebel archives then at Charlotte, N. C., and convoy the same by rail to Raleigh and deliver them to Maj. Gen. Schofield. Upon arriving there, the command was highly complimented, and tendered the honor of a visit to Washington to join the grand review, but circumstances compelled them to decline the compliment.

He participated in all the engagements, skirmishes, and marches in which his command took part, including Roanoke, Newbern, Kingston, Whitehall, Goldsboro, Port Walthall, Arrowfield Church, Drewry's Bluff, Cold Harbor, and other battles before Richmond, and Wise's Fork.

See page 18, for genealogy.

WILLIAM HENRY SEAGRAVE, Co. H., 25th Reg't Mass. Vols.

The following sketch of the military career of Capt. Seagrave, has been kindly furnished for this work by a member of his immediate family, and which the compiler most cheerfully gives a place, to perpetuate the memory of the bravery, patriotism, and self-sacrifice of this noble martyr for freedom and his country.

"Capt. WM. H. SEAGRAVE was the son of Edward F. and Sarah R. Seagrave. He was born in Smithfield, R. I., April 21, 1843, and while a child his parents removed to Uxbridge, Mass. He remained at home, attending school and assisting generally in the labors of the farm until he was eighteen years old, when, at the call of his country, he enlisted as a private on the 23d of September, 1861, in Co. H., 25th Reg't of Mass. Vols., then encamped in Worcester, Mass. On the 31st day of October, the regiment broke camp and went to Annapolis, Md., awaiting orders. Thence Jan. 6th, 1862, under command of Gen. Burnside, they started on an expedition South. When near Hatteras Inlet, Jan. 13th, during a severe storm, the vessel on which they had embarked was wrecked, and Capt. Seagrave together with several others, got into a small boat which came near being swamped, but were finally rescued by one of the gunboats.

His first engagement was on Roanoke Island, Feb. 8th, 1862, where he was slightly wounded by a spent ball striking his knee. On the 14th, he was engaged in the battle of Newbern; on the 16th of May, he was at the battle of Trenton, N. C.; he was also at the battle of Kingston, N. C., Dec. 4th; at Whitehall, N. C., Dec. 16th; and at Goldsboro, Dec. 17th. These battles were fought within the short period of eleven days, requiring a tedious march for the regiment of 150 miles. March 7, 1863, while on scouting duty with his company, he had a narrow escape, receiving a bullet through his cap. May 22d, he was engaged in the battle of Gum Swamp. Aug. 15th, he was detailed private Orderly for Maj. Gen. Peck. Dec. 1st, he returned to his regiment, where he remained till Jan. 17th, 1864, re-enlisting for three years. Feb. 10th, he had orders to appear before Gen. Casey at Washington, was examined and received a Captain's commission. He returned home on a short leave of absence, and, March 16th, reported to Col. Bowman at Baltimore, and was assigned to Co. K., 30th Regiment U. S. Colored Troops with orders to report to Col. Oakman.

He was engaged in various services, acting chiefly with the rear guard of the army under Gen. Grant, until July, 1864. The next we hear of him, he had charge of the skirmish line on the left of the 9th Army Corps near Petersburg. Of the result of the battle which there took place, so far as relates to Capt. Seagrave, nothing was known till a letter was received from a brother officer, Lieut. J. Q. Adams, of the same regiment, who wrote to his parents, as follows:

'Capt. S. went into the action of July 30, leaving his memorandum book in my hands. After the action, I found that he was missing. On the 31st, had an armstice of one and a half hours to bury the dead, and went out to ascertain his fate. His body was not on the field, and on making some enquiries of the rebels who were in the fight, an officer gave me the description of an officer of the 30th Reg't who was wounded and taken prisoner; his description was that of Capt. Seagrave, as I last saw him, and I have no reason to doubt but that he is now in the hands of the rebels a prisoner.' * *

The service which Capt. S., as commander of colored troops was called to render, was most arduous. The last entry in his journal was on the 29th of July, 1864, the day before the battle in front of Petersburg, where the terrific mine explosion took place that proved so fatal to the colored troops engaged in it. It was to Capt. S. that the duty was entrusted of leading the charge for the capture of one of the works, after the explosion of the mine, but unsupported as he was, it was an utter impossibility for such a body of men to have held the position they sought to occupy. They did all that soldiers could do in the performance of duty, and for the result that followed, they were in no wise responsible. After the charge upon the mine, Capt. S. found himself flanked by a body of rebels. His brave boys cut a way through for him several times that he might retreat with the colors, but he was unable to avail himself of this, on account of a gun-shot wound he had received. As he lay upon the field, wounded and helpless, he was bayoneted in both thighs and in the left shoulder, yet, like a brave soldier, he still grasped the colors till he was rendered insensible by a blow upon his head. He was taken to Libby prison, and, surviving the tender mercies of the rebel authorities, was at length exchanged and returned home, with a broken constitution, and a shattered body, to linger out a few months of suffering, and to die as surely a patriot's death, as though he had died of his wounds in the flush of battle. He died at his home in Uxbridge, Mass. Nov. 3, 1865, beloved by his many friends, and honored by his comrades with a soldier's burial."

Resolutions in eulogy of Capt. Seagrave were adopted by his associate officers of the 30th Regiment, expressive of their sorrow for his departure, and bearing grateful tribute to his memory as a brave and efficient officer.

LAWSON AUGUSTUS SEAGRAVE, Co. H, 15th Reg't Mass. Vols.

Enlisted July 12, 1861, was promoted Corporal, and served his country faithfully and well, till mustered out Aug. 20, 1864. Was with the regiment in the various battles, skirmishes, and marches to the battle of Antietam, at which he received a severe wound in the calf of his leg. Previous to the battle of Ball's Bluff, the regiment was stationed at Poolesville, Md., about five miles from the Potomac river, doing picket duty, two companies alternating with two other companies in doing duty. Co. H. was on picket at the time of crossing the river for the battle, having passed over to Harrison's Island several days previous in order to more closely watch the movements of the enemy. Swam the river with many others in the night after the battle on retreat. Went through the marches after to Harper's Ferry, Va., and out to Berryville, Charleston, Winchester, etc.; then on to the Peninsular, at the seige of Yorktown, battle of Fair Oaks two days, and the seven days fight and retreat from front of Richmond to the James river; at the battle of Malvern Hill, and from the Peninsular went back through Maryland to drive Gen. Lee from the State after going to second battle of Bull Run, the 15th Regiment being in the division which covered that retreat. Relieved the line of battle at South Mountain and the next day on to Antietam. Was engaged the second day of the fight, when he was wounded, and rendered unfit for active service. Was in hospital some five or six months, then went to Alexandria, Va., and did duty as Ward Master till expiration of term of service. The above narration is mostly the language of the subject of this sketch, substituting the first for the third person.

GRADUATES OF COLLEGES.

REV. EDWARD SEAGRAVE, graduated at Brown University, at Providence, R. I., in 1822. The following sketch of his life and labors is taken from the Watchman and Reflector of August 30th, 1877, with a brief extract from an historical discourse preached in Northboro, in 1868, by Rev. D. F. Lamson, who was a successor of Mr. Seagrave as pastor of the Baptist church in that place.

"REV. EDWARD SEAGRAVE was born in Chester, Vt., July 15, 1797. At the age of four years his father removed to Woodstock, Conn., where his boyhood and youth were passed. When sixteen years old he joined the church. He also began to teach school at this age, and was thus employed a part or all of the time each year for twenty-three years. When eighteen years old, he began to fit for college. In 1818, he was admitted to Brown University, and was graduated in 1822, in a class 'distinguished for the number of conspicuous men it contained,' among whom were Hon. Isaac Davis, and the late lamented Rev. Dr. Alexis Caswell. On being graduated, he commenced teaching in Providence, and studying for the Christian ministry under the direction of Prof. Park. A year later he was licensed by the First Baptist church of that city. For more than six years he was occupied in theological studies, teaching school, and preaching in different places. In March, 1830, he was ordained, and became pastor of the Baptist church in Scituate, Mass. Here he toiled faithfully for about five years, supplementing his pastoral work with school teaching in the winters, and taking a large share in the care of the schools of the town. 'In the spring of 1835, the pastorate of the church in Northboro, rendered vacant by the dismissal of Rev. Alonzo King, was filled by Rev. Edward Seagrave.' The church prospered under his faithful and persistent labors. In May, 1836, Mr. Seagrave resigned, on account of failing health, having filled the office but one year. His labors had proved too severe, his constitution was broken down and never re-established. In the autumn of 1836, he removed to Western New York, in the hope of physical benefit, and gave himself to agricultural pursuits. His hope was partially realized, so much so that after a time he accepted a pastorate in Oneida county. This, however, he was obliged to surrender at the expiration of three years. In 1847, he returned to Rhode Island and took up his abode in Pawtucket. In 1855, he removed to Topeka, Kansas, and was there through the great contest which ended with the admission of free Kansas into the family of States. Here he was engaged in his life work, helping in the establishment of public schools, organizing and superintending a Sunday school, and preaching. He returned to Pawtucket in 1860. For about two years of the time of the rebellion he was engaged as a citizen nurse in the General Hospital at Portsmouth Grove, ministering to the sick and suffering soldiers. With the exception of his absence in Kansas and at Portsmouth Grove, the last thirty years were spent in Pawtucket, in secular employment and occasional as a preacher, being seriously impaired in health, and thus unable to engage in active public labor.

His life may be characterized as a busy one, devoted to doing good. His preaching is said to have been expository and instructive. He was a quiet, singularly cheerful, unobtrusive, peaceable and peace-making man. He was nevertheless clear and firm in his convictions, and loyal to them. His bearing was above reproach, and he was a perpetual recommendation of the religion he professed. For thirty years he was an esteemed member of the First Baptist church in Pawtucket. He was a friend of his pastors, and cherished the church with deep affection to the very last.

For many months he was confined to his home, and much of the time to his bed, ready, longing, yet patiently waiting for his Lord's call into the everlasting rest. On Saturday morning, Aug. 18, 1877, he had his desire—he went home. His pastor was assisted in the funeral services by Rev. John Allen, who took part in Mr. Seagrave's ordination, forty-seven years ago."

REV. JAMES CARTER SEAGRAVE was born in Uxbridge, Mass., April 14, 1821. His boyhood was spent at home where he assisted on the farm. He fitted for college principally at the Academy in his native town. He entered Brown University in 1840. In the winter of '41-42, his failing health compelled him to leave college, but in 1843, he returned and completed the regular course in 1845. Having taught a year in Brooklyn, Conn., he entered the Theological School at Andover and completed the course in 1849.

After teaching a year in Walpole, N. H., he began to preach statedly in Seeconk, Mass., and in the spring of 1851, was called to the Fifth Congregational Church in Providence, R. I., and was ordained on the 3d of December following.

In January, 1854, he was called to Rochester, N. H., but was compelled to leave the pastorate after two years, by the failure of his own health and that of his wife. Having spent a year in supplying pulpits in the vicinity of Providence, he began pastoral work in Scotland, Bridgewater, Mass., where Mrs. S. died Sept. 17, 1858. After a service of eight or nine years in that place, he was called to Wentworth, N. H.

At the end of five years, he returned to Massachusetts and spent the next eight years in ministerial work in Marshfield and Haverhill. In the spring of 1878, he removed from Haverhill to Otis, where he is engaged in pastoral labor at the present time.

Thus, now, for more than thirty years, his ministerial service has continued with little interruption, except when sickness has now and then compelled him to rest for a season.

BIOGRAPHICAL NOTICES.

It was not the purpose of this work to enter extensively into biography, but brief sketches of a few of the older ancestry, and some of later years who have been more or less prominent, it was thought, would not be unacceptable to the readers of this volume. Among the older, the sons of Capt. Edward Seagrave will be specially, the others incidentally, noticed.

JOHN, the oldest son of Capt. Edward Seagrave, was a well-known and prosperous farmer. He first settled, so far as known, on the farm for many years owned by Seth Seagrave, and later by Keith W., his son. On this estate he erected a house in 1787, the date being on a tile set in the front side of the chimney. The house was burnt a few years since. In 1792, he purchased of his father the homestead on which he resided till his decease in 1842. The dwelling house which he occupied during the first few years after purchase, stood on the county road a few rods north of the residence of the late Scott Seagrave, where the new street leading to the new Douglas road leaves the county' road. In this house his youngest son, Daniel, was born. He soon after fitted up the dwelling house at the corner of the county road and the old Douglas road, in which he resided until his decease. He also owned extensive tracts of land, other than his farm, in Uxbridge and the adjoining town of Northbridge.

For many years, he raised cattle and mules quite extensively, and to the profits he was indebted for much of his property. He also kept large flocks of sheep, and from the annual sales of wool and mutton, he derived a considerable revenue.

During the revolutionary war, he served the cause of the Colonies, both as a soldier and fifer, and also assisted in moving the army.

"Uncle John," as he was familiarly called, and often spoken of, was a large hearted, whole-souled man, in that, he never sent the poor away from his door hungry or empty handed, or refused them shelter and lodging; neither would he distress his debtor, or those less fortunate than himself.

He was most passionately fond of children, never withholding from them a share of his "good things" of which he always had an abundance in store. In him, the children found a friend, a defender, and an apologist for their supposed misdemeanors.

In the year 1830, his son, DANIEL, made a large addition to the west side of the house, which he occupied. At the father's decease, the part of the house owned by him and about 50 acres of land adjacent, comprising the north portion of the estate, were set off to Daniel as his portion, and which he continued to own and occupy till his decease in 1848. His next older brother, BEZALEEL, built a house about 1825, on a lot next south, and at the father's decease, a portion of the estate contiguous to his house lot was set off to him. DORRINGTON, his oldest brother, inherited a portion the father's estate next south and adjoining that of his brother, Bezaleel's, on which he soon after erected a house, in which he lived during the remainder of his lifetime.

His descendants are quite numerous, now widely scattered from the home of their grandsire, and who revere the memory of this good man.

JOSEPH, the second son of Capt. Edward, was a physician and surgeon, and received the degree of M. D. from Yale College in 1793, so said his son, Rev. Edward Seagrave of Pawtucket, R. I. Settled first in Chester, Vt., in 1793, where he married, and where several of his children were born. After remaining there about twelve years, he moved to Woodstock, Ct., where he purchased a farm, which he carried on, and continued the practice of his profession. He had an extensive practice in both places of his residence. It is said, that he was a natural surgeon, and performed very difficult and almost wonderful feats of surgery, some of which had baffled the skill of many of the most eminent and learned in the profession.

When but fifteen years of age, he enlisted in his father's company as a fifer, and served in that capacity, and in other companies, by repeated enlistments during the revolutionary struggle.

Dr. Seagrave was twice married, his last wife surviving him. He died in Woodstock, Ct., Aug. 30, 1830, aged 69 years.

JOSEPH, Jr., son of Dr. Joseph, studied medicine and surgery with Dr. Mason of Dartmouth, Mass., and was noted for close application to his books, and great proficiency in his studies. It is related of him, that while a student, he gave such marked evidence of his ability, that his opinion was frequently sought by some of the best known practitioners in that vicinity. In 1815, at the age of twenty, he went to Thompson, Ct., to practise his profession. At that time, there was settled in the town, the Rev. Daniel Dow, afterwards a D. D., pastor of the Congregational church, a man of great learning and varied attainments. Dr. S. soon made the acquaintance of this scholarly gentleman, and it was from the family of Dr. Dow, that he chose his future wife. In October, 1816, he was married to Elizabeth Marsh Dow. He remained in Thompson till the year 1818, when he removed to Cheshire, Mass., where he remained five years. In 1823, he returned to Thompson, greatly to the satisfaction of the residents of the entire vicinity. He entered at once upon a large practice, and his reputation as a physician rapidly increased. Soon, however, he was called to leave his profession, his friends, and his family. He who had devoted himself with so much ability in his profession in helping others, was not able to heal himself—he died in 1824, at the age of twenty-nine years, leaving a wife and four young children, and many friends to mourn his early departure. Had Dr. Seagrave's life been prolonged, he would undoubtedly have become one of the most noted and able practitioners of his time.

During the war of 1812, when it was with much difficulty that competent surgeons could be obtained, Dr. S., from a sense of duty, volunteered as surgeon in the army; he also performed the duty of a soldier, and, while acting in this capacity, was wounded and compelled to leave the service. After his recovery, however, he retained the position of surgeon in the State militia for several years.

GEORGE NICHOLS, only son of Joseph, Jr., early manifested a desire to become a physician, but finally pursued the vocation of druggist and Professor of Pharmacy, and established himself in business in the city of New Haven, Ct.. His agreeable, affable manners, and skill in his profession, made him very popular in the community, by whom he was highly respected.

He had a commendable pride in his ancestry. The family Bible, in two large folio volumes with Smith's Annotations, which were originally his great-great-grandmother's, as stated in the will of Capt. Edward Seagrave, came into his possession in early manhood. The following is an extract from the record made by him in these ancient volumes:

"They (the two volumes) were presented to my great-grandfather with the request that they should be retained in the family. This request has been complied with. The object of making this record is, to impress upon the future heirs of the name, the historic fact, that these volumes contain the words of life, which cheered a Puritan in his lonely pilgrimage to this uninhabited country, and as he wished, so I desire, when I shall have no further use for them here below, that they be transmitted to my children, and if no male representative survives me, let them go to some family of that name in Connecticut or Massachusetts."

The following is the language of the title page of these ancient and treasured volumes :

"The Complete History of the Old and New Testaments, or a Family Bible, with large Annotations, extracted from the Writings of the Rev. Mr. Stackhouse, Calmet, Le Clerc, Bishop Patrick, and others of the most Celebrated Authors, Ancient and Modern; in which is Explained, Illustrated, and, by various Arguments, confirmed, the History of the Creation, the Fall of Man, the Antediluvian Patriarchs, the General Deluge, also the Confusion of Tongues, the Origin of the Hebrew Nation, the Ancestors of the Jews, with an Account of their Religions, Laws and Antient Rites and Ceremonies; of the Israelites in their Egyptian Bondage and Deliverance from it, their Wonderful Journey through the Wilderness, the miraculous Delivery of the Law on Mount Sinai, their Arrival and Settlement in the Land of Canaan, together with the various Wars, Commotions and Revolutions in the Jewish State till its Extinction in the Babylonish Captivity, with its Revival in their Return to their own Country; Likewise the History of the New Testament, with the Life, Doctrine, Miracles and Death and Ascension of Our Blessed Lord. Also, the most memorable Triumphs of his Apostles, their Doctrines, &c., &c. By S. Smith, D. D. Adorned with One Hundred and Sixty Copper Plates, and Maps curiously and properly adapted to the Work. London: Printed for the Author and Sold by the Booksellers. MDCCXXXIX."

He and family removed to Louisiana in 1846, and all died there with yellow fever in the month of November, 1854.

Rev. EDWARD, son of Dr. Joseph, sr., was a Baptist clergyman, and resided for many years previous to his decease, at Pawtucket, R. I. See Appendix K, for an extended biography.

See Chapter IV, and Appendix F.

BEZALEEL, the third son of Capt. Edward, settled in Uxbridge, his homestead being on the old Douglas road next west of that of the present John S. Taft's, on the opposite side of the road, where he resided until his decease in 1830. He was the executor of the wills of both his father and mother. He was twice married, and had a large family of children.

See Chapter V.

CALEB, fourth son of Capt. Edward Seagrave, married in Uxbridge, Mass., settled in Ashford, Ct., in 1804; had but one son, who was born in Uxbridge previous to his removal to Connecticut. The family resided in Ashford several years, and subsequently removed to Mansfield. Both father and son continued to reside there until their decease, and were men of some prominence in the towns in which they lived.

See Chapter VI.

JOSIAH, fifth son of Capt. Edward Seagrave, married and settled in his native town, Uxbridge, Mass. His homestead was in the southwest part of the town near Douglas line, on which he resided till his decease in 1855. He was twice married, and had twelve children, all by his first wife. His sons, Jacob, Josiah, Edward, and George A., were extensive manufacturers, and active and prosperous business men, in Providence, R. I., and vicinity. Only the last named, and the youngest of the family, survives. He is engaged in manufacturing, and treasurer and a large owner of stock in the Central Falls Manufacturing Co., near Providence, R. I.; is connected with various banking institutions and insurance companies, in which he is an officer and stockholder. He resides in Providence.

CALEB and GEORGE E., sons of Edward, are members of the firm of Evans, Seagrave & Co., woolen manufacturers at Blackstone, Mass., and prosperous business men. The former resides in Providence, and the latter at Woonsocket, R. I.

See Chapter VII.

SAMUEL, the youngest son of Capt. Edward, married and settled in Uxbridge. His homestead was in the west part of the town on a cross road leading from the old road from Uxbridge to Douglas, leading south and crossing the new, and nearly opposite the late residence of his son, Lewis. He resided there for many years.

See Chapter VIII.

DANIEL SEAGRAVE, the compiler of this work, was the oldest son of Daniel, the youngest son of 6 John, and was born at the old homestead of his father and grandfather, in Uxbridge, Mass., Sept. 5, 1831. He came to reside in Worcester, in the spring of 1849, and commenced an apprenticeship at the printer's trade in the office of the Massachusetts

Spy, of which the late Hon. John Milton Earle was editor and proprietor. After completing his apprenticeship, he was employed in the same establishment as compositor and foreman of the book and job department till May, 1861, when, in company with Rev. Albert Tyler, who was a former apprentice at the same office, he bought the book and job department. They have continued the business of printers and publishers under the firm name of Tyler & Seagrave, for nearly twenty-one years.

During his residence in Worcester, he has taken an active interest in the various moral, religious, and educational institutions of the city, among which are the Worcester Co. Mechanics Association, of which he is a life member ; the Worcester Lyceum and Natural History Society; and the Worcester Society of Antiquity, of which he was one of the founders and its first Secretary for a period of six years. Is an active member in the several grades of the Masonic Order, and held various offices therein.

In religious belief, the subject of this sketch is a Universalist, and has, for a score of years, been identified with the church of his faith, and the Sunday school connected therewith, as member and officer.

APPENDIX O.

THE BURIAL PLACES OF OUR ANCESTORS.

In the Old Burial Ground—which was used for the purposes of burial as early as 1732, and given by deed from one Daniel Taft, the consideration of which, he says, is, “the love and affection which I bear the town of Uxbridge,” located on the sites of the High School Building, Town Hall, and the Methodist Church, directly opposite the Providence & Worcester R. R. Station—were buried our elder ancestors. The following, with year of their decease, were interred in this ancient burial ground, of which all vestiges have been entirely obliterated:

JOHN, the brother of Capt. Edward Seagrave,—1760-1.

MARY, a daughter of Capt. Edward,—1777.

SALLY, daughter of 6 John, son of Capt. Edward,—1785.

SARAH, mother of Capt. Edward,—1786.

CAPT. EDWARD,—May, 1793.

LOIS, widow of Capt. Edward,—January, 1806.

There have been no monuments or tombstones standing to designate their resting place for a period of more than half a century. The location of the family lot was pointed out to the compiler by his father, several years since, which enables him to definitely locate the same. It was under the north part of the High School building, erected 1870-1.

During the years 1869-70, the southern portion of the Old Burying Ground, so called, was appropriated by the town for the site of a School house; and soon the work of excavating the surface to the depth of several feet commenced. All the remains, which, from the lapse of sixty-five years since the last burial, were but a few bones, and small quantities of discolored earth hardly distinguishable from the soil in which they were buried, were removed to the other Burying Ground.

The sons of Capt. Edward Seagrave were buried in the towns where they settled or resided at the time of their decease, as follows: JOHN and wife in Uxbridge, Mass.; JOSEPH and first wife in Woodstock, Ct.; BEZALEEL and his two wives in Uxbridge; CALEB and wife in Mansfield, Ct.; JOSIAH and his first wife in Uxbridge; EDWARD in Chester, Vt.; and SAMUEL and wife in Uxbridge. Those of the above-named who died in Uxbridge were interred in the New Burying Ground, so called, located on the opposite side of the river, easterly from the Old Burying Ground.

FAMILY RELICS WHICH BELONGED TO THE ELDER FAMILIES AND CONNEXIONS.

- A Case of Drawers* once owned by Sarah Seagrave, the mother of Capt. Edward, as early as 1733.
- A Bureau or Dressing-Case* of same pattern, supposed to have belonged to the same party.
- 2 Chairs of different patterns, one of which belonged to same party.
- A Silver Broach*, set with diamonds or brilliants, a Military Button and several Military Coat Ornaments, which belonged to Capt. Edward, and worn by him during the Revolutionary War.
- A Punch Bowl* of antique ornamentation, owned by same party.
- An English Church Prayer Book*, printed in London, in 1764, on the cover of which is embossed the name of "Capt. John Dorrington, 1765;" A Vade Mecum, printed in London, in 1753; A Large Worsted Pocket Book, silk lining, on which is wrought the name of, and date, "JOHN DORRINGTON, 1761." These items belonged to Capt. John Dorrington.
- A Family Bible*, printed in Edinburg in 1793, and contains the family record of John Merritt.

A Bible, in two small 12mo. volumes, imperfect, the name of "SARAH DORRINGTON," embossed on first volume, a gift to her from Capt. John Dorrington, her uncle.

Several Coat and Vest Buttons from the wedding suit of 6 John Seagrave in 1777-8, which was in existence as late as 1843.

A Silver-mounted Dress Sword of ancient pattern. Tradition says, it was once owned by Wm. Eustis, Governor of Massachusetts from 1823-25, and who was a Surgeon in the Continental Army during the Revolutionary War.

A Rifle, of ancient pattern, said to have been owned by Capt. Edward Seagrave, and possibly carried by him during his military service.

The above articles are owned by and in possession of Daniel Seagrave of Worcester, Mass.

Mrs. J. N. Rawson of Uxbridge, Mass., has in her possession a solid Mahogany Table, which was willed to her mother in 1793, by her mother's grandfather, Capt. Edward Seagrave. This Table and the Case of Drawers and other articles of furniture owned by Daniel Seagrave, are enumerated in the will before mentioned. Also, some articles of China and Glass Ware, of ancient pattern, are owned by Mrs. Rawson, which were originally her grandmother's.

Mrs. H. R. Wetherell of Uxbridge, Mass., has in her possession a Gold Ring, set with an amethyst, on which is this inscription, "JOHN DORRINGTON OBIT MARCH 14, 1772, ÆT. 44." This was the mourning ring of her grandmother, Sarah Seagrave, wife of 6 John, in memory of her uncle, Capt. John Dorrington of Boston, with whom she lived many years.

Mr. J. H. Carrington of New York city, has in his possession, the two great Bibles which originally belonged to Sarah Seagrave, the mother of Capt. Edward, and printed at London in 1739. See Appendix M, for copy of the title-pages.
