FORDWORD—SMITH GENEALOGY

ANY one who has compiled a genealogy and spent perhaps a quarter of a century in collecting data as I have done could scarcely refrain from an expression of the vicissitudes of such a work and the difficulties that beset one. Much of the data has to be obtained through correspondence and the way this is treated by the various correspondents runs through the whole gamut of human endowment, from the intelligent able fitting and accurate replies to ones unresponsive, bare, and even unintelligible. Inquiries are sometimes treated with the utmost indifference and neglect, and this latter attitude not because of anything that needs to be concealed but through an apparent lack of interest and unconcern. In some instances it has taken years to bring a response so that from this source any compilation must be disjointed and piece meal. But when the weary traveler is almost exhausted an oasis appears the thorns become roses and the path is clear of brambles. Such is the feeling when sympathetic concern appeals to friends who are able and willing to put indispensable services at one's disposal. I have found many such in my work and to them I owe a debt which I cannot too strongly express.

Duplication and slight variation of names add their difficulties.

A work of this kind is bound at times to be unexpectedly full of seemingly unimportant facts and at other times unfortunately silent on matters of greater moment. This is of course because of the existence of records in one case and lack of them in the other. I have sometimes included facts of seeming insignificance if they thereby made identification more certain or a character more real. I am sensible too of the fact that I have not always treated my subjects in proportion to their interest and importance due to the want of proper materials.

My long work is done. I feel a regret something like parting with an old friend. My hope is that the errors are few, and that those that unavoidably remain will be accepted with indulgence.

SMITH OF VIRGINIA

BARTHOLOMEW SMITH of Frederick Co., Va., came from Holland to Frederick City, Md., in 1765 when he joined his maternal relatives, the Everharts of Württemberg, who had previously taken out warrants for land there.

The Smith family were natives of Stuttgart, members of which found refuge in Holland during the period of religious persecutions in Germany.

A family of this name whose head was also a Bartholomew Smith, comb manufacturer, resided in England and adopted the English spelling of the name but later returned to Holland.

Bartholomew Smith<sup>1</sup> was accompanied by three brothers, Michael (1), George (2), Nicholas (3), all of whom became residents of Maryland.

In 1772 Bartholomew and Michael removed to Virginia where they purchased plantations on Long Marsh and on a branch of the Opequon, which flows between Berryville and Winchester. In 1773 these two brothers bought from George Rice of Frederick Co., Va., 150 acres on Long Marsh, known as the "Big Spring Plantation." In June of the same year they bought of Edmund Rice of the same place 202½ acres of land at the head of Long Marsh. On Mar. 14, 1789, George Rice conveyed to Bartholomew Smith 6½ acres of land adjoining his other lands on Long Marsh. In February, 1811, Ruth Roach, John Wilson and Polly, his wife, John Ryger and Rebecca, his wife, heirs of George Rice, conveyed to Bartholomew Smith 228 acres of land adjoining his plantation of "Big Spring" in Frederick Co.

In April, 1790, Francis McCormick conveyed to Michael and George Smith 179 acres of land, known as the "Flush Spring" or the "Sprout Run" Plantation in the same county.

In September, 1792, Lord Fairfax leased to George Smith 102 acres of land in Frederick Co. and 200 acres in Lea's Manor.

In November, 1811, Michael Everhart and Barbara, his wife, Peter Hansucker and Eva, his wife, the said Barbara and Eva being daughters of Michael Smith, Sr., conveyed to George Smith all their interest in a tract of land bought by Michael and George Smith of Francis McCormick in 1790.

Michael Smith, Sr., died in 1801 at his plantation adjoining that of General Morgan's at Berryville, Va. In his will, dated Jan. 28, 1801 and probated at Winchester, Apr. 8, 1801, he mentions his wife Mary and children: George, Jacob,<sup>1</sup> Eva and Barbara,<sup>2</sup> the wife of Michael Everhart, and makes his friend George Smith his executor. It is witnessed by Bartholomew Smith and George Blackmore or Blakemore.

Bartholomew Smith came to this country when a young man. He was a member of the German Reformed Church, but was as tolerant in religious, as he afterwards became in civil matters, as is shown in the emancipation of his slaves in Virginia.

He was a powerful friend to Methodism in Virginia and threw open his house to its traveling ministers in the Shenandoah Valley. His son, in his "Recollections of an old Itinerant," says that he was much twitted for his hospitality by his neighbors who predicted "he would be eaten out of house and home by the Methodists."

Upon his return to Virginia from a visit to kinsmen in Maryland, where he had come under the influence of the Rev. William Otterbine, he invited to his home the Rev. Lewis Chastine who organized there the first Methodist meeting in this region. It was followed by a great revival under the guidance of Thomas Scott, later Judge Thomas Scott of Chillicothe, Ohio, a lifelong friend of Bartholomew Smith's.

Like other Virginians of his day he owned a number of negro slaves, but he was not entirely in sympathy with this system of labor and finally, becoming convinced of its pernicious influence, resolved as soon as it was practical, to set his slaves free. In order that he might not be hampered in this he retired from his plantation on the Opequon to a small estate near Winchester in 1815 and there began the difficult task of emancipation. The laws and people of Virginia were not favorable to free negroes and his action aroused the hostile sentiment of the local planters.

Free negroes found loitering in the Commonwealth within one year of their emancipation or forming connections with those still in bondage could again be sold into slavery. Several of Mr. Smith's young slaves were not self-supporting and consequently not yet, in his opinion, fitted for freedom. The better to overcome these serious difficulties he placed them with neighboring planters and with tradesmen and mechanics in the towns of Winchester and Front Royal, where the males were to remain until they were twenty-five and the females until they were twenty-one years of age. At the expiration of these terms of service each was to receive a good suit of clothes and a certificate of freedom. They were all strictly admonished to avoid connections with other slaves and advised to seek homes in the free states as soon as their apprenticeship expired. Those who gained their freedom during Mr. Smith's lifetime were fortunate, indeed, for several whose freedom did not come during his life suffered great hardships and were again sold into slavery. Some of the females married slaves and fell again into slavery. One went into Northern Virginia with a family who owned a slave he wished to marry and narrowly escaped a like fate. One went as a servant to Mr. Smith's daughter in Ohio. Another followed her slave husband into Maryland where she worked for the family who owned him. One fled to Pittsburgh, one served five years in the Penitentiary for theft, and one fled to the Rev. Henry Smith in Maryland where he was arrested as a suspected runaway and sold into the far South. One Fanny and her three children chose to stay on the estate with Mr. Smith's widow until her death, when they found homes in the North. The remaining ones, although passing through many hardships, retained their freedom.

I. Bartholomew Smith married, first, Catherine Everhart<sup>1</sup> of Maryland who died in 1784.

He married, secondly, Nov. 6, 1792, Margaret Haymaker<sup>2</sup> of an old family of this name in Germany, two of whom, Adam Hamaker<sup>3</sup> and John Hubrecht Hamaker, came to America on the ship "Elizabeth," sailing from Rotterdam in 1740 and became the progenitors of the Haymakers of Pennsylvania and Maryland.

<sup>3</sup>Adam Hamaker, born in 1717, was the father of Adam Hamaker, Jr., of the Flying Camp of Pennsylvania during the Revolutionary War. Samuel, son of Adam, Jr., was educated at Chambersburg. He married Anna Overdear, a relative of the Leiters of Leitersburg, Md.

Bartholomew Smith died Jan. 28, 1819. By Catherine, his first wife, he had seven children:

4. The Rev. Henry Smith of Maryland
5. Michael Smith of Virginia and Kentucky
6. Nicholas (See page 9)
7. Catherine
8. Elizabeth or Betsy
9. Mary Ursula or Polly
10. George Smith of Ohio.

In the Courthouse at Winchester is recorded the will of Bartholomew Smith, dated Dec. 29, 1818 and proved Mar. 5, 1819, which reads as follows:

“In the name of God, Amen, I, Bartholomew Smith of Frederick Co. and Commonwealth of Virginia do hereby make this my last will and testament in manner and form as follows: that is to say, first, I give to my wife Margaret the following property during her natural life to wit, the house and lot on which I now live supposed to contain about three acres of land together with one negro woman Fanny and all my household and kitchen furniture, one bed and furniture excepted which will be disposed of hereafter, also two head of cows, four head of sheep, six head of hogs, all of which are to be allowed the same privilege as to rough feed in winter and pasturage in summer as has been customary in my lifetime, together with fifty dollars in money paid her annually during her life.

“Secondly, I give to my grandson Abraham Eversole two hundred and fifty dollars which shall be deducted from my daughter Catherine’s part which may come to her.

“Thirdly, I give to my three grandsons, Amos,<sup>1</sup> Marcus and George Smith two hundred dollars to be deducted out of my daughter Betsy’s part which may come to her.

“Fourthly, I desire that after the death of my wife my lands may be sold to the best advantage by my executors hereinafter named and the money arising from the sale of the land as well as the rents and profits arising from the same until the sale thereof shall be equally divided among my six children; that is to say, Henry, Catherine, George, Michael, Betsy and Polly but it is to be clearly understood that the sums of $250 given to my grandson Abraham Eversole is to be deducted from my daughter Catherine’s part and also the sums given to my grandsons, Amos, Marcus and George Smith of

$200 each shall be deducted from my daughter Betsy's part and that my son Michael shall have two hundred dollars for and as a compensation for his extra services heretofore rendered and to be rendered to his stepmother in like manner as heretofore.

"Fifthly, I desire that the first payment of money arising from the sales of my lands shall be equally divided amongst my six children above named and that my four grandsons shall have their shares out of the second payment provided the money may hold out beginning at the oldest first.

"Sixthly, I desire that after the death of my wife that all my remaining male negroes shall be liberated at the age of twenty-five years and the females at the age of twenty-one years provided the laws of the Commonwealth shall admit of same and their posterity also and that they are to continue as they are at present except the one hired to Mr. Ryger which shall be under the control of my executors until the time that she shall be liberated as above clause directs.

"Seventhly, I give to my son Henry one bed and furniture, my riding horse and bridle and to my sons Michael and George all my wearing apparel, etc. and lastly I do hereby constitute and appoint my friends Henry and Michael Smith my executors of this my last Will and Testament, revoking all other or former Wills by me heretofore made.

"In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and affixed my seal this twenty-ninth day of September, 1818.

Mr. Smith's will was proved May 1, 1819. In July, 1825, an inventory of the following slaves was returned to the Court: Jeff, Humphry, Lewis, Maria, Nancy, Emily, Henry, Milford and James. Fanny and her three children, Lucy and her two children, Eveline and her three children, Louisa, Chud, Scott, Jupe, Puck, Moll, Duke, Penelope and Thomasine.

In December, 1826, a bill of sale of several negroes is returned to the court for a term of years, said negroes to be sold to the highest bidder with terms as follows: said negroes not to be removed out of the counties of Frederick or Jefferson without the consent of the executors and not to be abused and to be well fed and clothed and returned at the expiration of their several terms in a good suit of clothes to be freed as the will directs.

On May 31, 1819 the appraisement of the personal estate was returned to the Court. On Feb. 4, 1828 an appraisement of the slaves is returned. On Dec. 6, 1830 the sale appraisement of the slaves is returned. On Mar. 6, 1832 cash is paid to Jacob Eversole and John Lock in part of their wives' legacies. In Will Book 17, page 132, cash is paid to Amos Smith, George Smith and Marcus McCormick as their legacies in full.

I-4. The Rev. Henry Smith, eldest child of Bartholomew and Catherine Smith, was born near Frederick City, Md., Apr. 23, 1769 and went with his parents to Virginia in 1772.

In his "Recollections" he artlessly relates how he was sent when quite young to a German school and later to an English school near Winchester, which he did not particularly relish and which, indeed, in time became so distasteful to him that his father removed him and made him his assistant at the "Big Spring Plantation." He tells also, in a simple style, of his conversion to Methodism under Judge Scott of Ohio, whom he calls his spiritual father, and of the way in which he was induced to take up the life of a Methodist minister.

His father's house had already become a center of Methodism and was famed in the Shenandoah Valley for its entertainment of such notable leaders as Bishops George and Asbury, Judge Scott and Doctor Tiffen, who frequently preached here before he planted his colony in Ohio. It is said of Bartholomew Smith that he was beloved by a Christian people who knew him, and that he had the confidence of all his neighbors, both saints and sinners.

After some years of study and preparation Henry Smith was appointed by Bishop Asbury to the Winchester Circuit which, he says, was a great trial to him. In 1793 he was licensed to preach at Milburn Meeting House in Frederick Co.,

Va. In the same year he founded "Davenport Meeting House" on a plot of ground at the head of Bullskin, donated by a friend of his father's, John Davenport,<sup>1</sup> Esq., of "The White House," Jefferson Co., Va.

In 1795 he was sent to the Kentucky Conference and in 1799 he was transferred to the Northwestern Territory where he worked as a pioneer and frequently administered to the spiritual welfare of the little colony planted at Chillicothe by Doctor Tiffen.

When Virginia ceded to the United States her claim to the territory northwest of the Ohio River, she reserved the right to certain lands lying between the Sciota and Little Miami rivers for the purpose of paying her Revolutionary soldiers. This territory was opened up to holders of land warrants in 1790. About 1797 Doctor Tiffen of Virginia founded an anti-slavery colony at Chillicothe which was made up mostly of the well-known Virginia families of Scotts, McCormicks, Smiths, Creightons, Massies, Taggarts, Davenports, Worthingtons, Platters, Tiffens, McLandenburgs, Welshs, Carsons, Fullertons, Bohmers, McDowells, Dickensons and Eversoles.

On Tuesday, Oct. 15, 1797, Mr. Smith preached his first sermon at Chillicothe, as he quaintly says, "to quite a respectable congregation." In the fall of 1799 he preached at Anthony Davenport's on Deer Creek and again on Oct. 24th at Doctor Tiffen's. In July, 1800, he again preached at Davenport's and in the evening of July 7th, under the forest trees of Chillicothe, he organized the first Methodist Society in that place, consisting of eighteen members.

In 1801 he was sent to New Market Falls where his sister, Mrs. Eversole was then living, she having removed from Chillicothe in the spring of that year.

In 1806 he was appointed to the Baltimore Circuit and while on it became intimately associated with the families of Robert North Carnan and Harry Dorsey Gough, Esq., of Perry Hall. In 1807 General Ridgley, a brother of Mrs. Carnan's and an uncle of Mrs. Gough's, assisted him in founding the Hampton Meeting House near Baltimore and by the financial help of Mr. Gough the Camp Meeting House near Perry Hall was erected. In 1808, while traveling towards Baltimore, Mr.

<sup>1</sup>John Davenport, Esq., was a descendant of the Rev. John Davenport of Connecticut who settled in St. Mary's, Md. The first Methodist preacher Henry Smith ever heard was at the home of John Davenport's father, when, as a lad, he rode behind his uncle to a meeting at "White House Manor."

Smith received a message from Bishop Asbury advising him of Mr. Gough's death and urging him to hasten to Perry Hall, where Mrs. Gough was anxiously awaiting him. At her earnest solicitation Mr. Smith henceforth made his home at Perry Hall while he remained on the Baltimore Circuit.

Mrs. Gough was a staunch Methodist and every morning and evening summoned her servants to service in a neat chapel attached to the mansion house and, if need be, in the absence of a clergyman led the services herself. It must have been a striking sight in the early days of Methodism to have seen this family approaching the Camp House on Sunday morning; Mr. Gough arriving on horseback with his attendant, and Mrs. Gough and the family in a coach drawn by four white horses. She was present at the morning service the day the Battle of North Point was fought, when the guns were plainly heard during Mr. Smith's sermon. The alarm and anxiety shown at Baltimore became so intense that Mrs. Gough decided to send her family away and if the enemy appeared at Perry Hall to go out to meet the officers and plead her own cause, saying to Mr. Smith, "I want no one to go with me but you, you must stay with me, you must not leave me." The Carnans, Goughs, and Carrolls were among the most prominent people of their day and gave character and stability to the cause of Methodism in the South.

Between 1809 and 1832 Mr. Smith was appointed to many prominent circuits but in 1837 retired to Hookstown, near Baltimore.

On Mar. 12, 1829, in his sixtieth year, he married Miss Rebecca Bosley, daughter of James Bosley<sup>1</sup> of Great Falls, Md.

In 1837 he retired to an estate which he called "Pilgrim's Rest," which, indeed, it remained until his death. He had been actively employed in the work of a traveling preacher for forty-two years when he was placed on the superannuated list of the Baltimore Conference. In the General Conference held there in 1863 a well-deserved tribute to Mr. Smith was entered upon the minutes, containing, among other remarks, the following memorial: "The chief attraction of 'Pilgrim's Rest' at Hookstown, near Baltimore is gone. The venerable patriarch, the Rev. Henry Smith, who pitched his tent there upward of twenty years ago, has crossed over Jordan and is safe at home. Those who have been accustomed to think of him in connection with that hallowed spot will now turn away from it with regret.

“It is no easy task to speak of one so well known and so universally admired for his pre-eminent virtues as well as for his great usefulness in the church.

“We much question whether in the history of Methodist itinerancy a brighter example has been supplied than in the apostolic labors of the man whose simple story we now put upon record.

“Beautiful as was the life of this holy and useful minister of Christ, the manner of his death was not less so, prayer was his watchword at the gate of death, he entered heaven with prayer.”

He died Dec. 8, 1862 and by order of the Conference held at Georgetown, Mar. 4, 1863, his body was removed to Mt. Olivet Cemetery, Baltimore, there to repose beside the remains of Bishops Asbury, George, Waugh and Emery.

The inscription on his tomb reads:

“Rev. Henry Smith born near Frederick Cy., Maryland, Apr. 23, 1769 died Dec. 8, 1862. A man remarkable for purity of life, a minister of Christ distinguished for extraordinary sacrifice and usefulness whom all delighted to honor. He was a member of the M. E. Church 73 years, connected with its itinerant ministry 69 years. He rests from his labors and his works do follow him. Rev. XIV-13.”

On the adjoining tomb is inscribed:

“Rebecca Smith died March 11, 1867 aged 91 years.”

The Bishops' plot contains the grave of no other woman.

I-5. Michael, the second son of Bartholomew and Catherine Smith, was born near Frederick City, Md. He was a widely known and successful planter, with estates in Ohio, Kentucky and Virginia. These he annually visited, generally going by coach and frequently accompanied by members of his family. He served in the Virginia Militia in the War of 1812 and received lands in Kentucky for his services.

On Mar. 26, 1805 he married Nancy McLeod of Kentucky and left:

11. Amos Smith, Esq., of Kentucky and Ohio.

I-6. Nicholas Smith and Michael (5), his brother, were Kentucky pioneers under Boone and Kenton; one in Bourbon Co. and the other in an adjoining region. Nicholas died before his father.

I-7. Catherine Everhart Smith, the eldest daughter of Bartholomew and Catherine Smith, married John Marcus McCormick, son of Francis McCormick and his first wife, Miss Province, and grandson of Dr. John McCormick of Upton Place, Va., an early Irish emigrant to the Shenandoah Valley. They left one son:

12. Marcus McCormick mentioned in the will of Bartholomew Smith.

I-8. Elizabeth or Betsy Smith, second daughter of Bartholomew Smith, born at "Big Spring Plantation," Frederick Co., Va., married John Lock and left, with other children:

13. John Lock, Jr., living between Berryville and Winchester on the Opequon.

I-9. Mary Ursula, daughter of Bartholomew and Catherine Smith, was born in Virginia in 1775. She married Jacob Ebersole or Eversole of Hagerstown, Md., who came from Germany to Swatara, Pa. They joined Doctor Tiffen's colony at Chillicothe, Ohio, but in 1801 removed to New Market Falls, Highland Co., Ohio. They had, with other children, a son:

14. Abraham Eversole, mentioned in his grandfather's will.

I-10. George Smith, son of Bartholomew and Catherine Smith, was born at "Big Spring Plantation," Frederick Co., Va., June 26, 1773.

He was married Jan. 17, 1797 by the Rev. William Hill of Winchester to Margretta Jarrett, born in Maryland Jan. 25, 1780. When still a young man he brought his family to Ohio where he lived, first, in Washington, and later in Linton Townships, Coshocton Co. He came into Ohio because he was opposed to the institution of slavery and his home soon became a station of the Underground Railway for the transportation of runaway slaves. He built a grist mill in Washington Township which, some years later, was swept away by a great flood in Paddy's Run. He then retired to a tract of land in Linton Township which he successfully cultivated. He was appointed justice of the peace for Washington Township and served in Colonel Ragen's 2nd Batt. of Ohio Militia in the War of 1812.

George Smith died in Coshocton Co., June 30, 1862 and is buried in Kimball's Cemetery beside his wife who died Dec. 31, 1843, leaving ten children:

15. Bartholomew Smith

16. Henry Smith of California

17. George W. Smith of Pittsburgh, Pa.

18. Sarah Smith
19. Jacob Smith, married Mary Thompson of Coshocton Co.
20. Everhart Smith of California
21. Harriet Smith
22. Emeline Smith
23. Mary Smith, married Peter Weir of Ohio
24. Jackson Smith.

I-10-15. Bartholomew Smith married Elizabeth Thompson and, both dying before his father, left four children mentioned in their grandfather's will:<sup>1</sup>

25. Mary Smith
26. George P. Smith
27. Michael Everhart Smith
28. David Thompson Smith.

16. Henry Smith of Coshocton Co. married Frona Payne, sister to Sarah Payne, who married Everhart Smith, and left several children.

17. George W. Smith was born at Big Spring Plantation near Winchester, Va., Feb. 22, 1805. He came, when a child, with his parents to Washington Township and later to Linton Township, Coshocton Co., Ohio.

In 1825 he came to Pittsburgh, Pa., where he engaged in the oil refining business with Mr. Livingston at Herr's Island in the Allegheny River. In 1835 he opened coal yards in Pittsburgh and is said to have been the first operator who brought coal by boat from Braddock's Field to the city. In 1845 he became a brick contractor, a business he carried on for many years, during which time he built many public buildings in and around Pittsburgh, notably the old jail and courthouse in Greensburg, Pa., public buildings at Steubenville, Ohio and Ruter's Hall at Meadville, Pa.

He married Mar. 17, 1834, Ellen or Nellie Thompson, daughter of John<sup>2</sup> and Mary Drugan Thompson of Pittsburgh, Pa.

Ellen Thompson Smith was born at Uniontown, Fayette Co., Pa., Apr. 7, 1811 and died at her residence Knoll St., Pitts-

George W. Smith died May 8, 1890. They had nine children:<sup>1</sup>

29. Thompson W. Smith (Lieut.)
30. Angeline Smith
31. Charlotte Thompson Smith, born June 24, 1834, died young
32. Bascom Benson Smith, M.D.
33. Sophia Jane Smith, born Feb. 16, 1842, died young
34. Albert Burton Smith
35. Margaretta Jarrett Smith
36. Clara Lucinda Smith, born Apr. 6, 1848, died 1852
37. Caroline Virginia Smith.

I-10-18. Sarah Smith, daughter of George and Margretta Jarrett Smith, was born at Flush Spring Plantation near Winchester, Va., but lived for a time with her uncle the Rev. Henry Smith near Baltimore, Md. where she attended school.

She married Joseph Leatherman, a member of an old and distinguished family<sup>2</sup> of Maryland and Pennsylvania. His brother, Dr. Jonathan Leatherman, Sr., was a conspicuous figure in Washington Co., Pa., whose sons, Dr. Jonathan, Jr., and Dr. William H. Leatherman, were students at Jefferson College about 1848. Dr. Jonathan, Jr., was surgeon to the U. S. Army from 1849-64 and medical director of the Army of the Potomac from 1862-4. He practiced in California from 1865-72 and published a medical record of the Army of the Potomac. His brother, Dr. Wm. H. Leatherman practiced medicine in Texas and Missouri.

Dr. Joseph W. of New Market, Ohio and Dr. John A. of California, Pa. were sons of Demas M. and Jane B. Muncie Leatherman of West Bethlehem Township, Washington Co., Pa., and grandsons of John and Christian Myers Leatherman of Maryland.

Of the Ohio branch of this family there was living in 1920 at Outville, Licking Co., Dr. Frank Leatherman, and in Perry Township, Coshocton Co., Joseph Leatherman<sup>3</sup> born in Washington Co., Pa., 1797, who married the above Sarah Smith and settled in Perry Township, Apr. 6, 1827. Mrs. Leatherman died July 14, 1867, leaving:

38. George Smith Leatherman
39. Jonathan Leatherman
40. Cyrus Leatherman

41. Henry Smith Leatherman

42. Jackson<sup>1</sup> Smith Leatherman of Kansas, private in the Civil War

43. Dr. Joseph Leatherman of Iowa.

I-10-20. Everhart Smith, born at Big Spring Plantation, Va., married Sarah Payne, sister of the above Frona Payne.

The Paynes were an old English family and made settlements at Vershire and Chelsea, Vermont and in New Hampshire, where they intermarried with the families of Warren, Knight, Thompson, Batchelder and Clark, who, in later years, made up a large part of the Lynn Settlement in Ohio.

Everhart and Sarah Payne Smith left several children, among whom were:

44. William Payne Smith of the 9th Ohio Cavalry during the Civil War

45. Everhart Smith, Jr., who married Elizabeth McComber.

I-10-21. Harriet Smith married Adam Carnahan (see No. 102 under Carnahan, page 31 and had eleven children (Nos. 46-56 under Smith but Nos. 131-141 under Carnahan).

22. Emeline Smith, born in Virginia, was married twice: first to Andrew Carnahan (110), brother of Adam above, by whom she had four children (57 to 60 under Smith and 166-169 under Carnahan, page 38).

Emeline Smith married, secondly, Joseph Leiser, and had:

61. Hester Leiser

62. Lydia Leiser

63. Sarah Leiser

64. George Leiser of Lexington, Ill.

24. Jackson Smith, born at Big Spring Plantation, Winchester, Va., married Mary, daughter of Abner Kimball of White Eyes Township, Coshocton Co., Ohio. Abner Kimball was one of the founders of Kimball's Methodist Episcopal Church. Its first meetings were held at Mr. Kimball's residence under the pastoral care of the Rev. Thomas Ruggles of New England.

Abner Kimball was the grandson of Abner Kimball of Haverhill, Mass., who had two sons, Moses Kimball of Hopkinton, N. H. and later of Warren Co., Ohio and Bernard Kimball of Salem, N. H., who died there in 1825, leaving eleven children, one of whom, Abner Kimball, was born Mar. 6, 1776 and married Mary Cregg.

Abner Kimball of Ohio purchased a tract of five hundred acres of land in the Lynn Section in 1818. He died in 1870 and is buried in Kimball's Cemetery on land donated by him to the church.

Jackson and Mary Kimball Smith had six children:

- 65. Van Eman Smith
- 66. Jemima Smith
- 67. George P. Smith
- 68. Elizabeth Smith
- 69. Mary E. Smith, married Levi Brown of Chicago, Ill.
- 70. Luther J. Smith, a physician, formerly of West Liberty, Iowa, but later of Michigan.

68. Elizabeth Smith married Samuel K. Sayer, son of Stephen and Sarah A. Morgan Sayre, who came from Orange Co., N. Y. in 1837 to White Eyes Township, where the Rev. Henry Sayer became pastor of the Regular Baptist Church in 1839.

Samuel K. Sayer of Company H., 51st Ohio V. I. was taken prisoner at Chickamauga and confined in Libby Prison. After his release he removed to Iowa. They had, with other children, a son:

- 71. R. Fulton Sayer or Sayre.

DRUGAN DESCENDANTS IN AMERICA

THE name Drogan or Drugan is of Danish origin and is said to have been brought into France by a comrade in arms of Rollo, the Northman, who settled at Rouen in 918. It has passed through many changes of form from the original Drogo to the modern Dru, Drew, Drax, Draken, Dragun, Drogan and Drugan.

There is recorded in English Annals the names of several distinguished families of this name:

William<sup>1</sup> fil Drogonis of Brevers, seated in Lincolnshire 1273

Eborard Dru of Cambridge 1273

Isauda Drewe of Hunts 1273

Gilbert Dru of Oxford

Johannes Drewe of Yorkshire 1379

Robertus Drue of Yorkshire 1379

Richard Drue or Drew, Bailiff of Norwich 1392

Walter le Dragon or Dragun, Lincolnshire 1273

Robert Dragon, C. C. 24, Edward III

William Dragoun, 1281, Royal Letters, No. 1854.

Camden's Britannia,<sup>2</sup> Vol. 1, page 221, says among the principal holders of land in Berkshire at the making of Domesday was Walter de Ponz.

The Dictionary of National Biography, Vol. XI, page 81, says the Walter de Clifford who died in 1190 is said to have been the grandson of Pons or Poncius, the father of five sons, Walter, Drogo, Osbern, Simon and Richard.

Ramsey, in his Foundations of England, Vol. 1, page 161, says John Points was sheriff of Gloucestershire in the 43rd year of Edward III and continues: "Remarkable the antiquity of this name and family still continuing in knightly degree in this country, for I read in Domes-day-book 'Drugo filius Ponz tenet de rege, Frantone. Ibi decem hide geldant de hoc manerio and Walterus filius Ponz tenet de rege, Lete, Ibi decem hide geldant.'"

Drogo Fitz-Pons was the founder of the Drewe and Drugan family in England. He was the son of the Lord of Pons, an uncle of William the Conqueror, one of the most bitter contestants for the Dukedom of Normandy during William's minority.

William, Earl of Arques and Talou, was the son of Richard the Good, Duke of Normandy (996 to 1026) and his second wife Papia, daughter of Wilhelm, Count of Arques and Talou.

His name appears in Battle Abbey Roll as Poyne, presumably the name of the minor estates which the Conqueror permitted him to retain after his revolt and defeat at the Battle of Arques in 1053 in reference to which William said on his deathbed, "I compelled the perjured count to go into banishment and did not permit him to return to the domain he lost during all the days of his life."

In Leland's copy of Battle Abbey Roll he is given as Poynce. In Holinshed's Pounce and in John Fox's copy Le Sire de Puis or Lord of Puis. The Guill.<sup>1</sup> Conte de Hoymes and D'Arques, number 201 in this Roll, is no doubt a relative of the Conqueror's on his mother's side on whom he lavished the confiscated estates of his father's rebellious kin.

William,<sup>2</sup> Earl of Arques, henceforth known as Le Sire de Puis, had at least three sons: Walter,<sup>3</sup> Drogo<sup>4</sup> and Richard fitz Pons.<sup>5</sup> The latter held estates in Wiltshire and Wales where the name Ricairdo Pons is found in the annals of Westbury Hundred, Wiltshire and where rickert<sup>6</sup> punson, Ricaid vab Pvnson and Richard fitz Pons is designated as Lord of the Castle of Llandovery<sup>7</sup> in Cantref Bychan, Wales, before 1116.

He gave a grant of the church of Saint Dingad to the Priory of Great Malvern about 1150.

Walter, his son, held Cantref Selyf which he ruled from his Castle of Brenles<sup>8</sup> overhanging the Llynfi in Wales.

Drogo fitz-Pons held seventy-three manors in Devonshire, besides a number in Wilts and Berks as undertenant of the Bishop of Coutance.

Wyndham, in his Extracts from Domesday Book, says, "Drogo fitz-Pons held, besides his lordly estates in Devon the manor of Segrie in the Hundred of Malmsbury, Wilts.

A share of the mill pays twenty-two pence, here are fifteen acres of meadow, it was and is worth sixty shillings.”

Roger de Laci, Turstin Fitz-Rolf and William Teurice hold one hide in Colesell<sup>3</sup> of Drogo. It is worth four pounds.

In Dallway's History of Sussex we find a grant by William de Polls son of Martin to Walter Dragun<sup>4</sup> of all the lands which Walter held of William son of Reginald in the parish of Lega, viz a field called Eastfield and a croft called Deanmed with a grove lying between the water called Bourne and the land called Sedecop.

Drogo had, besides Walter, Drogo and Richard, another son Osbert, sheriff of Gloucestershire from whom it is said descended the family of Poyntz, Lords of Dodington and of Cary Mallet in Somersetshire.

The ancient forms of this name, Dragun and Dragon, are now extinct in the English countries but survive in Ireland in the form of Droogan and Drugan in the vicinity of Omagh, County Tyrone, where a great English colony was planted in the seventeenth century. Drogo remains as the family name of the Duke of Manchester.

When James I colonized Ulster he granted all the territory lying about the old castle and fort of Omey to the Earl of Chichester, who forfeited his rights by not complying with the terms of settlement. James then confirmed them upon James Mervyn, Earl of Castlehaven in Berkshire, who settled with picked English colonists two thousand acres of land at Addergoole, including Omagh and the adjoining townlands,<sup>1</sup> under the name of the Manor of Arleston or Audleston and two thousand acres at Fintona under the name of the Manor of Touchet.

Among the prominent proprietors were Andrew Smith, James Audley, Matthew Featherstone,<sup>2</sup> William Glegg, George Touchet the Lord Audley, Sir Mervin Touchet, Sir Ferdinand Touchet, Edward Blunt, Esq., Sir John Davys and several families of good standing from Wiltshire and Berkshire, the Leighs, Lowes, Carys, Careys, Coyles and Lowries.

Many of the largest landholders, after settling their grants, returned to England, entrusting their new estates to the care of agents who were invested with the power to buy and sell merchandise and to dispose of property over which they had temporary control by proceedings in their own name. Such an agent or factor enjoyed greater and more peculiar power than a broker who could act as a representative of his principal only.

James Drugan or Druggan, the first of his family in Ireland of whom we have record, was agent to the Lowrie estates near Omagh. He had the grant of a market at Six Mile Cross on which he was taxed six pounds and ten pounds on his house, offices and gardens.

He married Cary Smith, also of English extraction, a sister of James or Josiah Smith,<sup>1</sup> a great merchant who owned many sloops at sea in trade with Indian and other foreign ports.

II. James and Cary Smith Drugan had six children:

- 72. John Drugan of Six Mile Cross
- 73. Hugh Drugan of Shanmullock or Shanmullaugh
- 74. Josiah Smith Drugan, D.S.P
- 75. James Drugan
- 76. Catherine<sup>2</sup> Drugan, married Oakes
- 77. Mary Drugan.

72. John Drugan, who was factor to Lord Belmore's estates, was the keeper of ordnance for Cooley, where he was charged with thirty-four pieces of ammunition. He married and left three children:

- 78. James Drugan
- 79. Joseph Drugan
- 80. Mary Drugan.

78. James Drugan, the eldest son, entered the army as sergeant of the 7th Battalion of Royal Artillery. He was made recruiting officer in his Majesty's service and was retired from active duties Dec. 31, 1821. He returned to Ireland where he was appointed a keeper of ordnance for Six Mile Cross. He died about 1850, leaving a son:

86. John Drugan, Jr., who succeeded his great uncle Hugh as factor to Lord Belmore. In the tax list he is charged with ten pounds on his house and offices and eleven pounds five on his lands at Six Mile Cross. He was also appointed keeper of ordnance for Cooley. He died at Six Mile Cross in 1852-3.

79. Joseph Drugan, the second son of John Drugan, Sr., was a merchant of St. Andrews, where he was the owner of vessels trading in foreign ports.

80. Mary Drugan, daughter of John Drugan, Sr., married Patrick Coyle, Jr., of Drummakilly, Termonmaquirk, son of Patrick Coyle, Sr., who held 582 acres of land in Loughmacrory, Termonmaquirk, as undertenant of Sir John Stewart.

<sup>1</sup>The Smith estate was in Chancery until 1845, when a part of it was awarded to the Drugans of Omagh and Six Mile Cross.

Patrick Coyle, Jr., was an Irish patriot who became implicated in the Wolfe Tone Rebellion for which he was forced to flee the country. With his family he sought refuge at St. John's, New Brunswick, where members of the Drugan family had previously settled. Mr. Coyle made his way to the United States and reached Uniontown, Pa. in 1799. He remained here about twelve years, when he removed to Cincinnati where he established a successful dry goods business.

He died in Cincinnati in 1850, leaving his wife and six children:

- 87. Sophia Coyle, married Benjamin Bookout
- 88. John Robert Coyle, married Harriet Campbell
- 89. Joseph D. Coyle, married Edith Townsend
- 90. Ann Jane Coyle, married, first, William Roundtree, secondly, Isaac J. Whitwell
- 91. Mary Coyle, married Mr. Cransby
- 92. Harvey Coyle, a merchant of Cincinnati.

87. Sophia Coyle of Cincinnati, Ohio, married Benjamin Bookout, a planter on the Sunflower River near Vicksburg, Miss.

Mr. Bookout belonged to an old southern family of French descent which originally spelled the name Bouchout. The name is equally as well known in Dutch Belgium as in French and has been perpetuated in the latter by the village of Bouchout<sup>1</sup> in Brabant, which is situated about eight miles from Brussels in the direction of Waterloo. The Bookout family of Mississippi are growers and exporters of cotton with warehouses in Vicksburg.

Benjamin Bookout and Sophia Coyle had, with other children a son:

123. Benjamin Bookout, Jr., who succeeded his father as head of the mercantile house of Bookout in Vicksburg. He married and had, with other children, a son:

220. George W. Bookout, living in 1898.

89. Joseph D. Coyle, son of Patrick and Mary Drugan Coyle, married Edith Townsend, daughter of Benjamin Townsend, a Quaker of the Redstone Settlement, Fayette Co., Pa.

The Townsends were of English stock, one of whom, Richard of Cirencester, Gloucestershire, had a son Richard, Jr., one of the most celebrated Quakers of his day. He married Ann Hutchins of London, England, Mar. 25, 1677 and came to Pennsylvania in the "Welcome" with William Penn.

William, his second son, lived at Bucklebury, Berkshire, where he married Mary (——), and had a son:

Joseph Townsend, who was born Nov. 18, 1664. He married Martha Wooderson and brought his family to Pennsylvania in 1711 where he was received into Abington Meeting, Pa. He purchased eight hundred acres of land in East Bradford, Chester Co. where he died Apr. 9, 1766, leaving eight children, one of whom:

Joseph Townsend, Jr., lived and died upon his father's plantation. By Lydia Reynolds, his wife, he had five children who survived him, one of whom:

Francis Townsend married Rachel Talbot of Middleton and removed to Redstone, Fayette Co., Pa., where he had, with other children, a son:

Benjamin Townsend, the father of Edith above.

90. Ann Jane Coyle, daughter of Patrick, Jr., and Mary Drugan Coyle, of Cincinnati, was married twice: first to Mr. William Roundtree<sup>1</sup> of Monongahela City, by whom she had two children:

124. Elizabeth Roundtree

125. William Roundtree.

She married, secondly, Isaac J. Whitwell, a member of the Boston family of that name, and removed to St. Louis, Mo., where Mr. Whitwell became a leading merchant.

II-73. Hugh Drugan, the second son of James and Cary Smith Drugan, was born at Shanmullaugh or Shaumullock, Parish of Thermonmaquirk, Townland of Cooley, County Tyrone, Ireland. He succeeded his brother John as agent for the Belmore estates. He was married twice; first to Ellen or Eleanor Todd, daughter of Henry Todd of Lochmacrory, Parish of Thermonmaquirk, County Tyrone, by whom he had four children:

81. Elizabeth Drugan

82. Catherine Lowe Drugan

83. William Drugan

84. Mary Drugan.

73. Hugh Drugan and his second wife came to Uniontown, Pa., at the time of the Wolfe Tone Rebellion, and went from there to Beaver, Pa. He died at Beaver and is buried at North East Park, now a part of the town of Beaver. By his second marriage he had one daughter:

85. Nancy Drugan, who married Mr. Robbins of Limestone, Westmoreland Co., Pa., and had four children living in 1828.

81. Elizabeth Drugan, eldest daughter of Hugh and Ellen Todd Drugan, his first wife, was born at Shanmullaugh, County Tyrone, Ireland, Oct. 31, 1776. She married at Newville, Cumberland Co., Pa., in 1799 William Duncan, son of William Duncan, Sr., who was first lieutenant of the 4th Batt. of Cumberland Co. Militia during the Revolutionary War. Lieutenant Duncan, a native of County Tyrone, had besides William other children, Fanny or Frances, James who removed to Lancaster Co., Ohio in 1790, and Judge Thomas Duncan, the celebrated attorney of Carlisle and Philadelphia.

William Duncan, Jr., brought his family to Washington Co., Pa., and settled on a farm near Midway. Their letter from the Big Spring Presbyterian Church to Raccoon Church was dated 1802. William Duncan died at his residence near Midway, Pa., Feb. 6, 1840. Elizabeth, his wife, died June 22, 1866. They had eight children:

- 93. James, born Dec. 26, 1799, died at Midway, Feb. 9, 1823
- 94. Nellie or Eleanor born Nov. 22, 1802, died at Pittsburgh, Sept. 18, 1833
- 95. Fanny Crawford, born Aug. 23, 1805, died near Midway, Nov. 30, 1824
- 96. Eliza, born Mar. 18, 1807, died near Midway, Nov. 23, 1836
- 97. Jane, born Jan. 8, 1809, died at Pittsburgh, Mar. 7, 1835
- 98. Nancy, born Apr. 10, 1810, died near Midway, Aug. 30, 1819
- 99. Mary, born Apr. 21, 1812, died near Midway, Dec. 21, 1896
- 100. William Graham, born Mar. 17, 1815, died at New Orleans, September, 1839.

94. Nellie or Eleanor Duncan married Feb. 3, 1831, Thomas Connelly, son of William Connelly, Sr., of Pittsburgh and his wife Mary Baird of Northampton Co., Pa., and grandson of Thomas Connelly, Sr.

William Connelly, Sr., had two brothers, Thomas Jr., who married Miss Plotts and John Connelly, Esq., a noted lawyer of Philadelphia and Northampton Co.

Thomas Connelly, of Washington Co., Pa., was born in 1795. He was in early life a member of Lower Mt. Bethel Church. Nellie Duncan Connelly died in Allegheny City, now Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 18, 1833, leaving an only child:

126. Elizabeth Connelly, born in Pittsburgh, Dec. 10, 1832. She died at the residence of her grandfather William Duncan, Oct. 18, 1836.

Thomas Connelly married, secondly, Maria Montgomery and had children:

Montgomery Connelly

Elizabeth Connelly, who married Samuel Fox, and had:

William C. Fox

George Edward Fox

Mary Fox McVicker

Thomas Albert Fox.

Thomas Connelly married, thirdly, Martha Johnston at Toulon, Ill., and had:

Two daughters

A son.

He died at Enis, Tex., Mar. 18, 1859. His wife died Dec. 2, 1869.

97. Jane Duncan, born near Midway, Jan. 8, 1809, married Dec. 16, 1829, William Connelly, Jr., who was born near McDonald Station, Pa., Nov. 11, 1802. He was the son of William Connelly, Sr., born in Pennsylvania, 1765, and Mary Baird, his wife, who came from Lower Mt. Bethel, Northampton Co., Pa., to a farm near McDonald, Washington Co., Pa., which is now the property of the Hon. Vincent Miller, whose father purchased it.

The Connellys removed to the present Joseph Wallace place near Candor, Pa., and finally to Candor, where William Connelly, Sr., died May 10, 1848 and Mary Baird, his wife, Mar. 17, 1848.

Jane Duncan Connelly died in N. S., Pittsburgh, Mar. 7, 1835, and her husband, William Connelly, Jr., July 7, 1848, leaving one daughter:

127. Jane Eleanor Connelly, born Feb. 22, 1835 in Pittsburgh, and died near Midway, Washington Co., Pa., Oct. 17, 1914.

82. Catherine Drugan, second daughter of Hugh and Eleanor Todd Drugan, was born in 1779 at Shanmullock, near Six Mile Cross, County Tyrone, Ireland. She married in 1794 at Uniontown, Fayette Co., Pa., at the residence of her aunt, Mrs. Patrick Coyle, James Carnahan, born in 1769, at Robbstown, now West Newton, Westmoreland Co., Pa.

James was the youngest son of Col. John Carnahan, taxable in Newton Township, Cumberland Co., from 1760 to 1763, who came to Westmoreland Co. with his brothers, Capt. James Carnahan, the younger, Adam, Jr., and William, when the Western Land Office was opened for business at Robbstown, a trading place on the Conemaugh at the mouth of Big Sewickley Creek, dignified in history, says Doctor Egle, under the name of Simrall's Ferry, as the starting place of those New Englanders who, in 1788, emigrated to the Muskingum.

The Indian fighter, Capt. James Carnahan the elder, came with his brothers William and Adam, Sr., from County Antrim, Ireland, to Pennsylvania between 1729 and 1733. They settled on the Big Bend on the Conodogwinet in what is now Cumberland Co., where James became a noted ranger on the frontier and was commissioned a captain of the militia in 1748. He rallied his men at Fort Jack, later called Fort Carnahan in his honor, a blockhouse erected, opposite William Carnahan's land, in Newton Township. Capt. James Carnahan's land adjoined his brother William's on the north and was opposite the William Thompson tract in Newton Township. William Carnahan's land was in Mifflin Township.

This locality was in the pathway of the marauding Indians who made devastating raids on the settlements between the Conodogwinet and the Conococheague.

The fort was in constant use as a place of refuge for the settlers after the defeat of General Braddock, a calamity which encouraged the Indians to fresh depredations. "Evidences of its formation could be seen as late as 1840, especially the channel cut from Green Spring to supply the fort with water. It was located near the mouth of Bradley's Run and was the oldest blockhouse in the county, dating from 1754," the garrison at Fort Lowther antedating it perhaps by one year.

Here the Carnahans lived for a time, taking a prominent part in the development and defense of the new county. "Westward the star of empire takes its way" seems to have been the slogan of this intrepid family. Ohio mothered them for a while, then Illinois, Indiana and Iowa.

When Pennsylvania made her second purchase of Indian lands in the western part of the state in 1767, and plantations were offered to settlers on easy terms, "Old Cumberland" sent her quota of bold and hardy pioneers into the new district.

The Sewickley and Derry settlements in Westmoreland Co. drew heavily upon this region for its settlers, who planted themselves along the Allegheny, Conemaugh and Youghiogheny rivers and their tributaries.

Near the mouth of Big Sewickley Creek, where it empties into the Yough, Isaac Robb of Newton Township founded the town of Robbstown, since called West Newton in honor of the place whence the settlers came. It was near this place that Colonel Lochry's forces crossed the Yough on their march to join General Clark's Expedition to Ohio and Detroit. The men rendezvoused at Carnahan's Blockhouse on the Kiskiminetas and made their first stop at Markle's Mills, about two miles east of Robbstown.

Adam Carnahan, Sr., on whose land the blockhouse was erected in Bell Township, Westmoreland Co., was a hardy pioneer of the Boone type, although his activities were confined to a more restricted area. With scouting parties he traversed the streams of western Pennsylvania in the interest of the land office. In 1773, in company with his sons, Col. John Carnahan, and Adam, Jr., John, Andrew and Clemens Finley, and William Thompson, the ancestor of the Thompsons of Uniontown, he descended the Ohio River to Kentucky where the party explored and surveyed lands on the lower side of the river.

In 1774 Adam, Jr., and John Carnahan led another party into the Ohio country, penetrating as far as the forks of the Muskingum, where they surveyed lands near the present site of Coshocton upon a portion of which John's son, James Carnahan, settled with his family in 1826.

Adam Carnahan, Sr. married in County Antrim, Ireland, Mary Finley, daughter of Andrew Finley, Sr., and Mary Thompson, probably the sister of William Thompson. He had five children: John Carnahan, William Thompson Carnahan, taxable in 1784, Adam, Jr., probably the Adam who married Mary, daughter of John Thompson and Mary Finley, sister of Clemens Finley, and who died at Chillicothe in 1801, Elizabeth, who married Clemens Finley, and Captain James who married Catherine Potter. She is mentioned on page 316 in "A Chronicle of the Bard Family" by George O. Seilhamer, Esq., as the sixth child of Samuel Potter, a Westmoreland Co. ranger during the Revolution, and his wife, Susanna Poe, a daughter of Thomas and Mary Potter Poe of Conococheague, Antrim Township, Cumberland, now Franklin Co., Pa.

Samuel Potter was born about 1731 and died in 1811. He was the second son of Capt. John Potter, the first sheriff of Cumberland Co., who was appointed captain of militia in Col.

John Armstrong's battalion in February, 1756. Samuel's elder brother, Capt. James Potter, was commissioned brigadier-general of the Pennsylvania militia in 1777. He was a member of the Supreme Executive Council and served as its vice-president in 1781. In 1782 he was advanced to the rank of major-general and was high in the favor of General Washington.

There is a difference of opinion about the parentage of Capt. James Carnahan<sup>1</sup> who had charge of the packhorses here. Doctor Draper,<sup>2</sup> in his manuscript, says he was the son of Adam on whose land the blockhouse was built. He was with a party at Bulls Town, now Tarentum, Nov. 27, 1779, and on Aug. 3, 1780 was commanded to bring his garrison to Fort Pitt on account of the scarcity of rations.

He served as a volunteer at Trenton and Princeton, was captured by the British, Aug. 26, 1776, released, reported to headquarters, where he was advanced to the rank of first lieutenant of the Eighth Pennsylvania, of which he was in command in March, 1777, when he mustered his men at Redbank. He is said to have joined Captain Miles' Rifle Regiment at Marcus Hook, afterwards included in the Thirteenth and later in the Second Pennsylvania.

One authority says he was discharged at Valley Forge in January, 1778. Another<sup>3</sup> says he continued in active service until the close of the war, when he retired to Washington Co., Pa., on lands awarded him by Congress. His activities seem so varied and the scenes of their action so wide apart as to create the impression that there were two Capt. James Carnahans engaged in the Revolution, one in the East and one in the West.

Some authorities claim that this James Carnahan and Catherine Potter, his wife, were the parents of the Rev. Dr. Carnahan of Princeton; but if Mr. Seilhamer is right in placing her as the sixth child of Samuel Potter, her birth would have occurred too late to be the mother of a son born in 1775. She was probably the eldest daughter of Samuel Potter. The weight of evidence seems to show that Doctor Carnahan of Princeton was the son of Captain James, the brother of Col. John Carnahan, the first sheriff of Westmoreland Co., who were both sons of Adam, Sr., of the blockhouse.

James Carnahan was drowned in the Allegheny River in 1786, leaving one son, James Carnahan, Jr.

Catherine Potter Carnahan married, secondly, Matthew McClenahan, by whom she had a son, Matthew Potter McClenahan, born Jan. 2, 1806, who became associate judge of Westmoreland Co.

The second blockhouse<sup>1</sup> of this name erected in Pennsylvania was built by John Carnahan on his father Adam Carnahan's land in 1772 and was situated one mile south of the Kiskiminetas and six miles below the mouth of the Cone-maugh. It became a regular station after the evacuation of Fort Hand. Near the mouth of Carnahan's Run, once called Old Town or Kiskiminetas Run, was the only fording place between Livermore's and the Allegheny River, where it is joined by the "Kiski." Here the government packhorses were kept in Revolutionary times to recover strength and flesh on the fine English grass that grew in the deep bottom lands.

"In 1777 the Indians, instigated by Colonel Hamilton of Detroit, began to make raids in this neighborhood. Two scouts, Robert Taylor and David Carnahan, a son of John's, went out to reconnoitre and were in sight of the blockhouse upon their return when they saw the raiders close by. Realizing that their safety lay in their fleetness of foot, for which the Carnahans were renowned, they made a bold dash for the door. It is said that a moccasin worn by young Carnahan slipped upon the foot when, with great dexterity, he stooped down, broke the thong and with his companion reached the blockhouse in safety."

In the evening<sup>2</sup> of this day John Carnahan, the officer at the blockhouse, stepped outside to reconnoitre and to get a better aim at the savages, when he was instantly killed. His body, falling into the door, was recovered and buried at a spot twenty rods distant, where family tradition says the ground has never since been broken and is now marked by a growth of timber. "David Carnahan went above, moved a clapboard aside, and fired with his long flint-lock rifle upon an Indian supposed to have been the chief and in this way avenged his father's death.

"The tragic death of her husband (John Carnahan) so filled the widow's mind with fear for the safety of her children that she took James who was much younger than John and David and returned to the place whence they came," a phrase which might mean Robbstown where the family fled when the first log house built by John Carnahan in Bell Township was destroyed by the Indians, or it might mean Carlisle, as the Carnahans often spoke of their old home beyond the mountains.

The family intermarried with the Finleys,<sup>1</sup> Thompsons and Allens, and these names are common family names in the Ohio branch of the Carnahan family as well as in that of the Westmoreland Co., Pa., branch.

Col. John Carnahan,<sup>2</sup> a brother of Adam, Jr., and of Capt. James Carnahan of Revolutionary fame, was the western agent for the Pennsylvania Land Office which began to issue warrants for lands in the Sewickley Settlement near West Newton in 1769. Col. John Carnahan was high sheriff of Westmoreland Co. previous to the Revolutionary War, at which time he resigned to become sheriff under the new government. In 1783 he paid taxes on 300 acres of land in Huntingdon Township, Westmoreland Co., and in 1786 state tax in South Huntingdon Township, Robbstown. John Carnahan, Jr., was taxed in Huntingdon Township in 1783 and in 1782 paid a state tax in South Huntingdon Township.

Captain James was taxed in 1783 on 300 acres of land in Huntingdon Township and in 1786 paid state tax in Armstrong Township, Westmoreland Co.

William Thompson Carnahan had 600 acres surveyed for him in 1784.

James had 700 acres surveyed in 1784.

Robert had 400 acres surveyed in 1784.

Adam had 350 acres surveyed in 1784.

James,<sup>3</sup> David, Thomas and John had, each, large acreage surveyed in September, November and December, 1792.

Alexander had 1,110 acres surveyed in 1794.

David had 600 acres in Bell Township in 1792.

Col. John Carnahan married a daughter of William Allen, and had three sons, David, John, Jr., and James, a ranger on the frontier in Westmoreland Co. in 1792-4. James, the youngest son, was born in the land office quarters at Robbstown in 1769. He married the above Catherine Drugan (No. 82) and removed with his family to White Eyes Township, Coshocton Co., Ohio, in 1826.

He died near Avondale, Ohio, Aug. 23, 1830 and Catherine, his wife, in February, 1842, leaving ten children:

- 101. Eleanore, born 1795
- 102. Adam, III
- 103. James, died unmarried in Pittsburgh, Pa.
- 104. John
- 105. William Allen
- 106. Nancy
- 107. Eliza Jane
- 108. Hugh, a chemist of Davenport, Iowa
- 109. Thompson
- 110. Andrew Finley.

101. Eleanore Carnahan, born in 1795, married John Hammond<sup>1</sup> of Ohio, whose family had come with other New England settlers, namely the Warrens, Paynes, Kimballs, Batchelders, Clarks, Nicholls, Sayers, Hardings, Craigs, Thompsons and Dickies, principally from Vermont, Massachusetts and New Hampshire to Ohio about 1808, where they established settlements at Lynn, Warren and other well-known places.

John Hammond, son of Benjamin, married Eleanore Carnahan, and had three children:

- 128. Adam Hammond
- 129. Angeline C. Hammond
- 130. Elizabeth Hammond.

129. Angeline Carnahan Hammond married Robert Dickie, Jr., son of Robert Dickie, Sr., born Sept. 17, 1799, and Elizabeth, his wife, born Oct. 18, 1799, who had, Alexander, born Feb. 12, 1825; Robert Jr., born Jan. 1, 1828; Elizabeth, born Nov. 18, 1830; Alexander II, born Nov. 2, 1832; Elizabeth II, born Feb. 25, 1836; and Agnes Jane, born Sept. 27, 1840.

<sup>1</sup>The Hammonds of Auburn Township, Creek Co., and of Crawford Co., Ohio are descended from George Hammond, Jr., who came from New England to New York with Resolved White and married Sarah, daughter of Daniel White, a descendant of that Resolved White who came to this country in the Mayflower in 1620. Sarah White, born in Pomfret, Conn., went with her parents to Windsor, Berks Co., Mass. and later to Gorham, N. Y., where she married George Hammond. She died at Auburn, Ohio, Apr. 4, 1840, leaving Albert, Alfred, Harvey, Anna, George, the third of the name, Rowland White and Sarah.

George Hammond of Crawford Co., Ohio, born May 20, 1790, and Rowland, his brother of Canada and Boston, Mass., were the sons of Capt. George Hammond and his second wife, Lucy Southworth of Plymouth. The captain had, by a former wife, Lucy Sturtevant, at least two children, George and Lydia Hammond, born in 1763.

Rowland Hammond of Plymton, Mass., fourth son of John of Rochester, was born Oct. 30, 1706. He married Ann Winslow, daughter of Deacon Samuel Winslow of Rochester. His grandfather Benjamin was the son of William Hammond and Elizabeth Penn, sister of the Admiral Sir William Penn and aunt of the founder of Pennsylvania.

Benjamin Hammond, a member of this old New England family, bought land in Jefferson Co., Ohio in 1808 and from him the town of Hammondsville took its name. He married Margaret Naylor and left several children, some of whom settled in Iowa. These families all retained the old family names of John, George, Angeline, Lydia, Elizabeth and Benjamin.

Robert Dickie, Jr., enlisted in the Federal Army as sergeant of Co. H, 18th Ohio Volunteer Infantry. His wife, Angeline C. Hammond, died in 1865, leaving six children, two of whom died in infancy:

<sup>1</sup>The Craig family of Coshocton Co. came from Ireland in 1818 and settled in Clark Township after a short sojourn in Washington Co., Pa. John, the emigrant, was born in 1762 and died in 1824. William, his son, born in 1783, was justice of the peace from 1819 to 1822. He gave the land to the Presbyterian Church at Bloomfield in 1834, where he and his wife, Thomas Guthrie and wife, and Robert Guthrie and wife were six out of the twelve original members of the congregation. George Craig and William Renfrew built a cheese factory at Bloomfield in 1866. Charles Craig, a son of William's, and R. F. Sayer were owners of the Coshocton City Flour Mills in 1880.

residence, Cambridge Road, Coshocton, Ohio. They had two children:

276. Tracy Renfrew

277. Guida Elizabeth Renfrew, married Floyd Morton Holl.

II-107. Eliza Jane Carnahan married Jacob Winklepleck of Winklepleck P. O., White Eyes Township, a native of Swatara, Northumberland Co., Pa. They had:

160. Mary Ellen Winklepleck

161. Adam, of Chili, Ohio

162. Thompson of Illinois

163. Daniel

164. Calvin Irwin, of Bloomington, Ill.

165. Emma.

(57-60, see No. 22, page 13) 110. Andrew Finley Carnahan, son of James and Catherine Carnahan, married Emeline, daughter of George and Margretta Jarrett Smith and had four children:

(22-57) 166. Minerva Carnahan, who married Martin Stonehocker, whose father came from Virginia to Jefferson Co., Ohio. Martin held land in Washington Co., Ohio, but eventually settled in Iowa

(22-58) 167. Margaret, married Mr. Miller

(22-59) 168. Mary Jane, died young

(22-60) 169. Hugh.

83. William Drugan, the only son of Hugh and Ellen Todd Drugan, lived at Six Mile Cross, County Tyrone. He married and left an only son:

111. Josiah Drugan, born at Six Mile Cross, Aug. 10, 1816. He came to Pittsburgh and lived for a while at the home of his aunt, Mrs. Mary Drugan Thompson. In 1840 he established a wholesale grocery business in Philadelphia, Pa. under the name of Josiah Drugan & Company. He died in Pittsburgh, Oct. 18, 1845 at the home of Mrs. Thompson, leaving an only son:

170. The Rev. Andrew Smith Drugan of the R. C. Church.

84. Mary Druggan or Drugan, the youngest daughter of Hugh and Eleanor Todd Drugan was born Mar. 14, 1783 at Shanmullock, Parish of Thermonmaquirk in the townland of Cooley, County Tyrone, Ireland. She came with other members of her family to the United States about 1793 and for a time made her home with her sister Catherine, wife of James Carnahan.

Mary Drugan married June 14, 1810 at the residence of her aunt, Mrs. Patrick Coyle of Uniontown, Pa., John Thompson of that place.

John Thompson, the son of William Thompson of Yorkshire, an English Army officer stationed in Ireland, was born July 6, 1763 near Thornhill, County Donegal.

Previous to and during our struggle for independence terrible atrocities were practiced in Ireland which gave rise to the societies known as Defenders and Peep o'Day Boys, counterbalanced by the Orangemen and the professional soldiery. From the Convention at Dungannon in 1782 sprang the parliamentary independence of Ireland, and while it lasted historians say the English soldiery became the special objects of Irish hatred and abuse.

Captain Thompson decided to try the new country where independence had then been established and with his family, consisting of his wife and three children, took ship at Londonderry for the United States in 1783. When in mid-ocean the entire family, with the exception of the son John, died of ship's fever and was buried at sea with all its effects except the captain's sword and strongbox.

John Thompson arrived at the port of Philadelphia where he remained until 1795, in which year he took up a tract of land on easy terms in Venango Co., Pa. Erecting a cabin and raising a crop entitled him to a settler's right<sup>1</sup> of four hundred acres of land with a pre-emption claim to one thousand acres more to be secured by land office warrant. That part of his land which lay in what is now Cornplanter Township, near the mouth of Pithole Creek, was surveyed for him May 5, 1802.

Fishing and hunting were important activities in this wild country where the fur of animals was indeed the people's money. Rifles, salt, iron and all kinds of commodities were bought with this medium of exchange where deer, bears and other fur-giving animals were plentiful. Corn, potatoes, wheat and buckwheat were the main crops and stills were introduced into the county, which became a source of profit to their owners.

John Thompson married, first, Nancy McCreary who died Mar. 23, 1808, leaving four children, of whom later:

- 119. Margaret Elizabeth, who married John Harding
- 120. William James, who married, first, Miss Bickle
- 121. Mary, who married West Negus
- 122. Martha, who married Brinton Darlington.

<sup>1</sup>The settlers at this time gathered the oil in blankets from the surface of the streams and deposited it in vessels for domestic purposes.

Shortly after the death of his first wife, driven by the scarcity of help and the needs of his small children, John Thompson abandoned his lands in Venango Co., and took his family into the better settled district of Redstone, where his children were reared under Quaker influence, although Mr. Thompson was a member of the Church of England.

84. John Thompson married, secondly, June 14, 1810, Mary Drugan, and settled at Uniontown, Pa. He was a member of the Light Dragoons<sup>1</sup> of Fayette Co. and accompanied Capt. James A. McClelland on his march to Baltimore. He was honorably discharged at Pittsburgh. In 1817 he removed to what is now the East End of Pittsburgh and later to the North Side, where he occupied one of the group of dwellings on the General Robinson estate long known as Colonnade Row.<sup>2</sup>

John Thompson died in Allegheny City, Feb. 3, 1856 and is buried in Allegheny Cemetery,<sup>3</sup> Butler St. and Penn Ave., Pittsburgh, Pa. Mary (84) Thompson died Mar. 2, 1862. They had seven children:

- 112. Ellen, born Apr. 7, 1811
- 113. Nancy Wilson, born Aug. 27, 1812, died unmarried Aug. 18, 1899
- 114. Catherine Carnahan, born Nov. 8, 1813, died Jan. 30, 1826
- 115. Hugh Thompson, born Feb. 28, 1816, died Sept. 7, 1855
- 116. Eliza Jane, born Sept. 9, 1817
- 117. Robert, born Nov. 9, 1818, died Feb. 8, 1864
- 118. Charlotte.

112. Ellen Thompson, daughter of John Thompson and his second wife Mary Drugan, the youngest of the three Drugan sisters, was born at Uniontown, Fayette Co., Pa., Apr. 7, 1811 and married Mar. 17, 1834, George W. Smith, born at Big Spring Plantation, Frederick Co., Va., Feb. 22, 1805. (See page 11 under Smiths of Virginia and Ohio.) They had nine children:

- 171. Thompson W. Smith
- 172. Angeline Smith
- 173. Charlotte Thompson Smith
- 174. Bascom Benson Smith
- 175. Sophia Jane Smith
- 176. Albert Burton Smith
- 177. Margretta Jarrett Smith
- 178. Clara Lucinda Smith
- 179. Caroline Virginia Smith.

171. Lieut. Thompson W. Smith was born in Pittsburgh, North Side, Jan. 27, 1835. He was educated in the public schools of the Third Ward and at Allegheny College, Meadville, Pa. He was associated with his father in the contracting business until the beginning of the Civil War, when, with a number of other young men of Allegheny, he enlisted in the Federal Army.

In 1863 he acted as sergeant to Horatio K. Tyler's Company of Independent Battery Six Months Pa. Artillery and was mustered out Jan. 28, 1864. On Mar. 2, 1864 he re-enlisted in Company H., 116th Regiment of Pa. Volunteer Infantry and was wounded in action. He was discharged on a surgeon's certificate for disability Oct. 8, 1864 under the rank of second lieutenant<sup>1</sup> of Company H.

He married Oct. 20, 1855, Katherine Everett of Westmoreland Co., Pa., and died in Pittsburgh, North Side, June 27, 1875 from the effect of wounds received in the war. His wife died in Chicago in 1913 and is buried in Greensburg, Pa. They had four children:

- 278. Ada Jessie Smith, born Aug. 7, 1856, died Apr. 4, 1867
- 279. Ella Blanche Smith, born 1859
- 280. Clara Everett Smith, born Nov. 25, 1864, died Mar. 28, 1867
- 281. Lily Smith, born 1867, died 1867.

279. Ella Blanche Smith married Samuel R. Hayden, and had three children:

- 391. Stella Adele Hayden, deceased
- 392. Egerton Hayden
- 393. Gladys Hayden.

II-73-84-112-172. Angeline Smith, the eldest daughter of George W. and Ellen Thompson Smith, was born in Pittsburgh, North Side, June 24, 1836. She was educated at the old Third Ward School and at Mrs. Benham's School for Young Ladies. She was well known in musical circles and was the youngest member of the Philharmonic Society in 1852-3, a famous local organization of that time. She studied instrumental music with Miss Kitty Bingham and voice culture with Prof. S. L. Bingham, principal of the Pittsburgh Academy of Music located in Apolla Hall.

In 1852, when Louis Kossuth the Hungarian patriot lectured in Doctor Pressley's church, she was one of six well-known singers of Allegheny who gave the musical program. In 1853 she was one of quartette composed of the late Prof. William Slack, James McBriar, later of Erie, Pa., Miss Mary White<sup>1</sup> who was later Mrs. McBriar, who sang at a benefit for the Allegheny and Pittsburgh Orphan Asylums in old Masonic Hall in Fifth Ave. She also sang a solo, "The Hardy Mariner," and, as she herself modestly says, was extravagantly acclaimed in the morning papers as a second Jenny Lind.<sup>2</sup> Mr. Quick, rector of Saint Andrew's Episcopal Church, obtained her consent to sing in Saint Andrew's choir, then composed of Doctor and Mrs. Mitchell, Miss Lightner, accompanist, and the late Joseph Fleming of Sewickley.

Angeline Smith married Oct. 26, 1854, as his second wife, Robert Taggart, a merchant of Allegheny.

Robert Taggart died Mar. 23, 1909, and Angeline Smith Taggart, Jan. 31, 1920. They are buried in the Taggart family plot in Uniondale Cemetery, North Side. They had nine children<sup>3</sup>:

282. John Charles Brown Taggart, born Sept. 21, 1856, died July 10, 1912

283. Jane Angeline Taggart

284. George Bradford Taggart

Title and Trust Company,<sup>1</sup> of which Mr. McKee was the first president. Later the company took over the Iron City National Bank, the Moreland Trust Company and the Standard Security Company. Mr. McKee resigned the presidency of the Guarantee Title and Trust Company and in 1914 organized the Title Guaranty Company of which he is now the president.

Mr. McKee is a member of the American Board of Missions of the United Presbyterian Church, a trustee of Knoxville College, Knoxville, Tenn., a member of the Buckskin Club of Pittsburgh and Canada, the Izaak Walton League, the Chamber of Commerce of Pittsburgh, and the Keystone Athletic Club.

Mrs. McKee is a member of the Pittsburgh Female College Association, was a member of Columbia Hospital Board for ten years, and a member of the Woman's Club of Wilkesburg, having represented the club as president during the Sesqui-Centennial Convention of Women's Clubs held in Pittsburgh. Mr.<sup>2</sup> and Mrs. McKee had three children:

394. Ellen Blanche McKee, who was educated in the Wilkesburg schools and Dilworth Hall, and graduated from Pennsylvania College for Women, Pittsburgh

395. Henry Stanley, born Feb. 13, 1887, died June 15, 1888

396. Robert Willis, born Oct. 3, 1888, died Sept. 5, 1889.

284. George Bradford Taggart was born Aug. 26, 1859 in Bank Lane, Duquesne Borough, now a part of Pittsburgh, North Side. He attended the public schools of old Allegheny City, Iron City College and was tutored in German. He then entered the shoe business of Taggart and Simon, where he eventually became a partner under the firm name of R. Taggart and Son. He was an active member of the Sewickley United Presbyterian Church and succeeded his father as a director of Uniondale Cemetery.

George B. Taggart married Sept. 24, 1885 in the First English Lutheran Evangelical Church, Pittsburgh, Jane Baxter

<sup>1</sup>The first directors of the organization were Samuel H. McKee, Hugh Walkinshaw McKee, W. C. Temple, John M. Roberts, W. C. Moreland, W. W. Wishard, Galen C. Hartman, A. M. Moreland, John Bindley, Edwin Bindley, Robert S. Smith, Julian Kennedy, Fred W. Keifer, Otis H. Childs, J. D. Hallman and H. P. Pears. (See "A Century of Banking in Pittsburgh" by Edwin White.)

Kilgore, daughter of Jesse B. Kilgore<sup>1</sup> and Esther Mary Barker Kilgore<sup>2</sup> of Pittsburgh and Blairsville, Pa.

Mr. Taggart died at Wilkinsburg, Pa., May 17, 1910 and Jane, his wife, died Mar. 23, 1913. They are buried in the Kilgore plot, Uniondale Cemetery. They had nine children:

- 397. John, who died an infant
- 398. Ralph Carson Taggart
- 399. Bradford Baxter Taggart
- 400. Mary Esther Taggart
- 401. Jesse Kilgore Taggart
- 402. Robert Porter Taggart

- 404. George Howard Taggart
- 405. Kathryn Louise Taggart, born Aug. 30, 1900, died July 30, 1901, at Sewickley, Pa.

398. Ralph Carson Taggart, the eldest living son of George Bradford and Jane Baxter Kilgore Taggart, was born Apr. 3, 1888 in Pittsburgh, North Side. He has been connected with the Westinghouse interests since 1910. In 1917 he was transferred to the North Side offices; since 1927, is connected with the Union Switch and Signal Company.

He married July 25, 1917, Helen Pearl, daughter of Samuel H. and Mary Helen Owens Grubbs of Sewickley, Pa. They have two children:

- 485. Helen Jane Taggart, born Apr. 27, 1919
- 486. Ralph Carson Taggart, Jr., born July, 1921.

399. Bradford Baxter Taggart, born in Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 4, 1889, was a student at Sewickley High School from 1905 to 1909 and attended Carnegie Institute of Technology, 1909-11. He then entered the employment of the J. B. Semple Company and was made traffic manager of the Inland Manufacturing Company at Sewickley, Pa. He is in business in Coraopolis, Pa. He is a member of the Mandolin Club of Sewickley and of the Wireless Club.

<sup>1</sup>Jesse Baxter Kilgore, a woolen merchant of Pittsburgh, was the son of Jesse Kilgore and Jane Baxter, widow of Mr. Hull and grandson of Col. David Kilgore and Sarah McKee. Colonel Kilgore's father, James Kilgore, a Scotch-Irishman, settled in Cumberland Co., Pa., in 1740, where Colonel Kilgore was born in 1745. In 1770 Colonel Kilgore brought his family to Westmoreland Co., where he held large acreages both here and in Indiana Co. He held a captain's commission in the 8th Pennsylvania Regiment in 1776. It was one of the notable organizations of the Revolutionary War. In 1778 he sold a valuable mill and out of the proceeds purchased material to clothe his men, for which he neither asked nor received compensation from the Government. Colonel Kilgore served throughout the war, retiring at its close as colonel of his company.

<sup>2</sup>Esther Mary Barker was the daughter of Robert Barker, a cloth merchant of Pittsburgh, and his wife, Jane Porritt. She was the ward of William Barker, an early woolen manufacturer of the city. Her grandfather, William Barker, Sr. (see Barker Genealogy by William Kaercher), was born at Aytown near Stokesley, England in 1761 and died there, July 12, 1848. He is buried beside his second wife, Mary Wardell, in the Guisborough Parish Churchyard, Yorkshire, England.

He married at Sewickley, Oct. 11, 1913, Rebecca Jeanne, daughter of Albert R. Ague and Mary Jane Abercrombie of Sewickley, Pa. They have:

487. Reva Jane, born at Sewickley, Sept. 16, 1914

488. Ruth Louise, born at Knixville, Pa., Feb. 7, 1916.

400. Mary Esther Taggart, born in Pittsburgh, Pa., married Mar. 4, 1929, Everett Warren Phipps of Detroit, Mich., son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis C. Phipps of Philadelphia, Pa.

401. Jesse Kilgore Taggart, born in Pittsburgh, Pa., Mar. 18, 1896, enlisted for three years June 12, 1916 as a private in Battery F., First Regiment of Field Artillery, Pennsylvania National Guard and was sent to the Mexican border. He was honorably discharged by reason of his enlistment in the U. S. Navy, Mar. 24, 1917, by Capt. John S. Purucker.

He left Mt. Gretna, Pa., June 15, 1916, with his battery, which was the first from all the states to reach the border at that point, and saw the encampment grow from 2,000 men to 45,000 in a few months' time. His battery broke camp Nov. 18, 1916, and he was mustered out at East Liberty, Dec. 4, 1916.

He entered the Naval Training Station at Newport, R. I., Apr. 5, 1917, the United States declaring war upon Germany Apr. 6, 1917.

On Apr. 14, 1917, with forty-nine picked ex-service men, he was sent to New York where he went aboard the receiving ship waiting to carry the men to the U. S. S. Tallahassee at Colon, Panama, where they arrived May 8, 1917, and were sent to Coco Solo where they worked and drilled. On May 30th they marched a distance of ten miles there and back from Colon to Monkey Hill, Mt. Hope Cemetery, with no shade and no water and with the thermometer at 115 degrees.

They went aboard the Tallahassee as her crew and were anchored at the main entrance of the breakwater to protect the canal. On Oct. 18, 1917 they made their first trip through the canal, returning Oct. 20th from Panama City to Colon in six hours and fifteen minutes, C. Y. Johnson, commanding.

On May 21, 1918 the Tallahassee left Colon for St. Thomas, Virgin Islands. His brother, George H. Taggart, was then aboard. On May 23, 1918, Jesse K. Taggart was sent to Coco Solo, now the U. S. Naval Air Station and Submarine Base.

On Dec. 18, he went aboard the U.S.S. Beaver, Submarine tender for the R. boats and went through the Canal to San Pedro, Calif. and to San Diego. After some months on the coast he started for Honolulu, reaching the Submarine Base at Pearl Harbor, Sept. 28, 1919, acting as radio operator on the U. S. Submarines.

He left Honolulu on the U. S. Transport Thomas for San Francisco, arriving at Goat Island Oct. 9, 1919, and was sent with four men to Pittsburgh, Pa., where they were discharged at East Liberty, Oct. 15, 1919, serving in all two years, six months and twelve days in the World War.

At Fort B. V. Meade, Mar. 21, 1918, Eng. Off. William Wagner of the U. S. S. Tallahassee took thirty of the crew, including Jesse K. and George H. Taggart, to the Dutch ship Cornelis lying in Colon Bay. They had orders to take the ship and her crew, which they did without resistance. He received orders from the captain to take fourteen men of the Cornelis to the U. S. Patrol Station at Colon. Of this incident he said: "The men seemed glad that the U. S. A. had ordered us to take their ship and them. We struck the Dutch colors and raised the Stars and Stripes at 11:30 A.M. with sixty sailors on board from the Patrol Station to take the ship to New York when orders were received from Washington to turn back the ship to the Dutch at 3:45 P.M., Mar. 22, 1918."

Jesse K. Taggart married May 31, 1927, Marguerite Brucker, born Apr. 5, 1898. He died Mar. 26, 1929. They had one son:

489. Donald Edgar Taggart, born February, 1928.

402. Robert Porter Taggart, born Apr. 15, 1897 in Sewickley, Pa., enlisted in the United States Navy, Dec. 5, 1917 and was sent as a seaman on guard duty to Naval Base No. 17, Capt. O. G. Murfin in charge. He was stationed at Alness, Scotland from Feb. 6, 1918 to Feb. 28, 1919, and was attached to Naval Base No. 18 at Inverness from Mar. 3, 1919 to Apr. 7, 1919.

He was then sent aboard the U. S. S. Stribling, a torpedo boat destroyer, and was in the Adriatic from Apr. 12 to June 26, 1919 in the capacity of coxswain of the motor sailor; W. R. Van Auken, Lieutenant, Commander.

He was honorably discharged Aug. 12, 1919, but before returning home made a tour of Sicily, Spain, Turkey in Asia and Europe, Greece, Austria, Italy, France and Scotland.

Upon his return to Pittsburgh he entered the Sales Accounting Department of the National Tube Company but resigned to enter the Central National Bank of Wilksburg, Pa. He is at present with the Hamilton State Bank, Homewood, Pittsburgh, Pa., as assistant cashier.

Robert Porter Taggart married Apr. 3, 1920, Alyda Alma Magnus, born Dec. 2, 1896, daughter of George Magnus and Vienna Speer, his wife, of Pittsburgh. They have one daughter:

490. Sherley Speer Taggart, born Dec. 31, 1921.

403. Jane Angeline Taggart, twin to Robert Porter Taggart, was born in Sewickley, Pa., Apr. 15, 1897. She married May 8, 1920, Robert Ferry Boli, born at Turtle Creek, Pa., May 24, 1896. Mr. Boli is the only surviving son of Capt. Peter Boli, who died Dec. 16, 1927, and his wife, Mary Emma McPherson Wilkins,<sup>1</sup> who was born in 1856 and died July 28, 1915.

Robert F. Boli attended the Pittsburgh Central High School, going from there to the Carnegie Institute of Technology, taking the preparatory engineering course. He had been entered two years in the School of Economics, University of Pittsburgh when the World War began.

Mr. Boli enlisted May 15, 1918 in the Fourteenth Engineers, Company B., Colonel Lovett and Capt. Frank Pelletier commanding.

He sailed from Philadelphia July 16, 1918 to Halifax, twenty-eight ships in convoy, stopping three days in Halifax. He landed at Swansea, Wales and went into camp at Winchester, England. From there he went to Southampton and embarked for Le Havre, France with the 116th Engineers, where he joined the Replacement Corps<sup>2</sup> at Angiers. He was transferred to the 14th Engineers and sent to Chateau Thierry where he served with the Third Army Corps on the Marne. On September 18th, he was dispatched with his Corps, to Argonne Wood. On October 5th the Fourteenth was moved to Gondrecourt and from there to Abainvillon on the Meuse, where it operated a narrow gauge railroad for the hauling of supplies and ammunition to the First Army during the Battle of the Meuse, Argonne, until Nov. 11, 1918. On Apr. 17, 1919, <sup>1</sup>Mary Emma McPherson Wilkins, wife of Captain Boli, was the daughter of William Wilkins, born Dec. 29, 1826, died Feb. 2, 1884, and his wife, Rebecca McPherson of Carlisle, Pa., and grand-daughter of James Wilkins, born 1789, died 1865, who was the son of William Wilkins, a captain in the Revolutionary Army, who was present at Crawford's Defeat in the Indian War. Captain Wilkins, born 1752, died Jan. 29, 1826, was the paternal uncle of Judge William Wilkins of Pittsburgh, Pa., U. S. Senator 1843-4, minister to Russia 1834-5 and secretary of war 1844-5.

David Wilkins, born in England in 1731, was the progenitor of the Wilkins family in America. He settled at Newark, Del., but died at his residence, Avon Creek, Washington Co., Pa., Oct. 2, 1793.

<sup>2</sup>Mr. Boli was a sergeant of the first class in Camp Humphreys but served as a private with the Fourteenth Engineers in Angiers. Pittsburgh Base Hospital No. 27 was located at this place.

Mr. Boli entrained at Bar-le-Duc for Bordeaux and sailed for the United States, landing at Boston, Apr. 27, 1919.

Mr. Boli is in the Accounting Department of the National Tube Company of Pittsburgh.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ferry Boli have one son :

491. William Wilkins Boli, born Mar. 13, 1927.

284-404. George Howard Taggart, youngest son of George B. and Jane Kilgore Taggart, was born in Sewickley, Pa., June 27, 1898.

He enlisted with his brothers Jesse K. and Robert in the National Guard of Penna. in June, 1916, and was mustered in at Mt. Gretna, Pa., July 5, 1916, Battery F., First Pa. Field Artillery, Captain Parucker, second officer in command. He served about five months on the Mexican border and was mustered out November, 1916.

On Apr. 4, 1917 he enlisted in the U. S. Navy and served on the U. S. S. Tallahassee, R. F. Menner, Commander. He was stationed at Panama for one year as a seaman of the first class. From Panama his ship went to the West Indies, patrolling Kingston, Jamaica, San Juan de Marcus, Haiti, St. Thomas, Guantanamo, Key West, Miami, then to Key West, Guantanamo to Panama, then to Guantanamo, and from there to Bermuda Island, where he was stationed eleven months.

From Bermuda he was sent to Charleston Navy Yard where he was honorably discharged Sept. 10, 1919.

He is now employed at the Union Switch and Signal Company at Swissvale, Pa.

He married Sept. 10, 1920, Helen Sloan Cochran of Wilkesburg, Pa., born May 11, 1899. She is the daughter of Milton C. Cochran, born in Lancaster Co., Pa., and Lyda M. Boyd, born at Slate Lick, Pa. They have four children :

492. Marilyn Boyd Taggart, born May 26, 1923

493. George Howard Taggart, Jr., born Nov. 15, 1925

494. Jane Kilgore Taggart, born Nov. 22, 1927

495. Nancy Cochran Taggart, born Nov. 22, 1927.

112-172-285. Ellen Thompson Taggart was born Apr. 6, 1861, in Bank Lane, above the old canal, Duquesne Borough, now included in the north side of the city of Pittsburgh. She attended Mrs. Marshall's private school, the Irwin Ave. public school and graduated as English salutatorian from the Pittsburgh Female College in 1880. She married Oct. 25, 1888, John L. Carson of Omaha, Neb.

Mr. Carson, born near Mercersburg, Pa., Oct. 13, 1860, was the son of David Carson,<sup>1</sup> a soldier of the Civil War and his wife, Mary Patterson.<sup>2</sup>

David Carson enlisted Aug. 15, 1862, as second sergeant, Company C., 126th Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteers, and died at Baltimore, while in service, Sept. 13, 1862.

In 1884, John L. Carson, now of Buffalo, N. Y., engaged in banking under the tutelage of his uncle John L. Carson, Sr., of Lincoln, Neb., who was president of the Carson Bank at Brownsville, Neb., of the South Auburn Bank, and later of the Lincoln National Bank at Lincoln, Neb.

At the end of three years' experience, he took a position with the First National Bank at Omaha, Neb., and in 1890 was elected assistant cashier of one of its associated banks, the Union Stock Yards National Bank at Omaha.

In 1900 he was asked by Swift and Company of Chicago to become treasurer of one of its subsidiary companies, the North Packing and Provision Company of Boston, which he accepted.

In 1905 he became associated with the Jacob Dold Packing Company of Buffalo, handling its finances and directing its office force. At the time of its reorganization in 1912 he was elected treasurer and director both of the parent company and its subsidiaries at Omaha and Washington. He retired in 1926.

<sup>1</sup>Carson lineage: The father of David Carson, the Hon. James Oliver Carson of Franklin Co., Pa., was appointed associate judge for the 16th Pennsylvania District in 1856, reappointed in 1861, and again appointed in 1864. He also represented his district in the legislature of Pennsylvania. He married Rosanna Marshall White. The present Mercersburg Hotel was their fine old mansion house, where it is said Judge Carson rarely sat down to a board of less than twenty covers, entertaining all the celebrities of the day as they traveled from Philadelphia in the east and Baltimore on the south to the west and north or vice versa over the old pike.

Mr. David Carson, his father, who came to Pennsylvania in 1787, went from Scotland to Ireland early in life where he married Jean Oliver, daughter of the Rev. James Oliver of Scotland and his wife Jean Fisher, then residing in Ireland and they became the progenitors of the Pennsylvania branch of the Carson family, a number of whom were distinguished clergymen of the United Presbyterian Church of America: namely the Rev. David Carson, D.D., professor of Hebrew and Church History at Canonsburg Theological Seminary, the Rev. David Walker Carson, D.D., moderator of the United Presbyterian General Assembly in 1881, the Rev. James Gillespie Carson, D.D., professor in Xenia Theological Seminary, the Rev. David Gibson Carson and the Rev. James C. Carson, the two latter of the Presbyterian Church.

Jean Fisher, wife of the Rev. James Oliver, was a daughter of the Rev. James Fisher of Scotland, author of Fisher's Catechism, and Jean Erskine, his wife, whose father, Ebenezer Erskine was the great Scottish reformer: he was a brother of Ralph Erskine, the celebrated author of Gospel Sonnets and other poetical writings.

They were the sons of Henry Erskine and grandsons of Ralph Erskine, a cadet of the noble house of Mar in Scotland. (For Erskine lineage, see Appendix A. page 77.)

<sup>2</sup>Mary Patterson was the granddaughter of Gen. William Patterson of Penna., a revolutionary officer who received a silver service from Congress for his military achievements.

Her father, Thomas Patterson, married Elizabeth Burns, daughter of John Burns, of old Westmoreland, Pa., who made the first cannon for the Revolutionary War.

It was seized by the British, taken to London and placed in the British Museum.

John Burns was a cousin of Bobby Burns, the poet. Thomas Patterson, his son-in-law, was a second cousin to "Glorious Betsey" Patterson, the first wife of Jerome Bonaparte, a brother of Napoleon Bonaparte.

Mr. Carson is a member of the Park, the Athletic and the Automobile clubs of Buffalo and of the American Bankers' Association.

John L. Carson and Ellen Thompson Taggart have three children:

406. Dale Bradford Carson

407. Eleanor Lucile Carson

408. John Lind Carson, Jr.

406. Dale Bradford Carson, born in Omaha, Neb., Sept. 15, 1889, was educated in the public schools of that city and in the grammar schools of Cambridge and Brookline, Mass.

He graduated from Cornell University in 1912 as a mechanical and electrical engineer.

He was employed by Henry L. Doherty & Company, New York City public service operators, and at once went to Denver, Colo., to work for the Denver Light and Heat Company, one of the subsidiaries of the Doherty Company where he remained for a little less than a year.

He was then transferred to the New York City offices. He was rejected for service in the World War because of defective hearing, has remained in New York City and is assistant treasurer of the Cities Service Company, vice president of the Empire Gas and Fuel Company, as well as one or two other subsidiary companies of Henry L. Doherty & Company.

He married Oct. 2, 1913, Laura Ellsworth Cook, daughter of Charles Button Cook and Lucy Hawley Cook of Ithaca, N. Y. Mrs. Carson graduated from Cornell University in 1913. They have one daughter:

496. Elizabeth Ellsworth Carson, born Jan. 4, 1915, at South Orange, N. J.

407. Eleanor Lucile Carson was born in Omaha, Neb., where she attended the primary schools, later attending those of Brookline, Mass., and Buffalo, N. Y. She graduated from Smith College, Northampton, Mass., in 1915. She was engaged in Red Cross and in clerical work during the World War and since then in the activities of the Woman's Club of Buffalo and the College Club.

408. John Lind Carson, Jr., was born June 1, 1897. He was educated in the public schools of South Orange, the preparatory school of Buffalo and entered Williams College in 1916.

During the World War, August, 1918, he entered Massachusetts Institute of Technology as a student of aviation and received a commission in the Aviation Department. After the Armistice he returned to Williams College where he received his degree of A.B. in 1921.

He was then employed by the Jacob Dold Packing Company in one of the departments under his father, John L. Carson.

In 1923 he accepted a position with the firm of A. L. Chambers & Company of Buffalo, buying and selling stocks and bonds where he remained a little over a year, after which he entered the firm of W. A. Gardner & Company of Buffalo, members of the New York Stock Exchange, and two years later was admitted to the firm.

John Lind Carson, Jr., married Nov. 18, 1922, Nancy, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Allen Gardner of Brookfield Farm, Snyder, Erie Co., N. Y., and of Buffalo. They have one son:

497. John Lind Carson III, born Apr. 25, 1926.

112-172-286. Ada Blanche Taggart was born in the Taggart homestead in Irwin Ave., Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 23, 1863.

She attended Mrs. Marshall's private school, the Irwin Ave. Public School and in 1883 took her degree of M.L.A., at the Pittsburgh Female College.

She married Oct. 16, 1889, Galen C. Hartman, Esq., of Pittsburgh, Pa.

Mrs. Hartman was a charter member of the College Club of Pittsburgh, is a member of the Twentieth Century Club, the Scribblers Club, is corresponding secretary of the Pittsburgh Branch of the Poetry Society of Great Britain, Pa., vice chairman of the Bookfellows Library Guild of America, has been recording secretary of the Pittsburgh Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, is a member of the Dickens Fellowship and of the National League of American Pen Women.

In 1926 she was a member of the Women's Committee of the Sesqui-Centennial International Association.

During the World War she received credentials from Washington as a Red Cross instructor and was associated with Preparedness Unit, the Pittsburgh Chapter, D. A. R., and the Twentieth Century Club, and served as treasurer, official instructor and inspector for the William Penn Auxiliary of the Red Cross.

She has contributed to domestic and foreign magazines and is the compiler of the present work.

Galen C. Hartman, only surviving son of Dr. Robert L. Hartman, who was born Dec. 1, 1828 and baptized Dec. 26, 1828, at Grosswalbur, Colburg, Germany, as Johann Herman Robert Hartmann,<sup>1</sup> and his wife, Rebecca J. Perrine, was born at Independence, Washington Co., Pa., May 22, 1865.

He was educated under private tutors, at Bethany College, W. Va., and graduated in law and engineering in 1885, from the University of Michigan. He entered the law office of J. Brewer Sommerville at Wellsburg, W. Va., in 1885, and was admitted to the Allegheny Co. Bar in 1890.

Galen C. Hartman is a member of the Chamber of Commerce of Pittsburgh, the Historical Society of Western Pennsylvania, the Academy of Science and Art, the Bibliophile Society of Boston, the Union Club of Pittsburgh, the Izaak Walton League, the Somerset Golf and Country Club, was a charter member of the Stanton Heights Golf Club, and a member of the Allegheny Co. and the American Bar Associations. During the World War Mr. Hartman was a member of the Committee of Public Safety.

Through his mother he is descended from Daniel Perrine<sup>2</sup> and Marie Thorel of Rouen, France, Huguenots, who came with Governor Carteret to America in 1665, with whose family the Perrines were affiliated by marriage. This couple received the first marriage license issued in New Jersey, and their nuptials were attended with almost royal pomp.

112-172-287. Carrie Smith Taggart was born in the Taggart homestead, Irwin Ave., Allegheny City, now the North Side of Pittsburgh, Sept. 28, 1866.

She attended Mrs. Copeland's Primary School, the Irwin Ave. Grammar School and matriculated at the Pittsburgh Female College in 1886-8.

She married first, Frank A. Minnemeyer of Pittsburgh, and secondly, Nov. 2, 1917, William James Francis,<sup>3</sup> an op-

<sup>3</sup>Mr. Francis is the son of Charles Stowe Francis, of Ohio, and Harriet Emeline, daughter of Samuel Church of Amherst, Mass., who settled at Stone Hill, Brunswick, Ohio, about 1835, later removing to Berea, Ohio.

Samuel Church was of sturdy Puritan stock and his wife was a gifted writer of verse—a talent which descended to her daughter Harriet, who was well known to lovers of verse.

She wrote under the pen name of "Aunt Hattie," articles for girls, which appeared in Arthur's Home Magazine, and published many poems from 1850 to 1870 in Godey's Ladies Book, the Ladies Repository, the Cleveland Leader, the Enterprise and newspapers in all parts of the country. The Enterprise of May 7, 1915 says when eighty years of age her poems were still in demand, and that well-known critics praised her work.

tician, associated with the John M. Roberts Company, jewelers of Pittsburgh.

In the winter of 1917, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. J. Francis removed to Miami, Fla., where Mr. Francis has since been engaged in the real estate business. In 1923 they went to California where he became an active member of the Real Estate Board of San Diego.

Returning to Miami in 1925, he became engaged in building. In the devastating storms that swept Florida in 1926, Mr. and Mrs. Francis escaped personal injuries, but sustained considerable loss to their property and home.

112-172-288. Laura Edna Taggart, born in Pittsburgh, North Side, Sept. 14, 1871, is a graduate of the Pittsburgh Female College. She married Oct. 6, 1898, Isaac Lincoln Jones, Esq., son of Rowland D. and Elizabeth Jones, natives of Wales but later residents of Pittsburgh. Laura Edna Jones died Nov. 2, 1928.

Lincoln Jones attended the public and private schools of Pittsburgh and studied law at the University of Michigan. He was a practicing attorney of McKeesport and Pittsburgh, represented his city in council, was a director of Duff's Iron City College and other organizations, and a member of the Youghioghny Country Club and of the Masonic Order. Mr. Jones died Jan. 28, 1928. They had:

409. Edna Elizabeth Jones

410. Helen Lincoln Jones.

409. Edna Elizabeth Jones, born July 12, 1899, was educated in the McKeesport schools and at Maryland College, near Baltimore, Md. She was the first secretary of the Children's Chapter of the D. A. R. Society of McKeesport, organized in 1914, and is now a member of the Queen Aliquippa Chapter, D. A. R. and of the Auxiliary of the Woman's Club of McKeesport. nal Corps at Snickers Gap, Va., and in the following month (Dec. 20, 1862) he was promoted to the rank of<sup>1</sup> sergeant major of Company A for his<sup>2</sup> gallant conduct. He served in the battles of the Wilderness, Antietam, Fredericksburg and Chancellorsville, fighting for the same cause and almost upon the same ground where his great grandfather, Bartholomew Smith of Frederick Co., Va. had emancipated his slaves almost fifty years before.

Doctor Smith was mustered out May 13, 1863 and in the autumn of that year entered Allegheny College at Meadville, an institution one of whose buildings, Ruter Hall, his father had helped to build. While here he received a silver watch for the best literary production of the year, a great honor in those days. After leaving Allegheny College he received his degree of M.D. at Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia and took a post-graduate course at Bellevue Hospital, New York.

He returned to Pittsburgh and opened an office in Federal St., North Side, just above the Allegheny Parks, but later removed to Montgomery Ave. where he continued to practice his profession until the time of his death. He was medical director of the Allegheny Poor Board, a member of the Board of Health and one of the original members of the staff of the Allegheny General Hospital. At the time of the Paris Exposition he went abroad, taking up detail work under the famous Doctor Charcot.

He married in October, 1881, Matilda Armstrong, widow of Thomas Crumpton, nephew of the Reverend Doctor Crumpton of Pittsburgh, and daughter of William Armstrong. Mrs. Smith died in New York City, Sept. 8, 1907, leaving by her former husband one daughter:

Fanny Crumpton, who married Charles L. Worthington, a structural engineer now of New York City.

201. James William Thompson, only surviving son of William and Elizabeth Bickle Thompson, removed to Cedar Co., Iowa, when a young man. He enlisted in the Federal Army under command of his brother-in-law, then Maj. Edgar Wright of the 24th Iowa Infantry, and was mustered into service at Muscatine, Iowa, Sept. 18, 1862. He was killed in action.

James William Thompson married Hannah Swain and had two children:

334. Walter Thompson of Iowa City

335. Annie Thompson, who married Mr. Vincent of West Branch, Iowa.

Hannah Swain Thompson married, secondly, Mr. Alfred Ohl of West Branch, Iowa.

203. Martha Thompson, daughter of William and Elizabeth Bickle Thompson, was born Jan. 3, 1829 and was married Mar. 27, 1848 at the residence of her grandfather John Thompson, then of Allegheny City, now Pittsburgh, Pa., to Edgar Wright of Ohio, a young lawyer who later became the well-known Gen. Ed. Wright, the distinguished lawyer, soldier and legislator of Iowa. Mr. Wright removed to Iowa and began the practice of law at Des Moines in 1854.

In 1862 he received a commission from his life-long friend, Governor Kirkwood of Iowa, as major of a Volunteer Company of men. He was shortly after transferred to the 24th Iowa Infantry, dubbed by their comrades "The Temperance Regiment." It was mustered into service at Muscatine, Sept. 18, 1862. Its first action was at Coldwater, Miss., Nov. 17, 1862, where it was commanded by Col. Eber E. Byam, Lieut.-Col. John Q. Wild and Maj. Ed. Wright.

Jan. 11, 1863, Major Wright commanded a part of General Gorman's Expedition up the White River and on July 4th participated in the siege of Vicksburg. In August the 24th Infantry was joined to the Department of the Gulf under General Banks and engaged in the Louisiana Campaign at Brashear City, Berwick and Vermillion, where Captain Gear was shot by guerillas and Colonel Byam resigned, thus throwing the burden of command upon Major Wright, who conducted it through the two months' campaign.

In March, 1864, his regiment was in the unhappy Red River Expedition, where it lost heavily in men and arms. In July it embarked on board the ocean steamer "Star of the South" for Fortress Monroe, General Sheridan commanding. It was engaged at Winchester, Fisher's Hill, and Cedar Creek, where it had a brilliant ending to its gallant fighting record.

In January, 1865, Major Wright was ordered to Savannah where his men formed the rearguard to General Sherman's northward marching army, doing valiant service at Morehead City, Goldsboro, Savannah, Hamburg and Augusta. His regiment was mustered out at Savannah July 17, 1865 when Colonel Wright, as he then ranked, was brevetted brigadier-general to rank from Mar. 13, 1865.

Of the terrific fighting at Champion Hills May 16, 1863, General Hervey wrote: "What shall I say of the 24th and 28th Iowa Infantry? Of them the State may well be proud. The 24th fought like veterans and in a daring charge many brave officers and men were killed or wounded, among whom was the gallant Maj. Ed. Wright. One hundred and ninety-five men out of four hundred and seventeen engaged in this battle were killed, wounded or missing and nowhere in all the four years' struggle was the state of Iowa more honored by the patriotic valor of its sons."

"At the Battle of Cedar Creek," says S. H. Byers in Iowa War Times, "Lieutenant-Colonel Wilds of the 24th received a mortal wound and was succeeded by Maj. Ed. Wright, one of the bravest, best-known and most esteemed officers of Iowa. Major Wright himself was wounded in the arm and hip and was for a short time 'hors de combat' when Captain Clark temporarily commanded until Wright resumed command and led his regiment through the vicissitudes of that fierce day."

At Winchester, Va. he was twice wounded and his horse literally disemboweled beneath him, but with admirable fortitude he took some desperately needed ammunition upon his shoulders and carried it to the front; and he did this at a time when persistent ill-health had brought him leave of absence. It was at Winchester that he rescued the pet dog of a dying Confederate officer. This little animal, black as jet, which he called Pepper from its fiery spirit, attached itself to him and throughout the rest of the war and in the following years became his constant and devoted companion.

At the close of the war, General Wright represented the seventh district of Iowa in the Legislature where he was on several important committees. He was in turn speaker of the house, secretary of state for Iowa, and capital commissioner during the erection of the new Capitol building at Des Moines.

203. Martha Thompson Wright died at Des Moines, June, 1877, and General Wright in December, 1895. They had four children:

- 336. Asenath Wright, died young
- 337. Elma Wright, died unmarried
- 338. Flora Wright, died unmarried
- 339. Celia Wright.

339. Celia Wright married Pitt Cleveland of Norwalk, Ohio, a descendant of a pioneer family of that name<sup>1</sup> in Ohio that gave its name to the city of Cleveland. Mr. Pitt Cleveland had flour mills at Norwalk. He died young, leaving two children:

- 465. Edgar Wright Cleveland of Des Moines, Iowa
- 466. Edna Cleveland of Des Moines, Iowa.

204. Elizabeth Thompson, daughter of William and Elizabeth Bickle Thompson, was born Apr. 1, 1835. She married May 26, 1852, Robert E. Campbell of Utah and Miles City, Mont., where he died Mar. 22, 1902. Mrs. Campbell died July 2, 1914, leaving the following children:

- 340. Ella C. Campbell, who married Mr. Hammell of San Francisco
- 341. Ernest Campbell
- 342. Edith Campbell, who married Mr. Haynes, and has:
  - 467. Otis C. Haynes, born Nov. 20, 1875, who was a student of engineering in Lebanon, Ohio, clerk of courts in Custer Co., Mont. and also recorder
  - 468. Robert Halsey Haynes, born Oct. 6, 1879, is an engineer
  - 469. Dixie Haynes, born Mar. 24, 1886, was a student in Macalister College, St. Paul, Minn. She married Nov. 11, 1911, Charles Avel Lindeberg, clerk of the District Court, Custer Co., Mont., and has two children:
    - 512. Richard, born Sept. 11, 1912
    - 513. Douglas, born Apr. 8, 1916
- 343. Emma C. Campbell, who married Mr. Eichhorn of Miles City, and has:
  - 470. Arthur C. Eichhorn, who studied law at Valparaiso University, was connected with the National Packing Co. of Kansas City, but resigned to enter the lumber business at San Antonio, Tex., and is at present engaged in the banking business in Miles City. He married June 26, 1912, Roberta Lucile Prigg of Hutchinson, Kan., and has:
    - 514. Alice, born July 6, 1913
    - 515. Robert Leslie, born Nov. 24, 1916
    - 516. Arthur Fremont, born Jan. 26, 1919
- 344. Margaretta Campbell, born Aug. 23, 1860, died Feb. 18, 1917
- 345. William Campbell
- 346. Grace Campbell.

213. Elma Negus, died, aged thirteen months.

205. William West Negus, born Dec. 20, 1823, married Mar. 8, 1860, Mary E. Norris. Mr. Negus died in action Aug. 1, 1864 while participating in the Civil War.

206. Eliza Negus, born Sept. 16, 1825, married Nov. 2, 1854, John M. Watson of Indian Territory, where she died Aug. 26, 1898, leaving several children.

207. Esther Negus, born at Redstone Settlement, Nov. 16, 1827, married at Salem, Ohio, Sept. 24, 1857 Comly Tomlinson,<sup>3</sup> son of Sarah Comly and Isaac Tomlinson, who was born Sept. 29, 1823. Mr. Tomlinson was twice married; first to

<sup>3</sup>The Comly and Tomlinson families were natives of Yorkshire, England and came to the American Colonies through Ireland, where for a period of years they were members of a Quaker colony in County Wicklow. They eventually settled in Bibery and Moreland Townships, Philadelphia Co. in 1682, where a member of the Comly family became the most celebrated Quaker preacher of his day. Benjamin Tomlinson and Henry Comly lived in the Manor House in Moreland Township, now in Montgomery

Esther Negus, and, secondly, Mar. 15, 1901, to Lydia B. Milner. He died Dec. 6, 1901 and left by his first wife, who died Jan. 28, 1892, four children:

- 347. Lindley
- 348. Minerva
- 349. Oliver
- 350. Sarah.

471. Lindley Tomlinson, born June 13, 1860, was educated in the district schools of Jefferson Co. and Columbiana Co., Ohio and at Damascus Academy, after which he taught school a number of years. He engaged later in the produce business in Salem, Ohio where he was one of the incorporators and first president of the Salem Chamber of Commerce. He has served his city as councilman and is regarded as one of the city's most prominent men.

May 28, 1890 he married Miriam Belle Lease who was born Oct. 21, 1868. They have six children:

447. Mary Emma Tomlinson, born Apr. 16, 1891 at Salem, Ohio, was educated in the Salem Grammar and High Schools and in George School, a Friend's School near Newtown, Pa. Apr. 10, 1917 she married Norman E. Dow and resides in Salem, Ohio. Their children are:

- 517. Miriam T. Dow, born Jan. 6, 1918

- 519. Esther Elizabeth Dow, born May 16, 1922.

472. Edwin Augustus Tomlinson, born Dec. 19, 1892, attended the Salem schools and Swarthmore College, Swarthmore, Pa. Oct. 10, 1923 he married Nellie K. Allen and is now living in London, England where he is in charge of the office of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company.

473. William West Tomlinson, born Nov. 28, 1893, went to Swarthmore College. He was an ensign in the Navy during the World War and is now in the Philadelphia office of The Scott Paper Company of Chester, and lives at Narberth, Pa. Mar. 6, 1923, he married Rebecca Kirkpatrick Scott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Scott of Jones Ave., Braddock, Pa., and grand-daughter of the late Allen Kirkpatrick. They have two children:

- 520. Jane Scott Tomlinson, born Nov. 28, 1923
- 521. William West, born Apr. 25, 1928.

Co., Pa. His son Franklin was for thirty years the president of the North Pennsylvania Railroad. Isaac Comly and Joseph and Thomas Tumbleson lived on adjoining farms in Bibery Township in 1779. One branch of the Tomlinson family removed to Maryland where the head of this branch built a house on the great pike leading from Cumberland, Md. to Uniontown, Pa.

474. Esther Negus Tomlinson, born at Salem, Jan. 22, 1897, married Oct. 8, 1924, Martin H. Parkinson, Jr., manager of the auditing department of the Penn Central Light and Power Co., Altoona, Pa. They have two sons:

522. David Tomlinson Parkinson, born Nov. 3, 1925

523. Bruce Scott, born Mar. 13, 1928.

475. Charles Frederic Tomlinson, born at Salem, Dec. 24, 1898, married July 18, 1923, Bertha Brumenshenkel. Their home is in Salem, Ohio. They have one child:

524. Charles Frederic Tomlinson, Jr., born Dec. 15, 1926.

348. Minerva Tomlinson, daughter of Comly and Esther Negus Tomlinson, was born Mar. 7, 1862 at Trenton, Jefferson Co., Ohio, and married Dec. 4, 1884, Warren A. Hawley, who was born Aug. 24, 1860. Mr. Hawley is connected with the Silvers Manufacturing Company of Salem, Ohio. They have three children:

477. Grace Hawley, born Oct. 12, 1885, married July 2, 1917, Earl J. Peek. Mr. Peek died Oct. 31, 1927.

478. Roy Kirk Hawley, born Feb. 24, 1887, for a number of years was connected with the Dow Manufacturing Company of Salem and later with the Kelly Springfield Tire Works at Akron, Ohio. Oct. 24, 1914 he married Mina Morgan, and has one daughter:

525. Rhea Grace Hawley, born Dec. 3, 1915.

479. Ralph Waldo Hawley, born one or two miles south of Salem, Ohio in 1888, attended the grammar and high schools of that city, after which he became interested in journalism and is now editor of the Salem Daily News, a part of the Salem Publishing Company, and editor of the Republican Era, a semi-weekly publication. He is identified with several civic enterprises and is secretary of the Salem Public Health League. He lived with his parents (1915) at 87 East High St. July 22, 1918 he married Lora M. Hill.

349. Oliver Negus Tomlinson, born June 27, 1864 in Jefferson Co., Ohio, attended the district schools of that county and Columbiana Co., and began his business career as a book-keeper. About 1905 he removed with his family to California and is now stationed at Redondo Beach, about twenty miles from Los Angeles, where he is superintendent of the Redondo Water Company, the Redondo Improvement Company and the Huntington-Redondo Company, all of which are the properties and enterprises of H. E. Huntington, the railroad and land magnate who is conceded to be the "Empire Builder" of Southern California.

Mr. Tomlinson is a member of the Redondo Chamber of Commerce, of which he was president for two years. He is a member of the Board of Trustees, the governing board of the city and was mayor of the city in 1915.

He married Sept. 18, 1890, at Salem, Ohio, Emma Lydia Hamay who was born Apr. 26, 1868 and has three children:

480. Edith Esther Tomlinson, born Oct. 4, 1893 at Salem, Ohio, was educated in the schools of Salem and Redondo Beach and is the bookkeeper for her father's several interests.

481. Ruth Tomlinson, born at Salem, Ohio, July 20, 1899, was educated at the Redondo Beach High School.

482. Walter Negus Tomlinson, born at Salem, Aug. 25, 1901, was a student in the public schools in 1915.

350. Sarah Tomlinson, born June 26, 1866 in Jefferson Co., Ohio, married May 21, 1891, at Salem, Ohio, Alva D. Woolman, born May 11, 1865. They now live in California.

84-121-209. Sarah Negus, daughter of West Negus and Mary Thompson Negus, was born Mar. 27, 1832 and married Jacob B. Fawcett of Minneapolis, Minn., and of Prescott, Wis.

210. John Thompson Negus was one of four brothers, of whom Joseph (317) died young, and John, William and David were all killed in action in the Civil War.

212. Martha Negus, born Jan. 8, 1839, married Aug. 24, 1861, Isaac Tomlinson, nephew to Comly Tomlinson who married her elder sister. Mr. Tomlinson died at West Liberty, Iowa, and Mrs. Tomlinson lives at Muscatine, Iowa.

122. Martha Thompson, daughter of John and Nancy McCreary Thompson, was born on the site of Oil City, Pa. about 1799 and married in October, 1829, Brinton Darlington, then of Redstone, Fayette Co., Pa., where he was born Feb. 3, 1804. His mother, Rachel Cattell Darlington, was clerk of the Women's Meeting at Redstone and his father, Stephen Darlington, was the son of Thomas and Hannah Brinton Darlington of Chester Co., Pa., whose parents, Abraham<sup>1</sup> and Elizabeth Hillboorn Darlington, were the first settlers of this name in Pennsylvania where they left a long line of descendants distinguished in the fields of law, medicine, science, horticulture and legislation.

In early life Brinton Darlington removed from Fayette Co. to Salem, Ohio, where he was engaged in manufacturing woolen goods. In 1869 he was appointed by President Grant Indian agent for the Cheyenne and Raphoe Indians. He is said to have traveled by private conveyance from Leavenworth, Kan. to Dakota and thence to Indian Territory unarmed and without an escort. During the administration of his office the reservation was notable for its good order and rapid development. The town of Darlington was named in his honor.

Brinton Darlington was married three times; first, to the above Martha Thompson, by whom he had six children:

- 214. Rachel Darlington
- 215. Anna C. Darlington
- 216. Esther Darlington
- 217. William Thompson Darlington
- 218. Mary Darlington
- 219. Elma C. Darlington.

214. Rachel Darlington, born at Redstone, Fayette Co., Pa., removed with her parents to Ohio, where she married Joseph J. Hoag, a native of Vergennes, Vt., who came with the New England families to the settlements of Lynn and Warren in Ohio. Mr. and Mrs. Hoag had three children:

- 351. Charles Bassett Hoag of Indianapola, Neb.
- 352. Lindley M. Hoag of Indianapola, Neb.
- 353. Martha D. Hoag of Pasadena, Calif.

215. Anna C. Darlington, born May 16, 1832, at Salem, Ohio, was married May 17, 1855 to Lindley Murray Hoag of Muscatine, Iowa, an uncle of the above Joseph J. Hoag and son of Joseph<sup>1</sup> and Hulda Case Hoag of Vergennes, Vt. Mr. Hoag was born Nov. 3, 1808 and died at Iowa Falls, Iowa, Nov. 25, 1880. He was a minister among the Friends and traveled extensively in this country and in Europe. His wife was a woman of education and broad culture and after his death accepted the principalship of the Seger Indian School at Oklahoma. They had one child:

- 354. Ella Hoag, born at Iowa Falls, Mar. 16, 1856, married Victor E. Crasper of Canada, and has:

- 483. Anna Hoag Crasper of Iowa Falls, Iowa.

<sup>1</sup>Joseph Hoag was a kinsman, presumably a nephew, of the grammarian Lindley Murray who was born in Lancaster Co., Pa. and went with his father, a Quaker merchant, to Vermont and later to New York where the son studied law, and in middle life retired to Yorkshire, England.

84-122-216. Esther Darlington, daughter of Brinton and Martha Thompson Darlington, was born Dec. 30, 1830 and married Theodore F. Wilson of Tehama, Cherokee Co., Kan., where she died Feb. 12, 1878.

217. William Darlington, the only son of Brinton and his first wife Martha Thompson, died unmarried at Darlington, Okla.

218. Mary Darlington, born Oct. 23, 1837 at Salem, Ohio, married Oct. 4, 1871 at Muscatine, Iowa, Eli Page of Dover, N. H., a son of William and Sarah Meader Page of Rochester. Mrs. Page died at Dover, May 24, 1879, leaving three children:

355. Anna Elma Page, born Jan. 15, 1873, married June 9, 1896, Clarence Irving Pinkham, son of Edward and Mary Ann Lee Pinkham of Somersworth, N. H.

356. Gertrude Page, born July 22, 1874

357. Mabel Page, born July 15, 1877.

219. Elma Cattell Darlington married Jesse R. Townsend of the Townsend family of Redstone, Fayette Co. and of Chester Co., Pa. She died Sept. 13, 1878.

APPENDIX A

AN INTERESTING line of descent of the Erskine-Carson family from the ancient Earls of Mar is shown in the opposite table.

The Rev. Henry Erskine, son of Ralph Erskine, a cadet of the noble house of Mar, born in 1624, at Dryburg, was educated at Edinburgh University, and ejected for non-conformity to prelacy in 1662. After some years spent in London he returned to Dryburg where he wrote "Theologia Ostium," and other compositions. In 1682 he was banished and fined 5000 merks, and repeatedly imprisoned. After the passage of the Act of Indemnity he was restored to liberty and preached at Churnside from 1688 to Aug. 10, 1696, the date of his death. His wife, Margaret Halcro, received the following certificate when she left the island of Evie May 27, 1666.

"At the Kirk to Evie, to all and sundry into whose hands these presents shall come, be it known, that the bearer thereof, Margaret Halcro, daughter to the deceased Hugh Halcro in the Isle of Weir and Margaret Stewart, his spouse, hath lived in the parish of Evie from her infancy in good fame and report, is a descreet godly young woman and to our certain knowledge, free of all scandal reproach or blame.

"As also that she is descended of her father of the house of Halcro which is a very ancient and honorable family in the Orkneys—the noble and potent Earl of Early and Lairds of Dun in Angus; and by her mother, of the Laird of Burscobe in Galloway.

"In witness whereof, we the minister and clerk have subscribed these presents at Evie, day, month, year of God and place aforesaid and give way to all other noblemen, gentlemen and ministers to do the same."

signed

MR. MORISON, Minister of Evie
GEO. BALLENTINE
JAMES TRAIL
WM. BALLENDEN"

Margaret Halcro survived her husband nearly thirty years, residing with her son Ebenezer Erskine at Portmoak until her death Jan. 14, 1725.

The Rev. Henry and Margaret Halcro Erskine, his second wife, had with other children, the two celebrated divines, the Rev. Ebenezer Erskine, the founder of the Secession Church, and Ralph Erskine, author of the "Sonnets."

Rev. Ebenezer Erskine married Alison, daughter of Mr. Alexander Turpie, a writer in Leven, Fifeshire, Feb. 2, 1704.

They had ten children, of whom three sons and a daughter died in childhood:

Ebenezer, died abroad, a young man

David, died in 1800

Jean, the eldest daughter, married the Rev. James Fisher, latterly of Glasgow, author of Fisher's Catechism

Alison, the youngest daughter, married the Rev. James Scott of Gate-shaw. She died Jan. 13, 1814, aged 94 years and 6 months

Anne, who married Mr. James Jaffray of Stirling

Margaret, who married Mr. James Wardlaw of Dunfermline

Henry

Alexander } three sons all died in 1713.

Ralph }

The Rev. James Fisher, born at Barr, Jan. 23, 1697, was given a unanimous call to the Secession Church of Greyfriars, Glasgow in 1741, was moderator of the first Burgher Synod in 1747, succeeded Ebenezer Erskine as professor of Theology in the Burgher School, and was the author of several pamphlets. He died Sept. 28, 1775.

Reid's "History of the Presbyterian Church in Ireland" says that the Rev. James Fisher of Glasgow, son-in-law of Ebenezer Erskine, visited Ireland and preached at Ballynahinch, near Banbridge, and several other places. So great was his popularity that persons had been known to go from Ireland to Kinclaven, the little Scottish parish where he was originally settled, to attend his communion. (See also McKerrow, page 833.)

His daughter, Jean Fisher, married the Rev. James Oliver of Scotland, who was also called to be pastor of the Secession Church in Ireland. One of their daughters, Jean, married Mr. David Carson of Ireland and from this union sprang the Hon. James Oliver Carson of Mercersburg, Pa., father of Mr. David Carson, killed in the Civil War, the progenitor of the John Lind Carsons of Buffalo, and several eminent divines and preachers in the United States, the most noted of whom were:

The Rev. David Carson, D.D., born Oct. 25, 1799 at Greencastle, Franklin Co., Pa., who was brought up under the ministry of the Rev. John Lind. Rev. David Carson was pastor of several churches in eastern Tennessee, and professor of Hebrew and Church History at the Canonsburg (Pa.) Theological Seminary. He had two sons born at Maryville, Tenn.: The Rev. David Walker Carson, born Oct. 21, 1830, moderator of the General Assembly of the United Presbyterian Church in 1881, and the Rev. James Gillespey Carson, born Feb. 11, 1833, professor of Homiletics and Pastoral Theology at Xenia Theological Seminary of the United Presbyterian Church.

Others of the Carson family to enter the ministry were the Rev. Ernest Houston Carson, born at Baltimore, Apr. 14, 1871, the Rev. Ralph Erskine Carson, born at Baltimore, Dec. 19, 1868, who graduated from Johns Hopkins in 1890 and from the Pittsburgh Theological Seminary of the United Presbyterian Church. He was a missionary to Assiut, Egypt from 1895 to 1902. Also the Rev. David Gibson Carson and the Rev. James C. Carson of the Presbyterian Church.

APPENDIX B

ROBERT LATOUR HARTMAN, of Independence, Washington Co., Pa., which name Doctor Hartman adopted after making a grand tour of the continent, Africa and America, was the son of Cornelius Christian Hartmann, diakomus of Rossfield, Duchy of Coburg, born at Walzendorf in 1788, and his wife, Eleanore Margaretha Hohnbaum, born at Rodach, Saxe-Coburg, Jan. 15, 1804.

Frau Hartmann was of the distinguished family of Hohnbaum whose men were renowned as clergymen, poets, philosophers, and doctors. Her father's brother, Johann Philipp,<sup>1</sup> the Baron von Hohnbaum, born Aug. 19, 1761, was preceptor to Leopold, Prince of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, later Leopold I of Belgium, privy councillor, president of the Consistorium and knight of the Imperial and Royal Austrian Order of St. Leopold. He was pensioned Oct. 17, 1822 and died some years later while touring Italy.

Her father's cousin, Johann Christian Hohnbaum, was dean of the Church at Rodach, where he was born Nov. 6, 1747 and, dying there in 1825, was immortalized in the book, "Poet, Patriarch and Knight," by Karl Kühner of Eisenhausen. Some of his literary efforts, especially "The Two Pictures" and "Wet the Ropes," have been gathered into collections which insure their lasting fame. He was called to be court preacher at Coburg, where he remained for twenty years the preacher most sought after, and the life of convivial society. As an artist and painter on the lighter side he was proficient, and in music he expressed himself through song and piano—playing by means of his own compositions. Friends of Wagner will be interested to hear that in his notations are to be found remarks like the following: "It is well if the music only is heard and no player is seen."

On Nov. 1, 1907, almost eighty years after his death, there was unveiled at Rodach a memorial to Johann Christian Hohnbaum in the form of a boulder, from the Fichtelgebirge, supporting a bronze bust modeled by the sculptor, Edmond Wagner of Rodach, from a portrait and inscribed, Christian Hohnbaum, superintendent 1747-1825.

Cornelius Christian Hartmann and Eleanore Margaretha Hohnbaum<sup>1</sup> were the parents of ten children:

- Wilhelmine, born May 13, 1822, died young
- Emilie Bertha Wilhelmine, born June 27, 1825, wife of Herr Schultz of Thuringia
- Leopold, born 1827
- Hermann Johann Robert (Latour) as above, born at Grosswalbur, Dec. 1, 1828, died Apr. 22, 1897
- Emma Charlotte Amalie, born at Rossfeld, July 7, 1830, died at Coburg, Aug. 27, 1897
- Johanne Natalie, born Dec. 22, 1833, went to India with the family of Lord Palmerston of England. Died at Dresden, Aug. 2, 1881
- Flora Constanze Adelheid, born at Rossfeld, Aug. 12, 1835, wife of Herr August Glockner, manufacturer of artist's materials and paints at Meissen, Germany. Died at Plauen-Dresden, Nov. 16, 1903
- Auguste Louise Hildegard, born at Rossfeld, Oct. 25, 1837. Died unmarried at Dresden, Sept. 13, 1921
- Lucille Agathe Therese, born at Rossfeld, Mar. 17, 1841, wife of Alwin Weick, a musician of note, brother of the celebrated pianist, Madame Clara Schumann. Died at Coburg, Oct. 7, 1888
- Anna Fanny Thekla, born at Rossfeld, Aug. 19, 1846, wife of Richard Rodger, painter, artist and orator of Dresden. Died at Dresden, May 30, 1927.

Robert Hartmann, nephew of Cornelius and a professor in the University of Charlottenburg, was the representative of the German government in educational matters to the United States at the time of the Chicago World's Fair, 1893.

Adolph, brother of Robert of Charlottenburg, was dean of Saint Leonhard's Church in Nuremberg. He was the celebrated clergyman of Kissengen. His son Karl was an officer in the Imperial Army during the World War. His younger daughters, Wilhelmina and Caroline, were students at the University of Erlangen in 1903.

Charlotte Hartmann, sister of Cornelius Christian, became the wife of Herr Walz of Walzendorf, Coburg.

Philip, a brother and a merchant of Schweinfurt, had a son, Fritz Hartmann, who was a professor in the University of that place.

The father of Cornelius Christian, Philip and Charlotte was Frederick August Hartmann, a clergyman of Walzendorf and Grossheirath who married Louise Karoline Weidmann and had, besides the above children, Theodore, Ferdinand and William, father of Robert of Charlottenburg and the Rev. Adolph Hartmann.

This branch of the Hartmann family is descended from the noble house of Hartmann-Güldenstern<sup>1</sup> of Franconia, where, in 1495, Leonhard Hartmann was master of the guilds in the Senate of Nördlingen, Germany.

At a later period the Hartmanns lived in Thuringia and in Saxony, where Johann Hartmann was shot by the Croats while delivering a sermon in the pulpit at Crossen, near Mickaelisberg, in 1632.

The Güldensterns were of noble Swedish descent, one of whom, Count Gyldenstyerna, was admiral of the Swedish Navy.

In the time of Charles XI the family revolted and fled into Prussia, settling at Brandenburg.

It attained high honors and dignities in the kingdom of Poland during the Thirty Years' War, where Ladislaus Casimer von Güldenstern died in 1687. Sigismund was Castellan of Pomerellen, where he died in 1661, and Maximilian was governor of Elbing in 1666.

With Ladislaus Casimer von Güldenstern the male line of this house became extinct, but through marriage of a daughter with one of the sons of the Hartmann family the Güldenstern-Hartmann<sup>2</sup> family arose.

Dr. Robert Latour Hartman was educated at the Gymnasium at Coburg where his godfather, Johann Herman Robert Eureur, was head master and treasurer, and at Hildburghausen where he studied chemistry. He was initiated into the study of medicine by his mother's brother, Doctor Hohnbaum, and pursued his studies at the Universities of Wurzburg, Bonn and at the Hotel Dieu, Paris. After two years of extended travel he entered the States by way of California and thence came to Baltimore.

He began the practice of medicine in Wheeling, W. Va., but love of country life led him to finally settle at Independence, Washington Co., Pa., about 1860. During the Civil War he declined a commission as surgeon in the Southern Army. He died at Independence, Pa., Apr. 22, 1897, leaving besides Galen C. Hartman, a daughter Daisy May, wife of the Rev. George W. Muckley, general secretary of the Church Extension Board of the Christian Church. Mrs. Muckley died Sept. 16, 1916.

Mr. Muckley died Jan. 30, 1926, leaving four children:

Dwight Hartman Muckley of Chicago, Ill.; insurance, who married Frances Louise, daughter of Charles Blackwell and Elizabeth Barnes Eads of Fort Smith, Arkansas

They have one son Charles Eads Muckley, born Chicago, Ill., Dec. 13, 1926

George Herbert Muckley of Washington, D. C., assistant general attorney of the Southern Pacific Railroad Co. married Bernadine Murphy

Robert Latour Muckley of Chicago, Ill.; insurance

Martha Elizabeth Muckley, a student at Miss Madeira's School, Washington, D. C.

APPENDIX C

MR. P. S. SPANGLER is a direct descendant of Capt. Daniel Stoy, founder of Stoystown on the Lincoln Highway, Somerset Co., Pa. Daniel Stoy was born in England, May 3, 1738, and came to New Jersey about 1755, removing to Bedford, now Somerset Co., with his parents somewhat later, where he was a local factor and an officer in the Continental Army. He took command of twenty-nine riflemen enrolled at Bedford and marched to Carlisle, Pa., where a company was formed of which he became third lieutenant. In 1776 he marched to Long Island, but was shortly after ordered home as recruiting sergeant for one year.

In 1774 when a company was raised for two months' service in Bedford Co., to protect the inhabitants against the Indians, Daniel Stoy paid the men out of his private funds. He was engaged in several battles and was a ranger on the Frontier in 1778-83.

He was actively engaged in trying to shape public opinion for a confederation of the colonies at the trying period of our colonial history. He was granted a pension in 1819.

In 1783 he was appointed township assessor and in April, 1794, was commissioned justice of the peace for Quemahoning Township, Bedford, now Somerset Co., Pa. by Governor Mifflin. He was sent to the state legislature in 1809-10 and again in 1812-3.

His wife, Sarah Higgins Stoy, born in Scotland of Irish parents, Apr. 4, 1737, died at Stoystown, Oct. 31, 1818. Her father, Edward Higgins, was an early settler in Bedford, now Somerset Co., Pa., and took up warrants for large tracts of land on a branch of Stoney Creek, which since that time has been known as Higgins Creek.

Margaret Stoy, daughter of Capt. Daniel Stoy and Sarah Higgins Stoy, married Abraham Spangler<sup>1</sup> of Hagerstown, Md., a pensioner of the Black Hawk War and had, with Jefferson: Percy, Harry, Lewis, Frank, and Daniel Stoy Spangler, who married Sophia Myers or Moyer of Shanksville, Somerset Co., Pa.

<sup>1</sup>Abraham Spangler was a cousin of Michael Spangler, the son of Christian or Christopher Spangler, a native of York Co. Michael was married four times and had a son called little Christian, from whom the Spanglers of Somerset Co. descended.

Captain Stoy owned land on both sides of the Pennsylvania Road on a run known as Ned's Run (named for Edward Higgins), in Quemahoning Township adjoining the claim of said Edward Higgins, containing 289 acres, and at the same date and place he purchased the Ann Sherry tract lying on the Two Mile Run on both sides of the Great Road and adjoining the Mary Sherry tract, containing 290 acres.

A marker was erected over his grave by the Quemahoning and Somerset Co. Chapters of the Daughters of the American Revolution at Stoystown, Pa., in 1925.
